WILSON CALLS CABINET TO ARRANGE REPLY TO JAPAN ON LAND BILL

Ambassador Chinda Informally Notified of Johnson's Message.

Diplomatic Exchanges May Be Delayed for Full Week.

California Governor Sends Long Telegram to Secretary Bryan.

Washington, May 15. — President Wilson has arranged to confer with Secretary Bryan early tomorrow before the cabinet meeting, to draft a reply to the formal protest by Japan against the California anti-alien land bill, which Governor Johnson has announced he will sign.

The note will be submitted to the cabinet and then delivered to the Japanese ambassador. Indications are that the attitude of the Federal government toward the legislation itself, as well as questions of discrimination raised by Japan, will be fully defined.

Chinda Is Informed.

Governor Johnson's decision to sign the California anti-alien land bill despite Japan's protests, unofficially was communicated today to Viscount Chinda, the Japanese ambassador, as a matter of information, with the understanding that Secretary Bryan may present later Governor Johnson's answer officially with such comment as he may wish to make in behalf of the Federal government.

Mr. Bryan is in New York, and in his absence the subject will be con-

FULL SERVICE GIVEN ON ONE CINCINNATI LINE

Street Cars All Carry Police Guards and There Is No Rioting.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 15.—Full service on the Avondale line, over which twelve street cars were operated marked the chief development in the strike of the employes of the Cincinnati Traction company here today. All cars carried from four to eight patrolmen, and at intervals of every six blocks automobile patrols were kept moving along the line of operations.

No disorder marked the resumption of this service, and attempts to operate on other lines in the city will be made gradually.

The company announced today that an increase in wages to all men who had remained loyal to the company had been made, but did not state the amount of the raise.

In an effort to further unionize the employes of the street car company, a call has been issued for a meeting tonight of its engineers, firemen, oilers electricians and linemen. The men are still at work.

TEN INJURED IN YONKERS RIOT.

Yonkers, N. Y., May 15.—Several hundred strikers and sympathizers attacked as many strike-breakers who were leaving the plant of the Federal Sugar Refinery company last night and ten persons were taken to a hospital. Ten men were arrested.

Many women threw bricks and bottles upon the heads of the police who were called to quell the riot.

SNOW FALLS IN SASKATCHEWAN

Winnipeg, Man., May 15.—Snow fell at many points in Saskatchewan last night, according to reports received here, and crops in Western Canada have been retarded greatly. This has been the coldest May on record, say officials.

"MRS." SQUIRE FILES ANNUAL TAX PROTEST

Chicago "No Vote No Tax" Leader Objects to Having to Pay.

Chicago, May 15.—The fifth annual protest of "Mrs" Belle Squire, president of the No Vote No Tax league, against taxation without vote, has been filed with the board of assessors. The suffragist wrote her declaration of woman's independence upon the back of a personal property schedule blank which had been left at her residence.

"Just so long as the state persists in classifying me with the irresponsible and moral degenerates, except on payday," she asserted, "simply because I was born a woman, just so long will I refuse voluntarily to subscribe to the implied degradation by filling in this document.

"In doing this I stand absolutely upon those constitutional rights which would be mine were the Constitution other than the farce it now is so far as women are concerned, except those who live in the few commonwealths where femaleness is no disgrace.

"History tells us that this government came into being ostensibly to support the theory that paying taxes carries with it the right to vote."

"Mrs." Squire had the document sworn, and across the notarial seal stamped "Votes for Women."

Several weeks ago the suffragist, who is a spinster, announced that she wished to be known as "Missus."

$20,000 FIRE KINDLED BY LIGHTNING BOLT

Farmers at Norway, Wis., Put Out Flames With Buckets.

Racine, Wis., May 15.—During a severe electrical storm last night, a bolt of lightning set fire to the general store of O. A. Jasperson in the town of Norway, Racine county, spread to the Woodmen's Opera house and an adjoining meat market and resulted in the total destruction of all three buildings. The loss will approximate $20,000.

The village for a time was threatened with complete demolition, but the energetic efforts of a hurriedly formed bucket brigade made up of several hundred farmers finally controlled the blaze.

PICK MEN FOR COMMITTEES

Party Leaders in the House Have Agreed on Ratios.

Some Chairmanships Are Yet to Be Decided Upon.

Washington, May 15.—Representative Underwood, Democratic leader of the house; Representative Mann of Illinois, Republican leader, and Representative Murdock of Kansas, Progressive leader, are conferring on the preliminary plans for the assignments of members to the various committees. Both the minority leaders will soon submit their recommendations to Mr. Underwood.

The proportion of minority representation on the various committees to be allowed by Mr. Underwood is satisfactory to the leaders of the other two parties. The ways and means committee, one of the five already named, comprises fourteen Democrats, six Republicans and one Progressive, and about the same proportion of representation in the majority and minority will be observed as to the other important committees. The ways and means committee majority will be called together early next week to work on the committee assignments.

Some of the Places.

Mr. Burnett of Alabama will retain the chairmanship of the immigration committee, it is understood, leaving Mr. Clark of Florida an aspirant for the chairmanship of the public buildings committee, of which Mr. Burnett has been acting head since the elevation of Morris Shepherd of Texas to the senate.

A lively fight is on for places in the rivers and harbors committee, of which Representative Sharkman of Florida will remain chairman in all probability. Representatives Murray and Mahan want to be the new England members, and Representatives Kettner of California the Pacific coast representative on the committee. Representatives Bathrick of Ohio, Konop of Wisconsin, Dupre of Louisiana and McKellar of Tennessee are mentioned as preferring rivers and harbors assignments.

Representative Slayden of Texas would have to give up the chairmanship of the committee on library if he remains a member of the military committee, of which he is next in rank to Representative Hay of Virginia, who will retain the chairmanship. If Mr. Slayden gives up the library chairmanship, Representative Townsend of New Jersey may fall heir to the place.

That Representative Lever of South Carolina will get the chairmanship of agriculture has been a foregone conclusion for months. Most of the present chairmen of the big committees will remain.

ELOPERS PLIGHT TROTH IN COURT

Married Woman Agrees to Marry Affinity After Prison Term.

La Crosse, Wis., May 15.—Mrs. Mary Grahowski, wife of a manufacturer at Green Bay, Wis., and Joseph Hudson, her confessed affinity, were sentenced to the penitentiary at Waupun for one year in circuit court here today on their plea of guilty to the charge of elopement. Each is 28 years old.

Mrs. Grahowski, who has been married twelve years, professed in court her undying love for Hudson, and the couple, before being separated, clasped hands and promised to wed after serving their terms and after the woman had obtained a divorce.

FIND BOMB AT ART GALLERY

London Storehouse of Art Treasures Threatened By Women.

Old Church of William Penn Set on Fire By Militants.

London, May 15.—A so-called militant suffragette bomb was found during the night outside the National gallery, which contains invaluable art treasures and is in the very center of London, on Trafalgar square.

The machine consisted of a tin can filled with live cartridges, wrapped in a copy of the Suffragette. It was labelled, "Pills to break the windows of the National gallery." There was no mechanism or detonator connected with the explosives, and the "bomb" was therefore like many previous ones—quite harmless.

Fire Penn's Church.

Militant suffragettes last evening set fire to the organ of the old parish church of Penn, Buckinghamshire, which because of its association with the founder of Pennsylvania was of great interest to Americans. The flames were extinguished before they spread to the church, but the organ was ruined. A paper was found inscribed: "Suffragettes cause incendiarism for votes."

Refuses to Pay Costs.

A receiving order has been issued by the bankruptcy court against Frederick Pethick-Lawrence, a prominent and wealthy suffragist who recently severed his connection with the militant suffragettes' society. The order was made on application of the directors of public prosecution because Mr. Lawrence refused to pay the costs of the prosecution of himself, his wife and Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst at the Old Bailey sessions on a charge of conspiracy, last May.

The outstanding amount is $3,040. The court appointed an official receiver to take charge of Mr. Lawrence's affairs until the government's claim has been settled.

FRENCH VOTE DOWN ANTI-GAMBLING BILL

Deputy Declares Officials Protect Managers of Houses.

Paris, May 15.—The anti-gambling proposal introduced by Deputy Jacques Piou was rejected by the chamber of deputies by a vote of 331 to 220.

The Piou amendment sought to revoke all gambling licenses granted under the law of 1907. Its acceptance would have involved the closing of many clubs and casinos.

Deputy Vicomte Gustave de Kermueszec, who at the previous session of the chamber exposed clandestine gambling in Paris and the manner in which wealthy visitors are fleeced by professional gamblers, made another statement which caused a great commotion. On the authority of the special gambling police commissioner, he declared that many deputies and others were addicted to gambling in public as well as in private houses. The police therefore found much difficulty in establishing a breach of the laws because of the protecting influence of these politicians over the gambling places. Invariably the gamblers knew the day and the hour when a raid might be expected, and the police on their arrival could find no one.

NO AGREEMENT AS TO TARIFF

Democrats in Senate Continue Work With Republicans.

Kern's West Virginia Resolution Is Unfinished Business.

Washington, May 15.—Democratic senators tried again today for an agreement with the Republicans for a vote on the motion to refer the tariff bill to the finance committee with the Penrose-La Follette amendment directing public hearings.

Chairman Simmons was anxious to have the bill referred so that the committee could plan definite action on the schedules and have the bill ready for a report to the senate by June 1. Nearly a week has gone by without progress in the senate.

Senator Kern's resolution for an investigation of conditions in the West Virginia coal field strike zone was the unfinished business before the senate when it met today, and some senators were confident that a vote would be reached before adjournment. Senator Goff, opposing the resolution, was ready to conclude argument against its adoption.

Mr. Kern finally agreed to defer his resolution until 5 o'clock.

Smith Blocks Agreement.

An agreement to vote on the question of public hearings after five hours debate was about to be made by unanimous consent when Senator William Alden Smith blocked it.

"The attitude of the other side of the chamber," said he, "is so arbitrary in this matter that I do not feel that it calls for any generosity from th s side."

Debate then was resumed on the Penrose-La Follette amendment to the motion to refer the bill to the finance committee. The amendment was to instruct the committee to give public hearings.

GOES TO MEET LOVER; FINDS HE IS IN JAIL

Kansas City Girl's Trip to St. Paul Ends in Disappointment.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—After traveling 500 miles to marry the man whom she had loved since childhood, Miss Margaret Haffey of Kansas City stepped from a train here last night only to be greeted with word that her lover was in jail.

J. J. Kerl, her fiance, was arrested yesterday while cashing two alleged fraudulent checks, and will be turned over to Federal authorities today. He will be arraigned before the United States commissioner tomorrow on a charge of misuse of the mails.

Officials of a construction company with which Kerl was connected say he inserted "fake" names in the payroll and that the checks were forwarded to him through the mails.

TORNADO KILLS TEN AND INJURES DOZEN IN NEBRASKA TOWNS

INVOLVED IN THE VICE PROBE IN LOS ANGELES

GEORGE H. BIXBY.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 15.—George H. Bixby, the Los Angeles millionaire, is a banker of Long Beach, Cal. He was recently arrested at his ranch home and brought to Los Angeles for trial, charged with having contributed to the delinquency of minors. The arrest of the millionaire furnished the climax of a sensational vice investigation in the course of which his name was mentioned in connection with a resort known as the "Jonquil," operated by Mrs. Rosenburg. Bixby is nearly 50 years old and has a wife and five children. He is identified with practically every large enterprise in Long Beach and many in Los Angeles.

Washington, May 15.—Plans for co-operation between the Democratic national committee and the Democratic congressional committee will be discussed here tomorrow at a conference President Wilson will hold with Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania; Clark Howell of Georgia, Homer S. Cummins of Connecticut, Cato Sells of Texas and Fred B. Lynch of Minnesota.

Seward, McCool Junction and Tomaro Are Places Hit.

Omaha People Get Badly Scared and Run to Cellars.

Child Is Blown From Mother's Arms By the Storm.

Omaha, Neb., May 15.—Reports received early today show that the destructive tornado which formed in the sourthern part of Seward county last night took a toll of ten lives, injured forty persons and destroyed property valued at $250,000.

At least three towns—Seward, Tomaro and McCool Junction—suffered from the elements, the greatest destruction being at Seward, where eight persons were killed and fourteen injured.

Tomaro is reported to have been destroyed, with no loss of lives, and McCool Junction to have suffered much damage to property and two deaths.

At Seward a much greater disaster was averted by the fact that the tornado crossed only a comparatively small part of the town instead of sweeping across the more densely populated portion two blocks farther south. The property loss in that city is estimated at $100,000.

Crossed Southern Omaha.

The tornado apparently originated southwest of McCool Junction and gathered force as it moved to the northeast. It struck with full force both at Tomaro and Seward. All telegraph and telephone lines were demolished in the path of the storm.

The storm crossed this city near the southern limits, but its strength had been so far spent that the damage was nominal. This fact, however, did not prevent Omahans generally from seeking refuge in cellars and other places considered tornado proof. The experi-

He failed to return and has not been seen since. The real Oscar Martinson is chief of the Minneapolis police department.

INJURY BRINGS BACK CHICAGOAN'S MEMORY

John Oliver, Who Disappeared Years Ago, Recalls Who He Is.

Warren, Pa., May 15.—Disappearing twelve years ago while suffering from mental trouble, John Oliver of Chicago, a wealthy land owner of West Virginia and Pennsylvania, gained his memory yesterday after meeting with an accident in a sand plant at Torpedo, near here. He is in a hospital here awaiting the arrival of a brother from Chicago.

A telegram sent to his brother in Chicago by the county commissioners brought a prompt reply and confirmation of the man's story.

CHICAGO LEADS ALL PARCEL POST CITIES

Total Number of Packages Carried in April Is 59,500,000.

Washington, May 15.—Reports received at the postoffice department indicate that 59,500,000 parcel post packages were sent through the mails during April, approximately 54 per cent more than were handled in January, the first month of the system's operation.

Chicago, with 6,397,692 parcels, led all other cities in the amount of parcel post business done in April, while New York city, with 6,252,378 parcels, was second; Boston, third; Philadelphia, fourth; Cleveland, fifth, and St. Louis, sixth.

THREE STATES SCENE OF SERIES OF EXPLOSIONS

Dynamite and Powder Figure in Multiplying Disasters.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 14.—Frequent explosions of dynamite and powder within the last week in Western Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia, and attempts to explode heavily filled magazines are causing anxiety. Since last Saturday close to a dozen persons have been killed, scores have been injured, some fatally, and much property has been ruined.

Beginning last Saturday, when 500 sticks of dynamite exploded in the magazine of the Sunshine Coal & Coke company's mine near Masontown, Pa., resulting in the deaths of four and injury of two score, and ending yesterday with the explosion of 1,700 pounds of dynamite and seventy kegs of powder stored in the magazine of the Consolidated Coal company at Echart, Md., in which three were killed and a dozen injured, joint investigation by the three states is believed warranted.

In a preliminary explosion of dynamite at Parkersburg on Tuesday, five men were blown into a stream while fishing, one of them being drowned. Last night a miner's cottage at Colliers, W. Va., was blown to atoms by the explosion of a keg of powder. One man was killed the three seriously hurt.

MEXICAN PAPERS CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE UNITED STATES

Independente Wants Boycott of This Country By Mexico.

Mexico City, May 15.—The Mexican newspapers have begun a campaign against the United States, and many of them publish articles of a vituperative nature. A boycott is proposed by the Independente, which sneers at the United States for its alleged "dollar loving" character.

"The enemy has shown the world the congenital weakness which troubles him," says the Independente, "defended apparently by a circle of glittering millions, bristling with guns and cannon, omnipotent in the protection of his enormous battleships, he yet cannot hide his lamentable weakness. Like Achilles he has a vulnerable point."

That the Mexican government intends to continue treating "on routine matters" with Ambassador Wilson is evidenced by the fact that there was a discussion between his and the Mexican foreign minister, Senor De La Barra, on two or three minor questions.

ARRESTED FOR ROWDY CONDUCT

Roy Murnian Pleads Guilty to Attack on Conductor.

Roy Murnian was arrested this morning on a warrant charging him with having been in the party of rowdies who attacked Conductor Point on a street car in West Duluth Sunday evening when the latter attempted to stop the young men from drinking beer from bottles on the car.

He pleaded guilty in police court this forenoon to the charge but disposition of the case was put over until after the hearing of Lawrence Carey and Roy Drake, which will take place at the West Duluth court next Wednesday.

Murnian is the third to be arrested in the case. It is said that a warrant is out for the fourth member of the party and his apprehension is expected at any time. Murnian is out on $25 bail.

CLUB WILL WORK FOR A VIADUCT

Members of the West Duluth Commercial club will urge the immediate construction of the viaduct under the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad at Highland street at the meeting of the club tomorrow evening. It is claimed that the work must commence soon if it is intended to have it completed so as to allow its use by the farmers bringing in their produce to the local market this fall.

The passage under the railroad will connect Highland street with the Getchell road which is now being completed. It is proposed to leave the former street about 100 feet east of the railroad crossing and running in a northwesterly direction to a point under the tracks, it being claimed by the engineers that in this manner a shelf of rock will be avoided.

Parts of a few lots above the railroad will have to be condemned for this purpose. It is estimated that the total cost of the work will amount to about $8,000.

CHILD RUN OVER BY HEAVY WAGON.

While playing in the street in front of his home. Robert McLean, the 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McLean, 111 North Thirty-ninth avenue west, narrowly escaped being killed by being run over by a heavy dray wagon, late yesterday afternoon.

The accident was witnessed by neighbors who rushed to the boy's assistance. He was taken to the Duluth hospital where it was found that the wheels had passed over the boy's legs, badly bruising them, but breaking no bones. Dr. Robert Forbes gave the injuries attention, and the boy was taken to his home by his mother.

Only the fact that the wagon was not loaded is believed to be the cause of the injuries not being more serious. The lad was playing tag with other children and ran in front of the team. The name of the driver could not be ascertained.

"SELLS EASIER UNDER THAT NAME"

"Tenderloin of Beef Cutlets."

Such a high-fangled name to the ordinary mortal brings recollections of the juicy part of the beef. What a temptation comes to the hungry man when he sits down to the table in the restaurants as he scans the bill of fare and notices such delicacies offered to fill the inner man and that for only 30 cents.

The pleasant waiter brings on a platter two large pieces breaded and and surrounded with that mysterious commodity called "Spanish sauce."

Then comes the pleasure of cutting into it. Lo, what is that? Hash? No, says the waitress. Hash she insists has more potatoes mixed with it, and then again, it is not ground so fine. If you insist that it is hash she says: "Well, it sells easier under this name, don't yu'know."

CONSIDERING PUBLICITY PLANS

Duluth Will Be Advertised in Hot Cities of the South.

"Duluth, Great Port of the Northwest," will be the official booster designation of Duluth on letter heads, envelopes and literature sent out from the city, if the plans of the publicity committee of the Commercial club are carried out. The committee has adopted the designation, arranged in a design, with the latter part of the term in type small enough to fit under "Duluth" in large block letters.

The committee discussed a number of publicity projects at its meeting today. Various methods of distributing literature regarding Duluth were discussed. A summer campaign placing the inviting coolness of Duluth before the head-scourged people in the cities to the south was considered.

The trade extension committee also held a meeting at the club today and discussed the plans for the first trip which will be made into North Dakota a week beginning June 1. The members of the committee are busy getting the signatures of those who will make the trip.

WILL CHOOSE A SITE FOR SCHOOL

Residents of Smithville and Spirit Lake will hold a meeting next week for the purpose of deciding on a central location for the site of the proposed Smithville school. A number of places have been suggested by the residents but it is expected to arrive at a definite agreement at this meeting.

The site favored by the majority is near Grand avenue about three blocks south of the present location. This they say will bring the school closer to the residents of Spirit Lake and also near the proposed "model town" to be built by the Minnesota Steel company.

Members of the building committee of the school board have intimated that the building would be constructed this year in order to be ready to be occupied on Jan. 1 next year. Only a first unit consisting of four rooms is being considered at this time but this will be so constructed that additions can be built to it at any time.

STREETS ARE BLOCKED BY FREIGHT TRAINS

A number of complaints are being made by residents on Sixty-third, Sixty-first and Sixtieth avenues over delays caused by freight trains of the Canadian Northern railroad. It is claimed that the crews operating these trains often block the crossings for more than five minutes at a time and sometimes it is a half hour before traffic can be resumed over the streets.

PEERLESS LEADER REACHES CHICAGO

Chance Arrives With Team for Series With Sox--- Chance Day Plans.

Chicago, May 15.—Frank Leroy Chance, erstwhile "peerless leader" of the local National league team, entered Chicago today as an enemy at the head of the New York Americans. Notwithstanding this, the sun burst through recent clouds, and prospects were that "Frank Chance day" next Saturday would see a record crowd at Comiskey's park. Even now scalpers are getting double prices for the better seats, some of which they obtained despite the vigilance of the local management.

A few reporters, in the van of Chance's friends, boarded his train at Elkhart, Ind., and got him out of bed long before the first call for breakfast.

"It's tough to come back here as an enemy instead of a friend," said Chance, "but I don't have to be an enemy more than two hours a day, and that helps."

Then the returned exile declared that he had the making of a pennant-winning club.

"We got away in poor fashion," he continued. "I had only seven pitchers, and four of them were not fit. I couldn't take a twirler out, because I had no one to substitute for him. That was pretty tough sledding. At first I didn't understand the players and they didn't understand me, but now we are acquainted and will go ahead and win ball games."

Chance stated that he would place the youthful Keating on the mound next Saturday and would play first base himself. Pitchers Warhop and McConnell are laid up at present, leaving the hurling staff rather inflexible.

BOYS MUTINY.

Nine Bind and Gag Attendant in Juvenile Home.

Chicago, May 15.—Nine boys, prisoners in the juvenile home, mutinied last night, bound and gagged their male attendent and made a break for liberty. They were prevented from escaping by policemen on the beat attracted by the noise of the boys.

The attempted escape apparently had been carefully planned, and was inspired, the guards believe, by the attempts of two men to carve their way from the municipal court here Tuesday.

The mutineers were transferred from the home to a police station.

GRACE FILKINS.

Grace Filkins, wife of Rear Admiral Marix of the United States navy, is the leading woman in the company which will present in Washington for the first time "The Love Leash," a new play by Anna Steese Richardson. Unlike most stage marriages, the union of the admiral and the leading lady has proved most happy.

THIEVES MAKE A RICH HAUL

Get $418 From Pockets of Three Sleeping Men.

One Newly Arrived Finnish Immigrant Loses $300.

Two strangers made a rich haul when they went through the clothes of three men who were sleeping in a room of the lodging house at 312 St. Croix avenue between 10 and 11 o'clock last night, getting away with about $418 in cash.

Otto Maki, newly arrived from Finland, lost $300, of which about $20 was in Finnish coin, the balance being one $50 bill and $5 and $10 bills. Olof Rilpi was touched for $110 in $5 and $10 bills, and Hjalmar Laine lost approximately $8 in silver. Rilpi is a farmer living in Bayfield county, Wis., and Laine accompanied Maki to Duluth from the old country.

Maki had his roll in an inside pocket of his vest while the others had their coin in their trousers. Each of them thought that he had safeguarded his money when he put it under his pillow before going to sleep. The pocket of Maki's vest in which he had his money was torn completely out while the pockets of the others were inside out.

All of them were stopping in the same room, with several other men. A friend of the three men who were robbed, woke up just as the two thieves were going through the third man's pockets. He yelled to give the alarm and tried to hold the robbers in the room, but at the first sound they broke for the stairway and made their escape.

Descriptions of the two thieves were telephoned to Superior and a suspect was arrested there this morning. A search failed to reveal any money in his clothes. The man who saw the prowlers accompanied a detective to Superior to determine whether or not he could identify the prisoner.

St. Louis, Mo., May 15.—Frederick W. Humes, a member of the Merchants' Exchange and a broker representing a Minneapolis milling company, committed suicide on a Wabash train as it was coming into St. Louis today. He left a note to his wife saying he was in financial difficulties.

As the train, which came from Kansas City, neared the station here the porter heard a shot in the toilet room. Forcing open the door, he found Humes dead, with a revolver in his hand and a wound in his head.

Mrs. Humes refused to give out the details of the letter left by her husband. She said this was the first she knew of such trouble.

Humes left here Tuesday night for Cape Girardeau, Mo., and Jefferson City, Mo. He told his wife he was a party to lawsuits in those places.

MEETING OF COMMISSION

Resolution Classifying Departments of City to Be Considered.

Contract for Twenty-Third Avenue Pavement May Be Awarded.

Considerable routine business will be transacted at the meeting of the city commission which is scheduled for 3 o'clock this afternoon at the council chambers.

One of the most important matters which will come up will be consideration of the resolution apportioning the duties of the various divisions. The resolution has been prepared by City Attorney Clapp and each commissioner has had a copy in his possession since the Monday afternoon meeting. Any changes will probably be of a minor nature as the attorney took the proposition up with the commissioners before drawing the resolution. The rules which have been prepared for the administration and conduct of city business will come up at the same time.

The awarding of a contract for the paving of Twenty-third avenue west from Michigan street to Piedmont avenue is due for action. As tentatively arranged it is proposed to pave the avenue from Michigan street to Third street with brick; from Third street to Fifth street with sandstone blocks, because of the steep grade in that portion, and from Fifth street to Piedmont avenue with crushed rock. A delegation appeared before the council last Monday to urge that sandstone be laid the entire length of the avenue.

The ordinance appropriating $6,000 for hauling pipe for the water and light department the current season comes up for its third reading and will likely be passed, as will the resolution awarding the contract to the Standard Oil Company of Indiana for 50,000 gallons of road oil to be used in the city this summer.

AMERICAN'S FAMILY HELPLESS IN TROPICS

Government Has No Funds to Help Survivors of Vice Consul.

Washington, May 15.—A tragedy of the tropics, depicting the helplessness of the United States government to succor its citizens who meet with misfortune in foreign countries, revealed in correspondence made public today by James T. Dubois, United States minister to Colombia, who has just returned to this country.

The correspondence tells graphically of the death of Vice Consul Frank L. McKernan at Bogota from tropical fever. McKernan left a widow, a young daughter and his aged mother destitute. A message to the state department brought word that while the department would pay the expense of shipping the body home, there was no fund to cover the traveling expenses of the family. The plight of the family was relieved by an American steamship company providing them with free passage to New York.

The announcement is made by Mayor W. I. Prince, who has charge of the park system as head of the division of public affairs.

The news will be gladly received in all parts of the city, as the popularity of the open-air concerts has been fully demonstrated in the past through those which were given for several summers by The Herald.

Some of the parks have been equipped with stands. If necessary, these will be enlarged and improved and others may be needed. Supt. Cleveland last summer had plans for a portable band stand which had been tried with success in other cities and it may be that one of that kind will be seen in Duluth the coming season.

The free band concerts will fill out the week-end attractions which have been arranged for Duluth this summer by the Lark-o'-the-lakers. Interesting programs of sports and amusements have been planned for Fridays and Saturdays and they will undoubtedly bring hundreds of visitors to the city weekly. Many will wish to remain over Sunday and the free band concerts will be an added inducement to bring them here.

Railroads

MUST MOVE RIVER

To Obtain More Land for Proposed St. Paul Depot.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—The channel of the Mississippi river must be changed to obtain land enough to build a union railway station in St. Paul This was the decision reached by executives of all the roads concerned in a meting here yesterday. The plan calling for the change will be submitted to the United States engineers within two weeks.

Among those present were Vice President J. B. Berry of the Rock Island, H. E. Bush of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and Newman Erb of the Minneapolis & St. Louis.

SAYS CONDUCTORS WILL DEMAND RAISE.

Detroit, Mich., May 15.—"Conductors on forty-eight Eastern railroads will present their demands for an increase in wages of from 15 to 20 per cent July 1, and if the roads refuse to arbitrate, a strike will be ordered within the fortnight following," according to F. S. Thomas, general chairman of the Eastern association. He is here attending the biennial convention of the Order of Railway Conductors.

RAILROADS WILL NOT CUT FARES.

Chicago, May 15.—Requests for low fares for a large number of conventions were disposed of at a meeting of the Central Passenger association by referring applicants to a standing rule that no fare shall be granted less than 2 cents a mile in each direction. The association decided against a proposal that a charge of 1 per cent be added to the price of tickets on prepaid telegraph orders. The roads decided to continue to pay the telegraph expense.

EXPECT MINNESOTA MARSHAL TO ATTEND.

Bismarck, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The plan of work carried on by the fire marshal's department will receive greatest consideration at the hands of the North Dakota Firemen's association, when that body meets here June 10, 11 and 12. Secretary H. L. Reade announces that he expects the fire marshal of Minnesota will be present. The manner in which the department can co-operate with local departments will receive pricipal consideration.

Marquette, Mich., May 15.—News has just been received here of the appointment of Mrs. Minnie Swineford, widow of A. P. Swineford, the founder of the Marquette Mining Journal and later governor of Alaska, as postmistress of Ketchikan, Alaska. Mrs. Swineford was born in Marquette.

NO SYMPATHY FOR YEGGMAN

William West Will Get No Encouragement From Duluth Authorities.

Seeking Release From State Prison on Writ of Habeas Corpus.

William West, professional yeggman, now serving time in the Minnesota penitentiary as a convict from St. Louis county, will not receive any local encouragement in his attempt to secure his freedom upon a writ of habeas corpus which has been issued from the Washington county district court at Stillwater and which is returnable on May 23.

West is seeking his liberty on the theory that he has served seven years for the offense to which he pleaded guilty and that he is entitled to his freedom at this time. He contends that the state is forcing him to serve two sentences for the same offense, which he declares is unconstitutional.

The facts in the case as shown by the criminal records in district court here are as follows:

On March 23, 1906, Judge Cant sentenced West to five years in the penitentiary for the crime of burglary, third degree, West having pleaded guilty to the charge of breaking into the Oak Hall Clothing company building on Jan. 5, 1906, with intent to commit a crime.

At the same time, West pleaded guilty to a charge of grand larceny, first degree, admitting that he had stolen goods from the store after he had forced an entrance. This under the law is construed to be a separate offense, apart from burglary. Judge Cant sentenced West to ten years for this offense. It was provided in the commitment that West was to serve the five-year sentence for burglary first, and at the expiration of that time, his ten-year sentence for grand larceny was to begin.

Cover Some Offense.

West has already served seven years. He takes the position that both charges cover the same offense and that he is being compelled to serve two senetnces for the one crime.

West and Roy Rogers, a 19-year-old boy, came to Duluth on the afternoon of Jan. 5, 1906, and during the afternoon of that day held up, robbed and beat Hop Lee, a Chinaman, who was conducting a business on Fifth avenue west. The pair secured about $100 from him and escaped to Superior.

About 10 o'clock that evening they returned to Duluth and broke into the Oak Hall Clothing store, stealing a number of articles of clothing. Young Rogers was arrested while attempting to get away on a train to Minneapolis. West was caught at International Falls.

Both men were held to three charges, highway robbery, grand larceny and burglary. C. E. Adams was appointed by the court as their attorney. Rogers went to trial, but as the case was a clear one, he was convicted. He was sentenced to the reformatory.

Agreed to Plead Guilty.

West agreed to plead guilty to the grand larceny and burglary charges and the highway robbery charge was dropped. He was sentenced to five years on one charge and ten on the other. Mr. Adams, his attorney at the time of sentence, "is of the opinion that West has no ground on which to seek his freedom." According to Mr. Adams, grand larceny and burglary are separate and distinct charges and the sentences should stick.

Col. F. E. Resche, probation officer, who was in 1906 connected with the police department, declares that West is regarded by the authorities as a dangerous character to be at large. The record shows that he has twice been a convict in the Wisconsin penitentiary, and once in the Michigan state's prison. He is now 46 years old.

DULUTH CLASSES WITH BIG CITIES

Ranks Very High in Railroad and Banking Statistics.

Duluth's standing as a railroad center is illustrated by an interesting compilation of statistics of thirty-five cities in the United States, made by the Chamber of Commerce of Albany, N. Y.

The list includes cities ranging in population from Oswego, N. Y., with 23,000, to Buffalo, N. Y., with over 400,000. Duluth stands twenty-second in population in the list of thirty-five cities, yet only two lead Duluth in the number of railroads entering the city, Buffalo and Memphis, Tenn., each with seventeen railroads. Duluth has fifteen.

Twenty-second in population in the list of thirty-five cities, Duluth is tenth in number of banks, twelfth in the amount of bank deposits and seventh in the amount of bank clearings for 1912.

ENGINEERS WANT POLICE TO RULE

Object to Enforcement of Smoke Ordinance By the Health Department.

Stationary engineers of the city will ask the city commission to place the enforcement of the smoke ordinance in the police department instead of in the health department as it is at present. They claim that the smoke is a matter for police regulation and is not one touching on the health of the city.

"Black smoke is only a nuisance; it is not injurious to health," said an engineer in a downtown building today. "The healthiest men we have today are men who work in black smoke all day, such as blacksmiths, switchmen and trainmen. The engineers and business men will ask the commissioners to change the ordinance so that its enforcement will rest with the police department. One practical man, to whom the policemen will report on smoke conditions, can do more effective work than can be done under the present system."

A committee of the stationary engineers and representatives of the city government will meet with the smoke prevention committee of the Commercial club soon to work out a plan of abating the smoke nuisance. The engineers have expressed their willingness to co-operate with other agencies in securing better smoke conditions and the views of all parties will be harmonized at the meeting at the Commercial club.

To Reduce Moorhead Saloons.

Moorhead, Minn., May 15.—In accordance with the public demand that the forty saloons in this city be reduced by ten at the next license period, the Loyal Liberty Protective league, a saloon organization, is seeking to bring about a reduction of saloons from forty to thirty, by inducing some of the present saloon firms to consolidate, two of the present saloon keepers having decided to quit business as a result of the enactment of the Webb law preventing heavy shipments from a "wet" into a "dry" territory.

RAIDS NOT POPULAR.

Mercer County, N. D., Citizens Like to "Have Their Beer."

Stanton, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—While the new state's attorney and sheriff of Mercer county are demonstrating the sincerity of their intentions in law enforcement, their raids and seizures of beer and liquor can scarcely be construed as securing them a general popularity over the county. Peculiar conditions exist in Mercer, where a large majority of the citizens are Germans and they like their beer. In addition several hundred men are working on the grading and construction crews for the Northern Pacific extension. The drought is not particularly popular with them or many of the residents.

SEVENTEEN PAROLES

Are Granted By the State Board of Parole.

Stillwater, Minn., May 15.—The state board of parole in session here this week reviewed fifty-six applicants and granted seventeen paroles and four discharges from paroles. This is the biggest list in the history of the prison. F. A. Whittier, agent of the parole board, has reduced the parole proceedings to a system and keeps a complete record. The record for the applications and proceedings for the meeting yesterday makes a volume of 180 pages closely typewritten and placed in a filing book indexed and lettered for ready reference to individual cases.

FARMER IS ACCUSED.

Marquette County Man Alleged to Have Started Bad Fires.

Marquette, Mich., May 15.—Charles Roberts, a farmer of the Chocolay district, was brought into Justice Byrne's court yesterday, charged with having caused the fires which spread over four sections on April 29, 30 and May 1 and resulted in damage amounting to several thousands of dollars. He pleaded not guilty, demanded a hearing, which will be given him May 21, and is at liberty on his own recognizance. The case is the first brought against a man on this charge in this county.

ESTATE FEE LAW IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Jamestown, N. D., May 15.—The law of North Dakota which, for the last twenty years, has required the payment of fees from estates, based upon the valuation of the estate to the various counties, has been held unconstitutional by Judge J. A. Coffey of this district. The case came before the court from La Moure county, on an action to recover certain fees paid under protest.

RAIN HINDERS CANAL WORK.

Washington, May 15.—Excavation of earth from the Panama canal during the month of April, advices from the canal zone received today declare, amounted to 2,653,995 cubic yards as against 2,625,986 cubic yards during March. The average daily output in April was 102,077 cubic yards against 100,993 cubic yards in March. Concrete laid during April totaled 55,785 cubic yards against 98,769 cubic yards in March.

Increased rainfall accounts for the decrease in some branches of the work in April.

MORGAN GIFT TO CITY IS OPENED.

Aix Les Bains, France, May 15.—The Leon Blanc hospital given by the late J. P. Morgan to the city of Aix Les Bains as a memorial to his former physician, Dr. Leon Blanc, was formally opened today by the mayor in the presence of representatives of the French government, the Red Cross society and a number of medical organizations.

A great gold medal which was to have been given to the late Mr. Morgan was received by his nephew, Walter Burns, and his partner, Henry P. Davison.

Grocer Seeks Mayoralty.

Washburn, Wis., May 15.—When the recall election is held here June 5 in an effort to retire Mayor H. H. Peavey, who is also an assemblyman, he will be opposed by Charles Lysager, a grocer, who will be the candidate of the "Good government" element.

St. Louis County Convict's Case Has Gone Over for Week.

Stillwater, Minn., May 15.—When William West, an inmate of the state prison from St. Louis county, was taken before the district court Tuesday by a prison officer for a hearing upon a petition to be discharged upon a writ of habeas corpus, Judge P. H. Stolberg asked if the local county attorney had been given notice of the proceedings. Abe S. Ginsberg of Minneapolis, attorney for West, said he had not but argued that notices to the warden and attorney of St. Louis county were sufficient. His aplication to proceed was denied and he intimated that he would carry the point to the supreme court. The hearing was postponed until next Monday morning.

Warren, county superintendent of schools, from whom the county is seeking to collect money paid during a two-year period for traveling expenses, the greatest portion of which traveling is declared to have been unnecessary, Ward county has added $3,000 to the amount it asks.

The original complaint asked for the return of about $11,000, and in the new complaint the amount is placed at $14,846.40, which, with interest, makes the amount over $15,000.

FRICTION IN THE RANKS

Two Festivals Planned for Celebration of Norwegian Independence.

Committee Claims Normanna Society Started Insurgent Movement.

There will be two festivals in Duluth Saturday night in celebration of Norwegian Independence day. One will be held at the Armory under the auspices of thirteen Norwegian organizations of the city. The other will be held at the high school by the Normanna Male chorus.

The arrangement of two celebrations has aroused considerable friction and there is strong competition between the two festivals for the patronage of Norwegians celebrating the day.

The United Seventeenth of May committee, through Ivar Hestdahl, president, claims that the Normanna chorus has acted unfairly in arranging an independent celebration. Mr. Hestdahl says, in a communication to The Herald:

"In the issue of the Duluth Skandinav on Friday, May 9, in an article dealing with the initial steps for two Seventeenth of May celebrations in which the writer uses misleading statements in an attempt to explain matters; therefore, in order to defend the truth and give the Norwegian public a true account of the situation, we respectfully ask space for the following explanation:

"At a meeting of Nortun lodge, Sons of Norway, held Jan. 28 last, a committee was named to confer with all the Norwegian churches and societies in the city with a view to arranging a united Seventeenth of May celebration and the proceeds to go to the Mindegrave (commemoration) $1,000,000 fund.

Sent Out Invitations.

"The committee finding a general approval of its ideas by interviewing members of different organizations, sent out seventeen invitations to churches and societies, to which thirteen responded and each sent one delegate to form a united Seventeenth of May committee, which held its first meeting March 18. Previous to this meeting the president of the Mindegrave committee in a conversation between him and the president of the Seventeenth of May committee, declared that no arrangements had been made by them for a celebration, and that they did not intend to celebrate the Seventeenth of May this year.

"It was decided at the first meeting of the united delegates that the president communicate with some noted speakers outside of Duluth to be placed on the program and also the plan of forming a central organization of Norwegians after the celebration was talked over.

"The next meeting was held on March 24, and at that meeting the president of the Normanna chorus and the executive committee of the Mindegrave fund appeared and announced that they desired the celebration of the Seventeenth day of May to be left to the Normanna chorus to conform with an agreement made between them prior to the meeting, and that the proceeds should go to the Normanna fund. Kindly note that this fund is one which the Normanna chorus is trying to raise for its own special benefit to pay for a trip it is planning to take. The United Seventeenth day of May committee on the other hand has planned a celebration from which none of the organizations represented are to derive any special benefit, the entire proceeds to be turned over to a worthy cause.

Separate Festival.

"The united committee not seeing its way clear to meet their demands, the Normanna chorus deliberately planned a separate festival in spite of the plans already made.

"Now in all fairness, who is responsible for two festivals being planned for the same day? Two festivals on account of the fact that thirteen organizations were not able to meet the demands of one.

"At the committee's meeting on March 18, the secretary read a communication from the secretary of the Normana chorus stating that there would be no delegates sent from that organization. Later we are accused by the Normanna society of ousting their delegate from our meeting of March 24. This we emphatically deny. If a delegate was sent the committee was not aware of the fact as no demand was made for admittance and no credentials shown.

"The committee has exerted all its power to get all organizations in line for a united celebration and has succeeded to a marked degree. In view of our efforts to be just and fair to all concerned in a proper observance of the Seventeenth of May we respectfully ask the hearty support of the Norwegian people of Duluth and vicinity. Our only regret is that there is still one society so selfish in its motives that it is unwilling to take part in the celebration of a day of this kind when patriotism should reign supreme and not an eager desire for individual monetary gain."

sidered by Counsellor Moore, to have it ready for the secretary to lay before the cabinet at tomorrow's session, when an effort may be made to reach a final determination on the line of policy for the negotiations with Japan.

Week of Waiting.

When the ambassador has received Secretary Bryan's formal communication it will be necessary for him to communicate it to the foreign office at Tokio and receive instructions for preparing a rejoinder, so that probably a week will elapse before the negotiations can move another step.

Interest has been excited by Governor Johnson's quotation of that part of the California law which appears to limit his action, so far as it recognizes Japanese rights, to the existing treaty of 1911, and there is some speculation as to whether members intended to foreshadow a refusal on the part of the California authorities to be bound by the stipulations of any treaty that hereafter may be negotiated between the United States and Japan that would appear to be in conflict with the provisions of the new law.

No New Points.

Officials here fail to discover any point not suggested to Secretary Bryan when he was in Sacramento, with the probable exception of reference to the fact that the present state legislation, in terms, sanctions and even requires the enactment of such legislation as the Webb act.

The fact that though announcing his intention to sign the act, Governor Johnson has not actually affixed his signature, is regarded here as an act of courtesy, intended to hold the door open to a last word from the administration, if it should desire to communicate further with him before the final act of approval.

In his messages to the governor of California, President Wilson already has expressed the opinion that the legislation is discriminatory, so that the Japanese contention that the act constitutes discrimination in violation of international law and of the spirit of the treaty is powerfully supported, and the position of the state department made difficult should it be found necessary to champion the cause of the Californians.

New Treaty Possible.

The first thing to be done by the department will be to inform the Japanese embassy formally of Governor Johnson's action. In the ordinary course of the negotiations, the Japanese government would reply that, as it is prevented by the Constitution of the United States from negotiating directly with one of the American commonwealths, it must hold the national government responsible for anything that may occur in California to the detriment of Japanese residents. Probably with the exchange as a preliminary, the two governments will begin negotiations in earnest, with the purpose of finding some way permanently to adjust the status of the citizens of each country resident in the other on a satisfactory basis.

It is hoped here that this can be accomplished diplomatically by the negotiation of a new treaty. If this hope should not be realized, then recourse might be had under the terms of the special arbitration treaty of 1908, to The Hague tribunal, though how the United States government could enforce a finding by that court adverse to the California law, is at present a grave problem.

Tokio Optimistic.

Tokio, May 15.—The foreign office is optimistic as to the outcome of the controversy over the California alien land ownership legislation. In reply to an inquiry today a high official said:

"The negotiations between Japan and the United States are progressing satisfactorily. We expect to reach a friendly and permanent solution of the difficulty."

Sent Lengthy Teegram.

Sacramento, Cal., May 15.—Expressing his determination to sign the alien land bill recently passed by the legislature, Governor Hiram W. Johnson of California telegraphed to Secretary of State Bryan late Wednesday a lengthy explanation of the stand taken by the legislature in passing the bill. The message was in answer to the request telegraphed by Secretary Bryan, at the direction of President Wilson, asking that the bill be vetoed.

With the sending of the telegram the controversy over the alien land bill is at an end, so far as the California administration is concerned. Governor Johnson has until June 16 in which to sign the act, and in the normal course of events it will become law at the expiration of ninety days from the closing of the legislature, or on Aug. 10 next.

The only contingency that might arise to check its operation from and after that date is the threatened referendum petition which Theodore A. Bell, a Democratic leader, it was said, would circulate against the measure as soon as it was signed.

Text of Johnson Message.

The text of the governor's message follows:

"Hon. W. J. Bryan, Secretary of State Washington, D. C.:

Your very courteous telegram relating to the alien land bill reached me late Sunday night. I take it from our conversation and your request to me to withhold executive action until opportunity was accorded for the presentations from the Federal government, that your message embodies what it was your wish, and the wish of the president, to say to us before final action.

"In this response, it is my design most respectfully to present the situation from our standpoint, and the views that actuated our legislature in passing the bill and that impel me to sanction it.

"For many years a very grave problem, little understood in the East, has confronted California; a problem, the seriousness of which has been recognized by statesmen in our nation and has been viewed with apprehension by the people of this state.

State Constitution.

"When the present Constitution of California was adopted, more than thirty years ago, it contained the following declaration: 'The present entrance of foreigners ineligible to become citizens of the United States is declared to be dangerous to the well-being of the state, and the legislature shall discourage their immigration by all means within its power.'

"Of late years our problem, from another angle, has become acute, and the agitation has been continuous in the last decade in reference to our agricultural lands, until final affirmative action by attempted solution became imperative. This attempted solution is found in the action of our legislature in the passage of the alien land bill.

"In the phraseology of this bill, in those whom it affects, in its scope and in its purpose, we believe we are within our legal and moral rights, and that we are doing only what is imperatively demanded for the protection and preservation of our state. In this enactment we have kept ever in mind our national good faith as evidenced by existing treaties, and our desire and anxiety have been to act only in such fashion as would commend us to our sister states, and would justify us to our fellow countrymen.

Provisions of Bill.

"The bill that is now before me provides, substantially, in its first section that all aliens eligible to citizenship under the laws of the United States may acquire real property in the same manner as citizens of the United States; and the second section provides that all aliens other than those mentioned in the first section may acquire real property in the manner and to the extent and for the purposes prescribed by any treaty now existing between the government of the United States and the nation or country of which such aliens are citizens or subjects, and may, in addition, lease for a period of three years lands for agricultural purposes. Thus we have made existing treaties a part of our law, and thus have we preserved every right that any foreign nation, by international contract, has insisted upon preserving with our national government.

"We assume that the right of Japanese to own real property for the purposes described is absolute in our state, and we seek to deal only with our agricultural lands. We embody the treaty in our law, and we add to it permission to lease our agricultural lands for the period of three years.

Extraordinary Care.

"Where such extraordinary care has been exercised to preserve honor and good faith, in the very words of the contract made by the protesting nation with our own, and to do more by authorizing leases of agricultural lands, it would seem that we ought not to be open to any accusation of violation of treaty rights, or desire to entrench upon that which belongs alone to the national government, or which might become a matter of international policy.

"By the law adopted we offer no offense, we make no discrimination."

The naturalization laws of the United States, long since without demur from any nation, determined who were and who were not eligible to citizenship. If invidious discrimination ever were made in this regard, the United States made it when the United States declared who were and who were not eligible to citizenship, and when we but follow and depend upon the statutes of the United States and their determination as to eligibility to citizenship, we cannot be accused of indulging in invidious discrimination.

"May I venture to call to your attention the immigration law now pending in congress, which passed both houses of the last congress, where apparently certain classes, who shall be excluded from our country, are described as 'persons who cannot become eligible under existing laws to become citizens of the United States?'

"At this very moment the national legislature, without protest or objection—indeed, it is published in California by express consent—is using the terms that are claimed in California's law to be offensive and discriminatory.

Other States' Action.

"At least three states in the Union have, in the past, enacted laws similar to the contemplated law of California, and the enactments of those other states have been without objection or protest. That the protest is now made in respect to California but emphasizes the acuteness of the problem confronting California, and demonstrates that California is differently viewed than other states of the Union, and that if discrimination exists, it is discrimination against California.

"We of California believe that in our legislative dealings with this alien land question we have violated absolutely no treaty rights.

"And so, with all respect and courtesy, the state of California feels its bounden duty to citizens to do that which the interests of its people demand; that which the conscience of its people approves; that which violates no treaty rights; that which presents no discrimination, and that which can give no just cause for offense.

"You have suggested to me delay, but this question was very earnestly and fully presented by you to our legislature, and the legislature determined to proceed. My province is to approve or disapprove the law as presented. Our people, as represented in the legislature, have overwhelmingly expressed their desire for the present alien land bill. The vote in the senate was 35 to 2, and in the assembly 72 to 3. With such unanimity of opinion, even did I hold other views, I would feel it my plain duty to sign the bill, unless some absolutely controlling necessity demanded contrary action. Apparently no such controlling necessity exists.

"It is said with the highest respect for yourself and the president that I feel my duty to my state compels me to approve the action of the legislature.

"HIRAM JOHNSON,
"Governor of California."

Pioneer Resident Dies After Long Period of Ill Health.

Coleman F. Naughton, Sr., a resident of Duluth since 1876, died this morning at his home, 120 East Third street. Death, which came about 5 o'clock, followed a long period of ill health.

Mr. Naughton was 79 years old and well known among the pioneer residents of Duluth. He came to this city from St. Paul in 1876 to assist in the building of a coal dock which had been started by the Northwestern Fuel company.

He continued to serve in the capacity of superintendent on the docks in Duluth and Superior for the same company until about four years ago, when owing to ill health he was obliged to retire. The following two years was spent away from Duluth with the hopes of regaining his health.

Besides his widow, he is survived by two daughters, Misses Barbara and Mary Naughton of Duluth, and four sons, C. F. Naughton, Jr., of Duluth; J. G. Naughton of Superior, Dr. M. T. Naughton of Chicago, and Dr. J. P. Naughton of Worcester, Mass.

The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Bodkin, counsel for the treasury, attempted to elicit from the accountant who audited the books of the Women's Social and Political union what became of the so-called secret service fund of $1,250,000 of which the newspaper, The Suffragette, announced $900,000 had been raised. The accountant, however, was unable to throw any light on the subject. The prisoners smiled broadly at the attorney's futile efforts to get onto the track of their funds.

Salaries of Workers.

The accountant produced the salary book of the union from which it appeared the salaries of the leaders of the militant movement were not princely. Miss Annie Kenney received $21 weekly. "Gen." Mrs. Flora Drummond and Miss Harriet Rebecca Kerr $17.50, Mrs. Beatrice Sanders and Miss Rachel Barrett $15 and Miss Laura Lennox $10. Miss Christabel Pankhurst, who is living in Paris, drew $875 in the last few months, according to the books.

Women Are Mobbed.

Hastings, Eng., May 15.—A joint demonstration of the Tax Resisters' league and militant suffragettes, held here as a protest against the sale of belongings of those who refused to pay taxes, was broken up by a mob. The women were roughly handled and covered with soot. The police rushed the women into a blacksmith shop and held the mob at bay until the arrival of reinforcements. The women were then escorted to a railway station.

ence of Easter Sunday taught them to consider seriously the approach of ominous looking clouds, and the appearance in the southwest of last evening's storm was sufficient to set everybody seeking an avenue of escape.

Danger Not Suspected.

Seward, Neb., May 15.—Eight persons were killed and fourteen injured in the tornado which swept a district one block wide and sixteen blocks long in the north part of this city last night, shortly before 6 o'clock. The tornado came with a violent hail and rain storm.

No one has been reported as having seen the funnel-shaped cloud or having suspected that danger lurked in the unusual darkness of the late afternoon. Three persons were killed who had every opportunity to seek refuge in their cellars, and half a dozen were injured who said they could see no tornado approaching.

Blown From Mother's Arms.

At the Schultz home, where August Schultz and a 4-year-old child were killed, a baby boy, 2 months' old, was blown out of the mother's arms and dropped down within a yard of where his father and sister had been killed by flying debris. Mrs. Schultz and another child were pinioned under the wreckage of the kitchen, but were rescued by volunteer firemen who formed a relief party soon after the storm passed.

Widow's Wish Fulfilled.

Last week Mrs. W. G. Edmund's husband died following a sudden illness. His widow mourned deeply for him, and expressed a wish to join him soon. Yesterday's storm claimed her in its list of fatalities. She was struck by a flying timber and was crushed into an almost unrecognizable form.

The city will clear its own streets, pay its own bills and will get along without state troops, according to a statement issued today by Mayor Calder. Property to the amount of $40,000 was destroyed in the city, not including damage to telephone and telegraph lines.

Cows Lost Horns.

At the Imlay home, which was the first struck by the storm following its devastation of the county fair grounds on the Big Blue river, two cows stood peacefully in their barn while the greater part of the structure was whisked over them. Each cow lost one horn in the storm and suffered no other injury.

St. Louis, Mo., May 15.—"Armed intervention by the United States is the only thing, in my judgment, that will restore peace in Mexico," said Missionary R. P. Mahon of Morelia, state of Michoacan, Mexico, in an address before the Southern Baptist convention today.

"I have been unable to return to my work in Mexico for the last two months on account of revolutions and revolutions against revolutionists. The country is in absolute chaos, and without the hope of getting together if led by any of its own people.

"Vice, ignorance, gambling and extreme poverty hold the majority of people in Mexico down."

GRAND LODGES OF A. O. U. W. TO MEET

North Dakota Organizations Will Be Entertained at Fargo Next Week.

Fargo, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Next Tuesday and Wednesday Fargo will entertain the grand lodge of the A. O. U. W. and the Degree of Honor. The jurisdiction of North Dakota was created in 1895. Prior to that time the two Dakotas were united. Since that period more than $2,000,000 has been disbursed by the state organization. Its membership is about 6,000 and there are also subordinate lodges. The organization has retained the same men as receiver and recorder since the separate jurisdiction was formed. By increasing its rates and its methods of conducting business the A. O. U. W. stands particularly high among fraternal beneficiary organizations in this state.

The A. O. U. W. and Degree of Honor lodges of Fargo are planning entertainment for the delegates to the grand lodge next week and interesting programs have been arranged for each organization, in addition to the regular routine business.

REPORT AGAINST DECIDUOUS TREES

Lester Park People Suggest Planting of More Evergreens.

A committee of the Lester Park Improvement club yesterday reported to Mayor Prince that in its opinion more evergreen trees and fewer maples, elms and other deciduous trees should be planted in the city.

It was stated that the season for leafage in Duluth is so short that for eight months in the year the trees of this latter class present bare boughs, while the evergreens are in foliage the year through. The committee expressed the opinion that the white pine is the tree best adapted for planting in this city. The members of the committee who exhaustively investigated the subject are C. W. Jerome, J. A. Wharton and H. G. Inman.

The report was handed to Mayor Prince as head of the park department by F. R. Thompson, secretary of the club. The commission has been invited to attend the special meeting of the club to be held this evening at the Lester Park M. E. church. Short addresses will be made by J. H. Norton, J. A. Wharton and C. P. Craig.

The seizures include property of Miss Tillman's mother. The charges are made in a report to Collector Loeb by Inspector Henry after a two day investigation. District Attorney Vreeland of the New Jersey district has cited the two women to appear in the Federal court at Trenton next Monday to answer the charge.

WANTS DIVORCE DECREE MODIFIED

Woman Wants Custody of Her Children More Than Two Months a Year.

Mrs. Gertrude Montgomery, divorced wife of George E. Budd, has petitioned the district court for a modification of the divorce decree granted her husband some time ago. The matter will come up for a hearing on May 24.

Mrs. Montgomery, who since she was divorced, married Alexander H. Montgomery of Pewaukee, Wis., asks the court to change the original decree so as to extend the time each year in which her two minor children are allowed to visit her. They are Myrle, 10, and Manola, 12.

The court's original order placed the children in the custody of George E. Budd, father, for ten months out of the year. Mr. Budd resides at Minneapolis. The decree provides that the children may visit their mother twice a year and spend one month on each visit.

Mrs. Montgomery has filed an affidavit in which she states that she has an ideal home for the raising of children and that the children have reached that age at which they require maternal care. She wants the court to allow the children to spend more time with her.

Her affidavit is accompanied by a number of others, one from her present husband, in which he agrees to provide for the children, another from Rev. W. E. Spencer, Episcopal pastor, who gives a testimonial as to the woman's church relations, and from neighbors.

NEWS OF MODEL TOWN STARTS BUILDING WAR

Townsite Owners Will Also Erect 100 Homes for Workmen.

Contract for First Installment Will Be Let at Once.

A building war in the vicinity of the new steel plant is pending.

The participants will be the United States Steel corporation and the private lot owners, at Gary townsite, but the Steel corporation's object will be attained whatever the outcome is. That object was to have its workmen properly housed.

Following the announcement in The Herald Tuesday that a model town would be built by the Steel corporation on its property, the private lot owners immediately sat up and took notice. The Steel corporation's attitude was that if had to have comfortable homes for its workingmen if the corporation had to build them itself.

Immediately following the announcement of the model town the private lot owners decided to enter the building contest on an extensive scale also. Watson S. Moore, who has extensive interests in the Gary townsite, announced this morning that contracts would be let this week for ten new houses, and that these would be but the first installment of a large number to be built during the summer. It is expected that at least 100 houses will be built this year at Gary by the owners of the townsite. A contract was let two or three weeks ago for thirteen workingmen's houses and these are now being built. The ten additional ones will make twenty-three in all, on which work will be in progress before the end of next week, and these will be followed within a month by thirty or forty more.

At the present time every house in Gary is occupied, and the housing conditions are none too good in some of the boarding houses where men are crowded in every available corner. The first of the Steel corporation's houses cannot be ready for two or three months at least, and in the meantime the townsite owners hope to "get the jump" by erecting as many houses as possible to provide for the present surplus of workingmen.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Activities of Other Municipalities, Which Might or Might Not Be Copied in Duluth.

DURING the past twelve months the Oakland, Cal., municipal woodyard has been a success, according to a report made to the board of directors by W. S. Goodrich, the superintendent. Lodging, food and employment has been provided to hundreds of men out of work. Money for the operation of the yard has been provided by the sale of wood and kindling. The woodyard has completed the year with a balance of $119.50. Since the city assumed control of the yard many improvements have been made and the scope of the work extended. Temporary employment was obtained during the year for 1,100 indigents, 16,741 meals were served and lodgings furnished for 13,730. There were also furnished free baths and laundry. The suggestion is contained in the report that the waste labor be used in work on the playgrounds and parks and in cleaning up vacant and unsightly lots. It is the hope of those interested in the woodyard that the institution develop along the lines of an efficient free employment bureau, and state co-operation is suggested.

Duluth has no need for a municipal woodyard to provide work for the unemployed as jobs for those who want them are generally plentiful. What is mostly needed is the early operation of the work farm, where local residents who persistently refuse to labor can be compelled to earn their keep by the sweat of their brow, or at least at the expense of several beads of perspiration. To make some of the specimens who now pass regularly through the police court grist work hard enough to actually sweat, even on a hot day, would require superhuman genius, and a man with such ability would scarcely be available for hire as superintendent of a work farm.

DREAMS—IDLE DREAMS

The Moving Sidewalk, the Hillside Arcade and the Boulevard Monorail.

Some years ago a visitor in Duluth, gazing at the towering hills and contemplating the incline railroad, had an inspiration. He chased up a guileless young reporter and poured a tale into his ears.

The visitor declared that he was the representative of a company which was interested in the promotion of moving sidewalks. He said that Duluth furnished an ideal subject for his business and that he was going to make a proposition to the city council to install moving sidewalks—and roadways, too, perhaps, on Fourth and Second avenues east from Superior street to the boulevard.

In phrases that flashed with light and paragraphs that glowed with color, he outlined his scheme. If a person wanted to go to Fifth street, he would have only to step on the moving sidewalk and he would be whisked to his street without further effort on his part. The long, hard climbs would be saved the horses. People would come from far and wide to ride on Duluth's moving sidewalks, climbing the side of the mountain. He made his story interesting and plausible and the young reporter swallowed it. He wrote it in the flowery style of the inspiring genius, and the city editor, recognizing its brand but ever willing to fall for a good story, let it go through. That was the last ever heard of the moving sidewalks.

Some years ago, "Sir Tammas" McGillvray had a dream. If he would fall for anything that didn't originate in Scotland "Sir Tammas" must have been indulging in Welsh rarebit. Perhaps it was Scotch woodcock, but at least he had eaten something that had generated within him the stuff of which dreams are made.

Vivid Dream.

When he awoke, the dream was vivid in his mind and he set is down on paper. He drew an elaborate perspective of a towering structure, with a height at Superior street equal to the height of the boulevard. The plans provided for a building reaching from Superior street to the boulevard, the width of two city blocks. It was a giant arcade with the streets cut through and elevators at each street. A team could be hoisted from Superior street to the top floor and make the trip on the level to the boulevard. Correspondingly a team could go to the twelfth or fourteenth floor and go to Third street.

The roof was laid out for a race track, a baseball park, playgrounds, roof gardens and other sections for entertainment and recreation. Along the side of the building extended a wonderful ski slide that would give any of the professionals all the thrills they wanted. There were other wonderful features in that building—features that have never been included in any building in the history of the world. Perhaps "Sir Tammas'" dream also indicated that the building was just a starter, and that in time it could be extended to include a whole city under one roof, or two cities, one under the roof and one on top.

At any rate, "Sir Tammas" had his dream printed. The reporter wrote an elaborate description of the structure, and illustrated it with a pen and ink sketch that showed the mass of brick extending from Superior street to the boulevard.

Now in this age of sophistication somebody comes to bat with a suggestion that the boulevard be equipped with a monorail road, on which the dear people might travel at a nickel a travel where the automobiles now raise the dust at $5 per dusty hour. The story doesn't say how people are going to get to the boulevard to take the monorail, but perhaps they will go on the moving sidewalks when they are installed, or travel along the roof of McGillvray's mammoth arcade when it is erected.

Thus do the dreamers dream.

FOR CHURCH UNION.

Lutheran President Predicts Protestants Will Unite.

Atchison, Kan., May 15.—A "universal Christian church," in which all Protestant sects shall be united, is the church of the future, and rapid strides toward the accomplishment of such an ideal are being made, according to statements by Rev. Junius B. Remensneyder, pastor of St. James Lutheran church, New York city, who preached the synodical sermon at the opening here of the forty-fifth biennial convention of the general synod of the Lutheran church. Mr. Remensneyder is president of the synod. The Lutheran church, he said, with its 70,000,000 members throughout, the world and its broad standards, seemed best fitted to lead the Protestant churches to unity and the evangelization of the world.

JUDGE'S NEPHEW SHOT BY WIFE.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 15.—H. P. McNeil, a nephew of United States Judge Emory Speer of Georgia, was shot and probably fatally wounded in a scuffle with his wife yesterday at Pablo Beach. Mrs. McNeil and Plush Lee, McNeil's negro chauffeur, both were placed under arrest pending investigation.

According to statements attributed to the chauffeur and to Mrs. McNeil, she was attacked by her husband. She grappled with McNeil, who, according to the statements, had drawn a revolver and was attempting to shoot her.

EMBEZZLED TO PAY BLACKMAIL.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 15.—Declaring that he embezzled to silence blackmailers, William St. John Ranney, a Pasadena club man, pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing money from the Santa Fe Railroad company, by which he was employed as chief clerk to the auditor. Ranney, though charged with the embezzlement of $60,000, was arraigned in the superior court on only one charge, which involved $1,875. Judge Willis set Saturday next as the time for passing sentence.

Ranney submitted to the court a written statement, in which he declared he had embezzled to obtain money to pay five men who threatened to expose him as a former prisoner in the New York state reformatory.

CLEARED AWAY.

Proper Food Put the Troubles Away.

Our own troubles always seem more severe than any others. But when a man is unable to eat even a light breakfast, for years, without severe distress, he has trouble enough.

It is small wonder he likes to tell of food which cleared away the troubles.

"I am glad of the opportunity to tell of the good Grape-Nuts has done for me," writes a N. H. man. "For many years I was unable to eat even a light breakfast without great suffering.

"After eating I would suddenly be seized with an attack of colic and vomiting. This would be followed by headache and misery that would sometimes last a week or more, leaving me so weak I could hardly sit up or walk.

"Since I began to eat Grape-Nuts I have been free from the old troubles. I usually eat Grape-Nuts one or more times a day, taking it at the beginning of the meal. Now I can eat almost anything I want without trouble.

"When I began to use Grape-Nuts I was way under my usual weight, now I weigh 80 pounds more than I ever weighed in my life, and I am glad to speak of the food that has worked the change." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little booklet, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Homely, Yet Admired and Envied; Her Secret

The convention crowd in the lobby made a path for her; cast admiring side glances, then with longing eyes followed her to the elevator. It was at the Pouchartrain in Detroit. The incident was recalled when I chanced to sit across table from the woman. What was it about her that caused all that commotion? She wasn't handsome; she was lacking in form and feature. Yet she did seem marvelously fascinating. Her complexion must be the secret. Really, I've never beheld its equal. Venturing to pick up acquaintanceship, I learned the reason.

"I know I'm not built for beauty," she confided, "but I've tried to make the most of my one charm. I've learned that men abhor make-ups and artificiality. I bar cosmetics; there are just two things I ever use and they promote natural loveliness and youthful appearance.

"When my complexion begins to age, I get an ounce of mercolized wax at the drug store, apply at night like cold cream and wash it off in the morning. This gradually flakes off the outer skin; then I have a brand new complexion, magnetically beautiful, as you see.

"Wrinkles never bother me. At their inception I bathe my face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. It works like magic."—Mona Morrow in Town Tattler.

PAYS NEAT TRIBUTE TO DULUTH CLUB

Taking its cue from Public Affairs, the bulletin of the Duluth Commercial club, the bulletin of the Chamber of Commerce of Miles City, Mont., has an article on the criticism of civic organizations, incidentally paying a tribute to Duluth and the Commercial club of the Zenith City. It says:

"There is probably not a single commercial organization in the world that is not criticized more or less.

"When we hear of some particularly progressive community doing something especially enterprising we are apt to conclude that they are all boosters in that town. Wherein we are dead certain to be wrong. Every ship carries some ballast, some carry so much they haven't room for the cargo.

"Take Duluth for example—Peerless Duluth, the classiest gem in the coronet of the Imperial Northwest—progressive, tireless Duluth that always lands on both feet and gets out a new city directory every six months—even Duluth's Commercial club, which has transformed a straggling frost bitten hamlet into a metropolis, gets duly roasted by some of the business men and heavy taxpayers (or tax dodgers)."

MURDERER IS SHOT.

First Such Execution Takes Place Under Nevada Law.

Death by shooting was Microvich's choice in preference to the gallows, the Nevada law providing either means, with the selection optional to the condemned.

REDFIELD GIVES OUT STRAIGHT WARNING

Tells Lithographers He Will Investigate Cuts in Men's Pay.

Washington, May 15.—A warning to business interests that the government stands ready to investigate what may appear to be reprisals upon workingmen following the passage of the Democratic tariff bill, was voiced here last night by Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce in a speech at a banquet of the National Association of Employing Lithographers, in session here. He read to the employers a circular they had issued predicting dire consequences for workingmen, and flatly told them that if their prediction were carried into effect he would promptly investigate.

W. P. Powers of New York, who was elected president of the association, pledged the local co-operation of the body to any investigation by the government into what may appear to be reprisals upon workmen following the passage of the Democratic tariff bill. Turning to Secretary Redfield at the conclusion of his address, Mr. Powers declared that the lithographers' association did not want the domination of the industry throughout the world, but they wanted the right to "compete in our full efficiency."

The Democratic tariff bill was attacked in resolutions adopted and in speeches. The resolutions protested against what are described as "utterly inadequate rates of duty upon lithographic imports as promised by the Underwood bill," and declared "the flood gates against foreign products of popular art would be opened and the achievements of American designers and art printers greatly damaged."

THEFT OF ARMY SHELLS CHARGED.

Nogales, Ariz., May 15.—Cal Wright, town marshal of Nogales, Ariz., A. C. Villasenor, prefect of Nogales, Sonora, and Jack Wilson, an American bartender, were bound over under $1,000 bond for trial before the Federal court. They were arrested following exposure of a plot to make away with large quantities of ammunition held by the United States troops here.

Alberto Flores, assistant chief of police of the Mexican town, was bound over on a charge of attempting to carry a concealed rifle across the international line.

Fatal Collision in Air.

Johannesthal, Germany, May 15.—Another collision in the air has occurred here. A biplane piloted by Capt. Zuckerer and carrying a pupil named Dietrich as a passenger, collided with a monoplane at an altitude of sixty feet. Zuckerer was killed, Dietrich was severely injured, and the two men in the monoplane were slightly injured.

FIELD AND TRACK MEET

Annual Contest Among the Grade Schools for Herald Trophy.

Boys' Department Y. M. C. A Will Conduct Events on June 7.

The ninth annual interscholastic field meet will be conducted again this year by the boys' department Y. M. C. A. for all the school boys of the city.

This will be good news to the many boys who have been looking forward to this big athletic event. The date has been set for Saturday, June 7 at the ball park, West Superior street. The silver loving cup presented by The Duluth Herald is the trophy that will be keenly contested for. It is given to the school that wins the most points in all the events, and is that school's property for one year. When a school has won it three times it becomes their permanent property. Last year it was held by the Adams school. This is the second cup presented by The Herald. The Washington school was successful in winning the other three times, thus becoming the owner.

In addition to The Herald trophy the boys' department will present to the winning team a beautiful silk banner made in the colors of the school.

The contestants will be divided into weights, this method making it absolutely fair for every school, little or big, and boys are contesting only with boys of their own weight. The midget division is for boys over 70 and under 90 pounds. Their events are: Potato race, eight potatoes, 50-yard dash; three standing broad jumps; 440-yard relay race. The lightweight division is for boys between 90 and 105 pounds and the events are: 75-yard dash, running high jump, three standing broad jumps, 600-yard relay race. The middleweight division is for boys between 105 and 120 pounds and the events are: 100-yard dash, running high jump, three standing broad jumps, one-fourth mile run, 880-yard relay race. The heavyweight boys are over 120 pounds and the events are: 10-pound shotput, 100-yard dash, running high jump, one-half mile run, one mile relay.

The champion in each division will receive a silver medal watch fob, and the winners of first place in each event will receive the official Interscholastic Athletic league pin. The winner of second place will receive the same design pin only made of half silver and half bronze. Third place will receive a bronze pin. The school that has the largest delegation will receive a felt banner.

Registration blanks must be in at the boys' department on the afternoon or evening of June 4. Friday evening June 6 all the contestants will be weighed at the boys' building and will receive their numbers.

Be young again for an hour. See "Jack and the Beanstalk" at Lyceum.

SHRINERS BREAK AN OLD PRECEDENT

Have Two Candidates for Imperial Potentate—Irwin Elected.

Dallas, Tex., May 15.—What had been a custom was broken when the Imperial Council of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine voted for two nominees to the highest office of the order, electing W. W. Irwin of Wheeling, W. Va., imperial potentate. It had been the practice to advance each officer one step in rank, and the highest office would have gone without contest to Deputy Imperial Potentate Irwin. However, John Bohle of Utica, N. Y., was nominated also. He received only eighty votes aginst 347 for Irwin.

Three ballots were taken before James Sutton McCandless of Honolulu was chosen from among the nine men nominated for imperial outer guard. Jack Jones of Oklahoma City, former imperial potentate, withdrawing in Mr. McCandless's favor.

Atlanta, Ga., was chosen for the 1914 convention city. The convention was concluded with an elaborate ball.

HIS CASE WAS HOPELESS

Could Hardly Eat. Gradually Grew Worse. Relieved by Peruna.

Mr. A. M. Ikerd.

Mr. A. M. Ikerd, Box 31, West Burlington, Iowa, writes:

"I had catarrh of the stomach and small intestines for a number of years. I went to a number of doctors and got no relief, and finally one of my doctors sent me to Chicago, and I met the same fate. They said they could do nothing for me; said I had cancer of the stomach and there was no cure. I almost thought the same, for my breath was offensive and I could not eat anything without great misery, and I gradually grew worse.

"Finally I concluded to try Peruna, and I found relief and a cure for that dreadful disease, catarrh. I took five bottles of Peruna and two of Manalin, and I now feel like a new man. There is nothing better than Peruna, and I keep a bottle of it in my house all the time."

Persons who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets.

Woman's Realm

A pageant of the nations with songs and dancing will be given during the summer, probably about the middle of July, at the Barnes grove at Hunter's Park, the delightful little natural amphitheater which has been the scene of other delightful out-of-door affairs, under the auspices of the Ladies' guild of the Glen Avon Presbyterian church.

A few years ago "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream" and a Japanese festival were put on under the direction of that church at the pretty grove and were most successful. The women of the church are at work on costumes and the dances are being worked up now, and will be put on on a big scale.

Miss Anna Macfarlane and Miss Della Smith, both Wellesley college girls, planned the program and with the following young women, Misses Katherine Hunter, Kathryn Denfeld, Maud Matteson, Jane McLeod and Maud Sherwin will direct the dances, assisted by the Girls' guild of the church.

The committee on arrangements for the grounds consists of Mrs. A. R. Macfarlane, Mrs. W. C. Sherwood, A. L. Warner and R. M. Hunter, while the committee on advertising consists of Mrs. R. M Hunter, Mrs. J. R. Patterson, E. E. Hunner and Sam Atkins.

FOR SENIOR GIRLS.

Collegiate Alumnae Plan Reception and Program.

Senior girls of the high schools and the Normal school will be guests of the Collegiate Alumnae and College club at a reception on Tuesday afternoon of next week at the Commercial club. The program arranged for the afternoon will include a talk by President Vincent of the University of Minnesota on "College and Life" and senior girls from the Central high school will present, "A Midsummer's Night's Dream," a farce, under the direction of Miss Rita Kendall.

The informal reception will be held at 4:30 o'clock, following the program, and arrangements are being made by Mrs. W. H. Hoyt, president of the Alumnae association and a committee of members.

CHURCH TEA.

Trinity Auxiliary Has Birthday Party.

Celebrating the sixth anniversary of the organization of the Trinity procathedral branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal church, the members of that society yesterday afternoon entertained at a birthday party at the guild hall of the church and members of the St. Paul's branch were their guests. Spring flowers were effectively arranged on small tea tables and the tea was served from a large table with a centerpiece of a huge white cake with six lighted candles.

Owing to the illness of Rev. Thomas McLean, the rector, and of Bishop Morrison, both the talk on "Cathedrals," to have been given by Mr. McLean, and the survey on "Church Work in the Diocese," to have been reviewed by Mrs. Morrison, were not given. Mrs. W. E. Jones, president of the auxiliary for several consecutive years, gave the address of welcome. Musical numbers were rendered by Miss Edith Fitzsimmons and Mrs. B. M. Ruse.

The reception committee consisted of Mrs. W. E. Jones and Mrs. Page Morris. Mrs. A. H. Brocklehurst, Mrs. C. F. Fitzsimmons, Mrs. M. F. Jamer, Sr., Mrs. D. D. Murray and Mrs. E. A. W. LeQueane were assistant hostesses.

The new fancy dances are becoming popular and are being danced more and more at the parties.

Fashion In Cars.

Is the same Dame Fashion who rules milady in the choice of wearing apparel to work a revolution in the design of motor car bodies? Is the Bulgarian blouse, that loosely fitting, comfortable upper half of milady's costume to cause a lengthening of up-and-down lines in automobile bodies? According to a letter recently received by one of the manufacturers Madame Style and her latest Parisian creation are about to introduce some important automobile innovations.

The writer of the letter is a well known woman motor enthusiast who prefers to do her own driving rather than employ a chauffeur and who chooses open cars rather than the coupe. Part of her letter is as follows:

"The Bulgarian blouse bids fair to call for some changes in motor car body design. Since the advent of this conceit in woman's attire, there have been complaints coming from women who drive open cars, because of the lack of protection from the wind. The blouses, you know, are loose about the bottom and the wearer finds the wind set up by the motion of the machine uncomfortable. Then, too, the full bottom of the blouse is prone to fly up about the arms and hands, interfering with the steering.

"The best remedy for this situation that I can see now is to make the dash and foredoors of open cars higher and thus further protect women drivers from the wind. This or some other expedient will have to be employed for the Bulgarian blouse remains in favor, for it is generally well known that the women will demand changes in the cars they drive or even put up with many discomforts rather than be out of stye. So it seems to me that the manufacturers will have to prove their gallantry by providing deeper bodies in order that women customers may drive, fashionably clad and still in comfort."

Election and Supper.

As a result of the annual election of officers held at the annual business meeting of the Woman's Alliance of the Unitarian church at the home of Mrs. Walter Brinkman, 2116 East Third street, yesterday afternoon the following were chosen to fill the offices during the coming year: President, Mrs. Brinkman; vice president, Mrs. H. J. Atwood; secretary, Mrs. George R. Gebauer and treasurer, Mrs. G. R. Landon.

Plans for the anniversary supper, which will be held at the church tomorrow evening, were discussed.

Rotary Club Delegates.

Mrs. I. C. Buell and Miss A. M. Osborne have been elected delegates of the Women's Rotary club to the annual meeting of the Eighth district of the Federation of Women's Clubs, which will be held at Virginia Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. The election was a feature of the regular meeting of the club held last evening at Webster's restaurant.

A number of affairs are being given for Mrs. James Surpless, Jr., of Chicago, who is visiting here. Mrs. J. F. Dennis of Park Point entertained at bridge yesterday at her home, 3719 Minnesota avenue, the game being played at five tables and the favors going to Mrs. E. C. Alstead, Mrs. O. Birdsall and Mrs. J. H. O'Leary. Mrs. Surpless received the guest prize. Assisting Mrs. Dennis were Mrs. William Arter, Miss Loretta O'Gorman and Miss Irvine.

Mrs. Irvine and Miss Irvine gave a bridge party this afternoon and Mr. and Mrs. J. O'Gorman will entertain at bridge tomorrow evening for Mr. and Mrs. Surpless.

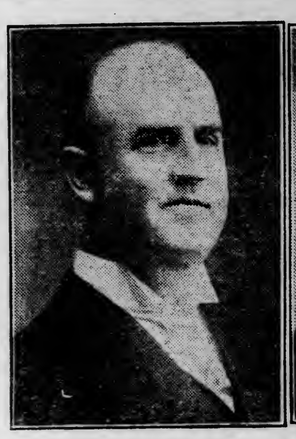
"SAFETY FIRST" WILL BE THE WARNING TO SCHOOL CHILDREN



FREDERICK HUGHES.

MRS. FREDERICK HUGHES.

Duluth school children are to hear of the "safety first" movement.

On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hughes of Los Angeles will arrive in the city to spend about ten days here impressing on school children and others the dangers of accidents that are met with daily in the city streets. They will speak to every class in every school in Duluth, giving a five or ten minute talk on the dangers of street cars, automobiles, motorcycles, wagons, fires and live wires, and will impress on the children the necessity of "having their wits about them."

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes represent the American Safety league, and their work is nation wide.

Amusements

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Kinemacolor motion pictures.
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville and talking pictures.
EMPRESS—The musical Revue, "Along Broadway."

Amusement Notes.

Today, tomorrow and Saturday will be children's days at the Lyceum. During these days the famous Kinemacolor three-reel feature, "Jack and the Beanstalk" will be shown. The adventures of Jack, from the time he sells the cow for a handful of beans, until he regains his father's possessions, are all depicted. One sees Jack entering the giant's castle, his running off with the hen that lays the golden eggs, and his many trips up and down the beanstalk. The giant's capacity for food is strictly in accordance with his monstrous size. Entire sides of beef and a suckling pig go to make up part of his lunch, during which he drinks many huge glasses of mead. One also sees Jack's beanstalk start out of the ground and grow as one looks on, until it is lost in the clouds. Perhaps the most picturesque effect ever shown in motion photography is Jack and his mother in the swan boat, towed by a number of beautiful swans.

In addition to "Jack and the Beanstalk" three excellent black and white reels will be shown and the soloists will all be heard in new numbers.

Members of the Duluth and Virginia baseball teams were guests of honor at the Orpheum matinee today.

Owing to the rain the game scheduled for Athletic park had to be postponed and Manager Billings invited all of the players to attend the matinee as his guests.

There is a "silent act" on this week's bill that is causing much merriment. It is the pantomime act presented by "The Dorlans" and called "A Terrible Night." It shows the experiences of a countryman in a strange hotel bedroom. The bed is a trampoline mat disguised and the first part of the act is an amusing picture of the troubles he has in trying to get to sleep. Later the bed is stripped of its coverings and the man and his partner, a young woman, go through some difficult tumbling on the trampoline mat. It is a French act, brought to this country by Martin Beck, managing director of the Orpheum circuit, and both Mr. Dorlan and his wife speak English with difficulty. They have been favorites for years in the music halls of their native land.

But five more performances will be given at the Duluth theater this season. The theater will close for the summer after the Saturday night show, and Orpheum patrons evidently wish to have a last look at the theater for the audiences have been growing steadily since Monday night.

"Along Broadway," the merry musical revue coming to the Empress tonight for the balance of the week, was thus reviewed by a leading newspaper of Joliet, Ill., on March 21, 1913:

"Minnie Palmer and Norman Friedenwald certainly picked a winner in "Along Broadway," a feature cabaret tabloid which is playing at the Orpheum this week. The show is the best that has been seen at the Orpheum this season. By the action of the audience last night, and the number of encores that each number called forth, the tabloid can be nothing else but a success.

"The one big comedy hit of the piece was made by Will Stanton as Lord Lovall. As an intoxicated character he rivals even Billy Reeves. He kept the audience in a continual state of laughter. Bobby Robbins scored heavily as the Jew.

"Stanton's comedy in the last part probably won him the next applause. He says hardly anything, but his actions are so humorous and he takes the most unusual falls, that he is a scream all the way through. It is a show worth seeing."

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

American Women Should Be Their Own Arbiters of Fashion.

Only the other day I read where one of the smart women's tailors of Paris, whose name is supposed to represent the last word in fashions for the fair sex of two continents, had arrived in New York, for the purpose, he said, of getting in touch with American demands, and learning a little more, at first hand, about his good customers over sea. This famous designer talked frankly about dress for women, and made one statement that to me was startling, and no doubt was to thousands of other women who read it.

His assertion was nothing more nor less than this: that many of the so-called Paris fashions, some of which come to this country directly as importations and others as copies of so-called Parisian models, do not in truth represent the best French fashions, but the worst. He declared that many of the styles that prevail almost universally here, among women of all classes of society and all standards of morals, in Paris prevail only among the members of the demi-monde, and are to be seen only in places of doubtful propriety or those known positively to be disreputable. Some of these fashions, he said, which are copied here by the very best women, in Paris are eschewed by women of the same class.

Surely, coming from so high an authority, this is a serious indictment of our "Paris fashions." It surely gives additional force to an appeal in one of the recent magazines for a distinctly American standard of fashions. This magazine declares that "the American woman owes her charm to the fact that she has not copied the woman of any other nation," and yet she "still, slavelike, consents to follow the dictates of Paris in the matter of clothes." Is it not true? Is it not the American woman regarded by the observing representatives of every other nation who visit our shores, as a type peculiar to herself, and altogether admirable and charming?

What a commentary, then, that she must bow to Paris for her fashions, and especially when she is being victimized into such a misconception as that stated by the famous designer!

As the French designer said, and as this magazine insists, a French gentlewoman would not wear some of the monstrous styles that are foisted onto the American woman as Parisian. Why, then, should the American woman consent longer to be a slave, especially when she is getting not the best, but the lowest type of that nation which she seeks to emulate?

American women surely have enough individuality, initiative and artistic sense to set their own standards of fashion, and to follow them independently of any other nation.

"Stupid Not to Know How to Bring Out Your Good Points, or to Let Your Prettiness Fade."

Lilian Lauferty in New York Journal: "Is she as pretty off the stage as on?"—haven't you often wondered that about your favorite star, or even some of the lesser lights who dazzle your eyes with their loveliness?

I know one stage beauty who is far lovelier in her little dressing room than all the glare and tinsel of stage illusion can make her. Ethel Barrymore's wonderfully expressive gray eyes, flower like white throat and gracious manner are little private lovelinesses so fine and rare that you must miss them except at close range. And she is modest. That modesty adds a charm to her beauty such as little Miss Self-Satisfaction would do well to study.

Beauty and Brains.

"You want me to talk about beauty," said Miss Barrymore. "Beauty means Maxine Elliott to me. Maxine Elliott with her wonderful face and figure, and the splendid brain that animates it all. Brains, brains!—they are the inspiration and real spirit of true beauty.

"It is stupid not to know how to bring out your points or to let your prettiness fade.

"A frilly black ruff back of a long, white throat, and a sparkling face animated by brains, will bring out the charm of the foreground. If you are wishing to look your prettiest, and look tired and drawn instead, plenty of cold water will bring the becoming flush of color to your face.

"You know there is nothing immoral about beauty, though some old fogies seem to think so. Think of making laws about the width of women's skirts, and whether two inches or two and a quarter inches of white throat should be shown by the low cut blouse!

A Matter of Taste.

"Good cold cream will do a lot toward assuring you of a white throat. Good taste will tell you where to cut your blouse. Women ought to study these things, so men won't need to come out of their sphere and agitate about them. I told one fat old hypocritical mayor out West, who when forced to have a vice crusade in his wicked town began by making laws about the width of women's skirts, that what worried him was not having those feminine skirts wide enough to hide behind any more."

"You interest yourself in divers causes?" the interviewer asked.

"Oh, yes. Women must. Interest yourself in things outside yourself, for if you think about yourself you will be self-conscious, and that means awkward and unbeautiful.

"Now, I am shy." Think of that, you little blushing girls whose self-consciousness worries you to the point of fears. Beautiful, talented Ethel Barrymore is "shy." And her cure for self-consciousness is to be interested in things outside your own petty little self.

"On the stage I am my part. I lose myself. In society I am one of the guests, and I forget Ethel Barrymore. But if I am asked at a dinner to get up and recite; or if in a public place people stare and force self-consciousness, I am not happy. One never is happy if thinking of self. Posing and acting unconcerned won't help it; brains and hard work will.

What Happiness Is.

"This brings me to the beauty of a happy home life. Now, I have my husband, my two children, my tasks and duties. The glaring restaurant life does not bring out contentment, self-forgetfulness—or a consequent, sweet expression."

"For beauty—brains, modesty, self-forgetfulness, happy home life and good taste." I mused.

"Brains cover it all. You have to be wise enough to bring out your good points, and to cover your poor ones until you can overcome them. You must have brains, and study to develop them, if you want to be more than a pretty picture that people glance at and forget."

"Haven't you some personal beauty secrets?" I asked boldly.

"I? Beauty secrets?" in a tone of honest amazement.

"Yes, you indeed."

"Oh, no. I study a lot, of course, I read twenty-five books up in Toronto last week. I am always reading—and studying music. And I guard my health." Miss Barrymore laughed and took an earnest nibble at the lemon she is relying on to help her overcome a threatened case of laryngitis. "A simple life! Not too much rich food—high thinking, I've just one pet theory—two glasses of cold water morning and evening. That is such a gentle stimulus to the physical well being."

Drink Lots of Water.

Over on the mantel shelf, next to the picture of two dear little kiddies, stood a bottle of mineral water.

"Has that a special medicinal value?" I asked.

"No. I just try to be sure of clear, pure water. I am not sure in the average theater—so I drink bottled water. But I never omit my before-going-to-bed drink of water.

"I drink milk, too. Though it is not safe to take much of that if you are threatened with an accumulation of pounds. You see, brains come in again about not growing fat in these days of sylphs. Don't let fat accumulate. For in the process of losing it violently you are likely to get a drawn and haggard look. That means you are going to appear old. Soft facial contours guard against the appearance of age."

YOU'LL WANT IT ALL THE TIME

Once you have tasted the delicious nut-like flavor of "Minnesota" Macaroni, you will want to eat it every day. There has never been any macaroni like it before—none so firm, so nutritious and so flavory.

"Minnesota" Macaroni is one of the best and most nourishing foods known—yet it costs only about one cent a dish. Serve it at least twice a week in place of meat. You will save money and your family will enjoy better health.

"Minnesota" Macaroni is especially fine for children — it builds strong bodies and does not overload the stomach.

Try the handy "Minnesota" Cut Macaroni, which is cut into uniform pieces—it cooks more evenly and is quicker to prepare. Adv.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: MAY 18.

Genesis xlii, 3-17; Joseph Meets His Brethren.

CONNECTION.

Since Joseph was made ruler the seven years of plenty have passed during which time he stored up supplies in strategic centers, part of the seven years of famine have passed and the supplies are running low. Pharaoh sold to the people and in some cases has taken their land in return. The drouth has affected all the countries that lie near Egypt and many people come for corn, both because Egypt produced more grain than any other country and evidently it became known abroad that they had laid in great supplies for such an emergency.

Meantime Joseph had grown in influence. He had married the daughter of an eminent man and was blessed with two sons, Ephraim, so called because the name means fruitful, and Manassah, which means forgetfulness, and he had been made to forget his hardships. His wise administration had won him honors and love. We have the visit of his brothers to get grain for their families and flocks.

THE LESSON.

I.

Jacob Sends for Corn. 3-5.

"And Joseph's ten brethren went down to buy grain from Egypt. But Benjamin, Joseph's brother, Jacob sent not with his brethren; for he said, lest peradventure harm befall him. And the sons of Israel came to buy among those that came; for the famine was in the land of Canaan."

1. JACOB.—He was still alive, about 120 years old as we shall soon hear from his own lips. He was as much alive as any of his boys, from the way he reproached them, verses 1, 2, about sitting around and starving while there was grain to be bought in Egypt, as he knew on general principles and had heard from travelers passing through.

2. BROTHERS.—Jacob sent all the ten because it was necessary to have a good sized company to take care of the pack animals and to resist any band of hungry marauders who might attack them. It was precious stuff they would be bringing home. But Jacob refused to send the youngest because he had taken the place of Joseph in his special affections, as he was also the son of his loved Rachel. Joseph had been gone more than twenty years and Benjamin was three years old at that time. Jacob never forgot the boy he lost and he lived in dread of losing the youngest. It must have been a big crowd of people coming to Joseph for food.

II.

Joseph Accuses His Brothers. 6-13.

"And Joseph was the governor over the land; he it was that sold to all the people of the land. And Joseph's brethren came, and bowed down themselves to him with their faces to the earth. And Joseph saw his brethren, and he knew them, but made himself strange unto them, and spake roughly with them; and he said unto them, Whence come ye? And they said, From the land of Canaan to buy food. And Joseph knew his brethren, but they knew not him. And Joseph remembered the dreams which he dreamed of them, and said unto them, Ye are spies; to see the nakedness of the land ye are come. And they said unto him, Nay, my lord, but to buy food are thy servants come. We are all one man's sons; we are true men, thy servants are no spies. And he said unto them, Nay, but to see the nakedness of the land ye are come. And they said, We thy servants are twelve brethren, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan; and, behold, the youngest is this day with our father, and one is not."

1. RECOGNITION.—He recognized them from their dress, their looks as Hebrews, their personal features for they were all grown men when he saw them last, and their language, for while he spoke the Egyptian tongue he knew his native language and perhaps used that in his worship and taught it to his wife and boys.

Their failure to recognize him was due to his growth, for he was only 17 when they saw him last, his position as ruler for they never could have imagined him to be the ruler of Egypt, his language, for he used an interpreter.

2. RECOLLECTION.—He remembered those dreams he used to have and now they were coming true—his brothers were bowing down to him. Their hatred and violence were bringing it about, at that. But in what spirit did he remember it all? Further along in the story we learn how complete is his forgiveness of them. Had he not been sold into Egypt he never could have saved the people of Egypt and his own people from starvation. Had he not gone there his people would have missed that training they got in Egypt which was so essential to their mission. He sees it all in a flash and his heart has no bitterness; on the contrary he is full of loving interest in them and in his father and brother.

3. ACCUSATION.—On the spot he takes the right decision as he always did. He adopts the method that will get him some very desirable information about his father and brother and their own spirits and will give them some training they very much needed. It would be quite natural that spies should come in with the hope of discovering the weak spots so that some strong nation might invade the country. So Joseph assumed a rough manner and accused them of being spies. The reply that they were all the sons of one man implied they could not be spies for no one man would risk all his sons in such a risky enterprise. Their report about the younger and the one who was not living, as they expressed it, was designed by them to convince him.

III.

Joseph Tests His Brothers. 14-17.

"And Joseph said unto them, That is it that I spake unto you, saying, Ye are spies; hereby ye shall be proved; by the life of Pharaoh ye shall not go forth hence, except your youngest brother come hither. Send one of you, and let him fetch your brother, and ye shall be bound, that your words may proved, whether there be truth in you; or else by the life of Pharoah surely ye are spies. And he put them all together into ward three days."

1. BENJAMIN.—The first demand was that the younger brother be sent for as proof that they were not spies. He was after information as to whether they had treated that boy as they had treated Joseph himself. That would awaken the conscience of the brothers also, as well as their responsibility for him. Joseph had already forgiven them but he wanted to get them to the point where they can make use of his forgiveness. He intends to give them all they need when they are in a state of mind to know all their needs and profit by his kindness.

2. IMPRISONMENT.—To put them in prison for three days would impress them with the sin of wronging an innocent man, and they frankly confessed to themselves that they were getting some returns on their own investment. Joseph would teach them some lessons and learn something about them. And he did it without resentment and in wise kindness.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

A miserable tyranny drove out of Great Britain a number of its bravest men and purest women. Watching the Mayflower driven with its sorrowful freight over the wild sea to an unknown world, the troubled spectator might have protested. Where is the justice, wisdom or benign purpose in the permission of this tragedy? What condemnation can be too severe of the government which allows this expatriation, if such government there be? But it is all clear now. The American republic is the interpretation of the dubious incident of the seventeenth century.—Watkinson.

Their old sin tied their hands, through their father's awful dread of losing another son. How often a man has all the desire to make a new start and live a straight-forward life, but the old, unrepented sin, that may be uncovered, handicaps him. Jean Valjean, in "Les Miserables," may have a copy in miniature in every Sunday school in the land.—Cowan.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. How was it possible for Joseph to forgive those who had wronged him?
2. Is there any wrong which a Christian ought not to forgive?
3. Is it true that a man always reaps what he sows?
4. What blessings came to Joseph through his captivity?
5. What blessings will come to you and others through your hardships?

BUILDING BRAINY MEN

Perhaps you can't build brains with food alone—but a food that supplies, in digestible form, every element needed to build a perfect human body must help some—and that's the reason, no doubt, that cereals have taken the place of desserts in the students' dining hall at Harvard University. The food to study on, to work on, to grow on, is

BIG BENEFIT TO SHIPPERS

Ruling of Interstate Commerce Commission Affects Potato Growers.

A recent ruling of the interstate commerce commission regarding conditions necessary for the shipment of potatoes in cold weather, it is declared, will affect 25,000 cars of potatoes shipped from Minnesota and Wisconsin each year to various points of the country, and further than that Secretary N. E. Sevey of the Minnesota Potato Growers' and Shippers' association declares that it will be one of the greatest stimulants the export potato trade of this state could possibly have.

The commission a few days ago handed down a decision to the effect that railroads must furnish heated and lined cars for potato shipment and denies the right of the roads to refuse shipments because of excessive cold weather. The commission also proposed a conference between the shippers and the roads to devise means for handling the crop. The carriers had proposed to make the shippers provide their own protection against frost on penalty of a refusal to accept shipments any time between Nov. 2 and April 5. Commissioner Harlan, who handed down the decision refuses to accept the proposition of the roads on the ground that the potato traffic is a permanent feature of transportation and as such the carriers are obliged to make adequate provision for it.

Last winter during the extreme weather about the only road that did not refuse shipments of perishable stuff in this vicinity was the Duluth, Missabe & Northern. That road is equipped with Moore patent refrigerating and heating cars.

STEEL MAKERS ARE GUESTS AT BANQUET

Visiting Officials Leave for Tour of the Ranges.

The party of steel manufacturers and Steel corporation officials from the East who are in this part of the world to see the ore taken out of the ground and started on its way to their plants, left last night at 11 o'clock in a special train over the Duluth & Iron Range road for Coleraine and Hibbing at which places they will spend today visiting the mines. They will return to Duluth this evening and will inspect the ore docks tomorrow, leaving for their homes in the East on Saturday.

One of the most important events of their visit here was a banquet given them last evening at the Kitchi Gammi club, which was attended by the whole party of thirteen and ten local steel officials and engineers. The chief talk of the evening was that given by John Uno Sebenius, general mining engineer of the Oliver Mining company. Mr. Sebenius' discussion of conditions, of the lay of the ore strips and other technical things connected with the business was most interesting and instructive, and he was followed by several of his assistants who answered questions put to them by the visitors, many of whom have never seen the process of mining and knew nothing about the deposits of the ranges.

COURTS CLASH IN CANAL ZONE.

Colon, May 15.—Widespread interest has been aroused by the case of Gonzalez Guill, a criminal judge of Colon, who is charged in the canal zone with attempting to shoot the captain of a motor launch during an altercation while on the canal zone waters. The Panaman government has protested against the jurisdiction of the canal zone courts, arguing that the alleged offense occurred in Panaman waters.

BADGER G. O. P. FOR HARMONY

Banquet at Madison Urges National Convention to Reorganize Party.

Representatives Lenroot, Frear and Manahan in Pleas for Harmony.

Madison, Wis., May 15.—Wisconsin Republicans were urged to forget factional differences and to unite for the party's good in state and nation, at a largely attended banquet here last night. The message was carried by Congressman Irvine L. Lenroot and James A. Frear of Wisconsin and James Manahan of Minnesota.

Congressman Lenroot expressed the belief that a national convention would be called within a year to reorganize the party, and in inviting Wisconsin Republicans to take a leading part, he said there should be no thought on presidential candidates in that gathering.

Mr. Lenroot referred with praise to Senator La Follette's work in state and nation, and scored Col. Roosevelt for alleged inconsistency. Speaking of the Chicago convention of last June he said:

"Roosevelt denounced the methods of the Republican machine then, very properly, but it is a fact that it was the same machine that controlled the party machinery when he was president, and then he not only did not denounce it, but assisted and worked with it.

"We in Wisconsin have cause to remember that during the years of our hardest fighting here, Roosevelt assisted the same machine in fighting us. I would not underestimate the good that Roosevelt has done. I believe he was always more progressive than were many of the men he worked with. Had he been nominated and elected last year, I believe he would have given a progressive administration."

Except on President Wilson's tariff views, Mr. Lenroot said he saw little difference between Wilson and a Progressive Republican.

Too Broad to Be Appreciated.

Congressman Frear said in part:

"The mantle of Republicanism or progressiveness in this country is too broad to be appropriated by any man or faction. For over a half century Republicanism has encompassed men of broad thought, men who believed in its principles, because from its birth the party has been progressive. Sometimes leaders have failed to remember its purpose, but a watchful citizenship in state and nation has ever punished such forgetfulness.

"Whatever may be the future, the Republicans of Wisconsin ask the cooperation of all citizens who have ever affiliated with the party, or who believe in its principles, to join now in a united party, dedicated, as of old, to human rights, not political exigency; fighting the battles of the people, not those of privilege; championing the cause of all legitimate industries against that of prejudice and ignorance, and pledge ourselves to the furtherance of progressive legislation with which to meet the promises. I believe that times are propitious for political regeneration."

All Lauds La Follette.

Although respecting the admonition of the toastmaster, Samuel H. Cady of Green Bay that speakers refrain from suggesting the feasibility of any man for office, none failed to refer to Senator La Follette's work in the state and nation.

Lieutenant Governor Thomas Morris declared the Wisconsin senator is now "the undisputed leader of the progressive movement, not only in Wisconsin, but in the nation as well." Under his leadership the Republican party "is fast again becoming the leading party," said Mr. Morris.

Congressman James A. Frear described the Underwood tariff bill as "born of party exigency, and its fatal defect was lack of scientific building."

Congressman James Manahan of Minnesota, speaking on the "party in the nation," said:

"The Underwood bill is not an honest bill because it strikes a blow at the great agricultural West. It is made for the solid South, and this form of revision will do much to depopulate the farms, making it more difficult for the masses to survive."

WIFE ALLEGES EXTREME CRUELTY

Says Husband Beat Her With His Fists and a Horsewhip.

Instances of almost unbelievable cruelty are charged against Edward Nickson, aged 40, of Ely, by his wife, Elizabeth Nickson, 40, who yesterday filed an action for divorce against him in district court yesterday afternoon.

On Christmas day, 1910, she claims that he knocked her down with his fists. On July 12, 1911, she asserts, he attacked her with a horsewhip. This was shortly before she gave birth to a child.

On March 25 last, she claims that he beat two of the small children with an iron wire, inflicting serious injuries on one of them. She declares that he has threatened to commit suicide on more than one occasion.

She also states that he is possessed of an ungovernable temper and that he frequently uses vile and obscene language in her presence. She asks the court for the custody of the seven minor children, who range in age from 2 to 14 years. She also asks for alimony.

They were married at Ely on July 13, 1895.

Washington, May 15.—Chairman Pittman of the senate territories committee, introduced a bill to annul Former President Roosevelt's proclamation of 1907, creating the Chugach National forest of 11,000,000 acres and to restore it to the public domain. More Letters Received Asking Information About "Richard Roe."

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—Scores of letters are pouring in upon the state board of control here asking for further information concerning the mysterious "Richard Roe" now in the state hospital for the insane at Rochester. State authorities have taken the case in charge and are attempting to establish the identity of the man, whose initials are supposed to be "J. C. R." and who was found paralyzed at Waseca four years ago.

Letters were received yesterday from Mrs. C. O. Lewis of Hartford, Ala., and Mrs. Jane Cooley of St. Louis, Mo. The former believes that "Roe" may be her son, J. R. Lewis, who disappeared from San Francisco in 1907, and the latter that he may be her nephew, David J. Corbett, who also disappeared in 1907.

DETECTIVE ON CASE.

Effort Being Made to Find Murderer of John Steen.

Fairmount, Minn., May 15.—No expense is being spared in the effort to arrest the slayer of John Steen, a respected resident of Triumph, found murdered in his pigpen. Sheriff Carver has been on the ground almost continuously since the tragedy and is assisted by a Pinkerton detective. Feeling is running high in Triumph and vicinity, where Mr. Steen was a friend of everyone.

A story is current that an attempt was made on Mr. Steen's life once before. Some weeks ago, while getting his mail from his box on the Triumph rural route, while peering into the box, a rifle bullet, fired from ambush, passed through the box and barely missed Mr. Steen's head. Mr. Steen said little about this occurrence and was unable to tell from whence the shot came, and did not see the person who fired it.

Mix the Breakfast Biscuits the Night Before—

Set Them Away in a Cool Place and Bake them Fresh in the Morning

If the family do not all eat breakfast together, you can bake a few at a time. If you are having hot biscuits for supper, mix and cut out enough more for breakfast. They will be much nicer freshly baked than warmed over.

Of course you can't do this very successfully with sour milk and soda or with any of the old fashioned, single acting baking powders, but this convenient way of making hot biscuits and muffins for breakfast is entirely satisfactory if you use which is really a blend of two baking powders, one of which begins to give off leavening gas as soon as moisture is added. The other is inactive until heat is applied. The dough will remain in a partly leavened condition for hours and when put in the oven will come up just as light and fluffy as if freshly mixed.

Get a can of K C today and try this easy way of baking biscuits at once. You'll never go back to the old way. 51

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

SAY COUNTIES WILL BENEFIT

North Dakotans Discussing Changing County Government to Commission.

Success of System in Cities Looks Good to Flickertails.

Fargo, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The advisability of adopting the commission form of county government in this state is being widely discussed, as a result of the success of cities now run under that form and the general air of progressiveness that obtains in this section.

Advocates of the change contend this form of government would be much easier for the counties than for the cities, as no new legislation would be imperative. The boards of commissioners are composed of three members as the minimum number, but any county can have five. The great majority have the latter number, which corresponds to the number of commissioners under the city law.

How to Adapt Idea.

It is proposed that, until new legislation is enacted, the work of the counties be apportioned among the different commissioners, calling each a chairman instead of a commissioner of that department. One would be general chairman of the commissioners, one would have charge of the financial budget, another of the method of conducting the work of the different county offices, another of the bridges and the fourth of the poor.

It is asserted that such a system would make for both efficiency and economy, would give the counties an improved service and eventually result in an expert handling of the affairs of the county, as each member would want to make as good a showing as possible for his department.

The idea is in harmony with public sentiment at this time in North Dakota.

Dairy Building For A. C.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—The state will spend $210,000 for armories during the next year. Sites for new armories were selected as follows:

The militia company in each town will receive $15,000 from the state, an increase of $5,000 over previous grants.

HOMESTEADER MISSING.

Fritz Hirsch, Living on Big Fork, Has Disappeared.

Littlefork, Minn., May 15.—Fritz Hirsch, a homesteader in the Lindford neighborhood on the Big Fork river, has been missing since last Friday. His neighbors have become alarmed and started a search for him, and have called on Sheriff White to aid them. Hirsch was last seen at Bear River on his way to Littlefork. His packsack was found on the road, but no trace of the man has been discovered, thus causing his friends to wonder if he has become demented and wandered into the woods. It is believed that he was without provisions or protection from the weather.

LAW CONSTITUTIONAL.

Attorney General Upholds Four-Year Tenure of Office Act.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—Attorney General Smith has ruled that the law passed by the legislature, giving all county officers a four-year term, was constitutional. The new tenure of office goes into effect with the next general election. The point made by those protesting the law was that the Constitution provides that elections in Minnesota known as the general election shall be held bi-annually. This, it was held, compelled a two years' term for all persons elected at the general election.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gus Marmas, tried in justice court yesterday for assault and battery, was the last of three brothers to be arraigned here on such a charge within two months. Nick Marmus recently was arrested for beating a boy, and Peter Marmas was fined for beating Jim Lambos.

Mill City Prevention of Vice Official Blames Uncensored "Movies."

Bismarck, N. D., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—At least three of six North Dakota girls who have disappeared since February, 1912, according to C. W. Arnold of Minneapolis, superintendent of the Northwestern Society for the Prevention of Vice, were spirited away by men. Mr. Arnold makes that statement in communications to local parties.

AN INDIVIDUAL AND A CONDITION.

The news that the Wisconsin legislature has just voted to submit an initiative and referendum amendment to the voters of the state calls attention to the curious fact that Wisconsin has made greater constructive progress than almost any other state in the Union, and that this progress has been made without the initiative and the referendum—and a good deal of it even without the direct primary.

Oregon has made the greatest strides in adopting democratic political machinery, but it has not begun to make the actual constructive progress that Wisconsin has made without the initiative, the referendum or the recall, and largely without the direct primary system.

This is not an argument against the initiative and referendum. Wisconsin's progress has been made in spite of its lack of these tools of democracy, not because of it.

Yet the fact remains that Wisconsin, comparatively a laggard among the states in the adoption of the principle of direct legislation, has made more real progress than any other state.

Probably this very interesting fact is due to two things: an individual and a condition.

The individual, of course, is La Follette, who led the fight for constructively progressive measures which put Wisconsin in the vanguard of progressive states.

The condition which, in the belief of The Herald, is largely responsible for the success of the many constructive laws which have made the Wisconsin code a model, is that the liquor question has been a minor issue in that state.

Because of the large liberal element in Wisconsin, there has been little hope for prohibitory measures, and La Follette, it is to be noted, has been extraordinarily successful in keeping this issue in the background.

This has permitted the legislature of Wisconsin to approach untrammeled, and to consider single-mindedly, large measures for the welfare of all the people of the state.

It is said with the utmost respect for the opinions of those who put prohibitory legislation in the highest place in the legislative program, that unwittingly they have beyond question delayed constructive progress in Minnesota. Bringing this issue to the fore, and making it the touchstone of legislative capacity, has worked against real progress in Minnesota in two ways: First, by relegating other practical and constructive measures to the background; second, by reducing the average capacity of the members of the legislature.

In a large majority of the legislative districts of Minnesota, men are elected to the senate and the house because their views on the liquor question accord with those of the majority of their constituents, and in many cases for no other reason on earth. If a district is against county option, the candidate who promises to vote against it is elected. If it is in favor of county option, the candidate who promises to vote for it is elected. That appears to be about all the voters care to know about them.

The mischief in this is that it puts in the legislature too many men with only one idea in their heads, and it makes little difference, so far as this discussion is concerned, whether that idea is to pass or to defeat prohibitory liquor measures. In either case the man whose legislative purpose is largely confined to the one thing is less fitted for legislative duties than the man who goes to the legislature to consider all measures on their merits and to support all measures that promise better things for the whole people.

What Minnesota needs to bring about better legislative results is more lawmakers of broader ideas and with the capacity to weigh all issues and to give to each its true relative importance.

With the model city at the steel plant site, Duluth won't have to feel utterly lonesome.

MISAPPLIED SARCASM.

Discussing the government's threat that if wages are reduced because of the passage of the new tariff bill it will investigate and report whether or not such reductions are justified the New York Times says: "If not too late, we suggest that Mr. Underwood add to his tariff bill a section providing that reduction of wages by manufacturers affected by its schedules shall be deemed high treason."

This is intended to be sarcasm, but it is misapplied.

The same thing precisely might be said without any sarcasm at all. If any manufacturer in a spirit of vindictiveness or in an attempt to show that the Democratic tariff policy is wrong, unjustly cuts the wages of his workers, we would as soon see him punished for treason as a man who sold the plans of a new fort.

And we are not sure that his punishment should not be the heavier of the two.

The American courts have refused to treat the sultan of Turkey any better than a common American citizen. It must be the sultan blew everything he had in that war.

HOW THE COAL TRUST WORKS.

A year ago a strike in the anthracite regions was settled by an increase in the pay of the miners.

The increase in pay was promptly followed by an increase in coal prices.

The coal barons said they couldn't pay more wages unless they got higher prices, and the public was fairly well reconciled to the increase because it believed that the miners, who needed it, were to get it.

Of course such a thing as taking the increase out of dividends was unthinkable, and nobody expected it.

But there were those, and The Herald was among them, who were skeptical. They suspected that where there was a dollar in the increased coal prices for the miners, there were several for the coal barons.

And investigation proves that these suspicions were justified.

The department of commerce has been looking into the matter. It finds that the increased wages amounted in the year to $4,000,000.

But the increases in the prices of coal yielded $13,450,000. The difference between the two figures represents additional profits unfairly and dishonestly extorted from the people by the coal barons.

The people have paid in the year $13,450,000 more for their coal than they would had it not been for the wage increases.

Of that sum $4,000,000 went to the miners, and $9,450,000 into the fat coffers of the coal barons.

For every dollar paid in increased wages, the people paid nearly two and a half dollars in increased profits.

For genuine and unmitigated hoggishness, and for merciless cruelty to the millions to whom coal is a luxury, it is hard to match the masters of the anthracite deposits, every pound of which once belonged to all the people—and should again belong to them.

A Madison, Wis., man says "the greatest single force in the world is mother." Something certainly ought to be done to curb this growing tendency toward divorces. The old-fashioned kind stayed married.

SCHOOL AND REAL LIFE.

Two separate items in the paper yesterday join together to create an encouraging reflection.

One body of high school students had visited the city hall to find out what they could about actual city problems. They were members of a class in civics.

Another band of high school students visited the blast furnace and looked it over. They were members of a class in chemistry.

These students are also studying books. But in these little trips they are learning that there is a connection between the stuff embalmed in books and the actual working conditions of life—a connection all too likely to be overlooked, and without the recognition of which much education is pure waste.

A Pennsylvania coroner's jury puts the blame for the deaths of ninety-six miners on "the law." But how the blickens is anybody going to put the law in prison for it?

TAXING INSURANCE POLICIES.

The state tax commission has asked the attorney general for an opinion on whether the cash surrender value of a life insurance policy is taxable as a credit.

We don't know what the attorney general's reply will be, but we do know that if it is that there is taxable value in a life insurance policy under the law there is something radically wrong with the law.

And if the attorney general should hold that it is the duty of the tax commission to impose a tax on property of this character, one of the first duties of the legislature would be to amend the law to exempt life insurance policies.

Very likely a life insurance policy is property, but it is not property that should be taxed. It is protection for the family, and it is considered as such in practically every case. Not one policy holder in a hundred counts the cash surrender value of his life insurance policy as an asset. Probably not one in a thousand ever realizes on it, and those who do cash in their policies do so only in grave emergencies.

It is hard to imagine a form of taxation more thoroughly objectionable and more utterly out of accord with sound public policy than this would be. It is to be hoped that the tax commission, in asking the question, is not actuated by any desire to initiate the innovation of taxing the life insurance protection of the family.

Apparently the English judges who try the cases against militant suffragists desire Carnegie medals.

DEFIANT CALIFORNIA.

In reply to Mr. Bryan's tactful request, in behalf of the nation, that he veto the anti-Japanese bill, Governor Johnson of California says that he will sign it; and in his communication he seeks to justify the attitude his state has been placed in by the act of its legislature.

Governor Johnson is not convincing and, furthermore, he seems to have the idea that it is within the province of a state to control immigration.

This perverted view of state's rights sounds odd enough from a man who was proclaiming the supremacy of the nation on the stump last fall.

Johnson is mistaken. California is mistaken. In all the long explanations of California's attitude there is no justification for it whatever. It seems a wanton affront to a friendly nation, based on a very flimsy foundation.

There has been, so far, no successful attempt to controvert the statistics which show that Japanese immigration is small and is decreasing, that the number of Japanese in California is small and growing smaller, that they constitute only a very small proportion of the population, that they own an infinitesimal proportion of the land, all of which they bought from white owners eager to sell, and that their chief offense is enterprise and industry.

California's stubbornness, as reflected by Hiram Johnson, throws back upon the nation the responsibility of meeting Japan's protests in the most diplomatic way possible—a responsibility that ought to be California's alone.

The people as a whole will not worry half so much over a leak in the navy department as they would over leaks in the battleships.

BEST TOWN IN AMERICA AT THE PRESENT TIME.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Aren't the good things coming rather thick and fast for Duluth at the present time? First we read in The Herald that a $1,000,000 boulevard is to be built to Two Harbors. Then comes the report in The Herald that the Steel corporation will build a model town. Then our fellow townsman, Col. Davidson, tells us in The Herald about a new through train from Chicago to Winnipeg and also many other important plans of the Canadian Northern. Our steel plant is booming along. Vice President Kerr tells us through The Herald that the plant is to be one of the most important in the corporation's list, and also that this is to be the bumper year in ore shipping. Then we read of ambitious plans for bringing summer tourists to Duluth, as outlined by the Commercial club. If we just get the lake and rail decision it will be the climax. It rather strikes me that little old Duluth is coming into her own at last, and other cities will be sitting back and watching our smoke. Duluth is the best city in the United States to tie to right at the present time. It's time our own citizens awoke to this fact.

DANIEL GREYSOLON DU LUTH, JR.

Duluth, May 15.

Children in Canneries.

Lewis W. Hine in The Survey: Come out with me to one of these canneries at 3 o'clock some morning. Here is the crude shed-like building, with a long dock at which the oyster boats unload their cargoes. Near the dock is the ever present shell pile, a monument of mute testimony to the patient toil of little fingers. It is cold, damp, dark. The whistle blew some time ago, and the young workers slipped into their meager garments, snatched a bite to eat and hurried to the shucking shed. The padrone told me "Ef day don't git up, I go and git 'em up." Boys and girls, 6, 7 and 8 years of age, take their places with the adults and work all day.

The cars are ready for them with their loads of dirty, rough clusters of shells, and as these shells accumulate under foot in irregular piles, they soon make the mere matter of standing one of physical strain. Notice the uncertain footing, and the dilapidated footwear of that little girl, and opposite is one with cloth fingers to protect herself from the jagged shells—they call them "finger-stalls." Their fingers are often sore in spite of this precaution.

Now we all know that the amount of work these little ones can do is not much, and yet I have been surprised and horrified at the number of hours a day a 6 or 7-year-old will stay at work, and this with the willing and eager consent of the parents. "Freckled Bill," a bright lad of 5 years, told me that he worked, and his mother added reproachfully:

"He kin make 15 cents any day he wants to work, but he won't do it steady."

Hundreds of these children from 4 to 12 years of age are regularly employed, often as helpers, for the greater part of the six months if it is a good season. At 3 and 4 years of age they play around and help a little, "learnin' de trade." At 5 and 6 years of age they work more regularly, and at 7 and 8 years, they put in long hours every working day. This is the regular program for these children day after day, week after week for the six months of their alleged—"outing down South."

A Pair of Noble Fellows

By Havoyard.

Washington, May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A young man died here the other day for whom I had profound respect, and between us there existed an intimacy and a personal friendship as close as the disparity of our ages permitted. He was an excellent gentleman—every inch of him manly. In political opinion he was as far opposed to me as the East is distant from the West.

His name was Jesse Carmichael, and there existed between him and Thomas J. Pence a companionship, a fellowship, a brotherhood that brings to mind the beautiful poetry of the cxxxiii Psalm, beginning:

"Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

And Tom Pence and Jesse Carmichael were the David and Jonathan of that noble democracy—Washington correspondents.

And devotedly as these two young men were attached to each other, beautiful as was their comradeship, they were so unlike! Tom is a handsome man, Jesse was homely; Tom is rotund, Jesse was lank; Tom looked like a Grecian, Jesse appeared the Roman; Tom's face is full and blooming, Jesse's was cadaverous and sallow; Tom's demeanor is cordial, Jesse's appearance was stern; Tom is lively, Jesse was austere; Tom is a "Turheel," Jesse was a "Hoosier;" Tom is a Democrat, Jesse was a Republican.

They roomed together, they ate at the same table, they had the same quarters for office. Each did the other's work when occasion required. They roamed in foreign parts together. They descended the Danube together and were at Belgrade where Prince Eugene licked the Turks. And while the purse of neither was ever entirely empty, of either Shenstone might have writ his mighty line:

"And for his friend his very crook he sold."

It was a thing of universal comment and perennial delight in the National Press club—the delicious brotherhood of these two young men.

Carmichael was somewhat curious in turn of mind, though not what we might call a student, but he was fond of a good book and had the gift of digesting and assimilating what he read, and there he had the advantage of Tom, who loves the study of men, whom he reads at a glance and estimates each at his true value. There was a delightful vein of humor in Jesse, but it was the honey without suggestion of the sting of the bee that stored it. His comments were always pleasant. If he was ever angry it did not show in his speech. He talked evil of nobody and perhaps that is what made him the universal favorite he was. When in the humor for conversation with the boys who were his familiars a sort of dry grin came on his countenance that was eagle-built, such as vulgarly we call "hatchet," and then he was a delightful companion, the soul of the company.

There was an episode in his journalistic career when he ran counter to Theodore Roosevelt, then president of the United States, and we all exulted for the cloth when Jesse maintained its dignity and proved himself worthy to wear it.

Jesse Carmichael was one of the founders of the National Press club, an institution that is pregnant for good. There are associated those who gather the political news of this capital of the most wonderful nation in the world. Nearly all of them are young men, a big majority under 40. They know what is going on in political circles, and there is not a statesman in Washington, from the president down, who would fear to intrust the least of them with the dearest political secret in his bosom. Indeed, it was once shown that the best way to keep an important political secret in this town is to disclose it to every member of the two press galleries. That was once tried, and the confidence was faithfully kept until the news was "released."

And Jesse Carmichael is dead at 37! "What shadows we are and what shadows we pursue!" But then there is consolation in the hope that after we shall return to Mother Earth, grubs, we will emerge to a new life, blissful and noble—radiant, splendid, glorious butterflies, far from evil and unacquaint with care.

We do not know, yet we can hope; but this we do know, that when Jesse Carmichael passed to the Beyond," much of the sunshine vanished from the life of Tom Pence.

Peace to his ashes, honor to his memory, solace to his family, consolation to his friends. The sod will lie light above the manly heart of Jesse Carmichael.

And about the same time died in this town Charles R. Mann, for more than a third of a century superintendent of the house press gallery. With a single exception—John Chauncey—he was the oldest employe of the house of representatives. A native of Pennsylvania, he was one of the band of that rough rider, Harry Gilmore, in the Confederate army. He was universally popular and was personally acquainted with more newspaper men, perhaps, than any other man in America. In his time he saw the entire membership of the press galleries of both houses change, and when he died there was not a single member of either house of congress who was a member when he first became connected with the press gallery in 1877.

I had known him since 1880. That winter I roomed with a gentleman from Arkansas named Linn. Mann was a frequent visitor, and he and Linn would spend half the night playing cribbage. They tried to teach me the game, but a poor game of euchre, or a miserable hand at "old sledge" was as far as I ever got at cards and they disastrously failed.

"Charley" will long be regretted. He was a noble fellow. It is consolation to know that he was ripe in years—past three score and ten.

American Liberty of Soul.

Henri Bergson in the New York Tribune: There is nothing conservative about Americans. They enjoy nothing that is old, they want everything that is new, whether it is good or bad for them. That is something they will decide for themselves after they've seen it or heard about it. They have no patience with anything that is not original. With a people like that there is material for a new race—a race which shall lead the world to a greater understanding of liberty. Mere material freedom is a very small part of the ambition which the philosopher expects. Liberty of soul—that is, the absolute freedom for the soul—is the goal of all advanced thought.

Both Prayers Answered.

London Answers: Edith, aged 6, had just been told that she had now two little baby brothers—twins.

She looked thoughtful—very thoughtful. At last she spoke:

"That's funny! Minnie and I both prayed for a baby brother, but we meant the same one!"

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—This little tale has nothing whatever to do with statesmanship, but is here because it's here. Louis B. Eppstein, a successful New York lawyer, set out one fine day for Texas on a business and pleasure trip. On his way he stopped off at Joplin. The reason he did so was because he was taken violently ill on the train, and was in no mood to haggle over where he got off. Once in Joplin, he caught another train back to New York, where he was rushed to a hospital. Dr. John Erdman, famous surgeon, operated on him. The lawyer's appendix was all gummed up, and that was only one item. It was necessary for the surgeon to go all through the man's insides, as with a dark lantern, patching up odds and ends of anatomy that had not given full mileage.

At last the crisis was passed, and the patient's lips moved. He stared at the surgeon and whispered a message—and these were his first words:

"I paid you a great compliment, doctor, when I came to you."

"Oh, I know it," responded Erdman, quickly, "You could have gone to Murphy in Chicago, or the Mayos in Rochester, but you came to me. And rest assured that I appreciate it."

"But that wasn't the way I meant," whispered Eppstein, faintly. "I paid you an even greater compliment. When I left Joplin to come to you I bought a round-trip ticket."

William H. Canniff, president of the Nickel Plate railroad—and who was immortalized once by being mentioned in a Kipling story—was seated in his office during the terrific floods in Ohio, receiving reports of damage from station agents and others along his line.

News of bridges and station houses washed away kept coming in every few minutes. In the midst of all the excitement a country station agent in a little Ohio town telephoned excitedly to Canniff's chief clerk, and stated in awed tones:

"A box car is floating down the Big creek."

Holding the agent on the wire, the chief clerk reported the big tidings to Canniff. The old railroader hesitated a second, then smiled and said:

"All right. Tell him to swim out and set the brakes."

Franklin Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, has for years been making a hobby of United States naval history. He owns what is believed to be the largest collection of books and pamphlets on the subject, and knows most of them by heart. Mention any great naval battle in which the United States figured, no matter how long ago, and young Mr. Roosevelt can tell all about it, just as if he had been an interested spectator. And yet this knowledge had nothing whatever to do with his getting his present job. So far as he is aware, no one influencing the appointment knew anything about his hobby on naval affairs.

As a youngster, Roosevelt planned to go to Annapolis, but instead of that he served four years at Harvard.

Former Senator Scott of West Virginia is one of the few ex-senators who ever take advantage of the privilege of the floor. Once in a while he drops in and sits down at a senatorial desk to listen to something, just as if he were still a member. He has a perfect right to do so, only that the thing "isn't being done." An unwritten law has grown up which says there must be no coming back to the senatorial classroom like an old grad. When a man goes out of the senate he must stay out, says the unwritten law. Over on the house side there is no such rule, and ex-members frequently drop in. Nobody knows why the rule has grown up in the senate, any more than one knows why pug dogs went out of fashion, or why strong men wear gloves in mild weather.

Former Senator Aldrich dropped into the senate office building when he was here several weeks ago, but he carefully avoided going to the capitol. Joseph B. Foraker, another ex-senator, of the old guard coterie, was in the capitol one day testifying before the Clapp committee, but he kept away from the senate chamber as if it were a pesthouse.

William Flynn, the Secret service chief, used to have ambitions to be an inventor. His taste ran toward getting up a new-fangled fire escape that would fold up when not in use and not seriously mar the appearance of a building. He felt that if he could just do something to save a few distracted persons caught in burning buildings he would not have lived in vain. Being a resourceful person, Flynn thought and thought about the proposition until finally he got a plan all worked out. He showed his drawings to several friends, who declared that it was thoroughly practical. All that remained to be done was to have the thing patented and then sit back and reap the fortune that was his.

One afternoon he was strolling across Brooklyn bridge on his way to look at a piece of property he was going to buy when the money began to pour in from the new fire escape. He chanced to look across at a building and noticed a fire escape that looked something like his. He went nearer and found that the device was exactly like the one he had just invented. On inquiry he found that the one on the building had been patented about 1860. There was not a thing wrong with his invention, except that he was about thirty-five years too late in getting around to it.

American Canada.

Philadelphia Telegraph: That Canada is not so ultra British as some are inclined to think seems to be demonstrated by a story recently told by Congressman Asher Hinds of Maine.

Some time ago, Mr. Hinds said, an Englishman visited Canada, and while rambling around looking at the sights he collided with one of the residents.

"Ah, er, fine town you have here, old chap!" generously remarked the Britton, on becoming acquainted. "Really a jolly little place, this Canada! I'm from England, ye know."

"Glad to meet you just the same," responded the Canadian. "I'm from Ioway myself. Came here about two years ago."

"Yes," agreeably returned the Englishman, "but, ah, er, haven't you a taproom or an inn where a chap can get a pint of ale?"

"I dunno about that," answered the Canadian, "but up at the Washington hotel I guess you can get some Chicago ham and Milwaukee beer and New York crackers. By the way, who's king over in your country now?"

Quite True.

Youth's Companion: Bailey, Smith's seat-mate on the morning train, had been speaking of Brown's good manners.

"He's polite enough," Smith conceded, although somewhat reluctantly; "but there's nothing solid in politeness."

"Nor in an air-cushion," retorted Bailey; "but it eases the jolts wonderfully."

The State Legislature

Press Views on the Session.

Perfectly Satisfied.

Fairmont Sentinel: The more we study the work of the late legislature the better we like it. It passed at least a dozen measures that will insure for the betterment of the state, morally and financially. In our opinion it is small potatoes to attempt to make political capital on account of a slight increase of taxes occasioned by appropriations made. Minnesota is growing state and development means unavoidable expense. If all property is made to bear its just proportion of the burdens of government there will be no occasion for complaint, and the state will continue to advance in all those things that make for the public good.

Three Counties the "Goats."

Mora Times: Some of the country papers are complaining about the increased tax rate adopted by the legislature. These same papers last fall were clamoring for the approval by the people of the one-mill road tax. The amendment was approved by the voters and in compliance with that mandate, a one-mill road tax was levied by the legislature. We cannot have good roads without money and we cannot get money without levying taxes. In addition to the increased road tax, an increase of four-tenths of one mill was authorized for general revenue purposes. This was made necessary because of the increased state aid allowed to the public schools of the state. As more than half of the state taxes are paid by the three large counties of Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis, we cannot understand why the people of the remaining counties should object.

New Basis for Parties.

Owatonna Journal-Chronicle: It is likely that the far-reaching effect of the new election law which places all county officers upon a non-partisan basis, is not as yet thoroughly appreciated.

The effect of this law, in Minnesota will be to place all political parties upon an entirely new basis—a basis which will make the life or death of a party as a factor in state affairs entirely dependent upon its effectiveness as an agent for the public welfare.

Will Voters Be Awake?

Le Sueur News: The legislature enacted an amendment for a recall. The chances are that it will not be adopted by the voters in the next election, and then they will wonder and find fault.

Timely Precaution.

Laporte News: The state legislature did a good job in appropriating $250,000 to preserve the native trees and natural scenery in Itasca State park. The scenery surrounding the source of "the Father of Waters" is becoming more attractive every year, and in two years a great deal of irreparable damage would have been done.

An Evil Squelched.

St. Peter Free Press: Among the laws passed at the last session of the legislature is one of particular interest to the newspapers. This law makes it a misdemeanor for any person who, for the purpose of inducing the public to subscribe for a newspaper, offers and advertises a premium or prize to any person procuring subscriptions. In other words, newspaper, piano or other premium contests are a thing of the past. A newspaper is still permitted to offer premiums, but they must be absolute and not depend upon any contingency. Perhaps that is after all the better way. The contests have been entirely overdone and the change, therefore, will hardly be regretted, particularly on the part of the country papers.

Can't Please All.

Cokato Enterprise: One has but to read the comments of the state press on doings of the last legislature to be convinced that the lawmakers cannot please all the people. Quite so, but then they might have permitted the people to decide as to woman's suffrage.

Spring Song

I sing to Spring.
In swift cadenza I sing the charm of influenza chronic,
The lilt of birds harmonic, the iron tonic,
The portal pillars, post-Ionic, to be varnished;
The soft turf rising at the finish of the full St. Andrew's swing,
The locus of the crocus and the flash of robin's wing,
And the fittings of the tonneau sadly tarnished.
I sing of joys diurnal, of the early
vernal brand,
The last divine affiatus of the heating apparatus,
And the posse comitatus that is called a German band,
And the jolly open trolley car of spring.
Let no song of mine poetic touch a subject dietetic,
Let my fountain pen esthetic scroll a song of sweeter strain;
For the oloister of the deep takes the oyster in its keep,
And we'll have no Blue Point cocktail
till September comes again,
And the Camembert is soft when the bluebird soars aloft,
And the terrapin has sung himself to sleep.

Let me sing of other fare,
Such as lightweight underwear,
Let me hymn my lady slim when tracking bargains to their lair.

In the spring, the young man's fancy—
'tis no poet's necromancy,
This is fact; and if you glance, he'll prove the truth beyond compare;
Now he prices low-cut bootings and the most exclusive suitings,
In the spring, the young man's fancy—
he's a bear!

I sing to Spring.
A brief extravaganza in a pretty lyric stanza
Well befitting Wagner's hitting and suburban outdoor knitting
And the men of leisure sitting on the benches in the park;
And the welcome thirst arising from electric advertising
After dark,
And the scent unsung by Homer—that intoxicant aroma
When the bulbs are sunk in loam, and set in rows with shingle mark,
And the weather commentators,
And the silent radiators,
And the spring-poem expurgators—
These I sing.

Boston Transcript: Dr. Hirshberg, writing on "That Tired Feeling" in Harper's Weekly, says: "A week in bed in April may save you six weeks in June."

Yes, but what is so rare as forty-two days in June?

The Secret.

Life: Popularity consists mainly of allowing yourself to be bored once in a while.

Twenty Years Ago

From The Herald of this date, 1893.

•••Howard Pew is in the city arranging for the appearance of Sousa's band next week. Mr. Pew is a former Duluthian and was at one time a member of The Herald staff.

•••J. J. McIntosh, a banker of Glasgow, Scotland, is in the city visiting relatives. He is a former Duluthian and was at one time a member of The Herald staff.

•••Mrs. F. A. Bates and daughter, who have been at Hot Springs, Ark., during the winter, will arrive in Duluth next week to spend the summer.

•••D. L. Case lodge No. 535, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, was organized yesterday by Second Vice Grand Master T. T. Slattery of Galesburg, Ill. The officers elected are: Master, C. C. Prouse of Staples; secretary, A. B. Carlton of Duluth; financier, D. C. Pratt of Staples; journal agent, F. A. King of Duluth.

•••The partnership of J. W. Trumble and A. C. Willcuts, doing business as Trumble & Co., has been dissolved. Mr. Willcuts will continue the business.

•••The Northwestern Guaranty & Loan company of Minneapolis has suspended.

•••A special car left the Union depot over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road last evening in charge of General Manager Philbin and bearing a number of newspaper men and others. They will make a tour of the road. In the party were Secretary S. A. Thompson of the chamber of commerce, Secretary William Buchanan of the jobbers' union, Gustaf Elfstrand of the Duluth Posten, Jacob Laux of the Northwestern Witness, Joseph Grahamer of the Volksfreund, O. A. Lundberg of the Minnesota Tribune, J. L. Eddy, Charles Fish, F. N. Pratt, T. H. Moore and A. J. Taylor.

•••O. D. Kinney has purchased the interest of A. E. Humphreys in the Bank of Virginia.

•••Within a few days there will be a suit commenced by the Cincinnati Iron company against the Standard Ore company to eject it from the the plaintiff's property and to declare the lease between them forfeited. The claim upon which this action is based is that the lessee has failed to pay the royalty due in April for ore shipped, amounting to about $7,000. The Standard company claims it owes only about $2,300, which will be paid when the differences between the two companies are adjusted.

•••Capt. Reed, U. S. N. lighthouse inspector, has arrived from Detroit, Mich., to arrange for placing range lights in the harbor.

For Posterity to Decide.

Collier's Weekly: The difference between fanaticism and heroism is largely a matter of success. If the leader of a rebellion against tradition or government succeeds in establishing the principle for which he commits outrages against the public calm, he is acclaimed by posterity as a hero and a martyr. If he fails, he is remembered, when at all, as a slightly deranged person who ought to have been put in a sanitarium and treated for neurasthenia. The present methods of Mrs. Pankhurst and her followers will be judged in the future by their results. The question is not one of ethics, but of efficiency. In America, where co-education, democracy, and the good-fellowship of the West have developed a sympathetic comradeship between the sexes which is equaled nowhere else in the world save possibly in Australia and New Zealand, it is difficult to understand the form of protest in which these women are indulging. It seems to us that such methods only make more difficult the attainment of the suffrage, or any other end. But the English gentleman, who is the law giver, is not so open to conviction on questions which seriously affect his ideas of the fitness of things. He stands by his prejudices as he does by his guns or his principles, and it may be that Mrs. Pankhurst is right in her declaration that militant methods are the only ones sufficiently violent to get under the hide of the Englishman and make him realize that these people are not to be satisfied with bows and smiles and platitudes, but are human beings demanding what they consider their rights, and ready to make any sacrifice to get them. Suffrage will come eventually, and whether it is because of, or in spite of, militancy, the militants will claim the victory. Posterity will have to do some nice judging.

The Doctor's Advice
by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character; the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Anxious Wife"—Give 10 to 15 drops of the following in water an hour before each meal and your child will soon be cured of bed-wetting: Comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; tincture cubebs, 1 dram; tincture rhus-aromatic, 2 drams.

"La Rue" writes: "For many years I have suffered with stomach and bowel trouble, which has been caused by a severe case of catarrh. My blood is also in poor condition. What can be done for me?"

Answer: If you follow the directions given below you will soon be well and strong again. Obtain the following from any well-stocked drug store and mix by shaking well, then take a teaspoonful four times daily: Syrup sarsaparilla comp. 4 ozs., comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz, fluid ext. Buchu, 1 oz. Use in connection with this the following local treatment: Get a 2-oz. package of antiseptic vilane powder and make a catarrh balm by mixing one ounce of lard or vaseline with a level teaspoonful of the powder and use in the nostrils daily. Also make a wash of one pint of warm water and one-half teaspoonful of vilane powder and use two or three times a day until the nostrils are thoroughly cleansed and your trouble will soon be gone.

"Elsie M." writes: "I have such short, stringy, straggling hair and my scalp is full of dandruff. Please advise what to do."

Answer: The best advice I can offer is simple. Get at a well-stocked drug store a 4-oz. jar of plain yellow minyol, directions accompanying, and use it regularly. It promotes a healthy, vigorous growth of hair and cures dandruff, itching scalp, lusterless hair and stops falling hair. If the hair is harsh and straggling it restores a soft, fluffy appearance, and brings back the intense natural color.

"Hazelle" says: "I would certainly appreciate something that would increase my weight, and take away that languid feeling which I am subject to most of the time. My blood is weak and watery and my appetite is poor."

Answer: Your condition is very easily overcome if you will follow the directions given below. Ask your druggist for three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets and take according to the directions and your weight will increase. These tablets promote assimilation, absorption and aid digestion, transform the complexion and figure. They are prescribed by physicians and are perfectly harmless. They should be taken regularly for several months and you can depend upon gaining flesh and that languid feeling will vanish completely.

"D. E. G." writes: "My rheumatism is getting worse all the time. I am getting so stiff that it makes it very hard for me to get around."

Answer: Do not worry about your rheumatism as that can be very easily cured by using the following: Get at the drug store the ingredients named and mix thoroughly and take a teaspoonful at meal time and again at bed time and you will soon be entirely cured of that disagreeable disease, rheumatism. Purchase 2 drams of iodide of potassium; one-half ounce of wine of colchicum; 4 drams of sodium salicylate; 1 oz. comp. fluid balmwort; 1 oz. comp. essence cardiol; and 5 ozs. of syrup sarsaparilla. This has cured thousands and I am sure it will cure you.

"Musician" asks: "Can you tell me how to overcome a bronchial trouble which manifests itself after singing, by a tickling in the throat, hoarseness and a slight cough?"

Answer: Obtain a bottle of essence mentho-laxene and use it pure, or make into a cough syrup by mixing with ordinary granulated sugar syrup or honey. Directions for use and how to make, accompany the package. It makes a full pint of effective, pleasant cough syrup and cures all throat and bronchial trouble.

"Mrs. G. B." writes: "I suffer a great deal with stomach disorders. Heavy feeling after eating, heart palpitation, wind and gas on stomach, etc. Am restless and irritable. Afraid to eat a hearty meal. Sometimes great pain. I fear appendicitis."

Answer: The neglect of constipation and indigestion is the most frequent cause of appendicitis. It is better to prevent than to cure by an operation. I advise that you obtain tablets triopeptine and take according to directions accompanying sealed carton. They are pink, white and blue to be taken morning, noon and night, respectively. I think many cases of appendicitis could be prevented by using triopeptine intelligently.

"Mrs. C. C." writes: "Can you prescribe a tonic for one who is sleepless, nervous, hysterical, thin and getting thinner? Have little appetite and am restless day and night."

Answer: The following if used for several weeks, will gradually restore and strengthen your nervous system: Compound syrup of hypophosphites, 6 ozs.; tincture cadomene, 1 oz. (not cardamom). Mix, shake well and take a teaspoonful before each meal.

K. K. K. asks: "I am growing more stout as I get older and weigh 60 pounds too much now. I am alarmed and want to reduce. Please advise what to take?"

Answer: You need not be alarmed if you will begin taking 5-grain arbolene tablets. These tablets reduce usually at the rate of a pound a day after the first few days. Any druggist can supply them in sealed tubes with full directions.

"Poor H." writes: "My health is very poor on account of a long-standing constipation. I have to use pills or something all the time. Can you prescribe something to take that will cure chronic constipation?"

Answer: Constipation is probably the cause of more illness than any other thing. Most remedies only relieve the trouble and never cure. I always prescribe three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets), and have found them most reliable and gradually curative. They act pleasantly and tone up the bowels and liver, while purifying the blood. Send $1.00 for Dr. Lewis Baker's Book on Health-Beauty. Adv.

MISS EVA MAE ADAMS IS BRIDE OF EWALD W. LUND

MRS. E. W. LUND.

EWALD WARREN LUND.

Miss Eva Mae Adams and Ewald Warren Lund were married at 7:30 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Adams, 2314 West Second street. Rev. George E. Silloway, pastor of the Grace Methodist church, read the service. Following the wedding, from 8:30 to 10 o'clock a reception was held for the bridal couple, which was attended during the evening by nearly 500 friends.

The wedding took place in the living room in front of the fireplace, which was decorated with red roses and smilax. The groom and Stanley Adams, the groomsman, and the minister first entered the room while Mrs. George King played Grieg's "To Spring." As the bride, accompanied by her father and bridesmaid, Miss Ruby Gorman, entered the room the first strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin was played.

The bride wore white chiffon, trimmed with lace and beads over silk and carried an arm bouquet of bridal roses. The bridesmaid wore pink satin with flowered overdress and carried pink roses. Only immediate friends and relatives of the family were present at the service.

At the reception which followed, friends of the couple poured in on them to congratulate the pair. In the receiving line were the bride's parents and the groom's aunt, Mrs. Lundgren.

The living room was prettily decorated with red roses and smilax and the dining room was decorated with shaded candles, narcissus and baskets of roses. Light refreshments were served, those assisting in this being Mrs. George King, Miss Ada Gorman, Miss Caroline Knutson and Miss Gisa Perry.

Mr. and Mrs. Lund will spend a few days on Mr. Adams' farm near French river, and will be at home after June 15 at 5222 East Juniata street.

PROPERTY OWNERS ARE WELL PLEASED

Commission Will Be Asked to Extend Twenty-Ninth Avenue Improvement.

The announcement that Twenty-ninth avenue west from Superior to Third street has been ordered paved by the city commission will not arouse many objections from property owners. It is generally believed that the commission will be asked to extend the plans to include the thoroughfare below Superior street to Railroad street.

Business interests below Superior street will, it is said, ask to have the improvement made in front of their properties. Among these are the Clyde Iron works, which owns a block and a half of frontage, and the Duluth Brewing & Malting company, which owns two blocks of the property. The Soo railroad owns part of the property between Michigan and Superior street and the Duluth Show Case company owns a half block.

The district in this vicinity is becoming a center for factories. Since work started on the construction of the Patrick factory and the bread factory, both of which will be located on Twenty-ninth avenue and Superior street, it is said a number of inquiries have been made for sites for similar places recently. One of these is said to have been a shoe factory which is planning on moving here from the East.

RESIDENTS WANT BRANCH OFFICE.

Residents of the West end are much pleased over the announcement made by Leonidas Merritt, commissioner of public utilities, that branch offices of the water and light department would be established in various parts of the city and especially in the West end. They claim that this has been found necessary for several years past and that repeated requests for the opening of an office where payments could be made have been ignored.

"People in this end of the city have put off until the last day the paying of their gas and water bills, because they have not had an office located here," said J. W. Cummings, president of the West End Commercial club, last night. "In many cases they have done this, knowing that they have had to go uptown on the twelfth of the month and take that date for doing much of their shopping. The establishment of an office here will be met with much favor. I am sure that satisfactory arrangements could be made with some of the business men of the West end to receive the money for the department in a similar manner to that now in vogue by the electric light company."

CHARLES O. WHITE, SR., DIES AT SON'S HOME.

Charles O. White, Sr., 71 years old, died at 6:30 o'clock last evening at the home of his son, Charles O. White, 107 North Twenty-seventh avenue west, following a long illness. Mr. White has been a resident of Duluth for the last fourteen years, and until about five years ago conducted a hotel near Sixth avenue west and First street.

He is survived by a widow and four children. The latter are Mrs. C. Chartier of Lakewood, Mrs. Roy Daston of Duluth, W. J. White of Bagley, Minn., and C. O. White. Recently Mr. and Mrs. White celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. He has been a member of the Modern Maccabees for the past thirty-one years.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of his son. Interment will be in Park Hill cemetery.

Rev. and Mrs. Fish will be the only Duluth representatives at the convention, as far as is known. The convention will open on May 23 and continue until May 28.

MRS. G. R. JOHNSON DIES.

Well Known West End Woman Succumbs to Heart Failure.

Mrs. Johnson is survived by her husband, Gust R. Johnson, traveling salesman for F. A. Patrick company, two small children, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson E. Hurd of Duluth Heights, who are now in Florida, and three brothers, Bert, Samuel and Roy Hurd. The latter is in Canada, and Samuel Hurd is with his parents.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Grace Methodist church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street. Rev. George E. Silloway will officiate. Interment will be made in Forest Hill cemetery.

"My Feet Were Just Aching For TIZ"

Let Your Poor, Tired, Chafed, Tender Feet "Spread Out" Gloriously in a Bath of TIZ!

Send at Once for Free Trial Package.

"O, O, glory what a feelin'! Wonderful what TIZ will do for your feet!"

Just take your shoes off, and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, achy, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a TIZ bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy. They'll look up at you and almost talk, and then they'll take another dive in that TIZ bath! Yes, TIZ is life to feet!

The man or woman who says there's anything like, or as good as, TIZ never had a foot in a TIZ bath. You'll be able to wear smaller shoes, too, when you use TIZ; your feet will keep cozy.

Miss M. Pearl Lloyd, Glendona, Wis., got one box of TIZ for her mother. "She has had sore, tender feet for a long time," writes Miss Lloyd, "but after using TIZ her feet are not troubling her."

TIZ operates under a new principle, drawing out all the poisonous exudations that make feet sore, corny and tired. There's nothing else like TIZ, so refuse any imitation. If anyone offers you a substitute, just remember your poor, suffering feet, and tell him to give you what you asked for.

TIZ, 25 cents a box, sold everywhere, or sent direct, on receipt of price. Money back if TIZ doesn't do all we say. For a free trial package write today to Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill. Recommended by all Drug Stores, department and general stores.

CAN SHIP LIQUOR TO HABITUAL DRUNKARD

Dealers' Standing Ruled on By Kansas Officer—Webb Law Is Tested.

Topeka, Kan., May 15.—A drunkard may have liquor shipped to him from another state and the law cannot touch either the consignee or the consignor.

This, in effect, is the ruling handed down by John S. Dawson, attorney general of Kansas, in a case brought to him from Kingman county for ruling under the Mahin law, which requires statements to be made to law-enforcing officers showing to whom all liquor received in a county is consigned.

In Kingman county, a man listed as a habitual drunkard regularly receives a shipment of liquor from a house in another state with which, apparently, he has a standing order. The man's wife appealed to the county attorney to have the shipments stopped. The county attorney asked the attorney general if he could not issue an order to all railroads in Kingman county and to all express companies to prohibit them delivering the liquor.

Attorney General Dawson ruled that the county attorney could not do so, as the law expressly provides that such shipments of liquor for the personal use of the consignee cannot be disturbed.

Test Webb Law.

Kansas City, Mo., May 15.—A test case under the Webb law, instituted by Kansas City, Kan., officials last week when the police were ordered to arrest every driver of a brewery wagon found on the streets of that city, ended in victory for the brewers when the case of Lewis Segelbaum, a beer wagon driver, was dismissed in municipal court.

At the time the order of arrest was issued seven drivers were taken into custody and hundreds of cases of beer confiscated. Kansas City, Kan., officials held that under the Webb law restricting intoxicating liquors, brewers in Kansas City, Mo., could not deliver across the line unless the beer were ordered and paid for at the point of shipment.

BAPTISTS ELECT.

Southern Church Again Headed By Dr. Dargan.

St. Louis, Mo., May 15.—The sixty-seventh annual convention of the Southern Baptist convention, with many more delegates and visitors present than could crowd into the Third Baptist church, one of the largest in the city, elected officers for the ensuing year with the exception of the vice presidents. The officers are: Rev. Dr. Edwin Charles Dargan, Macon, Ga., president; Rev. Dr. Lansing Burrows, Americus, Ga., and Rev. Oliver Fuller Gregory, Staunton, Va., secretaries; George W. Norton, Louisville, Ky., treasurer; and William P. Harvey, Harrodsburg, Ky., auditor.

Secretaries Burrows and Gregory each have served the convention in their present capacity for more than thirty years. Dr. Dargan was re-elected president for the third term.

It is shown in the statistical reports that Texas led all the states in the convention in the amount of money contributed to both home and foreign missions, giving $71,000 to home missions and $86,000 to foreign missions.

FARRELL ON STAND FOR THE FOURTH DAY

Head of Steel Corporation Says Competition Is Growing.

New York, May 15.—James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, began today his fourth day as a witness for the defense in the government's dissolution suit. He continued his description of the competitors of the corporation to support his contention that these concerns have grown stronger since the organization of the corporation in 1901.

The corporation, according to an exhibit submitted by the witness, owns only 27.3 per cent of the steel bar supply of the country.

Answering the charge that the Tennessee Coal & Iron company was taken over by the corporation, not to stop the financial panic of 1907, but because it was a dangerous competitor, the witness denied that the company was in a position to produce rails economically. He explained that the rails which that company sold to the Harriman lines cost $3.45 a ton more to manufacture than the price for which they were sold.

MORE TESTIMONY ON HARVESTERS HEARD

"Expert Service" of Alleged Trust Gets But Little Credit.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. J. Lynch, an implement dealer of Dumont, Minn., today testified in the hearing here of the government's suit against the International Harvester company under the Sherman law that he was handling an independent line of harvesters this year, but denied on cross-examination that he was doing so this year just to be able to testify that he was not handling International implements exclusively. This was intimated in a question put to Mr. Lynch by E. H. Grosvenor of government counsel.

Mr. Lynch testified that he did not know whether his expenses here were to be paid by the International, but said he thought "they ought to be." He declared he had been asked in St. Cloud two weeks ago by International representatives to testify here for the company.

A number of dealers of Minnesota were examined today along the lines of testimony previously given.

"Expert Service."

The "expert service" of the International Harvester company, which several witnesses gave as their reason for purchasing "trust" machines, was characterized as ridiculous by government counsel.

The majority of witnesses were farmers, and the object in hearing their testimony was to determine why they had purchased International products, and whether their selection was strictly optional. Counsel for the defense had laid particular stress upon the "expert service" that was available to all purchasers of International implements.

"Isn't this matter of expert service all bosh as related to the repair of binders?" S. J. Lund of Clarkfield, Minn., was asked by government counsel. The witness admitted that the farmer today has little use for it.

Witnesses declared that other makes of harvesting machinery and farm implements were represented in the territory where they had purchased International goods, and one of them, in response to a question from counsel for the defense, said that competition was developing. "But it is not very strong yet, is it?" asked the government attorney.

The witness smiled and made no reply. He had been excused.

QUINLAN GUILTY OF STIRRING UP RIOTS

Companion of Elizabeth Gurley Flynn Convicted By Jury.

Paterson, N. J., May 15.—Patrick Quinlan, Industrial Workers of the World leader, indicted with William D. Haywood, Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Carlo Treska and Adolph Lessig in connection with recent silk mill strike riots, was convicted on his second trial. The first jury failed to reach a verdict. The jurors were out only two hours and found Quinlan guilty of inciting to riot.

Quinlan was not present when the verdict was summoned. His counsel promised, however, to produce his client on the date fixed for sentence. As the convicted leader is still under $7,500 bond, Judge Klenert did not issue a bench warrant.

Quinlan's counsel announced that an appeal would be taken which would act as a stay of sentence. The penalty may be from one to seven years in prison.

Treska and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, yet to be tried on similar charges, in speaking of the Quinlan verdict called it a "class verdict." Treska said that the verdict would serve to bring the silk mill strikers closer together to continue the strike. Miss Flynn said that the case would be appealed to the highest courts "before we will give in."

BILL PASSED BY WISCONSIN SENATE

Favors Merger of Fire Marshal With Insurance Department.

Madison, Wis., May 15.—The senate today took action opposite to that taken by the assembly when, under suspension of the rules, it passed the bill by the special committee on insurance merging the office of state fire marshal with the insurance department.

The fight for the bill was led by Senator Scott, chairman of the legislative fire insurance investigating committee, which recommended the merger in the interests of economy and efficiency. Senator Kileen led the opposition.

The senate passed the Weigle bill appropriating $2,000 to continue the work of compiling a census survey of plant life in the state; the bill appropriating $1,000 to the Wisconsin State Fire Prevention association, and Speaker Hull's bill appropriating $50,000 for special state aid in the consolidation of rural schools.

HENRY M. FLAGLER'S DEATH IS EXPECTED

Statement Is Made By President Parrott of Florida Railway.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 15.—The death of Henry M. Flagler, the Southern hotel and railroad magnate, is momentarily expected, according to a statement attributed to President Parrott of the Florida East Coast railway here today.

Mr. Flagler has been critically ill at his West Palm Beach home for several weeks.

CLASH OVER THE REDFIELD WARNING

Underwood and Mondell Have Debate on Floor of House.

Washington, May 15.—Secretary Redfield's broad intimation to business that the Federal government would investigate cuts in wages that looked like reprisals for the passage of the tariff bill, brought out a sharp cross fire of speeches today between Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee and Representative Mondell, Republican, of Wyoming, during the brief session of the house. Secretary Redfield's remarks which caused the incident were in a speech here last night before the employing lithographers.

Mr. Mondell declared Representative Underwood's statement that wage cuts would be investigated could be "forgiven because it was made in the heat of debate." Secretary Redfield had no such excuse, he said.

"Every rightminded citizen," continued Mr. Mondell, "hopes for the favorable conduct of the country's industries, but I know of no law which says any man shall continue to give employment to labor under adverse conditions and continue his business at a loss."

Calls it "Ungracious."

The Democrats, he declared, were revising the tariff with the people in a most favorable frame of mind, and it was "ungracious to warn manufacturers that unless they continue to conduct their business at a possible loss, they will be investigated to satisfy the high and mighty secretary of commerce."

"The situation is just this," rejoined Majority Leader Underwood amid applause by the Democrats: "If you look through the tariff hearings you will find statement after statement of manufacturers that if the Democratic house reduced the tariff in the interests of the people they would take the reduction out of the labor in the factory and the mills. Man after man said, 'What reduction you make will come out of labor.' We intend that where these industries are making enormous profits and many of them, that reductions shall come out of the unreasonable profits, and they shall not continue to make those profits at the expense of their labor."

Rochester, Minn., May 15.—As the result of the discovery that "J. C. R.," the "man of mystery" now in the state hospital for the insane here, is a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, members of that organization are planning a nation-wide campaign in an attempt to identify him. By signs "J. C. R." has indicated that he joined the order in Baltimore many years ago, but admits that he has forgotten many of the signs of the organization.

A FIRE IN A SMALL TOWN

In the American Magazine, George Fitch, the Illinois humorist, writes a piece entitled "The Friendly Fire-Fiend," which includes a description of the workings of a volunteer fire department in a small town. Following is an extract:

"It is an impressive sight—not the fire itself, but the event. Two thousand two hundred and nine people are there—that being the population of Homeburg minus the sick and wondering.

"There is always more or less of a feud between the hook-and-ladder boys and the hose-cart boys, because the former get the second team and rarely arrive at the fire in time to hoist the beautiful blue ladders before the hosecart gang puts the conflagration out. Indeed, the feeling has gotten so strong at times that the hook-and-ladder gang has theatened to double the prizemoney by private subscription and get their rig out first, but patriotism has thus far prevented this.

"In the midst of the seething mass are the hose-cart and the ladder-truck. Around them dozens of red helmets are bobbing, while the quivering air is cut and slashed and mangled with a very hurricane of orders: 'Bring up that hose—' 'Whoa, keep that horse still—' 'Bring her round this way—' 'Bring her round this way—' 'Hey, you chumps, the fire's this side—' 'Back up that wagon—' 'Come ahead with the wagon—' 'Get out of here till we get a ladder up—' 'Axes here—' 'Turn on that water—' 'Turn on that water—' 'Turn on that water!!—' 'Jones, go down and tell that wooden Indian to turn on that water.' 'Hold that water, you—' 'Hold that water!' 'Turn her on, I say.' 'Turn her—' 'Wow—turn that nozzle the other way—'

"And then the water comes with a mighty rush, yanking the nozzlemen this way and that, and sweeping firemen and common citizens aside as if they were mere straws.

"As a rule, this is the climax, and the end comes rapidly. By this time Brown, who had put the fire out with a few pails of water before the alarm sounded, has persuaded the department to call off its hose, the barn being full of valuable hay. So there isn't anything to do. The water is turned off. Tom McKinzie explains to the 111th knot of people how he was going past the place when he saw the tongue of flame, and everyone disperses after a pleasant social time.

"Everybody is tolerably well satisfied except the hook-and-ladder gang, which, as usual, is skunked again—never got a ladder out. A couple of the axmen had a little fund with a rear window, but otherwise the affair is a flat failure. They go back sullenly, but are comforted when the roll is called, when each member who was present draws a dollar from the city treasury. As usual, Pete Sundbloom is late, and tries to edge in to roll-call though he was a mile away from the peril, and he can't make it stick, and gets the hoarse hoot when his little game is discovered.

"I want to ask you—isn't that a pleasant interruption on a dead day? It makes life worth living, and I really wonder that there isn't more incendiarism in small towns throughout the United States."

HOW TO PRONOUNCE CHINESE.

Springfield Republican: At the University of London recently a lecture was given by Dr. Jones on the pronunciation of Chinese, and in the course of his remarks the speaker explained that the difficulties of learning the pronunciation of Chinese, though real enough, have been rather exaggerated by those who have written on that subject. When treated phonetically, the language becomes not much more difficult to learn than French or German.

The chief thing to remember is that the study of Chinese is a matter of singing rather than talking, Mr. Jones said. In English the variations in tone as we talk mean variations in expression. In Chinese variations in tone mean totally different words.

A little of the Chinese method is present, even in our own language, and the lecturer pointed out that the simple word "yes" may be so varied in tone as to mean "It is the case," "Of course, it is the case," "It is really so," and "It may be so, but I'm not quite sure."

The student who wishes to learn good Chinese must familiarize himself perfectly with at least six tones. There is a seventh, but that may be more or less left out of account. According to the tone in which they are pronounced, there are words in Cantonese which have six separate and distinct meanings. The Chinese word "fan," for instance, may be so pronounced, or rather sung, as to mean six different words, and such widely different ones as sleep, powder and courageous.

HERDING THE SPORTING SHEEP AND GOATS INTO THE DOPE CORRAL, AS SEEN BY BRUCE

YESTERDAY was a pool day, it being the opening of the season at Winnipeg. Charley Jones and his Apostles are there at the present time and under the ruling adopted at the beginning of the present season all of the gate receipts of the various clubs are pooled upon all of the opening days. It kind of hurt to have to come through and split up the big receipts of opening day here, but the officials of the local club are hoping to get some of this back with a big opening at the Peg.

Following the calling of the soiree of yesterday his royal nibs, "Spike" Shannon, did a little fanning. He isn't seeking alibis for the showing of the team thus far in the race, but the Virginia pilot declares that his team as it is at the present time is one of the real contenders and holds that the next few games will bear out this contention.

"Sure, we got away to a bad start," quoth "Spike," "but then the team was not what it is. Get me? I have been shaking 'em up a bit, and with the lineup we have right now it is going to take some real ball playing to beat us."

"How does it feel to win a game, Mr. Shannon?" your correspondent asked.

"One or two?" demanded the great leader of the Virginia team, suspicion beginning to dawn in his eyes.

"Make it one," we returned.

"Great," was the enthusiastic rejoinder of the former star outfielder of the great Giants of New York.

"We like the thing and we are going to continue to win. The pitching staff is going well, and with the changes that have been made in the lineup, there is no reason why we can't go out and battle with the best in the league.

"The Northern is taking fine in the Twin Cities. The weather there has been miserable, and that is the only reason why the crowds have not been large. The game Monday was called off in Minneapolis because of the cold weather and our game in St. Paul Sunday was handicapped by the bad conditions. When the teams settle and the weather gets warmed this is going to prove the best minor league in the country.

"Take the scores of baseball games the country over and you will find that most of the games played this spring have been big count contests. It is the weather and the fact that the twirlers can't work effectively in this kind of zero stuff. When it becomes anywhere near decent weather I think that the Northern is going to have a great little race.

"'Rube' Waddell is going to strengthen my pitching staff. The old boy is still there, for he pitched one of the best games of his career only recently in Minneapolis. Then I have strings on several stars. Yes, we are going to be in the flag hunt, and you want to keep your eye on us."

NEGOTIATIONS were closed yesterday for a finish wrestling contest between Walter Miller of this city and Joe Carr of Minneapolis. According to the terms of the agreement the two men will wrestle to a finish. The contest will be held either at the Duluth Baseball park on the Fourth of July or at the huge hippodrome at the state fair grounds.

Ever since his defeat last winter at the hands of Carr, Miller has begged for another chance to meet the husky Minneapolis man, who is considered by some as the coming middleweight champion of the world. The little Duluth boy was not right the night he met Carr, and yet he has never held this fact up as an excuse for the beating he received at the hands of Carr.

Ever since the setback Carr slipped him Miller has been training as he never trained before. The little fellow is taking the very best of care of himself and when he starts the training grind it is believed that Walter will be in the very best shape of his career. The long rest has apparently done him worlds of good.

ALL of the dope in the two majors has been turned topsy turvy this season. Lamp the way the Brooklyn team is going and then turn your sober consideration upon the race the Pirates are making. It was believed in certain choice circles that the Stogies would go out and make the race from the start in the league that is presided mildly over by Tom Lynch—and such has decidedly not been the case.

On the other hand fondly fumble over the facts in the league ruled with hammer and tongs Ban Johnsonally. Behold the Boston Red Hose. They are fulfilling all of the predictions of their ardent admirers, are they not? And the answer is that they are not.

The Athletics are running to the form predicted by certain of the wise sharps, but Detroit is down in the dumps, while St. Louis has been going better than most of the millions of followers of baseball in this glorious land of the free and perfectly untrammeled expected them to.

This shakeup is the greatest thing in the world for the national pastime. It provides ecstacies where they were least expected and where they are therefore the more appreciated. It would be a great thing for the old league to have a new pennant winner this year, if the race is close to the very end. Lots of us would like to lamp the Phillies under the wire in the lead.

BRONKS LOSE TO FLICKERS

Grand Forks, N. D., May 15.—The Flickers defeated the Minneapolis team by the score of 6 to 5 here yesterday. While the locals played a ragged game in the field, the hits of the Bronchos came at the most inopportune times. Jarnigan was touched up freely throughout the contest, but he tightened several times when hits would have proved disastrous and worked his way out of several tight holes.

Jarnigan hit for a homer in the ninth round with the Flickers three runs to the bad. Fishbeck was hit and Altman hit for three bases. Foster was walked and then Brandt hit a screamer through second that counted Altman and Foster. Score: R. H. E.

PEGGERS TAKE FIRST AT HOME

Winnipeg, Man., May 15.—St. Paul was defeated in the first home game of the season by the score of 4 to 2. Nelson and Neidenfuer were the opposing twirlers and the local flinger was hit less than his opponent and in addition kept his hits more scattered. While the Maroons played a ragged game in the field the errors of the Peggers came at times when they were the least costly for the home team.

Despite the intense cold weather over 3,000 fans were on hand to see the first game of the local season. Freer furnished one of the frills of the game when he went clear back to the fence and made a remarkable running catch of a hit that had all of the earmarks of a home run drive. Clothler made a one-handed stop at third that stopped a threatened rally of the visitors. The score: R. H. E.

New York, May 15.—Wild pitching, hard hitting and frequent errors made by the visitors produced a weird game at the Polo grounds yesterday. New York defeating Chicago, 14 to 11. It was a see-saw affair almost from the start. The visitors got a long lead in the first inning when they hit Marquard for two singles, a double and a home run which, with a pass, yielded five runs. The New Yorks got three off Cheney in their half, and the Chicagos got their five-run lead back when they scored three runs in the second. Cheney went to pieces in the second half, and filled the bases with none out. Before Lavender retired the side the New Yorks scored four runs. Lavender was wild throughout, passing five men and hitting three others. Though Marquard was hit hard, he remained in the box until McCormick batted for him in the sixth. Ames held the Chicagos in check in the last three innings, after the locals had taken the lead.

Umpire Klem put Manager McGraw of New York and Shortstop Bridwell of Chicago off the field and fined Good and Clymer each $10. Score: R. H. E.

Losing Streak Broken.

Philadelphia, May 15.—A losing streak which had reached seven straight was broken by Pittsburg here yesterday, Philadelphia being defeated by 7 to 2. The visitors hit the deliveries of Mayer and Nelson hard and were in danger only once after the first inning, when they scored three runs on three singles, a double and a pass. In the fifth with the bases filled and two out, Hendrix forced in a run by giving Magee a pass but he fanned Cravath. Score: R. H. E.

St. Louis Is Shut Out.

Boston, Mass., May 15.—Boston shut out St. Louis yesterday, 7 to 0, Tyler holding the visitors to four single. The home players were held scoreless until the fifth inning, when a double, two singles and an out netted them three runs, and in the sixth inning Whaling's single, Tyler's second double, an error by O'Leary and Connolly's hit gave Boston three more runs. After two were out in the seventh Devlin walked, stole second and scored on Whaling's double which Caruthers lost in the sun. Score: R. H. E.

Four Pitchers Used.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 15.—Brooklyn's defense went to pieces yesterday and Cincinnati walked off with a game that would have put the locals in first place. The score was 6 to 2, Brooklyn leading by 1 to 0 up to the sixth. Smith made a two-base wild throw on a grounder by Bates and two hits and a fumble by Fisher let in two runs. Cincinnati's tallies came in pairs thereafter, three hits and a pass with one out in the seventh sending Allen to the clubhouse. Yingling entered the game to pitch one ball on which Hoblitzel hit into a double play. Stack finished the pitching for Brooklyn and was found for three singles which, with an error by Hummel sent in another bunch of tallies.

Benton pitched a strong game, twice fanning Brooklyn batters with the bases full and two out. Fisher's double and two sacrifices sent across Brooklyn's first run. Wheat scored in the eighth on a base on balls, four hits and an error. Score: R. H. E.

Pitches Two-Hit Game.

Detroit, Mich., May 15.—Edgar Willett, twirling the finest game pitched here this season, yesterday held Boston to two hits, a triple and a single and Detroit won 4 to 1. Cobb's hitting and baserunning helped produce Detroit's tallies in the fourth and sixth and Veach's double in the eighth brought home both Vitt and Crawford.

A wild pitch in the second inning gave the champions their only tally. Gardner tripled to right center and scored when a curve ball just grazed Rondeau's mitt and struck the press box. Score: R. H. E.

GOLF PLAYERS ARE PRACTICING

Preparations Are Being Made for Opening of Season at Northland.

Willie Leith, the genial Scot, has a large list of charges daily at the Northland club. The golf schedule of the club will open on May 24 and members of the active playing band are at the present time getting in shape for the first official game.

R. T. Goodell, M. B. Cullum, E. P. Alexander, Elmer Whyte, P. G. Brown and many of the other devotees of the game can be seen on the links, and this despite the fact that the weather has not been what it should be for golf playing.

Work is progressing steadily on the addition to the links which will make the course at Northland an 18-hole one. It is expected that the 18-hole course will be ready shortly after the opening of the official schedule.

There are a number of young players who are to make their appearance this season. Also it is stated that the women of the Northland are taking a very great interest in the game this season and that several special contests are to be arranged for the fair followers of the noble game.

Taking it all and all there is but little doubt that the season about to open is going to prove the greatest in the history of the club.

BARE KNUCKLE DAYS RETURNING

Chicago Fighters Propose to Battle Without Boxing Gloves.

Chicago, May 15.—Back to the days of bare knuckles, the days when chivalry counted more than a few paltry dollars, going one way or another as the purse reads, the days when a pound or two in weight didn't hinder a real fight or when the principals didn't care whether the fight was held in the middle of a swamp or a million dollar building. That is the way two Chicago pugilists are drifting.

Sunday, if everything goes well, Phil Harrison and Eddie Neary will attempt to revive the old-time custom and not one thing from the old days will be missing. If anything, a few new ones will be added. Neary and Harrison are Chicago welterweights and for many months they have been pining for each other's scalp. To gratify them a couple of local sportsmen have agreed to furnish automobiles to convey them to some secluded spot, pitch a ring and let them fight.

No purse is in sight for the winner, for it will be a grudge fight and it will be up to the few spectators who will be allowed to attend whether the boxers are worth anything. Before and during the bout it will not be against the rules for some enthusiast to toss coins in the ring if he so desires. Then, when one or the other of the boxers is down, the conqueror will be allowed to pick up the money.

No site has been selected. The men will enter automobiles Sunday afternoon shortly after 1 o'clock and ride until they hit some deserted spot. It may be in some old barn or in the middle of a cornfield, but to these boxers it matters little, for they are so anxious to fight the place and financial returns are secondary.

CLUB CAPTAINS ARE APPOINTED

Captains of the various departments of the Duluth Boat club were notified of election today. Guy Warren heads the motor boat department of the club, and Charles D. Brewer has again been appointed captain of the sailing department. C. P. Stewart is the new captain of the rowing department, and A. P. Barnes is the new head of the tennis department. Joe Horak is captain of the canoe department. The ensigns of the various departments have not been appointed as yet, as the captains have not had time to look around for able assistants.

WALTER JOHNSON EQUALS RECORD SET BY WHITE.

St. Louis, Mo., May 15.—The St. Louis club yesterday ended Walter Johnson's string of consecutive scoreless innings with a score in the fourth. Added to his former record of 52 2-3 innings, 3 1-3 innings in the Washington game pitched yesterday made his record 56 equaling the best claimed for "Doc" White of the Chicago Americans. As official reports show White to have been scored on by Cleveland on Sept. 9, 1904, (the year in which it is claimed he made his record), Johnson and his team mates last night claimed the record for him. The best mark said to have been made by Coombs of the Philadelphia Americans in 1910 was 53 1-3 which Johnson passed yesterday.

Johnson's record follows: April 1, against New York, 8 innings; April 19, against New York, 9 innings; April 23, against Boston, 9 innings; April 25, against Boston, 1 inning; April 30, against Philadelphia, 9 innings; May 3, against Boston, 2 2-3 innings; May 5, against Boston, 5 innings; May 10, against Chicago, 9 innings; May 14, against St. Louis, 3 1-3 innings. Total 56 innings.

Fifteen-Inning Tie.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 15.—After a 15-inning struggle, the last game of the New York-Cleveland series was called on account of darkness with the score a tie, 2 to 2. Fisher pitched an excellent game, allowing but five hits; two of these being two-base hits, each of which scored a run. Sixteen chances came to Shortstop Champman, each of which he accepted without an error. Manager Chance was driven from the field in the sixth by protesting too vigorously when Daniels' third strike was called. New York scored their run on Chase's double and Sweeney's single. In their half of the second, Cleveland tied the score when Jackson received first on Hartsell's error and scored on Graney's two-bagger. New York scored again in the sixth when Lelivelt tripled, scoring Stumpf, but Lelivelt was out trying to reach home. In the seventh Cleveland again tied the score on a base on balls and Jackson's double.

Good playing aided Steen, who allowed six hits in nine innings and six more in the next six innings. Score:

Yesterday's victory was Johnson's ninth straight win. Counting today's score made by St. Louis in the fourth inning, only two runs have been made off him this season.

Washington had no trouble piling up a big score on St. Louis, as Leverenz was unsteady and Allison was hit hard by the visitors. Boehlin relieved Johnson in the sixth and was hit hard. St. Louis scored four runs in the eighth on his triple and Daubert's sacrifice fly. Score: R. H. E.

NORTHERN LEAGUE TEAMS ACQUIRING NEW PLAYERS

St. Paul, Grand Forks and Virginia Bolstering Up Weak Spots.

Minneapolis May Be Pulled Out of Lead During the Present Trip.

It is believed that the Minneapolis Northern league team will be pulled from the top of the percentage perch before the present road trip is over. The Unglaubers lost the opening engagement of the tour and it is thought that many others will go into the lost column.

Every team in the league is strengthening. Grand Forks has deposed Sam Foster from the leadership of the Flickertails. While a good ball player, the first baseman of the North Dakota aggregation did not possess the bean to direct a team, or at least so it would seem from the exhibitions the Flickers gave while in our midst.

When you have three men running for a ball and no one giving the tip to the intended taker, there is something faulty in the running of the team.

At that the Flickertails have the nucleus for an able team. Bill Carney, the former American association pitcher, was a wise head in the days that are numbered with the past and it may be that he will be able to instill just the right kind of spirit into the huskies from the Grand Forks town.

Managers of the various teams of the Northern are willing to admit that they have been surprised by the speed that is being exhibited by the players of the new league. Take "Spike" Shannon for an example. Shannon frankly states that he was under the impression that the new league would play a class of ball far below the grade that has been put up since the start of the season. It has been under this handicap that the leader of the Virginia team has been laboring. Now he has strengthened his team and he boasts of an aggregation that is about as good as several of the teams of the league. Charley Jones labored the same impression. Like his old friend Shannon, Jones is at the present time on the hunt for players and before the race is very many days older the leader of the Little Saints will have some new faces in his lineup.

New Players Coming.

Several new players are coming to the Grand Forks aggregation along with the coming of Manager Carney, and it is probable that Lyman, the present second baseman of the Flickers, will be displaced.

Negotiations are being carried on today between the Lenox hotel of this city and the baseball headquarters in Minneapolis for the acquisition of Rube Waddell by the Virginia team.

It may be that the Rube will be purchased outright by the range club. Shannon believes that there is a lot of pitching left in the Rube, and this belief is shared by all of the players of the Minneapolis American association team.

It is said that many of the players of the Minneapolis American association team are afraid they are going to be sent to the Northern. The way the Millers are going at the present time is something awful. There may be a large and decided shaking up of the present battlers in the Chivington circuit, and if this is so, some new faces may be seen on the Little Millers—thus doth rumor chirp, at least.

If the present brand of the unbearable is the last effusive outburst of the weather man it is very probable that the teams of the Northern will settle in the race and give us the best baseball that is played in any class C or class B league in the country.

Baseball men are of the opinion that the quality of ball in the Northern will be nearer that of class B than C class before the season is very much older.

With the present brand of weather it is quite impossible for pitchers to do anything like effective work. For instance there is the game in New York yesterday. In the cold and raw atmosphere it is absolutely impossible for a flinger to gain control or effectiveness.

Some Weird Games.

Looking old Mr. Baseball Situation in the lined and grim countenance, one is forced to the opinion that some weird games have been played this season, and the very fact that this kind of exhibition has been staged in every league over the length and breadth of the country, makes the weather the very excellent alibi.

While the cold and rain has stopped the baseball for a day it might be time to stop and compare for the time being the teams of the league that the fans here have lamped.

Of the teams seen here—Superior, Winnipeg and Grand Forks—it must be said that none of these looks better than the hustling Sox.

O'Brien has a team of busters and with any kind of pitching the Dooks are an awfully hard team to defeat. While our flinging brigade has not been going so awfully effectively to date, and the hitters have pounded out most of the victories, it must also be admitted that the pitchers of the other teams of the league have also been affected with the same conditions that have hampered the work of Blancke, Woods, Brackett and Johnson. This, the first breathing space since the opening game, gives excuse to let loose a few effusive remarks.

Duluth fans are getting the best baseball that we have had since the days of long ago. Also the conditions surrounding the game are the very best in the history of the town. That Duluth appreciates the efforts of the new regime to please was shown by the great crowd of last Sunday.

Virginia, Winona, St. Paul and Minneapolis are to come before the Dooks leave for the road. It is believed that the series here of the two teams from the Twin Cities will show the largest attendance in the history of the local park.

AMERICAN TRACK TEAM MAY CROSS PACIFIC.

San Francisco, Cal., May 15.—The organization and dispatching of an all-American track and field team to go to Australia next winter was placed in the hands of the Pacific branch of the American Amateur Athletic association, according to a letter received by John Elliott, president of the Pacific branch, from Secretary James E. Sullivan of the national organization.

Invitations to join the team have been extended to Abel Kiviat of the New York Irish-American Athletic club, one of the world's greatest distance runners, and Platt Adams of the New York Athletic club, who was among the first place winners at the last Olympic games. A sprinter and a hurdler, and possibly a weight man will be selected later.

The first meet in Australia is set for Dec. 26.

NEW MICHIGAN LAW WILL AFFECT PLAYERS.

Lansing, Mich., May 15.—Should Ty Cobb, world's champion batsman and star player of the Detroit baseball team be injured while under contract with President Navin of the Tigers, he would be entitled to only $10 a week compensation, according to information received here. President Navin has notified the industrial board of his intention to place all his players under the provisions of the state workmen's compensation law.

Cobb is supposed to draw a salary of about $2,000 per month or $500 a week. If injured he ordinarily would receive his full salary while on the bench but under the state law Cobb's salary would not be paid.

The law provides that when an employe is disabled he must be paid "an amount equal to one-half his weekly wages, not to exceed $10 a week."

Brannigan and McCue Matched.

Milwaukeee, May 15.—Patsy Brannigan, Pittsburg, and Mattie McCue, Racine, featherweights were yesterday matched to meet in a ten-round no decision boxing contest before the south side athletic club, Milwaukee, on May 26. The boys are to weigh 122 pounds at 3 o'clock on the date of the contest.

Objects to Salary Reductions.

New York, May 15.—David L. Fultz, president of the Baseball Players' fraternity, addressed a letter yesterday to the National commission at Cincinnati requesting it to abolish the practice of transferring players from one club to another at reductions in salary. Many such transfers, Mr. Fultz states, are made, notwithstanding contracts calling for a larger salary than the player receives upon being transferred to the second club.

Berkeley, Cal., May 15.—Announcement was made today that the University of California track team is going East to participate in the intercollegiate athletic association's meet at Harvard but will stop on its return journey at Madison, Wis., to take part in the western conference contests. The Madison meet will be held June 7, one week later than the Harvard event.

Sheridan Out-Boxed.

Peoria, Ill., May 15.—Harry Donahue of Pekin had a shade over Mickey Sheridan of Chicago last night in a ten-round bout. Battling Berger of Moline bested Stanley Everett of Pekin in ten rounds. Eddie Hart of Chicago and George Dans of Monmouth, were going at top speed in the seventh when Sheriff Minor stopped the fight. Several members of the legislature witnessed the exhibition.

Motor Cyclist Killed.

Chicago, May 15.—Leon Pitts, a member of the motor cycle team representing St. Louis, was killed last night in a collision in the opening of the season of the American Motorcycling clubs here. Pitts had won the second heat of the first race and was starting in the third heat, when he lost control of the car on a grade and was struck by a car ridden by Harry Fisher of Chicago.

Lawn Tennis Team Named.

New York, May 15.—Maurice E. McLoughlin of California, R. N. Williams of Philadelphia and Harold H. Hackett and Raymond D. Little, both of this city, were officially nominated yesterday as the American lawn tennis team for the Davis international cup matches against the Australians.

The news of the selections was cabled to the English Lawn Tennis association in London, and also a telegram was sent to S. N. Doust, the captain of the Australian team now playing at the Huntington Valley Country club, Pennsylvania. The nominations will stand for the matches at the West Side Tennis club here June 6, 7 and 9.

Ten Bouts Scheduled.

San Francisco, May 15.—Ten four-round bouts will be staged here tomorrow night. Jack White, the Chicago lightweight, and Tommy McFarland of this city, will come together in the main event. White has to his credit a victory over Owen Moran the English fighter.

ON THE IRON RANGES

ONE TEACHER DISCHARGED

Two Other Hibbing Educators Censured By Board for Misconduct.

Entering Saloons and Not Promptly Paying Bills Alleged Cause.

Hibbing, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—For frequenting saloons and for other conduct of a less serious nature construed by the local school board to be inconsistent with the proper administration of their duties two male teachers in the public schools have been censured and a third has been discharged. Despite the utmost efforts of every member of the school board to keep the whole affair a secret, plentiful rebuffs to interviewers and a general disposition to let the whole matter pass with as little publicity as possible, the story is generally current about town today.

Reports of misconduct have been coming to the board for some time affecting some of the male teachers. The term misconduct is used as it is applied to a disposition to delay creditors and to enter and "purchase" in saloons. An investigation was made and when it was found that the charges reaching the ears of the board were true, discipline was promptly administered. Every member of the board and Supt. Blair especially were grieved to learn the truth of the story that first came to them. The three involved whose names are withheld are among the best teachers in the schools and have been and still are held in high esteem by the board and the heads of the various schools in which they were employed. The offense of the two teachers censured consisted of on one occasion entering a saloon. Neither is in the habit of frequenting such places.

Need For Social Center.

Discussing the affair today a well known Hibbing business man said:

"I can appreciate the position of Supt. Blair and of the members of the board in this matter and I sympthazie with the young men involved. This occurrence emphasizes a fact that must be evident to every man who is familiar with conditions in Hibbing. There ought to be in this city some place where young men employed here not only in the schools but elsewher who are without home ties, could find diversion and amusement when their day's work is over. The Oliver club provides such a place for its employes but a good many young men do not have access to it. There should be some sort of a social center in Hibbing that would meet the needs of this situation.

"We cannot expect red blooded young Americans to go along without making mistakes. The saloon is the only place in Hibbing that invites the young men. We ought to do something to offset this influence."

VIRGINIA PUPILS AGAIN TO MARCH

Boys and Girls Will Join in Tribute to Nation's Heroes.

Virginia, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Again this year the pupils of the schools, 3,000 or more strong, will march the streets in a Memorial day parade. There being few veterans in Virginia, the pageant of the school children has been made a feature, rather than the parade of men of the Civil war.

Scenes of war and peace will be depicted, including "The Hague Peace Treaty," "American Red Cross Society," "The Reconstruction Period," "American Colleges" and "The Blue and the Gray." There will also be patriotic scenes by the various schools and rooms.

Ely, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are few idlers here, that is if they want to work as shovels are busy at the mines and there is considerable building activity about the city. BRINGING IN BIG BEAR THAT RANGE WOMAN KILLED

BRUIN ON JUDGE MASTER'S MOTOR.

Chisholm, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Master's automobile had an unusual passenger when he returned from Sturgeon lake a few days ago. It was the carcass of the big black bear killed by Mrs. Ed Davis, wife of a Sturgeon Lake homesteader, as told in The Herald. Bruin was brought to town strapped on the front of the machine and the photographer caught the novel scene as the judge, who is shown in the picture, pushed back a small boy who was about to get in the range of the camera.

FINE BUILDING FOR VIRGINIA

J. L. Booth Erecting Up-to-Date Apartment at Large Cost.

Virginia, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.) — J. L. Booth, owner of the Troy laundry, is erecting a modern apartment over his new laundry that will compare with the finest in the state at a cost of many thousand dollars. The apartment will be fitted up with all modern conveniences, including gas cooking and vacuum cleaning.

Hot water heat, hot and cold running water, ample bathrooms and individual telephone service are among other things that will be provided in Virginia's new model home structure and it is worth mentioning that the architects have arranged air courts in such manner that every room in the building is an outside room and supplied with ample ventilation. Gas ranges supplied free of charge, kitchen cabinets and china closets are among the features of the building, but all applications for space are in vain as the whole building was rented long before it was completed.

The ground floor of the structure will be used as the new home of the Troy laundry and more than $15,000 has been spent in new machinery and fixtures for the new laundry. The gas plant and supply pipes and vacuum cleaning machinery work will cost over $5,000 and the contract price for the building alone is $35,000.

BLIND MAN GIVEN COURT'S SYMPATHY

Arrested for Drunkenness and Court Scores Those Selling Him Drink.

Hibbing, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fact that he is totally blind saved Henry Kangas from a severe sentence on a charge of drunkenness in municipal court yesterday. Kangas was picked up overcome by liquor by the police during the night. He groped his way into the presence of Judge Brady assisted by two other unfortunates awaiting hearings on a similar charge. Good advice was administered by the court to Kangas who lost his sight in an accident in one of the mines several years ago, while employed as a blaster. He was dismissed and was led from the courtroom to a Third avenue saloon, where friends endeavored to get him to return to his home. The court expressed its opinion of saloon men who found it necessary to sell liquor to a blind man until he reached the stage of helpless intoxication in no uncertain terms.

Grand Rapids Creamers Extends Its Delivering Facilities.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The delivery facilities of the Itasca County Co-operative creamery are now in charge of Arthur Iton, and instead of the limited delivery of the past, every effort will be made to enlarge the route, and accommodate all those who may apply for service.

With the change in management there has been a drop in price of 1 cent a quart of milk, making the retail price 7 instead of 8 cents, with a special price to hotels. All milk going out of the creamery is pasteurized, and stands from 20 to 40 per cent higher than is required by state law.

VIRGINIA BOARD TO END DEADLOCK

May Reach Conclusion Saturday in Supt. Bliss Matter.

Virginia, Minn., May 15.—The expected final action of the school board in the case of hiring or declining to hire Lafayette Bliss as superintendent of schools was not taken by the school board last evening. C. E. Hendrick, member of the board was absent from the city on business and other members stated that by a "gentleman's agreement," it was decided not to take any action until all of the members can be at the meeting. It was decided to hold a special meeting Saturday evening when it is expected the board will break the deadlock in which it has been for three months.

R. C. Pickering was appointed attorney for the board in its action to acquire by purchase or condemnation, the eighty acres of land owned by the state on the Mountain Iron road. The board has been petitioned to acquire the land for a demonstration farm in connection with the school work and obtains state aid by having the farm in operation.

The late session of the legislature made it possible for school boards to acquire lands for school farm purposes. F. G. German, architect, reported to the board that the contractors are practically through with the work on the north side school. Various recommendations made by the superintendent were referred to committees for consideration. The old homestead school building is desired for town hall purposes and the clerk will advertise it for sale. A new building has been erected at Homestead.

THAT CIGARETTE LAW.

State Officials Call It New Departure In Sumptuary Legislation.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—"It is just as logical to place the enforcement of the cigarette license law under a state law, as it would be to include the state liquor laws within its jurisdiction."

This opinion was expressed last night by a state official who believes it is a short step to giving the state government general supervision of the regulations for the sale of intoxicants.

Under the cigarette law passed by the last legislature, the various towns, villages and municipalities are authorized to license dealers, but the state dairy and food department is given the power of enforcement. This is an entirely new departure in sumptuary legislation in Minnesota.

"There seems to be a disposition throughout the country to put more power in the hands of the state government," said the official.

ST. PAUL CLEANUP.

Saintly City Getting Ready for Enforcement of "Red Light" Law.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—As a result of recent conferences between Mayor Keller and others and at the request of several of the commercial bodies a thorough cleaning up of doubtful hotels has been effected on Jackson street. Two weeks ago positive orders were issued by the police to keepers of four disorderly houses on that street to move out, and three of them already have complied.

The proprietors of ten small hotels on the same street have been warned that prompt action will be taken in case complaints are forthcoming.

The action of the commercial bodies and the mayor is said to be due to the improvements contemplated in that part of the city.

In anticipation of some action on the part of the present grand jury in reference to the enforcement of the new "red light" law which will go into force May 31, there has been a sudden decrease in the number of doubtful rooming houses in many parts of the city.

The grand jury will meet tomorrow afternoon and again Friday when routine business of a criminal nature will be finished and the grand jury will be able to turn its attention to the complaints against the ice companies and to matters concerning the general conditions in St. Paul.

LIVING COST PROBE.

Government Agent to Gather Statistics in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—A special agent of the Federal department of labor will come to St. Paul within the next three weeks to compile statistics on the cost of living here, and to compare retail prices here with those of other cities.

Members of the publicity committee of the St. Paul Association of Commerce who were instrumental in having the government send an agent here believe the result will show that St. Paul prices are more advantageous than those of other cities.

When the department of labor started collecting statistics of this kind several months ago St. Paul was left out. W. P. McGuire, publicity agent for the department of commerce, wrote Robert B. Wilson, secretary of commerce and labor, drawing his attention to the fact that St. Paul is the capital of the state, that this city ranks twenty-sixth in the country in the matter of population, that sixteen cities smaller than St. Paul were included in the investigation.

C. W. W. Hinger, acting commissioner of labor, replied that there was no money with which to carry on the work.

Mr. McGuire took up the matter with Congressman Stevens with the result that an agent will be sent here.

The itching and burning were so great that at times I had no rest whatever. I had tried remedies all of which proved failures. Not until I received some Cuticura Soap and Ointment did I find any relief. In a short while I was wholly cured." (Signed) Miss Anna Maronen, June 21, 1913.

PIMPLES ON CHILD'S BACK

St. James, Mo.—"Last summer I noticed on my grandson what looked like small pimples on his back, stomach and limbs which developed into boils with a crust on top. He would scratch causing them to pain and bleed. The skin around them was red and inflamed. He scratched so that I had to put linen underwear next to his skin, as the woolen garments seemed to irritate especially at night, making him cross and fretful.

"I used home remedies which seemed to have no effect, so I tried Cuticura Ointment and Soap and noticed an improvement after the first application. He was entirely well in two months." (Signed) Mrs. F. S. Newcomb, Apr. 18, 1912.

NATIONAL CONVENTION OF METHODIST MEN IN OCTOBER

Three Thousand Delegated Men, Ministers and Laymen in Equal Numbers, to Consider United Missionary Work of the Church.

The national convention of Methodist men, to be held in Indianapolis Oct. 28 to 31, is the first event of its kind in Methodism. There have been other great conventions and conferences, like the remarkable one in Cleveland, October, 1902, and the conference of the Methodist section of the National Missionary congress at Chicago in May, 1910. But it has not before been undertaken to call together 3,000 delegated men, ministers and laymen in equal numbers, from every section of the country, to put before them the united missionary work of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Such a convention scarcely would have been possible before this time. For the past six years influences have been steadily increasing that have resulted in an absolutely changed attitude toward missionary work, not only in the Methodist church and in all Christian communions, but in the world generally, among business men, and in the public press, both religious and secular.

The proposed convention is to be made up of 3,000 men—1,500 from among the ministers—bishops, district superintendents and preachers — and 1,500 from among active laymen. It is expected that the bishops will so arrange the schedule of fall conferences as to permit the attendance of themselves and of other ministers. The utmost care is being taken to secure a thoroughly representative attendance. More than 12,000 names have been collected from all conferences. Tomlinson Hall, the largest auditorium in Indianapolis, will accommodate but 3,000; no more than this number can be given delegates' credentials, which will be issued in the order in which applications are received. The registration fee is $3.

The convention is under the call of the Laymen's Missionary Movement of the Methodist Episcopal church, with the commission on finance and other official bodies of the church in active and hearty co-operation. All the missionary and benevolent boards of the church are united in this convention to have presented to the church its entire missionary task. The program is being arranged on a scale of complete comprehension.

The convention will open at 10 o'clock on Tuesday, Oct. 28, and will have three sessions a day. Men of national and international reputation, representing every phase of church life and service, will be heard, not only from the Methodist communion, but some of the strongest lay and clerical representatives of other Christian bodies will give their assistance. The day sessions will be largely devoted to conferences of a practical character in the furtherance of the purpose for which the convention is called. This purpose is: To increase missionary intelligence and to deepen the spiritual life; to present the definite responsibility of Methodism both at home and abroad in relation to other denominations and Christian agencies; to adopt a practicable denominational program and policy of advance; to place more definitely before the church the new financial plan as adopted by the general conference for the church as a whole and for the local church; to emphasize the principles and practice of Christian stewardship as adopted by the general conference; to discover and enlist more men for missionary and evangelistic service.

The church is already greatly aroused. Conventions and conferences have been held in many parts of the country, notably the campaign just concluded in the Pacific Northwest, which was a record-breaker both in interest and practical results. The 12,000 names already received were sent into the office by bishops, district superintendents and pastors—a carefully selected list. Though no invitations have yet been mailed, a number of men have asked that reservations be made for them and have forwarded the registration fee. There is no reason to doubt that the full number of 3,000 will be quickly taken up after the invitations are issued, which will be about May 15. The embarrassment will be the large number who cannot be accommodated by reason of the physical limitations of the hall.

The executive committee in charge of the convention, in sending out the preliminary announcement, asked for daily prayer (1) that Methodism may have a clearer realization of its resources in Christ; (2) that it may have self-sacrificing readiness to face its entire responsibility at home and abroad; (3) that men whom God would have to lead the church in this day of need and opportunity be assigned as delegates; (4) that all committees may have divine guidance; and (5) that the convention be not an end in itself, but that conviction and determined effort to discharge its responsibility to the whole world may be deeply rooted throughout the entire church. It is desired that these objects shall continue to enlist the church in intercession until they shall be realized in the fullest measure through his guiding Spirit.

The national convention of Methodist men comes at an opportune time. Some time after it was determined upon and the preliminary announcements had been made, that most remarkable event transpired, by which, in behalf of the Home and Foreign Missionary boards represented in the Foreign Missions Boards conference and the Home Missions Council of North America, a united and unified campaign was agreed upon for the fall of 1913, to head up a united every-member canvass in all churches during the month of March, 1914. The Methodist church is thus in harmony with all its sister communions, and, indeed, seems to have been providentially led to a place of leadership in the wonderful development of Christian co-operative unity. The Methodist National convention will be held in the very heart of the interdenominational campaign. This will necessarily give it unusual timeliness, interest, and power.

The local committees in Indianapolis, under the chairmanship of Hon. C. W. Fairbanks, are making complete and generous arrangements for the comfort and success of the convention. The convention will be self-entertaining. The convention itself is being arranged for by Fred B. Fisher of New York city.

CLAIM THEY BOUGHT LOOT

Three Alleged House Breakers Tell Familiar Story on Stand.

Caught Wearing Clothes Stolen From O. L. Mather Residence.

George Marshall, George Byron and Fred Davis, trio of alleged housebreakers, did not deviate from the old and time-worn defense, when they outlined their story in the burglary case against them in district court today.

The three men are accused of having broken into the house of O. L. Mather, 201 South Twenty-first avenue east, on the night of April 27, to have helped themselves to clothes belonging to Mr. Mather, to have drawn liberally upon the food supply, and to have otherwise liberally helped themselves to things lying around loose.

Marshall, Byron and Davis admitted that the clothes which were found on their persons might belong to Mr. Mather but declared on the witness stand that they had purchased them in a saloon from a stranger who "blew in" while they were drinking. The stranger had a sack full of clothes he wanted to sell. They dickered with him and bought the entire outfit.

Neither of the trio could tell County Attorney Greene under cross examination in what saloon this occurred and none produced any witnesses to verify the assertion. They also claimed that on the night of the alleged burglary, they were sleeping in a lumber yard—they didn't remember just where it was except that there were some box cars near the place.

The mysterious stranger who sold them the clothes was described by them to be dressed as a "working man." Further than that they were not able to say.

Swapped Trousers.

The men disclaimed the clothes they were wearing in the courtroom, the garments being those which the police found, had been discarded in the Mather household. Byron the tallest of the trio had on trousers which were too short for him and Davis, who complained of a misfit also, declared that his were too long.

County Attorney Green pointed out the fact that Byron and Davis each had suits of the same material and suggested that the matter might easily be straightened out if the two men would quit wearing each other's trousers.

Davis, on the witness stand, told the jury that that when the police had forced him to change his wardrobe he had been obliged to put on a pair of shoes which were too big for him. The county attorney asked him if the shoes he took off were his own. He replied in the affirmative. They were then produced and proved to be at least three sizes larger than the ones which he was wearing in the courtroom.

County Attorney Greene made his final arguments to the jury before noon and George B. Sjoselius, defendants' attorney, pleaded his case at the opening of court this afternoon, following which Judge Dancer charged the jury and it retired in consideration of the case.

CHINAMAN USES FOUR-FOOT CLUB

Virginia Restaurant Keeper Alleged to Have Attacked Patron.

Virginia, Minn., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A Chinaman named, Seu Hong, is alleged to have tried to crack James Brant's head with a four-foot club following an argument over a 50-cent meal, but the timely arrival of Chief Hice put a stop to the fight.

Hung and cigars is alleged to have started the whole trouble and Brant is walking around with a big blood-stained bandage around his head while the police department have kept the club.

According to the story told the officers Brant went into the San Francisco restaurant and ordered a ham and eggs. This was served and eaten and a charge made of 55 cents which Brant refused to pay claiming it was an overcharge of 25 cents. Seu Hong is alleged to have then taken Brant's hat and words followed.

Used Long Club.

The Chinaman hit Brant over the head with a heavy piece of lumber about four feet long. Brant claims that the Chinaman demanded that he should pay for the man next to him whom he says he did not even know by sight. The Chinaman was arrested charged with assault before Judge Carr and the case continued until tomorrow.

BILLIE BURKE IN REVIVAL OF PINERO'S OLD FAVORITE

—Copyright by Charles Frohman.

BILLIE BURKE IN "THE AMAZONS."

Billie Burke has made another success by appearing as "Lord Tommie" in Charles Frohman's revival of Pinero's "The Amazons." Billie Burke would make a personal success of almost anything because of her attractiveness. Few actresses today have so many personal followers. But her appearance in the Pinero play is delightful from a histrionic standpoint. To her admirers in other cities this picture of Billie in breeches will have an especial attraction.

THE ONLY MAN WHO MADE LINCOLN SMILE

A. J. Conant, Painter of the First Oil Portrait of the Emancipator, Still Is Living in New York City.

New York Tribune: On the north side of Tenth street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, there is a building of red brick which certainly would not attract serious attention because of its architecture. Above the narrow door is carved the word "studios."

Inside and on the right there is a cheerful room with a fireplace in which a coal fire tempers the atmosphere. Two gas jets rise from the marble mantel, shining evidences of the age of the building, for no builder nowadays ever pierces a marble mantel for a gas jet. A woman, whose face is of Scandinavian type, inquires if you wish to see any one, and, in this case, you inquire for Mr. Conant.

Workshop of Famous Author.

"On the second floor, to the right," she replies. Perhaps you hesitate for a moment, for you catch a glimpse on the curious, old-fashioned directory board of the names of John La Farge and J. G. Brown and J. Alden Weir and G. Cimiotti, Jr.

"The building is fifty-four years old," the woman says when she observes your interest. "Mr. Brown, the man who paints the boys, has been here fifty-two years. No, he doesn't come every day now. He only comes occasionally."

You leave the obliging attendant on your way up to Mr. Conant's studio. As you grope along the half lighted passage of the old building you dwell upon the names of those who have helped to make it noted. Perhaps, because of the dimness of the light, the warm glow of the jeweled glass windows in the Church of the Ascension, only a few doors away, creeps in. They form one of Mr. La Farge's monuments, and were designed beneath this roof. Through the window opening out upon the air and light shaft you catch a glimpse of a number of plaster casts—reliefs of Hudson and wrestlers and runners, gladiators and charioteers on the wall of the airshaft of a New York building. Yes, here is a decorated airshaft, and a suggestion for builders of apartment houses.

Carries His Years Well.

The room is high and half hidden in shadows, despite the fact that it is lighted by a large skylight. Large portraits in gilt frames of Lincoln, "Deacon" S. V. White and Henry Ward Beecher form a screen that hides half the room from view. A gray bearded figure in frock coat rises slowly from a leather couch under the skylight, and walks toward you. This is A. J. Conant, the painter of the first oil picture made of Abraham Lincoln.

The picture is sometimes described as the "Lincoln with a smile," for it is the only portrait of the famous American which shows him smiling. It is now in the collection of historical portraits in the Philipse Manor House in Yonkers, and is the only one there the painter of which is now living, many of the other works being by Copley, Stuart and Peale.

Mr. Conant is 91 years old, having been born in Chelsea, Vt., on September 21, 1821. While he no longer does much painting he places a small canvas on his easel now and then. One would not suspect him of being a nonagenarian, for although his hair is white and somewhat thin, his bearing and his speech are those of a man in the '70s. There is fire in what he has to say and a mingled humor and wit that adds to the enjoyment of his recitals of incidents in his relations with the men he has painted, and particularly with Lincoln. There is an exactness in his language which delights the lover of English. He is accustomed to using the right word. His stories are likely to be monologues these days, however, for he is growing deaf and detests the use of his speaking tube.

Engaged Subject in Conversation.

He enjoys nothing more than to sit back in his chair talking about Lincoln, or regaling his friends in the Authors club with tales of his favorite character, or to walk about among his pictures discussing the best way to get a good expression upon the face of the subject.

When he was about to undertake the portrait of men of moment, such men as Lincoln or President McCosh of Princeton or Bishop Potter, he would run over in his mind the topics of conversation which would be likely to interest his sitter in the hope of thus bringing out a characteristic expression.

This was illustrated in his method of obtaining for his "Smiling Lincoln" the expression he desired. Mr. Conant was living in St. Louis before the war and was asked in 1860, about two months before the presidential election, to visit Springfield, Ill., and paint a picture of the candidate of the Republican party. Provided with letters of introduction, he went to Lincoln's home and made a prompt appointment for a sitting. The place was to be Lincoln's office, a large room in the old statehouse.

Lincoln's face presented an interesting problem. It was irregular and angular. The line of the nose was peculiar, curved slightly on one side, straight on the other. The lower lip, also, was unsymmetrical, being fuller on the right than the left side. It looked, as he expressed it, "as if swollen from a blow or the sting of an insect."

The "Slow Horse Story."

He had then no beard, his face being entirely devoid of hair.

His expression, when not in conversation, was "sad and thoughtful." Mr. Conant had seen Lincoln standing among his friends in conversation. Then his face lost its expression of weariness. The lines and angles softened into curves. He resolved that his picture should have a smile in it.

Visitors were constantly calling to see the distinguished sitter, and it was difficult to work under the circumstances, for of course the candidate was anxious to meet all who came.

The artist was equal to the occasion, however. He placed a bench along the wall behind his easel, where the callers could take seats facing the subject and his picture while they waited. This facilitated his work, for it kept the sitter in position and the animated expression on his face.

Sometimes Mr. Conant was obliged to draw upon his stock of stories in order to lift the curtain of settled seriousness. One of these was a story which afterward, through repetition by Lincoln, became known as the "Slow Horse Story." This is the way Lincoln used to tell it:

"A certain politician, who was a candidate for the office of county judge, applied one morning to a neighbor who kept a livery stable for a horse and buggy to take himself and friend to the nominating convention, which was to be held in an adjoining town, sixteen miles away, in the evening. He told the liveryman to be sure and give him the best and fastest horse he had, so that he could get there in time to do a little log rolling before the meeting. His neighbor, being of opposing politics, gave him a horse that promised well at the start but broke down entirely before he got there. When he arrived the convention had adjourned, and, of course, he lost the nomination. On driving up to the stable late in the afternoon of the following day, feeling it was useless to be angry at the trick played upon him, he said to the owner:

"'See here, Jones, you are training this horse for the New York market. You expect to sell him for a good price to an undertaker for a hearse horse.'

"'The owner protested that the horse was one of his best livery animals.

"'Now, don't deny it,' said the would-be judge, 'for I know by his gait that you have to spend a great deal of time training him to go before a hearse. It's all labor lost. He will never do. He is altogether too slow. He never could get a corpse to the cemetery in time for the resurrection.'"

Was Curator at M. U.

Mr. Conant, while he has painted the portraits of such men as those mentioned, Sherman, and a number of the justices of the United States supreme court, has also done other things. He was for many years especially interested in ethnology and archaeology. He was curator in the University of Missouri for eight years and established there the School of Mines and Metallurgy.

He is the author of "The Archaeology of the Missouri Valley," which has been translated into several European languages, and the "Footprints of Vanished Races in the Mississippi Valley," and hopes some day to see all his store of recollections of Lincoln in type, for even at his age he has set them down.

HEADACHES.

Care With Exercise and Diet Will Remove Many Common Causes.

London Mail: "My mother always has headaches," wrote a bright little girl in an essay on "Mothers." The child was manifestly surprised, as if there was something wrong in having headaches and that mothers could and should avoid them. Headaches are not so common now as formerly, when every woman regarded them as part of her lot in life, but they still are far more common than they need be.

Most of them are of our own making. It is said that there are 100 causes of headache, and at least three-fourths of those are avoidable with a little care.

Want of open air exercise is one of the most prolific of all causes. Nearly all men go out of doors every day, but many women do not leave the house for two, three, four and even six days running.

Women should go out for at least two hours every day, wet or fine. If some interesting reason can be found for the outing so much the better, and there are hosts of available reasons.

A woman can do her shopping in installments and spread it over the whole week; she can find one friend or another to visit every day, or most days; she can join a club, visit picture galleries, go out for lunch or tea in a cafe, meet her husband at the station, or take out the children instead of sending them with the nurse.

This systematic open air exercise should be combined with open windows. The night air is not unwholesome. It is actually purer than the day air; and if the bedroom windows are kept wide open through the whole twenty-four hours, headaches will be very much rarer than they are.

There is also the headache which follows soon after eating, and this is rather difficult to cure. It arises from a combination of causes; because the victim eats unsuitable food, perhaps ate too quickly, and perhaps also bustles about and gets hurried before sitting down. Many women make it a point to criticise the cooking and find fault with the serving of dinner at the very worst time possible.

The consequence is that a woman who does not control her emotions at meals is likely to rise from the table with congested brain and soon after comes on the headache. Medicine is not the cure for this, but tranquility and a cheerful spirit when eating.

The strenuously denied tight lacing is a helpful cause of the after dinner headache. At meals all clothing should be loose. A good way to manage this headache is to take fruit only for breakfast and have an early luncheon.

The sick or bilious headache is often hereditary. It comes on generally when the system is out of tone in people of a nervous temperament. The attack may be caused by mental overwork, grief, anxiety, worry, fatigue, late hours and errors in diet.

The patient needs absolute quiet and rest. The feet should be kept warm. A hot bath often gives relief, or a mustard plaster to the back of the neck. So, sometimes, does a cup of strong coffee. Between attacks a vegetarian diet is good. In any case, fats, sweets, tea, coffee, and indigestible foods of all kinds must be avoided.

THE MILITANT SPIRIT.

London Chronicle: We were lined up at the booking office window, taking our places. In front of me was a burly man. All went well until a woman broke the line and planked her 2-pence in front of the burly man. That man swept it aside. "I've always taught my wife," he said, "to be polite to gentlemen."

"I'm very glad I am not your wife," said the woman. The man in front of me took his ticket and said, as he moved on:

"I took that precaution some years ago."

WHEAT HAS A REACTION

Closes Fractionally Higher After Having a Weak Opening.

Flax Opens Firm But Weakens Toward the Close.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 15.—Wheat in general closed up this afternoon, the lack of export demand and the news that resellers in Europe are offering cargoes cheaper than they can be shipped from this side, failing to pull down the advance made earlier. Net advances: Wheat—May, ¼c; July, ¼c; September, ⅛c to ¼c; durum, July, ¾c.

Cash wheat closed at July's closing figure, oats showed a gain of ⅛c and rye and barley remained unchanged.

Because of weak cables and more or less liquidation the wheat market started out with a downward tendency this morning after each option had opened unchanged from yesterday's close. Liverpool reported a weak opening and the 1:30 o'clock report, their time, showed a decline in wheat of ⅜ to ½c on America's weak cables, weakness in Buenos Ayres and weak spot wheat, checked somewhat by a short rally on reports of smaller shipments from Argentina. Liverpool closed at ¼d to ⅜d off.

When the reports of receipts at the primary markets and of clearances from the seaboard came in the declining tendency ceased. Primary receipts are the lowest recorded for a long time, and for the first time in quite a while are below the previous week. Clearances are larger than usual, and the combination caused a rally, accentuated by the fact that there is heavy buying of July wheat in Chicago.

The result was that in the latter half of the session, just before the close, July wheat was ¼c up, May was steady at 88c, yesterday's close, and September option was up ⅛c to ¼c. May durum was unchanged to ⅛c up, and July durum was unchanged to ⅛c off.

Flax Rises and Falls.

After a steady opening at yesterday's close, July, September and October options in flax had a little bulge on reports of export demand and a lack of selling desire on this side of the water. Later the market weakened a trifle, so that July closed as it opened, but September advanced ½c and October showed a gain of ¼c. The transactions on the local board were limited.

The Northwestern Miller says in its current issue:

"Business with Minneapolis and interior mills last week was very unsatisfactory. While some mills sold as much as they did in the preceding week, with others the shrinkage in sales was heavy. It is safe to say that the orders booked represented less than one-half of the quantity of flour made. What business was done consisted, in the main, of small orders from a wide area, with the mixed car trade a big feature. Orders for as much as 5,000 bbl were rare. Mills very generally feel that bakers as well as others should recognize contracts and live up to their terms. Therefore the policy is to resort to the court where it is necessary to enforce contracts. A number of suits are now pending. Directions are coming in only at a moderate rate. By constant hammering the millers have so far been able to secure sufficient instructions on old orders to avoid restricting operations to any great extent.

In its fortnightly crop report, the Winnipeg Free Press says:

"All wheat is seeded and 60 per cent is above ground, but cold weather retards growth. The season is two weeks later than last year. There is abundant moisture and the seed-bed is in good condition. Immediate warm weather is imperative for the best results. Fifty per cent of oats and 25 per cent of barley are seeded. The flax acreage is reduced 25 per cent. Ten per cent of last year's wheat is still in the farmer's hands. Three to five inches of snow is on the ground at many points."

Secretary Prouty of the Oklahoma Grain Dealers' association, says that state will have at least 30,000,000 bu of wheat. It is in perfect condition and offers are being asked for last half of June shipment. He says that they will ship at least 20,000,000 bu out of the state of this crop at present prices. The red wheat will go to Chicago.

Lyle estimates the probable wheat crop at 475,000,000 bu against 399,919,000 bu in 1912 and 430,656,000 bu in 1911.

Clearances: Wheat, 706,000 bu; flour, 47,000 bbl; wheat and flour combined equal 918,000 bu; corn, 1,000 bu.

Broomhall, London: Argentine shipments—Wheat, 2,000,000 bu against 2,760,000 last week, and 3,872,000 last year; corn, 4,250,000 bu against 3,596,000 bu last week, and 3,655,000 bu last year. The acreage under wheat is likely to be larger than last year; that of last year was 17,095,000 acres.

Primary markets:

Wheat—Receipts, 545,000 bu, last week, 591,000 bu; shipments, 576,000 bu, last week, 640,000 bu.

B. W. Snow: The wheat situation on the Pacific coast is radically different from the rest of the country. There has been drought all spring and crop advices are coming bad. Every weather bureau station west of the Rocky mountains shows a very heavy deficiency in moisture, since the beginning of the season and for most of them the figures are sensational. The coast wheat prospect has gone back rapidly since May 1 and it begins to look like a decidedly small winter wheat crop west of the mountains.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Russian Crop Reports Lead to Weakness in Wheat.

Chicago, May 15.—Fresh weakness developed today in wheat owing to fine Russian crop reports and because of ideal weather. Some speculators, however, were playing for a rally. They expressed the belief that selling had become too unanimous for safety. Opening prices were ⅛c to ⅜c lower. July started at 87½c to 87¾c, the same change from last night as the market taken altogether. After reacting to 87⅞c, another sag ensued to 87¾c.

Later an upturn took place in consequence of better milling demand, big seaboard clearances, lateness of the season in Canada and expected shrinkage in the Pacific coast yield. The close was steady with July ⅛c net higher at 88c.

Lightness of offerings made corn firm when sympathy with wheat had worn off. July opened ⅛@¼c lower to a shade higher at 55⅜c to 55⅝c and hardened to 55¾c.

A further advance was induced by country refusals to sell on decline. The close, however, was easy at 55⅝c for July, a net gain of a shade.

Demand from shorts carried oats up grade. July, which started unchanged to ⅛c off at 35¼c to 35⅜c, rose to 35¾c.

Provisions advanced with hogs. The opening range was the same as last night to 2½c higher, including July as follows: Pork, $19.42½; lard, $10.85; ribs, $11.05.

MOVEMENT IS NOMINAL

Active Stocks Go Down Decisively and Close Is Heavy.

Lowest Prices of the Session Made in the Last Hour.

New York, May 15.—With buying power reduced to a minimum, bear traders undertook a series of selling movements. The operations were not on a large scale, however, and they accomplished little outside of a few obscure issues.

Eagerness to cover advantageously caused occasional rallies, but there was little in the general movement to encourage active speculation. The announced intention of the governor of California to sign the alien land bill was cited as one source of caution on the part of traders in entering upon new commitments.

Bonds were steady.

Stocks were under pressure at the opening today. Almost without exception the active shares ranged under yesterday's close. The heaviest losses were sustained by Cotton Oil, which fell 2 points, and Canadian Pacific, which receded 1¼.

Reading suddenly was bid up a point, causing the general market to reverse its course. Prices did not hold on the rally and by 11 o'clock the list was below the opening figures. A break of 4¼c in American cotton oil weakened other fertilizer shares.

Later selling orders were withdrawn and the market became steadier. There was a little inclination to buy, and Canadian Pacific met stock on all rallies.

Chesapeake & Ohio and New Haven weakened after displaying early strength. Action on the dividend of both roads is to be taken later in the day.

Speculation in stocks was at a standstill. The traders were nonplussed over the restricted action of the market, tentative operations in both the long and short side failing to cause hardly anything more than a nominal movement either way.

Comment was aroused by a decline in United States Steel 5's to 99¾, the lowest in a very long time.

The market closed heavy. Lowest prices of the day were made in the last hour when some active stocks went down decisively. Union Pacific and Amalgamated were quoted a point below yesterday's closing and Reading as much under the forenoon's best. Chesapeake & Ohio, which rose to 66 earlier on the extra dividend on Hocking Valley, one of its controlled properties, reacted to 61¾ on the delay in announcing the result of the dividend meeting. When it was at last stated the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent had been declared, the stock, which had stiffened again to 65, dropped anew to 63⅝.

The bond market seems to continue weak, but recently it has shown strength in spots. If general business continues to slow down and money gets easier the bond market should show signs of strength. Among experienced bond men the census of opinion seems to be that the bond market has touched the bottom for the present.

ICE DRIVEN BY STIFF NORTHEAST GALE FILLS HARBOR AND BLOCKS SHIP CANAL

BUCKING THE ICE AT THE ENTRANCE TO THE CANAL.

After lying outside of the harbor all night, unable to move on account of the ice jam, the steamers M. A. Bradley and Ward Ames went through the canal about 11 o'clock this morning. The tug Sinclair succeeded in making a path for the boats after working for over two hours.

The steamer Crerar, which was compelled to turn back after attempting for nearly three hours, to get away, was the second boat to get out of the harbor since 8:30 o'clock last evening, when the steamer Ream left with a cargo of ore. She was the last boat to leave yesterday. The steamer J. T. Heffelfinger, light for Two Harbors, was the first boat to get out, followed by the Crerar.

The heavy northeast gale yesterday which attained a velocity of forty-four miles an hour toward the latter part of the afternoon filled up the harbor with ice, and piled up the ice pack just outside of the canal. The harbor is now filled with ice and the smaller boats have given up the attempts to break through. Only the larger boats are able to make any headway.

The ferry boat to Superior was not running this morning.

The heavy wind has dropped.

Worse at Superior.

At the Superior entry the conditions are much worse, as the heavy ice field from the south shore was piled up outside the enery. The ice on this side extends only a short distance out, ending at about Tenth avenue east. But the trouble lies in getting by the heavy pack just outside the canal.

The steamer Fred G. Hartwell rammed the S. M. Clement in its attempt to get out shortly after 5:30 o'clock last evening. Two bow plates of the former were sprung and the bulwarks of the latter were slightly damaged on the port side of the stern. The Clement continued on her way, while the Hartwell was compelled to return to the harbor. She is still waiting for favorable conditions before making another attempt.

The Clement is owned by John Mitchell of Cleveland and the Hartwell is one of the Tomlinson boats.

While these boats were attempting to get out three incoming steamers were compelled to wait outside of the canal for several hours. These were the Joseph Block, Filbert and Barth, they finally succeeded in breaking through the ice, although they had considerable trouble.

REPORT AGAINST IMPROVEMENT

Capt. E. D. Peek Not in Favor of Redredging River Channel.

Capt. E. D. Peek of the United States corps of engineers reports unfavorably on the proposed dredging of the St. Louis river, from Peterson islands to Dubray creek, above Fond du Lac.

The following letter is being sent by Capt. Peek to all those who are interested in the project:

"Dear Sir—As it has come to my notice that you are interested in the pending proposition for the improvement of upper St. Louis river, I hereby inform you that the examination of the locality named, with a view to its improvement by redredging the artificial channel in said river from the foot of Peterson Islands near Fond du Lac to Dubray creek, authorized by the act of congress approved March 4, 1913, has been made, and that my report submitted thereon is unfavorable to the improvement for the reason that the benefits to be obtained are not commensurate with the cost.

"You are further notified that all interested persons have the privilege of an appeal from this conclusion to the board of engineers for rivers and harbors, a permanent body sitting at Washington, D. C., to which all examination and survey reports of this character are referred. Persons desiring to do so may be heard on appeal by the board, either orally or in writing. Written communications should be addressed to the board of engineers for rivers and harbors, Southern building, Washington, D. C., and should be mailed in time to be in the possession of the said board within four weeks from the date of this communication. If oral hearings are desired, dates for the same may be arranged for by correspondence with the board.

"Further information may be obtained, if desired, upon application to this office. E. D. PEEK,

"Captain, Corps of Engineers."

NEW MUTUAL TRANSIT SERVICE TO START

The first boat of the Mutual Transit company to open the new package freight line between Fort William, Port Arthur and Fort Worth will leave here Saturday for Fort William, where the boat will take on a cargo of flour for Buffalo. It is probable that the boat will be the Northern Queen and she will be one of the regular boats to operate between these points. The other boats of the Mutual Transit company's lines to operate between these points has not been named as yet.

The boat will arrive in Buffalo about Monday morning and will be considered as opening the relation between Canada and America along package freight lines, this being in reality the first line to operate between these points. The company has received a great many orders from shippers, who are elated over this new line and indications are for a most successful season.

INCREASE IN TRAFFIC THROUGH SOO CANALS

The annual statistical report on lake commerce passing through the canals at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Ontario during the season of 1912 has just been issued by Lieut.-Col. Mason M. Patrick of the United States army corps of engineers. The total freight traffic through both the American and Canadian canals of 72,472,6776 short tons for theseason of 1912, shows an increase of 36 per cent over the previtons for the season of 1912, shows an increase except coal, salt, copper and building stone. The season of navigation continued for a period of seven months and twenty-six days. The traffic through the American canal was 45 per cent of the total freight and 55 per cent of the total net registered tonnage, while the traffic through the Canadian canal was 55 per cent of the total freight and 45 per cent of the registered tonnage.

DISABLED STEAMER IS TOWED AWAY

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Sierra which arrived here disabled yesterday, departed early this morning in tow of the William Livingstone of the Tomlinson fleet. She will be assisted through the river by a tug. The Sierra's trouble is in her wheel refusing to turn with the shaft. She will have to be docked when unloaded.

REFUSED TO GIVE SIXTY-YEAR LEASE.

Detroit, Mich., May 15.—Unwillingness on the part of Mayor Baker of Cleveland to have that city make a contract leasing terminal rights at the foot of East Ninth street for sixty years to the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation company of Detroit, and the Cleveland & Buffalo Transit company of Cleveland will have the effect of reducing the amount which the steamship companies will spend in constructing their boat landing and passenger and freight depot.

In the original plans, when the steamship lines opened negotiations seven or eight years ago, a lease of the terminal rights for forty years was contemplated and the boat lines planned an expenditure of about $200,000 on the terminal.

Subsequently new plans were decided on, which would involve expenditure of about $450,000 on the terminal buildings and in view of this large expenditure, the city of Cleveland was asked to make the lease cover a period of sixty years. The objection raised by Mayor Baker has resulted in a reversion to the original plans. The ordinance which provides for leasing the terminal to the boat lines for forty years was placed on its second reading in the Cleveland city council Monday night.

Under the terms of the agreement, which is pending in the Cleveland council, the buildings to be erected by the steamship companies will revert to the city at the termination of the lease.

The boat lines are to pay about $55,000 to meet the cost of extending East Ninth street to the pier on which their terminal buildings are to be erected and for the construction of a bridge over the railroad tracks, which extend along the lake front at the foot of the street.

WANT WRECK OF RICHARDSON REMOVED.

Washington, May 15.—Asking that the hulk of the old steamer W. C. Richardson be removed immediately from the vicinity of Buffalo harbor, Representative R. J. Buckley of Ohio went to the department of commerce Tuesday.

Vessel men have reported that the hulk lies on the bottom in the course between Cleveland, Detroit and Buffalo harbor and unless it is removed a disastrous wreck is apt to occur.

Two vessels already have struck the wreck and carried away most of the upper part. In stormy weather the hulk is invisible and pilots of the D. & C. and C. & B. boats are compelled to exercise the greatest care to avoid it.

NO LABOR TROUBLE AT ALLOUEZ DOCKS

There is nothing to the report that the 400 dock laborers at the Allouez ore docks are to be given a raise in wages, according to Supt. James C Morrell.

A report has been in circulation the past twenty-four hours that the Great Northern officials have agreed to make the advance demanded by the men in order that they should not strike. The men, according to the report, were to be advanced 25 cents a day.

Mr. Morrell stated this morning that he had heard nothing about a raise and that the men have not even requested an increase in salary. There is no trouble at the docks, he said, and everything is running along smoothly.

Marigold Leaves.

The United States lighthouse tender, Marigold, will leave for Detroit this evening. She has been in local waters for several days. Capt. Fred Bernier is in command of the vessel.

Tug Captain Drowned.

Oswego, N. Y., May 15.—Capt. William J. Scott, 59, of this city, one of the best known tug managers on the Great Lakes, was drowned in Lake Ontario yesterday when he fell from the deck of the tug Tonawanda, of which he was the owner. His body has not been recovered.

Steamer Scorched.

Toronto, Ont., May 15.—The steamer Corona of the Toronto-Lewiston division of the Richelieu line was damaged to the extent of $1,000 or more by a fire which originated in her stoke hold at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The Corona's machinery is damaged to some extent by heat and water, and it was impossible to determine at the time how long it will take to put her in commission again.

Ore Rates Advanced.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 15.—A shipper, who some time ago took option on vessel capacity to move about 100,000 tons of ore during the season at Marquette at 5 cents over the contract rate, yesterday covered 50,000 tons at an advance.

The option for capacity to move another big block of ore was extended to June. This is the earliest advance paid in ore carrying charges for several years.

ALONG THE LAKES

W. T. Miller, second mate of the steamer Buffington, died Tuesday morning at Ashtabula following an operation. He was operated upon a week ago for appendicitis and was too weak to stand the shock of the second operation. His wife was at the hospital when he died. He is survived by a widow and three children who live in Marine City, where the body will be taken for burial. Miller was a member of the Licensed Officers' Mutual Benefit association of the Pittsburg Steamship company.

Conneaut, May 15.—The steamer James Farrell came in Tuesday morning for the first time, bringing the largest cargo that has arrived this season. The Farrell had 11,300 tons of ore.

The Corrigan-McKinney company Tuesday withdrew its application for permission to span the upper Cuyahoga river with a bridge. A new application has been filed. Capt. C. E. Benham opposed the proposition for the chamber of industry. A new plan of procedure will be followed with the second application.

The steamer Elba was docked at Toledo for an old damage Tuesday.

United States inspectors of steam vessels worked Tuesday on the steamer See and Best at the Orleans street yard of the Detroit Shipbuilding company and on the steamer North American at the Ecorse yard of the Great Lakes Engineering works.

The steamer City of Ottawa of the R. & O. line made her first arrival of the season at John Stevenson's dock Tuesday. The City of Ottawa and City of Hamilton will be operated between Montreal and Detroit during the season.

MUST GIVE RIGHT NAMES

Prisoners Will No Longer Be Allowed to Conceal Identity.

Giving "phony" names when taken to the police station under arrest will no longer pass.

Commissioner Hicken stated today that in the future the police will exercise care to see that correct names are entered on the blotter.

Not that the police have condoned the giving of wrong monakers in the past, but some have been "put over" through lack of investigation. The policemen cannot know the names of all people taken into custody, and are obliged to take the names which are given them. But henceforth, before any one is released on bail, steps will be taken to check them up. It will be up to the prisoner to show some credentials or give some reference which will satisfy the officers that he, or she, is the person whose name is given.

In the past some of Duluth's well-known citizens have been greatly embarrassed by persons giving their names, intentionally or otherwise. It is not uncommon that two or more people have the same names, but in some cases it is thought that the other man's name has willfully been given, when the names have not been alike or anywhere near alike. This has been particularly true where crowds have been caught in raids, it is claimed. But that program is to be tabooed in the future, and any one who is caught trying it will find that he will be compelled to stay in the bull pen over night, as the privilege of being released on bail will be refused.

BIG MEETING ON VICE SUPPRESSION

Clifford G. Roe Will Speak at M. E. Church Monday Night.

The mass meeting next Monday evening at which Clifford G. Roe will speak and the committee appointed to consider the organization of a branch of the American Vigilance society in Duluth will report will be held at the First M. E. church, Third avenue west and Third street.

The committee is expected to recommend the organization of a society and the first steps will probably be taken at the meeting Monday evening. The new vice suppression law passed at the recent session of the legislature gives the opponents of vice an effective weapon for the wiping out of the segregated district and the law will undoubtedly be invoked by the society as one of its first steps.

The committee to report consists of Dr. F. C. Bowman, Rev. J. A. McGaughey, Bert N. Wheeler, W. L. Smithies, Mrs. Agnes L. Atwood, Dr. Mary McCoy and Mrs. A. A. Kerr.

The American Vigilance society is one of several organizations which are banded together for the war on the white slave traffic. Mr. Roe is head of the society and one of the most effective speakers against vice in the country. The members of the local committee believe the church will be crowded for the meeting Monday evening and that a long step will be taken toward the suppression of vice in Duluth.

Mr. Roe will also address a meeting of women at the Y. W. C. A. Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

GREAT INCREASE IN POULTRY FLOCKS

Hen Census Shows 40 Per Cent Increase in Six Counties.

N. E. Chapman, head of the poultry extension department of the state agricultural school, stated today that the poultry census of Minnesota, in as far as he has gone at the present time, which is about six counties, shows an increase of about 40 per cent over the figures of 1910. Mr. Chapman is confident that the census of the northern part of the state will show an even greater increase.

The weighing of eggs in Minnesota, from the figures taken from some recent tests, shows that Minnesota eggs are far ahead of the eggs of some of the Southern states.

For instance many of the cases of eggs here weigh 52 pounds net, which means without the case or fillers. This is against the average weight of 36 pounds for the eggs of the Southern states.

The progress of the poultry census has also shown a very high quality of the eggs of this state.

"We are getting fowls here all the time," said Mr. Chapman. "The raisers of chickens are coming to the conclusion that it pays to get the best. We are preaching the gospel of better eggs, for this eventually will raise the Minnesota market price and will cause the eggs of this state to be in greater demand."

GERMAN AVIATORS MUST STAY HOME.

Berlin, May 15.—German military aviators in the future will be punished by a minimum penalty of two weeks close arrest should they cross a foreign frontier in their aeroplanes or airships. The war office has issued an order to this effect, declaring it is necessitated by repeated instances in which the frontiers had been crossed with resultant misunderstanding.

METHODISTS TO OPEN UNIVERSITY.

Washington, May 15.—The American university planned years ago by Methodist Episcopal educators, and which is provided with beautiful buildings and grounds in the outskirts of this city, will be opened formally on June 4.

The opening has been delayed because until recently the trustees were without a sufficient income to warrant them in undertaking to operate the institution. A considerable bequest by the late president of the board, Dr. David H. Carroll of Baltimore, made the college for graduate study possible.

DENIES POACHING.

Captain of American Vessel Complains of Canadians.

Seattle, Wash., May 15.—Capt. John C. Courage, owner and master of the American halibut fishing schooner Valiant of Seattle, which was seized by the Canadian fisheries patrol steamer, is preparing to make a vigorous fight against the confiscation of his vessel and its cargo of 8,000 pounds of halibut. Capt. Courage said the Valiant was more than eight miles from shore when seized by the Joliffe and had done no fishing for fifteen hours before the seizure.

American fishermen have complained frequently that the Canadian patrol has interfered with their fishing when they were outside the three-mile limit.

RUSSELL HEADS UNITED CHURCHES.

Atlanta, Ga., May 15.—Dr. Robert M. Russell of Westminister college, New Wilmington, Pa., was unanimously elected moderator of the United Presbyterian assembly in session here. Dr. Russell succeeds Dr. Hugh H. Bell of San Francisco. The name of Dr. Russell was placed before the assembly by Dr. C. D. Proudfoot of Des Moines, Iowa. No other nominations were made and Dr. Russell was declared elected.

The assemblies of the Northern and Southern churches organized this morning for sessions which will last ten days. The Northern Presbyterians will elect a moderator to succeed Rev. Dr. Mark A. Matthews of Seattle and the Southern Presbyterians a moderator to succeed Rev. Dr. Thomas S. Clyce of Sherman, Tex. Their first joint session will be held tonight.

ARE YOU INTERESTED

IN

CANADIAN LANDS?

If so, please bear in mind that Canada is 3,000 miles wide and in some respects much larger than the United States. It is of the utmost importance to you whether or not you buy land and settle in the right location. Among the half million people who are going to Canada in the year 1913, thousands will make the mistake of their lives in locating where conditions are unfavorable.

IT WILL COST YOU

to inquire of the undersigned where good lands, markets, much more favorable and warmer climate than here, prices, and rainfall exist.

Literature, guaranteed field notes of land, information about new towns, business opportunities, the effect for and against on the different sections by the PANAMA CANAL—all yours for the asking.

BRYAN AND MEMBERS OF CABINET DISCUSS THE REPLY TO JAPAN

Text of Japanese Protest on Land Laws May Be Published.

President Wilson Has No Doubt as to Outcome of Trouble.

Movements of Army and Navy Were Planned Long Ago.

Washington, May 16. — Secretary Bryan returned from New York early today and was at his desk long before the cabinet meeting at which he was to present the reply of the United States to Japan's protest against the California land legislation.

It is probable that steps will be taken to publish the text of the Japanese protest, though it may be deferred until the answer of the United States has been delivered.

Although frequent inquiries from the Japanese ambassador indicate a disposition to press the negotiations, probably in recognition of the state of public mind in Japan, diplomatic practice warrants an allowance of at least several days for the delivery of the state department's answer.

President Wilson's announcement that there are to be no movements of troops or ships that could be connected with the situation is expected by official circles to be construed as evidence of his conviction that the issue can and will be adjusted diplomatically.

Work Already Planned.

So far the order has not interfered with the plan to send some coast artillery troops from San Francisco to reinforce the garrison in Hawaii. But as the movement is in execution of comprehensive plans for permanent garrisons on the insular possessions and in the canal zone, outlined by the general staff last fall and approved by Former President Taft and Former Secretary Stimson before there was any suggestion of friction with Japan, it is believed that its execution will not be a violation of the president's instructions of yesterday.

The administration has been endeavoring to discourage "war scares" by every possible means, as was evidenced by executive disapproval of an order last week for the immediate dispatch from Newport to Norfolk of the submarine flotilla.

DANIELS GOES TO VISIT BIRTHPLACE

Secretary of the Navy to Spend Birthday at Washington, N. C.

Washington, May 16.—When Secretary Daniels leaves the navy department tonight he will do so to prepare for a trip from Washington, D. C., to Washington, N. C., the latter being his birth place and Sunday being the fifty-first anniversary of his arrival there. Accompanied by Mrs. Daniels, the secretary will leave tomorrow and will spend a few days on the spot where he was born. The old Daniels residence long ago was removed, but he will be the guest of the owners of the new house that now occupies the site.

INVENTS BREAD THAT WEATHER CAN'T HURT

Commissary Officer of the Army Abandons French Sour Baked Stuff.

Washington, May 16.—Sour bread, baked after the French army fashion, finally has been given up by the United States military establishment. After numerous experiments, Commissary General H. G. Sharpe has developed a new bread that is impervious to the weather, sweeter than the old loaves and easier to transport. Following is the recipe:

"To one hundred pounds of sifted flour add fifty-two pounds of water, one and a half pounds of dried yeast, three pounds of sugar and one and a quarter pounds of salt."

The mixture is cooked in a slow oven and the loaves are baked flat.

ASK MRS. WILSON TO AID BLIND BABES

Sunshine Society Wants Her to Design Coin for Sale.

New York, May 16.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the president, has been asked by the International Sunshine society which is holding its fifteenth annual convention here to design a special coin, the proceeds from the sale of which should go to help support and educate all the blind babies of the United States. The idea originated with Queen Alexandra and her sister, Empress Marie, who designed a "baby coin" for children in Denmark. The bit of copper, which is worth intrinsically one half a cent, is coined at the royal mint.

Delegates from nearly every state in the Union are present at the convention. The report of Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden, president of the society, points out that seven states have passed laws providing for the care and education of the baby blind. These are Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, North and South Dakota, Arizona and Rhode Island.

NEW TRIAL GRANTED NEW YORK EX-OFFICIAL

CHARLES H. HYDE.

New York, May 16.—The appellate division of the state supreme court today reversed the conviction in the supreme court of Charles H. Hyde, former city chamberlain, and ordered a new trial. Hyde was found guilty of bribery in connection with the deposit of city funds in the defunct Northern bank and the Carnegie Trust company. Hyde has been out on bail pending the outcome of his appeal.

CALLS HUERTA A MURDERER

Heriberto Barron Asks Impeachment of the President.

Charges Are Read in Mexican Chamber of Deputies.

Mexico City, May 16.—Formal charges of conspiracy and assassination against Victoriona Huerta, provisional president, have been made by Heriberto Barron, former political agent of the Madero government in the United States. Barron is now in New York city. The charges were read at an executive session of the chamber of deputies. Barron asks for the impeachment of the president.

The charges were referred to a committee, and it is expected they will be reported to the house.

Manuel Calero, former Mexican ambassador at Washington, had a long conference yesterday with President Huerta. It is reported he notified Gen. Huerta of his intention to stand as a candidate for the presidency.

No More Freight.

The National Railway company has notified shippers that it will receive no more freight for transportation. Scarcity of fuel and oil makes the operation of trains difficult, and the activity of the rebels renders the arrival of shipments at their destinations uncertain.

DEAR, DEAR! HERE IS A TAILLESS COMET!

Astronomers Hope It Will Be Able to Grow One in Time.

Cambridge, Mass., May 16.—Schaumasse comet, the latest visitor from the interstellar regions, is rather disappointing to the ordinary star gazer, according to a report of observations received at the Harvard observatory today.

Prof. Barnard of Yerkes observatory and of the University of Chicago, at Lake Geneva, Wis., has been unable to find any semblance of the usual fiery appendage, commonly known as a tail, while the comet's illuminating powers have reached only the tenth magnitude. Astronomers hope that the comet's brilliancy will increase.

FARMER DIDN'T KNOW GUN WASN'T LOADED

Threatens to Shoot Up St. Paul, But His Wife Stops Him.

St. Paul, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gust Conrad, a farmer, gave a crowd of one hundred citizens here a scare late yesterday when he drew a gun from his pocket and threatened to "shoot up the town." Patrolman John Farmer had drawn his gun and was about to engage in a duel with Conrad, when the latter's wife hurried through the crowd and seized her husband's arms. At the station the gun was found not to be loaded. Conrad was charged with intoxication and carrying concealed weapons.

I. W. W. MAKES EFFORT TO TIE UP BUSINESS AT PATERSON, N. J.

Quinlan, Haywood and Lessig Address Meeting of 10,000 There.

Haywood Predicts Demand for Six-Hour Work Days.

Paterson, N. J., May 16.—All power plants in the city are under guard today in view of threats of a general strike by speakers yesterday at the great meeting of striking silk mill workers, called to protest against the conviction of Patrick Quinlan, Industrial Workers of the World leader, found guilty of inciting riot. His fellow leaders, among them "Big Bill" Haywood, are yet to be tried on a similar charge. The maximum penalty is seven years in prison.

Ten thousand strikers and sympathizers attended the protest meeting and cheering madly when Adolph Lessig, one of those indicted, advised them to "tie up every garage and street car line in the city and put out all the lights for a couple of nights."

"Railroaded by Perjuring Police."

Quinlan spoke of his conviction and predicted that Haywood, Lessig, Carlo Treska and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn would also be "railroaded by perjuring police." He advised a boycott of all merchants who advertised in newspapers which did not favor the Industrial Workers of the World.

Haywood spoke of the possibility of his conviction, and added that there were others ready to take his place if he went to prison.

"We are out for the eight hour workday," he shouted, "and we are going to get it and no court in New Jersey can declare our law unconstitutional. Yes, I tell you we are going to get eight hours this year, and next year we will strike and demand six hours as a work day, and we will get it too."

MANY AT WORK ON CURRENCY BILLS

President Is Getting Help From Non-Members of Congress.

Washington, May 16.—President Wilson let it be known today that various persons have suggested plans for currency reform to him, and that some friends other than members of congress are at work on tentative bills. Mr. Wilson did not reveal the identity of the outsiders, but it is believed that Prof. Royal Meeker of Princeton university, who holds a chair in political economy, is among the number.

Representative Glass had received drafts of many bills of currency advocates, among them Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin of the University of Chicago. The indications are that the ideas advanced by persons outside of congress will be turned over by President Wilson to the heads of the senate and house banking committees for use in connection with the bills they are drafting.

COMPENSATION LAW NOT FOR BALL PLAYERS

Statute Applies to Other Employes of President Navin.

Detroit, Mich., May 16.—Stories sent from Lansing to the effect that Ty Cobb and other members of the Detroit baseball club, had been placed under the operations of the state workmen's compensation law were based upon misconception of President Navin's object in applying for protection under the act.

According to the terms of the capital, Cobb would be limited to $10 weekly compensation in case of injury, instead of receiving his regular salary of about $500 per week.

As a matter of fact, none of the ball players will be affected by the compensation law. It will cover only the employes of the baseball plant, who number about 75.

NEVER OFF FARM IN 97 YEARS.

Uniontown, Pa., May 16.—Louis Eberhart, aged 97, who died at Monongahela township, Greene county, Pa., Wednesday, spent his life, according to relatives, on his farm. He was never on a train, street car or steamboat, although he lived a mile and a half from the Monongahela river and the same distance from the Monongahela railroad. A log house was his home the greater part of his life.

SUFFRAGETTE BOMBS FOUND

Public Library, Letter Box and Church Contain Infernal Machines.

Women Win Victory By Being Allowed to Publish Papers.

London, May 16.—The militant suffragettes' campaign of placing bombs in public institutions to coerce the government into granting the parliamentary franchise to women was carried on in several quarters of London and the provinces today.

A workmanlike canister of explosives with a clock attachment was found in the Rotherhithe public library in Southeast London this morning. It was labelled "votes for women." According to belief in some quarters, it was placed there by a man. Indeed, the police suspect many men have been engaged by the militants for this work.

Another machine was found today in the letterbox of the Wandsworth district postoffice in Southwest London. It consisted of a glass tube containing fluid. A partly burned fuse was attached to one end. The police declare the bomb apparently was set there by militants.

Still another canister of explosives with a partially burned fuse was found today in Holy Trinity church at Hastings, a popular watering place on the South coast, where the militants have been most active during the week.

Miss Emerson Under Knife.

Miss Zelie Emerson, the militant suffragette of Jackson, Mich., was operated on today for appendicitis, which is said to have developed owing to the privation she underwent while she was carrying out a "hunger strike" in Holloway jail. She was released on April 8, on account of her weakened condition, and some time afterwards was taken to a private hospital in the

NEW ORDER WILL HIT JUNIOR NAVY OFFICERS

Secretary Daniels Will Frown on Retirements From Service.

Washington, May 16.—Young officers in the navy are discussing with mixed emotions the announcement by Secretary Daniels that hereafter the department will frown upon the retirement of juniors from the service. In the past young officers retiring have done so with a rank higher than the grade they occupied. This is to be stopped.

The statement that caused the flurry follows:

"While the secretary of the navy has not issued any general orders restricting the applications for voluntary retirement under the personnel act of 1899, yet it is known that his attitude and the probable attitude of the administration is in opposition to allowing the retirement of the younger officers who are in good health and have a number of years of useful service on the active list before them."

Secretary Daniels, it is well known, looks with extreme disfavor on the retirement of young officers before they have made, through service, some returns for the education and training received at the hands of the government. Under the new "plucking" system by which senior officers will be retired much more rapidly than in the past, the junior officers will have less complaint on account of slowness of promotion.

SENATOR OLLIE JAMES SPEAKS FOR WILSON IN FREE SUGAR DEFENSE

Kentuckian Interprets Baltimore Platform on Floor of Senate.

Answers Louisiana Men Who Opposed Proposed Schedule.

Secretary Tumulty Hears Speech From the Gallery.

Washington, May 16.—Senator Ollie James, accredited with speaking for President Wilson and the administration, interpreted the Baltimore platform in a speech in the senate today as committing the president and the Democratic party to free sugar. His remarks were in reply to declarations by Senator Ransdell and Senator-elect Broussard of Louisiana that it did not.

In the gallery, listening closely, was Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the president, who went to the capitol to hear the reply to the anti-free sugar Democrats who for two days have been assailing the sugar schedule, which President Wilson has declared will not be compromised if he can help it.

Read Campaign Text-book.

Senator James declared that the platform adopted at the Baltimore convention approved the course of the Democratic house in the last session of congress, and that it included approval of the Underwood free sugar bill. He read a paragraph from the Democratic campaign text-book approving "the excellent record of the house," in placing sugar on the free list.

Senator Ransdell asked if President Wilson had not declared in a speech

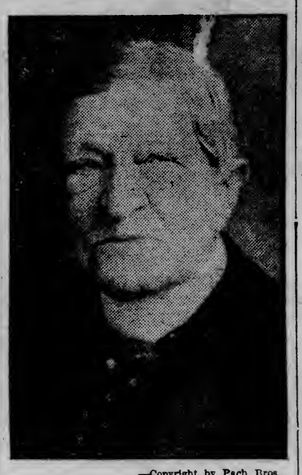
FORMER VICE PRESIDENT EIGHTY-NINE YEARS OLD



—Copyright by Pach Bros.

LEVI P. MORTON.

New York, May 16.—Levi P. Morton, vice president of the United States from 1889 to 1893 and governor of New York state in 1895 and 1896, who has been so gravely ill during the last two months that his life was often despaired of, celebrated his 89th birthday today in better condition than he had been for some time. He is able to leave his room occasionally, but spends most of his day reclining on a couch near a window of his Fifth avenue home.

LYNCH MEETS PARTY CHIEFS

Democratic National Committee Executives at Washington.

Campaign Plans for 1914 and 1916 Are Discussed.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, May 16.—Fred B. Lynch, national Democratic committeeman for Minnesota, reached Washington today to attend a two-day meeting of the executive committee of the Democratic national committee. It is expected that at this meeting the organization of the publicity bureau decided upon by President Wilson and the Democratic leaders will be organized, and that the country will soon be informed about Democratic policies and Democratic legislation through the medium of this bureau.

Mr. Lynch does not expect to take up Minnesota patronage matter on this visit, although he will not sidestep if anyone wants to discuss appointments.

Talked Over Campaigns.

Plans for drawing the political battle lines of 1914 and 1916 were talked over today at conferences of the executive committee of the Democratic national committee.

The program included a conference over what the national committee should do to make the party successful in the state and congressional elections two years hence, with a look ahead to the next national election; a meeting with officers of the Democratic congressional committee regarding a greater representation of senators on that body, and a conference with President Wilson.

The committee, which met at its permanent offices, is composed of Committeemen Palmer of Pennsylvania, Clark Howell of Georgia, Cato Sells of Texas, Homer Cummings of Connecticut, and Fred Lynch of Minnesota.

"Concentration, anticipation, amalgamation, confederation, harmonization" of methods is the way one member of the executive committee epitomized the plans of the conference.

THE DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at 11 a. m. and resumed debate on motion to refer tariff bill to finance committee with instructions for public hearings.

Kern resolution for investigation of West Virginia coal mine strike debated.

Postoffice committee postponed until Monday public hearing on Mrs. Helen D. Longstreet's displacement as postmaster of Gainesville, Ga.

Chief Forester Graves testified before territories committee regarding Chugach national forest.

Indian affairs committee agreed to amendment of Indian appropriation bill so as to provide for congressional investigation of well-being of Indians and betterment of Indian service.

Senator Norris denounced international bankers who furnished money for Brazilian coffee valorization scheme.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and took up conference report on sundry civil bill.

Representative Smith of New York introduced a bill to print all records of all committee proceedings in Congressional Record.

Refused to recede from its stand on sundry civil bill and sent it back for further conference.

Adjourned at 1:05 p. m. until noon Tuesday.

WANTS COMMITTEE DOINGS PUBLISHED

Smith of New York Introduces Resolution in National House.

Washington, May 16.—Public record of all proceedings of the various committees of the house was proposed in a resolution introduced today by Representative Smith of New York. Standing committees would be required to keep an accurate record of all proceedings, to be published in the Congressional Record. The resolution was referred to the rules committee.

Representative Smith said the resolution would prevent the pigeon-holing of meritorious bills in secret committee sessions.

WILSON FOR CIVIL SERVICE CONSULS

Few Changes Are to Be Made in Important Posts.

Washington, May 16.—While President Wilson has not yet begun consideration of changes in the consular service, his present inclination is to put the consular representatives of the government under the civil service. This became known at the White House today.

It was said that while there might be changes in the personnel of consul generals at the more important posts, these would extend only to such places as might have been filled with political favorites heretofore, and not by promotion from the consular service itself.

PHILADELPHIA WILL PROVIDE FOR WOMEN

Vice Quarantine to Be Followed By Work of Philanthropy.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 16.—Women driven from haunts in the Tenderloin by the vice quarantine now in force in this city will be cared for by the municipality and private citizens, according to an announcement made by Mayor Blankenburg. An estate in the suburbs, with accommodations for ninety women, will be devoted to that purpose by the department of health and charity, and two houses in the center of the city have been rented by private subscriptions.

MAN OUT OF JOB GETS UNEXPECTED $30,000

Calls at Postoffice With Only 45 Cents and Comes Away Rich.

Chicago, May 16.—Out of a job and with just 45 cents in his pocket James Walters inquired at the general delivery window at the postoffice yesterday if there was any mail for him. To his surprise he was handed a letter, which, upon opening informed him that his uncle had died and left him an estate worth about $30,000.

The letter was from his aunt, Mrs. P. G. Petty of Knoxville, Tenn., and was the first word Walters had received from relatives since he ran away from his home at Nashville thirteen years ago.

WILL HEAR CONTESTS

May 24 Is Date Set for Hearing the Election Cases.

The contests growing out of the municipal election April 1 will come before the district court for hearing on Saturday, May 24, according to the present plans of the attorneys.

The date has been tentatively set for the hearing of the contest of Bert Farrell against Commissioners Hicken and Murchison, as well as the contests brought by W. E. McEwen, Bernard Silberstein and Marcus L. Fay against Mayor W. I. Prince.

Since the conclusions of the recount of the vote for both offices, the attorneys have been busy checking over the disputed ballots and framing their arguments. They are now about ready to proceed and it is expected the cases will all be submitted on the one day.

The contesting candidates for mayor base their hopes of election on the disputed ballots to be counted in accordance with the charter provisions.

Mr. Farrell in his contest will test the constitutionality of the charter provision requiring four first choice votes for commissioners to validate the ballots.

NORMANNA CHORUS DENIES INSURGENCY

Members of the Normanna Male chorus declare that the published statement by Ivar Hestdahl, president of the United Seventeenth of May committee, is unfair to them. They say that the festival to be held at the Central high school Sunday afternoon in celebration of Norwegian Independence day was not arranged in opposition to the united celebration, and that they do not consider that there is any cause for complaint on the part of the committee of which Mr. Hestdahl is the head.

George Thrana, president of the Normanna Male chorus, says that the statements made by Mr. Hestdahl do not properly explain the situation.

"The history of our decision to give a concert May 17 dates back several months," said Mr. Thrana. "The Mindegave committee, of which Dr. H. Hovde is chairman, formed to aid in raising the $1,000,000 to be presented to needy Norwegians, May 17, 1914, as a gift from their countrymen in the United States, at first decided to give a concert in April. They then talked of May 17, but it was finally agreed to give this date to the Normanna Male chorus, the Mindegave committee to take July 4 and hold a monster celebration.

"We are attempting to raise a fund sufficient to send about twenty-five members of our chorus to the 1914 celebration in Norway, to take part in a monster chorus made up of about 500 voices.

"We were well along with our plans, when a committee, which sprang up without the bidding of the Mindegave committee, decided to celebrate, the receipts to be turned over to the million-dollar fund. This committee attempted to hire us, but we informed them we already had planned for a celebration.

"We have attempted nothing unfair, and are only standing on our rights, and Mr. Hestdahl's statement to the effect that we are raising this fund for our own special benefit is manifestly untrue. Every man who attends the 1914 celebration will be out money. We will only attempt to defray their traveling expenses.

"The joint committee only represents nine or ten of the eighteen Norwegian organizations in Duluth. The Mindegave sent delegates to their first meeting—Dr. Hovde, L. A. Simonson and John J. Moe. They stated it had previously agreed we were to have May 17. Despite this, we are termed insurgents."

MANAHAN EXPLAINS.

Congressman-at-Large Tells Why He Opposed Underwood Bill.

St. Paul, Minn., May 16—James Manahan, congressman-at-large from Minnesota, whose vote against the Underwood tariff bill has been criticized as being inconsistent with his campaign speeches in favor of lower duties, declared on his return from Washington that he may vote for the bill when it comes back from the senate.

"My vote," he said, "like that of many other progressive Republicans, was largely a protest against certain unfair features of the bill, and if these are amended in the senate, we may vote for the bill when it comes back.

"There are many reductions in the bill that I should have been glad to vote for, had I had a chance to vote on them separately; but the bill as a whole is a bill for the benefit of the Solid South and the big seaport cities, and for the development of the cotton country.

"Many of the reductions are at the expense of the Northwest. The 10-cent duty on wheat, coupled with the free flour item, will leave no protection for the farmers, but will hurt the Northwestern millers severely. Potatoes are admitted free, which will hit the farmers in the potato country north of St. Paul."

Congressman I. N. Lenroot of Superior, in an interview at Madison Wednesday night, gave a similar defense of his vote against the Underwood bill.

"There were many schedules I should have been glad to vote for had I had the opportunity," he said, "but we were compelled to vote for the whole bill at once with the income tax attached to it. The bill makes gross discriminations in favor of certain sections and certain industries."

FARMERS ARE ORGANIZING

Club in Almost Every Community of St. Louis County.

Federation of All the Clubs Is Now End in View.

Almost every farming community in St. Louis county is organizing a farmers' club, according to Fred Ward, county agricultural agent. Mr. Ward has spent a large part of his time since he took up the agricultural work in St. Louis county in promoting the organization of farmers' clubs, and his work has been productive.

"I expect to see every community of farmers organized within a short time," said Mr. Ward this morning. "They are showing keen interest and a commendable appreciation of the value of organization. I am not attempting to take any active part in the organization of clubs. I merely urge the farmers to organize and leave the active steps to them.

"For a definite end we have in view a federation of farmers' clubs that will give every club the assurance that it has all the other clubs of the county behind it. The federation could hold its annual meeting at the county fair at Hibbing, when representatives of all clubs will be in attendance, and committees could then be appointed to attend to specified duties.

"The county fair will this year offer premiums for community exhibits and farmers' club exhibits, and the clubs will thus have an incentive to take cooperative action in arranging for displays. The farmers' club can exercise a great influence in the community. Through it all the farmers of a district may be reached, and correspondingly all the farmers may urge through the club any matters of importance to them. I hope to see them all organized, and a strong, compact and efficient central organization perfected."

"SPOOK TRUST" WAYS SHOWN GRAND JURORS

'Contagion Letters' Among Methods Used to Keep Off Trouble.

Chicago, May 16.—"Contagion letters" used by clairvoyants in keeping their victims away from the offices where they had been fleeced were shown to the Cook county grand jury yesterday. They form part of the evidence the state's attorney has gathered for his prosecution of the "spook trust."

The letters purported to be written by the secretary of the "professor" and informed the recipients that the "professor" had just contracted a contagious disease.

They stated that as the "professor" was solicitous for the welfare of his "clients," and did not wish them to be exposed to the disease by a visit to the "studio," is was suggested that they remain away until notice was received that he had recovered.

Persons who had given the clairvoyants from $250 to $1,250, after waiting a reasonable time, started out to call on the clairvoyant and found that he had moved several weeks previously.

WANT STATE FAIR AT VAN DYNE, WIS.

Fox River Valley Cities Entertain Committee of Legislators.

Fond du Lac, Wis., May 16.—The state fair legislative committee investigating sites for the state fair was entertained by the cities of the Fox River valley today, and was offered a site at Van Dyne on the west shore of Lake Winnebago, half way between Fond du Lac and Oshkosh.

It was pointed out that the transportation facilities here were the best in the state; that 500,000 people could be brought to the fair every morning and returned to their homes every night.

It also was shown that the site was the center of a circle with a radius of seventy-five miles which contained more than half the population of Wisconsin.

WILL SAIL JULY 3 TO SEEK CROCKER LAND

Dr. McMillan May Spend Four Years in the Arctic.

New York, May 16.—After many setbacks, the Crocker Land expedition has completed arrangements for departure from this city on July 3, under command of Dr. Donald B. McMillan, in the ship Diana.

Crocker Land is supposedly a large island or continent which was seen from a distance by Rear Admiral Peary in 1906. Dr. McMillan hopes to learn definitely whether Crocker Land is really an Arctic continent, an island or an illusion. The principal members of his party, according to information made public today, will be Maurice C. Tanquary, zoologist of the state agricultural college at Manhattan, Kan.; W. Elmer Ekblow, botanist and zoologist, and Ensign Fitzhugh Green, U. S. N., physicist and engineer.

Carrying a crew of twenty-eight in addition to the scientific members of the expedition, the Diana will sail for Greenland to obtain Eskimo dog teams and supplies and probably will spend three or four years in the Arctic.

A large wireless plant which will be furnished by the United States government, will be set up for communication to Cape Wolstenholme, in Hudson Bay, 1,600 miles away, where the Canadian government is completing a wireless station and will relay all messages.

Secretary McAdoo Permits Banks to Further Expand Circulation.

Washington, May 16.—The expansion of national bank note circulation to meet debts for currency in time of financial stress will be made possible through an order issued by Secretary McAdoo of the treasury. In a statement the secretary said he had authorized national banks to withdraw United States 2 per cent bonds which they have placed with the treasury as security for government deposits, and substitute Philippine, Porto Rico, Hawaiian or District of Columbia bonds, provided the United States 2's so withdrawn shall be used as security for additional circulation by banks which have not as yet taken out the full amount of circulation authorized by law. This will be the first time the treasury department has permitted exchanges in the character of securities for Federal deposits.

HARRY THAW TESTIFIES

Says Proposal to Get Him Out Came From Dr. Russell.

Declares He Has Spent $65,000 to Secure His Freedom.

New York, May 16.—Dr. John W. Russell, former superintendent of the Matteawan state hospital for the criminal insane, first made the suggestion to Harry K. Thaw that he could be released by the payment of a large sum, Thaw testified at the bribery trial of John N. Anhut here. Anhut, a young attorney, is charged with offering Dr. Russell a bribe of $20,000 for an order or certificate which would result in freeing Thaw from further confinement in the asylum.

Thaw was brought from Matteawan to testify. He was subjected to a rigid examination and cross-questioning. Objections of counsel for the defense that Thaw is legally insane, and was not competent to testify, were overruled by the court, who, however, held that his testimony must be considered as that of an insane person.

Thaw told of several visits paid to him by Anhut at Matteawan in 1912, when he declared Anhut "said he would get me discharged."

"I asked if Dr. Russell had settled on something definite," said Thaw, "and he (Anhut) said he had, and I said the money was much more than I expected to pay; that I was not in a position where I could pay it."

Has Spent $65,000.

Under cross-examination Thaw said that in all he had spent $65,000 and no more, in efforts to secure his release from Matteawan. This sum, he said, was exclusive of the expenses of his two trials for the killing of Stanford White.

"I was pretty well swindled on my two trials here," Thaw declared. "The costs were something tremendous."

Thaw declared that his agreement with Anhut called for the return of all or part of the $25,000 if he did not walk out of the door of the asylum or was not released by the court. He said Anhut paid him back $14,700 of the $25,000 Jan. 1 last, when the plan had failed.

During cross-examination Thaw said his name was "Henry."

"Are you the Henry K. Thaw who shot and killed White," the witness was asked.

"Yes," in a low voice.

"Did you intend to kill him?"

"This is a question outside of the issue, and I refuse to answer."

Wants to Get Out.

Thaw said he was anxious to get out of Matteawan, but in doing so, he did not desire to injure anyone. He did not see Anhut as an attorney for himself, he said, but as an attorney for Dr. Russell to conclude the negotiations for his release. He added that he understood the receipts for the gas stock and $5,000 cash were written by Dr. Russell.

"Anhut," Thaw testified, "said Dr. Russell had to have all the money before he would do anything."

This testimony was brought out in connection with the alleged preliminary negotiations conducted by Anhut previous to the time Thaw testified he obtained the gas stock and cash from his sister. The witness said he was still on friendly terms with Dr. Russell. He denied that he had ever received any unusual favors in the asylum. Counsel for Anhut asked if the cause for his friendship for Russell was the alleged plan for his release.

"It was all arranged," Thaw repeated, "but not because of our mutual friendship. Anhut was his lawyer to conclude the arrangements, for it was understood that if Russell released me right off it might arouse criticism."

Dr. Russell resigned as superintendent at Matteawan shortly after Governor Sulzer sent Col. Joseph F. Scott, then superintendent of prisons, a letter demanding Dr. Russell's removal. The governor's action resulted from disclosures in an investigation of the matter at Albany at his instigation last February.

Court was adjourned immediately following the announcement that Thaw's testimony was concluded. Thaw was taken back to Matteawan last night.

NOLO CONTENDERE PLEAS REJECTED

Court Insists on Other Moves in Coal Land Fraud Cases.

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 16.—Judge J. A. Riner in the United States district court here, refused to accept pleas of nolo contendere offered by Samuel G. Webb, Wilberforce Sully, George W. Dalll, Frank T. Wells, Thomas P. McDonald, R. J. Ireland, John Nelson and J. B. Wright, indicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government out of 6,072 acres of coal land in the Kirby district of Northern Wyoming. It is expected that the defendants will offer new pleas.

LAWYER IS SEER.

Dual Life Revealed Before Chicago Grand Jury.

Chicago, May 16.—Interesting evidence of the operations of Charles De Alvandros, alleged leader of the clairvoyant ring now under investigation, has been presented to the grand jury.

According to State's Attorney Hoyne, De Alvandros led a dual existence, posing as a lawyer and operating as a seer. As a lawyer he had an office down town; as a clairvoyant he is said to have maintained three mystic parlors in which he appeared disguised to those who had met him in his capacity as an attorney. As a lawyer he is alleged to have directed his victims to consult the seer in one of his parlors. If the client was an important one he is said to have disguised himself and appeared as the seer. Thus he was able to make surprising disclosures to his victims. Less important cases were handled by assistant necromancers.

He is said to have acted as chairman of weekly meetings held by clairvoyants where the "white envelope fund" was contributed, for distribution to the politicians and detectives who protected their operations. At these meetings plans for handling dupes and profiting by their credulity were laid and rehearsed.

De Alvandros owed his leadership largely to his legal ability, and usually handled court matters for members of the ring when they ran afoul of the law owing to some failures of their protectors of the white envelope.

He is at large and the police are searching for five other clairvoyants—Jesse Gilhage, Frank S. Ryan, Eno Von Dauiset, D. K. Ross and "Prof." Salisbury. Ryan, alias Prof. Robert L. Hilton, was reported arrested at Cleveland, but the prisoner turned out to be another man. Ryan's brother, James, is in jail here and has furnished the state's attorney with a good deal of the evidence before the grand jury.

ATTACK MADE ON PENN'S EARLY LIFE

Ire of Members of the Society of Friends Aroused.

Philadelphia, May 16.—Members of the Society of Friends, the Quakers, who for decades have been the business and moral backbone of the Keystone state, have arisen in protest against the teaching to Philadelphia school children that William Penn, the father of the American Quakers, was nothing but a rogue, and came to this country to escape the fighting of a duel in Ireland with the husband of a woman with whom it is declared that Penn was intimate.

A number of the more influential Quakers of Philadelphia will memorialize the city authorities requesting that the publication which holds William Penn up to ridicule be removed from Independence hall, where it has been placed so that the school children of Philadelphia may see and read it.

Several months ago a plan to make the school children of Philadelphia more patriotic was inaugurated. It consisted of the borrowing of the collections of early manuscripts pertaining to early American history from local collectors and placing them on exhibit in Independence hall.

Superintendent of Schools Brumbaugh arranged so that the children could visit Independence hall in classes, view and study the relics. Among the relics on exhibit for the past week and which will continue to be on exhibit for several more weeks, unless the city authorities order its removal, is the pamphlet which attacks the early life of William Penn, paints him as a man of peace because he was too cowardly to fight a duel; a wrecker of homes and a religious turncoat, taking the faith of the Society of Friends because the members of that faith are not supposed to fight duels or seek trouble.

The pamphlet attacking William Penn of which the one on view in Independence hall is supposed to be the only one in existence, was written in August, 1682, the month during which William Penn left Ireland to come to this country. He landed here in October of the same year. It is entitled "History of William Penn's Conversion From a Gentleman to a Quaker, or a Step to the Call of the Unconverted."

The name of the author is not given, but students who have examined the pamphlet carefully believe it was written by Charles Bugge, author of "The Snake in the Grass." It is not an arraignment of Quakerism, but is a terrific arraignment of William Penn.

In discussing the pamphlet C. Barclay Spicer, one of the leading Quakers of Philadelphia, acknowledged that even members of the Society of Friends do not doubt that William Penn was a rather gay young man, but they do take exception to the fact that the gayness in the youth of Penn should be made a subject of ridicule and that the school children of Philadelphia should be allowed to think that William Penn, whose mammoth statue on the top of the city hall tower looks down upon them daily, is a rogue who fled from Ireland to escape a fight.

"We know that William Penn was a soldier in Ireland," said Mr. Spicer, "and we presume that like most soldiers he enjoyed having a gay time. That is only natural."

But the fact that this unauthenticated pamphlet is exhibited where the thousands of school children in Philadelphia may see it is galling to the members of the Society of Friends and they are preparing to take steps to put a stop to the defamation of the name of William Penn.

GIRL BEATS WAY TO THE PACIFIC COAST.

Venice, Cal., May 16.—Miss Ethel Johnston, a beautiful young woman from Dayton, arrived here in begrimed and torn boy's clothing to join her fiance.

Miss Johnston and J. L. Perry had been sweethearts in Dayton. The youth moved West a short time ago, the better to prepare a home for his sweetheart, and was beginning to see the silver-lined cloud when the flood swept down upon Dayton. Miss Johnston was making her home with her aunt in that city and suffered the loss of her only relatives as well as her home.

She cut her hair short, donned boy's clothing and struck out with but a few dollars for the coast. She traveled almost the entire distance on freight trains, in empty box cars, on flat cars, brakebeams and bumpers, only occasionally being able to obtain the comforts of the speedy blind baggage car. Once, when she was discovered riding a brakebeam, she was taken onto the engine and made to stoke to earn her passage.

She reached Venice almost famished, but happy. She did not stop to change her toilet, but as soon as she learned the Perry residence, ran all the way there and threw herself into her fiance's arms.

Perry and his mother have provided the girl with feminine attire and the couple will go to San Francisco to be married.

THE LAND OF FREE WOMEN.

From Will Levington Comfort's "The Road of Living Men:" Certain women are unlovely in America—apes of the worst of men, bold, loud voiced, much given to brutal things, and much do they suffer, but they are awake; a few are making weird uses of their freedom, but they are realizing their freedom. It is the women who have shown us the value of men. Women should know, for theirs is the agony of bringing forth men. This sense of value becoming a national conception will make war impossible. • • • The meaning of all this is that America, through free women, is bringing forth individuals. We count individuals lost in every calamity. The spiritual hope of the world lies in the individual. He will make the brotherhood.

WARREN AND HIS PENSION

What the Millionaire Wyoming Senator Will Do With His.

For Charity Fund and Wants Military Service Duly Recorded.

Washington, May 16.—Senator Warren of Wyoming wants a pension. Under the law he is entitled to $16 a month on account of his service as a soldier in the Civil war. Inasmuch as the senator is reputed to be a millionaire, his application has been quite severely criticized. Warren G. Harvey, who may be remembered as the author of "Coin's Financial School," has taken it upon himself to write the senator two letters, one of which, an inquiry, brings out Warren's reasons for making the application. The other is a criticism of his position. In his first letter Harvey said:

"Gen. George Washington served his country, in the army, for eight years without pay, and never asked for a pension. You are now receiving a handsome salary for your services as a United States senator, and I learn that you are well fixed financially otherwise.

"That so many people are now trying to pluck the government, which, when injured, helps to tear down the common good, is a sad phase of our present civilization, foreboding worse evil to come, and I hope this report is not true of you, and that you will write me to that effect. Should I get no reply I will take it that it is true."

Warren's Reply.

In his reply, Senator Warren wrote: "It is true I have applied for a pension, to which I am entitled under the law for honorable service in the so-called Civil war. All the money which I shall derive from my pension when granted will be placed in a trust company at interest, to be used only in assisting indigent soldiers and their families.

"However, in addition to my desire to create a charitable fund as above, I wished to preserve my military record in the archives of the pension bureau so that my descendants might have no trouble in locating my record of service many years hence.

"I might have applied for a pension several years ago, as I was entitled to it; but I postponed doing so, and finally determined upon it only when I found surrounding me so many old and decrepit men who had served their country in its time of need and whose regular pension is insufficient to furnish themselves and their families the necessities of life."

A Dart at Harvey.

As a concluding paragraph, he flung this dart at Harvey: "You may be one of those who believe that every surviving Union soldier of the Civil war should be shot. If so, of course, you and I could not agree." To this sentiment Harvey replied as follows:

"I regret the use by you of the closing sentence in your letter, 'You may be one of those who believe that every surviving Union soldier of the Civil war should be shot, etc.' It is a bad earmark, senator, to use that language. Had your cause been just, I think, you would have expressed yourself in courteous language. Every grafter, when assailed, seeks to create prejudice against his accuser. You cannot win respect for a monument of fraud by waving a shirt over it dyed with the blood of an honest soldier."

As to Senator Warren's reasons for asking for a pension, he wrote:

"I note what you say as to the reason for doing so, and, after giving you the full benefit of such intentions, submit the following reasons why you should withdraw your application:

"The war office is supposed to have the roster of its soldiers, and if your name is not on it, on proper evidence, I feel sure they would place it there.

Not Charity, But Justice.

"Your right to give charity out of your personal fortune is unquestioned, but not so with the government. It would be necessary for you to first legally acquire the pension before it is rightfully yours to give. The object of the government is not charity, but justice.

"The pension law was originally designed to aid those who in war had been disabled by disease or wounds and by reason of which are unable to support themselves. It was not intended to go farther than this.

"No, senator, the policy you are advocating by teaching an example will tend to impoverish the government, enervating our citizenship and making the surviving, brave and deserving soldiers ashamed of the class their names are associated with on the pension roll.

"I would defend them against being enrolled with almstakers and grafters. You, a rich man, have no right, morally or constitutionally, our highest law, to receive a pension, and no matter what you expect to do with it when you obtain it, it is not rightfully yours to dispose of."

CHISEL OUT MAN WHO SLEPT IN SOFT CEMENT

Rochester, Pa., May 16.—Tony Rodowski may never have his memory perpetrated in enduring bronze, but he has a very vivid idea of how it feels to be incased in slowly hardening cement.

Tony, after a convival evening, started for home. He became fatigued frequently, and on his final stop seated himself on a neighbor's newly made cement steps.

The bed was soft and Tony stretched out for a nap. During his slumbers, an arm and a leg became imprisoned as the cement hardened.

Neighbors, aroused by Tony's cries, came to his assistance. By the use of picks and chisels, he was at length released.

The new steps were ruined and the owner threatens to bring suit unless Tony bears the expense of repairing the damage.

ATHLETICS OUTLET FOR THE EMOTIONS.

Cambridge, Mass., May 16.—That the athletic girl is less liable to succumb to temptation than her sisters who do not go in for athletics is the opinion of Dr. Dudley S. Sargent, director of athletics at Harvard.

"The social evils are the result of life's forces being turned into wrong channels," Dr. Sargent says. "The eternal longing to externalize one's self—that is, to find an outlet for the emotions—is an inherent one in human nature. The basic impulse may find healthy expression in athletics or it may find some sinister form.

"Woman is more emotional than man and with her sex attraction is apt to be more blind. Athletics offer the girl who is budding into womanhood the opportunity to acquire not only a sound, healthy body, but moral and mental equipoise which I believe can be acquired in no other way. It is certain that girls of athletic tendencies are less liable to go astray because they find in athletics a safe outlet for their emotions. It would seem to be Nature's own scheme for preserving the moral balance."

BUSINESS IS VERY LARGE

Pessimists Are Given Shock By the Favorable Car Report.

Growth of Trade to Come With Panama Canal Opening.

New York, May 16.—Those pessimists by nature, or by judgment, and those made so by political hopes, received a knockdown blow when the car report of the American Railway Association for Canada and the United States was made public, showing the idle car statistics for the fortnight ended May 1. At that date one year ago the idle cars numbered 138,881, while on May 1, 1913, the idle cars numbered but 39,779, and there is no doubt that in the twelve months the total number of cars in service has been very largely increased.

This exhibit gave a veritable shock to cercain interests which have been shaping up their financial affairs to meet dull trade and depression.

On the same day came the government's report on the conditions and acreages of winter wheat and resultant indications of a record-breaking harvest in that vetry important crop—a harvest that, if even approximated, would in itself call for more cars to haul it to market thai were needed for last year's fine production.

Singular to relate, the splendid crop prospects did not flutter the bearish contingent here as it did the unexpected demand for cars for current business, and now some well informed railway men predict the earliest shortage in cars that has ever been experienced by the roads.

For Panama Trade.

The president of the South American Steamship company, a Chilean incorporation operating now a line of steamers between the ports of Chile and Panama, is now in the United States to arrange for the construction of six large steamships to ply between Valparaiso and New York via the Panama canal.

As the European shipyards have nearly eighteen months' work ahead of them, it is probable that our yards would be able to complete these vessels earlier than those in Europe, but it would hardly be possible to have all these steamships in service within the next eighteen months, even if orders were placed at once.

Returning business men of the United States, coming from Europe, all speak of the immense preparations that European merchants, manufacturers, exporters and importers are making for the gathering in of the profits they expect to accrue from this great water route.

Speed Is Best Test.

Our own people may not be so early in the competition for the trade and the profits with their fleets of steamships; our business men may not have already laid the plans for capturing the early trade and for its later development, but there never were financiers, manufacturers, importers or exporters in any country that will compare in quickness with our own when they see a sure profit in a transaction.

They will soon swing into position to get not only a full share of that new commerce, but through their advan- European countries, as compared with Euorpean countries, will control the largest proportion of it.

It is true that while the cotton and the wheat crops of the country are looking superb at the present reports, it is too early to say that there is any certainty of the huge results appearances portend, but in considering the immense number of cars now earning money for the railway companies and the very few that are idle, it must be conceded that, with harvests approaching in tonnages the present indicated yields, a great year in business for agriculturists, railway companies, our manufacturers and merchants will be the outcome.

Wheat Soon to Move.

Six weeks from now the wheat from the states south of Nebraska and Iowa will be moving to market and prospects may be realities.

For the next six months the products of the fields and the farms will be as a great tide in business affairs of the country, and before that movement comes to an end the canal will be opened and the strong impulses of that trade will be found influencing beneficially, stimulating and energizing, business in every state of the Union.

Given the big harvests to add their weight and pressure to the present business activities of the republic, and supplement that, before the close of the year with the Panama addition to commerce in all its forms, it really makes a combination that should produce an unexampled prosperity in the United States.

The large business is here now, as the car report proves; the world agrees upon the expansion of trade that will come to every country through the opening of the canal; the harvests are the only uncertain factor of this mighty equation, and if they should be favorable, pessimists would certainly have to be mute in view of the conditions that would confront them.

WOMAN'S PRAYER WELL ANSWERED

Wanted Babies to Replace Lost Ones and Gets Triplets.

New York, May 16.—Triplets, all boys, were born last week to Mrs. Louis Isler of 729 Prospect street, Brooklyn, in the burning of whose home, at 51 Rogers avenue, on Jan. 31, last year, she and her husband lost all of their four children.

Isler, who is a prosperous kosher butcher, called Dr. Harold Rabinowitz of 64 McKibben street, to his new home last week and soon the physician ushered three little boys into the world. Each weighed six pounds and each was healthy and possessed of lusty lungs.

When the Isler home burned last year, through the explosion of a kerosene lamp, their four children were asleep. Two were dead when found and the other two died soon afterward. Mrs. Isler suffered from mental shock for several weeks and seemed to be inconsolable. All of their household goods were destroyed.

After a few weeks they established a new home in Prospect street and recently Mrs. Isler has been very happy. Her neighbors said she had prayed every day, many times every day, for children to take the places of those she lost. She told the physician that she knew her prayers had been answered. Three of the children killed in the fire were boys. Three boys came last week.

Isler said that no mother in his family or in that of his wife had ever had triplets or even twins before.

In the Argentine Republic, which is the strongest lure for European emigrants, except the United States, the immigration of an average year is not quite three times as great as the emigration, which consists almost wholly of immigrants returning to their former homes.

Copenhagen now has a population of 559,398.

Best Remedy for Catarrh—Supreme in Emergencies

MRS. SUSIE E. HALL.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is a splendid medicine for catarrhal diseases, as it is a remedial agent for all the mucous membranes of the body. Read what it did for Mrs. Susie E. Hall:

"I have used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for the past six months for catarrh of the nose and throat, and the result is fine. My brother said it was the best and purest medicine on the market, not only for catarrh, but for consumption (for which he was using it) and a great many other diseases. After trying it I know it to be a great strength restorer and nerve tonic. It gives me a fine appetite.

"I shall always keep a bottle in the house in case of emergencies such as grip, spasmodic croup, cholera infantum and other diseases which approach in a hurry. I recommend Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and to any one who writes me, I will be only too glad to tell them the good I have obtained through its medicinal properties." Mrs. Susie E. Hall, 2546 W. 25th St., Cleveland, Ohio.

CONSERVATION EXPOSITION

Mines and Minerals Exhibits to Be Shown at Knoxville.

Our Wealth in Minerals and Means of Best Utilizing It.

Washington, May 16.—Our mineral wealth and its conservation and the protection of human life in mining operations are to be the burden of the exhibition in the mines and minerals building at the National Conservation exposition, to be held during next September and October at Knoxville, Tenn. How sulphuric acid is manufactured as a byproduct of copper smelting, a mine tunnel fully equipped and in actual operation, and the latest equipment used by the United States government in its mine rescue work are conspicuous among the exhibits being planned and prepared for this department.

The scope and purposes of the mines and minerals exhibits are outlined by the instructions just issued to exhibitors by Dr. Charles H. Gordon, associate state geologist of Tennessee, chairman of the mines and minerals department of the exposition. In general, these instructions call for exhibits showing our natural wealth in minerals and the means of best utilizing it. Exhibits of fuel resources will show the locations, thickness, and character of coal veins, and devices for the manufacture of coke, briquettes and other coal products. The nature, occurrence and uses of the various minerals used in structural materials will be illustrated by collections of building and ornamental stone, especially Southern marbles, and other materials, and appropriate devices to show proper utilization.

Needless Waste.

Under the classification of ores will be shown metallic and non-metallic ores and minerals and the products and byproducts manufactured from them, the needless waste and destruction of manufactured metals by improper mining and excessive oxidization, electrolysis, etc., means of reworking iron and steel scrap, and substitutes for iron. A mines section will comprise displays showing methods of mine operations, mining appliances and machinery, the nature and uses of mine explosives, and the prevention of mine accidents and other features touching upon the conservation of the life and health of those engaged in the mining industry. The exhibits relating to mine safety will be under the direction of the United States bureau of mines.

Supplementary to these exhibits will be general collections of minerals, rock, fossils, a relief model showing the locations and relations of important mineral districts, and illustrated lectures relating to the geologic history and mineral resources of the country.

The plans for the exhibits in the department of mines and minerals of the Knoxville exposition have been prepared jointly by the committee on mines and minerals, with headquarters at Knoxville, and the exposition's national advisory board at Washington, of which Gifford Pinchot, ex-forester of the United States, is chairman, and Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, director of the United States bureau of mines, is the member representing mineral conservation.

A Pennsylvania statistician calculates that in the last year 120,000,000 tons of water were pumped out of the mines of ore company in the anthracite region.

Most every boy in Duluth will need a new suit to finish up the school year. Our preparations for suiting the boys will suit the parents. It's no idle boast when we say that the only Boys' Clothing Store worthy of the name and worthy of this progressive city is located on the second floor of the Columbia store.

The little Columbo at $4.90 is gaining great favor with all mothers who have taken the trouble to examine its quality and price worthiness. The selection shows all the new and desirable patterns in Norfolks and Double-breasteds, cut on natural lines and without padded shoulders. The seams are all tape-reinforced. Every detail has received as much care as our men's suits.

In the Columbia Boys' store everybody can be suited, be the family rich and on easy street or burdened with the ever-present problem of how to make ends meet. Suits from $1.95 to $20.

FREE RIDES ON STREET CARS

Policemen and Firemen Will Be Carried for Nominal Yearly Rate.

City Will Co-operate With Company in Checking Transfer Abuses.

Duluth firemen and policemen in uniform will ride on the street car lines of the city practically free of charge.

Commissioner W. A. Hicken, head of the division of public safety, which includes both departments, and Herbert Warren, general manager of the Duluth Street Railway company, entered into a tentative agreement this morning whereby the uniformed policemen and firemen may ride on street cars at the nominal rate of $1 per year for all of the men. The date upon which the contract becomes effective, which will undoubtedly be in the near future, will be announced shortly.

In exchange for the transportation, which really amounts to carrying the men free of charge, it is understood that the city officials have agreed to co-operate with the street railway company to put an end to transfer abuses. That is the arrangement made in the Twin Cities, and although no authorized statement to that effect was given out, it is said on reliable authority that the same agreement was made in Duluth. It is asserted that transfer privileges have been stretched to a maximum in the past and that the street car company has been a considerable loser thereby. In agreeing to carry the firemen and policemen practically free of charge the company will help equalize matters through its understanding on the transfer situation.

FATHER SUES FOR CHILD'S BENEFIT

Claims Boy, Run Over By Wagon, Is Crippled for Life.

On the claim that his 4-year-old son, Raymond, has been left a cripple for life as a result of being run over by a delivery truck, Fred Eggers, 1916 West Michigan street, wants $12,500 damages for the little fellow and for himself.

In district court, before Judge Cant this morning, a jury was drawn to try the double cause of action which Eggers has brought against the National Candy company; Erick Olson, doing business as the West End Livery company, and Charles Larson, driver, who are jointly held responsible for the youngster's alleged maiming.

In one cause of action, Eggers asks $10,000 general damages for the benefit of the boy, and in the other he seeks to recover $1,200 for himself to cover expenses and loss of the boy's services.

The complaint states that on the morning of Oct. 5 last, while the lad was playing on the sidewalk and was seated in a small express wagon, a delivery wagon furnished by the West End Livery company for the National Candy company, drove up on the sidewalk and ran over the boy and wagon. Charles Larson, it is claimed, was the driver in charge.

The boy's left leg was badly crushed and will be shortened for life as a result of the accident, it is claimed.

COLORED MINISTER IS SENT TO WAUPUN

Convicted of Getting Brewers' Money for "Divinity School."

La Crosse, Wis., May 16.—Rev. Henry B. Alexander of Milwaukee, convicted of obtaining money under false pretenses from the John Gund Brewing company under claim that it was for a Milwaukee colored divinity and industrial school which the state charged does not exist, was today in circuit court sentenced to the state penitentiary at Waupun for one year. In pronouncing sentence the court sharply criticized other colored clergymen who "had been connected with the institution," including Bishop Joseph Jackson and Rev. Joseph Smith of Milwaukee, Rev. J. G. Graves of Chicago, and Rev. George W. Claughton of Oshkosh, Wis.

"It is clear to the court that these men were working in concert to get money for themselves under pretext that it was for a charitable institution," said Judge Higbee.

DYING ITALIAN KILLS MAN WHO SHOT HIM

Duel With Pistol and Stiletto Is Fought at Racine, Wis.

Racine, Wis., May 16.—Nick Iannuzzi, an Italian, 34 years old, died at a hospital this morning as a result of a stiletto and revolver duel late last night with Joe Filicetti, who, the former claimed, had undermined him for a position as gateman with a railroad company.

DRIVER OF CAR TRIES TO DROWN HIMSELF

Attempts Suicide When Told Companion in Accident Is Dead.

Chicago, May 16.—When an automobile owned and driven by Paul J. Patten, vice president of the Lake Zurich Milk company, crashed into a post at the south approach to the Rush street bridge early today, Thomas Slack, a hotel clerk, was thrown out and killed.

"Is he alive?" asked Patten of a policeman who ran up.

"He's dead," was the reply.

Without warning Patten rushed to the bridge railing and tried to jump into the river, but was caught by the policeman and a chauffeur.

Dismisses Jury to Plant.

Phillipsburg, Kan., May 16.—District Judge W. S. Langmade discharged the jury in his court and told them to get back to their spring planting. "We need more good farmers and good farming," the judge said, "and we need fewer laws. I deem this spring planting of more importance in Phillips county than the trial of these suits. To take two weeks of your time at this season may do untold damage."

If You Value Your Face

use De Miracle, the one safe, perfected hair remover of proven merit. Remember, the injury caused by the use of doubtful hair removers will either result in permanent disfigurement or cost you many dollars because it will take months or possibly years to gain control of hair growths which have been stimulated by the use of such preparations.

De Miracle

Only Real Hair Remover on Earth

De Miracle contains certain ingredients which give it the power to rob hair of its vitality. Therefore, you must eventually use it to retard and gain control of growths which have been caused by the unwise use of questionable depilatories. Is it not safer and wiser to begin using De Miracle now, before the growth gets beyond control?

Leaves No Tell-Tale Smell

If you use De Miracle it will be impossible for any curious person to know that you have used a hair remover because De Miracle evaporates immediately after accomplishing its work, therefore leaves no odor whatever. On the other hand, if you use any depilatory with a distinctive odor, an offensive tell-tale smell will cling to your skin for hours. If your dealer will not supply you with De Miracle, send $1.00 direct.

FARMER EASY PREY.

Invokes Law and His $100 Returned to Him.

Sharon, Pa., May 16.—Bernard Ruskin, a farmer, experienced much difficulty in recovering $100 of which a black-eyed gypsy girl relieved him. Ruskin was driving to Greenville when he met the gypsy girl, who convinced him she ought to wish his pocketbook good luck. Ruskin hauled out his wallet and the girl fumbled with it. Then it was returned.

A short time later Ruskin wanted to see what good wishing had done. His purse was empty. Ruskin swore out a warrant.

The wisher of luck to Ruskin was found hiding under a straw tick in a wagon. She refused to accompany the sheriff and he had to hold the gypsy band at bay while the girl was hustled to an automobile.

When arraigned she turned over the $100 to Ruskin and paid the costs.

SAYS GRAY HAIR VANISHES AFTER APPLYING SAGE TEA

A Mixture of Sage and Sulphur Prevents Dandruff and Falling Hair.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur no one can tell, because it's done so naturally; so evenly. It is also splendid to remove dandruff, cure itching scalp and stop falling hair.

Preparing this mixture, though, at home is a mussy and troublesome task. For about 50 cents a bottle you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called, "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Some druggists put this mixture up themselves but make it too sticky, so insist you want "Wyeth's" then there will be no disappointment.

You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning all gray hair disappears and after another application or two becomes beautifully darkened and more glossy and luxuriant than ever. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and you'll look years younger. Inquiry shows all pharmacists in town here sell lots of it. Max Wirth.

Sprays For Insects and Plant Fungi.

THE season for insect pests to appear is approaching, and prompt action is necessary to check their ravages. The currant worm is one of the most destructive, often stripping the bushes of every vestige of foliage in a single night. Watch for them, and as soon as they appear mix some white hellebore in the following proportions and spray: One heaping tablespoon of the powder to each gallon of water. As hellebore does not dissolve readily it is necessary to stir frequently to keep the powder in suspension. I have found this solution rather difficult to apply readily with a sprayer and usually use a common watering pot with a fine sprinkler attached. Hold the can suspended over each bush for a moment so that the tops of the leaves will be wet. As it dries you will observe traces of the poison on the foliage. As the worms eat right through the leaf, this method is effective. One application is usually sufficient, but it is sometimes necessary to repeat. This same remedy may be used for the rose worm.

Aphis, or the green fly, is a sucking insect and is not affected by poisons such as paris green or hellebore. Kerosene emulsion is one of the most effective remedies for this pest. It is made as follows: Dissolve one-fourth pound of whale-oil soap in one gallon of boiling water; and, while at boiling point add one gallon of kerosene (keep away from fire.) Stir or churn briskly for fifteen minutes and allow to cool. If made in this manner it will keep indefinitely. Where used as a spray, dilute the emulsion with 15 or 20 parts of water. Apply with a spray, so as to reach the under side of the leaves. If you cannot procure whale-oil soap readily, dissolve and use one-half bar of laundry soap. Tobacco water may also be used for aphis but is rarely as effective in the open air. Get some tobacco stems from the cigarmaker and pour a kettleful of boiling water over them. Let stand for twenty-four hours and dilute with an equal quantity of water.

For San Jose scale or bark beetles on apple trees, take one pound of quick lime and one pound of sulphur, place the lime in a pail and pour on boiling water. As soon as the lime begins to slake, add the sulphur and stir briskly. The heat from the slaking lime will cook the two ingredients. Use sufficient water to make a paste about the consistency of paint. After this mixture has cooled sufficiently apply to trunks of trees and large limbs with an old paint brush. When this is done, allow the powder to settle and pour off the clear liquid from the top of the pail, dilute with about 10 parts of water and spray the entire tree. Lime-sulphur is not only a safeguard against the insects named but it is an excellent fungicide. Commercial lime-sulphur for spraying may be purchased at the hardware store.

There will be a later article on insecticides.

FOOD PRICES ARE LOWER

Eggs, Meat and Vegetables Show Tendency to Become Cheaper.

How to Save a Little in Buying Fresh Eggs.

In the realm of the householder the summer months hold out promise of a greater surplus of cash left for the purpose of pleasure-seeking or what not, after the provision list has been paid for. The commision merchants on Michigan street show it by a lower range of prices in their lists, the meat men show it by a drop that came recently and the promise of another one in the course of a few weeks, and even eggs have come down.

By the way, speaking of eggs, The Herald market reporter received a tip on how to buy eggs the other day while he was prowling about. Incidentally that tip is a money saver. Far be it from The Herald market reporter to reveal the inmost secrets of the egg trade, but a sense of public duty will not down, and therefore the tip is passed along to the reader. There are three grades of fresh eggs, and by judicious buying, householders can save from 2½ cents a dozen to 5½ cents a dozen in the purchase.

There is the No. 1 egg. That might be termed the aristocratic fresh egg, for it is not only fresh, but its shell is not marred by careless handling, and it is wiped clean, no nest offal being left on it. That is the most expensive egg. Then there is the "dirty" egg. This egg is just the same as the No. 1 in all particulars except that it has not been wiped. However, it is good for any use that eggs are put to, for its interior is just as good as the other. In the case of boiling, after it has been in the water for the required three minutes, all that is neessary to make it look like its aristocratic brother is to give it a quick wipe and it is perfectly good for table purposes. Then the third class of egg is known as the "check." This is the egg that gets a little crushed by careless handling, but with whose interior no havoc has been wrought. Of course, such an egg cannot be used for boiling, for the albumen would probably leak, and any kind of a leakage is pretty bad; witness, for instance, the leakage in the naval department and what a muss it has made.

But this egg is perfectly good for frying, poaching, scrambling or anything of the kind. And now notice the difference in the prices of these grades —the quoted prices being at the rate the commission men sell to the retailers:

No. 1 eggs, per dozen.....19½c@20½c
Dirties, per dozen 17c
Checks, per dozen 15c

So there is a partial solving of one cause of the high cost of living. Now the question is, the egg men say, will householders unbend enough to ask for the eggs rated below No. 1?

The Meat Situation.

Then there is the meat situation. It was told The Herald that in two or three weeks there will be a further drop in meat for the reason that Texas grass-fed cattle will then be coming into the market and will affect the whole list.

In the poultry market it is asserted that there is no fresh dressed poultry to be had, although the next thing to it is obainable. That is the live poultry. Live birds are being shipped in more numerously than last week, but the stock that arrives is quickly snapped up. It is expected that as the "laying" season draws to a close, more live poultry will be received and that soon the market will be well supplied. There is no change in prices as yet. Frozen poultry is about cleaned up and rules at high prices.

Berries Plentiful.

Along commission row seasonable fruit and vegetables are coming in well and prices, generally speaking, rule at a reasonable figure. Strawberries are coming into their own these days. Louisiana berries are all gone and Arkansas quarts are taking their place. The price is low and a further decline is looked for. The quality of the Arkansas berries is fine and they are most attractive looking.

Florida pineapples are in the market now, and while they are higher in price than the Cuban apples, they are of so fine a quality as to make them worth it. They are turning nicely and are most attractive to the palate. Grape fruit and oranges rule steady with no immediate prospect of a decline in prices. The lemon market is strong with an advance of prices in prospect.

The street carries now a complete line of green vegetables, which are ruling at lower rates than a week ago, particularly green onions, asparagus, head lettuce, radishes, peppers, cauliflowers and cucumbers. Celery and tomatoes rule strong. Receipts of these are light. Texas onions are cheap, while Texas and Alabama cabbage have advanced in price. Horseradish root, which is of the best quality, is going at low rates, and sweet potatoes are fancy and cheap.

DID YOU EVER SEE A MULE-FOOTED PIG?

New Canaan, Conn., May 16.—A year ago residents of New Canaan made pilgrimages to Peter Chick's farm to see a "two-faced pig," which proved to be a hoax.

Now they are going to A. L. Benedict's place in East avenue to look at a litter of pigs, several of which have mule hoofs—no hoax this time, according to Justice of the Peace F. S. Dawless, who says he is ready to make affidavit to it.

The late Dr. P. H. Hiss, the eminent New York bacteriologist, found in Ohio and brought to his summer place here a mule-footed hog which is now owned by Edwin Bouton, superintendent of the town poor farm.

It is the sire of two litters of pigs, half of them mule-hoofed or club-footed.

KANSAS MAN'S MIND LAPSES ANNUALLY.

Atchison, Kan., May 16.—W. H. Hedepeth, an Oklahoma farmer, became mentally unbalanced on a Burlington train east of Atchison a few days ago and jumped from the train while it was going. He was captured by the crew and brought to Atchison. Later he regained his reason and was released, after telling a strange story of his malady.

He said he becomes insane April 22 every year, and imagines he is a dog until the spell has passed. He attributes the trouble to the fact that shortly before he was born his mother became terror-stricken when a dog attacked her. Hedgepath tried to bite the officers who took charge of him and snapped at them in much the same manner cross dogs assume.

PULMOTOR SAVES BABY.

No Sign of Life Until Machine Is Brought Into Use.

Kansas City, Mo., May 16.—A remarkable case of resuscitation was recorded here when the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Linn was given life after a three hours' application of a pulmotor.

No sign of life was noticeable at birth, but Dr. N. J. Carliker sent for the instrument. After half an hour's application a change of color in the infant was seen, which lightened to white and then took on a rosy tint.

A cry from the babe finally announced the success of the treatment.

ATTRACTIVENESS IS A GOD-GIVEN GIFT.

New York, May 16.—Attractiveness is a God-given gift. Before it leaves you, young woman, before your beauty fades, before your day is gone, use it to the best advantage. If you do the churches will be filled to overflowing every Sunday."

This is the plan Rev. Edward S. Young made to the Venuses of his congregation at the Bedford Reformed church, when he asked them to aid in making Gotham a city of church-goers. He preached on the subject of Esther, the woman who swayed a throne. These are some of the epigrams he used:

"Men like to be worked by woman's tactful ingenuity."

"Queen Esther's attire was probably not equal to a Worth creation, but it helped to change an empire.

"Beauty is no credit to a woman; it's a terrible responsibility.

"Beauty is dangerous in New York today without character."

GONE FOR SIX MONTHS AND RETURNS LEGLESS.

Kendallville, Ind., May 16.—About six months ago Howard Carper of Corunna left his home owing to domestic trouble, and as no one knew of his whereabouts he was believed to be dead. He returned a few days ago to his family at Corunna in the evening, after having been confined in a Chicago hospital for some time, where he was recovering from an accident in which he lost both legs.

After leaving his home he went to Chicago and later became a brakeman on a railroad, and subsequently lost both limbs. He was taken to a hospital, where he gave his name and address, but asked the surgeons to notify his home people only in the event of his death.

He walked from this city to the home of his parents at Corunna on a pair of artificial legs.

POSES FOR DEAD MOTHER

Youth's Remarkable Resemblance to Parent Suits Artist.

Kansas City, Mo., May 16.—When James Concannon, 25 years old, left here for his home near Lene, Kan., he was happy in the possession of a painted canvas from which beamed the features of his mother as she looked before death, an artistic triumph made possible by his intense filial devotion and his remarkable resemblance to his parent.

When Concannon's mother 72 years old, died last August, he was distressed because a dim old photograph was the only likeness of her that he had. He longer for a large painting showing her as she appeared in life. Realizing how similar were his own features to hers, he consulted a local artist to learn whether a lifelike picture of his mother could be made from the photograph and himself. He was told that the painting could be made for $250.

He labored on a farm seven months and saved the required amount. Then he came here and the sittings started.

ICEBOX THEIR BANK.

Woman Seller and Peddler Buyer Quarrel Over Its Possession.

Leavenworth, Kan., May 16.—After the parents of Mary Sawaski had died within a week of each other she took possession of their home. Recently she sold an old ice box to a peddler, who, upon examining the interior, found a wallet containing $107.50 and a small muslin bag with $6 in silver in it.

Miss Sawaski happened to be near when the money came to light and reconsidered the bargain. The peddler contended that he already had bought the box and insisted that he keep the money. Miss Sawaski will take the case to court. She says the money was that of her father, but the peddler says she does not know whether it is or not.

Coming so closely after the finding of about $500 in $10 and $20 gold certificates in the immediate vicinity of the Sawaski home, the incident has caused considerable excitement in South Leavenworth, and hundreds of people have resumed their search for the "mother lode."

PREACHER "BUTTS IN."

Mistakes Red Face for Whisky Complexion and Gets Beating.

Hutchinson, Kan., May 16.—Justice Ricksecker fined A. R. Elliott, a laborer, $1 and costs for beating the Rev. J. A. Holmes, pastor of the Hadley Methodist church, a week ago.

The preacher told Elliotts' father his son had been drinking. The father told his son's wife When Elliott came home from work he found his wife and four children in tears and no supper ready. They would have nothing to do with him until he denied he had been drinking.

Elliott is a teetotaler. He called the pastor by telephone and the preacher denied telling his family that he was drunk. Later Elliott with his father met the preacher and pounded him severely. Elliott was arrested. The Rev. Mr. Holmes said in court that the reason he thought Elliott had been drinking was because his face was very red.

"The jury found this man guilty. If I could make his fine lighter I would do so," Justice Ricksecker said.

HUNT TO INVOKE THE REFERENDUM.

Phoenix, Ariz., May 16.—To checkmate the legislature, which is determined to curtail his powers with regard to the pardoning of convicts, Governor Hunt announced that if the lawmakers overrode his veto of the penal code he would go to the people with a referendum. The veto message will go to the legislature today.

The penal code bill as passed contained a proviso which would take from the governor his power of granting pardons or parole. Anticipating a veto, the legislature decided to remain in session five days more to repass the measure.

FITZGERALD WINS MEDAL

Oration on "Ireland and Civilization" Gains Prize at Cathedral School.

Joseph Dillon Second and Edmund F. Killeen Is Third.

The annual oratorical contest at the Cathedral high school for the Ancient Order of Hibernians' gold medal, was won last evening by Vincent J. Fitzgerald with an oration on "Ireland and Civilization."

Joseph J. Dillon, who spoke on "The News," was second, and Edmund Killeen, with "The United States as a World Power" as his subject, was third. Other contestants were: John R. Sullivan, "The Liquor Traffic"; Edward F. White, "Our Country"; William J. Fitzgerald, "William McKinley"; George S. Walker, "Are Catholics Aliens?" and George W. Atmore, "The Immigration Problem."

The judges were Ray M. Hughes, Fred L. Ryan, J. Fred Wolff, Vincent M. Grady and Joseph R. McKinnon.

The winning orator made a brilliant exposition of the influence of Ireland on the civilization of the world. He said the Irish people had conquered no nations by force of arms, and that Ireland had never been a "world power" in the accepted meaning of the term, but that it had commanded the admiration of the people of the world on account of the character of its people.

Irish scholars have gone over the world to teach all nations, he said. The songs of Irish composers are known in all lands. The Irish priest is found wherever there are souls to be saved. There are Irishmen in every army and in every other walk of life in almost every nation. He said that the Irish may well be content with their victories of peace, which have been gained without destruction and thus bring the greater honor.

Power of Press.

Joseph Dillon commended the newspaper as one of the greatest forces in civilization. The press, he said, is the leading force in the present day battle against immorality, corruption in government and evil public influences, and a virile press may accomplish more than any other human agency.

Edmund F. Killeen traced the progress of the United States and touched upon the power it has gained among the nations of the world, though it is made up of immigrants and descendants of those nations. He said the standard of citizenship in America, based as it is on the foundation of political equality, has made the progress of America possible.

John J. Sullivan advocated a more rigid regulation of the saloon. He declared local option, the removal of curtains and screens, the banishment of social attractions, the prohibition of gambling and a rigidly enforced anti-treating law would rob the saloon of much of its evil influence.

George W. Atmore, in his speech on immigration, declared that the literacy test in the immigration law now before congress is a blow aimed at the Catholic countries of Southern Europe. He said that illiteracy is not a crime, nor a condition that cannot be remedied. The illiterate laborer, who is honest and thrifty, is a much better citizen than the educated scoundrel, he said, and America has lost nothing in former years by its admission of thousands who would not have been able to meet the test now proposed.

The A. O. H. medal contest is an annual affair open to all students of the Cathedral high school. Eighteen boys participated in the preliminary contest, in which ten were eliminated, the remaining eight taking part in the contest last night.

THREATENS TAR FOR TEACHER.

Joliet, Ill., May 16.—"We will tar and feather you and drive you out of town and punish you as you have punished our children," is the threat in an anonymous letter received by Viola Johnson, a young school teacher in Channahon, a village south of here.

Miss Johnson accused a well known Channahon man of writing threatening letters, of which this was the second. The affair is said to be the result of Miss Johnson's attempt to keep discipline in a school room, which it is said, has been notorious for disorder.

The school board announced it would back the teacher and insist that she remain.

BACKACHE IS A DANGER SIGNAL

Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, Rheumatism, and Serious Diseases Follow.

There are other symptoms, such as pains in the region of th kidneys, nervousness, dizziness, tired and worn-out feeling, weak bladder, or urinary troubles, which are just as dangerous, for the slightest kidney derangement if neglected may develop into the deadly Bright's Disease, Dropsy, or Diabetes.

It is not only dangerous, but needless, for you to suffer, and endure the tortures of these troubles, for the new discovery, Croxone, promptly end; all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy known for kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, than this new scientific preparation, because it removes the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings, cleans out the clogged up pores, neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter, that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rhoumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter the poison from the blood and drives it out of the system.

Three doses of Croxone a day, for a few days is often all that is ever needed to relieve the worst backache or overcome disagreeable urinary disorders, and you can take it with the utmost confidence that nothing on earth will so quickly reach the worst case of kidney, bladder trouble, or rheumatism.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.

MEETING OF COMMISSION

Duties of Five Members Definitely Fixed By Resolution.

Union Labor Pavilion Affected By Dance Hall Ordinance.

Routine business occupied the attention of the city commission at its meeting yesterday afternoon. The session was short.

The resolutions fixing the duties of the various divisions and making rules for the administration and conduct of city business were passed without discussion as each of the commissioners was already familiar with their contents. The only change was the shifting of the plumbing inspector from the division of public affairs to the division of public safety, where the plumbing inspector will be under the direction of the health director.

Mayor W. I. Prince was authorized to advertise for bids for the remodeling of the city hall. The cost will be paid from the permanent improvement fund. This will practically consume the small balance in that fund. No further permanent improvements will be made this year, in keeping with the administration of the council that Duluth shall be conducted on a cash basis.

Coal Purchase.

The ordinance appropriating $8,000 for the purchase of coal for the division of public safety for next year was given its second reading. The fire department uses about 1,000 tons a year while that need by other branches of the city government brings the total up to about 3,000 tons. The commissioners were informed yesterday that no better prices than those submitted would be available, although in the aggregate the city uses several train loads of fuel a year. Although the ordinance was given its second reading the question will be given further consideration by the commissioners. They have until May 31 to take advantage of the May price. Each month the cost will be boosted at the rate of 10 cents per month per ton.

Harmless Ordinance.

The ordinance to compel the attendance of members of the commission was given its first reading. The tentative draft was given to the commissioners at the meeting Monday but its teeth had been drawn when it got its first reading. The provision enabling the minority to direct a police officer to bring in any member of the majority who refused to attend any meeting was eliminated. A fine of $10 may be imposed upon any commissioner who refuses without "reasonable" cause to attend after being summoned. No person or tribunal is named who shall be a judge of what is a "reasonable" excuse nor is any provision made for the manner or method of collection of the fine. So long as the members of any commission are in harmony there is no need for an ordinance to compel attendance but should the time arrive in the future when the interests of the city might make it highly desirable that members of the commission should be present, the ordinance which got its first reading yesterday afternoon would not be worth much. It is quite harmless.

The contract for the improvement of Twenty-third avenue west from Michigan street to Piedmont avenue was awarded to E. A. Dahl. The avenue will be paved with brick from Michigan street to Third street, with sandstone blocks from Third to Fifth streets, and crushed rock will be laid from Fifth street to Piedmont avenue.

The Lester Park Improvement club sent in a communication stating that too much promiscuous dumping of garbage and refuse is being done. The club suggested that a dump be designated, where the garbage may be deposited in a ditch and covered. The matter was referred to the division of public safety.

Labor Pavilion Hit.

The Duluth Union Labor Pavilion association made application for a dance hall license for their pavilion at Fairmont park. The pavilion is the property of union labor organizations in Duluth and has been the center of Labor day celebrations for some years past. Under the provisions of the amended dance hall ordinance, which prohibits dance halls or public amusement places within 600 feet of any public park, this license could not be granted. The ordinance was given its second reading yesterday. The pavilion is on ground closely bordering the edge of the park. In the past the pavilion has been rented for public danc has been rented for public dances which have been given by other organizations.

The ordinance appropriating $6,000 for hauling pipe for the water and light department during the present year was given its last reading and passed.

An ordinance amending the peddling and hawking ordinance was give its first reading. It changes the date of expiration from April 30 to Dec. 31. The peddlers cannot use their licenses at least three months of the year and the purpose of the amendment is to relieve them of this burden of paying for them during that time.

An ordinance appropriating $350 to replace with tile the wooden sewer in Railroad street from Lake avenue to the outlet in the First avenue west slip was given its first reading.

MODERATORS CHOSEN BY PRESBYTERIANS

Dr. J. T. Stone of Chicago Elected By the Northern Church.

Atlanta, Ga., May 16.—Election of moderators by the commissioners of the Northern and Southern Presbyterian churches, with a totally unexpected choice in the case of the former, were the chief events of interest at yesterday's sessions of the Presbyterian assemblies here.

Dr. John Timothy Stone of the Fourth Presbyterian church, Chicago, was elected moderator of the Northern body, and Dr. J. S. Prole Lyons of the First Presbyterian church, Louisville, Ky., was chosen moderator for the Southern assembly. All three of the assemblies now have selected moderators, the United Presbyterians naming Dr. R. M. Russell of New Wilmington, Pa.

Interest now centers in the "Pan-Presbyterian Pentecostal" meetings, the first of which was held last night. More than 1,500 commissioners from the Northern, the Southern, the United and the Associate Reform churches were present at the first joint assembly in the history of these organizations.

Until Dr. Stone was nominated yesterday afternoon, his name had not been publicly mentioned as a possibility for the high office. Others nominated were Dr. Maitland Alexander of Pittsburg; Dr. William McKibbin of the Lane Theological seminary, Cincinnati, Ohio; Dr. Howard Agnew Johnson of Stamford, Conn., and Dr. S. S. Palmer of Columbus, Ohio. Dr. Stone's request that he be allowed to withdraw was voted down. In seconding the nomination, William T. Ellis of Swarthmore, Pa., had declared that to elevate Dr. Stone to the moderatorship would be a wholesome change from the old system of putmachinations among the leaders."

ALLEGED SMUGGLERS OF OPIUM ACQUITTED

Charges of Conspiracy Fail to Convince Jury at Seattle.

Seattle, Wash., May 16.—Charlie Louie, a Chinaman, and James A. Ralston, accused of conspiracy to smuggle opium, were acquitted by a jury in the United States district court last night after a trial lasting three days. Ralston, who was arrested in Portland, Or., with a trunk in his possession full of opium, will be taken to Portland to be tried on a charge of smuggling.

During the trial testimony was given that Ralston when arrested had charged that customs officials in Seattle "were crooked." Ralston, on the witness stand, said some of the customs men were in the opium ring, but mentioned no names. Ralston admitted carrying large quantities of opium from Seattle to other cities in the Northwest, but said he had nothing to do with bringing the drug into this country, this being done by a mysterious Henry Wellman, who was his employer.

Customs Inspector Accused.

The name of Nell MacArthur, a customs inspector who disappeared a week before the trial was begun, was frequently brought into the case by the government, the district attorney alleging that MacArthur and Louie were on intimate terms, and producing witnesses who testified that MacArthur had passed the opium trunk found in Portland when Ralston was arrested.

United States Attorney Sullivan in his address to the jury declared that the mysterious Wellman was no other than Charlie Louie himself. The address given as the headquarters of the alleged mythical Wellman is an office formerly occupied by Samuel D. Hausman, aged 70, who was arrested in Honolulu, Feb. 8, with a large quantity of opium, and attempted to commit suicide after his arrest. Hausman is the father-in-law of George F. Vanderveer, formerly prosecuting attorney of King county and counsel for the defendants in the present trial.

FRENCH ARMY POLICY UPHELD.

Paris, May 16.—The chamber of deputies last night approved the government's military policy by a vote of 315 to 214.

Premier Parthou, during the debate, told the deputies that the retention of this year's time-expired soldiers in the army was urgent and inevitable in view of the European situation. The premier said the government took the fullest responsibility for this action.

Edouard Lachaud, Radical Republican, said there was no place to house the new recruits if the time-expired men were retained and he asserted that the barracks were now breeding places for tuberculosis.

MAYOR MAKES PROMISES

Commissioners May Take Initiative for Pavement of East Superior Street.

Lester Park Improvement Club Hears Several Interesting Talks.

Mayor Prince, at a meeting of the Lester Park Improvement club, held last evening at the Lester Park M. E. church, declared himself in favor of paving East Superior street from Twenty-third avenue to Sixtieth avenue, and asserted that the commissioners, acting within their legal rights, would take the initiative in the matter this year, with the hope that the actual laying of the pavement may begin next year.

This was an extra meeting of the club and was addressed by Mayor Prince, Commissioner Hicken, Judge Bert Fesler and C. P. Craig. About 200 residents of the park were present and evinced much pleasure over the promises made.

Judge Fesler was the first speaker. He told of the desires of the residents of that part of the city, among which were the widening and paving of East Superior street, the improvement of some of the avenues, procuring more land for the park, improving the bridges there and the removal of street car snow fences. He pointed out that in the matter of improvement the city commission does not need the consent of property owners, but may take the initiative.

Mayor Prince in reply said that he believes this will be done in the matter of paving East Superior street this year. He said that Commissioner Hicken has charge of the proposition to obtain from the Duluth & Iron Range road the vacating of twenty feet of its right-of-way from Forty-fourth to Fifty-fourth avenues and it will be high time soon to take up the paving matter.

Commissioner Hicken, in the course of his address, advised that in paving the avenues in the park district they should be narrowed down at least to twenty-three feet, and, if possible, to twenty feet, for the reason that no wider avenues are necessary and it will reduce the cost of paving materially.

Both the mayor and the commissioner promised to see to it that the installing of electric light and telephone poles be better regulated, that repairing of bridges be taken care of and that steps will be taken for the acquiring of more property for Lester Park. The mayor also said that Sunday baseball will not be permitted in the city parks but that games may be played on the London road grounds.

RAILROAD FREE OF LOVER'S ARDOR.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 16.—The Rock Island company is not liable for the injury of Miss Elma Johnson of Johnson county, which resulted when a brakeman in their employ delivered a love message weighted with a signal torpedo to her last summer. The Iowa supreme court so decided.

From the court record it appears that as Miss Johnson's home was near the railroad, it became the brakeman's habit to throw personal notes from the train on which he was passing. One day he desired to send a message to the girl, and a signal torpedo was the handiest weight he could find. A sister of Miss Johnson carried the torpedo-weighted message to her, but in some manner she dropped it and was hurt in the explosion. The court in its opinion said:

"Like other departments of government, the courts are progressing along some lines. But it will be some time before the courts can hold that a mere act of courtship can be deemed referable to the commands of the employer."

ARTISTS TALK ABOUT TARIFF.

Washington, May 16.—Revision of existing stringent tariff regulations that prevent the creations of American artists working and studying abroad from entering this country for display was urged at the afternoon session of the convention of the American Federation of Arts.

Tariff revision was brought to the attention of the convention by Thomas Wood Stevens of the Art Institute of Chicago in discussing the problems and needs of the small museum. He declared that one of the reasons why the small museum failed to flourish was the lack of proper exhibits. This, he added, was because many of the American artists working abroad preferred not to encounter the immense amount of red tape necessary to be unwound before shipping their works home for exhibition purposes.

In the Underwood tariff bill now pending, works of art are placed on the free list.

President Robert De Forest outlined the plans for a national clearing house for information regarding every branch of art. He put this in the form of a suggestion for the convention to work.

The convention closed today with a reception and garden party given at the White House by President and Mrs. Wilson, who were made honorary members of the federation.

SLIGHTLY ERRONEOUS.

Alfred and Leonidas Merritt Have Not Bought Cuyuna Land.

During the last two or three days Twin City papers have given much publicity to a statement that Alfred and Leonidas Merritt had purchased an 80-acre tract on the Cuyuna range and were about to develop an enormous iron mine.

One St. Paul paper contained a lengthy interview purporting to be with Alfred Merritt.

Aside from the fact that Alfred Merritt was in California and did not give the interview, and that neither Alfred Merritt nor Leonidas Merritt has bought any land on the Cuyuna, and Leonidas Merritt is giving his whole time to the job of city commissioner and not engaging in any outside business, the Twin City story is correct.

LANE FAVORS ALASKA ROAD

Secretary of Interior Says Government Should Build It.

Writes His Views in Letter to Senator Pittman.

Washington, May 16.—Secretary Lane of the interior department has placed himself on record as favoring a railway system in Alaska, constructed, owned and operated by the government. "Governmental ownership of railroads in Alaska," he said, "seems to me to be the one policy that will most certainly make for her lasting welfare."

The secretary expressed his views in a letter responding to inquiries from Senator Pittman, chairman of the committee on territories, which now has under consideration bills providing for the construction by the national government of a railway system in Alaska. "There is only one way to make a country a real part of the world," Secretary Lane wrote, "and that is by the construction of railroads into it. This has been the heart of England's policy in Africa; Russia's policy in western Asia, and is the prompting hope of the new movement in China. Whoever owns the railways of a country determines very largely the future of that country.

The Possible Alaska.

"I am convinced that we should think of Alaska as a land not only of mines and fisheries, but of towns, farms, mills and factories, supporting millions of people of the hardest and most wholesome of the race. If this conception of a possible Alaska is true regulation should be such as to bring about this possibility, and it seems to me there is less of hazard as to Alaska's future, if the government of the United States owns the railroads which will make its fertile interior valleys accessible from the cost and bring its coal, iron, copper and other mineral resources within the reach of the world.

"This is a new policy for the United States, very true. This is a new part of the United States. And policies properly change with new conditions. One determining question in all government should be, 'What is the wisest thing to do?' The ancient method of the opening of a country was to build wagon roads; the modern way is to build railroads.

Admits Experiment.

"To build these railroads ourselves and control them may be an experiment, but such a plan does not suggest scandals more shameful or political conditions more unhealthy than many we have known in new portions of our country under private ownership. And in the end we will be free to establish and maintain our own chosen relationship between Alaska and the rest of the United States, unhampered by threats of the restraining hand of any merely selfish influences. We can only secure the highest and fullest use of Alaska by making her railways wholly subordinate to her industrial and social life and by true public utilities.

"I favor the adoption of this policy. I believe it to be that under which Alaska will develop most safely and speedily, and under which the resources of that territory will most certainly become available to the whole people."

DARROW CASE MAY BE DROPPED.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 16.—Action which, it is said, may ultimately operate as a dismissal of the remaining indictment against Clarence S. Darrow, the Chicago lawyer, accused of jury bribery in the McNamara dynamiting case, has been taken by Assistant District Attorney Ford, on motion of the prosecutor, Judge Wood, acting presiding judge of the superior court, struck the indictment off the calendar, leaving the case to be reset at the option of the district attorney.

Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Asthma and Anemia Often Directly the Results of Rheumatic Blood.

Avoid Grippe, Sore Throat and Similar Troubles by Using S. S. S.

If you have a persistent, nagging bronchial cough beware of cough remedies. They are merely local in action, and if they do relieve it is the narcotics that do it. What you require is a blood purifier, a searching antidote that removes from the circulation the acid poisons that by their reflexes attack all weakened, susceptible spots and thus create local symptoms. The very best remedy known is Swift's Sure Specific. You will find it on sale in any drug store at $1.00 per bottle. It goes straight into the blood, becomes an internal blood bath, wonderfully stimulates the increase of red corpuscles, cures all the local fever spots and irritations, increases appetite, you take on flesh and feel a wonderful sense of renewed strength. Hundreds of people worried beyond control at cough, pains in the chest, sore throat and constant expectoration of thick mucus have experienced the most wonderful change after using S. S. S. All doubt and apprehension is gone, those peculiar pains and aches vanish, there follows a period of most intense rejoicing to find that worst fears were based entirely upon a mistaken notion that cough and chest pains come from the lungs. These are rheumatic conditions, and you will quickly realize it after using S. S. S. for a few days. Get a bottle of S. S. S. to-day at the drug store and then say good-bye to all those pains that have worried you.

CONCERTS IN THE PARKS.

Mayor Prince made a very popular announcement yesterday when he said that there will be free public band concerts in the parks this summer.

This will provide wholesome enjoyment for the people of Duluth and also for the visitors who will come here during the summer, drawn by the week-end "Lark-o'-the-Lake" entertainments and by the supreme advantages of Duluth as a summer resort.

The subject of public band concerts, by the way, touches The Herald where it lives. It has been working for years to have these concerts established permanently. To show that the people would appreciate this privilege, for several seasons it provided Sunday afternoon concerts by the excellent Third Regiment band, and nobody who ever attended one of these concerts has any doubt whatever that the people want them. But the proper way to have them is for the city to do it, and it was to this end that The Herald was working. The end now seems accomplished.

It was slow work under the old form of government. There wasn't any authority for the expenditure of public money for this purpose, in the first place. Then it was rather slow work getting the charter commission to submit a charter amendment providing the necessary authority. The first time this amendment was voted upon it failed of adoption, though there was only a negligible vote against it.

Now, under the elastic commission plan, all that is necessary is a mayor who sees the point. Mayor Prince saw the point, so he is going to have the band concerts. The people, we are sure, will be grateful and will show it by their attendance.

With a British warship on the way to her shores, Guatemala has decided to accede to the British financial claims. Perhaps history will record that the claims in this case were "Scutarified."

SOCIETY AND THE WAGE SCALE.

A lot of foolish and unnecessary fuss has been made over the government's threat to investigate cases of wage-cutting that follow the passage of the new tariff law.

If any wage reductions are made, which we doubt, it will be of the highest importance to know whether or not they are justified.

If they are necessary, those who make them will be glad of the chance to have the fact proved.

If they are unjustified, then the public will be glad of the chance to find it out.

It is of the highest importance to society that wages shall not be unfairly reduced—especially that they shall not be reduced by private interests to discredit the law of the land.

Now that a scientist has assured everybody that microbes can't live on our United States paper money, there may be less hesitation, on the part of those who have philanthropically held on to the stuff, about passing it around among their friends.

IS THIS AN AMERICAN STATE?

West Virginia is having very serious labor troubles, and for some time it has been practically in a state of civil war.

The other day, under orders from Governor Hatfield, two labor papers published in that state were confiscated and their editors and reporters sent to jail. They have had no trials, and apparently there is no intention of giving them any. The warrants for their arrest simply state that they are to be "confined in jail as long as necessary or until further orders from the governor."

That's a very odd situation. We haven't read what these labor papers had to say about the strike, but probably they took the side of the workers who are trying to better their condition, and very likely they were pretty outspoken. No doubt they said things reflecting on the governor and the administration of the law in West Virginia. It is not at all improbable that they charged that the law in that state seemed to exist for the benefit of mine-owners.

We find it hard to imagine what they could have said to warrant confiscation and the imprisonment of their editors and reporters at the pleasure of the governor. Frankly, we do not believe there is anything they could say that would warrant such high handed acts, which sound more like Russia than America.

Yet we discover that this proceeding is constitutional in West Virginia.

Which gives great plausibility to the charge that has been made that West Virginia is largely the personal estate of the Scotts, the Davises and their business associates.

It is comforting to find, however, that there isn't another state in the Union in which such things can be done under the Constitution.

That gives us greater respect for the rest of the states, but very much less for West Virginia.

If the state government, and the business interests which appear always to control it, have such un-American powers, we hope they will continue to abuse them until the free people of West Virginia rise in their might and get themselves a new Constitution.

If you really can't get up any enthusiasm over the baseball games, try a shy at the Lake Mohonk conference.

THE TARIFF CALAMITY HOWLER.

About the poorest citizenship now in evidence in this country, outside that displayed by the Bull Moose jingoes of California who are willing to hazard the peril of war to "put Wilson in a hole," is that exhibited by the Republican debaters on the tariff who predict—or threaten—panic, hard times and disasters innumerable if the Underwood tariff bill becomes a law.

They know it isn't so. They know—or ought to know—that the tariff structure which is being attacked has been prolific in evil consequences. They know—or ought to know—that business will be on a healthier basis with the Underwood tariff than it has been with the series of Republican tariffs which it will succeed.

Yet they predict panics and hard times if the Underwood bill becomes law, and if they were taken seriously by the public the alarms they raise might easily create hard times and panic regardless of the merits of the new tariff law.

The commonest kind of mental and moral strabismus is that of the man who thinks—or who professes to think—that unless things can be done his way ruin is certain. He and the man who thinks that those who fail to agree with him are either fools or crooks, are twins.

England imported forty million dozen eggs in the first three months of this year No wonder the suffragists were able to hatch a lot of trouble.

ANOTHER TASK FOR IT.

The Long Prairie Leader is very complacent about the fact that the legislature saved about $25,000 in legislative expenses at its recent session, and takes credit for bringing it about because of the showing it made two years ago of the extravagance of that session.

We guess the Leader is entitled to a good deal of credit for this, too; because it certainly raised a very audible holler about the penknives and fountain pens, et cetera.

And a very foolish and silly practice it was, too, to spend the state's money in dispensing pretty gifts to Tom, Dick and Harry—likewise to Irene, Mamie and Maude.

There was none of it this time—not a solitary fountain pen or a single penknife or paper cutter. A clerk who had a fountain pen left over from the last session couldn't even induce the legislative expense committee to buy him a bottle of ink to fill it with, and had to buy it himself.

So the legislature saved $25,000, which is about what an extra session will cost if the governor adheres to his resolution to call one.

And we are willing that the Long Prairie Leader should get every particle of credit that it is entitled to for every cent the state saved on legislative letterheads and folderols.

But the legislature increased its general appropriations several millions of dollars.

The Long Prairie Leader should take this up and see if in another two years it can't achieve proportionate results in the items that really count in the tax statement.

Some Mexican papers are urging a boycott against the United States. It's a little hard to imagine just how the United States could survive such a blow as that, but probably we'd just have to struggle along as best we could.

Say the Kind Word Now.

Philips Brooks: Oh, my dear friends, you who are letting miserable misunderstandings run on from year to year, meaning to clear them up some day; you who are keeping wretched quarrels alive because you cannot quite make up your mind that now is the day to sacrifice your pride and kill them; you who are passing men sullenly upon the street, not speaking to them out of some silly spite and yet knowing that it would fill you with shame and remorse if you heard that one of those men were dead tomorrow morning; you who are letting your neighbor starve, till you hear that he is dying of starvation, or letting your friend's heart ache for a word of appreciation of sympathy, which you mean to give him some day—if you only could know and see and feel, all of a sudden, that the time is short, how it would break the spell! How you would go instantly and do the thing which you might never have another chance to do.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters must not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

THINKS DISTRICT IS A NECESSITY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In reading your paper, I noticed an article in regard to closing the restricted district. I wish to express my views on a few points that I think the lawmakers, also the enforcers of the law, have overlooked. I am married and have one daughter, and as far as I am concerned the law will not affect me, as my child is not old enough to understand, but for mothers who have grown-up daughters I wish to say a few things. I think the closing of the district will be the cause of more young girls' ruin than anything else. It will also result in that class of people being in all parts of the city, and the best run police force in the world will not be able to handle them. It may be a law, and probably would be all right in a small town, but not in a city the size of Duluth, especially a seaport town. Human nature demands a class of that kind and I think the city officials ought to consider deeply before enforcing this law, if not for the public in general, at least for the protection of young girls whom their parents are trying to raise respectably. Let Duluth officials take the district from the public, law or no law, and they will find they have made a very big mistake, as there will be sorrow in many a family, and the closing of the district will be the cause of it. Thanking you in advance, I remain, yours respectfully, FRED LOUDAN, 120 Sixth avenue west.

Duluth, May 16.

Serving Two Masters

Collier's: In all the recent discussion of big business, the phrase "interlocking directorates" has figured largely, and there is now pending in congress a bill, fathered by Senator Cummins of Iowa, to make this institution illegal. The precise moral quality involved in the position of interlocking director was brought out in the New Haven railroad investigation in the cold clearness which is only possible in the question and answer form of homiletics. One man, Mr. Henry K. McHarg, is a director in the New Haven railroad; he is also a director and president of the Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke company. The coal company sells coal to the railroad company—large quantities of coal. The purchasing agent of the railroad—the man who naturally would know all about it—was on the witness stand:

Q.—Was Mr. McHarg interested in getting the price for his coal as president of the coal company?
A.—Yes.
Q.—And not in getting as low a price as possible in his capacity as a New Haven director?
A.—No.

There you have the moral position of every one of those captains of industry and finance who serve as interlocking directors of railroads on the one hand, and on the other hand of banks, coal companies, steel companies and car-equipment companies which sell coal or cars or rails or money to the railroads. Do they keep faith with the railroad stockholders by getting the supplies at the lowest possible price? Or do they fulfill their trust to the coal company stockholders by getting the highest possible price? If Mr. McHarg's cook should be found to be a partner in the butcher shop which furnishes the McHarg family with its daily sustenance, we can imagine the odor of moral sanctity with which her tenure in the McHarg kitchen would be terminated. Is this not exactly that particular variety of the talent for acquisition for which the word "graft" was added to the language? And by what curious whim of the divine distribution of vocational aptitudes did it turn out that the son of the New Haven president, Mr. Mellen, is not a musician, nor an editor, nor a coffee merchant, but is the Eastern sales agent for the Keystone Coal company, which supplies over 20 per cent of the coal used by the New Haven railroad?

Churchgoing and Civilization.

Kansas City Times: Berlin, according to a Dresden clergyman quoted in the Star, has deteriorated morally in the last few years, and he proceeds to cite a shocking lot of evidence to prove his point.

While allowance must be made for the enthusiasm of the Puritan temperament in denouncing evils, it is difficult to avoid wondering whether there may not have come a tendency to laxness in moral standards in connection with the rapid growth of cities and the decline of church influence in them.

Restraints on conduct imposed by public opinion are notoriously weakened in the cities, where the individual may be lost in the crowd, and certainly there never have been anything like so many large cities as there are today. Accompanying this growth has come what many religious leaders feel is a falling off in the influence of the church. Certainly the old authority of the church, enforced by a fear of hell fire, has declined. At the same time its influence has been undermined by the multiplication of amusements in cities. In the country the church is the social center of the community. In the city it must compete with theaters, moving picture shows, baseball, golf and a host of attractions.

In some parts of Europe a man is ashamed to admit that he goes to church. His associates would take it as an indication of lack of enlightenment. Certain sets are growing up in this country where the same feeling exists.

For centuries the church has been a great bulwark of morality. Its teachings have had a tremendous influence in the formation of character. There are many men of the finest type who do not go to church. But are not they the unconscious products of the ideals the church is advancing?

It is a fair question whether a general decline in churchgoing would not naturally be attended by a weakening of the community's ideals—ideals which are at the very foundation of civilization, for civilization is built on character.

Minnesota Needs the Short Ballot

Representative Gunnar B. Bjornson in Minneota Mascot.

It is time that an agitation for the so-called "short ballot" were started in Minnesota.

The last election gave us a ballot that averaged about a yard and a half in length.

There is not a man born who can vote that kind of a ballot intelligently—simply because no man will ever take the trouble to acquaint himself sufficiently with each candidate on a list of that kind to make an intelligent selection in each instance.

It is admitted that the commission form of government for cities is, all considered, the best form.

This is because the commission form requires the election of only a few men and then makes them responsible for the government of the city.

When few men only are to be elected it is easier for the voter to make a good choice. He can make reasonable acquaintance with a dozen candidates and their record—he cannot make the acquaintance of a hundred or more.

The short ballot is one of the next reforms that Minnesota must adopt.

Where the short ballot has been tried it has given reasonable satisfaction and with the recall, that other reform feature now so popular, it seems that a system has been devised that should safeguard every interest of the people.

The short ballot is a system devised for the purpose of protecting the people from the effects of their own mistakes, without taking away any of their rights.

The system will give them a firmer hold on the government.

Instead of confusing the public with an array of candidates for positions that are really only clerkships the short ballot system will place a few executive and administrative heads of departments before the people and every voter will have an opportunity to learn about, and to some degree make the acquaintance of, the men who seek office.

Those who believe in the real, the genuine rule of the people cannot but deplore the all too evident fact that our insanely long and still lengthening ballot is making a government by the people almost impossible—and in many instances a mere farce.

The tendency of the best political thought is for the short ballot.

Progressive thinkers, along political lines, in every state, favor it.

But the people must make themselves acquainted with the system—they must place upon it the stamp of approval. Then when public opinion demands it, it will soon find its way from the stage of theory to a state of fact.

Minnesota should come to the front and adopt this form of ballot—it is one of the most essential of all progressive measures.

A New Field for Pianists.

London Mail: One of the features of the International Kinematograph exhibition is to be a contest among pianists—not a contest of endurance, but a contest of skill. Each competitor will sit before a film which he has never seen before and will have to play appropriate music. That is where the art of the moving picture show pianist comes in.

"We have got to keep the spectators in the right frame of mind," said one. "If we started playing 'Hitchy-Koo' during a pathetic death scene of a dreamy waltz while the hero and the villain are grappling on the edge of a precipice, the show would be ruined. Every picture must have its accompaniment just right.

"And every note must be dropped in pat on the moment. If I were to delay the twiddly bit I throw in when the young man kisses his sweetheart until the next second when the girl's father is kicking him round the room, I should be looking for a job just as soon as the show was over. The same thing if I began the quick march before the army moved.

"I have heard Paderewski and Leonard Borwick and a lot more, but they would be in a pickle if they were set down to illustrate a Wild West drama, a French bank robbery, pelicans feeding their young, and three comic scenes all in half an hour. No music, too. I have got to keep it all in my head and vamp it out when the composer's stuff dries up before the film is done. A concert at Queen's hall is child's play to it."

A manager at another picture theater agreed that art was required, but said he very seldom got it. "One of my pianists thought 'Sweet Dreamland Faces' a suitable tune to go with a bad attack of delirium and hammered out 'Everybody's Doing It' while the Red Indians were tying up the beautiful paleface maiden to be burnt at the stake. For thirty shillings a week a man expects better sense than that."

Hobson's Choice.

Milwaukee Journal: Barber—Poor Jim has been sent to a lunatic asylum.

Victim (in chair)—Who's Jim?

"Jim is my twin brother, sir. Jim has long been broodin' over the hard times, an' I suppose he finally got crazy."

"Is that so?"

"Yes, he and me has worked side by side for years, and we were so alike we couldn't tell each other apart. We both brooded a great deal, too. No money in this business now."

"What's the reason?"

"Prices too low. Unless a customer takes a shampoo it doesn't pay to shave or haircut. Poor Jim, I caught him trying to cut a customer's throat because he refused a shampoo, so I had to have the poor fellow locked up. Makes me sad. Sometimes I feel sorry I didn't let him slash all he wanted to. It might have saved his reason. Shampoo, sir?"

"Yes."

Easily Solved.

Philadelphia Telegraph: The arithmetic class in a country school, Senator Townsend said, was called to the front by the teacher, and in a few minutes the youngsters were in the throes of fractions.

"Now, children," began the dainty little school marm, "suppose that, in a family of five, mother has only four potatoes among them. In order to give each one an equal share what must she do?"

For a minute great was the silence in the schoolroom. Every kid was doing all kinds of thinking, and finally up went Jimmie's hand.

"Well, Jimmie," said the teacher, "what would mother do?"

"She would mash 'em, Miss Jennie," was the prompt reply of Jimmy.

Sweet Charity.

Milwaukee News: "We are going to give a series of bridge parties for the poor. I love to do things for the poor."

"So do I. I love to play bridge for them."

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Michael F. Conry of New York fell and exasperated a tendon in his ankle a short time ago, with the result that he was laid up in the hospital. Friends came to offer sympathy about his hard luck.

"Oh, things might be worse," observed Conry, cheerfully. "The fact is, I got my start in a hospital."

His friends thought he was cracking a joke and let it go at that, but he was not. When he was a youngster, over in his native Pennsylvania, Conry was obliged to leave school even before he had mastered the alphabet. He was obliged to toil ten or twelve hours a day in a coal mine, with little prospect of anything better. One day he fell and broke his leg and was taken to a public ward in a hospital.

He and the man in the adjoining cot became friends. The man was astonished to find that Conry, though 16 years old, had never learned to read. He sent for books and taught the boy, starting in with the alphabet. During those few weeks in the hospital, Conry learned more than he had in all the sixteen years of his life. When he was able to leave the hospital, his friend helped him to get a job that would enable him to go to school nights. Three years later he was teaching school himself. Then he put himself through law school.

A short time later we find Conry assistant corporation attorney for the city of New York. And then he bobbed up and beat the silver-tongued Bourke Cochran for congress. All of which, for a young chap who hadn't learned the alphabet at 16, comprises first-rate headway.

A certain senator curled himself up on a lounge in one of the cozy little rest rooms adjoining the senate chamber the other day and fell asleep. That wouldn't have mattered, but he snored in a loud, boisterous manner. John Sharp Williams walked over to wake him up, and he did so in this language:

"Up, up, Lucy! The sun is shining! Little Mary has been playing in the garden for an hour."

Senator Shively of Indiana was considered the Apollo Belvidere of the house of representatives when he did time there a few years ago. Tall and graceful, with black hair and mustache and a glittering eye, he was a man who would have attracted attention anywhere. Even yet he is a man of striking appearance, but he has taken on a half-frightened look that, in combination with his tall, slender frame, reminds one of a greyhound.

"Jimmy" Cox, governor of Ohio, has always been a great hand to surround himself with Georges. Just now his secretary is George F. Burba; his adjutant general is George Wood; his farm superintendent is George Bohlander, and his colored chauffeur and all-around household factotum is named George—no other name.

The governor frequently resorts to the bromidic expression: "Let George do it."

Representative Augustus Owsley Stanley, who may be a senator from Kentucky presently, cites this pertinent little story to illustrate whatever it was that he sought to illustrate with it.

It seems that the colored pastor of a colored church in Stanley's district, or some place, had narrated to his congregation the adventure of Daniel in the lion's den. One or two members of the flock walked along toward home with their pastor after church. Inquired a short, blocky little chap:

"Brothah Johnson, when was it that man Dan'l got hisself into that 'ere lah-on's den?"

"Guess it mus' have been 'bout 700 B. C.," replied the preacher.

"Huh! Couldn't ha' been then. The' wasn't ary lah-ons B. C.

"What you talkin' about? What you think that B. C. means?"

"Everybody knows what B. C. means. It means befo' cl'cusses."

Lawrence Y. Sherman, one of the new Illinois senators, will never be identified with much legislation except behind the scenes. That is, few senate bills of consequence will ever bear his name. During his dozen or more years in the Illinois legislature he was never known as the author of more than one or two bills, yet he was mixed up in nearly every important piece of legislation that was enacted in that time. It is the new senator's theory that a man can get more bills passed by keeping his name off and letting somebody else take the credit. This is the same system that Postmaster General Burleson worked effectively when he was a member of congress.

Secretary of Commerce Redfield is one of the best choir and glee singers ever produced in Brooklyn, N. Y. He has organized choral societies, one after another, and is at his best when acting as impresario for a cantata. Redfield can not only sing as long as the next person, but can do so in a voice characterized by rare quality.

The King.

Life: See (or behold) the king!

No one sees a king, unless, possibly, at a game of poker. The proper thing is always to behold him.

The king presides at functions, attends the race track, issues messages to constitutional bodies which have previously been written by the ministers, piles up debts and leads a double life. He also attends wars, where he occupies an important strategic position (with the other statesmen who have brought on the war) at a place called "headquarters," which is usually about eighteen miles in the rear of the battle.

Some say that the king is a back number. He has been held up to ridicule so long that even the proletariat is no longer in awe of him. Still, by a sort of royal inertia, he continues to exist—like the vermiform appendix.

Some kings are fat and others are thin; some tall and others short; all kings are uneasy; this king is no exception to the rule. He has a number of crowns, some of them larger than others, in order to fit the various sizes of his head.

He keeps on hand a collection of prerogatives which he uses more sparingly than was his wont.

The king usually keeps a dress suit case packed with a few necessary clothes in the event that he may have to leave his throne and his creditors in a hurry. This shows that kings are oftentimes wiser than they seem.

No Authority.

Tit-Bits: A gentleman was sorely out of patience by some blunder of his new groom.

"Look here," he cried in his anger. "I won't have things done in this way! Do you think I'm a fool?"

"Sure, sorr," said the groom. "Oi can't say, sorr. Oi only came here yesterday."

Duluth and The Herald

Bouquets and Brickbats from the State Press.

Beautiful Duluth.

Cuyuna Miner: Duluth, already beautiful with shade trees, will plant 4,000 more trees this season, and Chisholm has engaged the services of a skilled landscape gardener to boulevard its streets, plant trees and beautify the lake shore. Just for the fun of the thing? Nope, there's money in it in property values.

The Easy Road.

Stillwater Gazette: Just as soon as the road between Duluth and Two Harbors is completed, a rich man having given $1,000,000 to build and keep the same in repair, all the tramps will be sent out of town the other way. Smooth roads are not built for tramps and vags.

Next!

St. Cloud Journal-Press: A Duluth man has given that city $1,000,000 to build a lake shore boulevard from Duluth to Two Harbors. The late Judge Holland gave Brainerd two valuable iron properties, which it is believed will pay off the bonded indebtedness of that city. What St. Cloud man is going to build a monument for himself by being good to the Busy, Gritty Granite City?

Come to Duluth!

Brainerd Dispatch: The Minnesota Editorial association has two summer outings to offer the members this year and it is not their fault if the members of the "gang" are not satisfied. One is a week's trip to the iron region of Northern Minnesota, at Duluth and on the lakes at an expense of $27 from St. Paul. The other trip is to Denver and other Colorado points at an expense of $90 for the ten days' vacation and sight seeing. The Duluth trip will appeal to the pocketbook and to those who think "seeing Minnesota first" is essential from a beneficial standpoint.

Getting It Elsewhere.

Luverne Herald: This Duluth summer weather may be delightful, but the people of Southern Minnesota are not accustomed to it so late in the spring.

It Is Done.

Two Harbors Journal-News: Chicago has passed an ordinance limiting street car passengers to the seating capacity of the cars. Duluth papers please copy and carry the message to Hicken.

The Umpire's Crimes.

Stillwater Gazette: The high cost of living is about the only thing that won't be laid to the umpire in the next few months.—Duluth Herald.

Some of the players may have reason to know that the umpires are the cause of their high price of living.

Never All Right.

Mankato Free Press: The Duluth Herald calls the seven senators bill "that ugly-visaged monstrosity." Otherwise the measure is all right.

The Restraint.

New York Tribune: A professor at a Harvard tea was asked why books of recollections were always so tame.

"Let me tell you a story," he answered. "A great man once said to a friend:

"'I think I'll write my recollections.'

"'Very good,' said the friend; 'but let me caution you not to recollect anything about celebrities that are living.'

"'Oh,' said the great man, 'living celebrities are just the ones I want to write about. They're the ones that will make my book sell.'

"'Very well,' said the other; 'but remember my warning.'

"'Why, what's the danger, anyway?'

"'The danger,' replied the other, 'is that as soon as you begin to recollect things about living celebrities they will begin to recollect things about you.'"

A Grave Crisis.

Life: We desire to call attention to the alarming increase in prominent people. If this thing keeps up we shall all be hopelessly involved. There was a time when it was possible to know practically all of the prominent people they were. For instance, in the old Roman days, you could keep track of Julius Caesar up in Gaul, and Cicero, Lucullus, Horace, Virgil and all the others that were worth knowing could almost be counted on the fingers of both hands.

But today everybody is more or less prominent, and becoming more so.

The only solution that we can think of is to become acquainted with the people who are not prominent. They fill a small but select society and they are better people to know, anyway. They have modesty and are not pushing themselves forward, and they wear better in the long run.

On the Lookout.

Judge: The little boy was waiting at the gate when the preacher rode up. "Are you Brother Jones?" the little boy asked.

"Yes, my little man. Are you glad to see me?"

"You bet I am! Mamma'll cut the cake now."

EPILOGUE.

When in your vaunted pride you hear
The roaring welcome of the stands,
The unleashed hero-tinted cheer,
The echo of applauding hands,
Lift up your head above all men—
Think how these thousands worship you—
Go to it—eat it, pal—and then
Remember Donohue.

When headlines on the Printed Page
Rate you the Ruler of the Field—
The war god of a golden age
That reels before your lance and shield—
Take in the boost of voice and pen,
Say, "Here, at last, I've drawn my due"—
Swell with the thrill of it—and then
Remember Donohue.

What is there left to curb you now?
The world is at your steel-shod feet,
The laurel grips your clammy brow
Where no man comes who might compete;
So lift your beaker up again,
Nor turn to Time's remorseless cue—
Here's how—Cobb, Matty, Walsh—and then Drink one to Donohue.

Handicapped.

Harper's Weekly: A shipbuilder tells of an Irishman who sought employment as a diver in the service of one of the shipbuilding companies.

The first job to which the Irishman was assigned was to be performed in comparatively shallow water. He was provided with a pick and told to use it on a ledge below.

Mike was put into a diver's suit and with his pick was sent down to tackle the ledge. For about fifteen minutes nothing was heard from him. Then came a strong, determined, deliberate pull on the signal rope, indicating that Mike had a decided wish to come to the top. The assistant hastily pulled him to the raft and removed his helmet.

"Take off the rist of it," said Mike.

"Why, what's the matter?"

"Take off the rist of it," doggedly reiterated Mike. I'll wur-rk no longer on a job where I can't spit on me hands."

On What Happiness Depends.

George S. Merriam: A little thought will show you how vastly your own happiness depends on the way other people bear themselves toward you. The looks and tones at your breakfast table, the conduct of your fellow workers or employers, the faithful or unreliable men you deal with, what people say to you on the street, the way your cook and housemaid do their work, the letters you get, the friends or foes you meet—these things make up very much of the pleasure or misery of your day. Turn the idea around and remember that just so much are you adding to the pleasure or misery of other people's days. And this is the half of the matter which you can control. Whether any particular day shall bring to you more of happiness or of suffering is largely beyond your your power to determine. Whether each day of your life shall give happiness or suffering rests with yourself.

It is one thing to make soda crackers that are occasionally good.

It is quite another thing to make them so that they are always better than all other soda crackers, always of unvarying goodness.

The name "Uneeda"—stamped on every biscuit—means that if a million packages of Uneeda Biscuit were placed before you, you could choose any one of them, confident that every soda cracker in that package would be as good as the best Uneeda Biscuit ever baked. Five cents.

HEALTH WILL BE STANDARD

New Method of Judging Babies at Infant Welfare Exhibit.

All Children Under 3 Years of Age May Be Entered in Contest.

Time was when a committee of brash and brave citizens took their lives in their hands and chose the most beautiful baby from among the list that fond mothers exhibited at the county fair along with the prize pumpkin and the blue ribbon pie. But that day is past and next Friday afternoon at the Infant Welfare Exhibit to be held at the auditorium of the Masonic temple, a committee of Duluth physicians will select the three healthiest babies of the number entered in the competition and to the healthiest, not the most beautiful will be the prizes awarded.

It is a nicer arrangement all around. Mother herself may take the credit for the health of her offspring, but as for his beauty, a child will at times inherit his father's features, and under those circumstances can a mother be blamed if he loses in a beauty contest? Not at all. The new method of awarding prizes will be more comfortable for the committee also. The doting parent of one who has been passed by can so easily comfort herself with "Well, of course, if they select those coarse children! For my part I prefer a more delicate type of health and beauty," and can cuddle her own particular bundle of loveliness in the comforting circle of her arm and be glad that he is not as other babies are.

Next Friday at the Masonic temple promises to be a most interesting event. All mothers are invited to be present and there are no restricting conditions as to the babies to be entered in the contest. The children may be any age so long as they are under 3 years. The three prizes will be awarded the three healthiest.

Two Days For Schools.

Great interest is being shown in the Infant Welfare Exhibit which will open Monday. The two first days of the exhibit have been reserved for the pupils of the high school and the seventh and eighth grades of the city. Prizes will be awarded the pupils of the seventh and eighth grades for the best essay on "What I Learned About the Care of Babies at the Welfare Exhibit," to be written after the visits Monday and Tuesday. The following schedule for visits to the exhibit has been arranged for the various schools.

Monday, 1:30 p. m., Lester Park, Lakeside and Washburn; 2 p. m., Washington, Webster and Whittier; 2:30 p. m., Lincoln; 3 p. m., Jackson and Emerson; 3:30 p. m., Franklin and Nettleton.

Tuesday, 9:30 a. m., Merritt and Bryant; 10 a. m., Madison and Monroe; 10:30 a. m., Ely and Fairmount; 11 a. m., Jefferson; 11:30 a. m., Central high school; 1:30 p. m., Endion and Salter; 2 p. m., Industrial high school; 2:30 p. m., Cascade and Ensign; 3 p. m., Irving; 3:30 p. m., Adams and Lowell.

The public is invited to attend the exhibit Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The hours will be in the afternoons from 3 to 5:30 o'clock and in the evenings from 8 to 10 o'clock. Informal musical programs have been arranged for the sessions. Wednesday afternoon, Miss Isabel Pearson will be in charge of the music. Wednesday evening a program will be presented by Miss Berta Schmeid: Thursday afternoon, Miss Josephine Carey will be in charge and that evening Miss Schmeid will again present the program. Friday afternoon, Mothers' Day, only such music as can be discerned in the cries of the young contestants will be heard. Friday evening, the closing session of the exhibit Miss Pearson will again have charge of the musical program.

TRAVELERS TO VISIT DULUTH

"Know Minnesota First" Party Is Organized at the University.

Duluth, Winona, Pipestone and Crookston are being mentioned as the four centers of interest in the state to be visited on the state university's "Know Minnesota First" party, which is now being organized to take a four weeks' tour of the state, beginning June 16.

The trip was announced by the university several months ago. Yesterday the Commercial club received a notice that twenty business men would be allowed to accompany the students on the trip and that more than a dozen had already made application.

The tour will be conducted under the personal guidance of Edward M. Lehnert of the geography department. All teachers, students, and business men who desire to acquire a better knowledge of the state in which they live, have an invitation to join the party. Some of the students who will take the trip will be given university credit for it.

President Vincent has become quite interested in the junket and has decided to devote some of his time towards making it a success.

The estimated expenses of the trip are about $25 a week, exclusive of a small registration fee.

HURRY THE WEDDING.

Nellie Grant and Lieut. Cronan Married By Justice.

San Francisco, Cal., May 16.—Miss Nellie Grant, a granddaughter of President Grant, and Lieutenant Commander William Piggott Cronan, U. S. N., were hurriedly married here yesterday by a justice of the peace, without the knowledge of the bride's mother, who announced the engagement a few weeks ago. The couple drove to the license bureau, then walked into the office of Justice A. H. Barnett. No witness accompanied them, and the justice sent for his chief clerk to stand up with them.

When Mrs. Grant was informed over the telephone of the marriage, she said she was much gratified.

The bride is the daughter of Jesse Root Grant of San Diego and San Francisco, who came east with the bridegroom expecting to attend the wedding, a niece of U. S. Grant, Jr., and a cousin of the Princess Michael Cantacuzene Sporansky of St. Petersburg.

Lieutenant Commander Cronan is in command of the destroyer Jouett, stationed at Annapolis.

OLIVE Tablets OIL the Bowels

A Physician's Substitute for Dangerous Calomel.

When you feel that your liver and bowels need help take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Substitute for Calomel. Calomel is effective, but dangerous—causing bad after-effects.

Olive Tablets are especially made to take the place of Calomel. Dr. Edwards for years has been Calomel's foe. He saw its dangers and its disadvantages in 17 years' practice, treating patients for all kinds of liver and bowel complaints. In his efforts to do without Calomel he developed his now famous little olive-oil-colored tablets. Olive Tablets are mild but effective. Safe and sure. Pleasant to take but unfailing in results.

Olive Tablets oil the bowels just enough to start Nature's own action, and they tone up the liver at the same time. They are made from a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

If you want to regain that feeling of joyous buoyancy and clear thought take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They work like a vacation. 10 and 25 cents per box.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

MISSIONARY HOWLED DOWN

Baptists Resent Suggestion for Interdenominational Schools.

Speakers at Southern Convention Favor Tithing By the Laymen.

St. Louis, Mo., May 16.—When A. Y. Napier, Baptist missionary from Yang Chow, China, in an address before the Southern Baptist convention on how to make foreign missionary work more effective, said it was desirable that the Baptists join the other Protestant sects in building up interdenominational mission schools, there were cries of "no no" and "sit down" from all over the audience.

Finding it impossible to continue his address, he took his seat while the several thousand delegates from Southern states cried, "We are Baptists," "We will not give for compromise missions" and "You are getting out of the fold, brother."

Lay Leaders Approve Plan.

Some of the leaders, especially among the laymen, later told Napier they were in favor of interdenominational missions, and some of the preachers representing the larger churches of the important cities expressed privately to him a similar opinion, he afterward said. The opposition came from the rank and file of delegates from town and country churches, the liberals asserted after the close of the session. Especial attention was given to the subject of missionary work among negroes of the Southern states, and it was decided to build and equip a seminary for the education of negro Baptist preachers. This school would be located in Louisville, Ky.

Had Negro Mammies

The convention voted a special order of business to give Rev. Sutton Earl Griggs of Memphis, Tenn., the negro secretary of the national Baptist convention, opportunity to make an address. He said the orthodoxy of the Baptists of the South today was due principally to the fact that nearly all the white preachers had been raised by "black mammies, who had less trouble in believing the supernatural than did the white race with its more analytical mind. He said he was once present at a white Baptist convention at Sabine, Tex., where there were fourteen white preachers and thirteen of them acknowledged they had been raised by "black mammies."

"God snatched the warm-hearted black people from darkest Africa and set them down among the best regulated portion of the white race on the globe today, the white people of the Southern states, that they might learn the true religion of Christ and take it into the places where the white man finds it impossible to go," he said. "I believe the negroes of the South will be the greatest influence yet in the evangelization of all Africa."

Many Favor Tithing.

When Mr. Griggs' time expired, he was unanimously given consent to continue ten minutes longer. He kept his audience either in laughter or in tears.

The laymen's movement was given a prominent place in the discussions, most of the addresses being in favor of lay church members paying a tithe or 10 per cent of their income.

NEW HAVEN CUTS DOWN DIVIDEND.

New York, May 16.—The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company has reduced its annual dividend rate from 8 to 6 per cent by declaring a quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on common stock. The road has been paying 8 per cent since 1895. Between 1873 and 1893 its stock paid 10 per cent and its shares sold as high as 279. The stock sold as low as 102¾ during the past fortnight.

WOMEN ARE LEAVING CITY

Residents of Restricted District Are Looking for New Homes.

Not Waiting for the Severe New Law to Take Effect.

As May 31 draws nearer, the date upon which the new Minnesota injunction law becomes effective, the population of Duluth's red light district is growing smaller and smaller.

The women of the demi-monde are leaving the city every day, scattering in all directions. The officials state that very few, if any, have any intention of trying to remain in Duluth.

Wherever laws similar to that of Minnesota, which is based on that in force in Iowa, have been enacted, red light districts and obnoxious hotels have been put out of existence and the evil reduced to a minimum. Because of the severe penalties attached the property owners are taking the initiative. They refuse to take any chances of paying a heavy fine and having their buildings closed for a year. Either in person or through their agents they are informing the inmates of their properties that they must be out by the end of the month. Two madames have already closed their resorts and gone to other cities while the number of inmates has been reduced about one-half. May 31 will see the last of the old red light district in Duluth. The police have checked up all the questionable hotels and rooming places in the city and they will be closely watched, as will any of the women who may elect to seek other quarters in the city.

JUDGES OPPOSE DIVORCE REFORM.

Kansas City, Mo., May 16.—A proposal that an interval of at least three months be required between the filing of a divorce suit in Jackson county and its trial, has met with opposition from several circuit judges, and will not be acted upon, according to Thomas J. Seehorn, presiding judge of the circuit court.

The proposal was made by the committee of workers for divorce court reform as a means of furthering reconciliations, avoiding hasty divorce actions, and giving the proctor more time to investigate irregular suits. Judge Seehorn put the matter to a straw vote among the nine circuit judges.

Under the present rules a divorce suit may be filed and tried in the same day.

FARRELL HOTLY DENIES THAT HE IS THE VICE CANDIDATE

Not Party to Plan Outlined in News Tribune to Recall Hicken.

"I Don't Represent the Gamblers and Dissolute Women," He Says.

"BERT" FARRELL.

"Bert" Farrell is indignant. Indignation radiated from him this morning as he contemplated the story in the News Tribune dealing with alleged plans for the recall of Commissioner Hicken.

In one paragraph the News Tribune declared that the recall is being planned by "those elements who are out of sympathy with Hicken's policy of closing saloons at the time specified by law, shutting up gambling establishments, discouraging the maintenance of resorts of assignation and blotting out the segregated district, the main artery of which is St. Croix alley." In the next paragraph it declared that these same elements are counting on Farrell as the candidate to oppose Hicken.

"One would think that I was the tool of the law-breaking saloon men, the gamblers, the dissolute women and the men who live by vice," said Farrell this morning.

"It is unfair to me that such an impression should be given. I was tied up to no interest in the recent campaign; I am tied up to no interest now. I am a party to no recall talk. I would not become mixed up in a plan to recall Hicken on any such grounds. I do not know of a single petition being circulated.

"My case is in the courts. I believe I am going to win it, because I believe I was legally elected at the election April 1. I am satisfied to leave my case to the courts, and I certainly am not going to put myself before the people as the candidate of all the immoral elements in the city, even if I thought for one moment that I could be elected on such a platform.

"I do not know why my name was connected with such a story. It is not fair to me. It is not fair to my friends, who gave me their support in the recent campaign. It is not necessary for me to deny such a story to my friends, but I hope people who do not know me will not gain an impression so unfavorable to me as that indicated by the story."

at Pittsburg that he did not stand for free trade.

Senator James returned that the president was not a free trader, and that the proposed bill, calculated to raise $300,000,000 in revenue, was not a free trade bill.

"If you say President Wilson is a free trader because he favors free sugar," demanded Senator James, "did you call yourself a free trader when you voted for free bread and free shoes?"

Ransdell No Free Trader.

Senator Ransdell denied he was a free trader and asked if the Democratic national committee had not instructed its orators in the West not to discuss free sugar, and also if the party would not have been defeated if they had discussed it there.

"I know the Chicago headquarters so instructed Representative Aswell of Louisiana," he declared.

Senator James referred to the point made by the Louisiana leaders that President Wilson and the platform had declared against tariff reductions which would injure any legitimate industry.

"Legitimate Industry."

"By 'legitimate industry' in the platform," said the Kentucky senator, "is meant industrially legitimate and commercially legitimate industry. It does not refer to an industry which has had 125 years of government aid and protection and is yet unable to take care of itself."

Senator James eloquently praised President Wilson's stand for free sugar.

"If William H. Taft had had the courage of Woodrow Wilson he would have vetoed the Payne-Aldrich bill and bonfires would have burned on every hillside in his honor, and in my opinion he would have been re-elected," he said.

"President Wilson says he is in favor of free sugar and free wool and wants no compromise. At Pittsburg he merely said he did not want to destroy any legitimate industry. I challenge you to find anybody to whom Woodrow Wilson ever said he was not in favor of free sugar."

Senator Ransdell inquired if he considered the sugar business of the South and West legitimate.

"Legally, but not economically," replied Senator James.

Debate Was Lively.

The sugar schedule was the subject of enlivened debate late yesterday, Senator Ransdell of Louisiana answering the previous claim of Senator James of Kentucky that the Democratic platform warned Louisiana to expect free sugar. Mr. Ransdell submitted records in an effort to show that the party was not committed to free sugar.

Senator Thomas of Colorado discussed threats of business depression if the Underwood bill became a law. "No panic in the history of this country was ever caused by an attempt to revise the tariff," he said.

The senator aroused the Republican side by reading a magazine article which alleged that the panic of 1893 was manufactured by banking interests which desired the repeal of the Sherman silver purchase act. According to this article, circulars were sent out from New York banks demanding that they retire a part of their circulation and call in a large part of their loans, with the object of forcing congress to pass this legislation.

Senators Norris and Root expressed surprise that such a circular had been sent, and asked if it were signed.

"I didn't give any name because none appears here," said Senator Thomas in reply. "The senator knows, perhaps better than I do, where it came from."

Root Called It Absurd.

Senator Root said he was surprised that the senator from Colorado should make such "absurd" charges in the senate based on a communication apparently unsigned.

"The senator from Colorado does not have to take instructions from the senator from New York or anyone else," said Senator Thomas. "He is responsible to the people of his own state. He does not care whether the senator thinks this is absurd or not."

Senator Page offered to give $250 for the name of any Vermont banker who received this circular, declaring he was in a position to affirm that no banker in Vermont had ever received it. Senator Smoot said he could say the same thing of the bankers of Utah.

Senator Lane came to the assistance of his Democratic colleague by stating that he did know a banker who had received such a communication. He refused to give his name.

Senator Ransdell resumed his argument against free sugar by advancing the view that the people of Louisiana did not rely upon that part of the Democratic congress—which passed a free sugar bill—but upon the "business plank" which stated that no legitimate industry should be destroyed.

The Louisiana senator concluded with a personal appeal to his colleagues "in God's name not to vote for free sugar, and put the Louisiana industry to death."

country to prepare herself for the operation.

She was sentenced to six weeks imprisonment on Feb. 14 for smashing shop windows.

Victory for Women.

A defeat has been inflicted on the government by the "wild women" in the matter of the suppression of the militant suffragettes' newspaper, The Suffragette.

After Archibald Bodkin, counsel for the treasury, had announced that the government would prosecute anyone printing the newspaper in the future. The labor press and some of the liberal newspapers, which are the strongest supporters of the present cabinet protested that this was an infringement of the liberty of the press. The former Socialist member of parliament, George Lansbury, and the Socialist member, James Keir Hardie, personally offered to undertake the publication of the paper, but the suffragettes declined their offer with scorn.

Thereupon the home office issued a statement declaring that Mr. Bodkin's pronouncement had been misconstrued and that the Woman's Social and Political union or any publisher could issue the Suffragette so long as it did not contain any incitement to crime.

Publisher in Dilemma.

Sydney Dreem, the former publisher, has written to the home office that he was compelled to promise that he "will not hereafter directly or indirectly take part in printing The Suffragette or any other organ of the Women's Social and Political union," and he wants to know what steps are now to be taken to relieve him from this undertaking.

The special interest taken by the labor party in the question of The Suffragette was aroused because the labor newspapers frequently come into collision with the government. This is the case in regard to general conscription for the army, and in the event of this becoming the policy of the government, which the labor party fears, the labor newspapers propose to urge the workingmen of the British Isles to resist.

Complain of Discrimination.

The militant suffragettes again complain that the government discriminates between them and the Ulster Unionists. They point out that Sir Edward Carson has gone to Belfast to open the new hall of the drilling club there, the object of which is to resist home rule if it should be established, and they ask why Sir Edward is permitted to advocate rebellion whereas they are imprisoned for doing so.

This week's number of The Suffragette appeared today and was freely circulated. It was printed by the firm of Edward Francis, of whom the newspaper says:

"Though he has constantly deprecated what he calls our methods, he undertook the work, believing that freedom of the press was in danger,

RANGE MAN'S LIFE IS SAVED BY PULMOTOR

Velissa Raicewich Overcome By Gas in Hotel in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Velissa Raicewich, a miner from the range country, this state, today owes his life to the pulmotor and the police surgeon.

Raicewich took a room at a local hotel last night and retired. Early today the night housekeeper traced a strong odor of gas to his room. She broke down the door, but was unable to rouse Raicewich.

Police Surgeon Ingerson responded to a call from the hotel and revived the man after fifteen minutes' work with the pulmotor, after which he was taken to the city hospital. He will recover.

It is thought that Raicewich blew out the gas.

WEATHER BUREAU MAN IS REDUCED IN RANK

Charles T. Burns Is Found to Have Aided Moore's Campaign.

Washington, May 16.—Charles T. Burns, an assistant foreman in the weather bureau suspended at the time of the dismissal of Chief Willis L. Moore, today was reduced in rank and salary by Secretary Houston, who declared Burns "guilty of misconduct in the performance of his duty."

Moore was dismissed for "serious irregularities" and misuse of his office, of which it was alleged he had been guilty in his campaign for appointment as secretary of agriculture in President Wilson's cabinet. The case was referred to the department of justice for investigation. Burns was charged with complicity.

Fassig Accuses Moore.

Prof. Oliver L. Fassig, against whom charges were preferred by Moore, was acquitted of all except one—that of making a false statement regarding an item of express amounting to $6.65. No action was taken in his case. Fassig contended Moore made the charges because he refused to support his candidacy for secretary of agriculture.

Secretary Houston's investigation of the case disclosed, officials say, that on Dec. 27, 1912, Burns recommended that an inspection of weather bureau printing plants in various cities was necessary in the interest of economy and efficiency, "whereas the trip was planned by Moore for the primary purpose of promoting his candidacy for appointment as secretary of agriculture, and not for the promotion of economical or efficient administration of the bureau."

COMMITTEE ON SOCIAL NEEDS

Members Will Act as Advisory Board to Mayor Prince.

A committee representing the Central Council of Social Workers of the city will be appointed in a few days to confer with Mayor Prince as to the social needs of the city and the means of supplying them.

Mayor Prince attended a meeting of the council yesterday at the Commercial club and made the suggestion that the committee be appointed.

Courtenay Dinwiddie, secretary of the council, tendered his resignation and it was accepted. The nominating committee was directed to choose a successor. Mr. Dinwiddie said that the pressure of other duties prevented him from going on with the work.

The results of efforts of the bureau to encourage the breeding of army horses are gratifying, it was announced today.

"TAP DAY" QUIET.

Two Minnesotans Chosen to Yale Senior Societies.

New Haven, Conn., May 16.—"Tap-day," which is election day to the three senior societies at Yale, was celebrated yesterday. It was the quietest of its kind in years, due to agitation against senior society methods in conducting elections.

Skull and Bones gave elections to eight athletes out of their fifteen men chosen; Scroll and Keys took but three athletes, the remainder being men prominent in literary work. Wolf's Head elected a variety of men, both on literary and athletic merit. Henry R. Ketcham, football captain for next year, was the last man tapped for "Bones," and "Bus" Brown, the baseball pitcher, was the last tapped for Wolf's Head.

Daniels Turns Down "Keys."

Thomas L. Daniels of St. Paul, Minn., declined election to Keys and went to Bones.

Among those tapped are:

Skull and Bones—Thomas L. Daniels, St. Paul, Minn.; Clement Giele, Colorado Springs, Colo.; George W. Patterson, IV, of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Scroll and Keys—Edmund J. Phelps, Minneapolis, Minn.; Kenneth Moore, Detroit, Mich.

STATE'S BANK LAW IS VALID

Sharp of Winnebago Must Stand Trial, Says Supreme Court.

Glen Hutchinson of Steele County Found Unfairly Convicted.

St. Paul, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Sharp, president of the State Bank of Commerce of Winnebago, Minn., indicted on a charge of withholding information concerning the condition of the institution from the state superintendent of banks, must stand trial, according to a ruling today of the state supreme court.

H. W. Parker, former cashier of the bank, arrested in Georgia, now is serving sentence for embezzlement.

The supreme court sustained the trial judge, who overruled Sharp's demurrer to the indictment, holding that the law creating the department of banking is valid.

Sharp contended that he should not be held responsible because he knew nothing of the condition of the bank, but the court held that as president of the institution it was his business to know.

New Trial for Hutchinson.

Glen Hutchinson, aged 17, who was convicted in Steele county on the charge of grand larceny in the first degree, will get a new trial. The supreme court so decided today, on the ground that the charge of the trial judge to the jury did not give the lad a fair chance.

"The charge told the jury that unless the defendant's excuse was reasonable there should be a conviction," said the court. "The question was not whether the defendant's story was a reasonable one, but whether it was true."

Hutchinson was convicted of breaking into a jewelry store at Owatonna and stealing a number of watches. He tried to sell one at Rochester, and when asked for an explanation said his sister had given it to him. Afterwards he turned over the entire lot and said a stranger had sold them to him. However, there was no positive evidence that he was guilty.

PROSPECTOR'S CLAIM IS TURNED DOWN

Judge Fesler in district court yesterday afternoon directed a verdict in favor of the James Sheridan estate, defendant, in an action brought by Edward Miller, who is seeking to enforce a claim of $20,416 for services alleged to have been performed for Sheridan before his death.

The case was a matter which had been appealed from the probate court on an order entered by Judge S. W. Gilpin disallowing in full the claim. Miller alleges that he spent six years of his life on prospecting trips with Sheridan, for which he was never paid. He claims that Sheridan would have squared the debt had he not died suddenly.

Sheridan was a pioneer explorer and a seeker after precious metals. He spent a number of years in Alaska and in Mexico.

INSURANCE COMPANY SUED

Claims It Was Not Liable for Sunstroke Under Policy.

A dispute over the provision of an employers's indemnity policy is being aired in district court today before Judge Fesler and a jury in the lawsuit which Pickands, Mather & Co. have brought against the London Guarantee & Accident company, limited, in which the plaintiffs seek to recover $409.50 which had been paid to the estate of a dead miner.

John Mozina, a miner at the Elba mine operated by the Hobart Iron company, a subsidiary of the plaintiff, died of sunstroke on June 23, 1910. The company paid his estate $409.50, or the equivalent of twenty-six week's wages.

The insurance company alleges that "sunstroke" as an exception to the policy. The plaintiffs declare that at that time the policy was taken out it was named as an exception, but that the policy was changed and that it was crossed out from the list of exceptions.

STATE AID FOR NOPEMING

County Board Will Comply With Provisions of New Law.

St. Louis county will be brought under the provisions of the new state tuberculosis sanitarium law, whereby state aid to the extent of about $20,000 will be obtainable for purposes of maintaining the present county sanitarium at Nopeming, by a resolution which is expected to be passed without any opposition at the special meeting of the county board this afternoon.

Chapter 500, Laws of 1913, provides that county boards of those counties now having sanitariums may by passing the necessary resolution elect to come under the provisions of the law whereby they may secure aid to the extent of $500 per bed.

Nopeming now has fifty-two patients but about ten of them are sleeping in tents.

BANK EXCHANGES ARE IRREGULAR.

New York, May 16.—Dun's Review tomorrow will say: Bank exchanges this week exhibit considerable irregularity. The total at all leading cities in the United States amounts to only $2,688,015,021, as against $3,089,712,351 for the same week in 1912 thus showing a loss of 13.1 per cent. Most of the falling off is accounted for by the sharp contraction at New York where a decrease of 19 per cent appears as contrasted with a loss by the outside cities of only .1 per cent. The small volume of bank clearings at New York this week is largely due to the exceptional dullness in the stock and other speculative markets.

LAST DAYS OF EDWIN BOOTH.

William Winter in Collier's Weekly: The last days of Edwin Booth afforded a signal illustration of Tennyson's expressive line: "The set gray life and apathetic end." His successful establishment of "The Players," upon which his heart had long been set and by which, as he said to me, he confidently hoped to cause the actors to hold their profession in higher esteem, had fulfilled his final ambition, and, though for a while he remained on the stage, he neither attempted nor desired to accomplish anything more. His home was in the clubhouse, where his rooms, reverently kept as they were when he left them forever, remain unoccupied and unused—an impressive and touching memorial. One evening when I was sitting with him by his fireside, and he was smoking his pipe and ruminating, I commended to him the resources of travel to break the monotony of custom.

"But I have traveled so much," he said, "and wherever I go people want to entertain me, and I have no peace. Here is my bed, and here is the fire, and here are the books—and here you come to see me."

Then, puffing at his pipe, he added: "I suppose I shall wear out here." So it was to be. Physical pain harassed him; bodily weakness had made him more and more languid; weariness of everything had settled on his mind. The noble patience and the gentleness of his spirit never waned, but his expectation was turned eagerly toward the end. Death, to him, was the crowning mercy and blessing of life—truly "a consummation devoutly to be wished."

"I cannot grieve at death," he wrote to me in a time of terrible affliction. "It seems to me the greatest boon the Almighty has granted us. Why do you not look at this miserable little life, with all its ups and downs, as I do? At the very worst 'tis but a scratch, a temporary ill, to be soon cured by that dear old doctor, Death, who gives us a life more healthful and enduring than all the physicians, temporal or spiritual, can give."

His last two years were passed in desultory reading, mostly on religious subjects, and in musing over the past, and so he drifted away. As an actor he was great indeed—even greater, as, in pondering on the subject, I have come to think, than his wonderful father. But to him living was infinitely more important than acting.

Amusements

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Kinemacolor motion pictures.

ORPHEUM—Vaudeville and talking pictures.

EMPRESS—Tabloid musical comedy, "Along Broadway."

Amusement Notes.

"Jack and the Beanstalk," opened a three-day engagement at the Lyceum yesterday. This splendid three-reel Kinemacolor subject was even better than most of the children expected. The many adventures of Jack are depicted faithfully from his selling of the cow for the magic beans and one of the most beautiful scenes ever shown in pictures is the one where Jack and his mother ride to his future home in the swan boat. This picture ran for four months at the Century theater roof, which is a theater devoted entirely to children in New York. The latest fashions in millinery and winter sports in Sweden were also shown in Kinemacolor. The latter scenes show in an excellent manner skiing, tobogganning, ice boating and all the winter sports as they are played in this country. The black and white pictures consist of a Tanhouser film, "Her Sister's Secret," a Reliance film, "The Sheriff" and one of those side-splitting Keystones, "Their First Execution." The soloists were heard to good advantage in their new songs.

The above program will continue today and tomorrow.

John Hennings, who is appearing at the Duluth Orpheum this week with his partner in a comedy and musical act, was one of the first eccentric dancers on the vaudeville stage. He has originated many eccentric dance steps, and the dance which he is still giving in his act was one of the first eccentric dances, and is still one of the best. His slimness is accentuated by his costume, and his long legs and ungainly figure add much to the odd steps of his dance. The dance is still the hit of the act and is making Orpheum audiences laugh this week just as it has vaudeville audiences in all the large cities of the country for many years.

The Orpheum season is rapidly drawing to a close, and only three more performances will be given before the theater closes. There will be a performance tonight, the matinee tomorrow afternoon and the farewell performance Saturday night. Capacity audiences will probably be the rule tonight and tomorrow, for the closing bill of the season is proving one of the most popular ever seen in the theater.

"Judging by the attendance they don't want us to close," said Manager Billings this morning, "but unfortunately we have to because the other theaters on the circuit are closing and it is impossible to get bookings after this week."

The Empress has returned to the tabloid musical comedy form of entertainment for the last half of the week.

"Along Broadway," a cabaret type of musical comedy, opened an engagement yesterday before a large and well pleased audience. It is a musical hodge-podge with plenty of action, songs and pretty girls. Bobby Robbins appears as a Hebrew comedian and gives a pleasing specialty between the acts. His Italian character song "Madame Tetrazzini," in the last act was one of the hits of the entire production.

Two excellent song numbers are "Be My Little Bumble Bee" by Miss Perry and the chorus, and "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" by Luella Davis and the company. Hattie Kirchner's violin playing, with selections ranging from grand opera to ragtime, was one of the popular features of the second half of the program. She also dances and plays her own accompaniment. A popular dancing specialty was presented by Ingalls, Duffield and Ingalls.

Jean Perry gave a good baritone number and the finale was a tango dance by Ingalls and Hite, which was done in a very spirited manner that brought an enthusiatic encore.

As a whole the show is one of the best of the tabloids that have been brought to the Empress. It is opened as usual with an interesting film of motion pictures. It will continue the remainder of the week with a daily matinee and two performances nightly.

A TRIBUTE TO LORD WOLSELEY.

London Chronicle: A fine tribute to the late Lord Wolseley will be found in the autobiography of Sir William Butler. Wolseley, wrote Butler, who served under him in many campaigns, had "the best and most brilliant brain I ever met in the English army. He was possessed of courage equal to his brain power. His body had been mauled and smashed many times. In Burmah a gingall bullet had torn his thigh to shreds. In the Crimea a shell smashed his face and blinded one eye. But no man who rode beside Wolseley could ever have imagined he had only half the power and sight with which he started in life. I never knew him tired. I never knew his eye deceived."

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

It Pays to Give Thought to Beautifying Home Exteriors.

How many people, when they plan to build a home, make much provision for beautifying the exterior—not the mere outside of the house, but the immediate surroundings? As a rule, the greatest pains are taken in modeling the interior for beauty and convenience, while but little thought goes into the grounds.

Landscape gardening is an art, but it is an art that any one with any artistic sense whatever can acquire, in some degree. And it is a subject that is receiving more and more attention at the hands of the general magazines and publications, while there are numerous ones devoted largely to the subject. So there is no need for the layman to plead ignorance, or the lack of available material on the subject.

If you own a home and have a plot of ground around it, however small, why not sit down and give some thought to the matter of beautifying it. Consider the style of architecture of the house, the available space at your command, and map out a scheme of planting that will set your home off to the best advantage. Have you never noticed how much a little hedge adds to the appearance of any premises? I have seen city homes, built in a row, with no available space in front except ten or twelve feet, the width of the house to the sidewalk, set off prettily with a green, well trimmed hedge lining the walk, with a few small decorative trees clustered up about the portico, and a vine or two, perhaps ivy, clinging to the wall. Just those few touches of green transform a cold, forbidding looking brick house, which looks anything but inviting, into a comfortable, warm, inviting looking home. In contrast, perhaps, with its barren neighbor, it would command attention always.

If you have a large yard, or an acre of ground, you can do wonders. You can transform your lawn into a bower of beauty, and make a flower garden that will make your home "a thing of beauty and a joy forever." Indeed, you can make of it such a charming place that summer resorts may lose their appeal, and you can enjoy yourself better—and cheaper—at home than anywhere else during the summer season.

Plant flowers and shrubs, in proper order to have them constantly blooming, and take care of your garden yourself. It will be your own creation, and you will be surprised how you enjoy it.

FARMERS IN BEEF CLUBS

How Minnesota Soil Tillers Secure Fresh Meat the Year Around.

Twenty or More Band Together and Scheme Works Very Satisfactorily.

St. Anthony Park, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Co-operative beef clubs or "rings" are beginning to solve the problem of furnishing fresh meat for the farm home during the summer months, at a nominal cost, according to a bulletin issued by the University extension division. Such a club is composed of about twenty or more farmers, who organize and form a club to dispose of at least one beef each week. This is operated in connection with a creamery, or at some convenient place in the community. A beef is slaughtered once a week, usually on Friday evening, and put in a cellar to cool over night. The next morning the carcass is cut and divided into twenty portions, or as many portions as there are members in the club.

Divide Different Portions.

A sliding scale is followed, and each person gets a different portion of meat each week, until each has received a whole carcass. A price per pound for the different cuts is agreed upon, and cash paid for the meat. The proceeds are used for buying the animal and paying for the labor spent in dressing and cutting the carcass. Several of these clubs have been successfully operated in Minnesota during the past summer, and the farmers have had fresh meat all the season, at from five to twelve cents per pound.

EVA FOR GREATER GOPHER PUBLICITY

Duluthian Urges State Commercial Clubs to Boost This State.

St. Paul, Minn., May 16.—The Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs in annual session here yesterday afternoon unanimously voted to have the state immigration commission investigated with a view of ascertaining the cause of the dismissal, two weeks ago, of H. J. Maxfield. A committee consisting of D. A. Wallace, P. J. Seeberger of St. Cloud, and George L. Treat of Alexandria, was appointed to conduct the investigation.

Mrs. Maxfield is vice president of the federation.

In his annual report, President D. M. Neill of Red Wing declared it was the desire of the federation to unite with other clubs and bring about better conditions both for the clubs and the federation.

"A great deal of violent effort and cyclonic oratory has been wasted in the so-called 'back to the farm movement' that has been productive of derision from the actual farmers," declared President D. M. Neill. He urged the federation to interest itself in the organization of farmers' clubs in every township in the state.

Eva Urges Publicity.

That settlers are being whisked through Minnesota and into Canada before "our very eyes" and that it is time to start a publicity campaign in the state so that residents here might know of the importance of natural advantages here over those in Canada, was the declaration of Maj. H. V. Eva, secretary of the Duluth club. Mr. Eva declared the advantages in Minnesota far surpass those offered by points farther west and advocated a united movement to induce settlers to locate in this state.

"Minnesota's Greatest Resource" was the topic of an address by Maurice I. Flagg, director of the state art society. He said the cry "back to the land," was a myth and the real problem was to keep the young folks on the farm. He said the society soon would have plans, specifications and details to furnish farmers so they could provide themselves with more modern homes.

GRAND FORKS CONTEST.

Twelfth Annual Track Meet on in North Dakota City.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—About 400 North Dakota and Minnesota high school athletes, declaimers, debators and faculty members are here for the twelfth annual track meet, declamation contest and the annual high school debating final.

This morning the North Dakota High School Athletic league met. The first session of the high school conference was also held.

This afternoon the preliminaries in the field and track meet were started, while the preliminaries in the declamation contest also were opened.

Tonight the Grafton and Hatton high schools will meet to decide the high school debating championship of the state.

WHITE EARTH BRIDGE.

Concrete Span on Becker-Mahnomen-Clearwater Counties Highway.

White Earth, Minn., May 16.—The state highway engineer has completed plans for a reinforced concrete and steel bridge to span the White Earth river on the line of a new judicial road between Becker, Mahnomen and Clearwater counties. The highway will run through a garden part of Minnesota. The starting point is to be in the neighborhood of Perley on the Red river, about twenty miles north of Moorhead, and the road will run in a direct line between the counties mentioned and along the border of the Itasca state park to a terminal at Leech lake, which affords a charming retreat for summer tourists and choice haunts for hunter and fisherman.

SUB-STATION YIELDS.

Results Achieved at Edgeley, N. D., Branch Demonstration Farm.

Edgeley, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The tenth annual report of Supt. Thompson of the sub-station maintained here by the North Dakota Agricultural college, demonstrated the successes that can be attained in North Dakota from the proper care and cultivation of apples, cherries, plums, gooseberries, currants, raspberries and strawberries.

Subsoil tests through a series of years have brought good results. Last season it didn't increase durum yields but fife wheat yielded four bushels more and oats twelve and one-half. Dynamiting the land got decreased yields.

The best durum yields for the year of 1912 were 35.3; fife, 29.9; blue stem, 32.9; velvet chaff, 22.4; oats, 77.4; rye, 23.9; flax, 15.1; potatoes, 147.7. The potato yield was increased 23.5 bushels per acre by cutting the seed leaving two eyes to each, and treating the potato prior to planting.

Many interesting results are shown in Mr. Thompson's report and the advantages of the experiments conducted at the station for the farmers of this part of the state are amply demonstrated. The influence of the station on the farming methods is noted over a wide area and it is annually visited by many farmers of this and adjoining counties.

Brainerd, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Carl Hanson, arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct, set fire to his bed in the city lockup and the fire department was called when the smoke poured out of the jail. Some time was lost opening the door and when Hanson was pulled out he was nearly overcome.

CATTLE BUYERS GIVEN WARNING

North Dakotans Urged to Inspect All Dairy Stock Imported.

Fargo, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The farmers of North Dakota are so anxious to enter the dairy business they are buying all kinds of dairy cattle just so it is a Jersey or a Holstein. They are paying little attention to the individual and are not taking precautions regarding disease. In some cases animals that were brought here from other states had to be condemned because they were tubercular. Others were in a diseased condition from other causes.

Some Were Disappointed.

Because of the poor individual specimens in some cases the results will not be as anticipated and there will be many disappointments. Prof. Richards of the animal husbandry department of the agricultural college has issued a bulletin calling the attention of the buyers to the dangers they are running in not exercising the ordinary precautions. He fears many who are now showing an interest in dairying will be discouraged and give it up if they buy cattle of poor type or animals that are not in fine condition.

DEBATERS DID WELL.

Hinckley Proud of Accomplishments of High School Team.

Hinckley, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although the local high school debating team did not win the decision in the final debate with the Caledonia team at Minneapolis all who heard the contest agree it was the best debate of the whole series.

While the honor of being state champions is denied the local debaters, Miss Ruth Warren, Charles Bloomfield and Ralph Pryor, still feel that they acquitted themselves with distinctive honor and credit to themselves, their school and the community.

"They had never appeared to such good advantage" said a man who heard the debate. "There was not a break, hesitation or a semblance of self-consciousness or doubt, but with clear, distinct and masterful delivery and excellent poise they drove argument after argument home. At the conclusion of the debate many were of the opinion that Hinckley were victors, but it was not to be so."

This made the sixth debate participated in, the same team winning previously from Mora, Two Harbors, Coleraine, Kasota and Rush City.

HOW I ENLARGED MY BUST SIX INCHES IN THIRTY DAYS

After I Had Tried Pills, Massage, Wooden Cups and Various Advertised Preparations Without the Slightest Results.

A Simple, Easy Method Which Any Lady Can Use at Home, and Quickly Obtain a Large and Beautiful Bust.

By MARGARETTE MERLAIN

Well do I know the horrors and intense humiliation of being flat-chested; of having the face of a woman set on the form of a man, and I cannot find words to tell you how good I felt and what a terrible load was lifted off my mind when I first saw my bust had really grown six inches in size. I felt like a new being, for with no bust I realised I was neither a man nor a woman, but just a sort of creature half-way between.

With what pity must every man look at every woman who presents to him a flat chest—a chest like his own. Can such a woman inspire in a man those feelings and emotions which can only be inspired by a real and true woman, a woman with a beautiful, well-rounded bust? Most certainly not.

The very men who shunned me, and even the very women who passed me carelessly by when I was so horribly flat-chested and had no bust, became my most ardent admirers shortly after I obtained such a wonderful enlargement of my bust. I therefore determined that all women who were flat-chested should profit by my accidental discovery, and have a bust like my own. I had been imposed on by charlatans and frauds, who sold me all sorts of pills and appliances for enlarging my bust, but which did me no good whatever. I therefore determined my unfortunate sisters should no longer be robbed by those "fakers" and frauds, and I wish to warn all women against them.

The discovery of the simple process with which I enlarged my bust six inches in thirty days was due solely to a lucky accident, which I believe was brought about by Divine Providence and as Providence was good to give me the means to obtain a beautiful bust, I feel I should give my secret to all my sisters who need it. Merely enclose two 2-cent stamps for mailing, and I will send you particulars by return.

I will positively guarantee that any lady can obtain a wonderful enlargement in her bust in thirty days' time, and that she can easily use this process in the privacy of her own house without the knowledge of any one.

Foods That Bind Little Children

Start Them Off Right With a Good Laxative and Then Watch Their Diet.

Mothers are often unconsciously very careless about the diet of their children, forcing all to eat the same foods. The fact is that all foods do not agree alike with different persons. Hence, avoid what seems to constipate the child or to give it indigestion, and urge it to take more of what is quickly digested.

If the child shows a tendency to constipation it should immediately be given a mild laxative to help the bowels. By this is not meant a physic or purgative, for these should never be given to children, nor anything like salts, pills, etc. What the child requires is simply a small dose of the gentlest of medicines, such as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which in the opinion of thousands of watchful mothers is the ideal remedy for any child showing a tendency to constipation. So many things can happen to a constipated child that care is necessary. Colds, piles, headaches, sleeplessness, and many other annoyances that children should not have can usually be traced to constipation.

Many of America's foremost families are never without Syrup Pepsin, because one can never tell when some member of the family may need it, and all can use it. Thousands endorse it, among them Mrs. M. E. Darling, R. F. D. No. 4, Belleview, Pa., who writes: "I certainly think Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin saved my baby's life. Marjorie is a bottle baby and could not get her food to digest, but I found by giving her a small dose of Syrup Pepsin when she had colic it always cured her." Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter size being bought by those who already know its value, and it contains proportionately more. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

MARJORIE DARLING

Everyone likes Syrup Pepsin as it is very pleasant to the taste. It is also mild and non-griping and free from injurious ingredients.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

HERDING THE SPORTING SHEEP AND GOATS INTO THE DOPE CORRAL, AS SEEN BY BRUCE

IT IS surprising the number of real fans that keep a daily score of the baseball games. And it is also surprising and at times confusing the ignorance that remains in the minds of some anent the scoring rules. The greatest conflict of opinion arises over the question of a hit. On this tender point both the players and the great baseball scoring public are sensitive.

It is always ethics to give the player a hit in all cases of the least doubt. In some of the country towns the scorers or the scorer takes particular delight in boosting the averages of the local players by giving them hits on batted balls that should never go for safe counts. But even at this, if this class of scorer is only equally fair to the visiting batsman, the habit is not one to be everlastingly condemned.

The other day a play came up at Athletic park that brings out the ruling Ban Johnson set forth not so very long ago. There was a man on second and McGraw was at bat. Muggsy hit to the second baseman and that individual threw to third in an attempt to head off the speeding runner. Both men were safe, and the ball was handled cleanly. If the writer is not mistaken, President Johnson of the American league has held that the batsman should be credited with a hit on such a play.

There are plays that come up almost every day that compel the scorer to use common sense, as at times the rules fail to cover the play.

Just the other day one of the Grand Forks players was at bat with no one out and a runner on first. The batter attempted to avoid a wild pitched ball and in doing so the ball hit the bat of the player and bounced out into the infield into the hands of the second baseman, the batter being thrown out at first. The runner was advanced and yet there was a question of the right to credit the batsman with a sacrifice hit.

The other day Rhoades heaved to Meniece and the tall fellow at first stuck out his glove hand, stopped the throw and then dropped the ball. The runner was safe. Several fans gave Sam an error on their cards. The bubble was the individual property of Rhoades, for Meniece had only one hand on the ball and the throw was an imperfect one, whereas a perfect peg would have retired the runner.

If the ball should travel like a bullet and hit the pitcher in the bean and lay him cold, and the second baseman should come galloping in and get the ball on the carom and throw the runner out, the pitcher should be credited with an assist—maybe he would get a putout, also—though it was through no display of skill upon his part that the runner was set down at first.

Scoring rules to say the least are elastic. Each year students of the game have labored to make them more specific and consequently less ambiguous. The baseball writers of America have suggested many improvements in the rules for scoring baseball games and are at the present time striving to make the scoring throughout the country more uniform.

Back in the years when the Minny was first organized the returning Duluth players told some humorous stories of the official scorer at Rochester. One game was forfeited by the Duluth team and this young and rather enterprising youth credited each member of the winning team with a hit. He also credited the players receiving a base on balls with a hit, and the same ruling went for those so unfortunate as to be hit. Sometimes it is easy to understand why the batting averages of some baseball players from the smaller towns swell to ungodly proportions.

But the funniest one was pulled at Red Wing. The scorer there was new but filled with enthusiasm and one might also say, invention.

On a double he credited the batsman with two hits, and if the batsman hit for a home run he was given four hits. Until this error was pointed out by a visiting player—one who seldom hit for over a base, some of the sluggers were accumulating tremendous batting averages.

IF "Rube" Waddell comes to this league the fans here will behold one of the greatest characters of baseball. There has lived but one man who was ever thoroughly successful in handling this odd character, and that man is Connie Mack, the quiet and fatherly leader of the Athletics.

It is said that after each game Mack would give Waddell a dollar and tell him to go forth and purchase suds. No, this was not in the least foolish upon the part of Cornelius. "Rube" would have done it anyway, and it was much better to have the great southpaw with the management than against it.

It is told that Connie Mack talked "Rube" out of jumping to the Cincinnati club at a salary of $11,000. How true this story is, the writer can not vouch for; however, it was told to us by a man high up in the baseball business.

It is doubtful if this wonderful pitcher ever received a large salary. It is said he thought more of the dollar Connie Mack handed him after each game than he did of the salary he drew every two weeks.

Waddell was with Louisville, Columbus, Chicago and the St. Louis team, in addition to many others. All of you naturally know of some of his experiences with the Minneapolis team of the American association.

After all these strenuous years upon the baseball diamonds of the country, it is doubtful if Waddell has a bean to his name. He is as clean of money as a hound's tooth of gold or platinum.

Wise in many ways of the world, some say that in other matters this man, regarded by many as the most brilliant pitcher of the world in the height of his prime, is as simple as a child in many other respects.

Gently kidded, directed as a wise and mild parent might guide the erring footsteps of a child, "Rube" Waddell gave to the baseball world some of its greatet pitching lessons under the tutelage of Connie Mack, one of the gentlest and one of the wisest baseball men of all the big world—and the baseball men of the world are legion.

And just so—had it not been for Mack, with all his genius for getting the best out of men, with that rare intuition that peeps into the hearts and minds of men, it is unlikely that "Rube" Waddell would have ever flashed across the baseball horizon and linked his name with Clarkson, Radbourne, Mullane, Young and the others of illustrious renown.

FLICKERTAILS BEAT BRONKS

Grand Forks, N. D., May 16.—Grand Forks triumphed over Minneapolis yesterday by the score of 7 to 5, thus celebrating a victory under the new management of Bill Carney.

A single, three doubles, a hit batsman and two walks in the first frame gave the game to the Flickers. Sam Foster hit safely twice, in pinches, both of his blows being productive of runs.

Leveret was outpitched at every stage of the game. The score: R. H. E.

ST. PAUL TAKES SECOND GAME

Winnipeg, Man., May 16.—Bunched hits gave the St. Paul team the second game of the season, the visitors winning the battle by the score of 12 to 5. Mike Kraemer worked steadily for the visitors while Moe was touched up in lively fashion and at the times when hits did the most good.

In the first two innings it looked like an easy win for the Maroons but the third, fourth and fifth rounds were disastrous ones for Moe, and after this he was retired and Mosberg and Boley took up the burden of flinging.

Charley Jones, center fielder and manager of the Apostles, made two triples and a single, being the batting record of the visitor.

Over 2,500 people witnessed the contest of yesterday, this making a total of 5,000 attendance for the first two games of the season, and this despite the fact that the weather upon opening day was very bad. The score: R. H. E.

Brooklyn Continues Winning.

Brooklyn, May 16.—Brooklyn took a hard-fought game from St. Louis yesterday 8 to 6. Both teams batted heavily, but the visitors threw away many runs by running wild on the bases. St. Louis started off in the lead, when, with two out Mowrey singled and scored on Konetchy's home run. Wheat opened Brooklyn's second inning with a scratch hit, Daubert doubled and Smith tripled, tieing the score. Perritt succeeded Steele and Miller's out scored Smith. With one on base in the third, Wheat hit for a homer.

In the fifth St. Louis cut down the lead to two runs, and in their every inning afterward except the sixth and the ninth, came within one of scoring the tie. Brooklyn just as regularly as the visitors tallied a run to maintain their two-run margin. Rucker was called to the rescue of Ragan in the eighth and Sallee relieved Perritt in the same inning. Win in Tenth.

Philadelphia, May 16.—Batting rallies in the ninth and tenth innings enabled Philadelphia to defeat Chicago yesterday, 6 to 5. The visitors drove Alexander off the mound in the sixth inning, wonderful one-half catches by Magee and Cravath in earlier innings saving several runs. Rixey and Brennan were taken out to permit pinch batsmen to hit for them. Seaton twirled the tenth inning when, with one out, Saier tripled. Schulte and Bridwell were given passes, filling the bases, but Archer filed to Knabe and Overall fanned. Philadelphia tied the score in the ninth on Killifer's single, Walsh's double, Kronin running for the latter, sacrifice and Knabe's single. In the tenth with one out, Luderus singled and reached third on Dodge's single and Clymer's fumble. Howley ran for Luderus after the latter reached third. The squeeze play worked, Howley scoring on Killifer's bunt to Overall. The score: R. H. E.

Demaree was knocked out of the box in two innings, the visitors scoring five runs on three passes, two singles, a double and a triple, aided by two errors by Murray and one by Meyers. Wiltse also was hit hard. Robinson pitched a fine game for Pittsburg, an error by Mensor permitting New York to score its two runs in the first inning. Wagner fielded superbly and made two singles and a home run in five times up. The score: R. H. E.

Marsans fell and injured his neck in attempting to get Connolly's long fly during the fourth inning. He fainted but revived and finished the inning, Almeida then taking his place. Connolly's drive went for a home run. The batting of Becker and Hoblitzell was a feature. The score: R. H. E.

Highlanders Lose Opener.

Chicago, May 16.—Frank Chance, erstwhile "peerless leader" of the local National league club, returned to Chicago yesterday as manager of the New York American league club, and opened a four-game series by losing to Chicago, 3 to 2. The game was a pitchers' battle between Scott and Schulz with the former having a shade. Schulz's wildness coupled with daring base-running and Sweeney's error, enabled the locals to make three runs. Scott's only pass coupled with a single, gave New York their first run and Chase's triple and Midkiff's double gave them their other run in a ninth inning rally. The New York team was warmly greeted when it took the field today and the friends of Chance cheered the team repeatedly. Today was the first time that Manager Chance has gone to the coaching line on the American league grounds, although he has played against the Chicago Americans on several occasions in city series, and the world's championship. After the game Chance said he felt that his team had made a creditable showing and hoped to give the locals a harder fight in the remaining games of the series. Score: R. H. E.

Plank was replaced in the third inning by Wyckoff, after Cleveland had scored two runs in the first two innings. Wyckoff held Cleveland to one hit in the rest of the game, but was replaced by Bush, who pitched the eighth inning.

Olson's double and Turner's single scored the first run for the locals. In the second, Ryan walked, reached third on infield outs and scored on Falkenberg's scratch single. The score: R. H. E.

Boston scored four runs in the second on a double, a sacrifice, a passed ball, triples by Wagner and Hooper and two singles. In the third, Speaker's home run, a hit batsman, a single and two errors netted three more for Boston.

In the sixth a base on balls, a single and Yerkes' home run counted three runs for the visitors.

Boston bunched five singles with a base on balls and an error in the ninth for five runs.

WINONA COMES SATURDAY FOR A THREE-GAME SERIES

Think of who will be with us tomorrow. "Lefty" Davis, one of the greatest outfielders who ever played and one of the greatest throwers that the baseball thing has produced, and his Winona aggregation, classed by some of the critics around the circuit as the best team in the Northern, open tomorrow for a three-game series.

Davis has Snow with him, the Ashland youngster who has been pitching sensational baseball and standing all the teams of the league on their beans. Young Snow is a brother-in-law of Thomas North of this city, and that gentleman has already purchased three tickets for the Sunday game and is going to take several friends out to the park to see his protege perform.

Throughout all of the years of his service in the big show "Lefty" Davis was known not only as one of the greatest outfielders in the game but also as one of the brainiest. His head was manufactured from the proper material for grave contemplation and it has always been said of him that he thought during the progress of the game, and there were many players during the early career of "Lefty" who left thinking strictly to the manager of the club.

Davis is playing one of the outfield positions for the Giants and playing it well, according to the reports that have been wafted this way.

When the war broke between the new American league and the older league, the National, Davis was a member of the Pittsburg Nationals. If some of the fans ever look up the records in some of the old guides it will be discovered what a really great baseball player the present leader of the Winona team was. So great was his fielding and hitting that the management of the New York Americans made Davis a very flattering offer to jump the older league, and he did. It was in the ranks of the Minneapolis American association team that Davis again displayed such brilliant fielding and so effective hitting that he went up to the big show again. Cincinnati secured him and it was wtih this team that the big league career of this great baseball player came to an end.

Went to St. Paul.

After that Davis was with the St. Paul team and has been in the game practically ever since he came back from the Reds. Those who have seen the veteran in action during the present season say that he still retains many of the qualifications that made him one of the greatest of all fly chasers.

As the Winona team is at the present time, it is one of the best in the league. The climb of the Giants from the cellar to a place in the first division has been the feature of the race in the Northern league to date. As the contest between the Winona team and the Sox is very close, it is expected that the Sunday game here will draw out one of the greatest crowds in the history of Duluth.

Davis has signed some of the best players that could be secured from the various leagues of the country, and the way he has his men going is sufficient proof of the wisdom of his selection.

The results of the three games battled between the Dooks and the Winona Giants will determine the position of the two teams. If we are decisively mauled during the sojourn in our city of the visitors, they will go into the position occupied by us at the present time. But O'Brien hopes to get two out of the three games at the lowest calculation, as he devoutly desires to hit the road with a large stack of blue wins in front of him.

St. Paul and Minneapolis will follow the Giants in the order named. Minneapolis will be in Duluth for the final game of the series a week from this coming Sunday, and officials of the local club are making preparations to handle the largest crowd that has ever attended a baseball game in this city upon that occasion.

President Blume announced today that he has made arrangements with the street car company for special street car service to and from the park on Sunday.

Held to Four Hits.

Kansas City, Mo., May 16.—Kansas City and Toledo played listless ball at the beginning of yesterday's game, but after the fourth inning, both teams improved, Kansas City winning 4 to 3, and Morgan holding Toledo to four hits.

Toledo scored two runs in the second on a hit batsman, Eddington's triple, and an error by Tannehill.

Kansas City tied the score in the home half of the same inning on Fiene's double, Drake's double, an infield out and Williams' Texas leaguer back of third. The locals scored two more in the third on a base on balls, Fiene's double and Drake's single. Toledo scored one in the fourth without a hit, a hit batsman, a base on balls and an error doing the work. Morgan walked another man but with the bases filled, he settled down and finished the next three batsmen. The score: R. H. E.

COMISKEY ON HUNT FOR TICKET SCALPERS.

Chicago, May 15.—President Charles A. Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox and a party of friends went on a still hunt last night for ticket brokers who were said to be selling tickets to Saturday's game between the Chicago and New York American league clubs.

The day is to be celebrated as Frank Chance day and friends of the former Chicago National leader had planned to welcome him to the American league park.

At the request of Comiskey, a newspaper man called a ticket broker in a downtown hotel over the telephone.

"Have you any seats for the Chance day game?" he asked.

"Yes, all you want."

"What are the prices?"

"Some for $7, some for $5 and others for $3. How many do you want?"

"We want fifty $7 seats. Have you that many?"

"I will have them for you before the game."

A tabulated memorandum of all the seats sold has been kept at the park and President Comiskey declared he would trace the seats which are being offered at hotel stands at advanced rates.

He said he would attempt to bar from the ball park in the future the person responsible for blocks of seats falling into the hands of brokers.

SCOTCH FISHING TACKLE RECEIVED BY DULUTH HOUSE.

A shipment of Scotch fishing tackle from far off Scotland was received by the Kelley Hardware company by parcel post Thursday. The shipment consisted of Scotch flies, trout lines and leaders from the famous Scottish tackle maker, William Robertson.

The trout flies received are similar to the American-made flies only with smaller hooks and longer feathered bodies. Many of Duluth's trout fishermen inspected the Scotch goods today and are highly pleased with the new arrivals.

WADDELL IS IN OUR MIDST

The World's Famous Pitcher Takes Part in Airy Conversazione.

Fish and Wild Animals Are Great Attractions for Southpaw.

Bright and early this little morning Mr. George Edward Waddell strolled into The Herald office. He was accompanied and abetted by Mr. "Spike" Shannon and Mr. Cy Bennett, both distinguished citizens.

Mr. Shannon did the honors of the occasion.

"I want you to meet Mr. Waddell," he said pleasantly, a smile flitting across his handsome countenance.

"Welcome to our city," we cried gayly, nothing more propitious coming from behind.

"Would that Paddy McDonald were here," we almost gasped.

Mr. Waddell caught the name.

"Does he fish?" Mr. Waddell asked.

"During my future comings and goings in your beautiful little city," pursued Mr. Waddell, "it will be my aim to become most intimately acquainted with some of the leading fishermen of the place. I have already been introduced to the chief of the fire department and have also met some of the firemen. Have no cause for fear; during my stay in your midst I shall promptly assist in the extinguishing of any fires that may start before and after the baseball games."

"'Rube' has brought some fishing tackle and is anxiously waiting to try our streams and rivers," said Mr. Shannon.

"That is true, even though uttered by Mr. Shannon," said Mr. Waddell.

"I have all of my fishing tackle with me and also several of my guns. It is my desire to remain in this part of the country long enough to hunt some of the moose and deer which abound in these parts. I have hunted large rats while playing in some of the melodramatic house with the 'Stain of Guilt' company, and have also hunted rabbits and some other specimens of the furry creatures in the woods and swamps of Reel lake, which is down in the immediate vicinity of Hickman, Ky., which is favorably known throughout the country since it became my winter home. But I want to hunt some of your larger animals."

Is a Giant.

Mr. Waddell not only looks large—he is. His shoulders are wide and round gracefully, forcefully suggesting strength. His hands are large and sinewy, rarely reminiscent of the village blacksmith and the inevitable village chestnut tree.

"Your health following the operation?" we inquired.

"She is grand," replied Mr. Waddell. "This leg," (and he held aloft his left limb), "was carved somewhat, but I came through the the doctor's party fine, and he tells me that I will be better than ever."

"Dr. Williams, the well-known football coach, worked over Mr. Waddell," put in Mr. Shannon.

"We thought he was seriously ill," we rejoined.

"This is some league," resumed Mr. Waddell. "I hope to give some of the young fellows a lesson in swinging at the ball and not hitting it. My curves were behaving very nicely in the last game I pitched, and some of the boys found exceeding difficulty in hitting me."

"They will yet," enthusiastically put in Mr. Shannon.

"Let us hope so," modestly added Mr. Waddell.

"This is a great country; an odd one, too," said Mr. Waddell.

"This ice in the lake at this time of the year, made me feel peculiar to say the least as I alighted from my Pullman this morning. I have been in many parts of the country with baseball teams and dramatic productions, but somehow and in some manner quite inexplicable to me, I have never visited Duluth. I have no desire to visit Superior," Mr. Waddell quickly added.

"I like it and I am sure that this city will add many anecdotes to my autobigraphy, which I am writing at the present time. I have travelled from Astoria, on the Pacific coast to Nantucket on the eastern reaches of our country, and I am quite certain that my experiences in this thoroughly delightful and original strip of country are going to be sources of genuine joy."

"We must not tarry longer," said Mr. Shannon.

"Yes, yes, we must go," said Mr. Bennett.

"Perhaps 'tis best," said Mr. Waddell.

Waving an adieu with that famous left whip, perhaps the most famous left whip in all the world, Mr. Waddell smiled pleasantly and moved his giant stature through the front door of the editorial sanctum.

And thus did "Rube" Waddell come to Duluth.

DESMOND FIELD TO BE AMATEURS' HOME.

Jack Desmond's park on Park Point promises to become the home of amateur baseball in this city. All of the commercial league games are to be played there, arrangements having been made for a contest in this association each Saturday afternoon. The games of the Duluth and Superior league will also be played at Desmond field.

The new park is to be made the home of semi-professionals and amateurs, and Jack is at the present time working to make the field one of the finest in this section of the country.

Many improvements have been made, and as it stands at the present time, Desmond field is one of the finest parks in the Northwest.

Dual Track Meet.

Champaign, Ill., May 16.—With the dual meet championship of the Western intercollegiate conference at stake, University of Illinois and University of Wisconsin track squads will compete on Illinois field this afternoon. Wisconsin nosed Illinois out by a quarter of a point in the indoor championship at Evanston and was therefore a slight favorite. Illinois athletes, however, expected to win.

Establish Shooting Record.

Washington, May 16.—For the third consecutive year, the Iowa high school has won the interscholastic national rifle shooting championship and the Astor cup which goes with it. By its victory, this school made a record score for interscholastic shooting, the team's total being 984 out of a possible 1,000, which is four points better than the record made by the same school last year.

Deering high school of Portland, Me., won the second high score with 976 points; the Susquehanna, Pa., high, third with 968; the Dewitt-Clinton, high, New York city, fourth, with 956; Salt Lake high, fifth, with 947; Morris high, New York city, sixth with 946. Nineteen schools competed.

Two Players Released.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—"Hobe" Ferris, third baseman and Glenn Leibhardt, pitcher, were yesterday unconditionally released by President Cantillon of the Minneapolis American association club. Ferris at one time was with the St. Louis Browns of the American league and Liebhardt was with the Cleveland Americans.

They have, it is said, been sought for some time, by Western league managers.

Catcher Severoid Sold.

Boston, Mass., May 16.—The sale of Catcher Severoid of the Cincinnati Nationals to the Louisville club of the American association was announced here last night. Severoid will join Louisville immediately.

Scores Another Knock-out.

Racine, Wis., May 16.—Mattie McCue, Racine's sensational 124-pounder, continued his string of knockouts last night when he disposed of Jeff O'Connell of Chicago in the first two minutes of fighting. McCue floored his man with a right cross for the count of nine and followed it up with five more knockdowns, the last one ending the scheduled 10-round affair.

College Baseball.

Madison, Wis., May 16.—The Universities of Wisconsin and Purdue played eleven innings to a tie yesterday, the score being 8 to 9 when the game was called owing to darkness.

Revoire Wins.

St. Louis, Mo., May 16.—Eddie Revoire, Philadelphia welterweight, was awarded the decision over Art Magirl of Bartlesville, Okla., after six snappy rounds here last night.

Athletes Organize.

Denver, Colo., May 16.—The Rocky Mountain association of the American Athletic union, was formally organized here last night with the election of officers. The Rocky mountain division is composed of the states of Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico.

FISHERMEN ARE ANXIOUS

Prospects Are Reported Good. Brooks Almost at Duluth's Door.

Tackle of every sort fills the store windows. This of every hue, lines and reels of various makes, glistening rods, nets and sinkers are set forth to catch the eye and wean the money. Along with these are compact camping outfits of aluminum and light metals, woodsmen's axes, stout pocket knives, frying pans, suggestive of the browning, savory fish; drinking cups that fold up to pocket size, heavy tramping boots and socks, sweaters and coats—all the things that a sportsman uses and loves. And in the background glisten canoes and paddles and firearms, large and small. Given the purse of Fortunatus, the sportsman could find employment for every coin in this display.

Duluth's particular good fortune is that the fishing grounds are still close to her doorstep. Many a man who works through the week can get out by train, boat, automobile or motor cycle to places where he can put in a profitable Saturday or Sunday with hook and line. St. Louis county abounds in streams that are well stocked, and lakes where the troll is bound to bring good luck.

Special inducements are offered by railroads out of Duluth.

Gold Medal Contest at Second Presbyterian Church June 4.

The election of delegates to the annual district convention to be held May 27 at the Grace M. E. church and the announcing of the gold medal contest for June 4 at the Second Presbyterian church were the principal developments at the meeting of the West Duluth Women's Christian Temperance union held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. I. P. Swangle, 10 South Fifty-eighth avenue west.

The delegates elected to the convention were Mrs. T. F. Olsen, Mrs. H. Bevier, Mrs. H. C. Ives, Mrs. H. H. Phelps and Mrs. Ida Merritt. The present district officers are: Mrs. Joseph Cochran, president; Mrs. Alfred Jaques, vice president; Mrs. L. W. Linder, second vice president; Mrs. C. R. Keyes, secretary, and Mrs. B. H. Smith, treasurer. The business session will be held during the afternoon following which supper will be served in the church. A program of music and speaking will be planned for the evening.

Mrs. T. F. Olsen, superintendent of medal contests, announced the matrons' gold medal contest for June 4 at the Second Presbyterian church. The winners of silver medals will compete. The women are Mrs. T. J. Culbertson, Mrs. Ruth Merritt, Mrs. Ida Merritt, Mrs. Helen Stewart, Mrs. W. F. Bailey and Mrs. H. C. Ives.

A committee elected recently to prepare the program for next year announced that arrangements had been made so that the W. C. T. U. would be able to hold bi-monthly meetings in the West Duluth library. It reported that the program for next year would probably be ready to be announced within another month. The members of the committee are Mrs. H. H. Phelps, Mrs. C. R. Keyes, Mrs. Alfred Jaques, Mrs. M. E. Allen, Mrs. H. Bevier and Mrs. George R. King.

"Patriotism" was the subject for the afternoon under the leadership of Mrs. B. H. Smith. Mrs. Jaques read a well prepared paper on the subject in which she referred to the patriotism shown by the people of the country during the war with Spain. The program also included a musical selection by Mrs. J. Riddle.

The organization made arrangements for hanging the picture of Miss Frances Willard in the Merritt school during the mothers' meeting on Friday, May 23, and to place another picture of the great temperance leader in the Fairmount school before the close of this term.

The next meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held on June 5 at the home of Mrs. J. T. Culbertson, 1625 East Jefferson street. The assistant hostesses will be Mrs. O. T. Strand and Mrs. W. E. Marcus. Mrs. H. Bevier will be leader with the subject 'Noted Women of the Present Day."

MERRITT IS COMMENDED

Proposed Pay Stations for Water and Gas Bill Find Favor.

Suggestion Is Made That City Should Not Seek Charity Service.

The decision of Leonidas Merritt, commissioner of public utilities, to establish pay stations in the suburbs, is receiving considerable favorable comments from business men of West Duluth and the West end. In a communication to The Herald, a prominent business man commends the action, but says that the department should not expect such service free, as the American people are willing to pay for service rendered. He believed that the citizens generally look on the establishment of a charity collection bureau with disfavor.

The following is the communication: "To the Editor of The Herald:

"The stand taken by Leonidas Merritt, commissioner of public utilities, to provide places in the outlying districts of the city for the payment of gas and water bills, is commendable. No doubt Mr. Merritt is prompted in this by his well wishes for the working man and his desire to give him, as far as possible at least, an even show with his financially more fortunate fellow citizens. The poor man's work and home is usually in the outlying district where the rents are cheaper. When the rich man gets his water or gas bill he may hand it over to his secretary for attention or mail a check in payment. When the poor man gets his, the payday may be some days ahead, or he may for other reasons, defer the day of parting with his hard-earned coin, and so on the twelfth, he finds himself confronted with the necessity of going himself or sending his payment to the central office before 5 p. m., or lose his discount.

"The loss of time in going to the central office, the extra street car fare and most of the "lost discount" come off those with whom every cent counts, and the saving of time and money to the working people in the outlying districts through the establishment of convenient places to pay the monthly bill will be considerable.

Should Pay for Service.

"The Duluth Edison Electric company has for years, at no mean expense, maintained branch pay stations, and the city may well follow its lead in giving similar facilities to the users of public utilities. However, Mr. Merritt seems to have the idea that whoever collects for the city in such proposed branch offices should give his services to the city without compensation other than such profits as might be extracted from customers who come in to pay their bill. It is doubtful whether the people of this would look with favor on the establishment of charity collection branches. The American people generally will pay for services rendered. Free service before very long might mean poor service, as anyone taking a job below value is apt to slight the work unless watched. In this case, it might show in grudging service and incivility toward the city's patrons. Such service the city's patrons do not want.

By all means, the city should provide branch offices as hinted by Mr. Merritt, but should do so in a business way. Put the collector under bonds for the faithful performance of his duties and strict accounting of moneys collected, and if the service is desired by the Duluth water and light department for the convenience of its patrons, let proper provision be made for payment for such service rendered.

WILL NOT ESCAPE INHERITANCE TAX

Clark Estate Assessed for Property Owned But a Few Days.

Although the late Louis R. Clark of West Duluth lived but a few days after the death of his father, M. M. Clark, last May, an inheritance tax must be paid from his estate on the property which reverted from father to son. The tax has been determined as about $300 by Judge Gilpin in the probate court. The younger Clark left an estate of about $55,000, of which about half was an inheritance from his father.

Illustrated Sermon.

John Bunyan wrote Pilgrim's Progress while in Bedford jail in 1675. The book was published in 1678 and at the time of the writer's death in 1688, 100,000 copies had been circulated and the book translated into several languages.

Next to the Bible, Pilgrim's Progress is the world's great seller among the books.

An illustrated sermon-lecture will be given on Sunday night at the Asbury church, Sixtieth avenue west and Raleigh street, on this book. Forty pictures made from life posings will be shown with a stereopticon. Among the pictures shown will be "Bunyan in Jail," "Slough of Despond," "Knocking at the Gate," "Christian at the Cross," "The Palace Beautiful," "The Fight With Appollyon," "In Doubting Castle," and "The Head of Christ," by Hoffman.

GOETHAL'S SECRETARY VISITING FATHER.

James A. Sullivan, private secretary for Col. Goethals, government engineer in charge of the work at the Panama Canal, is visiting in West Duluth at the home of his father, James E. Sullivan, 132 Central avenue.

Mr. Sullivan says that it was probable that the canal would be ready for ships to pass through in September, and that it was likely that the connecting link between the Atlantic and Pacific would be officially thrown open at that time.

Mr. Sullivan will leave this evening for Seattle, Wash., to visit his mother and sister, who at present are spending a few months on the Pacific coast.

HUNDREDS OF LABORERS CROWD THE STREETS.

Yesterday afternoon and evening the streets of West Duluth took on all the appearance of a frontier boom town. Hundreds of laboring men employed by the Northern Pacific on extra gangs received their pay at the West Duluth station, and these men made it lively for the merchants.

The men spent the balance of the day in West Duluth, many visiting the banks to deposit their checks, while others sent money orders home to the old country. The men are employed on two gangs which are relaying track for the railroad between here and Carlton.

ATTEMPTS TO KILL HIMSELF IN JAIL

Lodger at Police Station Cuts Throat and May Die.

Charles Carlson, 40 years old, a lodger at the police station, cut his throat from ear to ear with a pocket knife early this morning. The attempt to suicide had not proven a success up to a late hour this afternoon but slim hopes for his recovery are entertained at St .Mary's hospital where he was taken in the police ambulance.

When Chief McKinnon was passing through the hall between the station office and the courtroom he glanced into the cellroom. He noticed Carlson in a sitting position on the bunk with blood dripping from his neck. Rushing inside he threw the man on his back but was met with strong resistance. Four other officers came to the chief's assistance and the man was rushed to the hospital.

Carlson is believed to have become temporarily demented from drink. He applied at the police headquarters for lodging on Wednesday night and yesterday morning when the officers intended letting him out he pleaded to be allowed to remain in order that he might properly sober up. He again requested last evening that he might be allowed to remain over night. Nothing is known as yet of his family, although the police are busy looking for some of his relatives.

While the cut in his throat is not considered very serious it is believed that it may prove fatal from the fact that he had lost a great deal of blood when discovered by the chief. No groans of any kind had been heard by other prisoners when the deed was done, although several were in the place during the time. The knife had failed to sever any of the large arteries of his throat.

Fowler Is Wanted.

Extradition papers have been secured for the return of Homer T. Fowler from Seattle, Wash. L. P. Ekern of Superior secured the paper from Governor McGovern. Mr. Fowler, who was formerly a banker here, is now a prominent business man in Seattle. He is alleged to have defrauded to the amount of $60,000 by false representation of certain stock in connection with the reorganization of a local wholesale house.

No Action Taken.

At the meeting of the fire commissioners, the mayor and councilmen, no action was taken regarding the two platoon plan for city paid firemen. A committee will look into the matter further before any action is taken.

Given Sixty Days.

Bob Miller, who jumped several times on the head of Tom Lagas in a Third street saloon during a drunken brawl yesterday morning drew sixty days in the workhouse from the court yesterday afternoon. Lagas had his scalp nearly torn from his head, but is recovering in a local hospital.

Senior Play.

"The Varsity Coach" is the title of a play to be given this evening by the seniors of the Dewey High school in the assembly hall. Fifteen members of the graduating class will take part.

OPPOSITION FROM COUNTY ATTORNEY

West's Attempt to Gain His Freedom Will Be Fought.

Objections to the liberating of William West, a St. Louis county convict, who is seeking his freedom from the state penitentiary on a writ of habeas corpus which has issued from the Washington county district court at Stillwater will be made by the St. Louis county attorney's office.

Mason M. Forbes, first assistant county attorney, will attend the Monday morning session of Judge P. H. Stolberg's court at Stillwater when West's habeas corpus proceeding will come up for final disposition.

The convict, who is known as a professional yeggman and who has prison records in three states, is seeking liberty on the theory that because he is serving time for grand larceny after having done time for burglary in connection with the same job, he is unlawfully held. He was sent up from this court seven years ago.

Mr. Forbes will argue to the court that breaking into a building is one offense and stealing after once inside, another. West claims that he is being made to serve two sentences for one crime and that his constitutional rights have been violated. His attorney is A. C. Ginsberg of Minneapolis.

MAYOR PRINCE DOES NOT FAVOR SPECIAL SESSION

"The situation in Minnesota relative to public utilities does not justify the calling of a special session to pass a public utilities bill," said Mayor Prince this morning.

The mayor has been extended an invitation to attend a conference called by the Stirrup club to be held at the Spalding hotel Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock to consider the political situation which has been created by the announcement of Governor Eberhart that he will call a special session of the legislature to pass a bill providing for state regulation of public utilities. The same evening there will be a banquet at the Spalding at which the situation will be publicly discussed.

Mayor Prince was asked as to his attitude in the matter. He stated that he does not think that the governor is warranted under the circumstances in calling a special session. He explained that he is not intimately familiar with all the details of the situation, but that he has not been impressed by the fact that a public utilities bill warrants the step which the governor has announced he will take. The Stirrup club is opposed to the calling of the extra session and has started a state-wide campaign to arouse sentiment against it.

THE SPRING OPENING OF SUMMER HOUSE

Righting All the Things That Have Gone Wrong in Winter Is Repaid By the Joyous Sense of Freedom Regained.

Lester Pryne in the Boston Transcript: Mysterious and awful are the things which can happen in a shut, locked, forsaken, unopened house within the short space of one winter. The oil in the water taps did not keep the pipes from freezing; nor the scrupulous removal of all food from the pantry prevent the mise from getting jagged on the lingering odors of provisions; nor the inspection of the roof the last thing before departure dissuade half a dozen shingles from winging seaward on a northwester, thus allowing the floods to descend on the particular bed where it had been agreed to pile all the mattresses and blankets. Spiders have run and woven in this flyless gloom; leakings have dripped; mice held carnivals.

But we boldly haul down the shutters, one inside to undo the clamping irons, and one outside for the ground and lofty tumbling necessary to balancing these barn door size platforms on a walk along the veranda roof. Then the canoe is painfully squeezed and maneuvered out of the living room by coaxing one end into the fireplace while the other end none too gently scrapes the piano; the wicker chairs are roused out to the veranda, the rugs unrolled, the house chairs unstacked and a fire lighted. With this last only does the house take on the faintest semblance of a human abode.

But there is another side to the picture. For sweet it is to wake to a fresh, mild April morning, fragrant with the scents of growing plants and budding leaves; a faint tang of salt in the sea air; a brief surcease of business cares and the rabble of men in the market place; a breakfast in the mood of holiday leisure even though it is to be followed by a day of anything but leisure. The earth is not yet quite out of crimping irons and gingham wrapper; grass fires are making their smudge; pools are in the roadway; mirey spots in the fields; out of the sunshine the wind is raw and chill; the streams flow brawling and turbid.

But the rigors of the frost are past, and it will be warmer before it is colder; there will be more sunshine before there is less, and finer weather before fouler. And the fretful tap of the tack hammer fills us with a profound and mystical joy, and the smell of fresh paint is a hymn to the reviving year; the lather of soapsuds is a rite in celebration of the season; and to pinch one's finger in getting off the shutters or to pound a thumb in hammering carpet tacks is an injury which we angelically allow to pass uncursed. At noon we eat with the joyous hunger of growing boys; at night we sit and puff of a pipe with a luxuriousness which we have not known since the first day tobacco ceased to make us ill; and at night our sleep is the sleep of the just—or the worn out.

SHERLOCK HOLMES OF REAL LIFE

Detective Work of Physicians Surpasses That of Famous Sleuth of Fiction.

Philadelphia North American: Dr. De Neuville, a French physician, who has specialized on the medico-legal aspects of his profession, has been telling some true stories of detective work by physicians that equals the mythical achievements of Sherlock Holmes. There are several sides of the law that bear on medicine and surgery, and there are various specialists who devote themselves to one or all of these important relations.

The specialist who receives in the United States a good deal more attention from the newspapers than from medical journals is that useful adjunct to the police force, who is known as the police surgeon.

Here his duties seldom if ever go beyond the office of diagnosing ailments, attending illness and preventing the spread of contagion. But in France he oftentimes brings to bear upon mysterious crimes the acumen of his trained intelligence and the knowledge of his practical profession. He is likely to act as an assistant to the detectives along the lines of his expert observation.

Four years ago one of the "legal doctors" of the police force received his notification to accompany gendarmes to the scene of a death—that of a woman innkeeper. The apartment where the woman had been found dead had not been disturbed; the legal doctor had full play for his faculty of observation. He went all over the room, and used his microscope at various places and on several objects that appeared to interest him particularly. At last he inquired the name of the last vessel that had come in. It proved to be the Donna Maria, from Sicily. He delivered his opinion, then, without a moment's delay or a sign of uncertainty:

Solved Woman's Murder.

"A left-handed man, wearing a slight mustache, murdered this woman. He is probably a Sicilian, who arrived on the Donna Maria. He is over five feet six inches in height. He was acquainted with his victim, having been a guest previously at her inn. So he knew that she often got drunk. He broke in, killed her because he feared she would awaken while he was robbing the place and made good his escape. He has in his pocket now the stump of the candle he used to light him in committing his crime. Make a swift search for a stranger answering this description."

While one of the Havre detectives hastened to take up the quest, the doctor gave his reasons for deducting all these details:

"In entering the murderer cut himself at the door, and a blood-stained splinter of the wood makes it clear that he is left handed. To one side of the spot where the blood dropped on the floor you can see some candle grease; that is where his candle dripped. It is obvious that, while he held in his left hand the weapon he used he carried the candle in the right. When I put the microscope on the candle droppings I could recognize them as coming from a Sicilian candle, having studied very closely the Bertillon collection of candles, assembled from all parts of the world. I now surmised that any one who would be using a Sicilian candle must have just arrived from Sicily. In the candle greases there appeared two small, reddish hairs very different in their texture from those which grow in the beard. The assassin must have stood there, holding the candle after he committed the murder, biting or twisting his mustache while he debated his crime and his next procedure."

It was not long before the detective brought in a Sicilian named Foforazzo, who had been one of the Donna Maria's passengers. The doctor, having a piece of paper ready, offered it to him. He reached out his left hand, which was cut, to take it. When they searched him the candle end was found in his pocket; and when they questioned him he broke down and confessed the murder.

ON YOUR KNEES.

George Adam Smith: I remember climbing the Weisshorn, above Zermatt Valley, with two guides. My leading guide stood aside to let me be the first on the top. And I, with the long labor of the climb over, and exhilarated by the thought of the great view awaiting me, but forgetful of the high gale that was blowing on the other side of the rocks, sprang eagerly up and stood erect to see the view. The guide pulled me down. "On your knees, sir; you are not safe there except on your knees." "Every one that exalteth himself shall be abased."

WHEN DAUGHTER IS BEING COURTED

Father and Mother Try Various Little Tricks to Let the Young Man Know It Is Time to Leave.

Mary Stewart Cutting in Harper's Bazar: But father, dear man, while progressive enough in the outer world, has one rooted idea about the home, and that is that the conditions in it shall always remain the same. He is no fossil. He likes an evening out once in a while, he likes to entertain his friends, but, as a usual thing, he comfortably fastens the windows, winds the clock, stamps out the smouldering log fire, and puts out the light not later than 10:30 o'clock.

This sitting up till all hours to close the house after "a young cub who doesn't know when to go home" (and the younger the cub, the less he knows when to leave), takes the strength all out of father. Waiting at first sleepily, semi-resigned, he becomes, as anguished minute follows minute, filled with an infuriated wakefulness.

"Hang it, Polly! you may stand for this sort of thing, you can rest when you please, but I've got to work tomorrow."

This is an awful period for mother. Selma downstairs feels an acute reflexion of the stress above. Every one feels it, but young Mr. Sears. No thought transference will work on him.

No efficient, conventional method has been devised of controlling this situation. Father may walk up and down heavily above, banging windows shut. Mother may walk in and out of the parlor smilingly, putting little things to rights in apparent unconsciousness of the agonized gaze of Selma, who feels that she is going to be disgraced in the eyes of the visitor. Mother may even sit down and engage in the conversation, with no other result than to make young Mr. Sears fatuously suggest that Selma should play some more "ragtime" on the piano—at a quarter to 12.

Father can be taught to keep silence at the time, but not afterward.

And he has to be educated strictly to his duties as an entertainer to the young. It is quite right for him to beam with delightful admiration and probably a Selma welcome over the pretty young girls who are Selma's friends and who all vote him a perfect dear, but he must learn when to stop beaming and gracefully retire from the field to give place to the younger fellows, who are awaiting their chance. Mother and Selma can see Dorothy's and Edith's wandering eyes if father doesn't.

And it is quite right and proper, of course, that he should engage the young men in pleasant conversation and find out what they think on the subjects of the day, and the present political atrocities, in which he himself is so deeply interested, or about yachting or fishing, but he mustn't talk to them thus too long—intelligent youths are apt to get talking hard themselves on these topics and forget to come back to the girls.

Father needs a superlatively delicacy of touch, a dancing master agility among these nice observances. He has some reasons for his outraged:

"What on earth do you want me to do, Polly? You and Selma say, 'Now be sure to talk and be as pleasant as you can,' and then when I look up you are making signs at me. What I want to know is, when are we to have the house to ourselves again? When is all this going to stop?"

THE LITTLE BIRD ON THE HAT.

Chicago Record-Herald: John Burroughs at an Audubon society meeting in Denver, said:

"Women who wear feathers don't realize the tragedy of all this bird slaughter. That tragedy would be brought home to them if they could overhear the conversations that go on among the bird folk in forest and jungle.

"'Where's your wife?' many a bird of paradise must be asking these days, only to get the sorrowful reply:

"'Oh, she's trimming a hat for Mrs. Van Astorbilt.'"

EVELETH POLICE CHIEF GETS MAN

Works as Log Driver to Catch Blind-Pigger in Mudhen District.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Police Chief Thomas Finnegan proved his worth as a detective Wednesday when he donned the garb of a log driver, went to the Mudhen river district, secured a job and worked on the drive until he arrested John Stamberg for blind-pigging, confiscated several cases of beer and brought the accused to town. Stamberg pleaded guilty and was given sixty days in jail in default of paying $50 fine and costs.

For several months past complaints have come in that a number of farmers in the Mudhen district have been in the habit of getting drunk when they came to Eveleth, and of beating their wives and creating other disturbances when they got home.

Heard of Beer Going There.

Several of these men have been arrested here from time to time and held until they had sobered up. This had the effect for a time of reducing the trouble, but lately a great deal of drunkenness has been noticed among the Mudhen farmers, and Chief Finnegan and Judge Moyhan arrived at the conclusion that they were getting their liquor near home. They investigated and learned Tuesday that a load of beer had been taken out to the Mudhen river.

So the chief and others took an auto drive down that way, and while the auto party went to another place Finnegan quietly and alone slid over to the logging camp, represented himself to be a lumberjack just out of the Eveleth jail, where he had been sobering up.

He was put to work and proved to be such an expert at riding logs that he was offered a steady job.

After working awhile he complained that he needed a drink for his nerves and the scaler kindly consented to show him where he "could get a good drink."

He got his man and had him at the crossroads ready for the auto party when they came along.

Illegal Fisherman Gets Off for $10 at Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Game Warden Wood and his assistant, James Teller, were in Eveleth Thursday for the purpose of arraigning before Municipal Judge Moylan, two men who have been caught in the act of violating the state laws governing fishing.

Helmer Grape was arrested Monday for illegal fishing and having nets in his possession. He was fined $100 and costs and pleaded guilty. His fine was suspended and he paid $10 and costs.

Andrew Hye was arrested Monday and brought up before Judge Moylan for having sold fish that he caught. He was fined $25, which was afterwards suspended with a promise of not repeating the offense.

Mr. Wood says that there has been numerous cases of law violation in the neighborhood of the Whiteface river of late, and he declares that there will be no let-up in his vigilance in that territory until the offenders get tired paying fines and quit the business for something more legitimate.

WIRE TAPPERS "GET" HIBBINGITE

Well-Known Citizen Said to Have Been Swindled Out of $10,000.

Hibbing, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to a story going the rounds a local business man was recently swindled out of $10,000 in cash by wire tappers operating a confidence game in connection with the racing pools at a well known southern race track.

The swindlers are under arrest in New York and the local man may recover a portion of the money. As he is in comfortable circumstances his business or credit will be in no wise affected. Names are withheld as grossly exaggerated stories of the affair are current about town which would do injustice to the party chiefly concerned.

The game by which the Hibbing man was separated from his money is old. At an Eastern resort he met a couple of suave strangers, hale fellows well met, lavish spenders, of many personal charms. They induced him to play the races, touted him to several tips on results that netted a neat sum of money and finally approached him with the usual sure thing.

Puts Up $10,000.

He was impressed to such an extent that he wagered a sum said to have been $10,000 on the result of a "fixed" race and lost as men have since the game was first introduced in the pool rooms of the country.

The affair was reported to the police and the country has been scoured for the confidence men. They are now under arrest in New York city and have been identified by the man from Hibbing.

This is the second time this particular swindle has been worked in Hibbing, a prominent American business man being the victim in the former instance to the extent of several thousand dollars.

RANGE SCHOOLS GIVEN PRAISE

State High School Inspector Aiton Lauds Educational Growth.

Hibbing, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—State High School Inspector George B. Aiten visited the Hibbing schools yesterday and left last evening for Grand Rapids, Nashwauk and Coleraine.

"Hibbing people ought to be proud of their schools. Your buildings are among the finest in the state, the equipment is very satisfactory and up-to-date and the teachers employed here are among the very best in Minnesota," said Mr. Aiton.

"The Mesaba range has made a good deal of progress since I began to come here twenty years ago. No other section of the state is apparently developing so rapidly. Your schools are generally known over Minnesota as the finest in the Northwest."

BUILDING HOMES.

Several Structures Going Up in New Nashwauk Addition.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new Southern addition to Nashwauk is experiencing a building boom. J. A. Redfern lately completed four four-roomed cottages to rent or sell. Five new dwelling houses are at present under construction and several more will be built soon. It is expected that the village will extend the water mains to the new addition as soon as possible.

Many Seek Citizenship Papers.

Virginia, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large number of applicants for final citizen papers will be examined in the court house here Saturday. More than seventy are waiting for full citizenship.

FIRST AVENUE WILL BE PAVED

Chisholm Council Decides Upon Lot of Important Work.

Chisholm, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The council has practically decided to pave First avenue from Lake to the Missabe depot. Second avenue two blocks and Third avenue one block.

Lot A of the original townsite was bought for the disposal tank that will cost about $25,000. Curb building will be rushed that the 2,000 trees ordered may be set out. The village will cooperate with the board of health and the art club in cleaning up the village. Street signs not up will be placed so as to insure free delivery. E. H. Minor bought the old wooden tank for $50. Assessor Kimball was allowed an assistant. Monthly bills were allowed. The Eagles were allowed the use of certain streets for the celebration they will give the first four days in July.

Liquor Licenses Granted.

Liquor licenses were granted to Steve Prapotnic, Antonio Fogetti, Dominic Pretantonio, Pashva & Medved, George I. Neally, John Champa and Gust Moline, all being renewals with the exception of George Neally, which is a renewal of the Charles Neally license, the latter having died during the past year.

Numerous bids for material, including sidewalk lumber, lumber for widening Longyear lake bridge, nails for the same, and a large quantity of cement were purchased after bids for furnishing same had been read.

A dog catcher will be put on at once for the enforcement of the dog licensing ordinance.

Street Commissioner Flip Harrington asked for some special instructions in carrying out the work in his department. The matter of parking for the season was presented by the committee from the Ladies' Art and Study club, who suggested the site opposite the D., M. & N. railway, and the Recorder was instructed to procure a list of the property owners in that block.

IF 25c WORTH OF PICRIC AND CITRIC

acids will, through careful quantitative tests made day by day, prove that the escape of albumen can be counteracted and that Bright's Disease is now curable by Fulton's Renal Compound if taken in hand soon enough, it is the duty of everyone interested to test this fact.

Kidney excitants (old-time kidney medicines) are contra-indicated except where there is suppression. With an agent to counteract renal degeneration Bright's Disease becomes curable in most cases where the heart is not broken down and there is recuperative power.

The new agent, Fulton's Renal Compound, is a mild infusion without stimulants, sedative or heart agents. Its motive being to counteract renal degeneration, it can be seen that the usual heart, eliminative and tonic treatment which extreme cases may require can be taken with it without conflict. It commonly gets results alone if given soon enough. The substance of the formula surrounds each bottle.

If you have Bright's Disease you owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Renal Compound before giving up. It can be had at druggists supplied by Leithhead Drug company.

Ask for pamphlet on our investigation into the curability of Bright's Disease, or write John J. Fulton Co., San Francisco.

GILBERT GIRLS BANQUET HOSTS

Gilbert, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The banquet for the men of School District No. 18, provided by the girls of the high school Monday evening under the direction of Misses Baumon and Hurt, domestic science teachers, was an unqualified success, and a great credit to the culinary ability of all the young ladies concerned in its preparation. The tables and rooms were tastefully decorated and the high school orchestra, under the direction of K. K. Tibbetts, discoursed music during the banquet. Misses Van Patten and Wade acted as hostesses. F. P. Rutherford was toastmaster and called upon C. L. Newberry, superintendent of schools, who outlined the theme of discussion, the idea being to urge the necessity for the fathers taking a more active part in the general rearing of the boys to help them become better citizens. The question of having a visiting nurse the coming year was discussed formally.

Other Speakers.

Other speakers who responded to toasts were County Supt. of Schools N. A. Young, Ex-Mayor Cosgrove, W. P. Chinn, Dr. Connors, Dr. Farmer, Dr. Radamacher, Dr. Wagner, Rev. G. S. Turner, Rev. Tibbetts, Rev. T. B. Shorts, C. G. Fulton, R. E. Brown and F. A. Bowman. Drs. Fred Barrett and M. L. Strathun were also to have spoken, but were called away.

The male quartet, Frank R. Hall, C. L. Newberry, Homer Hursh and Lee Pemberton were in fine voice and responded to numerous encores during the course of the evening.

NEW MISSABE TRAIN.

Railroad Getting Ideas From Range Patrons on Subject.

Hibbing, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Seph Oslie of Duluth, traveling passenger agent for the Missabe railway, has been interviewing local business people regarding the most desirable service that can be given by a third passenger train from Duluth to Hibbing, which will probably go into service some time between June 7 and 15. It is the desire of the road to so arrange the new schedule that it will accommodate the greatest number of business men and residents of the ranges.

The new service will be in addition to that already given from the range. It will probably be a through train, stopping only at Wolf and Iron Junctions, Wilpin and Alborn, between this city and Proctor.

Mr. Oslie was in Virginia on a similar errand. There is in Hibbing a considerable difference of opinion as to the leaving time of the new train both from this city and Duluth. A good many business men here would like to see the new train leave Hibbing at 6 a. m., arguing that this would put them in Duluth in time to spend a full day in business or to catch the early trains from that city to the Twin Cities and Chicago. Others would like to see the train leave at 8 or 9 o'clock. It is proposed to have the train leave Duluth for the ranges at 7 or 8 o'clock in the evening, reaching here at a reasonable hour for securing a night's rest at home.

G. H. Reifel of Virginia Is in Charge of Nashwauk Property.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. G. Reifel of Virginia has accepted a position as superintendent of the La Rue mine and will move his family here in a few days.

VISIT WESTERN MESABA.

Steel Officials Look Over Canisteo Mining District.

Coleraine, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large party of mining officials visited Coleraine yesterday. They came in a special train over the D. M. & N. railroad, and inspected the mining properties here and left for other points last evening. In the party were D. G. Kerr, vice president of the United States Steel corporation; H. C. Hoxey, chief engineer; F. E. House, president Duluth & Iron Range railroad; W. P. Gleason, superintendent of the steel plant at Gary, Ind; F. A. Crockard of Birmingham, Ala.; M. H. Barren, Pittsburg, and others. They were escorted about the mines, laboratories, and the big iron ore washing plant by Supt. M. H. Godfrey and his assistant, L. R. Salsich.

There has been much speculation over the rumor that M. H. Godfrey was to sever his connection with the Oliver Iron Mining company. Mr. Godfrey characterizes the whole story as "street talk" and declares that he is not even considering such a move.

Dies in Iron River.

Eveleth, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word was received yesterday that Richard Mager, who moved with his family to Iron River, Mich., about two weeks ago, died on Wednesday evening of pneumonia. He was about 30 years old and leaves a wife, daughter of John Stanaway, and a young daughter. The families of Mr. Mager, John Stanaway and Richard Terrill, all of whom lived on the Adams hill, moved to Iron River together. Mr. Mager was a member of the Eveleth lodge of Odd Fellows.

BIWABIK GOING AFTER SPEEDERS

Biwabik, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last evening disposed of its routine business.

W. L. Hill was given permission to build an addition to the hotel and permit to use street in front to store material.

John Zaller was given permission to sell intoxicating liquors.

F. B. Myers was present and as president of the Biwabik Realty company presented the city with a fine gift, it being block 7 in the Shank addition, to be used for park purposes.

The speed ordinance was taken up and debated at length and it was finally decided to instruct the chief of police to arrest any one driving an auto or motorcycle faster than the state law requires, the arrests to be made regardless of parties.

The trees have arrived and are to be planted in parking twenty feet apart on all the side streets. Work of planting to start Monday.

The council donated $100 for the ball team and is anxious to see the Biwabik team a winning team.

TWO HARBORS SCHOOLS ARE MAKING EXHIBIT.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fourth annual school exhibit opened yesterday afternoon and will continue until tonight. The exhibits will be in the Minnehaha, John A. Johnson and the Hiawatha buildings. In previous years the exhibits from the various schools have been displayed in the Minnehaha building, but this year the exhibits have been increased, so it was decided to display the various exhibits in the respective rooms. In the Hiawatha and the John A. Johnson buildings, there is on exhibition models of all the work done during the year, in manual training as well as in drawing and free hand paper cutting. There is also displayed written hand lessons from each of the grades. The work of the high school and upper grade students in sewing and manual training as displayed in the Minnehaha building are very fine. The exhibition is being largely attended by parents and others interested in the doings of the local schools.

KILLED BY FLYER.

Unknown Man Loses His Life North of Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Canadian Northern flyer out of Duluth killed an unknown man north of here late Wednesday night. Repair men found the dismembered body on the tracks north of here Thursday morning and notified the undertakers who afterwards took the remains to the morgue.

All efforts to identify the man have proved futile and he will probably be buried by the county as no money, papers, nor valuables were found on the body.

GIVEN FAREWELL.

Tower Party Given for Mrs. Brown, Who Moves to Duluth.

Tower, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. S. J. P. Lackie was hostess at a farewell luncheon Thursday evening at her home in honor of Mrs. J. M. Hand-painted place cards were artistically arranged on the prettily appointed table at which covers were laid for twenty.

Carnations and ferns were effectively used to form the centerpiece. Music and games furnished the amusement, the honors going to Miss Minnie Campaigne and Mrs. William Napier.

The guests presented Mrs. Brown with a beautiful set of solid silver teaspoons. The following ladies were invited: Mesdames Mahady, Martin, Campaigne, Osterberg, McLaughlin, Schmid, Gaillen, Napier, Colberg, Taylor, Morterud, Peterson, Morris, Porterus, Gibson, Naslund, Erickson, Wisiman, Graham, Hoyt and Mrs. Charles Montroy of Duluth.

GIRLS ARE HOSTS.

Chisholm, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A dinner served last evening to the school board and their wives by the sophomore-senior high school girls was a notable event. Sixteen guests were entertained in the reception rooms at the Lincoln building. The reception room was decorated profusely with marsh marigolds and music was furnished by the high school orchestra throughout the evening.

The dining room decorations were pink and white apple blossoms and shaded pink candles lent a very pretty effect. In the center of the table was a large basket filled with apple blossoms and at each plate was an individual basket containing flowers also.

The menu consisted of:

Oyster Cocktail. Wafers.
Consomme a la Royale. Olives.
Fish a la Crime. Potato Roses.
Cucumbers.
Roast Lamb, Mushroom Sauce.
Potatoes a la Maitre de hotel.
Pea Timbales.

Coffee. Nuts.

Miss Lillian Ring had charge of the domestic science and shared in the many compliments that were generously extended during the evening upon the cooking, manner served, etc.

Members of the senior class are Misses Winnifred Beek, Jeanette Lewis, Vernice Govett and Elizabeth Leary.

The guests were: Supt. J. P. Vaughn of the Chisholm schools; Miss Carolyne Johnson, principal of the high school; Miss Elizabeth Donaldson, principal of the Lincoln school; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Tripp, Mr. and Mrs. Ben de Lorimer, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Masters, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bergeron, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Freeman, and D. C. Hackett.

Some chronic sufferers from rheumatism are human barometers. They can recognize by the growling pains in their tender joints and muscles the slightest increase of moisture in the air.

Such a condition of supersensitiveness is always attended with thin blood. The watery, poison-laden fluid that fills the arteries must be built up and purified before there can be any progress toward permanent recovery. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood and the pure, rich blood eradicates rheumatism from the system and strengthens the body to resist another attack. AN ATLANTIS OF THE EAST.

Harper's Weekly: Many scientists have believed that there was once a continent in the Indian ocean which has sunk beneath the waves and of which Madagascar, the Maldive and Laccadive islands, Ceylon and Sumatra are surviving fragments. A name, Lemuria, has even been suggested for this lost continent. One of the strongest arguments for its existence is found in the extraordinary plant and animal life of Madagascar, curiously related to the animals and plants of India, Ceylon and the Malay archipelago.

The island of Madagascar is equal in area to Oregon and California taken together, equal to them also in north and south extension, possessing, like them, bands of mountain, forest and plain. Madagascar is only 250 miles from the east coast of Africa, yet it contains not one of the most characteristic and conspicuous African animals; neither elephants nor rhinoceroses, lions or leopards or hyenas, giraffes, zebras or antelopes, apes, monkeys or baboons, though all these abound in Africa and most of them are found on the mainland opposite the great island.

Instead of these familiar African animals, which include some of the biggest and most conspicuous animals on the globe, the forests of Madagascar contain only small and insignificent mammals, sixty-six species in all, and of these just one-half, or thirty-three species, belong to the family of lemurs, small animals which suggest an unequal blending of monkey and cat which live in the thick tropical trees and are rarely seen because they hunt their prey at night, eating insects, fruit, birds' eggs and young.

The lemurs fill a lowly place in the scale of animal life and date from a very remote period of geological history. Lemurs, more or less close cousins of those of Madagascar, are found on the African mainland, in India, in Ceylon and in the Malay archipelago. And it is their presence in these widely separated regions that suggested the existence of a former continent including these places, and in their honor it was called Lemuria.

CLUB FOR CHINESE WOMEN.

New York Tribune: A club for Chinese women is about to be formed at the Chatham Square public library. Miss Alison Baigrie, librarian, who is one of the few American women who is regarded as a friend by the cautious Chinese, has felt for some time that the women of Chinatown should learn more of American ways.

"A few of them come here to the library for books," she said, "but they never stay to read. They are afraid. It seems to me a great pity that when one adventuresome spirit has the courage to cross Chatham square and brave the men on the sidewalks to come here she might get something out of it. I want to teach her to speak English and to understand our ways."

Miss Baigrie has ordered 100 new books from China and as soon as they come she is going to invite all her Chinese friends to a book feast in a private room, where they may forget their shyness and have such a good time they will want to come again soon. Miss Baigrie has discovered that the Chinese are especially fond of detective stories. She has ordered several volumes of "Sherlock Holmes," as well as "The Seven Swords and Thirteen Heroes." "The Story of the Stone" and other mystery tales from the Chinese translations of Jules Verne are also very popular, while books on Confucius gather dust on the shelves.

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD ON JOB

Members Qualify and Proposed Changes in Health Department May Be Held Up.

Duluth now has a civil service commission, all the members appointed by the commission having qualified. They are T. H. Hawkes for the six-year term, J. L. Cromwell for the four-year term and W. B. Getchell for the two-year term. The commission has not yet held any meeting to complete its organization, but that will be done within the next few days, according to Commissioner Cromwell.

The civil service commission is the only non-salaried board under Duluth's new form of government. Under the charter it will be a potent factor in municipal administration.

Meat Inspector Schneider, who was recently informed by Health Director Webster that his service would not be required after May 15, has taken steps to protect his rights under the new charter except for cause. The meat inspector feels that he is entitled to a trial and will lay his case before the new civil service commission.

"Any person who appears before the civil service commission will get a fair hearing," said Mr. Cromwell this morning. "It may be that the action of the health commission has been rather radical. We shall act on the principle that everybody is entitled to a square deal."

Mr. Cromwell said that he could not say anything about the relative merits of any individual case, as he is not conversant with the facts, but that all will be given an equal opportunity. The probabilities are that Dr. Webster will not be able to make the changes in the force which he has contemplated without difficulty and the same situation will likely arise in other city departments.

MORE RIOTING IN CINCINNATI STRIKE

Street Car Service Is Extended to Cover Four Lines.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 16.—Street car service in this city was more extended today when the Cincinnati Traction company began operation of three additional lines. This makes a total of four out of the thirty-eight regular lines that are now in operation. Thirty-seven cars are being operated over these four routes.

It was openly stated by the company officials that they would attempt to operate at least one-third of their regular lines by tomorrow.

Rioting was resumed shortly after noon when a Vine and Clifton line car was attacked by strike sympathizers at Fifth and Walnut streets, and for fifteen minutes rocks, bricks and other missiles were hurled through the car. The company's employes who were riding in the car were rescued by the police and hustled out of the neighborhood. After reinforcements arrived the police were able to control the situation. Ten arrests were made.

SAYS ANHUT TRIED TO BUY THAW RELEASE

Dr. Russell Testifies at Trial of the Lawyer.

New York, May 16.—Dr. John W. Russell, former superintendent of the Matteawan state hospital for the criminal insane, testified in the supreme court this afternoon and related conversations he had with John N. Anhut, a lawyer on trial charged with having attempted to bribe the doctor to secure the release from the institution of Harry K. Thaw.

The court ruled out questions with reference to any conversations the witness may have had with Thaw. Thus the doctor was not permitted to affirm or deny Thaw's testimony of yesterday that Dr. Russell proposed to release him for a consideration.

The doctor described a meeting with Anhut in this city last November.

"Anhut said to me," said the witness: "'Doctor, I have $25,000 here, and any part of this is yours if you will discharge Thaw.' I replied that I could, but would not, as it would be as much as my position and honor was worth. That was all I said and the subject was dropped."

SAYS "TRUST" MAKES NO DISCRIMINATION

Harvester General Agent Says Dealers Handle Independents.

St. Paul, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. E. Bowring, general agent of the International Harvester company, was the principal witness today in the hearing here of the government's suit against the International company, brought under the Sherman law. His testimony was to the effect that implement dealers have been handling independent machines regularly without interference from the company.

Government attorneys tried without success to obtain from the witness the admission that the implement dealers have been taking independent lines this year in order to testify in the hearings that there was no discrimination by the company against dealers handling independent lines.

ASSAULTED POLICEMAN.

Camille Archambault Gets Stiff Sentence for Brutal Attack.

Camille Archambault was convicted in police court this morning of having assaulted Patrolman Axel Johnson at Twenty-first avenue west and Superior street about 11 o'clock last night. He got $75 and costs or sixty days in the county jail. Archambault and several others are said to have attacked the policeman when he ordered a crowd which was obstructing the street car tracks to move along. The copper's nose was broken and he was badly bruised. Dr. I. J. Murphy, police surgeon, dressed his injuries when he came to the headquarters station with his prisoner.

MANY CONVENTIONS IN COPPER COUNTRY.

Hancock, Mich., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Many conventions will come to the Copper country this year and Hancock will get the most of them. The Upper Peninsula Firemen's association will hold its convention and tournament in Red Jacket the first week of July. The state Fraternal Order of Eagles comes to Hancock, Sons of St. George, German Aid society and two or three smaller orders will hold their state conventions here this year, while the Western Federation of Miners will hold its national convention here this summer. Laurium is practically assured of getting the Upper Peninsula Pythian convention in 1914.

FARRELL TELLS OF THE "WIRE POOLS"

Denies Steel Products Company Was Connected With Them.

New York, May 16.—The "Jackson wire pools," members of which were indicted by the government and pleaded guilty three years ago, were the subject of the testimony of James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, at the hearing of the government to dissolve the corporation.

Mr. Farrell denied that the United States Steel Products company, the corporation's export concern, of which he formerly was president, had anything to do with the pools.

He said he had "never discussed" the wire pools with Judge Gary.

PRESBYTERIANS SCORE DIVORCE.

Atlanta, Ga., May 16.—An excoriation of the divorce evil, and a recommendation that action be taken by every Presbyterian in the Northern Presbyterian church to secure more strict divorce legislation by states, were embodied in the report of the special committee on Christian life and work, made today before the Northern Presbyterian assembly, in session here.

MUCH STANDING TIMBER BURNED.

Iron River, Wis., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fire started by the Rust-Owen Lumber company to burn the slashings got beyond their control and it is reported that about 75,000,000 feet of the company's standing timber was damaged.

Yarger Heads Lutherans.
Atchison, Kan., May 16.—Rev. H. L. Yarger of Atchison, was elected president of the general synod of Lutherans here. Other general synod officers were re-elected. Rev. Mr. Yarger for eighteen years has been field secretary of the Lutheran board of church extension.

WISCONSIN MARRIAGE BILL STAYS KILLED

Senate Measure Regulating Sale of Cocaine Becomes Law.

Madison, Wis., May 16.—Assemblymen McComb, Rosa and Frederick today pleaded in vain for reconsideration of the vote by which the assembly killed the bill making void marriages contracted in another state or county in evasion or violation of the laws of the state of domicile. McComb said that white slavery was promoted by means of such marriages. Rosa said the bill was needed to prevent runaway marriages.

Hurlbut opposed it as an interference by Wisconsin with the action of persons in another state. Dolan and Hood rapped the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology, which is back of this bill, calling it a group of "college professors and theorists" which advocate bills like this as an excuse for existence. They prophesied that marital entanglements would arise from the void of marriage contracts, and that some persons sometime in the future will suddenly discover their illegitimate status to their surprise and chagrin. Motion to reconsider was lost.

After a brief debate led by Assemblyman Anderson in favor of the measure, the Rosa resolution looking to the submission of the question of a constitutional convention to the people of the state was adopted by a vote of 40 to 25. The attitude of the upper house on this proposal is problematical.

The senate bill regulating the sale of cocoaine became a law by final publication today.

STATE ADOPTS ORPHANS.

Special Department Watches Over the Children in South Australia.

Brugger Tagblatt, Switzerland: A typical organization for the protection of children exists in South Australia. There, up to 1883, the forsaken little ones were sent to the usual type of orphanages, established under the "poor laws system" of the state. By degrees, however, it began to dawn upon the authorities that they had made a great national error in the bringing up of the children who represented the most valuable assets of the community, and laws were made on a comprehensive scale for the regulation of the whole system of state orphanage.

The state adopted the children and completely altered the conditions of their existence. They were placed with families in the country, where they found more freedom, individual care, yes, some compensation for parental love. The supervision is placed in the hands of the department for state children, constituted of twelve members appointed by the governor. These appointments are honorary only, and for men and women of experience who take a loving interest in all matters pertaining to children. It is their duty to place them suitably, and to protect them, at the same time exercising supervision over all other children in the state, and to watch that they are not neglected or ill treated.

France has one automobile for every five hundred people, one cycle for every thirteen, and one motorcycle for every 1,382. Between 1910 and 1911 there was the enormous increase of 200,000 cycles.

"BEST ADVERTISING DULUTH HAS EVER HAD"

COMMERCIAL CLUB

Says of The Duluth Herald's Great Special Number,

DULUTH, THE CITY OF INDUSTRY

OUT MAY 26th. Here is his letter:

Commercial Club of Duluth

Editor, The Duluth Herald.

Dear Sir:—

It has been my privilege to see page proofs of the first fourty-four pages of the Herald's Special number, "Duluth, the City of Industry." I must say that this great issue far surpasses my most sanguine expectations and will be the best advertising that Duluth and Northern Minnesota has ever had.

The number is splendidly illustrated—in fact it is nearly all pictures. Yet the facts about Duluth are there too, truthfully, tersely and convincingly told.

It is to be hoped everybody in Duluth will send the "Duluth, the City of Industry" number broadcast. The Commercial Club will send 4,000 copies to men in other states who are thinking of settling on Northern Minnesota farm lands.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

FINNISH CLUBS' BIG FIELD MEET

Annual Midsummer Contests of Upper Peninsula at Hancock in July.

Hancock, Mich., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Finnish athletic clubs of Hancock, Houghton, Keweenaw county, Calumet, Marquette, Ishpeming, Negaunee, Sault Ste. Marie, Ironwood and Iron River will gather here for their midsummer athletic field and track meet during the early part of July. There are ten clubs affiliated with the association and each will be represented by a team of five men. The last meeting of the association was held here two years ago and was very successful. Silver cup trophies are to be awarded winners of this meet.

Promoters of sporting events in the city of Hancock will conduct a big athletic meeting here during August, inviting entries from all parts of the Northwest and from throughout Michigan. It is proposed to bring together at this meet Kolehmainen, the great Finnish marathoner, and others who are ambitious to meet this great runner. Jussi Steitz, a Finish marathon runner, who cleaned up all others at long distances ranging from two to fifteen miles, in the Copper country two years ago, and who has settled on a farm near Gilbert, Minn., likely will enter this meet against his countryman. Hannes, Longboat and Hayes will also be brought to Hancock if possible for this meeting.

Baseball and Cricket.

The baseball and cricket season will open in the Copper country this week, the eight teams of the Calumet & Hecla Baseball league playing their first games Saturday. The Copper Country Cricket league, the championship of which was won last year by the Wolverine team of Calumet, will have some of the fastest teams in North America this season, as many new players have been brought over from England for the six clubs affiliated in the league.

Laurium is to have a motorcycle, bicycle and automobile racing tournament during the month of July and the Laurium driving park's big track is now being placed in shape for the meeting. It is expected that Elmer MacDonald, the noted automobile racer of Grand Rapids and a former resident of Calumet, will race at Laurium and at Hancock this summer.

NEW CITIES FOR FEDERAL LEAGUE.

Chicago, May 16.—President Powers of the Federal league announced today that Kansas City and Milwaukee have made application for membership in the new league. W. H. Liginger, representing Milwaukee interests, conferred with Powers today. The name of the Kansas City applicant was not made public.

Powers said that probably the applications would be accepted, but that the new teams would not be put in the field until next year.

NATIONAL HIGHWAY MEASURE POPULAR.

Fargo, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The proposed national highway measure has a wide degree of popularity in this state. Under the provisions of the Bourne bill, North Dakota would get about $15,000,000 during the 50-year period. This amount in a prairie state would insure much better roads than in other parts of the country where heavy expense would have to be incurred in grading and bridges. That sum, judicially expended, would give this state a splendid start in highways. North Dakota is unable to appropriate the great sums for this work that the populous and wealthy states of the East can afford.

CHILD SAVED BY LYING ON TIES.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 16.—Although but 4 years old, Mary Whitten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitten of this city, saved herself from death by lying flat on the railroad ties when she saw a freight train approaching so rapidly that she was unable to jump from the track before being struck. The engine and twelve cars passed over her. The child escaped with only a slight scalp wound.

LABORER MAY PICK HIS JOB

Orders for 5,000 Men Cannot Be Filled By Employment Agents.

No Excuse for Any Able-Bodied Man to Be Out of Job.

According to George S. Richards of the National Employment company, 5,000 laborers are needed in this part of the state. Mr. Richards stated that upon the order books of his company and also upon the books of all of the employment offices of Duluth are more orders for men than there has been for years. And the employment agents are finding it impossible to secure the men.

"There is no need for any able bodied man in Duluth or the country surrounding Duluth to be out of employment," said Mr. Richards. "In every line of labor there is a crying demand for men right at the present time. Not since I have been in the employment business in Duluth has the demand for men been so great and the supply apparently so small.

"Wages at the present time are very high. And yet with the wage scale at its present quotation and work upon all sides, it seems almost impossible to secure men.

"Railroads, lumber mills, lumber camps, contractors and employers of labor in the city are asking for more labor. And the worst part of it is that we are unable to supply the men. Work right here in the city is going on slowly in many instances because of this lack of labor."

According to Mr. Richards many men are wanted to work in the mines of the Cuyuna and Mesaba ranges, and it is proving very difficult to secure anywhere near the number of laborers desired.

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR ACCIDENT

Jobbing Firm Not Held Liable for Injuries to Girl.

Neither Thomas Veitch nor his 16-year-old daughter, Margaret, will recover anything from the Gowan-Lenning-Brown company, wholesale grocers, who have, in two causes of action, been charged with responsibility for the girl being left a cripple for life in a coasting accident on Eleventh avenue west two years ago.

In district court before Judge Cant this morning, the jury which tried the lawsuit brought by Thomas Veitch in which he asked $10,000 for loss of the girl's services and $1,000 for expenses, brought in a verdict for the defendant. The jury came in at 10:55 a. m. after having been out for one hour.

At the last term of court, in an action for $26,000 damages brought by the same plaintiff, but for the benefit of the girl, the jury also found in favor of the defendant grocery firm. In both cases, it was sought to establish the company's liability on the theory that a sleigh into which the girl's bobsled bumped had been left in the street in violation of a city ordinance.

WOODSMAN ON TRIAL FOR ROBBERY

Claims He Took Companion's "Roll" for Safe Keeping.

Peter Johnson Guilland, woodsman, was brought to trial by the state this morning before Judge Dancer in district court on the charge that he robbed one Ole Bordal, a companion lumberjack, of his roll of $70, while they were sharing the same bed at the Nicollet hotel on the night of March 24 last.

Peter J. and Ole, the police claim, blew into town on the morning of March 24. They had been working together in the woods and were the best of pals. Ole had a wad of nearly a hundred tucked away in his clothes. Peter J. hadn't been as industrious and didn't have much of a stake.

As soon as they struck the Bowery, they started to acquire a jag of no mean proportion—and incidentally on Ole's accumulation of the hard-earned. Some time along in the evening, after Ole had counted up and found he had about $70 left, they decided to go to bed and hunted lodgings at the Nicollet.

This was all the Ole knew until he woke up in the morning and missed Peter J. and also his wealth. A policeman was summoned and after Ole had explained his situation, a round of the saloons was made. Peter was found imbibing to his heart's delight in one of the booze parlors when his revelry was interrupted by the blue coat, who took both men to the station in order to give them a chance to sober up.

Guilland told the police at the station, it is said, that he had taken Ole's roll for safekeeping. He also repeated the assertion in police court. It will probably be his defense at his trial today. His attorney is Thomas J. McKeon. Warren E. Greene, county attorney, is directing the prosecution.

ATTACKS MOTHER'S WILL

North Dakotan Alleges "Undue Influence" Controlled Its Preparation.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Undue influence" was used in securing from Mrs. Minnie Schneider, who died recently, a will whereby practically all of her property was given to one son, Frank Gherke, is charged in a contest notice served yesterday.

Bernard Gherke, a son, who files the contest, alleges that Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gherke and Rev. John Nelson Lentz, pastor of the church of which Mrs. Schneider attended, exercised "undue influence." It is contended that the will should be thrown out on the plea that Mrs. Schneider was unfit to make such a document.

Crowd Attends Bazar.

Another large crowd attended the bazar held by the Scandinavian Salvation Army at its hall, 1631 West Superior street, last evening. The program was contributed to by the choir of the Swedish Mission church and duet selections by Misses Johnson and Erickson.

This evening the colored choir of the A. M. E. church will sing. Rev. Mr. Tyler, pastor of the colored church, will speak.

FOR LINCOLN STATUE.

North Dakotans Giving Money for Gift to Norway's King.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twelve hundred dollars have already been subscribed towards the fund being raised for the purpose of presenting a statue of Abraham Lincoln to the Kingdom of Norway at the Centennial celebration in 1914. P. O. Thorson of this city, treasurer of the fund, has received such donations. The plan, remarkably unique, is being worked out throughout the state, Governor L. B. Hanna being the head of the movement. It was launched by the Norwegians of the state, the purpose being to send back home a statue of one of the American statesmen whom they revere. The presentation will be made at Christiania.

UNPREPARED FOR WAR.

Opinion of Commander of Michigan National Guard Regiment.

Calumet, Mich., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Col. J. B. Boucher of Cheboygan, commander of the Third regiment Michigan National guard, while he was in Houghton county this week with the Federal militia inspectors, stated emphatically that the United States is far from being prepared for a great war and it is generally believed that he but voices the opinion of military men who are well informed. The emergency orders from the war department, received this week, which ordered the inspection of the entire national guard May 31, has aroused much speculation in regard to a possible war with Japan or trouble with Mexico and South American states.

WILD WEST SHOW PERFORMERS HURT.

Mrs. Harry Smith, formerly Goldie E. Griffith of Los Angeles, sustained a broken ankle, and two others were cut and bruised.

KNOW NOTHING OF RECALL

Majority of Saloon Men Behind Hicken in Policy of Law Enforcement, When It Applies to All Alike.

Along Superior street this morning somebody said he had seen something, somewhere, to the effect that a movement had been started for the recall of Commissioner W. A. Hicken, head of the division of public safety.

The person in question sauntered further down the city's main street. Through curiosity he asked a number of people what they had heard about recalling Hicken. All were equally at sea. No one seemed to have heard of any such movement and no one knew of any petition being circulated.

"I wonder where that could have come from?" said one, "I think that I would have heard of it if anything of that kind were being done."

"Who could have been responsible for that report anyhow?" questioned another. "Funny I didn't hear anything about it."

"If there is anything to that talk I'd like to know what it is," asserted still another. Incidentally, he is in a business vitally concerned with the policy which is being followed by Commissioner Hicken. So are the others, more or less—mostly more. "The only ones I have heard kicking," continued the man in question, "are those who have been getting special privileges. They seem to think that they have a special dispensation from Providence to do as they please, particularly at the expense of the others who do not seem to have had the same divine rights in the past. Because it reduces the gold in the cash register it makes them sore to feel the screws turned on them the same as they are on the other fellow. They get sick when they realize that they are losing a dollar. I'm in the saloon business, but I can make a living by coming within the law. So can most of the others. But there are a few who seem to think they've got to break the law in order to get along. Maybe they do, but if that is the case, it only goes to show that the town's got too many saloons, and that is a condition which is not good for any place. If that's the case it will be a good thing for the business if some of them are cut out. When the dollars are needed as badly as that it's a cinch that it is time that some radical steps were taken. Recall Hicken? Well, let 'em start, if there's anybody who thinks that it can be put over. I want to tell you right now that should there be a recall election, and Hicken is a candidate, Hicken 'll be returned with a vote which will make his vote at the last election look like a deuce spot. If the people had known Hicken better when he was running before and had realized that he would do what he has done, he would have run towards the top of the ticket. Recall him? Well, all they've got to do is to get the recall election. The results will speak for themselves. There may be some sore heads, but if they think that the atmosphere which they are breathing is a sample of that throughout the city, they've got some things to find out."

"OWL" CAR DERAILED ON EAST FOURTH STREET

The west gound "owl" car from Woodland jumped the track at the Twenty-fourth avenue east and Fourth street switch at 4:14 this morning and headed for the ditch on the lower side of the street. No one was injured, but it caused a little delay in getting cars to the Woodland district during the early morning hours.

Only the members of the crew and a motorman who was going to the car barns to start work for the day were on the car at the time of the accident. The car was moving at about seven miles an hour when it struck the partly open switch. Before it could be stopped it had struck the curbing on the lower side of the street and partly mounted the sidewalk.

QUIET DAY IN MARKETS

Little Change in Prices During a Listless Session.

Fractional Rise at Opening Is Maintained During Day.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 16.—The closing hours of trading saw no perceptible difference in quotations than what had already been recorded in the earlier hours, most options enjoying a rise and maintaining it. Net gains: July spring wheat, ⅜@½c; September, ⅝c; May, ⅜c. July durum closed at the opening figure after going up ¼c.

Cash wheat closed at the same as July to ½c under. Oats remained unchanged, as did rye and barley.

For no particular reason, the various options in wheat took a start upward this morning immediately after the opening of the market. July spring wheat opened on the Duluth board at yesterday's closing figures but soon advanced ¼c, and by the time the noon hour was reached had collected an advance of ½c over the opening. May wheat had no opening figure marked up, but shortly after the opening had attained an advance of ⅛c over yesterday's close, which was at 88⅜c. By the noon hour it had gained still further, so that it was ⅝c over the close, but at noon had gone back until it was only ⅛@¼c up. May durum gained ⅛@¼c and July was unchanged to ⅛@¼c up.

Bullish news received was to the effect that Argentine shipments were lighter than was expected, and that frost had affected wheat in certain portions of Russia; also that primary receipts are lower than yesterday and clearances larger. Primary markets report receipts 21,000 bu lower than Thursday, and clearances are reported as being 21,000 bu larger. Excellent crop reports abound, and it is believed that the only reason for the little rise that has occurred is caused by shorts covering. Trading on the local board is light.

Flax Falls Off.

Flax had a bad day of it, the market being dull and uneventful throughout. May made a gain, and for a time July was over yesterday's close, but fell off toward the close and ended under that mark. September went down a full cent soon after the opening of the market and never recovered. October also fell off. No disposition to buy was shown and so far holders of the seed are concerned there were no offerings to speak of.

and no pressure from the exporting countries, but owing to the stiff attitude of the other growers, the North American wheat is getting more in line and a further decline in the United States markets might perhaps influence the whole list. It is this fear which is making buyers more reserved today or at least waiting for further developments. The Eastern holidays being over, the attitude of the Russian sellers must also be watched, although we think the greater part of the Russian wheat, if it is coming out at all, will go to Italy, as supplies in the Danube, which has shipped so far largely to the Mediterranean are nearly exhausted. We think therefore that the course of the market in the near future will depend chiefly upon the United States markets."

Modern Miller, St. Louis: "There are complaints from sections of the winter wheat belt because of the lack of moisture, but reports do not indicate that the crop has suffered to any extent. In some of the drought stricken localities timely rains have alleviated danger of damage almost up to harvest time. As a rule the crop continues to make healthy and rapid progress to maturity. Indications are for an early harvest, as the plant is heading in the southern part of the wheat country and the crop should be ready for harvest by June 15 or July 1."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Is Bullish on Prospect of Small Russian Shipments.

Chicago, May 16.—Prospect of small Russian shipments this week had a bullish effect today on wheat. There were also reports of frost damage in the Volga region. Strength of feed grains acted as an offset to fine weather here. Opening prices were the same as last night to ⅝c up; July started at 88c to 88⅛@88¼c, unchanged to ⅛@¼c higher, and rose to 88⅜@88½c.

Assertions that the sight draft controversy which has hindered exports would be settled in twenty-four hours caused an additional upturn. The close was steady with July ⅝c net higher at 88⅝c.

Corn advanced on account of expected decreases of stocks on hand here. July, which opened a shade to ¼c up at 55⅝@55¾c to 55⅞c, climbed to 56⅛@56¼c.

Not much reaction took place. The close was steady at 56c for July, ⅜c above last night.

Scantiness of the rains in Illinois and Indiana made oats shorts rush to cover. July started a sixteenth to ⅜@½c higher at 35⅝@36c, and ascended to 36¼c.

Provisions eased off because the demand was only of a scattered sort. First transactions varied from last night's level to 2½c down, with July as follows: Pork, $19.55; lard, $10.90; ribs, $11.12½.

Cash: Wheat—No. 2 red, $1.05@1.06; No. 3 red, 95c@1.01; No. 2 hard, 91@92c; No. 3 hard, 89@91c; No. 1 northern, 90½@92c; No. 2 northern, 89@91c; No. 3 northern, 87@89c; No. 2 spring, 89@90c; No. 3 spring, 87@89c; No. 4 spring, 80@83c; velvet chaff, 88@92½c; durum, 90@96c.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Traders on Short Side Buy Back Stocks Sold Thursday.

Standard Stocks End Day With Gains and Close Is Firm.

New York, May 16.—After two days of moderate bear selling and declining prices, traders on the short side of the stock market were fearful today of over-extending the movement, and bought back the stocks they sold yesterday. The covering movement filled in with the alternative upward and downward swings of the market recently, which have caused little alteration in the general run of values.

The improvement today was assisted by the rise of American stocks in London, although trading here for London account was virtually at a standstill. Suspension of the recent forced liquidation of minor stocks helped to create a better sentiment for the time. The bond market was irregular, with a continuation of pressure against some issues, St. Louis & San Francisco refunding 4's making a new low record of 72. The new St. Paul 4½'s on the other hand, showed considerable strength, rising to par for the first time.

The reduction of the New Haven dividend rate from 8 per cent to 6, announced after the close yesterday, having been fully discounted, there was a better market for the stock at the opening today, and on the first transaction it rose a point to 106. Trading was more active, and though changes were irregular, a majority of the active issues were higher. Union Pacific and Amalgamated were in good demand and gained large fractions.

Support to influential stocks caused the market to turn decidedly upward, closing a reaction of 1½ in New Haven, Canadian Pacific, Brooklyn Transit, Amalgamated and the Harriman shares improved a point.

Speculative favorites, such as Reading and Union Pacific worked still higher after midday, but the great mass of stocks was neglected. Selling of stocks and bonds of some Southern and Middle Western railroads apparently indicated resumption of liquidation.

Purchases by shorts seemed to have been satisfied by the time the active features had risen about a point beyond yesterday's close. Speculation thereafter was fitful, but the tone continued strong despite the meagerness of the demand.

The market closed firm. Rising prices marked the limited business of the last hour. The list paid little heed to the weakness of some speculative bonds. Pressure was evident against half a dozen low-priced stocks which had recently been liquidated quite freely. Standard stocks ended the day with advances ranging from ½ to 2 points.

MARINE NEWS

BLOCKADE IS BROKEN

Boats Now Able to Get Through Ice Without Difficulty.

Harbor Still Filled With Floating Ice---Some Minor Accidents.

Although the ice still remains both inside and outside of the harbor, the boat movement is not retarded and the normal arrivals and departures are reported.

The heavy northeast wind, which started blowing Wednesday morning, did not abate until yesterday afternoon. A light southwest breeze came up about 3 o'clock and very much bettered the conditions in the harbor. The jam of ice just outside of the canal was broken up and entrance to the harbor was made much easier for the boats.

A light northeast wind came up again this morning, but it is very light and not expected to do much damage. Even the smaller craft are able to get about, the Edna A. one of the package boats plying between here and the south shore, getting through without any difficulty whatever about 11 o'clock this morning.

In getting through the canal yesterday morning the steamer Ames stripped her wheel about a foot and a half off each blade. She made repairs at the dock yesterday afternoon, when the damage was discovered. She will clear sometime this afternoon with an ore load.

The steamer Fred G. Hartwell, which rammed the Clement Wednesday evening, cleared with a cargo of ore yesterday afternoon.

The ice condition yesterday and Wednesday was as bad as it has been for years. At the Superior entry traffic was practically at a standstill all day yesterday.

COAL RECEIPTS ARE VERY HEAVY

Ten Cargoes Arrive During Last Twenty-Four Hours.

Eastern coal shippers, it is reported, are turning away wild tonnage for Lake Superior ports. The coal shipments have been so large that the docks in the East are being rapidly cleared.

Since yesterday noon ten steamers with coal cargoes arrived in the local harbor.

The grain congestion at Buffalo is practically over, only 2,000,000 bushels being reported afloat in the harbor this morning. This is the smallest amount since the arrival of the first grain fleet there at the opening of the season. The car supply is reported better than ever before.

Although this congestion is about over, very little grain is being shipped from local ports. There is no demand in the East and shippers are not inclined to send any cargoes at present. The grain shipments are being made from the Canadian Head of the Lakes where tounage was contracted for last winter.

Only small boats are being chartered for grain shipments, without guarantee of dispatch. The rate is still 2 cents.

At the Tonawandas the lumber receipts have been exceptionally heavy and the canal boats, it is reported, are all loaded and ready for the opening. The canal rates for lumber are $2.25 to Albany and $2.75 to New York. This is an increase of 10 cents per thousand feet over the rates of last year.

Several heavy lumber shipments are to be made out of the local harbor within the next doy or two, five boats having arrived since yesterday noon for lumber cargoes.

About 200,000 tons of ore are being unloaded at the docks in Duluth, Superior and Two Harbors each day. Of this total 75,000 tons are being received at the Great Northern docks at Allouez and 75,000 tons at the Missabe docks.

LUMBER BOAT RUNS AGROUND

The steamer Norwalk ran aground this morning above the Northern Pacific railroad bridge, on the Minnesota side of the channel.

The boat is loaded with lumber and was on her way out, when she ran aground out of the regular channel route. The tugs Crosby and Minnesota have been working on her for the past three hours, but have so far not succeeded in pulling her out.

The boat is not damaged at all, according to the captain in charge. It is owned by the Shoal Water Transportation company of Mount Clemens, Mich.

CABLE CARRIED AWAY BY BOAT.

Either of the large steamers or a tug in passing up the river to a West Duluth dock this morning, broke the large cable of the North American Telegraph company.

All service between the two cities has been at a standstill, and linemen are now out trying to locate the break.

The name of the boat is not known. Local officials of the telegraph company expect to have the cable fixed some time during the afternoon.

Notice to Mariners.

William Livingstone, president of the Lake Carriers' association, has sent the following notice to the local office:

"South lightship, formerly marking Ballard's reef channel, has been stationed on west bank of entrance to Livingstone channel to mark turning point into channel. It will carry anchor light at night and will ring bell for downbound passing vessels. It is located abreast of middle gas buoy, about 1,700 feet above the recently established buoy which has the green and white lights, and which marks intersection of channels."

In many instances pilots appear to have disregarded the gas buoy which is the middle one of three on the starboard side, and have proceeded too far down Ballard's reef channel. In one recent case a steamer with a barge in tow, apparently delayed making the turn until it had passed down behind the buoy, showing a white and green light, which marks the intersection of the east bank of Livingstone channel with the west bank of Amherstburg channel.

By making the turn into Livingstone channel immediately after passing the light vessel down bound vessels will have practically a straight course into the dry work section of Livingstone channel and will avoid the short turn which results from proceeding too far down Ballard's reef channel in the effort to pass alongside the buoy with white and green lights on the east bank.

The light vessel will be maintained by the Lake Carriers' association, which will be responsible to the Canadian government for its care and preservation. Two men will be stationed aboard the vessel and it is equipped with a bell to assist in making its presence known in thick or foggy weather.

OLD CAR FERRY IS TAKEN TO SARNIA.

Detroit, Mich., May 16.—The old car ferry Sainte Marie, with boilers and engines removed and sadly in need of a coat of paint, was towed up the Detroit river Wednesday morning by the tug Sarnia City, bound from Toledo to Sarnia. The old Sainte Marie has for the past couple of years been lying at Toledo, her machinery having been taken from her and placed aboard the new car boat of the same name, which came out early this year. It has not been ascertained what will be done with the old boat.

The car ferry Chief Wawatam left Mackinac City for this port Wednesday. She will go into dock here for a general overhauling after her strenuous winter in the ice at the straits. The new ferry Sainte Marie left here last week for the straits after having a new forward propeller placed. She lost her propeller in the ice last winter.

Canal Open in June.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 16.—John A. Bensel, state engineer, paid a visit to Buffalo Wednesday after inspecting the western division of the Erie canal from Clyde to this city, which is in charge of E. J. Govern, division engineer, Mr. Govern stated yesterday that this end of the canal would be open for traffic on May 20. Others in the party were: James Natel, the state engineer's secretary, and Gerald Fluer and Assemblyman Cole.

The boats leaving here on May 20 will go by way of the barge canal from Tonawanda to Rochester, with the exception of the two miles at Medina. The entire canal will not be open for navigation until the latter part of June.

Ore Receipts.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 16.—Iron ore receipts at Buffalo reached the high mark for the season Wednesday, when, according to the reports at the custom office, 56,784 tons were received here. The steamer J. H. Sheadle with 9,647 tons brought in the largest cargo. All the ore was shipped from Superior, except the Choctaw's cargo, which came from Ashland, Wis.

Collision.

Port Colborne, Ont., May 16.—The steamer Sequin, bound down loaded, and the steamer Masaba, upbound light, collided in the canal near the Air Line bridge, Wednesday afternoon.

Both boats are badly damaged. The Masaba has a large hole in her bow and forward compartment and four plates will have to be repaired. The Sequin's upper works are damaged.

WANTS $30,000 GIVEN TO SAVE GRANDSON

Milwaukee Woman Sues Nine Defendants Whom She Paid Money.

Chicago, May 16.—The suit of Mrs. Laura G. Rogers of Milwaukee to recover property valued at $30,000 from the National City bank, the Wauwausee Inn company and seven other defendants who are alleged to have obtained the money from her to save her grandson, Butler R. Storke, "the boy financier," of this city, from prison, went to trial before Federal Judge Carpenter today.

Dr. Thomas E. Roberts testified that he officiated at the birth of Storke and that this event occurred on Nov. 16, 1892. This evidence was brought out to show that the young man is still under legal age, although he is said to have made affidavit to the defendants in his bond deals that he was more than 21.

Mrs. Rogers, who is 66 years of age, was the next witness. She told how three of the defendants, G. L. Wire, William A. Bither and D. H. Grimme, called upon her and said that her grandson had defrauded them in bond deals and that they would send him to prison unless she made good their losses.

"The men brought my grandson with them and I was greatly shocked by what they told me," related the witness. "They called Butler a 'con man' and an embezzler and I told them that I would give everything I had—my real estate, stocks, diamonds—everything—to save the boy from prison."

Labor Leaders From West Virginia Hear Debate in Senate.

Washington, May 16.—Senator Kern's resolution for investigation of the charges of peonage, militarism and oppression of workers in the West Virginia mine district was up again today in the senate with prospects of a vote. Backed with numerous affidavits and statements alleging despotism and a reign of terror maintained by the mine operators, Mr. Kern announced he would insist on some action before the senate adjourned.

"Mother" Jones and other labor leaders from the district heard the debate from the senate galleries.

RAIN EXTINGUISHES WISCONSIN FIRES.

Couderay, Wis., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first heavy rainfall for this spring fell all through this section for a day and a half, thoroughly soaking the ground. NEW TRAINS TO WINNIPEG

Canadian Northern Will Install New Service on June 8.

Both Day and Night Service Over the New Line.

Beginning Sunday, June 8, the Canadian Northern will give double train service between Duluth and Winnipeg. The announcement was made today from the local office of the road.

The anouncement includes no mention of the plans for a Chicago-Winnipeg service via Duluth in conjunction with the Omaha road, but a separate announcement is expected from the Omaha, providing for connections with the Canadian Northern trains here.

Under the new service, one train will leave the Omaha station for Winnipeg every morning at 7:45, and an evening train will leave at 7:55 for Winnipeg. The trains from Winnipeg will arrive at 8:25 a. m. and 10:45 p. m. At Winnipeg connections will be made for all points west.

The day train will consist of day coaches, observation, cafe and parlor car. The evening train will have standard sleepers and dining car service.

The service will become effective Sunday evening, June 8, and the Canadian Northern trains will then run from the Omaha station for the first time.

PAY CHECKS WERE HELD UP

Resignation of Five Clerks Delayed Great Northern "Dough Day."

Five clerks employed at the general offices of the Great Northern Railway company at Superior who left their posts of duty last week, have delayed the regular monthly pay checks of every employe of the Mesaba division of the Great Northern Railway company. Yesterday was the regular payday for the employes of the Hill line, but no pay checks were received by any of the railroad men working on the range division. Assurance was received, however, that the checks would be forthcoming in a day or two.

IRON RANGE ALSO HAS MOORE CARS.

In stating last evening that the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad was the only road in this section that did not refuse shipments of perishables during the extreme cold weather last winter, The Herald did the Duluth & Iron Range railroad an injustice.

The Iron Range is also equipped with Moore cars and was equipped with heated cars before the Moore cars were obtained. Last winter the Iron Range and Missabe both carried shipments of perishables during the most extreme cold weather.

CINCINNATI CAR STRIKE GETS BEYOND CONTROL OF POLICE; COX DENIES PLEA FOR TROOPS

MAYOR HUNT'S REQUEST FOR HELP DENIED

Riots Begin With Attempt By Company to Extend Service.

Crew Pulled From Car and Beaten and Kicked By Mob.

Bags of Cement Dropped on Street Car From New Building.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 17.—The street car strike situation apparently has got beyond control of the local police. Mayor Hunt today sent a request to Governor Cox and Adjutant General Wood for militia.

Governor Cox in reply notified Mayor Hunt that he did not think the situation here at this time was sufficiently serious to warrant the sending of troops.

The company announced that it would open additional lines today.

Beginning today the Amalgamated Association of Electric and Streetcar Men will pay $5 a week to all the men now on strike.

The first serious trouble of the day occurred when an attempt was made to start cars from the Brighton barns. Two cars had just left the barns when a large crowd surrounded them, pulled members of the crew from the cars and beat and hicked them. Missiles of

TYPIST SAYS HEETER WAS TOO FAMILIAR

New Angle to Inquiry By Citizens of Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 17.—The investigation of alleged immorality against S. L. Heeter, superintendent of public schools of Pittsburg, now in progress by a committee of citizens composed of bishops, ministers and businessmen, took a new angle late yesterday when a former stenographer in Heeter's employ made affidavit of "undue familiarity" which caused her to quit her position, she states. Heeter brands her story as "another malicious lie."

Heeter, charged by a domestic in his home of two offenses, was tried in criminal court and acquitted. Other charges brought on the present investigation. The mother of the school superintendent recently died at North Manchester, Ind., and the probe was halted. Meanwhile school children remained away from school and thousands of them paraded the streets carrying banners inscribed "Kick Heeter Out."

The committee of citizens, appointed by the board of education, has held one meeting. When the next meeting will be held is indefinite because of the reluctance of witnesses to appear before the body, although assured that their names and testimony are to be kept secret.

"BITTER LETTERS" BY MRS. LINCOLN ON SALE

Series of Twelve Is to Be Put Up at Auction.

New York, May 17.—What are known as Mrs. Lincoln's "bitter letters" are to be sold at auction here next week. The collection consists of twelve letters written by the widow of the martyred president in the years just following his assassination. In some of them Mrs. Lincoln was almost hysterical in upbraiding congress for not providing for her, and in her denunciation of Gen. Grant. One letter, written in August, 1865, asks a friend to try to sell the black lace gown which Mrs. Lincoln wore at the second inauguration in order to raise money for the support of herself and her two boys. The gown was one presented to her by a friend of her husband, and it cost $3,500.

In another letter, dated Dec. 30, 1865, Mrs. Lincoln writes bitterly of the fortunes of the Grant family as compared with her own, and declares that "Gen. Grant's services to his country were certainly not superior to my husband's."

ST. PAUL RESORTS ORDERED TO CLOSE.

St. Paul, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Proprietors of sixty-two houses known to the police as disorderly resorts must close their doors May 26, according to a notification sent out last night by Chief of Police Flanagan. The Wallace-Fosseen law passed by the recent legislature puts out of existence after June 1 every establishment of questionable repute in Minnesota. The action taken by Chief Flanagan was the first step looking to the enforcement of the new law.

M'ADOO MAKES NEW RULING FOR BANKS

Will Accept Municipal Bonds to Secure Deposits.

Washington, May 17.—A revolutionary ruling by the treasury department came to light today in the announcement by Secretary McAdoo of the department's intention to accept temporary bonds of municipalities as security for national bank deposits.

The department heretofore has refused to accept temporary bonds or certificates as security. But in the case of New York city, where bids are to be opened on May 20 for 4½ per cent bonds, the secretary announced that the department would accept the temporary certificates, when legally issued, as security for 30 per cent of the government deposits in New York city national banks.

These certificates are to hold good until the engraving of the new definite bond. Many inquiries have come to the treasury department asking if temporary bonds or certificates would be accepted.

ICE IN DRINKING TANKS MUST BE INSPECTED

Federal Health Service Puts the Job Up to Cities.

Washington, May 17.—Ice used in chilling water on passenger cars and inland steamers must be pure, according to a ruling handed down today by the Federal public health service. Having issued its ultimatum against the general drinking cup and its insistence that the drinking water in train tanks must be pure, the service has gone one step further.

Hereafter ice that comes in contact with the drinking water must be certified to as free from impurities. State and municipal authorities must examine all such water and see that its purity is unquestioned. Inspection is required at least once every six months unless there are contagious diseases in the district from which the water is drawn.

MINNESOTA ORATORS FIFTH IN CONTEST

Ohio Wins and Missouri Man Captures Second Place.

Wooster, Ohio, May 17.—Ohio won first honors in the interstate oratorical contest here last night, in which ten states were represented. A. B. Cunningham of Muskingum college won first place; second place went to Howard T. Beaver of William Jewell college, Missouri. Other states ranked in the following order: Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois. Speakers from Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska were ruled out by the judges on thought and composition.

MANY BUILDINGS HIT BY LIGHTNING

Severe Electrical Storm Occurs in Western Wisconsin.

Tomah, Wis., May 17.—In a severe electrical storm over Western Wisconsin early today numerous farm and city buildings were struck by lightning and burned, and a considerable quantity of stock destroyed.

The storm was most severe in Eastern Monroe county. The large Benedict residence at Sparta was destroyed, as were the properties of a number around Tomah. At nearly all points street car and electric light plants were put out of commission for a time. The total loss will run far into the thousands.

No loss of human life has been reported.

MRS. DIETZ'S BAIL $50,000

Chicago Woman Held Responsible for Husband's Murder.

Coroner's Jury Directs Release of Her Friend, Nurnberg.

Chicago, May 17.—Mrs. Augusta Dietz, held late yesterday by a coroner's jury for the murder of her husband, George H. Dietz, a woman's tailor, was admitted to bail today in the sum of $50,000.

Mrs. Dietz was declared by the coroner's jury to be responsible or to have guilty knowledge, of the death of her husband, who was found dead April 14, in his bed chamber, his skull crushed with a heavy hammer.

George Nurnberg, a friend of both Mr. and Mrs. Dietz, who testified at the former hearing that he had been particularly friendly with Mrs. Dietz, was held to have had no part in the murder and was dismissed. Nurnberg has been in custody since a few days after the tragedy. Mrs. Dietz was allowed to go home under the $10,000 bond by which she had obtained her release when Nurnberg was taken.

The jury found that Dietz came to his death from "fractured skull, due to external violence with a hammer," and held that "Augusta Dietz, his wife, is directly responsible for his death, or she has guilty knowledge of his death."

Nurnberg Not Held.

The verdict declared that insufficient evidence had been presented to warrant the holding of Nurnberg, but recommended that the police continue their investigations.

The verdict was heard by Mrs. Dietz without any change in expression, and she left for her home without offering any comment.

Mrs. Nurnberg testified that she had her husband's office telephone tapped, and that a week before Dietz's death she had heard Mrs. Dietz telephone to Nurnberg and make an engagement to meet him in Highland park, a suburb.

PASS PENAL CODE OVER HUNT'S VETO.

Phoenix, Ariz., May 17.—The Arizona legislature has passed the penal code over the governor's veto. In the senate the vote was 15 to 1 and in the house 25 to 6.

In vetoing the penal code, Governor Hunt vigorously denounced his opponents within the Democratic party, whom he designated as the "force of reaction." Since his inauguration, declared the message, he had been made the victim of petty reprisals, chiefly because of his prison reform ideas. He predicted that if his enemies were victorious, the Democratic party in Arizona would be "wrecked on the rocks of reaction."

LONDON PAPER SAYS BRITISH INTEREST IN ALIEN LAWS IS GREAT

NEW ASSISTANT TO SECRETARY GARRISON

—Copyrighted by Clinedinst.

Washington, May 17.—Henry S. Breckenridge is the new assistant secretary of war. He is a native of Kentucky, is 27 years of age and a lawyer by profession. He is a graduate of Princeton and of Harvard law school.

CALIFORNIA U. C. T. ASKS AN ALIEN LAW

Would Have Non-Citizens Segregated in Railway Trains.

Sacramento, Cal., May 17.—Segregation of aliens on passenger trains in California is sought by the state branch of the United Commercial Travelers in convention here. The grand council has been asked to take the matter up with the state railroad commission.

Speakers who urged segregation said they often were put to inconvenience, and that their health was imperiled by the presence of "objectionable aliens" in first-class coaches.

CRUISER FOR SALE.

Craft Built in 1888, at Cost of $1,284,000, Is to Go.

Washington, May 17.—The old cruiser Newark will shortly be offered for sale by the savy department. It was built in Philadelphia in 1888 at a cost of $1,284,000, and until recently was on duty as station ship at Guantanamo, Cuba.

Declares Australia, New Zealand and Canada Are With America.

Pall Mall Gazette Believes Japan Likely to Make War.

Mexico May Protest Arizona's New Law as to Land.

London, May 17.—"Should war break out, the sympathies of Australia, New Zealand and Western Canada would be violently on the side of the United States," says the Pall Mall Gazette today in discussing the California alien land ownership controversy.

The newspaper considers that it would be a grave mistake to underestimate the chances of a conflict between the United States and Japan. It says:

"The opinion that the Japanese will never go to war to enforce their treaty rights in California is one of those dangerous generalities which lead nations blindfold to the brink of the pit."

Might Force Action.

The Pall Mall Gazette expresses the opinion that there are several reasons why Japan may be desirous of forcing the issue at the present moment. Most obvious of these is the pending opening of the Panama ca-

TELLS ABOUT GUM AND CORSETS, ETC.

The "Ladies' Number" of "Treasury Decisions" Issued By McAdoo.

Washington, May 17.—Secretary McAdoo has just issued a "ladies' number" of the treasury department's official weekly paper. This publication, circulated under the name of "Treasury Decisions" and embodying opinions by the treasury department and the courts on customs and internal revenue questions has a long subscription list among officials and business interests.

While usually dry and technical, treating of such subjects as duties on steel, iron and lumber, this week's issue possesses a distinctly feminine touch and is of importance to every woman in the land and to the pocketbooks of most of the men. It deals with the drawback on chewing gum, drawback on corsets, drawback on shoes, duties on ladies' collars and cuffs, trimmed hats, whalebones, needle cases, slipper ornaments, aigrettes, beaded necklaces and bags, dress buttons, mesh bags and a score of other articles of feminine wear.

BODY OF MAN FOUND ON LAKE SHORE---EVIDENCE OF MYSTERIOUS MURDER

MADE CHARGES AGAINST NEW YORK'S PRISONS

GEORGE W. BLAKE.

Albany, N. Y., May 17.—George W. Blake, special commissioner designated under an executive order to investigate the prisons of the state of New York by Governor Sulzer, has stirred up matters at Auburn, and Sing Sing prisons by his reports. He recommends a grand jury investigation of the administration of the prison physician, John T. Serin, at Auburn, whom he holds largely responsible for much of the brutality which he claims has been practiced at Auburn. Warden Kennedy at Sing Sing is highly indignant over the charges against him and is insisting that the grand jury of Westchester county, now in session, investigate Commissioner Blake's charges of conditions at Sing Sing prison.

TARIFF BILL IS REFERRED

Senate Votes Down the Republican Demand for Hearings.

Measure Will Be in Committee at Least Two Weeks.

Washington, May 17.—Neither the senate nor house was in session today, and consideration of the tariff bill had passed from the senate floor to the finance committee, where it will remain for at least two weeks.

Chairman Simmons announced that the sub-committee considering the various schedules would not be ready to report for several days. One committee now is at work on the wool schedule, another is considering protests against the cuts in the cotton goods rates, while a third today gave a hearing to Assistant Attorney General Denison and Assistant Secretary Curtis of the treasury department, who proposed amendments to the administrative features of the bill.

Among the changes they advocate is one to give the secretary of the treasury the right to proclaim general valuations of imports, irrespective of foreign markets, upon which to base ad valorem tariff rates.

Democrats Victorious.

Democratic leaders in the senate were indorsed late yesterday in their determination to refer the Underwood bill to the finance committee for consideration without public hearings. The Penrose-La Follette amendment directing that public hearings be held was defeated by a vote of 41 to 36 and the motion of Senator Simmons to refer the bill was then passed without a roll call.

Two Democrats, Senators Ransdell

NEW YORK CITY'S EMPLOYES MARCH

Twelve Thousand of Them Give Parade as Object Lesson.

New York, May 17.—Twelve thousand city employes turned out today to give New York an object lesson in municipal government. The lesson was a street parade six miles long, made up of men and vehicles from nineteen city departments. The police and fire departments in the past have paraded annually, but today's procession was the first in which all the various municipal departments united.

The fire department headed the line, with 1,495 men and twenty-two pieces of apparatus (all that could be spared with safety), three floats and ten trucks, and the police brought up the rear 7,224 strong with thirty-five vehicles. The divisions between comprised the other municipal workers, many in uniforms and all accompanied by the implements and vehicles of their work. There were 560 vehicles in all, and forty-three bands.

Next to the police the largest division was the street-cleaning department, with 1,770 white-uniformed sweepers and dockmen and 351 dump carts and sweeping machines.

The department of parks added variety with cages of animals from the Central Park zoo, headed by a trick elephant.

...lly Manicured Nails ...licate He Was Not Manual Laborer.

Throat Slashed and Skull Fractured—May Never Be Identified.

Naked except for a pair of black socks, the body of a man, whose skull was cracked over the right temple and fractured over the right eye, was found on the lake shore near the foot of Thirty-fifth avenue east this morning.

Murder appears to have been committed, judging from the circumstances and the appearance of the body as it lay in the undertaking rooms of Flood & Horgan at 24 East First street this afternoon.

The victim was not a man in the lower walks of life. His hands were not those of a laborer or a woodsman, being well manicured and showing no indications of hard work. The body was well preserved and seemed to be that of a man not much past 30 years of age.

The lower part of the neck, which might possibly have been slashed by some sharp weapon, showed about a two weeks' growth of beard. Little

JIPIJAPI HAT MAY COST OFFICIAL HEAD

Director of Consular Service and Consul General Clash.

Washington, May 17.—One Jipijapi hat purchased six years ago by Wilbur J. Carr, director of the consular service in the state department, has stirred up a fine assortment of trouble in which Mr. Carr and Herman Dietrich, former consul general at Guayaquil, Ecuador, are the principals. The hat now does not appear in the picture. It was given by Mr. Carr to a friend several years ago.

According to Mr. Carr, in 1907 he asked Consul General Dietrich to buy and ship to him a Jipijapi hat. He wanted it for an acquaintance, but the headgear was so long in coming, according to Mr. Carr, that the acquaintance purchased a hat of the ordinary straw variety. When the hat finally did arrive no bill accompanied it, and although Mr. Carr says he asked for the bill on numerous occasions he could get no satisfaction. Finally he gave the headgear away.

Mr. Dietrich now wants payment, and he also would have Mr. Carr discharged from the service of the state department. He has made a formal demand for Mr. Carr's official scalp to Senator Stone. Incidentally Mr. Dietrich says that the hat cost him $16, and with interest his bill now totals $20.50.

CLAIMS HE FREEZES GERMS OF LEPROSY

Inventor of Liquified Air Attracts Attention of Scientists.

Geneva, Switzerland, May 17.—Assertions of Prof. Raoul Pictet of this city, inventor of liquified air, that he has discovered a "cold cure" for leprosy are attracting attention here. He says that American doctors in Hawaii are giving his methods a test and already have found them successful.

Lepers are subjected to local application of liquified carbon dioxide at a very low temperature—110 deg. below zero. The intense cold, he says, has gradually destroyed the microbes of leprosy, and the diseased flesh has regained its original health and color.

ROSSILLO FLIES TO CUBA FROM KEY WEST

Aviator Takes Less Than Three Hours for the Trip.

Key West, Fla., May 17.—Aviator Domingo Rossillo left from the Florida East Coast railroad terminal at 5:35 o'clock this morning in an aeroplane in his attempt to fly from Key West to Havana in competition for a $10,000 prize offered by the city of Havana.

Arrived at 8:10.

Havana, May 17.—Rossillo, the Cuban aviator, arrived here from Key West at 8:10 a. m. The Cuban government offered a prize of $10,000 to any aviator accomplishing the flight, and sent a cruiser and two gunboats to patrol the route.

CITY SUFFERS BY LACK OF MEN.

Alexandria, Va., May 17.—Lack of able bodied men who have the desire to work is so great that this city is now facing commercial stagnation. Manufacturers especially are becoming alarmed at the scarcity of labor, and a committee of the chamber of commerce today arranged to discuss the situation with Mayor Fisher.

One suggestion made by the would-be employers of labor is the more rigid enforcement of the vagrancy laws under which "Weary Willies" could be compelled to work for wages or go to jail.

HEAVY GRAIN SHIPMENTS

Nearly 20,000,000 Bushels Sent Out in First Month of Season.

Demand Now Slackening and Boats Enter the Ore Trade.

During the first month of the present navigation season, which began a month ago today, when the steamer W. H. Wolf left for Buffalo with a grain cargo, nearly 20,000,000 bushels of grain has been shipped out of the Duluth and Superior harbors.

The above figures given out by the office of the secretary of the board of trade show that the shipments for this first month are up to the average of the first month in any year in Duluth's history. There were 32,000,000 bushels afloat or in storage at the Head of the Lakes at the opening of navigation this year.

The receipts at the local ports for each week average about 1,250,000 bushels, so that there has been about 6,000,000 bushels received since navigation opened. This makes a total of 27,000,000 bushels, of which nearly 20,000,000 bushels have already been shipped.

Of this total shipment it is estimated that about 12,000,000 bushels have been shipped from Duluth and the remainder from Superior.

Over 1,000,000 tons of ore, it is estimated, has been shipped from Lake Superior points during this first month. The exact figures are not yet available, but local officials are of the belief that the total will easily reach the 1,000,000 mark.

Coal receipts are much larger now than they were at the opening of the season and for the past few days have been rather heavy. Sixteen coal boats have arrived in the past forty-eight hours.

Grain shipments at present are exceedingly dull, only one boat having left the local harbor since yesterday noon. The Viking carried a light cargo for Buffalo.

Boat owners are chartering their boats for ore shipments, instead of grain, as they are receiving better rates and dispatch for the former.

The steamer Brower came in yesterday towed by the C. M. Warner. They were both loaded with coal. The Brower lost her rudder near Round Island last Monday and was towed the entire way to Duluth. The W. W. Brown assisted in towing up to Outer Island, where she left for Ashland.

STEAMER NORWALK STILL AGROUND

The steamer Norwalk, which ran aground yesterday morning on the Minnesota side of the channel, above the Northern Pacific bridge, has not yet been released.

After the tugs Minnesota and Crosby worked on the boat for several hours yesterday, Capt. Goodroe rented a scow from Whitney Brothers in Superior and began lightering the cargo. The men are still at work and this evening another attempt will be made to release the boat.

The Norwalk was loading lumber at one of the docks yesterday morning and in attempting to make a turn, ran aground in eight feet of water. The boat suffered no damage at all.

FIRST MONTH OF SHIPPING SEASON

482 Departures and 423 Arrivals Since the Opening.

Navigation opened just one month ago today, when the steamer W. H. Wolf was the first boat to depart from the local harbor with a cargo of grain for Buffalo.

Since April 17 there have been 482 departures from the Duluth and Superior harbors and 423 arrivals. The fleet of fifty-nine boats which wintered here and in Superior makes the difference in arrivals and departures for this month.

On the opening day of navigation the steamers W. H. Wolf, J. S. Dunham, Ontario, J. T. Kopp and W. P. Snyder, Jr., left with cargoes of grain for Buffalo. They had considerable trouble with the ice outside of the harbor and two of them were compelled to come back. They cleared the next day.

The first boat to arrive in the Duluth and Superior harbors this year was the steamer Selwyn Eddy, which entered the local harbor on April 25, with a cargo of coal.

Since the opening, the boats have had trouble with the ice and on two occasions navigation was entirely blocked for about twenty-four hours. It is expected that from now on there will be little or no trouble at all from the ice. The heavy jam of Wednesday is gone and the large field of ice that was in the harbor yesterday has either melted or drifted out in the lake.

The wind has shifted to the northwest and whatever ice there was outside of the canal has now drifted to the south. There is very little ice left and vessel men are of the opinion that the ice troubles are practically over.

America Is Delayed.

The steamer America of the Booth line, which was expected here last evening, will not arrive until this afternoon, owing to the heavy winds and bad weather on the north shore the past few days. She will not make her scheduled trip to Ashland today, but will attempt the trip next Saturday.

RUSHING LUMBER TO TONAWANDA.

Tonawanda, N. Y., May 17.—O. A. Blodgett of Bay City, owner of one of the largest fleets of lumber carriers on the Great Lakes, is rushing lumber from the Head of the Lakes to the Tonawandas this season. On Monday four of his vessels arrived here with lumber, and Wednesday the steamer Zillah, which was the first vessel to make a round trip to Duluth this season, arrived here with two barges. The steamer Simon Langell and barge Arenac of the same fleet got here Thursday with lumber stock from Duluth.

By the end of this week, the Blodgett boats will have unloaded about 8,000,000 feet of lumber here. The owner has contracted to bring an unusually large amount of lumber to the Tonawandas, and his boats will be kept busy all season.

TOOK FRIEND'S MONEY FOR SAFE KEEPING.

Peter Johnson Guilland was acquitted of the charge of grand larceny, second degree, by a jury in Judge Dancer's court yesterday afternoon. Guilland was accused of having stolen $70 from one Ole Bordal, a companion lumberjack, at the Nicollet hotel on the night of March 24.

He admitted taking the money, but declared he did so in good faith and was only handling it for safekeeping. The story evidently impressed the jury as it only took them ten minutes to decide on a verdict of not guilty.

REPAIRS TO TRACTION LINE

Interstate Company Plans Big Improvements to Its Property.

The Interstate Traction company line on Park Point will be given an overhauling, the abandoned end replaced in service and a great amount of repairs made to the equipment, according to announcement made this morning by Charles B. Dunn, general manager of the road.

The company yesterday received 2,000 ties for the purpose of fixing up its roadbed and considerable other material, including copper wire and rails, which will arrive within a few days. It is planned to spend several thousands of dollars in placing the line in first-class shape.

At a meeting of the bondholders of the company held some time ago the decision to make these improvements was arrived at. The road has been practically turned over to the bondholders owing to its inability to earn operating expenses. These men hope to have the line better patronized following the improvements planned.

BUSINESS IS "SIMPLY GREAT"

Minneapolis Man Says Only Drawback Is Scarcity of Men.

W. G. Rigg of Minneapolis, who has just returned from a trip covering a large part of the northern part of the state, says that business is "simply great" in practically all of this part of Minnesota, and that many of the large lumber companies and some of the railroad contractors are eagerly searching for additional men in order that more work can be started.

"People are not thinking of politics," said Mr. Rigg, "but are working hard. There is so much business to do that there isn't time to listen to any pessimistic utterances.

"The Backus-Brooks people are looking for more men, and this is the case with many of the big concerns in this part of the state. Every large industry in this part of Minnesota could use more men if it were possible to secure them."

STRICKEN WITH BLINDNESS

Former Duluthian Loses Sight Following Stroke of Paralysis.

F. A. Clarkson has received a telegram to the effect that last Wednesday Frank C. Berry of Duluth, formerly connected with the Wright-Clarkson company, was stricken with paralysis in Los Angeles, Cal., and had become totally blind. Today Mr. Clarkson was notified that Mr. Berry is slightly improved and it is hoped to be able to move him before long, but when cannot be said. As soon as this is possible, Mr. Berry will be brought back to Duluth.

Mr. and Mrs. Berry went to Los Angeles about six weeks ago for the benefit of the former's health, which has been very bad for some time. Of late his sight has been failing. Before he went West he had lost the sight of one eye and could see only slightly with the other. The paralysis completed the affliction and it is not known whether or not he will ever recover his sight.

OPPOSE NICARAGUAN DEAL WITH UNCLE SAM

San Salvador People Say They and Honduras Are Affected.

San Salvador, Republic of Salvador, May 17.—Public sentiment here is aroused considerably by dispatches regarding the negotiations between Nicaragua and the United States for the sale by Nicaragua of the right of construction of an inter-oceanic canal and of a United States naval station on the Gulf of Fonseca.

A protest against the action of Nicaragua in connection with the Gulf of Fonseca has been made to the Salvadorean congress by many deputies and prominent citizens, who regard the affair as affecting the rights of Salvador and Honduras.

The diplomatic action of Nicaragua in Washington is adversely criticized.

EMPRESS HELPS BRIDE PREPARE FOR WEDDING

Prince Henry of Reuss and Princess Victoria Are Married.

Potsdam, Germany, May 17.—The marriage of Prince Henry XXXIII of Reuss and Princess Victoria Margarete of Prussia, was celebrated at the new palace here this morning. The ceremonial was the same as is to be employed in Berlin on May 24 at the nuptials of her friend and comrade, Princess Victoria Louise, the only daughter of Emperor William.

The German empress took charge of the bride's ante-nuptial toilette, and placed on the young princess's head the historical princess's crown, which is taken from the imperial treasury only for the marriages of Prussian princesses.

Afterward the grand marshal of the Prussian royal court, Count August zu Eulenburg, performed the civil ceremony.

FLOWERS RUINED; WANTS $5,000

Florist Sues Landlord for Letting Fires Get Low.

Louis Visias, florist, 302-306 East Superior street, wants $5,000 damages from John A. Stephenson and the Gregory company, his landlords, on his claim that the terms of the lease with reference to the heating of the greenhouse were not complied with and that as a result a quantity of plants and flowers became unmarketable.

In district court this morning, he filed suit to recover the damages alleged. He claims that the lease which he holds provides that the defendants heat the place and specifices that the temperature should be kept at all times not lower than 50 degrees F.

On the nights of Dec. 9, 11 and 23, 1912, Visias claims, the temperature in the greenhouse dropped down to 43, 39 and 43 degrees, respectively. As a result a number of the plants were damaged. He also claims that in spite of his objections, the defendants leased an adjoining building to a man who dealt in gasoline engines. Plaintiff claims that the gasoline fumes also had a very detrimental effect on his plants and flowers.

Haroldson & Colton are attorneys for Visias.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE.

Blake Thompson, employed as a collector for the Stone-Ordean-Wells company, who was indicted for grand larceny, second degree, by the May grand jury, pleaded not guilty to the charge when arraigned before Judge Dancer in district court yesterday afternoon.

Thompson is charged with having embezzled $454.93 belonging to his employers. The offense is claimed to have taken place on Feb. 2 last. Thompson will be brought to trial some time next week.

Her Wedding Day!

Let it be in June—the month that is fragrant with roses.

The bride of this Spring ought to let us fill her wedding chest. She ought to wear our most dainty bridal set, with a

RESTORE LIFE BY HYPODERMIC.

Current Opinion: Death is by no means the sudden change which our minds, laden with metaphysical tradition, imagine. We talk of something—the soul—flying away from the body. It is seemingly all over. But it may not be, concedes the official bulletin of the French Academy of Medicine. Dr. Carrel has shown that every function of life save consciousness may be kept up. This authority sees nothing extravagant in the idea that medical science may restore consciousness even after it has been pronounced to be extinct—provided fundamental chemical transformations have not supervened. For a period as long as a decade French physicians have said it is possible to restore the action of the heart after "death" by means of hypodemic injections. Even in so-called sudden death there is a period which in French medical literature is called "psychic twilight."

The case most in point, bearing upon the whole subject, is that of a late noted French duke. He was a conspicuous figure in the old legitimist club life of the French capital. He died recently at 10 o'clock at night. His younger son would be of age at midnight. For the sake of the two hours—the younger son being still an infant in the eyes of the law—it seemed as if the whole of the duke's estate must be tied up in endless litigation. But the family lawyers—they were at the bedside—pinned their faith in the new discoveries regarding death. They made manifest to the physicians the tremendous legal consequences of the duke's death before midnight.

Hypodermic inpections were resorted to. The heart began to beat again, the temperature of the body went up, breathing was restored. In fact, the body came back to "life," and in this state it was kept until a quarter of an hour after midnight. A magistrate had been called to the house to see to the interests of the "infant ward." He witnessed the revival from seeming death to life.

Shipments of raw cotton from the United States to France last year were valued at $63,000,000.

Sig. Scotti,

the famous baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Co., writes to the Aeolian Co:—

"The Themodist and Metrostyle are wonderful improvements indeed. I used to think all piano-players were very much alike, but now I understand the points of difference and can appreciate why the 'Pianola' player-piano is so vastly superior to any other instrument of the kind. It is no wonder you have had such great success with the musical profession as well as the public. I rather flatter myself that I was one of the first to recognize the 'Pianola' player-piano as a serviceable musical instrument."

Faithfully yours, A. SCOTTI.

There is but ONE Genuine "Pianola" player-piano. It is Standard of the World, and is made only by the Aeolian Co.

TRIES TO KILL HIS NIECE'S HUSBAND

William Hastings Then Turns Gun on Philadelphia Police.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 17.—William Hastings, a brother of the late Governor Daniel P. Hastings, made murderous attempts last night on Ross A. Hickok, husband of the former governor's daughter, at Mr. Hickok's residence in this city. Seven shots were fired at Hickok by Hastings from an automatic revolver during a hand-to-hand struggle in the hallway of Hickok's residence. Only one bullet took effect, penetrating the right side of the abdomen. The wound is believed to be not serious.

Hastings was arrested after a desperate struggle with the police during which a score of shots were exchanged and a girl bystander was shot in the leg. Hastings himself received a bullet wound in his right arm.

Fought in Hallway.

Years ago Hastings, who is 75 years old, gained notoriety by public attacks on his brother, the governor, whom he accused of having deprived him of his share of some family money. He went to the Hickok home and demanded to see Mr. Hickok. When the latter ordered him from the house, Hastings drew a revolver and began firing. Hickok, who is of athletic build, hurled him through the doorway. Hastings began firing again, sending four bullets through the door, one striking Hickok above the right hip.

Hastings then hurried away. The police were notified and half a dozen gave chase. When overtaken at Second and Broad streets, he turned and opened fire on the police. A fusillade followed, during which Hastings emptied three revolvers. When a policeman's bullet broke his arm, the man fell and was overpowered.

His mind is believed to be unbalanced.

MORE WORK AND LESS PAY

The change in customs districts made recently will become effective July 1, and a large part of Wisconsin and Minnesota not now included in the local district, will be added to Mr. Willcuts' territory.

At the same time the office will be put on a salary basis, with a salary of $4,000 a year. At present the office pays a salary of $1,000 a year and fees, the total amounting to about $5,500 yearly.

Mr. Willcuts says he has no intention of resigning, despite the reduction of the emoluments of the office. His term will not expire until Jan. 1, 1914.

HEMMED IN BY BILLBOARDS

The construction of billboards indiscriminately on vacant property throughout the West end is meeting with a storm of protest from not only business men but residents as well. The latest objection is that to signboards constructed on vacant lots on the southwest corner of Twenty-second avenue west and First street.

"The billboard has hemmed us in so that no longer can people see our sign from Superior street," said E. Bjorlin, proprietor of a bakery across the street from the sign. "It is a shame the way these billbroad people are allowed to build their signboards anywhere they seem to want to place them. An ordinance prohibiting them entirely should be passed."

"The new board does not bother us much," said Martin Falk, manager of the Falk paper company. "Our sign is so high on the building that it can be seen from the principal street. Of course the sign boards do not add to the beauty of the surroundings."

Similar complaints are being made in other parts of the West end where glaring posters face some of the best residence districts. It is said that the matter will be taken up with the commissioners and they will be requested to abate the nuisance.

WILL ENJOY WEEKLY HALF HOLIDAY.

The initial movement toward Saturday afternon closing of business places was taken this afternoon by the real estate offices of Swanstrom Brothers and P. George Hanson & Son. Both offices closed at 1 o'clock and announce that hereafter they will close at this hour every Saturday.

"We are closing in order that we may have a little recreation during the closing hours of the week," said A. F. Swanstrom this noon. "Other offices uptown close at 1 o'clock on Saturdays and why should not we in the West end?"

Mr. Swanstrom intimated that the start in Saturday afternoon closing might, if followed by other offices in the West end, doing the same thing, result in realty offices closing on Saturdays throughout the entire year instead of only during the summer months.

NEW TRIAL FOR C. E. MITCHELL.

Spokane, Wash., May 17.—At the request of Attorney General McReynolds, United States District Judge Frank H. Rudkin has signed an order granting a new trial to C. E. Mitchell, a mining promoter who was convicted of having used the mails to defraud. Mitchell's wife appealed to Attorney General McReynolds after the supreme court had refused to allow a rehearing or to consider the case on an appeal.

The attorney general, in his request, said it was his belief that one of the government witnesses may have committed perjury.

Judge Rudkin had sentenced Mitchell to one year in jail and to pay a fine of $1,000, but this sentence was later set aside.

NOTICE

The alteration of the Electro Medical Doctors' offices is now completed and the doctors are ready to receive patients for treatment, the rooms are now divided in such a manner as to give absolute privacy in waiting and treating rooms; there are separate rooms for men and women; the waiting rooms are luxuriously furnished with upholstered chairs and couches, the library tables are covered with the latest magazines, the light is so arranged as to be restful to the eye and nerves, and one feels at ease the minute he enters the office. A lady nurse is in constant attendance to administer to any want you may have. The entrance to the office is changed from the center of the building to the extreme west of same; the entrance is not quite completed, but will be in a few days, it does not hinder you from coming in. If you are in need of medical skill or afflicted with any acute or chronic disease, come to us and be convinced of the powerful healing power Electro Ozone possesses.

The doctors say that there is absolutely nothing wonderful in the treatments, nor is there any mystery in the rapid improvement of the patients. While the patient is put under the influence of 20,000 volts of the Ozone-Electro—X-Ray power, every tissue in the body gets new life and the patient has the most pleasant feeling. This Electro Medical power is so strong that uric acid crystals are dissolved in the blood as well as in the joints, and other poisons, which are the cause of so many diseases, are carried away and the nerves, stomach or joints are made healthy in the most natural way.

Healing diseases through the medium of high electro-medical power is but a natural phenomenon whereby the nerves and vitality itself is restored and liberated from disease and the blood will flow unobstructed through veins and arteries of the body.

Electricity has been the master key which has unlocked the doors which have revealed nearly all of the important discoveries up to the present time and there is no doubt but that the solution of the medicine difficulty lies in electricity.

That does not say that the doctors are strictly opposed to medicines. Greater, however, than all power of medicines, in the art of curing diseases, is the power of medical electricity.

We offer you a FREE examination and tell you frankly and honestly what we can do for you. Office hours are from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. daily; and 10 to 1 on Sunday.

ORDER EARLY IS SLOGAN

Delivery Men and Horses Kept Busy Until Midnight Saturday.

Women Seek to Lighten Burden of the Week-End Rush.

"Order your groceries and meat early Saturday!"

That is the slogan of a band of women who have set out to gain shorter hours for men and horses employed in delivery work by groceries and meat markets.

Delivery men—and the horses are also to be considered—work from 7 o'clock Saturday morning until midnight Saturday night. People call up after dinner in the evening to order Sunday's groceries and meat. The women claim that all orders should be in at least by 5 o'clock in the evening, so that the delivery forces could complete their work by 7 or 8 o'clock at the latest.

"It's just a habit with people," said one of the women this morning. "They leave the ordering of their Sunday supplies until the last minute and then they expect delivery. Unless they receive their order they will withdraw their patronage, so the delivery men must stay at work until all deliveries are made.

"A little consideration is all that is needed. If the women will remember that by ordering late on Saturday they are unfair to other human beings, I am sure they will correct their system. No orders should be given after 5 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. Everyone should know by that time what is wanted for Sunday.

ARIZONA ALIEN LAND BILL BECOMES LAW

Applies to Caucasian as Well as Mongolian Non-Citizens.

Phoenix, Ariz., May 17.—Governor Hunt has signed Arizona's new alien land bill. It prohibits any alien of Caucasian or Mongolian descent from owning land in Arizona if he has not declared his intention of becoming a citizen. This not only bars Asiatics who cannot become citizens, but also a large number of wealthy Mexicans who live on the American side of the line, but who have maintained their allegiance to the government of Mexico.

A vigorous fight was made to have the bill apply only to aliens ineligible to citizenship, in behalf of the Mexican holders of property in Arizona. There are few Japanese holding property in the state, though many Chinese hold title, and these, like the non-citizens among the Mexicans, will be required to dispose of the real estate titles they now hold within a period of five years.

The law exempts only mining claims held by aliens or real property necessary to the proper working of mines.

Many Japanese conferred with the governor in an endeavor to induce him to veto the bill, but he declined on the ground that such a law was necessary in the interests of the white race.

The governor added that the law was made to apply to all aliens, in compliance with the wishes of the national administration as expressed during the session of the California legislature.

In Probate Court.

A good-sized grist of cases will be disposed of Monday by Judge Gilpin in the probate court. The calendar has been announced as follows:

Appointment of administrator—Estates of Frank E. Berry, John A. Bergman, John B. Walker, James Wallace, Angus Glasford, Oliver Harvey.

Proof of will—Horace Marshall.

Order to examine final account—Frank Banta, William C. Yawkey, Louis Leonard, Catherine Neal, Sophia M. Smith, James O. Smith, Robert F. Christian, Oscar Korhonen.

Petition to lease land—Ella Probeck et al.

Order to file new bond—Herbert Miller.

Special administrator's account—M. Theodore Swanson.

In Case of Attempted Train Wrecking Near Park Rapids.

Park Rapids, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A man by the name of Barrett is in jail here charged with being implicated in the attempt made Tuesday to wreck a Great Northern train one mile south of town when dynamite was exploded on the track.

One rail was broken near the joint and three ties blown to pieces. The east bound train had passed about ten minutes before a train crew discovered the damage. Whether the passenger train exploded the dynamite or not is not known. The person who did the job took long chances as it was broad daylight and in sight of the main road at 5 p. m.

Great Northern detectives are investigating.

WHAT AGRICULTURAL AGENT CAN DO FOR FARMERS

Dean Woods Sends Out Circular Letter to the Settlers of St. Louis County.

Dean A. F. Woods of the state agricultural college has sent out a circular letter calling the attention of the farmers of St. Louis county to the service that may be done for them by Fred Ward, county agricultural agent.

Dean Woods says in his letter:

"You have in your county a young man representing the United States department of agricultural, the Minnesota agricultural college and your county committee. This young man is employed by these agencies for agricultural development work. His services are available for any farmer or community in your county. He may be called upon to give assistance in any problem that has for its object improvement in farming or farm life. This young man does not know everything. In fact, he is a very ordinary individual. He is interested in everything pertaining to agriculture, and will be glad to help any individual or any community. If he does not know how to take care of the problem presented himself, he will get in touch with the state college or the United States department, and get the best information available on the subject. His mission is largely that of a go-between to bring the farmers the information worked out in their own laboratories, in the state experiment station, and the United States departmentment, no man knows very much about farming, but by combining and making use of the information of several people, each individual or community can become more efficient.

"Your county agricultural agent, Fred Ward, was born on a Minnesota farm and spent his early days working on farms at and near Buffalo in Wright county, Minn. In 1900 he was graduated from the Minnesota agricultural school and spent one year in the Minnesota agricultural college. Since that time he has been engaged in agricultural education work, and for the past eight years has had charge of a 1,000-acre farm in Illinois. He is a plain, practical young man who is worth knowing. His services are at the command of any citizen of St. Louis county, without charge. We hope you will co-operate with him.

"Call on your county agent when something is wrong with any of your live stock or crops, or when you have had difficulties in marketing your products.

"Call on him to organize a Farmers' club, a Breeders' association, a shippers' association, a Cow Testing association, or any other organization for the betterment of your community. Ask him to identify for you unknown seeds and plants, and to help plan a barn, a house, a silo, or your farmstead. Get his help in planning a drainage system for your farm, or working out a practical rotation.

"If you want to buy or sell some grass seed, seed corn, or a pure-bred sire tell the county agent. He probably knows someone who has what you want or wants that you have. He is in your county at your service—use him."

NEGROES SING FOR THE PREBYTERIANS

First Union Communion of Different Branches Is Held.

Atlanta, Ga., May 17.—Old fashioned church melodies such as "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," "Jonah and the Whale," and other songs dating back to ante-bellum days, will be sung tonight at the union services of the Pan-Presbyterian Pentecost by a choir of 300 negroes. At last night's session the negroes sang one verso of a psalm, and their singing so pleased the vast audience that a special musical program was arranged for tonight.

For the first time in the history of Presbyterianism, the four grand divisions of the church, the Northern, the Southern, the United and the Associate Reformed, joined late yesterday afternoon in a union communion service. Participating were hundreds of communicants, including delegates and commissioners to the Pan-Presbyterian Pentecost and laymen from every section of the United States.

Presiding over the communion service, which was impressive in its simplicity, were Dr. J. S. Lyons, Dr. R. M. Russell and Dr. J. T. Stone, respectively moderators of the Southern, United and Northern assemblies. In an address, Dr. Russell laid especial emphasis upon the significance attached to the union communion service as the forerunner of the ultimate action of the whole church. A prayer by Dr. Lyons and pronouncement of the benediction by Dr. Stone, ended the service.

Women Oppose Union.

Washington, Pa., May 17.—That the women's general missionary society of the United Presbyterian church does not look with favor on the proposed union of the Presbyterian bodies, was evidenced here at the closing session of the thirtieth annual convention of the women's organization. One of the last acts of the convention was to adopt a resolution presented by Mrs. H. R. Campbell of Pittsburg, in part as follows:

"We would, therefore, deplore any union with any other denomination which would, in any way, minimize our work or cause us to take any action which would limit our future progress and advancement in the work of the establishment of the Master's kingdom."

Specific objection to a union was not made clear, but a copy of the resolution was wired to the general assembly in session at Atlanta, Ga.

About $119,000 Disbursed By Railroads and Other Industries.

Brainerd, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Approximately $119,000 was disbursed in wages in Brainerd on pay day. The figures are: Northern Pacific railway shops and storeroom, $79,000; Northern Pacific yards, $1,600; Northern Pacific freight depot, $1,100; Northern Pacific tie plant, $2,500; Minnesota & International railway distributed in Brainerd $16,000; Parker & Topping foundry, $10,000; Northwestern Paper company pulp mill, $2,000; city of Brainerd pay roll, $1,500; drill and exploration work at and near Brainerd, $5,000; Brainerd Milling company, $400. The June pay day will be larger, for more extra gangs have been placed on the Minnesota & International railway and in addition construction work will be commenced on the cut-off into Brainerd, costing the road about $35,000 a mile for about six miles of line. This means about $20,000 a month for wages which will in most part be spent in Brainerd. A sawmill has commenced operating in Northeast Brainerd, cutting "deadheads."

MISSING STUDENT FOUND AT GLYNDON.

Mapleton, N. D., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The parents of John Dobring, student at Fargo college, who left the college several days ago were advised today he had been located at Glyndon, Minn., where he has been working on a farm.

Dobring wrote a note from Moorhead that he would not be back. No cause is known for his leaving. Some years ago he was struck in his head and hard study may have caused some temporary mental trouble which created a wanderlust.

TRAIN VICTIM CAME FROM STARBUCK, MINN.

Casselton, N. D., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The officials decided that the death of Oscar Ness, whose body was found on the Great Northern near Addison, was due to accident. Ness, who was 22 years of age and whose home was at Starbuck, Minn., was accompanying a shipment of horses to Williston. He must have either fallen or been kicked from the car. His body was run over and terribly mangled, but his identity was discovered by papers in his pockets. His father was notified and came here for the remains. The money and other valuables carried by the man were still on his person.

SURRENDERS SELF AT REFORMATORY

Duluthian Who Escaped Institution Gets Religion and Returns Alone.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a Bible in his pocket and repentance on his lips, Charles Schultz, a Duluth tailor, who was sent to the local reformatory in 1905 and escaped for the second time last October, returned to the institution last night and asked to be allowed to complete his term. He was assigned his old place.

Schultz got religion at Sioux City, Iowa, recently and decided he ought to return and give himself up. He came to St. Paul and surrendered himself to the state board of control yesterday, bringing a letter from Rev. George L. Hearch, superintendent of the mission, telling of his conversion. He said he wanted to return to the reformatory, and the board allowed him to come here alone.

"SAFETY FIRST" WORKERS ARRIVE IN DULUTH FOR CAMPAIGN IN SCHOOLS

To Prevent Accidents Is Mission of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes.

Have Indorsement of Heads of Grade and Parochial Schools.

Have you "your wits about you?"

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Hughes of Los Angeles, who represent the American Safety League, say the average person has not "his wits about him" when crossing the city streets, and that the great majority of accidents which occur are preventable.

They arrived in Duluth today to begin a campaign lasting two weeks and covering Duluth and Superior, for educating citizens in general and school children in particular to "use their wits" and help decrease the number of automobile, street car, fire and live wire accidents.

The campaign of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes has the indorsement of the board of education, and the teachers will cooperate with Mr. and Mrs. Hughes during the time they are in Duluth.

The campaign, which has been successfully tried in many other cities, is a most comprehensive one. The schools are the chief means of spreading the gospel of "safety first." During the ten or eleven days that Mr. and Mrs. Hughes will be in the city they will speak in every school in Duluth, including the grade schools, the high school, and the parochial schools, for the movement has the warm indorsement of Bishop McGolrick also.

They have 25,000 little buttons which will be distributed, and thousands of blotters containing some of the simple rules that should be followed in avoiding accidents.

The children will be invited to enter an essay contest, and prizes will be given those writing the best essays on safety rules.

Shop Talks.

The school children will not be the only ones reached by Mr. and Mrs. Hughes. They will visit all the larger shops and factories of the city, giving short talks on the use of "common sense." In brief they will try to reach every man, woman and child in Duluth during the time they are here.

There is nothing very complicated about the talks of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes. They simply aim to tell in the most direct manner possible the dangers of the city streets and how they may be avoided. Here are some of the simple rules they impress upon the children: "look out for automobiles;" "look out for the cars;" "don't play in the streets where there are car tracks;" "don't cross a street without looking both ways for cars, automobiles, horses and bicyclists;" "don't get off a car while it is moving, and don't face the rear in stepping off a car;" don't touch a wire lying on the street, under any conditions;" "don't cross behind a street car without looking for other cars and automobiles;" "if you are playing on the sidewalk or lawn, don't run out into the street without looking for automobiles and wagons."

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK S. HUGHES.

Need of the Work.

Only a few days ago there occurred a distressing accident in Duluth which might have been avoided if such a campaign had been begun here a few weeks ago. The avoidable accidents in Duluth during a year probably cost a dozen or a score of lives, which might have been saved with ordinary caution, and in addition to these there are scores of minor accidents which do not result fatally. Hardly a week passes without some child being struck by a street car, an automobile, a motorcycle or a wagon, and Mr. and Mrs. Hughes claim their work is just as necessary a part of a child's education as instruction in the "three R's."

First Aid to Uninjured.

Mr. Hughes himself calls his work "first aid to the uninjured."

For six years Mr. Hughes had charge of the acident departent of a Portland hospital, and he states that in the great majority of cases the first statement made by children after being hurt was, "I didn't think it would happen." The first statement generally made by adults was, "Why, I've done that hundreds of times before." In some instances children were injured because of a foolish dare-devil spirit, but the injury generally came as a result of heedlessness. The chief aim of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, therefore, is to impress upon both children and adults the need of "having their wits about them" the instant they step from the sidewalk into the street.

One very important feature of the work is impressing on children the danger of fires, especially at this season of the year when clean-up bonfires are so common.

Mr. Hughes began his work three years ago, when during the rose festival in Portland the ambulances of which he was in charge brought in two boys, one girl and one man, who had been struck in one afternoon by street cars or automobiles. He then decided that it was time to prevent preventable accidents, and the American Safety league was the result. He has just completed campaigns in St. Paul, Milwaukee and Minneapolis.

TWO ALLEGED YEGGMEN CAUGHT.

Galesburg, Ill., May 17.—After eluding the police, sheriffs and four detectives of four counties for eight days by hiding in deserted farm houses and vacant stables, two of four men suspected of being the robbers who dynamited the safe of the Farmers' bank at North Henderson May 7 were captured after an exciting chase. Warren Bruing, a farmer living northwest of Alexis, discovered the two men hiding in a corn bin. The officers are searching for the other two suspects, who are thought to be hiding in the vicinity. Much of the stolen money has been recovered.

REBATING IS ALLEGED

Four Railroads and One Coal Company Are Indicted.

Maximum Fine Possible Under Law Is $1,280,000.

East St. Louis, Ill., May 17.—Indictments charging rebating and discriminating in sixty-three counts, were returned late Friday against four railroads and a coal company by a Federal grand jury here. The indictments set forth instances wherein it is alleged the laws were violated by the Vandalia, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis (Big Four), Chicago, Indiana & Southern; the Grand Trunk railroad and the O'Gara Coal company.

The Vandalia is charged in three counts with rebating and the Big Four is accused on twenty-one counts with discriminating in favor of the coal company. The Big Four and the Chicago, Indiana & Southern are charged jointly on twenty counts with making discriminating rates and concessions in favor of the O'Gara company.

The Grand Trunk and coal company are charged on twenty counts with receiving and granting concessions and discriminating. Seven counts jointly charge the Big Four, Chicago, Indiana & Southern and the Grand Trunk railroad and the O'Gara Coal company with conspiracy in violating the Elkins act of 1903.

Maximum Is $1,280,000.

The penalty that may be imposed for violating the Elkins law in case of conviction is a minimum fine of $1,000 on each count and a maximum of $20,000 for each count, or $1,280,000 for the sixty-three counts.

One of the most startling facts the government hopes to establish is that the O'Gara Coal company, a New York corporation, is virtually owned by the Big Four, or by the New York Central, which in turn owns the Big Four. This belief is strengthened by the belief that T. J. O'Gara of New York, president of the O'Gara Coal company, with other officers of the company, learned that the grand jury was working on the charges and hurried to this city.

COFFEY ATTACKS BEAULIEU CLIQUE

Objects to the Chippewas Making Contract With Attorneys.

James J. Coffey writes from Cass Lake that a fight is to be made upon the contract proposed at the recent convention of the Chippewas to employ D. B. Henderson and his associates of Washington, D. C., as the attorneys of the Chippewas at the magnificent salary of $10,000 per annum, and a 10 per cent basis for obtaining settlements from the United States government of matters on which it is known there is no cause for litigation, and which the government is ready to settle in their proper order without the employment of attorneys by the Chippewas. Mr. Coffey adds:

"The percentage basis will involve the payment by the Chippewas to the attorneys, with whom Gus. H. Beaulieu and John Carl of White Earth are said to be identified, who also represent the head and tail of the Beaulieu clique, a sum representing several hundred thousand dollars. The injection of the proposition at this time, to employ the attorneys, under the conditions named and for the compensation stated in the contract, is regarded as a high handed affair, opening up opportunities to rob the Chippewas by imposing upon their confidence and misdirecting their efforts, when their object was to work concurrently with the United States government in working out a settlement of their tribal matters instead of assuming an antagonistic attitude for the purposes of litigation.

"That nine-tenths of the full-blooded delegates did not fully understand the intricate language employed in reading the contract and obtaining their votes upon the proposition goes without saying. The administration will be urged to withhold its approval of that contract until it can be passed upon intelligently by the administrative officers of the new organization."

WILL SHARE ALIKE DESPITE WILL.

New York, May 17.—An estate estimated at $12,000,000 left by the late John T. Pirie, a prominent Chicago merchant, will be divided about equally between his widow, three daughters and three sons. A fourth son, Allan, is cut off with $1,000. The will, filed for probate at Mineola, L. I., gives no reason for this apparent discrimination.

Pirie died April 24 in Florida.

Will Ignore Will.

Chicago, May 17.—John T. Pirie, Jr., said that if his brother Allan had been discriminated against in the will of the late John T. Pirie, Sr., his brothers and sisters would see that he got his fair share. Mr. Pirie said he knew of no reason for discrimination against Allan, who lives in New York.

BIXBY IS FINED FOR CONTEMPT.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 17.—George H. Bixby, the Long Beach millionaire indicted by the grand jury on charges of contributing to the delinquency of two girls, has been fined $25 for contempt of court by Township Judge Sidney Reeve.

This was the result of Bixby's failure to obey a subpoena requiring his presences three weeks ago at the preliminary hearing on a pandering charge of Emma Goodman, alias Josie Rosenberg, proprietor of the Jonquil resort.

Editor Shoots Mayor.

Decatur, Ill., May 17.—F. B. Slate, editor of the Mount Auburn Tribune, shot Dr. B. P. Winsor, mayor of Mount Auburn, because of a feud beginning in the spring election. Slate opposed Winsor bitterly, but the latter was chosen. The wound is serious. Slate was arrested and placed in jail at Taylorville.

BISHOP DOANE OF ALBANY IS DEAD

The Prominent Episcopalian Succumbs to Old Age in New York.

New York, May 17.—William Crosswell Doane, bishop of the Albany diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church, died at the Hotel Manhattan in this city shortly before 1 o'clock this morning. He was 81 years old.

Bishop Doane came here from Albany on Tuesday, accompanied by several of his nearest relatives. He was apparently in his usual health as he entered the hotel, but showed the effect of his age. He became ill Wednesday, and Dr. E. S. Hard, his family physician, was called and remained in attendance.

The family gave out no information this morning regarding the bishop's death, but it was said at his hotel to be due to old age. The family plans to leave today for Albany, taking the body with them.

It was not until Thursday night that Bishop Doane was forced to take to his bed. He suffered with weakness and there was an acute attack of heart trouble. Early Friday there was a slight improvement, giving hope that he would recover his strength. At noon Friday, however, he began to fail and the decline was gradual until death.

Three grandchildren, the Misses Margaret and Elizabeth Gardner and Charles Frazier, who arrived last night from Philadelphia, were with him.

Bishop Doane came here to attend the quarterly meeting of the board of missions of the Episcopal church. He was present at the Wednesday and Thursday session.

Morgan's Intimate Friend.

Albany, N. Y., May 17.—A man of high standing in the Episcopal church was Bishop Doane—sometimes referred to as "William of Albany"—and among other dignitaries of the church his name was revered. He was an intimate friend of the late J. P. Morgan, and each meeting between these two men was marked by some show of affection.

Among Bishop Doane's many achievements, the establishment of All Saints cathedral stands out as the most prominent. In various cities in the diocese are lasting monuments, most of them in the form of homes for boys and girls, notably the child's hospital here, where children of all creeds and race are treated, and St. Margaret's home for the care of foundling babies, connected with the hospital.

On many of the mooted questions of the day Bishop Doane held, and he was not afraid to express, strenuous views. He was a consistent enemy of divorce. Woman suffrage he had always consistently opposed. He also advocated temperance reforms and made pleas for the uplift of "this queer thing—society."

William Crosswell Doane was born in Boston, March 2, 1832, the son of George Washington Doane, descendant of Deacon John Doane, who came from England to Plymouth on one of the three ships which brought the first settlers to Cape Cod between the years 1620 and 1623.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

Captor of Jeff Davis Found Unconscious From Gas.

Philadelphia, May 17.—Casper Knobel, said to be the last surviving member of the band of Union cavalry men who captured Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, nearly 50 years ago, attempted to commit suicide at his boarding house here yesterday by inhaling illuminating gas. He was discovered lying unconscious, the gold medal awarded by congress clasped in his hand, and a picture of his mother on his breast. He was removed to a hospital, where the physicians hope he will recover to celebrate his 70th anniversary next Tuesday.

BERNHARDT WEEPS OVER NEW WREATH.

New York, May 17.—The model of a gold and silver wreath of laurel which American admirers of Sarah Bernhardt will give the French actress, was presented to her today in the presence of a theater audience before whom she had appeared. Daniel Frohman, David Belasco and others prominent in the theatrical world were grouped with several score of her friends upon the stage. Madame Bernhardt, who was so deeply affected that she wept as she accepted the wreath, recovered her composure in a moment, and responded with a simple speech that delighted the audience.

Widow of Man Killed in Saloon Given Verdict.

L'Anse, Mich., May 16.—Mrs. John Shelafoe, whose husband was murdered on Dec. 26 last by his son, Henry, in the Chosa saloon at Keweenaw Bay, near the Assinins Indian mission and school, recovered judgment for $2,800 in circuit court here this week against the Michigan Bonding company, surety for the saloon keeper, Joseph Chosa, and against Chosa. Young Shelafoe was convicted and sentenced to Marquette prison for life. He was held here to act as witness in his mother's case. Attorney Archie Bunting of Detroit defended the case for Chosa and the bonding company. The suit was based on three counts. The law makes it a crime to sell liquor to an Indian or man of Indian descent, such as Shelafoe; it is a crime to sell liquor to a minor and Henry Shelafoe, who was drunk at the time of the murder, is under age; it is a crime to sell liquor to an intoxicated man. Chosa, the saloon keeper, is also an Indian.

FOLK DANCING AND CROWNING OF MAY QUEEN FEATURE MAY FESTIVAL AT WHITTIER SCHOOL

THE COSTUME DANCE.

MISS SUSAN HOUSE.

THE MAY QUEEN AND HER ATTENDANTS.

Folk dancing with all the simplicity and charm of youth was the chief feature of the May festival which was held Thursday evening at the Whittier school on Park Point under the direction of Miss Susan House, principal.

The entrance of little Miss Edith Norman as the May queen in a dainty robe of white with flower crown and veil, attended by several little girls in frocks of white, opened the program and after she was seated dances of different nations were given by the children in the various grades of the school from the primary up through the eighth grade. The youngsters who did the Swedish dances in quaint little costumes received the greatest ovation and they were forced to repeat one of their dances.

Several solo or duet dances were especially enjoyed, Miss Helen McLeod giving two Scotch dances with grace and agility and Miss Daisy Macaskill in a Sailor's hornpipe and a Highland fling receiving hearty applause. A Hungarian solo dance by Misses Grace Potter and Helmie Christopher was also good.

Miss Elizabeth Donovan gave two character readings pleasingly and Miss Marguerite Lenihan sang two solo numbers, with good effect. Miss Eleanor Kraft played a violin solo which was well received and a dramatization of "The Birds of Killingsworth" by pupils of the sixth and seventh grades was very well done.

The dances were directed by Miss Ann Johnston of the school faculty.

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

Why Is It City People Are So Generally Selfish?

The statement that in the city one scarcely ever knows one's own neighbors, has become almost proverbial. Why should this be so? Why, indeed, should people, merely because they live where there are many people all about them, be selfish and exclusive?

Everyone knows, who has lived in a small community, that there everyone knows everybody else, and knows much of the good and the bad about all his neighbors. Of course, where people meet so often, and on a common plane, and where the interests are so small and so limited, it is natural that people should come to know each other well. This life in the small town, of course, has its disadvantages, as well as its compensations, for people are, to a certain extent, "nosey," and have a tendency to gossip, perhaps. But in time of trouble they are everything that one could wish, and the petty tendencies are forgotten.

If you have always lived in a city, you do not know what this sense of friendliness and of interest must mean to those who are accustomed to it.

My heart always goes out to the young married woman, for instance, who has, perhaps, always in her maiden days lived in a small town, with her parents and her friends all about her, and who, when she becomes a wife, goes into a large city, a stranger. Her husband is at work all day, and she has to spend many lonely, unhappy hours at home with only her own thoughts for company. She gets lonesome and blue and homesick.

Yet do those neighbors on either side or across the street take any notice of her? Probably not. They are generally too engrossed in their own affairs and activities to bother about anyone else. Besides, they do not know her, and she may not be the right sort, or the kind one would care to know. So she is let alone, to eat her young heart out in very loneliness.

She cannot understand why people are not more friendly. They are so at home, and they say human nature is alike the world over. Can you blame her if she becomes a bit skeptical?

Perhaps you have some lonesome little neighbor living near you, whom you might cheer wonderfully by calling upon her and showing a little interest in her. She cannot hurt you, and you would probably do her a world of good. Indeed, she might prove a valuable friend. Has this thing ever occurred to you? Are you not, in a sense, your neighbor's helper?

Look about you, and see if you cannot help make some lonely creature happy.

DULUTH SCHOOL GIRLS LEARNING TO COOK

SERVING TEA.

What the seventh and eighth grade girls are learning in cooking, was the subject of an interesting display at the domestic science rooms of the Manual Training high school yesterday and Thursday, when breads and pastries, desserts, salads, fancy dishes, vegetables, candies and foods for the baby, all attractively prepared and served, were shown to parents and friends who were invited to call during the afternoons.

Signs "What the baby should not eat," and "What the baby should eat," hung over the foods, candy, pork, cakes and desserts coming under the first head, and milk well prepared and carefully mixed for the baby, was shown under the second head.

Tea was served from a daintily appointed table by members of the cooking classes, in white caps and aprons.

The work was work done by girls in the seventh and eighth grades in the six schools in the central part of the city who take their cooking work at that building.

HELPING TO GIVE CHILDREN AT LEAST AN EQUAL CHANCE FOR GOOD HEALTH WITH PIGS AND CATTLE

SOME DULUTH CHILDREN WHO ARE BENEFITED BY WELFARE WORK.

In one of the exhibits making up the Infant Welfare Exhibit to be shown the people of Duluth all of next week at the auditorium of the Masonic temple, there is a picture of a fine, well bred, well fed, well cared for pig in a clean pen and under conditions absolutely ideal for pig culture. The picture is marked "Inspected" by the government; another picture shows a forest which is labeled "Protected," and the third picture shows babies in the slum conditions that surround them in many places, filth, flies, improper feeding and lack of care and the picture is labeled "Neglected."

It is in such vivid presentations as this that the exhibit is endeavoring to draw to the attention of the public of America that its most valuable crop receives only the uncultivated, often unintelligent care that uneducated mothers can give. The physical fact of motherhood bring a wealth of tenderness and feeling but it has not yet brought with it the intelligence and instruction for the proper care of children.

The exhibit is now in place at the Masonic temple. The features that operate by electricity are working, the charts and pictures are installed and it is hoped that the babies of Duluth will be the gainers because of the presence of this exhibit in the city for one week.

Monday and Tuesday have been reserved for the pupils of the seventh and eighth grades and of the high schools of the city. A schedule of hours has been planned and several hundred young people, many of whom have the care or part care of a baby, will have the opportunity of studying the charts and pictures. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday the exhibit will be open to the public. There is no charge for admission and every one is urged to attend and especially the mothers of the city are invited.

Mothers' Day.

Friday afternoon has been set aside especially as mothers' day and on that day the babies will be inspected and measured and three prizes will be awarded the three healthiest babies of the city. The committee to choose the children will be composed of doctors of the city. A measuring board, a weighing machine and other devices to test the health of the small contestants have been provided and Friday afternoon promises to be as interesting as any day of the exhibit.

The hours of the exhibit will be in the afternoons from 3 to 5:30 o'clock and in the evenings from 8 to 10 o'clock.

Informal musical programs in charge of Miss Josephine Carey, Miss Isabel Pearson and Miss Bertha Schmeid will be given during the visiting hours.

The exhibit is sent out by the American Association for the Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality and is being shown the people of Duluth under the auspices of the Scottish Rite Masons of the city. The exhibit is in line with the work which the Masons have maintained for three years. During that time a visiting nurse has been provided by these bodies for Duluth and in this field Miss Elizabeth Heikkila, who has been in charge all of that time, has accomplished most admirable results. The nurse is at the call of doctors and mothers. She gives instruction to expectant mothers, teaches the mothers in their home in the proper bathing, feeding and caring for their babies. Miss Heikkila has concentrated her efforts in communities and her coming is greeted as the visits of a kind and much respected friend. The pictures accompanying this article were taken by the nurse on her rounds. When a mother once gets the idea of the need of cleanliness and fresh air in the care of her baby, she awaits the visits of the nurse eagerly that there may be official recognition of her good work in the care of the little one. The children of the neighborhood also realize that the nurse is a friend in need and in a community where her coming is an established fact, Miss Heikkila is greeted by groups of little mothers, real mothers holding up their babies for inspection and a host of eager, questioning grateful friends.

Many of these mothers will enter their babies in the contest of next Friday afternoon and it is expected that the exhibit with its vivid pictures and models will be the means of bringing much useful knowledge to Duluth mothers.

The exhibit has been received with much interest wherever it has been shown and it is hoped that Duluthians will attend in large numbers.

The talk was given Thursday afternoon by Miss Agnes E. Wells, instructor in higher mathematics, and was heard by a large number of interested girls. The possibilities and the preparation necessary for successful teaching were brought before the girls by Miss Wells, who stated that there is a constant demand for capable teachers in this practically unlimited field of endeavor.

The commencement invitations for the graduation exercises were received during the week and distributed to the seniors yesterday. They are of high-grade linen paper with shaded old English lettering engraved and the class numerals are embossed upon the back of the attractive folder. The pretty effect has elicited no little amount of favorable comment on the part of the student body.

A meeting of all participants in the recent interclass track and field meet was held Monday afternoon. Coach Schilling outlined the policy that will be followed in the conduct of track and field work for the rest of the year. The aspirants for honors will meet soon in competition and the point winners in each event will be trained for that special event. Coach Schilling has planned a number of meets with outside schools, to include the Cathedral high school and Superior high school. The first meet will probably be held next Saturday. Plans appertaining to a track tournament, in which high schools from the range as well as Twin Port schools will be represented, are being arranged but as yet are only in the embryo state.

SINGING INTO A HORN

The Making of Phonograph Records Is No Easy Task.

Pearson's Weekly: The latest penalty that fame exacts from theatrical and music hall stars is that of singing to talking machines. For gramophone agents descend on the star who comes out with a new song success or talking act that takes the public fancy.

Most artists will tell you—and hardened ones, too—that singing to a reproducing machine is to them a far greater ordeal than performing to a crowded theater. It is the strange conditions under which these voice reproductions are carried out that so often unnerve the most experienced performers.

The setting—a bare barnlike hall—in itself scarcely inspires confidence. One end is screened from the gaze of the occupants by a long curtain through which a monstrous horn of brass extends out into the room, being suspended from the ceiling.

Musicians With Weird Instruments.

Grouped around are a motley assembly of musicans with instruments of weird design. Somehow these instruments seem familiar, yet no one ever saw their like in a theater orchestra. They are especially constructed to produce soft sound waves that do not drown the singer's voice.

The violins no longer possess the familiar curves and sturdy frames. They are peculiar hollow tubelike affairs with strangely arranged strings. The cellos are in a similar emaciated condition, their ample sides having apparently dwindled into slight wooden supports. Every instrument, however, boasts a little aluminum horn directed towards the parent trumpet, in order to concentrate the sound waves at one common point. Perched on a high platform near the roof is the conductor, whose lofty position is chosen to take him out of the way of the all important sound waves.

Silence for the Singer.

The performer stands on a little wooden platform right at the mouth of the receiving trumpet. A few hurried directions and then strict silence is the rule. No human voice or sound but that of the singer must now disturb the atmosphere, for the little machine behind the curtain relentlessly records every little sound wave.

A red light is flashed and the attenuated little orchestra gets to work. And then the artist has to sing to this strange little assembly with abandon and zest as though the inspiration of the brilliant light, of beautiful clothes, and scenery and applauding audience were all there.

It is a great ordeal, for one has to sing with far greater care in front of a talking machine than is required when audiences of flesh and blood are to be pleased.

Even Shuffling Feet Are Recorded.

With fiendish cruelty, the revolving wax recording disc gathers in every little fault. A slight clearing of the throat or little swallow, every deep breath or slight shuffle of the feet, are sufficient to form sound waves that imprint their message on the yielding wax. Such things an audience would not note, but the obedient record maker makes no distinction between the actual and the intended.

When the artist has finished the record is played over and the inevitable imperfections criticized. The weak spots are then rehearsed and the whole trying business commenced over again. If the performer makes a mistake in the course of the song, a bell rings and a fresh start is made. Not until a record of pure and distinct tone is obtained does the artists ordeal end.

Big artists such as Caruso, Melba and Tetrazzini make many thousands of dollars by records of their voices, while even the smaller fry in the theatrical and concert worlds considerably augment their incomes by royalties on records of their performances.

Several of the most famous reproductions of Caruso's and Melba's voices have been placed in a sealed tomb beneath the opera house in Paris in order that future generations a hundred years hence may know the singing talent that existed in the nineteenth century.

CHILDREN LINGUISTS.

Philadelphia Record: The Germans are famous for their thorough mastery of languages. The university graduates are expected to converse in Latin and to read Greek authors at sight. Even the pupils whose education has been confined to the public schools can generally use French and English in common conversation without difficulty. The secret of this mastery, which is so unusual in this country, is the thoroughness of the study required.

An American delegate to an educational conference abroad last summer found a class of girls 9 years old busy with two French verbs, and using them in all varieties of form in translating from German into French. In a class 10 years old they were using all the regular verbs and the common parts of speech in the same way, analyzing, constructing and giving the rules in French.

At 11 years they were using the irregular verbs, memorizing French poems, writing compositions in French, and all the conversation of the classroom was in French. From this they pass to the higher French literature, thinking and talking wholly in French. A similar course is pursued in English.

EXCELSIOR MOTOR CYCLES AGAIN WIN FIRST AND SECOND HONORS

That the Excelsior Motor Cycles are a bigger hit every day and winning first place in all motor cycle races is shown in the telegram received by the Kelley Hardware company, local agents for the Excelsior, which reads as follows:

"In 50-mile race at Cosassett Beach, Sunday, May 11th, Aubrey Archer, on Excelsior Seven, was first and Arvid Anderson, on Excelsior, second. Two Excelsiors started, finishing first and second over a field of eighteen starters. Time, 49 minutes 50 seconds; high wind and heavy rain making beach sloppy. Excelsior finished ten miles ahead of others. Speed, seventy miles an hour."

Mr. Hanson, the motor cycle man at Kelley's, has recently sold the police department of New Duluth a 7-10 h. p. Excelsior to be used by the department in its work.

Much better service can be given on a high quality machine of this kind than the mounted police on horseback.

NEALE GETS OFFICE.

Minnesota Treasurer of Weights and Measures Body.

Washington, May 17.—Dr. Samuel W. Stratton, chief of the United States bureau of standards, was re-elected president of the national conference on weights and measures, holding its eighth annual meeting here. Other officers elected were:

William L. Waldron, New Jersey state superintendent of weights and measures, vice president; L. I. Fisher of the bureau of standards, secretary, and Charles C. Neale, Minnesota state commissioner, treasurer.

Resolutions were adopted urging the abolition of the dual system in the various states of the bushel and weight measurement, and recommending uniformity; declaring that the tariff laws should provide for weight rather than bushel measurement of foreign importations, and recommending that the civil service be applied throughout the United States in weights and measure work.

"NO VIOLENCE" ETTOR'S ADVICE.

New York, May 17.—An appeal against violence was the notable feature of Joseph J. Ettor's speech to an open-air meeting of several thousand striking barbers late yesterday. Nearly 12,000 men, it is estimated, marched in a procession in which the banner of the Industrial Workers of the World was prominently displayed, from far uptown to Union square, where the meeting was held.

"The breaking of windows will only help drive the flies out of the bosses' shops," Ettor told the crowd. "Don't think you have to be violent to win. Let me counsel temperance. Some say that violence is your slogan. Repudiate that charge by your acts. A capitalistic press is giving the public a wrong impression of you. Acts of violence are magnified. Be careful, and do all you can to correct this impression."

Your Herald ad. should "stay in print" until it does the task you've set for it.

DEPUTIES SCARED OUT OF TOWN.

Wharton, N. J., May 17.—Terrified by the frequent use of dynamite stolen from a magazine of the Mount Pope mine of the Empire Iron & Steel company, several hundred deputy sheriffs brought from Newark to protect the company's property here, refused to remain in town. The withdrawal of the deputies left the mine district unguarded except for a few private detectives. Sheriff Gillen sent word of the situation to Adjutant General Sadler of the state militia, who had left here some hours earlier after making an investigation at the direction of Governor Fielder.

CATHOLIC KNIGHTS PICK OFFICERS.

Washington, May 17.—After a session lasting four days, the Catholic Knights of America in their eighteenth triennial meeting elected officers at midnight and adjourned to meet at Mobile in 1916. The officers elected were:

Supreme president, Dr. Felix Gauden, New Orleans; supreme vice president, George Landwehr, Cumberland, Md.; supreme secretary, Anthony Natre, St. Louis; supreme treasurer, Charles E. Hannauer, St. Louis; supreme trustees, Peter Wallrath, Evansville, Ind., and Michael Quinn, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Delegates to the annual meeting of the Federation of Catholic Societies also were named. They were Joseph Berning, Cincinnati, and Harry Selmer, St. Louis. The federation will meet in August.

Board of Education Seeks Better Interest on Sinking Fund.

Will Proceed With Plans for Lakeside School Addition.

Has the board of education of the city of Duluth the right to invest a part of its sinking fund in its own bonds, or in other bonds that will make a larger return than the 2 per cent now being paid by the banks?

The question will be submitted to the board's legal adviser by the committee on finance, and if the reply is favorable, about $120,000 will be put at work earning more money than it is earning now.

The board levies about 1 mill a year for a sinking fund. The fund has been growing rapidly and about $120,000 is now available for investment. The members of the board do not know whether they have the authority to make the investment. They would like to take some of their own bonds up with the sinking fund, transferring interest from one fund to another and saving money for the district. If they could not do that, they would be willing to make other safe investments that would pay 4 or 4½ per cent interest. The sinking fund is now drawing only 2 per cent interest.

The committee is expected to have a report ready at the next regular meeting of the board June 6.

Arrangements were made at a special meeting of the board last evening whereby the plans for a four-room addition to the Lakeside school may go ahead. When the bids for the addition were opened at the regular meeting of the board this morning, it was found that the lowest bid was $47,000, whereas the amount available for the addition is only $37,000 or $23,000. The members of the committee on buildings and grounds volunteered to have the plans and specifications changed so as to bring the cost within the amount available and they reported last evening that that course had been taken. The committee was authorized to advertise for bids on the new plans and specifications and President W. E. Magner said he is satisfied that the bids will be satisfactory.

The architect submitted sketches of the proposed new Rober S. Munger school at Twelfth avenue east and Eighth street. The committee on buildings and grounds was instructed to check over the plans and advertise for bids.

All of the engineers and firemen in the employ of the board were re-employed for next year at about the same wages.

LONDON PAPER SAYS BRITISH INTEREST IN ALIEN LAWS IS GREAT

nal, while a more remote one is connected with the condition of her international politics. The article continues:

"The point at issue—the exclusion of Asiatics from permanent settlement—touches the British empire very nearly."

Mexico May Protest.

Washington, May 17.—Arizona's new alien land law is not regarded here as seriously complicating the negotiations with Japan, because the act does not contain the same direct bar against Japanese as the California act. It is expected, however, that because of its adverse effect upon Mexican landowners in Arizona, a protest will be forthcoming from the Mexican government, even in view of the rather irregular status of the diplomatic relations between America and Mexico.

Talk of Referendum.

With both the American and Japanese governments awaiting the final action of Governor Johnson, the possibility of postponing the operation of the proposed California law by invoking the referendum again is being discussed in official circles. The overwhelming majority for the Webb bill in both branches of the California legislature makes some Californians in Washington doubtful if the necessary 20,000 signatures for a referendum could be obtained.

CINCINNATI CAR STRIKE GETS BEYOND CONTROL OF POLICE

every description were hurled at the cars. One of them is believed to have been seriously injured.

Another serious disturbance took place when men employed on a building in the course of construction hurled from the upper floors heavy bags of cement and pieces of iron on an Elberon avenue car. The roof of the car was wrecked. Splinters cut and bruised several pedestrians.

Attacked Unprotected Cars.

These outbreaks were followed by a series of assaults on cars not conducted by police. As a result of the attacks three men are in the hospital in a dangerous condition, and more than a dozen others were severely beaten.

Four cars were completely wrecked and the traction company was forced to abandon all efforts to operate cars in the western section of the town.

Two telephone requests for troops sent by Mayor Hunt to Governor Cox brought forth the information that the governor was reluctant to take such a stand.

Mayor Demands Troops.

After the second refusal by the governor, the mayor dispatched a telegram to the adjutant general demanding troops, and asking that they be sent by 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Probably the most spectacular outbreak occurred in the center of the city when a huge steel brace, bags of cement and other missiles were hurled from the upper floors of a building in course of construction. Several pedestrians were bruised and cut. The car was completely wrecked.

In Madisonville, where the cars were operated for the first time today, one of them was attacked, the crew driven off into a nearby woods and the raiders dismantled and wrecked the car.

Some Strike-breakers Will Leave.

One hundred of the men imported here by the company and housed at the Avondale car barns, after hearing of the attacks, opened negotiations with the strikers and agreed to leave town if escorted to a depot.

EVA RETURNS FROM FEDERATION MEETING.

Secretary H. V. Eva of the Duluth Commercial club returned this morning from St. Paul, where he attended the annual meeting of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs. Mr. Eva appeared on the program at the meeting and advocated greater efficiency in the immigration system of the state.

"We had a good meeting, though the attendance was small," said Mr. Eva this morning. "Many interesting and instructive facts were brought out in the discussions, and the clubs that did not send delegates missed much that would be of use to them. The Federation is a great thing for the commercial organizations of the state and they should take more interest in it."

and Thornton of Louisiana, voted for the Republican amendment. Senator Poindexter of Washington, Progressive, voted with the majority.

Senator Jones of Washington, Republican, who previously determined to vote against public hearings, announced just before the roll call that he had changed his mind because the finance subcommittees were giving private hearings to some interests which he thought should be public.

The closing day of debate on the issue of hearings was enlivened with a discussion of the Democratic platform and its bearing on free sugar by Senator James of Kentucky, who vigorously defended the stand by President Wilson for free sugar, and declared that the party had stood for free sugar and campaigned on it, and defied the Louisiana senators to find a man President Wilson had ever told he was opposed to free sugar.

Smoot and La Follette Talk.

Senators Smoot, La Follette and Clark wound up the debate on behalf of the public hearing amendment, Senator Smoot predicting that the Democratic party would be put out of power for another quarter of a century as a result of its tariff bill.

Senator Clark declared that the Underwood bill was just as much a law today as it would be after the senate had voted upon it and Senator La Follette urged the Democrats to court the open door policy.

"The edict has gone forth," said Senator Clark, "The real vote on this tariff bill will be taken here as in the house, where it was taken in secret caucus. I know there are Democrats here who do not believe the bill is just and righteous altogether, who are willing to bow their head to office and ease the lash of party experiency."

Great interest was manifested in the final contest over the hearing in question, the galleries being crowded with spectators. The senators' private gallery was filled with guests, and in the president's gallery were the Misses Margaret and Eleanor Wilson and a party of friends. They remained until a vote had been taken.

BODY OF MAN FOUND ON LAKE SHORE

but the skull remained of the head, the flesh being all gone from the face and the scalp drawn away.

All that remained of the head was the skull, as though the man might have been dead for years. The well-preserved condition of the balance of the body put that theory to naught and also showed beyond reasonable doubt that the man had not been drowned. Except for the ghastly skull the cadaver was that of one who had been dead but a comparatively short time.

Found By Boys.

The body was found by small boys who were playing along the lake shore this morning. The undertaker who was directed by Coroner McComb to get the remains stated that they were the sons of the gardner of a prominent Duluth citizen who resides in the vicinity.

There was absolutely no clew by which identity might be established. Except for the black socks, the body was absolutely nude. The clothes had undoubtedly been removed before the man met his death, whether it was murder, accidental or suicide. Nothing about the body indicated that the victim had any clothes on him except the socks at the time he met his death. No vestiges of any garments were found about the body or in the vicinity.

Only deep mystery surrounds the case, which is one of the most remarkable which has ever come to the attention of the authorities of St. Louis county. If the man had been killed on board a boat last fall and thrown into the water it does not appear that the body would have been in the well preserved condition which it presents. Against this is placed the condition of the skull. Nothing about the body indicated that the man had been drowned. The skull had undoubtedly been fractured in more than one place, but no abrasions appeared anywhere else.

The body was partially buried under the sand. Only the feet and part of the abdomen showed when it was found by the boys. It lay at an angle of about 45 degrees, relative to the shore of the lake. The head pointed towards the south or southeast, being nearest the lake, while the feet were towards the north or northwest. Above the place where the body was found is a cliff, but had the dead man been a laborer or a woodsman who was walking along the end and fallen over, he would have been clothed. The body had nothing on but a pair of socks.

Had the man been thrown into the lake last fall the body would not have been in the condition which it presented in the undertaking rooms. The ice would have played havoc with the human frame and it probably could not have been buried in the sand in the short interval which has intervened since the opening of navigation.

A number of men were reported missing last fall and during the winter, but thus far none has been reported as having been lost from any of the boats plying to and from the local harbor. There is a probability that someone may identify the body of the man with the hands of a gentleman of leisure found on the shore of Lake Superior this morning, but that any positive identification will be made does not seem likely.

BEING A THIEF IS POOR JOB

He Is a Lucky Crook Who Averages $5 a Week.

Men Who Contrive to Live Well and Evade Justice Are Few.

Answers, London: If there were a trade union of thieves, we might well look forward to a strike for better pay, for all callings there is none which yields a poorer average return to its members than professional roguery.

He is a lucky man who is able to make $5 a week by his depredations, even apart from those periods when his food, clothing and lodging are provided by a hospitable government. The average return for every crime against property committed in London is a little below $50, and as receivers are not generous folks it may be taken that $15 is a generous estimate to allow as the net profits to the actual operator.

There may be a few high class intellectual thieves who contrive to live well and evade justice, but their number is infinitesimal, and they are rather international than local. The average burglar, housebreaker, forger or pickpocket finds it a very hard job to pick up a dishonest living.

In 1911 the net value of property stolen in London and not recovered was $700,000. In all 3,250 persons were charged. Some of these were acquitted, but on the remainder sentences amounting in the aggregate to slightly more than 1,500 years' imprisonment were imposed.

Analyzing the Profits.

That is not an encouraging prospect for the criminal trade, for $400 worth of property in the open market is, of course, considerably depreciated when it is disposed of to a receiver. Suppose the thief receives $150—a generous estimate; that is the amount his year in jail brings him.

In fact, however, it is much less; for, in the total of property stolen, is included money obtained by fraudulent bankers, embezzlers, etc., who cannot be strictly called professional criminals.

Burglars and housebreakers are perhaps the most incorrigible of commonplace thieves. For that reason they may be treated apart from the general mass of criminals. Experience does not teach them that their efforts are unprofitable as set against, for instance, the wages of a street sweeper.

In 1911 robbers succeeded in entering 459 places in London. In forty-eight cases they were forced to leave empty handed. In the remainder of their exploits they were successful. The amounts they got away with, tabulated, were:

Less than $5	70
Between $5 and $10	73
Between $50 and $100	55
Between $100 and $250	35
Between $250 and $500	9
Between $500 and $2,500	11
$2,500 and upwards	3

Averaged, this amounts to $110 a robbery. For these crimes 232 persons were convicted. It is fair to assume that some of these people were concerned in more than one robbery. They received in the aggregate 256 years' imprisonment. That brings the remuneration for each year of imprisonment down to $150 gross; or, say, $50 after the receiver has netted his share.

Hoping For the Best.

Much the same analysis may be applied to housebreaking, which is nothing more or less than burglary committed in the daytime. The value of property stolen in the same year in this case was $73,495, but the proportion allotted to each thief was very much less, for there were 1,479 cases, or less than $50 for each robbery; while the sentences reach 147 years, or one year for every $500 stolen.

Sir Robert Anderson, once chief of the criminal investigation department at Scotland Yard, holds that many criminals continue their career from a love of adventure, and tells the story of a friend of his who found a man of good education and culture in an American jail.

"My friend," says Sir Robert, "gave vent to his sincere distress at finding such a man in such a position, when the prisoner cut in with the remark that he believed in England we were fond of fox hunting.

"My friend regarding it as a broad hint to change the subject, assented.

"'And may I ask,' said his companion, 'when a man gets a fall, does he give up hunting?' And on getting the only possible answer to such a question, he added: 'I have had a bad fall, and no mistake; but I count on better luck next time.'"

AUTO BANDITS AGAIN AT WORK IN CHICAGO

Two Pedestrians Robbed and Empty Motor Stolen.

Chicago, May 17.—Automobile bandits resumed operations in Chicago today by robbing two pedestrians and stealing an unoccupied machine. Descriptions of the robbers obtained by the police led them to suspect that two gangs, one composed of four men and the other of three, committed the crimes.

V. P. Alexander was one of the hold-up victims. The second man made no report to the police.

Alexander was leaving a garage in South Park avenue when the bandit car occupied by three men drew up. Two of the occupants sprang out with revolvers and robbed Alexander of $15, a gold watch and his raincoat.

The second band, composed of four men, held up a pedestrian on the northwest side and escaped after a running revolver fight with four policemen.

THINKS SCHOOL BOY MURDERED

Sheriff of Monroe County Goes to See Prisoner in Waupun.

Sparta, Wis., May 17.—Sheriff Veith of this county has gone to the Waupun penitentiary to investigate suspicious circumstances which give rise to the charge that Avol Rentz, now serving a life term in the state prison for the murder of the aged Harmon couple here in January, murdered Charley Foltz, the 8-year-old boy who was found dead in this city last fall.

Foltz was found hanging from a fence post with his schoolbook strap around his neck, and it was thought he had been accidentally strangled in climbing the fence. It is now said that Rentz, who is shown to have possessed a mania for murder, was seen with the child just before his death. The sheriff will try to obtain a statement from Rentz.

RETURNS $50 SO HE CAN GET SOME SLEEP

Arthur Anderson Says He Got It Dishonestly at Postoffice.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The demands of conscience caused a man named Arthur E. Anderson of Seattle, Wash., to return $50 to the Minneapolis postoffice, which he said he had obtained by cashing a money order which had been sent to him by mistake, according to a letter which accompanied the money, received at the postoffice here yesterday. Anderson said he was almost dead from loss of sleep in worrying over his act. The money was returned with the hope that he would now rest in peace.

DIVORCED; REMARRY WITHOUT CEREMONY

Wisconsin Couple Take Advantage of Change-Your-Mind Law.

Marinette, Wis., May 17.—Divorced in November of 1912, and now man and wife again without a marriage ceremony having been performed, is the strange case of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph La Fave of Armstrong creek, this county.

The legislature of 1911 passed a law making it possible for a divorced couple, within a year after the divorce judgment is entered, to go before a court and secure a vacation of the judgment, making it possible for them to resume the marriage relation without a ceremony being performed. Judge Quinlan entered the necesary order.

CHICAGO POLICE ARE GRAFTERS, SAYS NEFF

Clairvoyant Tells of "Trust" That Pays for Protection.

Chicago, May 17.—Methods of the "Clairvoyant Trust" were disclosed to the state's attorney last night by William Neff, 23 years old, one-time an office boy for the seer who was at the head of the organization, and who later graduated into a full fledged "professor." He asserted he knew protection money was paid to the police, and that only clairvoyants in the "trust" were allowed to operate.

Neff was captured on the roof of his boarding house, where he was hiding behind the chimney. He declared that the members of the clairvoyants' combine came to Chicago from New York.

As the result of the information secured, the state's attorney declared he would ask for the suspension of several detectives and police men.

Neff asked to be kept in jail, fearing that he would be attacked for his confession if released.

DIES PRAYING FATHER MIGHT BE FORGIVEN

Wisconsin Woman Is Victim of Her Parent's Murderous Rage.

Sparta, Wis., May 17.—Mrs. Alice Wilson died this morning, crying aloud a prayer for the forgiveness of her father, who four days ago shot her three times during a fit of anger after he had murdered her mother. He later cut his own throat. Mr. Wilson still lives in spite of wounds inflicted by the murderer, and it is expected he will recover.

While Mrs. Wilson was breathing her last, final arrangements were being made for the funeral of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hogue. The obsequies were to have been held yesterday, but were delayed because of a difference among relatives as to the propriety of burying the bodies of the murderer and his victim in the same grave. After services at the same time and place, the prospect was that separate services, with separated graves would be insisted upon at the cemetery.

MEN ARE CURED

VARICOSE VEINS, BAD BLOOD, BLOOD POISON, STOMACH TROUBLES, VITAL WEAKNESS.

There are thousands of men walking around who are a picture of disease. They are all fagged out and dragged down by it. The cause of it may be bad stomach, kidney trouble, or some secret suffering. Others, again, are the very picture of health but they suffer nevertheless from imperfect circulation, of which knotted veins are the result.

The veins are dark blue, because of the poisonous waste matter, while the arteries are bright red. When the vein-blood, heavy with poisons, again reaches the lungs it exchanges its carbon-dioxide, a heavy and very poisonous gas, for pure oxygen and returns again through the arteries. When some parts of the body is injured by abuse, excesses, kicks, blows, or overwork, the veins are injured and retard free circulation. The poison-loaded blood, instead of returning to the lungs for a fresh supply of life-saving oxygen, piles up against the injured part, poisons the walls of the veins, swells and dilates them, hardens them and sometimes expands them to an enormous extent. In men the legs and other vital parts are usually attacked by this self-generated poison, which after first poisoning the veins, attacks the vital parts themselves, causing weakness and wasting. Walking becomes difficult, hard knots form which open easily and form "VARICOSE ULCERS," the patient is easily exhausted, becomes nervous and depressed, his memory weakens and all ambition leaves him. Later the poison will take an upward course, and, entering the pelvis, will poison the pelvic nerves. Stagnant circulation will result in nervous diseases, in diseases of the rectum, prostate and associated parts, and is not strictly local, because nerves, blood vessels and lymphatics are all connected. What affects one affects all, just as a broken wire or a short circuit in any part of a serially connected electric system has an effect on any and every part of that system. We found in former years that cutting and dissecting out these veins did not cure the patient, the deep-seated nerves that control the functions and nutrition of the organs still caused trouble and more pain than before. We therefore invented the "Dissolving Process," a method as superior to the old way of cutting and blood-letting as the modern electric light is superior to the tallow candle of bygone ages. We can explain the practical application of the dissolving process to any man if he will give us the necessary statements about his case, although we would much rather see, examine and demonstrate to him than talk or write about it. The specialists who can guarantee to cure this and all other diseases without cutting, without chloroform or any of the ordinary old-style hospital methods, will surely be wanted by any man who is suffering from it. That is what we can do, and guarantee to do! Consultation free from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. Sundays, 10 to 1.

At the Lyceum

The fourth week of the De Luxe pictures at the Lyceum will open tomorrow. Next week's program is without a doubt the strongest bill that has even been shown in Duluth. The program for tomorrow includes "The House That Jack Built," which is a screaming comedy in two reels of Kinemacolor, and the Island of Sanata Catalina, California, which shows to wonderful advantage the Kinemacolor process. The colorings are exquisite and the views offer surprise after surprise. On this same reel will be Ulric Salem, champion ice skater of the world at Arc, Sweden. On Sunday and Monday also will be shown a Pathe two-reel subject, "An Exciting Honeymoon," which is considered by the critics to be the funniest comedy ever shown in motion pictures. The story briefly tells of the adventures of Lord Rowley and his bride, who are receiving the congratulations of their friends at the reception, following the wedding ceremony, when a few of the guests arranged to have some fun with the near-sighted Lord Rowley. They take his eye glasses and they bribe Lady Rowley's negro maid to masquerade as the bride and many comedy and laughable situations result but he finally recovers his eye glasses and his bride. A splendid vitagraph drama, "Three Maidens," will also be shown on these days.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, "When a Woman Wills," a Western drama, and "Golliwog's Motor Accident," a comedy, comprise the Kinemacolor program, while the black and white program consists of the latest Pathe weekly with "Mutt & Jeff" and "Bill's Sweetheart," an Edison film, and a biograph comedy, "The Coveted Prize."

Thursday, Friday and Saturday's program will be headed by the famous Kinemacolor story, "Feathertop," which is a dramatization of Nathaniel Hawthorne's famous fantastic romance of old Salem Witchcraft, which also furnished the plot for Percy Mackaye's play entitled, "The Scarecrow." On these days the fashions in afternoon dresses will also be shown in Kinemacolor and "River Pirates," "Dingle Minds the Clock," and "When Greek Meets Greek" will make up the black and white program.

The coming of Blanche Bates in a new play, "The Witness for the Defense," Monday, May 26, has aroused the interest of local playgoers to a pitch of keen anticipation, which has not been felt here in a long time, and the audience which will assemble to greet her will doubtless be in every way one befitting the occasion. Blanche Bates is justly regarded as one of the leaders of the American stage and her new play is said to be in every way worthy of her remarkable powers for emotional expression.

"The Witness for the Defense" tells a thrilling story of absorbing interest. In the first act in a lonely tent at Chittipur on the plains of Rajputana in India, a young English woman is living with a sotty brute of a husband. He is on the verge of delirium tremens and terrifies his wife in his mad alcoholic frenzy until she picks up a rifle and shoots him in self-defense.

Next the scene changes to rural England where, in a lovely old village in Sussex, Mrs. Ballantyne is about to marry a young officer, Richard Hazlewood, whom she loves devotedly. She has been tried for the murder of her husband and acquitted on the evidence of Henry Thresk, a barrister who has been her lifelong friend and admirer. But Thresk knows that she shot Ballantyne, and learning of her forthcoming marriage to the young officer, commands that she tell her future husband of her past. The tortured woman realizes that a confession alone will bring her ultimate peace of heart and happiness. Her lover hears in tender silence the tragic story of her past and at the end takes her gently in his arms. This brief synopsis of the plot of the play gives but an inkling of the remarkable strength and absorbing interest created by the author, A. E. W. Mason, the well-known English novelist. Miss Bates herself has declared that the character of Stella Ballantyne, the heroine, is the strongest role that she has ever essayed.

Charles Frohman, under whose direction Miss Bates reappears here has secured "The Witness or the Defense" as the vehicle for Miss Bates' use this season, believing the play and the dominant role to be entirely worthy of this brilliant actress' genius. She will have the support of an exceptionally fine company and the stage settings will be in every way worthy of the Frohman trademark.

Charles Frohman will present John Drew in "The Perplexed Husband," by Alfred Sutro, at the Lyceum, May 30 and 31st.

This four-act comedy which attained remarkable success in London and was a source of delight when given recently by Mr. Drew and his fine company at the Empire theater, New York, comes with the original cast and charming production. It is the most delightful vehicle this eminent actor has had for many seasons.

The supporting company includes Mary Boland, Margaret Watson, Nina Sevening, Hubert Druce and others.

Miss Rose Stahl will come to the Lyceum for two days early in June in Charles Klein's department store play, "Maggie Pepper." Miss Stahl is as well known in London and the British provinces as she is in the United States. Several British managers have broached the subject of taking her latest success to England for a season. However, Miss Stahl feels that the play is so typically American that the English folk would hardly grasp its reality, therefore, it is not likely that she will go abroad with the piece.

No actress on the American stage today has a greater following than has Miss Frances Starr, whose rise on the theatrical ladder has been watched for years by thousands of admiring friends from across the footlights. Miss Starr will be seen shortly at the Lyceum theater in her latest and greatest success, "The Case of Becky," which is to come to this city following its long and very successful run at the Belasco theater, New York city, where the critics were unanimous in saying that Miss Starr had reached a round on the theatrical ladder which few women of her age have ever stood upon.

At the Empress

The Empress theater management will offer its patrons the strongest bill of vaudeville yet seen at this popular theater for four days, starting Sunday matinee. As a headline attraction Mr. Abrahamson has secured Jeanette Adler and her Six Cabaret Girls, a vaudeville act which has been making such big hits wherever they have played. These cabaret girls have an exceptionally fine act. Each one has a separate musical instrument, playing, singing and walking throughout the house. The girls wear some stunning gowns and make exceptional hits in their separate solos. For an act of class and cabaret style it is reported that nothing like it has appeared in this part of the country.

Rivaling this big act for first honors will be the great laughing sketch by Bruce Richardson & Co., entitled "Moving Day." This sketch relates the adventures of a married couple who are seeking a house. The landlord sees them coming and believes them to be the janitor and his wife, who are to clean up the house for the coming of the new tenants. Therein results many funny complications. The sketch is one long laugh from start to finish.

One of the best girl teams in vaudeville is Ethel and Beatrice, the "two nifty girls," as they bill themselves. These girls are considered the best singing and dancing duo in vaudeville. Their songs are catchy and rendered in a pleasing manner and their dancing goes very "big" with theater-goers. Their appearance is excellent. The great hit of their act is Foster's sensational novelty song, "That Spooney Tuney Lovin' Melody." Their rendition of this ragtime tune is sure to make a hit with the Empress theater patrons.

To finish this excellent program of vaudeville, Lenoir's Manikins have been obtained. This clever act has always pleased and is sure to please in Duluth.

The latest and best feature plays will be presented by the silent actors.

The "Girl Question" has been a problem that has been unsolved for many years, but the local theater-goers will have an opportunity of finding out the answer to this delicate question as "The Girl Question" appears at the Empress for three days, commencing with matinee Thursday, May 22.

No one can accuse Raymond Paine and the "Girl Question" of being similar to anything seen here in musical comedy. This play depends on the real comedy of the lines, the cleverness of the performers and situations for the laughs, which are many and sprinkled freely through the entire production.

William B. Morris and Grace Thurston, whom Boyle Woolfolk presents in "Whose Little Girl Are You?" at the Empress very soon, are well known to theater-goers throughout the country, having headed their own company for a number of years. Mr. Woolfolk has added them to the vaudeville in his latest musical farce and all parties concerned are more than satisfied as the show is the big hit of the present vaudeville circuit which plays the tabloid musical comedies. They are surrounded by an exceptional cast and a charming chorus. For an hour and a quarter entertainment it has never been surpassed and its present engagement in this city is being looked forward to with much anticipation.

Dick Allardt is expected to return to Chicago today from Winnipeg, Can., where he attended the opening of the New Strand theater, which is operated under his direction. Mr. Allardt is now in full charge of the tabloid business in the Middle West, having been designated the head of this line of attractions at a recent meeting of the heads of circuits booking through the W. V. M. A.

Norman Friedenwald opened another tabloid this week with the title "The Suffragette Court." The first performance was given at the American theater in Chicago last week. Five vaudeville acts appear in connection with this organization. Mr. Friedenwald visited another of his shows, "The Girl From Dublin," at Waterloo, Iowa, the first half of this week.

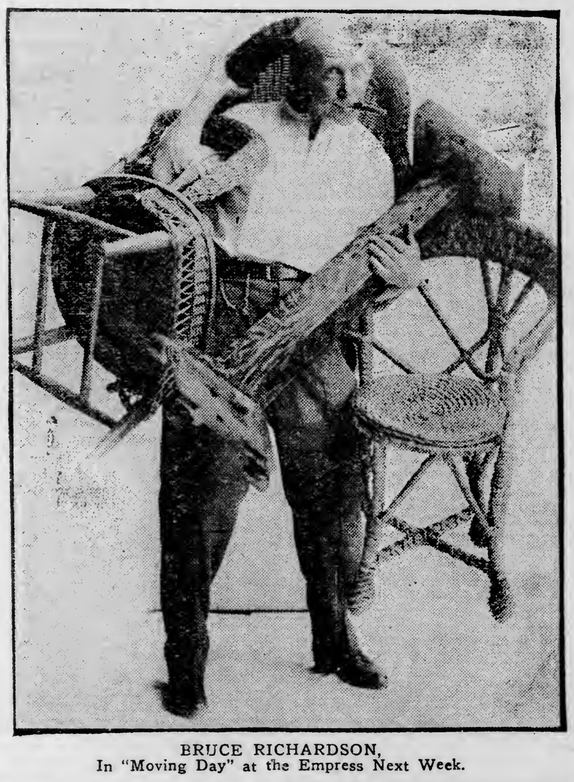
"The Frolics of 1913," Dick Allardt's record-breaking tabloid, is laying off in Chicago the last half of this week and making some changes in people. Rube Welch is often seen in the Allardt offices during the rest.

BLANCHE BATES,
Who Will Be at the Lyceum Monday, May 26.



BRUCE RICHARDSON,
In "Moving Day" at the Empress Next Week.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

John Cort has secured the services of Anna Held through H. B. Marinelli, the international agent. Mr. Cort will not present Miss Held in a new musical production, but will have her head one of the big vaudeville combinations which next year are to tour the Northwestern Theatrical circuit, of which he is the managing director.

Martin Beck is now in Europe on a four weeks' sojourn. It is said that he is making the trip in the interest of the B. F. Keith and Orpheum circuits. Before leaving his office prior to sailing, Mr. Beck hinted that an early union of these two vaudeville circuits was highly probable. The Orpheum circuit, the B. F. Keith circuit and their affiliations at present control every first-class vaudeville theater in America—their operation, however, is individual and their present association entirely a territorial agreement.

Eddie Foy has a long railroad journey in prospect. On July 5 he will bring his Western tour in "Over the River" to an end in Winnipeg. He and his company will start immediately for the East, stopping over at only two cities en route, and arriving in Atlantic City in time to begin an engagement on July 14.

The opening attraction at the New Amsterdam theater early in September will be Werba and Luescher's production of "Sweethearts," with Christie MacDonald as the star. "Sweethearts" brought its engagement at the Forrest theater, Philadelphia, to an end recently after five weeks of phenomenal business. The gross receipts for that period were over $65,000. It is now in Boston.

"Little Miss Fix-It," in which Nora Bayes, Eva Tanguay and Alice Lloyd have starred in turn, will be sent on tour again next season. A. G. Delamater has acquired the rights from Werba and Luescher.

Cohan and Harris have changed the title of the new Winchell Smith comedy, soon to be produced in Hartford. Originally its name was "The Amateur Detective." Henceforth it will be addressed as "6 Washington Square."

Henry W. Savage has acquired the rights of two Viennese operettas. One of them is Emerrich Kahlman's "Zigeuner Primas," the same meaning "The Gypsy Chief." The other is "Das Furstenkind," which will be presented in this country under the title of "King of the Mountains." The score of the latest Savage acquisition is the work of Franz Lehar; the book is by Victor Leon, Librettist of "The Merry Widow."

Jose Collins and Nat Wills have both arranged with Ziegfeld to be featured in the new "Follies."

In Fred C. Whitney's production of the Oscar Strauss opera, "My Little Friend," there will appear Fred Walton, William Pruette, Mildred Elaine, Lella Hughes, Crauford Kent, Harry Macdonough, Juanita Fletcher, Lionel Hogarth, Charles Angelo and Edith Sinclair.

On his way back from French Lick William A. Brady stopped over in Chicago long enough to arrange with Harry Askin, whereby the output of Askin's La Salle opera house in Chicago will be controlled by Brady. The latter thus acquired rights to the territory east of Cincinnati. The first La Salle production to come within the agreement will be Henry Blossom's musical version of "A Texas Steer." In August Brady will produce the piece at the Forty-eighth Street theater on the same night that Askin produces it in Chicago.

A special matinee benefit performance in aid of Rowland Buckstone will be given at Weber & Fields' Forty-fourth Street theater on Friday afternoon, May 16. For at least twenty years Mr. Buckstone has been preeminently successful in the rendition of classic comedy roles. He is now ill and in need of help.

Cecil Cunningham, who recently sang the prima donna role in "Somewhere Else" at the Broadway theater, is now with the Gilbert and Sullivan opera company for the revival of "Iolanthe," which opened at the Casino on Monday evening, May 12.

"Are You a Crook?" closed last week, and the Longacre theater remains dark for the summer.

George Ade's musical play, "The Sho-Gun," is at last to reach Paris. The foreign production, as arranged by Henry W. Savage, is to follow the engagement of "Excuse Me." M. Max Dearly will stage the piece.

FARMER SMITH AND THE COUNTRY CHURCH

The Country Church Urged to Encourage Scientific Farming.

By E. FRED EASTMAN,
Secretary of Matinecock Neighborhood Association, Locust Valley, New York.

(Exclusive Service the Survey Press Bureau.)

Farmer Smith needs help. He needs it here and now. He is trying to keep his family supplied with food and clothes. He is struggling to give his children an education and at the same time to pay off the mortgage on the farm and to save enough to keep his wife and himself from want in their old age. All around him are those who are waging the same battle, but they give him little help. Each one fights alone, as his father did before him.

Twelve years ago Farmer Smith had a $5,000 farm. It yielded him an income of about $500. That was a return of 10 per cent. Today, because of the general raise in land values, that farm is worth $10,000. It yields him about $700. It is now only a 7 per cent investment. His profits have decreased. Moreover, his land is poorer than it was twelve years ago. Smith never learned how to farm intensively. He knows only the crude methods used by his father in the days of virgin soil. The years ahead give him no promise that he will be able to make even as much from his farm as he is making now.

The economic pinch has left its marks upon his social life. Many of his old neighbors have sold their farms and moved away. Some have left their farms in the hands of tenants, who are robbing the land of its fertility. Community spirit has vanished. The old forms of recreation have lapsed with the passing of the settled population. No new forms have taken their place except in the towns, and these are usually of a character that would not be tolerated in the country. Smith's boy is waiting his first opportunity to get off the farm. His has been a life of all work and no play, and while it has not exactly made him a dull boy, it has made him hate farming. Smith's wife is leading the life of a drudge, and she swears her daughters are not going to live on the farm if she can help it. With the stagnation in social life has come stagnation in moral and religious life, for morals do not flourish in a stagnant community.

Yes, Smith needs help. He needs to know how to farm more scientifically. He needs a better income. He needs to know how to organize with his fellow farmers to protect themselves against the inroads of the middlemen and the tenants. He needs better markets for his crops and better transportation facilities to those markets. He needs a school for his children that will give them as good an education as they would get in any city school, a school that will instill in them a love of the country, a knowledge of farming and an appreciation of its economic significance. He needs more recreation facilities for the whole family. He needs a handier kitchen for his wife and daughter and more opportunities for them to broaden their lives and enrich their minds in literary and social activities.

The question is, Should the church give it? Should it go to Farmer Smith and say:

"Smith, I am a bit ashamed of myself; I have not been doing for you what I ought. I have been preaching about Elysian fields and allowing the riches of bluegrass, corn and wheat fields to be squandered with prodigal hand; I have been trying to pave your road to Glory Land, but I have paid no attention to your road to the nearest market; I have talked about mansions in the skies and cared little about the buildings in which you and your family must spend their lives here and now; I have been teaching your children God's Word in the Bible, but I have left His Word in the rivers and the hills, in the grass and the trees, without prophet, witness, or defender.

"Forgive me, Smith; I am not going to do it any more. I am going to take an interest in your every day affairs—your crops, your stock, your markets, your school, your lodge and your recreations. I am going to see if I can help you in your effort to get your boy started on a farm of his own. I've preached a long time against Sunday baseball; now I'm going to try to give your children so much recreation through the week that they won't care for it on Sunday. I am going to take as one of the articles of my creed, 'I believe in better roads for Smith, and I propose to have them.' I am going to try to save you and your family not only for Paradise, but for America and American farms."

Should the country church take its place shoulder to shoulder with Smith in the line in which he is battling for existence? Should it take up the task of encouraging agricultural organizations that will work for more scientific farming, better roads and better markets? Should it throw open its doors, not three hours a week, but three hours a day, to Smith's sons and daughters that they may have a place to meet and to play and to mingle with each other in literary, athletic and social activities? Should the church forget all about itself and its creedal and polemic differences? Should it forget its own salvation in its effort to save Smith? Should it lose itself in his service, even if some churches have to die in the attempt, as long ago their Master died?

Should it?

Those are the things I decided I would be forever free from, and so I am! MORAL SUASION A FAILURE

Ex-Teacher Says the Rod Is Needed in Public Schools ---Appalling Amount of Time Wasted in Preserving Order.

By a Former Teacher in the New York Sun: Of late years there has been much criticism of the New York public schools, directed mainly aagainst the course of study. Much of this criticism has been just, but to one having had experience in working under this system, most of the methods suggested for reform have seemed generally impracticable and productive of greater evils than those already existing, which evils seem to me to be possible of gradual elimination through a more sensible arrangement of the time schedule.

But I do not wish to dwell upon the defects existing in the course of study, because the principal cause of the poor results obtained in the schools does not lie so much therein as in the efforts to preserve order among the pupils. Few educators seem to be aware of this factor for poor results, but all teachers know it well.

The main cause for this criminal waste of time is the by-law against the use of corporal punishment and the installation of moral suasion in its stead. This is by itself not an effective substitute, and if it be not possible to give the teacher greater help than she at present receives in her efforts to establish order through this method the rod must inevitably return to use unless the public will continue to be satisfied with the conditions as they at present exist—conditions which are rapidly demoralizing the youth of our city, filling the children's courts and teaching a contempt for law and order.

Moral Suasion Ineffective.

Moral suasion is ineffective for several reasons. First, the percentage of immigrant children in the schools is very great; and these children for the most part have become hardened at home to the use of the rod and interpret its absence as an invitation to conduct themselves as they please. A principal entered one of his classes a short time ago and asked all those boys who received a whipping at home to raise their hands. Their teacher informs me that every hand went up, much to the consternation of that principal.

There is a theory that man's development coincides with that of the human race; and it does seem as though there were, in the lives of most boys, a time when the period of savagery is much in evidence. Thus the boy, particularly of the lower classes, seems to feel instinctively that a teacher, as a representative of law and order, is his natural enemy, a creature to be wiped out of existence if possible, unless she be able to survive the struggle for supremacy and prove herself the stronger. It is this constant struggle which makes teaching the most difficult of professions for women not naturally of a masterful disposition; and such women should not be expected, as they are, to succeed unaided.

So the child soon learns that nothing very disagreeable happens, or can happen, as a result of his disorder. He openly defies the teacher to lay hands on him and threatens if she does to report her to the district superintendent, whom he glibly calls by name. In passing, I would like to say, however, that no teacher wants to lay hands on any child. She does so because it is the quickest and most effective method of restoring order; but she realizes the indignity of such an exhibition and always suffers afterward that exhaustion of mind and body due to the nervous reaction from the strain. It is evident that this hardly fits her for a more effective performance of her duties.

Very Slow Process.

Moral suasion certainly outrages no one's sense of dignity or prosperity, but it is often an exceedingly slow process. A lesson is begun, the teacher working hard to make it clear, and hoping to finish within the allotted time; when some particular pupil decides it to be a good time to attract a little attention to himself.

So he pounds to interrupt the lesson and amuses his classmates by an exhibition of clownishness or of direct defiance of authority. The lesson is dropped and the teacher proceeds to administer to that boy his particular dose of "moral suasion," made up of ingredients, judiciously mixed, of cajolery, flattery, entreaty, or, perhaps, a little sarcasm, and a few weak threats. Perhaps ten or fifteen minutes later the class once more may settle down to work; but only the teacher knows how much those wasted moments were needed to produce results.

It is certainly unfortunate that these little sons of immigrants are not equipped with the fine moral sense which modern educators, wrapped in their ideals, seem to take for granted, and upon the existence of which they have based their system of discipline. It becomes evident, then, that unless a teacher happens to have been blessed with a strong personalityand the moral strength to impose her will upon the often conflicting wills of the pupils, she is practically helpless; for moral suasion ignores the existence of the weak teacher and does not provide for her failures.

Other Alternatives.

Some protests may very likely be raised at this point that there are other alternatives than the resorting to corporal punishment. For instance, a pupil may be detained after school. Again, sentimentality protects the child and hampers the teacher, who is forbidden to keep the children with her over half an hour. This is too short a time to be effective.

Again, it might be said that a teacher can apply for help to the principal or head of department. I do not hesitate to say that she will receive little help from this source, for several reasons.

In the first place, all principals hold very firmly to the theory that it is the teacher's place to discipline her class, as well as to teach. They are careful to make her aware of this point. They also make it very plain that she will not be popular with them if she shirks too much of this part of her duties. They threaten low marks, overlooking the fact that the thing of most importance is not the teacher's mark, nor the necessity for her doing her share of the work, but the fact that the children aro not receiving instruction!

If the teacher is weak, no matter what contempt the principal may feel for her on that account, it should not prevent him, as if often does, from giving her what help lies in his power. And this should be given, not for her sake, but for the sake of the pupils.

Again, the teacher may inform the parents of their children's misconduct. This method is also too slow to be effective at those times when it seems that something must be done immediately. Then parents are too apt to excuse their offspring and blame the teacher. If the parents would co-operate more with the teachers than they do the schools would do much better by the children. After all, is it not the parents' business to see that their children behave themselves?

The schools seem to me very lenient with parents and inclined to side with them against the teacher. Why this should be I never was able to fathom. Can it be that principals find this the easiest way out of that disagreeable duty, the interviewing of parents? Perhaps ,however, they have no time for this duty, most of their working hours having been assigned to the making out of endless reports. Let us hope these same reports and statistics are worth to the city the great price it pays for them.

Realize They Are Helpless.

Another reason for the poor backing which teachers receive from many principals may be that these people at the head of the schools realize that under the present system they are as helpless as those under them and can do as little.

So this is, after all, not a plea for the restoration of corporal punishment in the schools, but for a stronger support of the weak teacher, and not so much for her sake, I repeat, as for the benefit of the schools generally, and for the betterment of results to be obtained therein. And if principals and heads of departments are too busy to devote more time to this work—as they may well be—why may not the school authorities appoint some one to take charge of the work alone, some one who would do so uncomplainingly and impartially?

How effective it would be to have such a teacher or teachers enter each class to inquire about the pupils, commending such as are a help and warning others from continuing to waste the time of instruction or threatening to interview the parents of those inclined to disorder. No teacher would then need to retain an unruly child in her class to interfere with the instruction of the other children. He could be sent immediately from the room to this disciplinary teacher, whose business it would be to take charge of his case.

And finally, could the parents but spend a few hours with the public school teacher at her work, I believe they would soon become convinced that she is, almost without exception, conscientious and eager to do her best for those placed under her charge. And a realization of this fact would, I think, insure a better co-operation with the work of the teacher, for unless parents are able in instil in their offspring a more serious attitude toward their studies and insist upon a better behavior in class then the present system of discipline must continue to be a failure, the educational results poor and the return of corporal punishment to the schools a necessity.

COLLEGE PROFESSOR IS BUT HUMAN

Alleged Wits Have Made Him an Outlandish Figure.

Henry Seidel Canby in Harper's Magazine: The college professor as he appears in American novels and upon the American stage is so picturesque that I should like to forget the dangers of the caricature. He is presented as a mild individual with vacant eyes, an absent mind, a long beard, and untidy clothes. This imagined professor wears loose slippers in his study, and looks through steel-rimmed glasses on a world which does not concern him. The passions touch him not, and in the presence of dollars and cents or other facts of existence he displays a touching helplessness which is charmingly humorous. He lives serene and untroubled among his books, dreams beautiful dreams, sees attractive but unprofitable visions, and economically and politically is supposed to rank with the women-folk, as intermediate between the real men and the paupers, feeble-minded, and Indians untaxed.

The average American knows that this slippered gentleman is a product of the genial imagination of our comedy-makers, and yet his own conception of the college professor is not much nearer the truth. He imagines him, if my observations are correct, as a dignified but severe individual with a trimmed beard, a cold eye, and a mysterious interest in subjects of no earthly use to anybody. He believes him to be indifferent to the necessities, and unsympathetic with the pleasures, of every day existence.

Although he respects his cultivation and is impressed by the extent of his knowledge, in his heart of hearts he feels, though he may never have acknowledged it, that the professor is futile in active life and therefore merely ornamental in our civilization.

Professors Not Understood.

The truth is that the average American knows very little about the college professor, and takes few pains to know more. My legal friend, who motors in and out from his country residence and has time for golf in the afternoon and the theater or reading every evening, talks to me enviously of the otium cum dignitate of life in the academic shades, and does not heed my ironic reply. The business man, who knows that I have three months a year free from college duties, assumes that it is all vacation, and smiles indulgently when I speak of my summer work.

In discussions of affairs our comments are likely to be dismissed as impractical—undoubtedly they often are so—before they are heard, on the principle that governed the medievals when they distrusted in advance all that a lawyer might have to say of religion. And it is clear what the financial world thinks of us, since every wildcat enterprise sends its circulars to all the names on the college catalogue; strong evidence that it knows little about the college community, for few professors have a surplus worth stealing.

He Is a Man of the World.

After all, the animal does not differ so much from the rest of the community: in fact, he is scarcely a different species. The modern professor is more usually a man of the world than a recluse. He knows good cigars, as well as good pictures and good books. He enjoys his club with a very human enjoyment. As a golfer or tennis player he is often above the average. His talk, if a trifle dogmatic and inclined to stray from the cardinal American topics—business, athletics, motor cars and anecdotes—is rarely pedantic, and far more intelligible than the dialact of the motorist or the jargon of baseball.

If he wears unfashionable clothes, they more often indicate an unfortunate economic condition than a disregard of his neighbors, and when he holds back from social and municipal activities it is often for the same reason. If he is little skilled in commerce, at least he knows as much of the banker's, the lawyer's, or the manufacturer's business as they do of his; perhaps more. Prick him in his pride, his purse, his likings, or his intolerances, and he will bleed quite as if he weer a financier or a politician. In short, he is human.

BUDGETS AND MARKETING.

How the budget plan of living helps to overcome the increased cost of living is shown in Harper's Bazar by Helen Louise Johnson, who writes on "The Gospel of the New Housekeeping." She says:

"It has been determined by studying large numbers of family budgets what percentage of different incomes has to be spent for food, and many different divisions of income have been given in the preceeding articles. Certain facts should be plain without having to prove them by figures. If a family having $2,500 income buy food of adequate quantity and quality for 25 per cent of this, or $625, in 1903, but now finds that it takes 35 per cent, or $875, to buy the same kind and amount, it is obvious that they are less well off then they were ten years ago. Statisticians may word it in a different way and prove on paper that the cost of living has not increased, but the family will tell a different story because the larger amount now necessarily spent for food curtails the amount which can be spent for other things all along the line. What if oil and some furniture and some other household goods have decreased in price? Six hundred and seventy-five dollars taken from $2,500 leaves $1,875 for the needs aside from the food supplies; but $875 subtracted from $2,500 leaves but $1,625, hence a less rent, less for operating expenses, less for clothes, or, as more often happens, less for all that comes under higher life, can now be spent. And when food prices, rents and the operating expenses rise also, more and more curtailing that which may be spent for higher life.

"The actual fact that today the amount required for living necessities leaves too small a margin for needs such as doctor's and dentist's bills, education, magazines, newspapers, books, and ordinary small pleasures, not to mention the desire for travel and some of the really good and uplifting things of life. What does it signify if it can be proved that the sum total of all commodities has lessened in the last twenty years, if the price of the fundamental necessities has so risen as to preclude the buying of these other things?"

BELASCO HAS A NEW STAR

HELEN FREEMAN.

David Belasco has discovered a new star. She is Helen Freeman and Mr. Belasco says she possesses "charm" which he thinks is the chief requisite for stage success. He says she radiates individuality, magnetism, temperament or whatever you choose to call it. He finds in her also innate culture, quick understanding, sensitive response. She will take a leading part in the next Belasco play.

A KINGDOM FOR SALE.

The Island of Lewis Offered for $1,500,000.

Scattered around the shores of the United Kingdom, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, are a number of islands, large and small, whose proprietors, while owning allegiance to King George, are, nevertheless, monarchs of all they survey, with greater power over the comfort and well-being of their "subjects" than his majesty enjoys. Indeed, in some instances the British parliament has no power to tax these island estates without the consent of their owners, nor can any one land or reside upon them without the permission of their rulers. Some of them are but a few acres in extent, while others run into many square miles of territory, boasting of a lordly castle and quite a large population.

Perhaps the principal island property in the United Kingdom is Lewis, in the Outer Hebrides, whose present ruler is Maj. Matheson. Lewis is certainly no mean kingdom, seeing that it boasts of an area of 437,221 acres and a population of nearly 30,000 souls. Indeed, it is the largest island in the United Kingdom next to Ireland. For the man desirous of setting up in a moderate sort of way as a monarch, here is an admirable chance, for Maj. Matheson is anxious to dispose of his kingdom. Lewis has figured largely in Scottish history, and the doings of that doughty warrior chief, Rural Macleod, who once ruled it with a rod of iron, would fill volumes. Over and over again British kings have dispatched gallant soldiers to take the island and subdue its chiefs. After a few months' occupation, however, they invariably had to retire beaten. At one time the island fell into the hands of the Dutch, but they, like the king's forces, were eventually driven out.

The little kingdom boasts of extensive lochs, where magnificent fishing is to be had, while in some parts it is very mountainous, Mealasbhal and Ben More, the two highest peaks, towering 1,800 odd feet above sea level. Over its extensive moors and forest land the red deer still roam. Every where there are numerous antiquities and Druidical remains. The owner's residence is a magnificent old castle close to Stornoway, the principal town. Many members of the royal family have stayed there, including the late King Edward. The principal industry is fishing, and in the season the girls of Stornoway go all over Scotland packing herrings. Next to fishing, cloth-weaving engages the attention of the Islanders, who are a hardy and thrifty set of people, the majority of whom know no other tongue but Gaelic. Maj. Matheson is asking $1,500,000 for this island kingdom.

SAVING ELK HERDS.

Animals Being Shipped to Various States From Montana and Wyoming.

Robert H. Moulton in the Chicago Record-Herald: The long promised distribution of elk from Jackson's Hole and Yellowstone National park has begun. Thousands of the animals are now being rounded up by cowboys on the overstocked winter range in Wyoming and Montana, and are being shipped by the carload to the states that have sent in requests for them.

A carload of eighty elk, rounded up on the Yellowstone Park region and shipped from Gardiner, Mont., the northern gateway to the Yellowstone, arrived in Denver the other day on their way to Arizona. These elk will be turned out upon their new range in Arizona. They will be protected from hunters, under state laws, and will be given every opportunity to increase.

Herds of elk have recently been sent in this way to Pennsylvania, West Virginia, North Dakota, Washington, Oregon and California. Many other states have put in applications and will be provided with shipments as fast as the animals can be rounded up. It was prophesied that, when this plan was adopted, the elk would not stand shipment, but the percentage of loss has been small. Only one of the Arizona consignment died en route. It is necessary to give the elk a rest every day. They are unloaded from the cars and put into convenient corrals, and, after a few hours' rest, proceed on their journey. In this way the loss is comparatively small.

The government was forced to adopt this plan to prevent the elk in the West from going the way of the buffalo to extinction. Most of the elk in the Rocky mountains had ranged north until they reached the Jackson's Hole region south of Yellowstone park. Here they congregated in vast herds.

Last year congress appropriated a considerable sum for the care and feeding of the Jackson's Hole elk, which were starving in the deep snows. Government employes, aided by ranchmen, carried hay to the elk ranges, where they found conditions appalling, especially in the early spring. Hundreds of calves, as well as older elk, were dying of starvation. The lives of thousands of elk were saved by feeding, but it was soon demonstrated that this measure of relief was only temporary. It would entail a tremendous expense to keep up the work of feeding, so it was determined to distribute the elk among the states that put in applications for herds, and that were willing to pay the expense of transportation and guarantee protection to the animals after arrival.

This work of elk preservation is unique. Had similar measures been undertaken in behalf of the buffalo the nation would not now be mourning the almost total loss of those animals, which at one time were much more numerous in the West than are the elk today.

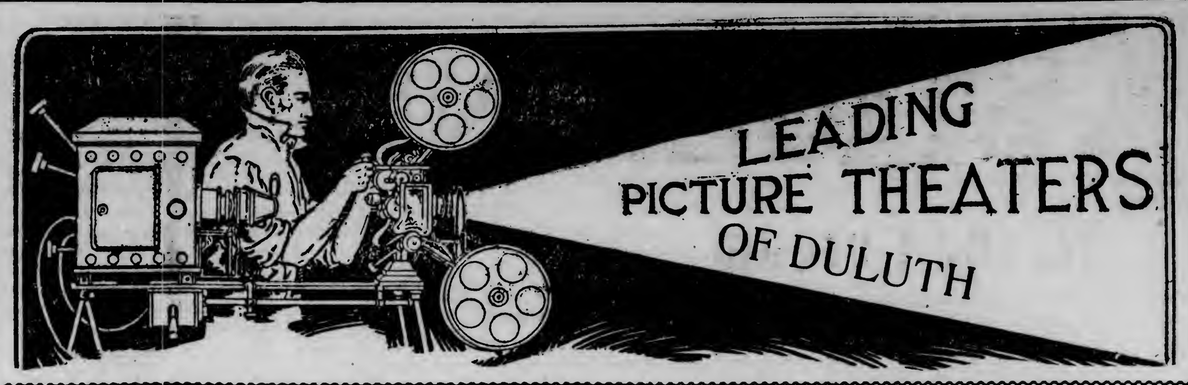
A HONEYMOON UP THE AMAZON.

New York Mail: E. C. Benedict, former commodore of the New York Yacht club, now in his 80th year, will start soon on what probably will be the last of his many long trips to strange lands and through unknown waters. He is going to make a little run of 12,000 miles to give two brides a honeymoon.

When the 200-foot yacht that used to belong to John Hays Hammond, renamed the Oneida by Commodore Benedict, steams out of New York harbor, it will bear, besides other members of the party, Mr. and Mrs. Colgate Hoyt, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ryland Sinclair.

The Oneida will go up the Amazon farther than any yacht ever before had been save one. That was in 1904, when Commodore Benedict himself cruised in the Virginia to a point in the South American wilds far beyond the outposts of civilization.

The commodore thinks nothing of a little two months' jaunt half way around the world if it will add a spice of novelty to the honeymoon of the two brides, Mrs. Hoyt and Mrs. Sinclair. The Oneida will touch at Barbadoes, Rio Janeiro and Buenos Aires before beginning its Amazon trip. It will go at least 1,000 miles up the great South American river. The Oneida will return to New York about June 21.



THE EDUCATIONAL VALUE OF MOVING PICTURE THEATERS

There are thousands of men and women in the city of Duluth who are not parents and yet have that kindly strain which prompts them to consider the welfare of children, even though these children are not theirs.

A philosopher has said that the boy of today is the man of tomorrow, and the maiden of today is the wife of next year.

A lot has been said about the benefits of the moving picture theaters, and a lot of rank nonsense has been written against photo playhouses, but have you ever stopped to consider what vast factors these self-same theaters are in their ability to educate the young?

Boys and girls go to work much earlier in life in these days than they did twenty years ago. It's also certain that the boys and girls of today are more self-reliant than the past boyhood, and the majority of them snap up a great deal of knowledge after they leave school that it was not possible for them to imbibe while at school.

There is at present to be seen in moving picture films a great play known as "The Miracle," which was originally presented at the Olympia, London, and ran for over a year. It cost over a million dollars to produce; the music for it was written by Prof. Englebert Humperdinck. The film takes over an hour to produce, and just imagine what vast possibilities such a film develops when a theater is packed with 500 to 1,000 young people between 14 and 18. No book read at school, no lesson they ever had in class, no map drawn on the blackboard could ever equal the inspiring, convincing and determinating factor of such an hour in a moving picture theater.

It beats all the books on earth, and it makes such an indellible impression on the mind through the eye that it eclipses all efforts that the most painstaking pedagogue could devise. Pictures tell the story. That's the secret.

The young man and the young woman at school may be fond of geography, but is there a book in the school, is there a newspaper, that can give you the pictorial history of the Balkan war such as will shortly be seen in the moving picture theaters of the world?

The Brooklyn Young Men's Christian association has lately given a series of moving picture displays to its members, the last one being Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," including the life of John Bunyan. The auditorium was packed to the doors. So great was the crush that it was found necessary, fifteen minutes after the doors opened, to lock the doors. This was continued for five nights, when over 11,000 people paid from 15 to 50 cents to see this film of a subject which is old and ever new—and it's "the old made really new" in pictures that charm the millions who patronize the photo playhouses, just as love makes the whole world new, and yet, old as it is, it's the sweetest story ever told.

The day is coming when moving picture theaters will not only be an integral part of educational work in the public schools, but that the principals of the public schools will from time to time, at the invitation of the proprietors of various photo theaters, take their pupils to see leading features, such as "Ancient Egypt," "Cleopatra," "The Merchant of Venice," "The Coronation of King George," "Queen Victoria's Jubilee" or "The Delhi Durbar."

The moving picture film is an "Aladdin's lamp." Through its magic you can be taken all over the world and into every country. Moving pictures are timely, strict and true. Photographs do not lie. They drive the story home.

It can be said with a good deal of truth that geography as a text book is doomed, now that pupils can see, in full, things and places in moving picture theaters that before they could only hear of in a very limited part in a crowded schoolroom.

History is made "alive again" by the production of events in all ages at an enormous outlay of money and the employment of thousands of people in these various feature films now put on at theaters. It is a striking fact that it cost $100,000 to produce Dante's "Inferno," and it is no unusual thing for 3,000 people to be employed at a cost of $250,000 to produce Western dramas and scenes laid to faultlessly reproduce history of the past and the stirring evolution of the present.

The moving picture theater is a valuable adjunct to the public school. It can never replace the school, but it certainly supplements it.

Did you ever stop to think that in a moving picture theater today you can get from an hour to two hours complete relaxation for a nickel?

Do you realize that the picture or pictures you see for a nickel cost to produce near $300,000? These figures are stupendous. It took Michael Angelo but three hours to carve an eye, but it took him seventeen years to learn how to do it. We want to realize all that a photo playhouse has done and is doing for humanity.

No school teacher can show a war as it really occurred, and no school teacher can be expected to do so, but the pictures drive it into the memory. The deeper we go into this question the stronger becomes our knowledge that the moving picture theater is a great educational factor.

This is a good old world; let's leave the cares of the day at the office, store or factory and give ourselves and family at night—at least once a week—a good uplifting, inspiring evening at the photo play theater.

For a dime where else can you get so much for so little?

Some Girl, Our Barbara!

Barbara Tennant will be seen at the Odeum on horseback in some very realistic scenes. Miss Tennant was rather badly shaken up in posing for this picture and didn't have to "play dead." But talk about your beauties, well Barbara Tennant, in the riding habit, riding astride, is sure enough "some girl."

The Odeum will, commencing Monday and for three days, present Miss Tennant in "The Return of Crime," which will give to Duluth theatergoers a real treat. The Odeum is one of Duluth's first and finest theaters and has always kept up its reputation of producing nothing but the best of motion pictures for 10c.

The Lyric.

The management offers for Sunday a two-reel feature drama, "The Last Roll Call."

A thrilling tale of the Civil war period, which is said to picture some of the finest scenes ever shown in motion pictures. War pictures are creating great interest at this time on account of the Balkan and Mexican wars. "Billy's First Quarrel," is a side-splitting comedy, featuring Billy Quirk; "Whole Truth," a drama by the Imp company, and "Call Him Whiskers," a hilarious comedy, complete one of the best bills yet offered by this enterprising handsome picture house.

The Star.

"The Superior Law," an American Eclair feature, in three parts, will be shown the last time Sunday night. Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday an excellent quality of vaudeville will be given. The Star is the West End's popular motion picture and vaudeville house. Crowds are turned away nightly. New pictures are shown every Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday—the last part of the week is given up to vaudeville.

Sunbeam Theater.

Tomorrow the first film will show "An Exposure of the Land Swindlers." Monday and Tuesday, Biograph, Drama; Pathe's Weekly, "Mutt and Jeff in An Extended Trip to Turkey," and two other good reels. For "The Land Swindlers" Kalem paid Detective Wm. J. Burns the largest sum ever received by an individual in any country for appearing in a photo play. The Sunbeam is the only picture house in Duluth operating exclusively licensed films.

Happy Hour.

This theater continues to draw big crowds daily and nightly. Each bill gives three reels and two big vaudeville acts The Happy Hour will give an especially interesting program for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The management makes a special effort to see that the best of entertainment is given and especially caters to the whole family.

Kozy Theater.

Patrons of this enterprising theater will have the opportunity this week of seeing Shakespeare's immortal tragedy, "Cymbeline." The drama will be pictured in two reels, and will undoubtedly prove a great hit. The Kozy theater is the popular, family moving picture house of East Fourth street. Friday night is amateur night and is always full of fun.

Grand Theater.

R. L. Brainerd, manager, presents for a Sunday feature "Cymbeline," a Tannhauser classic in two parts from Shakespeare's immortal play of the same name.

Director White of the Grand orchestra is arranging special musical accompaniment for this production. Another of the ever popular "Keystone" comedies with a Reliance drama, and P. J. Barry in one of the late song hits, will complete the bill.

The Grand, which is located at Fifty-fifth and Grand avenues west, is one of West Duluth's newly built theaters and is drawing large audiences with its splendid pictures put on for the benefit of the theatergoing people.

DULUTH FACES A GLOWING FUTURE.

In the Open Court the other evening a correspondent signing himself "Daniel Greysolon Du Luth, Jr.," did a timely thing by calling attention to the many good things that are coming to Duluth.

Coming one at a time, as such things usually do, their impressiveness depends upon their individual character.

Some we let go by with mere passing interest. Some are big enough to become the subject of exclamatory comment for a day.

But when they are grouped, as our friend Daniel Greysolon grouped them in his letter to the Open Court, they create a situation of which every citizen should take note, and from which every citizen should take new hope and courage.

"Aren't the good things coming rather thick and fast for Duluth at the present time?" inquires M. Du Luth, Jr.

They are indeed. They are becoming a veritable shower.

A million-dollar boulevard from Duluth to Two Harbors, to be the gift of a public-spirited citizen of this community.

The announcement of a model town next the steel plant, at a cost of $1,300,000.

The announcement of a new train service to Chicago over the Canadian Northern, with the inescapable fact that Duluth is to become an important point on a new trans-continental highway.

The statement by a vice president of the United States Steel corporation that the Duluth steel plant is to be one of the most important in the large list of plants owned by the corporation, and that it is to be a model plant in every way.

The statement from the same source that this will be a banner year in iron ore production.

To the list compiled by M. Du Luth might be added many more. The crop outlook in the Northwest is as fine as it could be at this season. Almost daily comes new evidence that the fight of the Commercial club to break down the structure of unfair railroad rates and service is succeeding—at first little by little, now faster and faster. And this is more important than all combined, for the one big reason why Duluth is not today a city of a quarter of a million, as it should be and as it will be soon, is that cities with much smaller natural advantages gained the advantage of preferential freight rates and service.

And Duluth, by insisting upon its rights, is getting them.

Duluth has been on the threshold of commercial and industrial greatness for many years.

But the door has been closed.

Now the door is open, and Duluth's foremost foot is within it.

WATCH DULUTH GROW.

The more the country sees of the operation of the parcel post, the more it wonders how the express companies ever managed to hide their graft so long.

INFANT WELFARE.

Every parent, actual or prospective, ought to take in the infant welfare exhibit which will begin Monday at the Masonic temple. It will be a vivid and convincing exposition of modern methods of giving the babies the show for life and health and well-being to which they are entitled, and of which many of them are deprived by neglect.

In no branch of human welfare work has greater progress been made than in the care of infants. Particularly in cities, and especially in hot weather, babies used to die like flies. Infant mortality was appalling. And society sat back and blasphemously called it Providence.

Now we know that what killed them was not Providence, but improvidence—bad air, bad food, bad nursing. We gave them poison in their milk, and wondered that they sickened and died.

Monday and Tuesday the exhibit will be open to the pupils of the high school and the seventh and eighth grades. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday it will be open to the public. Friday will be "Mother's day," and there will be a baby contest on new lines—those of health instead of mere beauty.

The exhibit will be interesting and instructive. It should have a large attendance, and for the good of the community it can not be too large.

This highly interesting demonstration, it should be added, grows out of the intelligent and public-spirited work for infant welfare of the Scottish Rite Masons of the valley of Duluth, under the leadership of T. W. Hugo. For several years, without blare of trumpets or beating of drums, this body has been conducting actual, tangible, practical work for the welfare of babyhood. It is maintaining a nurse who is splendidly equipped for this work, and it is doing many things for a healthier and sturdier babyhood, which means a stronger and happier citizenship in a generation to come. If, by this exhibit, it awakens a wider interest in this most important subject, it will be doing a still greater service to the community.

It is estimated that the liquor business at Devils Lake, N. D., amounts to $100,000 a month, though North Dakota is a "dry" state. Apparently there's pretty good reason for the general practice of putting quotation marks around that word "dry."

WHAT IS TO BECOME OF THE FALLEN SISTER?

Duluth is to wipe out its vice district. Minneapolis has been engaged in the attempt for several years. St. Paul is following suit. Other cities are doing the same thing.

Indeed, if the courts uphold the "red light" abatement law passed by the legislature at its recent session, and effective at the end of this month, it will become practically impossible to carry on openly in this state "the oldest profession in the world."

What of the fallen sisters driven out of their haunts by this general movement against the vice district? What is to become of them?

Wiping out vice districts does not destroy vice. It does not change human nature. It does not affect the conditions that create a class of fallen women. It does not reduce the brute passions which foster this class. After a given vice district has been raided and broken up, there are just as many fallen women as there were before.

They may be driven out of town; but that only means that they will go to some other town. They may, for a time, be harried from hiding place to hiding place, where they seek to carry on their terrible traffic in defiance to law and executive action. Whatever choice they make, or is made for them, their numbers are not affected in the slightest degree by any crusade of extermination.

In many communities—in St. Paul and Philadelphia, for recent instances—the good women of the cities have thought of this, and are planning action for the relief of their stained sisters who are the victims of these campaigns for municipal morality.

It is talked that such a movement will be begun in Duluth.

This is timely. It is cruel to scourge these women from their haunts without taking thought of what is to become of them. Stained and world-worn though they are, they are our sisters. The "civilization" that created them should care for them in some humane way.

What do those who are bent only on vice extermination know about what parental neglect, what lack of youthful opportunity, what ignorance, what lover's perfidy, put these women where they are? Who is to judge them, and be fearless of himself being judged for his part in creating their misery?

It is high time that thought, and deep thought, were being given to this problem. It is as important that consideration be given to the welfare of these unfortunate women as it is that the city shall make the attempt to rid itself of vice.

Obliteration of vice districts without some care as to what becomes of those who inhabit these districts is cruel, barbarous and uncivilized.

That farmer who tried to shoot up St. Paul with an unloaded revolver must have had a great idea of what it would take to shoot up St. Paul.

A HUNDRED YEARS OF PEACE.

Since the Treaty of Ghent, signed Dec. 24, 1814, there has been uninterrupted peace between the United States and Great Britain.

So next year the centennary of the signing of this treaty is to be suitably observed, which is well.

The best way to celebrate it would be through the signing of a new treaty, a peace treaty that would be a model to the world, and that other nations would quickly imitate.

It is good to look back over a hundred years of peace. It would be vastly better to be able to look forward to a thousand years of peace.

The two nations are closely allied in language, in blood, in traditions, in literature and in friendship.

Another war between them would be as scandalous as a street brawl between sisters. Columbia and Brittannia are sisters who should set an example to the world. They should be leaders in the movement toward universal peace, and the best way for them to take the lead would be to adopt a treaty under which war between them would be impossible.

It would be a fine thing if on Dec. 24, 1914, representatives of these two great leaders in civilization could meet again at Ghent and commit their respective countries to a treaty which could be made a model for the nations of the world.

It would be a splendid thing for Great Britain and the United States, but it would be a greater thing for the world.

Then, too, perhaps the idea of the pulmotor originated from the experience of dissolved trusts.

SEEING THINGS.

The News Tribune has discovered a plot to recall Commissioner Hicken, and has become greatly excited about it.

Nobody else seems excited. Nobody else, indeed, seems to have heard anything of it. The tale seems to fall readily into the class of imaginative fiction. By general consent, among those who are much about town and likely to hear of such things if they exist, it is set down as a scarecrow, a willapus-wallopus, the raw-head-and-bloody-bones of a congested imagination.

In fact, like the old country woman who first set eyes on a hippopotamus, we "don't believe there ain't no such thing."

There may be and doubtless is a difference of opinion on whether the Hicken style of lid fits a community like Duluth; but then it isn't a Hicken lid. It's the style of lid the law prescribes. It is a novelty in Duluth, and in all probability those who disagree with the theory of it are not confined to the utterly disreputable classes. But it must be said that singularly little discontent with it has been openly expressed. Recall talk has been largely a figment of reportorial imagination. The lid seems due for a trial, anyway, and it is not likely to be interrupted by a recall proceeding. Indeed, our idea of no safe thing to do is to begin recall proceedings on the lid question at this time. In all probability those who tried it would fall heir to a fearful headache.

But nobody appears to be contemplating the attempt. Careful inquiry narrows the field of recall talk to the News Tribune, which is like the hero of the tongue-twisting rhyme:

"He thrusts his fists against the post
And still insists he sees the ghost."

Native cooks in Ecuador refuse to use stoves, because they say the excessive heat "causes fever." Apparently they don't have any northeasters in Ecuador.

A DREADFULLY DULL TOPIC.

The tariff is a very dull topic.

An exceedingly dull, dry as dust, utterly uninteresting topic.

To be sure, the tariff touches every pocket and invades every home.

To be sure, the tariff is the mother of trusts, of excessive profits, of plutocracy, of corrupt dollar politics.

But it is a very dull subject, not worth talking about.

If you don't believe it, turn your ear to Oyster Bay and marvel at the tremendous silence there.

In the lexicon of Armageddon there is no such word as "tariff."

"The Penrose-La Follette amendment!" Politics sure makes some mighty peculiar name-mates.

NO UNDUE DELAY.

The failure of the Republican attempt to prolong the senate tariff discussion by requiring committee hearings on the Underwood bill is a victory not only for the Democratic majority but for the people of the United States and their industrial prosperity.

And it is to be noted that the authorship of the Penrose-La Follette resolution calling for public hearings shows the intimate inward kinship of Republican wings that outwardly seem far apart in sentiment.

The adoption of this resolution meant unduly delaying final action in the hope of defeating tariff revision.

The country wants no hearings. The house committee's hearings were ample. What the country wants, and wants most emphatically, is an early settlement of the tariff question so that industrial activity, knowing what to figure on, may proceed uninterruptedly.

Of course Austria could solve the whole difficulty by allowing herself to be annexed to Montenegro. But maybe she hadn't thought of that.

WOODROW WILSON'S WAY.

While Woodrow Wilson delights the people as president, he continues to puzzle the politicians of the old order.

They cannot understand him. They cannot fathom his methods and mental processes.

The trouble is that Wilson, Wilson's methods and Wilson's mental processes are too clear, too simple, too direct for them. They are used to intricacy and indirection, and they know no other way.

President Wilson is teaching them another way, and whether or not they grow to like it, certainly the people like it already and are liking it better every day.

The Wilson way, when you have an objective, is to go straight to it, watching for pitfalls, surveying the road carefully, but going straight to it all the time. If precedent stands in the way, so much the worse for precedent. If custom clogs the trail, then custom has to be cleared out of the trail.

The whole secret is that there is no secret; that the Wilson way is to find the right thing and then do it, regardless of what somebody else would have done or may have done in the same circumstances.

By all odds the best analysis of the Wilson way is that written in the New York Times by Charles Willis Thompson, who says that this is his method:

> First, to leave his mind entirely open and to get all the information and all the opinions he can from everybody, from the cabinet member to the man in the street, but to give no opinion himself and to form none until he has got every scrap of information obtainable.
> Second, having made up his mind, to stick to what he has resolved upon; one of the most striking features of his character is his perfect openness to conviction until he reaches a decision and his utter impregnability to argument when he has reached it.
> Third, to act upon his decision without loss of time.
> Fourth, if his decision is opposed, to meet his adversaries not with wire-pulling or log-rolling, but with direct action—the Hughes way, modified or amended by the differences in temperament between Hughes and Wilson.
> Fifth, to make his decisions himself; by which is meant that while he always seeks and acts upon information, he never acts upon advice. He is fairly thirsty for information, and he ponders, sifts and arranges it until out of the mass before him there emerges a decision; but it is his decision, not built upon the advice of any one, and once it is made argument is useless. Threats merely anger him, and to warnings of political danger he is deaf.

The Wilson way is a mighty good way, and that's why it is getting results. Maybe that's why it pleases the people so much better than it pleases the politicians.

Maybe the senate proposes to take a long time on the tariff just in the hope that the Washington team will develop a winning streak before the session closes.

ECONOMIC IDEALS AND POLITICAL CREEDS.

The various political creeds, when they are not mere stepping stones to office for the sake of office, are much closer together in purpose than they seem.

Except those frankly reactionary, who hold that the old and tried is best and that new experiments are to be avoided at all cost, all who think at all deeply on social and economic questions are seeking the same thing—whether they call themselves progressive Republicans, Democrats, Socialists, Liberals or Radicals; they are seeking social justice and the common good.

In a book just published Alfred Russell Wallace, co-discoverer with Darwin of the doctrine of natural selection and one of the greatest of evolutionists, says that the existing social system is the worst the world has ever seen, and in a discussion of the remedies for the evils which he describes he lays down general principles that in some form actuate all who are striving for the common good, no matter what political or philosophical label they affix to themselves.

Dr. Wallace says in his book that the social evils which have grown up "are due, broadly and generally, to our living under a system of universal competition for the means of existence, the remedy for which is universal co-operation."

"It may also be defined," he continues, "as a system of economic antagonism, as of enemies; the remedy being a system of economic brotherhood, as of a great family, or friends.

"Our system is also one of monopoly by a few of the means of existence—the land, without access to which no life is possible, and capital, or the results of stored-up labor, which is now in the possession of a limited number of capitalists and therefore is also a monopoly. The remedy is freedom of access to land and capital for all.

"Also, it may be defined as social injustice, inasmuch as the few in each generation are allowed to inherit the stored-up wealth of all preceding generations, while the many inherit nothing. The remedy is to adopt the principle of equality of opportunity for all, or of universal inheritance by the state in trust for the whole community.

"These four statements of the existing causes of all our social evils cannot, I believe, be controverted, and the remedies for them may be condensed into one general proposition: THAT IT IS THE FIRST DUTY (IN IMPORTANCE) OF A CIVILIZED GOVERNMENT TO ORGANIZE THE LABOR OF THE WHOLE COMMUNITY FOR THE EQUAL GOOD OF ALL, BUT IT IS ALSO THEIR FIRST DUTY (IN TIME) TO TAKE IMMEDIATE STEPS TO ABOLISH DEATH BY STARVATION AND BY PREVENTABLE DISEASE DUE TO INSANITARY DWELLINGS AND DANGEROUS EMPLOYMENTS, WHILE CAREFULLY ELABORATING THE PERMANENT REMEDY FOR WANT IN THE MIDST OF WEALTH."

Dr. Wallace is not a politician. He is an English naturalist, philosopher and scientist. He is an evolutionist, and the fact of evolution applies to social and economic conditions as certainly as it does to biology.

He is not a Socialist, nor a Bull Mooser, nor a Republican, nor a Democrat.

Yet the principles he lays down in the above quotations, principles which are absolutely beyond controversy, embody the best there is in Democracy, the best there is in Republicanism, the best there is in the Roosevelt political philosophy, and the best there is in Socialism.

What he sets forth as the duty of society is what all who have vision are striving for—rather blindly, groping somewhat in the dark, with many errors and more or less indirectly, but in the end certainly.

Why doesn't the commission buy that United States cruiser and use it to patrol the lake front?

WHOLESOME BOY ATHLETICS.

The ninth annual interscholastic field meet, held under the direction of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., is announced for June 7.

Here's hoping good weather, a good attendance and a lively competition for it.

Though many track events tend to excesses, this one does not. It is carefully managed and wisely arranged, and its results are wholesome. It deserves all possible support, for it turns the boys away from mollycoddlism and toward sturdy manhood.

Headed by The Herald cup, the second presented by this newspaper, an attractive list of prizes has been arranged, and so far as that feature is concerned there is ample encouragement for interest among the boys. However, though prizes are essential, we are sure that the joy of contending and the hope of supremacy counts more with the boys than the prizes do.

Now Mrs. Lincoln's letters are to be sold. Their contents would almost warrant the government in buying and destroying them.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters must not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

WHY NOT?

To the Editor of The Herald:

I notice in the morning's paper that there is a movement on foot to get enough signatures to remove the first man from office (Commissioner Hicken) that ever had the courage to enforce the laws without fear or favor according to his own convictions.

Now my suggestion is, if this special privilege element get enough signatures to call for another election, why not in order to acquaint ourselves with these roughnecks, print the names of all signers of these petitions. Thanking you, I am, yours respectfully, MARTIN J. SHANNON,

Duluth, May 16. Lakeside.

Infallible Signs.

Everybody's: A traveler who believed himself to be sole survivor of a shipwreck upon a cannibal isle hid for three days, in terror of his life. Driven out by hunger, he discovered a thin wisp of smoke arising from a clump of bushes inland, and crawled carefully to study the type of savages about it. Just as he reached the clump he heard a voice say: "Why in hell did you play that card?" He dropped on his knees and devoutly raising his hands, cried:

"Thank God, they are Christians!"

Gallantry.

O woman with angelic smile,
With hatpin sticking out a mile,
You gouged my eye with movement deft;
But I don't care; I've got one left.

A Prayer for the Brother Who Never Catches Up

From the Survey.

O God, as to an earthly father, we bring Thee each our yearning confession of failure to realize to the full the powers Thou hast given us as laborers in Thy kingdom on earth. May we learn through this, our mutual prayer, to be charitable to one another's shortcoming. Teach us, by love if it may be, by bitter rebellion, if it must be, that our prayer may be answered only as we are firm to lend a hand in mutual aid and sympathy to the less fortunate. Let each in strength supply his neighbors' weakness, and build up in him the efficiency which is his birthright.

Thus, in humility of heart, we pray for justice to our overstrained and blighted brothers who never catch up, who grind their lives into sieves of despair and deficit, each grist the harder because there is less of life to spare. Think upon the handicapped in body and in soul, for whose backwardness we are jointly responsible through our inefficiency. May we give them health and leisure and knowledge and so joy and inspiration so that, restored to themselves, they may in free good will repay them a hundredfold, in deeds of brotherly gratitude and justice to others, for Thy sake.

And chiefly we pray for those in whom we have put our trust; that their strength may be equal to the temptations of the power we have given them from Thee. May they realize that not their own gain, but social justice, must measure the efficiency of their efforts. Bring home to their minds and hearts the far-reaching power, for evil and for good, of industry and government, of church and press; let them remember vividly the remote effects of indifference and negligence in the web of modern life.

May the getters of gold give justice to its producers; may its earners have charity toward its spenders; may the givers of gold be gifted with wisdom and courage; and may all social workers feel the weight of an especial responsibility; that the surplus wealth of which they are guardians may be husbanded for its true purposes and not be betrayed, nor delayed, nor wasted in their hands; that Thou mayst have gratitude in turn toward all, for Thy children's sake. Thus may Thy kingdom grow on earth into fuller and more abundant life for each and all.—Amen.

How Mary Went Wrong

Herbert Kaufman in Woman's World: Suddenly as the awakening of the orchards in the soft, sweet rains of an April night, so love blossomed in Mary's heart.

But to you (who may be or might have been her father), the miracle was hidden—the transition from childhood to womanhood is swift, subtle, even unconscious—and Mary herself did not realize the change. You still saw the child of a day ago. Your vision, dulled by the hard, drab years of a wage-chasing life, was not quick enough to sense the transfiguration.

And so when Mary's first sweetheart "called" you were annoyed and angered; you made up your mind to put a stop to such nonsense at once.

There was nothing wrong. They were simply two children playing the oldest game of make-believe under the stars.

Your frowns, side remarks and general hostility, humiliated the lad and withered your girl with shame.

You forgot that a guest had entered your door.

You might have greeted him kindly, and gained his respect and liking.

A boy's code is a clean, fine thing—a trusted youth generally becomes trustworthy. But you drove him away, hot with resentment, insulted and afraid to return to your home.

A common wrong inspired them to a common sense of deceit.

Thereafter they met clandestinely. Mary began to spend evenings "studying with her school friends" and what began as a harmless, little cub courtship, became warped and Mary with it—another good girl turned toward the wrong path by the folly of a father.

Successful in eluding detection she slowly grew bolder. Her tongue quickly became glib with protecting lies. Within a few months all fear of you and your authority disappeared, and contempt for your perception and credulity succeeded love and reverence.

Economy in the State.

Minneapolis Journal: "Always," says The Duluth Herald, "the legislature bends its energies to the discovery of new methods of taxation. Never does it direct its attention to finding more economical methods of handling the state's business."

Legislatures move along the line of least resistance. They find little objection to the creation of new offices, because somebody is going to get these offices. They do find positive objection to the discontinuing of old offices, because necessarily someone will lose them.

To this expectation of politicians that new offices may fall to them, we may trace a large part of the complaisance of legislatures toward this kind of legislation.

A strict campaign of economy cannot be undertaken under such circumstances. Nor can there even be set on foot a proper inquiry as to the handling of the state's business in a better way. The legislature in its recent session had before it several plans for the amendment of the state's business methods. The most important one was the Kneeland public domain bill, but that was slaughtered ostensibly because it was assumed to be a reflection on somebody who had handled the public lands in the past, but really because it would abolish some offices. The consolidation of several departments was suggested by the Child committee, and this, too, was rejected for the same reason.

It takes a moral stamina which does not characterize the average legislature to get economy made something more than a campaign catch word. The people have no right to ask the legislature what they will not consent to themselves—a let-up on the raising and spending of taxes. It is a question of public sentiment, after all, and as long as members of the legislature find it easier and politically safer to yield than to resist, the policy of extravagant expenditure will go on.

What to Pray For.

Phillips Brooks: Oh, do not pray for easy lives! Pray to be stronger men! Oh, do not pray for tasks equal to your powers. Pray for powers equal to your tasks! There the doing of your work shall be no miracle. Every day you shall wonder at yourself, at the richness of life which has come in you by the grace of God.

An Adept.

Farmer Hornbeak—Nothin'; and he's got more original ways of accomplishin' it than any feller you ever seen.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Sackcloth Within.

When, in an hour of disaster, King Jehoram rent his clothes the people looked, and, behold, "he had sackcloth within upon his flesh." It was a surprising revelation that the monarch even had his trouble and carried it—secretly. The garment of sorrow and penitence was underneath the royal robes.

So the case would be almost universally if we could look into the lives of other people. Sorrow enters the experience of prince and peasant alike. Beneath the smiling exterior some gnawing grief may hide that the world does not even suspect.

Blatant and complaining folk are not always the worst hurt. The churl blubbers over a pin prick, but the knight conceals a bleeding wound beneath his armor. Noble natures wear their sackcloth where the King wore his—within.

If we knew the secrets of lives about us we should less frequently charge Providence with partiality. The great Disposer of human lots does not give all gifts to any of the sons of men. Even if your neighbor be rich it is quite possible that his wife is a chronic invalid or that his only son has gone for the second time to the Keeley cure.

The clown does his hilarious "turn" while his heart aches for the little daughter in the hospital. Business men walk our streets with jovial demeanor, but carrying carking cares within. Women hide sharpest disappointments under a mask of gaiety. Skilful doctors prescribe for patients while conscious of insidious and hopeless disease in their own bodies. Lawyers serve the interests of their clients while their personal affairs lie in a jumble beyond the power of the law to right.

In even more pathetic case are those whose outward prosperity cannot still an accusing conscience. The memory of some dastardly deed, of some contemptibly mean act in their climb upward can rob even a brilliant success of its satisfaction. It is not enough to have arrived. One must have arrived honestly to taste the real sweetness of the cup.

Macbeth and Lady Macbeth accomplish their purpose, but only to find wretchedness. As the unhappy husband asked of his wife's physician, so do men, weighted with guilt, ask of some power in earth or heaven,

Canst thou not minister to a mind diseased,
Pluck from the memory a rooted sorrow,
Raze out the written troubles of the brain,
And with some sweet oblivious antidote
Cleanse the stuff'd bosom of that perilous stuff
Which weighs upon the heart?

We gain in power of sympathy as we come into vital touch with our fellows. Most people carry burdens about equal to their strength. Appreciating the fact, we learn to make allowances. The absent-minded greeting, the gruff reply that offends us may mean only that the weight is, for the moment, pressing particularly hard upon a human soul.

One may train himself to show kindness, to exercise the tact that refrains from rasping a friend's sore spot or from probing an old wound. A little deliberate thought on the matter may give a new set to one's purpose.

It is a wholly noble ambition to pass through no day without trying to put a touch of sunlight into someone's gray sky by speaking the word that cheers. The consciousness of having made some small action of the world happier and better is a great reward. Count no day as wasted, whatever its material gains or losses, in which, in this splendid way, you have worked with God. THE PARSON.

THE PERENNIAL DISCUSSION

By SAVOYARD.

Washington, May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The tariff debate has been very, very tame. It is a many time told tale, and the public is about as familiar with it as is congress. The country has decided, and there is nothing left for congress to do but to obey the orders the people gave it last November, and there's going to be the biggest row you ever saw if congress does not respond.

Let me speculate a moment. If, two years ago, Oscar Underwood had fetched in the bill that now bears his name, accompanied by the report he made the other day and sustained by the speech he delivered opening this present debate—why, the first letter of the name of the president of the United States inaugurated March 4, 1913, might have been "U."

"There is a tide in the affairs of men, Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

Oscar omitted it, because he did not become sound on the tariff until Woodrow Wilson showed him the trick, which is free wool. The first and the last, the beginning and the end, the Alpha and the Omega of any real tariff reform.

The tariff has been argued in congress for more than a hundred years. I make no doubt that the principle represented by the dispute between free trade and protection was more ably discussed by Adam Smith and Jeremy Bentham than by any other two thinkers who ever spoke our tongue. The idea of Smith prevailed, and that is what made Great Britain the most powerful and the most opulent nation in the world. We will seize that supremacy when we shall have accepted, embraced, and for a quarter of a century practiced the idea conveyed by the great Scotch political economist in his Wealth of Nations."

In our country, so far as my poor observation goes, the greatest and profoundest discussion of the subject is found in the speech against the protective principle delivered by Daniel Webster in the senate in 1824. And thereby hangs a joke. When the protective tariff drove the merchant marine of New England off the high seas, that thrifty folk went into manufacture, and they succeeded so prosperously under the graft thus bestowed on them that New England became the citadel of robber tariffs, and she is to this day. Webster changed his ideas to conform to the new conditions, and was an avowed protectionist, notwithstanding his free trade speech of 1824. Webster was not very strong on moral principle anyhow.

Well, in 1844 he went to Philadelphia to open the Whig campaign—to sound the "keynote," and he made an able protection speech, for if his mind was not as fine as John C. Calhoun's, it was bigger, and that put them on a par. John W. Forney was the editor of the Democratic organ, and instead of printing Webster's "keynote" of 1844, he dug up the free trade speech of twenty years earlier and presented it to Pennsylvania as Webster on the tariff. Even Webster laughed and confessed that Forney had printed a much abler speech than the "keynote" of 1844.

Next to Webster's free trade speech of 1824, it is perhaps safe to say that the most powerful argument ever made in the American congress on the subject of the tariff was the discussion of the subject by George Evans of Maine, in behalf of protection, in the senate in 1846. Of course, I exclude from the list the reports of Hamilton and of Robert J. Walker, either of which exhausts the subject from the standpoint of their respective authors.

From the enactments of our lowest tariff by a congress Democratic in the senate and Republican in the house, in 1857, until the last of the Morrison bills came up in the Forty-ninth congress, there was little discussion of the principle of the tariff in congress. Slavery, war and reconstruction had supplanted it. John Sherman of Ohio was a free trader, so was Allison of Iowa in the cant of the beggars who, then as now, classed everybody a free trader who did not agree that they should write taxes for their benefit in the revenue laws of the land to be paid by the toiling masses.

When the Mills tariff was considered by the Fiftieth congress there was a brilliant debate and one of the most eloquent congress ever heard. Mills himself was a giant, and he was supported by such men as Carlisle, the Breckinridges, Turner, Tucker, Rayner and others. Frank Hurd was out of congress, but the echo of his persuasive and convincing eloquence was there.

On the Republican side were Reed and McKinley. "Pig Iron" Kelley was yet on the stage. Kasson, on the tariff question the ablest protectionist since George Evans, like Hurd, was no longer in congress, but his argument was there. By the way, Kasson favored the plan of cutting the throat of protection by employing the knife of reciprocity. In 1898 Mark Hanna disarmed him of the "knife" and he died at war with his party on the tariff issue. He was a very great man—the ablest Iowa ever produced. And what an elegant, what a handsome, what a graceful, what a brilliant little personal presence was his! About the size of Hardwick of Georgia.

Somebody said that old Payne knew more about the tariff than anybody else. You could have put double what Payne knows on the subject in a little corner of Dingley's mind and Dingley would have been unconscious of the fact that his knowledge of the subject had been in the slightest degree augmented. Tom Reed knew men. In the Fifty-fourth congress Payne was entitled to ways and means by seniority; but Reed drafted Dingley from appropriations and promoted him over Payne. When Reed retired and Dingley died, Dave Henderson made Payne chairman of ways and means, and he is the only "leader of the house" of our entire congressional history whose motion to adjourn was denied on the call of the yeas and nays. It is possible, however, that this humiliating episode was as much due to the unpopularity of the speaker as it was to the incompetency of the leader.

The tradition—Democratic as well as Republican—is that the man of all others who most thoroughly knew the details of a tariff bill, as that fearfully and knavishly wrought thing is constructed, was Robert C. Schenck of Ohio. He was a red-headed man, a giant intellectually, able to cope with anybody in political disputation. He was a failure on the field of Mars, though a very Hector for personal intrepidity. One day he rushed his command into battle on a railroad train. What the rebels didn't kill or cripple of 'em they captured. But in congress Schenck was superb—a bloody old bruiser of debate, and he was a brave man that tackled him there. If we can believe one-half what we hear, he was the best poker player congress ever knew, and it is tribute to his integrity that he was never a rich man.

Dingley knew all the details of the tariff from his standpoint. He was a plodder. He would read a table of dry statistics as you and I would a novel by Walter Scott or Jane Austen. He revelled in the work—and by the way, when he came to make use of them, he vindicated Disraeli when he said that there were "lies, damned lies, and statistics." It is a poor statesman who cannot make "figgers" dance any tune.

On our side the house, Roger Q. Mills and C. R. Breckinridge knew more about the details of the robber tariff than all the rest together.

TAX COLLECTOR HAD AN IDEA

Would Demand Inhabited House Duty From Suffragettes Who Took Possession of "the Monument"---Suspected Militants Tested With Fake Explosives.

London, May 17.—The two militant suffragettes who recently captured "The Monument," Wren's masterpiece, which stands near the northern approach to London bridge, commemorating the great fire of 1666, knew that they were in grave danger of personal injury from the exasperated crowd which gathered about the base of the structure, but they have not yet learned that their temporary abode was in even greater peril. Overlooking the monument is one of his majesty's tax collecting offices, and in the office sat one of that type of the king's tax collectors who never overlook anything that may add to the Lloyd George budget.

This collector, after hastily reading the law relating to the imposition of the inhabited house tax, sought the police inspector in charge of the squad besieging the monument and begged him for permission to present the suffragette garrison with a demand for inhabited house duty on the ground that, having dispossessed the caretaker, the two women were the de facto occupants of the structure. As the tax collector mournfully confessed later, the inspector was the usual type of London police official without the requisite imagination to grasp the possibilities of this counter stroke, and he refused to permit the levying of the demand. The collector stated that the tax would have made no small hole in the war chest of the militants, because he flattered himself that the adjusters would permit a rather steep assessment on this beautiful structure.

Bomb Placers Tested.

The innocuous bombs which have been discovered near various banks in London recently were not placed there by practical jokers, as the police have been inclined to believe, but, according to a member of the militant organization, the fake explosives were left by recruits of the Women's Social and Political Union, who were being tested by their leaders as to their fitness for more serious forays.

It seems that a militant member who was suspected of being an agent of Scotland Yard was given a bomb to place in the doorway of a well-known bank. It was of the usual milk can variety, filled with black powder, and with an electric fuse attached. The suspected member hastened to Scotland Yard with the bomb, where it was very gingerly conveyed to the department which makes a specialty of handling these dangerous contrivances. After the fuse was removed the powder was submitted to the Scotland Yard chemist, who, after a brief examination, pronounced the substance ordinary wheat flour, mixed with lamp black. The woman was then permitted to place the bomb as originally planned, but Scotland Yard fears that the usefulness of its agent is at an end because she was shadowed to the Yard by members of the W. S. P. U.

Maritime Conference.

A conference of the leading maritime nations of the world will be held in London early next autumn with the purpose of establishing on an international basis the new regulations for the safety of life and property at sea.

In June or July an informal consultation will be held, at which time the report of the committee on bulkheads, appointed to advise as to the watertight subdivision of all merchant ships, will be available. Meanwhile the different countries concerned are making preparations, and so far as the life saving rules are concerned, opinions have been interchanged for some time. The new international Radio-telegraphic convention will come into operation next July. This is the outcome of the International Wireless convention held here last summer.

Seamen to Strike.

A general strike of British seamen is to be declared early in June as the sequel to the agitation for a national conciliation board and a national working conditions on board ship, and it is possible, unless the demand is acceded to, that the transport workers throughout the country will come out in sympathy.

Tom Mann, who organized the great transport strike of two years ago, has been engaged by the National Sailors' and Firemen's union to carry on a month's campaign, which he commenced on May day, to enlist the support of the transport workers.

The actual date of the strike will be kept secret, as it was two years ago, the giving of the signal being left to Havelock Wilson, the president of the union; Edward McHugh, M. P., for Mid-Tyrone, and Father Hopkins, trustees of the union.

Armed Merchant Vessels.

The first merchant vessel to leave England armed in accordance with the proposals of Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, has sailed for South America. She is the Aragon, of the Royal Mail line, and she brings home from the Argentine great quantities of chilled meat. Her sister ship, the Amazon, which is now completing, will be similarly outfitted. The necessary structural arrangements were made while the ships were building, and to each vessel the admiralty has supplied two 4.7-inch guns. The officers and seamen of the steamers include a large number of Royal Naval reserve men, who in case of an emergency would be capable of manning the guns.

This armament is of course not intended for offensive purposes, but the admiralty believes that for defensive purposes it is sufficient to counteract the risk of attack from lightly armed foreign merchant ships. It is the intention that a large number of steamers, especially those engaged in carrying food supplies, shall be thus armed in the future.

The scheme is entirely separate from that by which larger steamers, such as the Mauretania and Lusitania and the new steamers proposed for the Canadian service, are under contract with the government to be armed in case of war for both offensive and defensive purposes.

The German government has similar arrangements with the German lines, some of the vessels of which are so built that they could be converted into very formidable merchant cruisers.

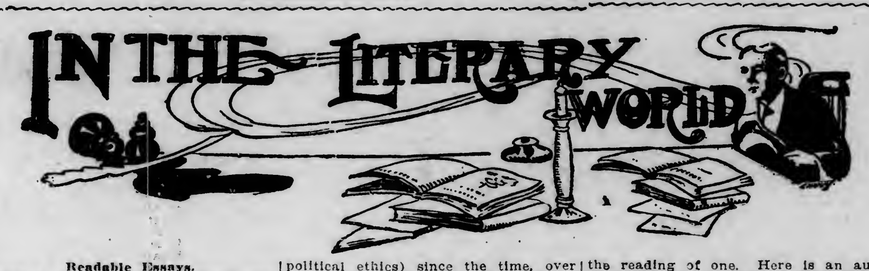
IN THE LITERARY WORLD



Readable Essays.

YOUTH & LIFE. By Randolph S. Bourne. New York: Houghton Mifflin company. $1.50 net.

This is generally regarded as an age in which the essay form of writing is not only little cared for, but without a representative capable of producing anything particularly worth reading. Mr. Bourne's essays on youth and life, most of which were published originally in the Atlantic Monthly, will go far to repudiate the latter idea, and will certainly do their share toward overcoming the prejudice that has created the former one.

Youth is generally regarded as a period in which the only consciousness of self possible is that consciousness which demands certain things of the world as the inalienable right of youth. Mr. Bourne gives us a view of another kind of consciousness—the kind that recognizes the universality of experience and the development of the individual. His thoughts are expressed in smoothly-moving sentences, and one who picks up the volume and begins to read is very likely to lose thought of everything else in the interest aroused by the discussion in hand.

Some of the chapter headings are worthy of notice, as the following: "The Virtues and the Seasons of Life," "The Life of Irony," "Some Thoughts on Religion," "The Dodging of Pressures," "For Radicals," "The College: An Inner View," and "A Philosophy of Handicap."

What's Wrong With the Country.

IT IS SIXTY YEARS SINCE. By Charles Francis Adams. New York: The Macmillan company. 75 cents net.

On "Founders' day" at the University of South Carolina, Jan. 16, 1913, Charles Francis Adams delivered an address which is here given in full form, though he was obliged to abbreviate it in the course of its delivery. It is better to read it than to have heard it, one would imagine, for the matter it treats of—American politics and its trend—needs, in the light of the warnings the writer gives, the fullest treatment possible.

"What advance has been effected (in political ethics) since the time, over 2,000 years ago, of Aristotle?" asks the writer. And adds: "I confidently submit that what progress is now being made in this most erudite of sciences is in the nature of that of the crab—backwards."

The ideas of the initiative, referendum and recall he regards as "nostrums of the mountebanks of the county fair." Democracy he finds to be "nothing but the reaching of political conclusions through the frequent counting of noses," a method which he declares is open to the most glaring of errors. Because the discovery that mosquitoes are responsible for yellow fever was made by an expert instead of by popular vote, for instance, he would discredit the theory of the popular vote and have us depend for our government, not on the will of the majority, but on the will of "the wisest—that is, the most observant and expert."

It is in the training of the youth of the land to believe in this that the writer sees the duty of the instructors in the colleges.

His book is bound to arouse a storm of criticism. But it is worth while in so far as it will show something of what the advocates of popular rule must combat.

In Popular Form.

DEVOTA. By Augusta Evans Wilson, author of "St. Elmo," "At the Mercy of Tiberius," "A Speckled Bird," etc. New York: G. W. Dillingham company. 50 cents.

One of the new "popular" editions of the work of Augusta Evans Wilson. "Devota" was one of the latest books of the author, and was little known compared with "St. Elmo" and others of her earlier works. The present edition includes some extended biographical reminiscences of the author by T. C. De Leon, and is illustrated in colors.

Epic Poetry.

IVAN. By Talli J. Boutwright, author of "Ophiel, Lyric Poem." New York: The Cosmopolitan Press.

Few writers today have either the patience or the courage to undertake the writing of an epic poem, and few readers have the courage to undertake the reading of one. Here is an author with both courage and patience, and his work goes far toward justifying his hardihood. There are weak spots in the verse, but they are offset by lines of striking strength. His conceptions are excellent and vividly expressed, and he succeeds in avoiding the usual difficulty of writers who take up such a task, of forcing the reader to wade through a mass of uncommon words and phraseology. His style is remarkably simple and straightforward. Indeed, portions of the poem would be excellent examples of diction for prose writers to study.

Ivan, the figure about which the story revolves, is a man who has wasted his mental and spiritual inheritance, and finally discovers his mistake. He sets out to "make good" even at that late time of life, and the poet shows something of his struggle and its outcome. The story is as allegorical, in places, as "Pilgrim's Progress," and there are portions of it that remind the reader of "Paradise Lost" and of "In Memoriam," and still others that call to mind "The Vision of Sir Launfal." Epic poetry from the pens of modern writers is rare. If "Ivan" is a fair sample of what modern writers could do in this field, that rareness is to be regretted.

An Amateur Sleuth at Work.

THE MAXWELL MYSTERY. By Carolyn Wells, author of "A Chain of Evidence," "The Clue," and "The Gold Bag." Philadelphia: The J. B. Lippincott company. $1.25 net.

When Carolyn Wells sets out to write a detective story she is generous with her mysteries. In this case she builds them up skilfully and to such purpose that the denouement is not in the least likely to be guessed any sooner than the writer intended. The scene of the story is at a summer home a few hours' ride out of New York city, where a reasonably congenial gathering of young people is cast into gloom by the mysterious murder of the young man whose guests the rest are, and the wounding of the young woman whom he and others of the party have been seeking to win in marriage. There is a "society detective" in the party, but he counts for less in the story than does the young man who tells of the incidents in the first person. They work together, and have some very interesting times running down the various clews they find, but the final solution is arrived at in a way that should be read of in the book to be appreciated.

There are some weaknesses in the story that are unusual in this author's work. For instance, the opening scenes are out of all proportion, in length, to their importance to the action of the real story. Again, it is a strain on the reader's imagination to show an amateur detective running to every person suspected with a full display of the evidence at hand. It would seem much more natural to have the volunteer sleuths unduly secretive in their work than to have them unduly talkative. But if one can forgive these things, one can get an interesting bit of light reading out of "The Maxwell Mystery."

A Genius in Love.

THE CANDID ADVENTURER. By Anna Coleman Ladd, author of "Hieronymus Hilda." New York: Houghton Mifflin company. $1.20 net.

A study of the artistic temperament at first hand. Not the artistic temperament of the kind that leads a man to do idiotic things, to defy public opinion and the conventionalities, but that temperament which makes the artist express himself in his work, put all that comes to him in the light it appears to him as he views it through its artistic relations and possibilities, and seek the readiest means of relating other people and incidents to his work. There is much of the evil of untranslated foreign languages in the story, but after all one can skip those phrases. There seems little need of them indeed, for the chapters in which the author allows the young artist to express himself in his native American speech are both forceful and beautiful.

Nor are the other two principal characters less convincing and interesting than that of the hero. There is the pretty widow who comes unexpectedly into his life, and there also is the little Polish girl, his model, who comes from across the Atlantic at his call to help him complete some work he has undertaken for the other woman.

There is much in the book that will not appeal to the casual reader unfamiliar with classical and other allusions. But there is much more that will appeal to any reader who enjoys beauty of expression and force of figure in the English tongue. And the development of Jerome's character is a decidedly interesting bit of work.

A Lightly Entertaining Story.

BRASS FACES. By Charles McEvoy. Boston: Houghton Mifflin company. $1.25 net.

A rich, young London bachelor, just when existence had become cloying for lack of interest, went chivalrously to the rescue of a fair lady. Thereupon began an exciting and mysterious train of incidents which the reader seeking light entertainment will follow absorbedly to the end. If he is not exacting in its demands, he will recommend it. If he is critical, he will find plenty of flaws—particularly the flaw in the heroine which led to the unexpected and illogical ending. But it's readable, certainly.

A "Hammock" Tale.

THE UPPER CRUST. By Charles Sherman, author of "He Comes Up Smiling." Indianapolis: The Bobbs-Merrill company. $1.25 net.

This is a light, shallow story, with small plausibility and full of people doing things that don't hitch with their own characters or with each other, but it will entertain the unexacting. In spite of the author's complacent attempts to make them attractive, we found little that was pleasing in hero and heroine. The hero is a lazy, idle youth, of the kind that is worth about 30 cents a baker's dozen; and the heroine is perpetually whining about poverty, trying to marry money and risking prison to keep up appearances. Still, the action is lively and the interest is cleverly sustained.

AN AMERICAN ILLUSTRATOR AND CARTOONIST OF NOTE

F. T. RICHARDS.

F. T. Richards is one of the best known American illustrators and cartoonists. He is now doing a daily cartoon for a Philadelphia paper, but he is best known all over the United States for his work for Life and especially for his cartoon review of each month appearing in that magazine. F. G. Atwood was famous as the author of this page of cartoons and, when he died some years ago, the editors despaired of finding his successor. Mr. Richards asked a chance to try Atwood's work and jumped into his place immediately. Mr. Richards' cartoons are all done in a kindly spirit and if Kaiser Wilhelm sees himself as Mr. Richards sees him, he must laugh in spite of the violation of his dignity. Mr. Richards lives in Philadelphia, but he maintains a studio in New York and works there half of each week.

ELECTION OF DIAZ UNCERTAIN

Much Less Heard in Mexico of His Popularity---General Belief That Huerta Administration Is Bound to Fall.

Mexico City, May 17.—Gen. Felix Diaz has published his platform in the form of a manifesto or open letter to the political clubs supporting him. In it he has carefully refrained from giving any but the most general undertakings, such as a promise to restore peace; to do justice to all; to encourage education, etc., and all without entering into details as to how he is going to proceed.

But the election of Diaz appears far from certain. Had the election for president been held the day after the close of hostilities in the capital, there is no doubt he would have been elected without any material opposition. With Huerta in the chair, however, and a big revolution to attract or distract the people, there is much less heard of the popularity of Gen. Diaz. There are many of his own partisans who have expressed the opinion that he never will be president. It is nothing that he has done, say they, to turn from him the popular support, but rather the fact that he has done nothing spectacular since he ceased firing shrapnel into all quarters of the city.

Stuffed Payrolls.

Investigation of the army payrolls has shown an expenditure of 27,000 pesos ($13,500) a month for salaries to officers who never appeared in uniform. It is charged that this was the work of one of the Madero family. He is said to have used the paymaster of the Rural Guard to pay off his own henchmen. His method was, according to the story told at the palace, to name a man whom he wished to favor or use, an officer in the rurales, at the same time telling the commanding officer that this new officer would report once a month for his pay. None of those appointees has appeared to collect the money since the overthrow of the Madero regime.

Administration Will Fall.

Pessimism at the Mexican capital continues dominant. With or without money the administration, in the opinion of thousands of residents, both native and foreign, is bound to fall. These men believe that intervention by the United States or some other power might prevent the overthrow, but, left alone, that the Huerta government will see itself slowly crushed backward against the wall by the Constitutionalists.

Francisco I. Madero, alive, never could induce any considerable number of men to take arms in defense of his government, but Madero, dead, has proved a far more potent figure. Any estimate of the number of rebels is largely a guess, but it is safe to assume that in no previous revolution have there been in the field so many men armed working so closely together.

It was not the lack of money that handicapped the government so badly in the opening days of the rebellion as it was the smallness and inefficiency, of the army. There was a fair part of the irregular establishment which could not be counted on, and when an investigation was made it was discovered that not every name on the payrolls was backed by a soldier "present or accounted for."

It was believed, however, that with money to continue the pay of the soldiers and to organize and equip new bodies, the government would whip the rebels. The more hopeful said that if the government could hold them off for a year or more it would win, but the majority regarded the chance slight even in that case.

CONTRACT FOR NEW SCHOOL

Will Be Let May 26—Bids Now Being Prepared.

New Denfeld Structure Will Be Fireproof and Cost Nearly $200,000.

The contract for the construction of the Robert E. Denfeld high school, to be constructed on Central avenue on the vacant lots between the public library and the Ely school, will be let on May 26. Contractors are now preparing the bids and will have them ready to be presented to the building committee before that date.

The bids asked for require that construction work commence at once. The building is to be completed on May 1, 1914. It will be entirely fireproof, three stories high with a big basement as well as an attic. It will be constructed with a stone basement and foundation, concrete slab floors and brick and terracotta walls. The estimated cost is placed between $175,000 and $200,000.

The high school building will be constructed so as to adjoin the Ely school. The heating plant in the latter building will be enlarged so as to supply both buildings. The new building will be set back sixty-one feet from Central avenue, be 175 feet deep and set back of Fifty-sixth avenue thirty feet. Its frontage on Central avenue will be 157 feet.

When completed the building will be one of the most modern industrial high schools in the country. The basement will have a large gymnasium, machine shop, foundry room, forge room, lockers for boys and girls beside an engine and janitors' room.

The principal room on the main floor will be the assembly hall which will have a seating capacity for 1,200 people. Rooms on this floor will also be arranged for woodworking and lathe rooms, library and principal's office.

The balcony of the assembly hall will occupy a large share of the second floor. Twelve recitation rooms will also be arranged on this floor.

The third floor will be devoted to recitation rooms, chemical laboratories and domestic science, including sewing and cooking.

It is proposed to have the school ready so that the graduation exercises may be held in the building in June, 1914. It will be at that time officially thrown open to the public. The building was designed by Architect F. G. German and based on a unit of 600 pupils.

School officials believe that there will be over 400 pupils attend the school at the opening of the sessions in the fall of 1914. Nearly 300 are now attending the Duluth Industrial high school in the Irving building. Many West Duluth people who are now sending their children to the Central high school will, it is believed, have them attend the new West Duluth institution on its completion.

While it has not been officially announced it is intimated that S. A. Foster, principal of the Industrial high school, will be offered the principalship of the Denfeld building. Just what other changes will be made is not certain but it is intimated by residents of the Ely school district that they will object to any change in the principalship of the Ely building.

COMEDY OF ERRORS

"Thief" With Two Suit Cases Followed the Wrong Man.

F. M. Warren of Minneapolis, a son-in-law of John Rockwell, a West Duluth shoe dealer, J. Bullfant, a New York traveling salesman and a man hired to carry the latter's samples were mixed up in a little comedy of errors yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Warren got on a West Duluth car at the Spalding hotel to visit his father-in-law. He was followed by a man carrying two suit cases. Both got off at Central avenue. When the former entered Mr. Rockwell's store the latter followed and deposited the two cases on the floor and folded his arms to await developments. After Mr. Warren's visit with his father-in-law he started out. The man grabbed the cases and followed.

When outside Mr. Warren turned to the man and said "I notice you have been following me. What do you mean?"

"Why you hired me to do it, didn't you?" asked the man.

"No of course I did not," said Mr. Warren.

"Well who in —— did then?" and the man became perplexed. "I better hustle uptown to find the owner of these samples."

In the mean time Mr. Bullfant, who had hired the man while standing in front of the Spalding hotel, had the whole police force out looking for the "thief" who stole his sample cases. Mr. Warren accompanied the victim of mistaken "trails" back to Duluth in order that he might "square" himself in the proper manner.

WILL MISS THEIR CLEAN LAUNDRY

About twenty families in the vicinity of Fifth avenue east and Fourth street will be without clean laundry tomorrow or next week.

Last Tuesday, James Long, a Chinaman, who operates a small laundry at the corner of Fifth avenue east and Fourth street, was taken to the St. Luke's hospital for an examination as to his sanity. Several complaints had been made by neighbors and the removal of Long followed.

In the meantime customers called for their laundry, but no one was there to attend to their wants.

Thursday afternoon, Justin Hayes, 12 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hayes of Winnipeg, who are here visiting this week, was sent to the laundry by his mother. Friday he went again. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes formerly resided in Duluth. Each time Justin went to the laundry and looked in at the door he saw a light burning in the rear. The boy became frightened, and came to the conclusion that there was a murder and that the Chinaman was then lying dead in his room. This news he carried to his mother and yesterday afternoon Mrs. Hayes went down to see what the trouble was. Upon inquiry she learned that Long had been taken to the hospital.

The hospital authorities stated this morning that Long appears to be sane and that he will be allowed to go in a day or two.

In the meantime twenty families will have to go without their laundry.

SECOND ATTEMPT TO END HIS LIFE

Not having accomplished his purpose of ending his life while a lodger in the city jail, Charles Carlson, 40 years old again attempted to cut his throat while being served his supper at St. Mary's hospital last night. Only the quick work on the part of the hospital attendants prevented him from accomplishing the deed. Carlson had secured a sharp table knife and was about to rip open the bandage and tear at the wound when discovered. He was tied down with ropes in order to prevent further attempts. It is believed that he may recover from his first attempt at suicide.

Lake Mohonk, N. Y., May 17.—The platform adopted by the Lake Mohawk peace conference recommends, in view of the probable meeting of a third Hague conference in 1915:

"That the secretary of state of the United States urge the nations which participated in the second Hague conference to form the international committee recommended by it, to prepare and to submit to the nations a program for the third Hague conference, and to devise a system of organization and procedure for the conference itself.

"That the third Hague conference reconsider the question of a general treaty of arbitration.

"That a court of arbitral justice, approved in principle by the second conference, be established for the adjudication of disputes of a judicial nature without altering the status of the permanent court of arbitration.

"That, in general, greater stress be laid by the third Hague conference on the means and instrumentalities by which peace may be maintained and safeguarded, than upon the rules and regulations of warfare.

"The conference recommends that all agreements between nations be fully executed or lived up to in spirit as well as in letter."

EBERHART ACCEPTS POST ROAD OFFER

Files Acceptance in Person With the Postmaster General.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

ABANDON GENERAL BIBLE LESSONS

Southern Baptists Vote to Use Some Prepared for Themselves.

St. Louis, Mo., May 17.—The Southern Baptist convention, by overwhelming vote, today decided to abandon in their Sunday schools the lessons prepared by the interdenominational committee, known as the International Series, and to substitute instead lessons prepared especially for Baptist Sunday schools.

While this action is not binding on individual churches, the lessons that henceforth will be urged by the Sunday school board for use in the Baptist churches throughout the South will be those especially prepared, with the view to setting forth Baptist doctrine.

The convention chose Nashville, Tenn., as the next place of meeting, and fixed May 13, 1914, as the date. Rev. Dr. George W. McDaniel of Richmond, Va., will preach the convention sermon. Rev. Forest Smith of Sherman, Tex., was named as alternate.

Nashville was chosen after a contest on the floor over the proposition to make Chattanooga the permanent meeting place. The business men of Chattanooga and the State Baptist association of Tennessee made a written offer to donate a tract of land worth $20,000 and build on it an auditorium to seat 7,500 people, the entire property costing $45,000, provided the Baptists would make Chattanooga the permanent convention city.

The question of giving free educational advantages to young men who wish to enter the Baptist ministry was brought before the convention by President Mullins of the Louisville seminary, who offered a resolution to call on the various states in the convention for a share of $18,000, the money to go to the school of which he is the head, and which is in debt for students' expenses to that amount. He said he believed that if the Baptists would offer free education to ministerial students, $00,000,000 converts could be won in China alone during the next twenty-five years. The resolution was adopted.

President Porras sets forth that the bonds of kinship between Spain and the Hispano-American nations are ever growing closer, and announces that the Panama national assembly has decided to commemorate this centenary by a competition of lyric poetry; by an exposition in which Spain is specially asked to participate and by the erection at the entrance of the Panama canal on the Atlantic ocean of a colossal statue of Balboa, the cost to be defrayed by public subscription. Y. M. C. A. Banquet Is Given Over to Their Work.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 17.—A banquet at the Business Men's club last night was the feature of the convention of the Y. M. C. A. of North America, which is being held here. The meeting of the Y. M. C. A. workers at the Business Men's club was not classed as a banquet, but as a "boys' work dinner." The position of the boy in modern life was discussed by the speakers. Ralph C. Goodwin of San Francisco reviewed what has been done for the boy in the Y. M. C. A. boys' rooms and outdoor work in public playgrounds. Wilfred W. Fry of Philadelphia presented statistics showing the preponderance of wage-earning boys over those at school, and John R. Mott of New York described the work the Y. M. C. A. is doing for boys.

"MEN ARE DIVINE CHURCH LEADERS."

Atchison, Kan., May 17.—A fight for "woman's rights" was lost at the session here of the biennial convention of the general synod of the Lutheran church, when the Woman's Foreign Missionary society, hitherto only an auxiliary organization of the synod, made application for administrative powers commensurate with those of other church boards.

In the heated discussion that followed, leaders of the synod introduced passages from the New Testament to prove that men "are the divinely appointed leaders of the church." The question was submitted to the vote and the missionary society's petition lost.

BRANDS PAGE "ANTI-UNION"

Letter From New York Man Read in London Labor Meeting.

Writer Is Declared to Belong to "Outlaw Organization.

London, May 17.—A resolution of protest against the nomination of Walter H. Page as United States ambassador to Great Britain was introduced today by W. Coffey, a member of the executive committee of the London Trades Council, on the strength of a letter written on stationery bearing the letterhead of the Allied Trades Council of Greater New York and signed "Charles L. Conway, secretary of the National Brotherhood of Book Binders."

After describing Walter H. Page as a member of the firm of Doubleday, Page & Co., the letter says:

"This concern is bitterly opposed to organized labor. The only department that forced recognition from the union standpoint was the book binders, but they are now in strike, being forced out, as the policy of the firm is to replace men with boys."

The letter also says that the International Typographical union, local No. 6, continues the firm on the "unfair" list and that the men who had been secured to take the strikers' places rebelled and struck without the aid of any organization.

The letter concludes by asking "all the organized labor of the United Kingdom to assist us in giving this matter the widest publicity, and also to file a protest to our government on its selection and a protest to your own government for its acceptance of this man."

Outlaw Organization.

New York, May 17. — The National Brotherhood of Bookbinders is an "outlaw organization," expelled two years ago from the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, according to Peter J. Brady, secretary of the Allied Printing Trades Council of Greater New York. It has been repudiated, he said, by the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Brady announced today that he proposed to write letters to President Wilson and Ambassador Page, explaining that Conway's communication was unauthorized either by the Printing Trades council or by the International Brotherhood of Book Binders, and that he would also inform the London Trades council.

"Whatever may be the conditions at the Doubleday, Page & Co. plant with regard to union labor," Mr. Brady said, "we have no desire to embarrass the administration by any such tactics as those employed by Conway. If we had any desire to protest aginst the appointment of Mr. Page, we would have addressed our protest to President Wilson in an official manner.

Repudiated by Brady.

"The use by Conway of the letterhead of the Allied Printing Trades council was unauthorized, as was his use of the name of the International Typographical union, Local No. 6, which has no connection with his organization.

"The latter is allied with the American Federation of Labor, and the strike to which he refers was precipitated by Conway's organization. We had no knowledge of it until the men were out."

SUFFRAGETTES FIRE AN OCCUPIED HOUSE

Mrs. Despard Defends Women's Freedom League in Speech.

London, May 17.—The militant suffragettes today made a slight change in their arson campaign. Instead of setting fire to unoccupied houses, they attempted to destroy a tenanted residence at Cambridge. The interior woodwork was greatly damaged and one of the university laboratories adjoining the suffered.

Another canister of gunpowder and slugs was found at Boxmoor station, in Hertfordshire, on the London & Northwestern railway.

Mrs. Charlotte Despard, in a speech last night, defined the policy of the Women's Freedom league as favoring lawbreaking without violence. She said the women of the league refused to pay taxes, held meetings when forbidden, and in various ways manifested contempt for man-made laws, but they differed from the militant suffragettes by scrupulously refraining from damaging property and committing personal assault. The league recently was refused the use of its usual meeting hall because of incendiary speeches made by its leaders.

Dr. Anna Shaw, addressing a suffrage meeting at Westminster, said the conduct of women in England had satisfied the people of the United States that woman with the ballot was needed. Women now have seventy-five electoral votes in the United States, Dr. Shaw said, and Theodore Roosevelt has taken up the question because he knows these votes will decide the next presidential election.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY (2)

ON THE IRON RANGES

HENDRICK QUITS; BLOW FOR BLISS

Selection of Virginia School Superintendent Now Expected Soon.

Virginia, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. E. Hendrick, a Bliss supporter on the school board, resigned this morning, leaving the board two for Bliss and three against. It is asserted the deadlock is broken and that a successor to Bliss will now be engaged.

Last evening the board again failed to select a school head, being deadlocked 3 to 3 on the question of engaging Mr. Bliss another year. Eaton, Hawkinson and Stewart served notive on the board that they would not allow Bliss' salary any longer after May 16. This brought matters to a head this morning when Mr. Hendrick quit.

Mitchell Stewart, secretary of the school board, stated this morning that the board will reach an agreement, to be ratified at a meeting soon which probably will terminate the trouble. He says he has three members' signatures. It was agreed not to serve the notice of board members on Supt. Bliss.

FORMER MESABA RESIDENT DIES

Jerry Sullivan, Who Once Mined on Minnesota Range, Dies in Butte.

Eveleth, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tim Shea and Mrs. S. E. Helps of this city have been notified of the death recently from appendicitis of their cousin, Jerry E. Sullivan, a prominent mining superintendent of Butte, Mont.

Mr. Sullivan was well known on the Mesaba range, having lived here in the early nineties before going to Montana. He assisted in sinking the first shaft on the Fayal property adjoining Eveleth. He was born in the Copper country in Michigan and got his first experience mining there, beginning when but 11 years old.

Was Liked By All.

Among the older mining men of this district Mr. Sullivan is remembered for his kind and sympathetic disposition as well as his ability. He would never discharge a man because he had become too old to hold up his end, but instead he would give them light employment about the mines and keep them on the pay roll; yet he could accomplish more than most bosses because he appealed to the honor of the younger men to do their best and more than make up for the shortcomings of the old men.

ALICE COUNCIL FOR ANNEXATION

Adopts Resolution to That Effect, Putting Matter Up to Hibbing.

Alice, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A petition bearing the signature of sixty-four residents and voters of the village of Alice was presented to the village council Thursday evening asking for the annexation of this town to Hibbing. The council favorably considered the petition and it will be submitted to the Hibbing council at its regular meeting Tuesday evening for ratification. If favorable action is taken by the Hibbing council the village will be annexed without the calling of a special election.

Ex-Mayor Nelson spoke against the annexation plan at the meeting of the Alice council. He opposed annexation for the reason that he is of the opinion that Alice will get needed improvements much more readily as annexed to Hibbing than they will otherwise. The council favorably considered the petition and decided to put it up to the Hibbing council at its next meeting. In the event that the Hibbing council consents to the annexation project, no special election will be required under the new state law to ratify it.

Aurora, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual exhibit of the Aurora schools was held at the Hearding building last night from 7:30 to 9:30 and during those hours the building was filled with people. For the most part, the work on display represented the regular work of the pupils during the school year and was not especially prepared for the exhibition.

The work was very creditable throughout and reflected much credit upon the teachers and pupils.

TWO BODIES ARE TAKEN FROM LAKE

Search for Two Victims of Fall Lake Triple Drowning Rewarded.

Winton, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Addison Wright and Harry Stein, who since the triple drowning in Fall lake early in the week have worked faithfully to find the bodies, late yesterday dragged the corpses of G. P. Tainey and A. Puranen from the lake about 100 feet from the shore. The body of A. Purlte, the third victim, was recovered Thursday, and the funeral held yesterday from the Finnish Lutheran church.

The three all lived here and were well known. They left in a launch Monday to fish at the head of the lake, expecting to return that evening. Their failure to return arounsed suspicion, and search instituted Tuesday disclosed an upturned canoe, from which they had been fishing, and other articles, showing they had been capsized in the water.

It is thought that they left the launch and took to the canoe, capsizing not far from shore. All three of the men were employed by Winton lumber mill companies and had lived here for a number of years. Puranen was married but the other two were single.

TAFT DENOUNCES STATE PRIMARY.

New Haven, Conn., May 17.—Statewide primaries are "extreme measures for political reform," and a national primary for the election of a president and other national officers "is almost beyond thought," according to Former President Taft, who yesterday delivered another lecture at Yale on "Some Problems of Modern Government."

Prof. Taft said the primary is a means of electing good local officials, but the state and national conventions "gives an opportunity for more mature deliberation than is possible at the polls."

Tobacco Habit Easily Conquered

A well-known New Yorker who had wide experience, has written a book telling how the tobacco or snuff habit can be easily banished in three days without any return of the craving.

The health improves wonderfully after the nicotine poison is out of the system. Calmness, tranquil sleep, clear eyes, normal appetite, good digestion, manly vigor, strong memory and a general gain in efficiency are among the many benefits. No more of that nervous feeling; no more need of pipe, cigar, cigarette or chewing tobacco to pacify the morbid desire. The author, Edw. J. Woods, 534 Sixth Ave., 899 E New York City, will send his book free on application, to anyone who writes to him.

CLOSE PIGS; OPEN SALOON

As they have closed up about twenty blind pigs at New Duluth and other locations in the vicinity of the Steel plant, the city commission will probably grant an application for a permit to conduct another saloon at the western suburb, now before them.

The application is made by Camille N. Inforzato for the transfer of the license now held by Charles Shubat at 713 West Superior street to 1504 Commonwealth avenue. The change will relieve the bowery of one saloon and will not overdo the liquor business at New Duluth under present circumstances, according to the commissioners.

The police, acting under orders of Commissioner Hicken, have made a special movement against the blind pigs at New Duluth and it is believed that all have now closed. The breweries have agreed to make no more sales of beer to places suspected of conducting an illegal business and the traffic, which has flourished through boarding houses and innocent appearing business establishments near the steel plant, is believed to be effectively stopped.

There are now two saloons in the district, one at New Duluth and the other at Gary. The third saloon will go in at New Duluth, if the commissioners allow the Shubat license to be transferred.

With the foaming beaker in his hand he started to waltz along the Bowery. Patrolman Dinkel "got his glims on him" and put a peremptory stop order to the performance, shoving him in on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. HERDING THE SPORTING SHEEP AND GOATS INTO THE DOPE CORRAL, AS SEEN BY BRUCE

THIS holding tenaciously on to seats that the dear public is clamoring for, upon the part of the ultra greedy speculator reminds one that patience is a virtue that has been worn to the seamy line upon more occasions than one; furthermore, Bill, that the worm has been known in the past to turn.

This has to do with Frank Chance day at dear old Chi. Noble cits and in some cases no doubt their loving wives wished to do honor to the proud Peerless Leader. To do this it was necessary to kick in with the required several bits and higher bits in cases of a burning desire to make a box the habitat for the afternoon

But speculators secured a multitude of these green and blue slips that designate where you sit and let you pass the ticket taker without getting a first class imitation of the way a wounded bear feels at times, and promptly proceeded to tell the public that it would cost it five and six bones a head to honor dear old Frank Chance.

As we started to say, or at least intended to say in the opening paragraph, some day the public is going to grow exceedingly weary of this mode of procedure. It is the "peepul" that support this grand old game of baseball. Charles Webb Murphy and Charles A. Comiskey have grown rich off the public of Chicago. Surely it is up to these two gents, one of them a very estimable sport, to put the nailed boot down on this pernicious practice of making the public pay treble the prescribed price to witness baseball.

Let us all sing.

WHILE we have been shy of baseball this week some fanning bees have grown out of the rain, like verdure springs under the heels of this rain thing. With "Spike" Shannon and "Rube" Waddell in our midst the opportunity has been rich to gather bountifully while the gathering was good. Giddap Napoleon.

"Waddell and yours truly," began Mr. Shannon—for it makes him mad to address him thusly—"played baseball at Butler, Pa., when there wasn't much there but oil fields. Believe me you could get more money there in those days than you could ever make in the big leagues.

"Yes we had some team. Rube was one of us, and Charley Jones, now the manager of the St. Paul team of this league, played shortstop. I was also upon the team." Here Mr. Shannon coughed and smiled with pardonable pride.

"Well, Pittsburg came down there to play us, and we beat them two straight games. They wouldn't ask us how much we wanted, the fellows down there; they would simply grab a handful of bills—yes, I said handful—and slide them over in your direction. Yes, I must agree with your statement; them was some days.

"Waddell was just coming up and what he didn't have I kind of guess no one has ever had. We had some of the best players in the country and the sports and oil promoters were willing to pay for the services of any player that we could get down there.

"'Rube' used to be one of the greatest football players in the country—"

"Indeed," broke in Mr. Waddell, "I got my nose smashed, one knee almost put out of business and my pitching hand smashed up. At that though, I would rather play the old game than baseball."

"Brook of the U. of P. played on the Homestead team," resumed Mr. Shannon. "Abbacico, who played with the Pittsburg Nationals, was one of the greatest football players I have ever seen. He was on the Homestead team, and there were a lot of other boys. W. E. Corey, the steel magnate, was a lover of the game in those days, and he spent money like a sailor on shore leave to get together one of the greatest aggregations of players in the world. Sometimes when I think back I am inclined to the bold belief that he succeeded."

THIS rain thing has hit the local baseball management a hard blow during the present week. Here's hoping that we have a decent Sunday and that the largest gathering of several years is on hand to watch the Dook and the fast going Winona Giants battle for percentage advantage.

The brand of baseball that is being played in the league is worthy of patronage. Officials of the new Northern are making every effort to provide some of the best baseball in the country. Ley up hope that the fans hereabouts will show appreciation of these efforts.

There are three more teams to come before the fans here will have seen all the teams of the league—though we were deprived of the opportunity to see Virginia play.

Winona, St. Paul and Minneapolis come in the order named. It is generally believed that the coming of the Twin City teams will bring out by far the largest patronage of the season to date.

There is no denying that there is a greater interest in the game this year than there has been for a number of seasons. The weather thing has strongly militated against crowds at the park. With weather warming it is believed that we are in for the best season ever.

One encouraging feature is the renewed interest business men are showing in the financial success of the team. Baseball means much to Duluth, and a realization of this fact is going to increase the attendance of our best cits.

MAROONS RALLY AND TAKE FINAL

Winnipeg, Man., May 17.—Winnipeg defeated St. Paul by the score of 8 to 7 here yesterday afternoon in the most exciting game of the present season, the Maroons coming from behind and scoring five runs in the ninth inning.

The fifth round opened with a walk to Bachant. Four hits and two more walks followed, resulting in five runs being scored, and the winning of a contest that looked hopeless when the locals came to bat.

Up to the ninth, Le Claire had pitched good ball and the Saints looked like certain winners. Then came the wild rally and the downfall of the visitors.

Bachant got four hits out of four times up and was the batting star of the afternoon. The score:

Winnipeg	0 0 1 0 2 0 0 0 5	8	12	2
St. Paul	0 0 1 2 0 0 0 1 3	7	10	1

Batteries—Dietrich and Bachant; Le Claire and Lizette.

BRONCHOS WIN FROM FLICKERS

Grand Forks, N. D., May 17.—Minneapolis won yesterday by the score of 3 to 1, Ralph Comstock having the locals on the hip, holding them to three scattered hits. The hits of the Broncos came with the errors of the Flickers and counted doubly.

Lyman's walk and a double by Myers counted the only run of the home crowd. Briere and Olson singled in the first for the visitors and then one run was scored through two errors upon the part of Chase. Warner, Briere and Olson singled in the fifth and an infield out and an error brought home two runs.

The visitors showed grand team work and some o the best ball playing that has been seen here during the present season. The all-round work of Manager Unglaub was one of the features of the contest. Score: R. H. E.

Lose With Early Lead.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 17.—St. Louis got an early lead of three runs on Brooklyn yesterday, but the locals came up with a rush in the next five innings and batted their way to a 6 to 3 victory. Singles by Huggins and Mowrey, and Konetchy's homer, his second in two days, sent the visitors to the front at the start. After that, although frequently in hot water, Curtis held St. Louis runless until the ninth, when hits by Huggins, Mowrey and Konetchy and Sheckard's sacrifice fly sent over two more tallies. With one run to tie and two out, Konetchy was caught napping off first.

The Brooklyns began to find Sallee in the second. Daubert led off with a triple, Kirkpatrick doubled, Fisher sacrificed and Miller singled, two runs counting. In the third Wheat sent the ball over the right field fence wall for the second time on successive days, tieing the score. Three hits, a pass, a steal and a sacrifice brought two more across in the fourth and final was scored by Cutshaw on a home run drive to deep left. Cutshaw hurt his leg speeding around the bases on his homer and retired. St. Louis tried Cabrera, a Cuban, at short, but he was not a success and Manager Huggins changed his team after the fourth inning. Score: R. H. E.

Steals Three Bases.

New York, May 17.—Hard hitting by the home team and loose fielding by Pittsburg gave New York yesterday's game, 7 to 4. O'Toole's offerings were batted freely in the first two innings and he was handicapped by miserable support, the Giants scoring five runs on four hits, two passes and four errors. The locals played sensational ball behind Matheweson, who pitched well until the eighth, when the Pirates started the inning with six consecutive hits, although Mensor was retired when he tried to make third on Carey's hit. Mathewson pulled himself together and made Wilson pop out and struck out Byrne. Incidentally, Mathewson gave his first base on balls since he pitched his first game of the season in Boston on April 17.

Fletcher's playing was the feature of the game. He made the initial bag four times on singles and once when O'Toole threw wild on his sacrifice bunt. He also stole three bases. Catcher Kelly's throwing was wretched and the Giants ran bases almost at will. Score: R. H. E.

Phillies Defeat Cubs.

Philadelphia, May 17.—Toney's delivery was easy for Philadelphia yesterday and the home team defeated Chicago by 10 to 4. Rixey puzzled the visitors until play was resumed after a ten-minute intermission caused by rain at the start of the eighth inning. Rixey was spiked in the fifth inning by Knabe and his place was taken by Phelan, who in three times up made a home run, a triple and a single. Paskert was put off the field for disputing a decision at first base by Umpire Byron. Score: R. H. E.

Detroit, May 17.—Detroit did not waste a base hit yesterday and defeated Washington, 5 to 2. The locals hit safely in but three innings, and in these three all of their runs were scored. Washington took the lead in the first inning and held it until the sixth when a single by Dubuc, Louden and Crawford and a wild pitch by Hughes enabled Detroit to score the winning runs.

Morgan brought in both of Washington's tallies. Morgan was passed three times during the game. Singles by Vitt and Crawford and Cobb's sacrifice fly resulted in Detroit's first run. In the eighth, Drohan was sent in to pitch for Hughes, for whom Gandil batted in the eighth. Drohan struck out Rondeau but Dubuc drove the ball over the score board for a home run and Louden, Vitt and Crawford singled.

Bush was put out of the game in the first inning by Umpire McGreevy for disputing a decision. Louden, who replaced him, starred at bat, and in the field.

St. Louis, May 17.—Boston won a fast game from St. Louis here yesterday, 3 to 2. Both teams played perfect ball in the field, and the pitching of Collins and Baumgartner was about equal.

Hooper won the game for Boston in the fifth with a long drive into the right field bleachers, scoring Wagner and Carrigan, who had singled ahead of him.

St. Louis hit Collins hard in the sixth. Brief, the first man up, hit over the left field fence for a home run. Austin tripled and scored on Agnew's single.

After this Collins had little trouble, St. Louis being unable to hit him with any success.

Athletics Win Again.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 17.—Batting Gregg hard, Philadelphia overcame Cleveland's early lead and won yesterday's game, 8 to 5. On four hits and a wild throw Cleveland scored three runs in the first inning, and Brown was taken out. After Philadelphia had taken the lead, they opened the seventh inning with a double and two singles, which scored two runs. Mitchell then replaced Gregg and allowed but one hit thereafter. In the seventh Cleveland filled the bases with none out, but all the runners were caught off base by a triple play in which most of the Philadelphia team participated. Barry accepted ten chances at shortstop with only one error. Score: R. H. E.

Three Straight Victories.

Kansas City, Mo., May 17.—Kansas City made it three straight by taking yesterday's game from Toledo, 5 to 3, on bunched hits and the visitors' errors. Eddington for Toledo got a triple and home run at three times at bat.

Toledo took the lead in the sixth inning when Eddington tripled and scored when O'Connor dropped Rhoades' assist on Bluhm's easy grounder. The locals scored two runs in the fourth inning. Flene walked and Drake doubled, Flene stopping at third. Eddington muffed O'Connor's sacrifice fly, Flene scoring and Drake reaching third. Drake scored when Tannehill forced O'Connor on a grounder to Brady.

Toledo got one run in the seventh and eigth innings, Eddington's homer counting in the former and Jones' triple and Burns' Texas leaguer in the latter inning.

In the eighth the locals added three runs on a hit batsman, Barbeau's double and Drake's fly to Burns, who dropped the ball. Score: R. H. E.

Mullin Sold to Washington.

Detroit, May 17.—Pitcher George Mullin, in point of service the oldest member of the Detroit baseball club, was sold last night to the Washington Americans for $2,500.

Mullin joined the Tigers in 1902 and three times helped to pitch Detroit into the American league championship.

Shafer Jumps Team.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 17.—Relatives of Arthur Shafer of the New York Giants were not surprised today when they learned that he had "jumped" the team and was presumably on his way home to Los Angeles.

All of his recent letters, they said, contained references to an early departure for Los Angeles and a resumption of his activities in the automobile line.

Shafer was an automobile salesman when he was induced to sign a contract at the beginning of the season.

Considerable mystery developed yesterday over the disappearance of Shafer. Shafer played center field in the game against Pittsburg at the Polo grounds Thursday and there was nothing about his conduct to attract attention among his teammates.

Shafer failed to report at the grounds during the forenoon yesterday and Manager McGraw said that he had not heard from him and did not know why he absented himself.

RECORD CROWD FOR CHANCE DAY

Largest Paid Attendance Expected at Chicago Today.

Chicago, May 17.—With fair weather, it was predicted that a record-breaking crowd will fill the American league baseball park this afternoon to witness the ceremonies of Frank Chance today. There are seats for 42,000 persons. The largest paid attendance in the history is 38,281, at the Polo grounds in New York on the opening day of the world's series in 1911.

The rapidity with which the reserved seat sections were taken and the enthusiasm of local baseball followers have led to the hope that the greatest crowd which ever saw a game will welcome Chance, manager of the New York Americans and former leader of the Chicago Nationals.

"Probable showers" are forecasted for "late this afternoon," but there has been no hitch in the plans for the big entertainment. Members of the committee in charge expect to rush the program a little to get through before the promised showers arrive. They do not believe the weather forecast will reduce the attendance.

The pass gate has been closed and no passes will be honored. In the official total of the attendance at games only paid admissions are counted.

Responding to hundreds of written and telephoned requests, Chance will play first base today, granting Hal Chase a rest. He has saved up his best pitching card, Ray Keating. "Bob" Russell, another youngster, will twirl for the White Sox. The game will be only one of the attractions which will occupy half of the day and most of the evening. The program will open with a parade of automobiles from Grant park to the south side grounds, and almost a thousand machines are expected to be in line. At the ball park the festivities will begin at 2 o'clock, three hours after the gates are opened, and the hour previous to the starting of the game will be devoted to vaudeville, athletic and musical features. At 3 o'clock the rival managers will be presented with various tokens and the game will start.

Following the game there will be a dinner to Frank Chance and members of both teams will be guests of a downtown theater.

Ayers Reinstated.

Cincinnati, May 17.—The national baseball commission yesterday reinstated Player Y. W. Ayers of the Washington American league club to good standing without the imposition of a fine. Ayers stated that he had not joined his team on account of his desire to attend college.

Kartye Throws Foreigner.

Ogden, Utah, May 17.—Ernest Kartye of Chicago last night defeated Henry Irslinger, champion middleweight wrestler of Europe, in two straight falls.

NORTHWESTERN TO OPEN SEASON

Formal Grand Opening Will Be Held on Club Grounds Sunday.

The Northwestern Gun club will hold its formal grand opening tomorrow on the Rice Lake road grounds. Trophy shooting for the season will start and a busy summer at the traps is sure to result.

All the leading sporting goods stores in the city have donated trophies, incidentally giving high man in each class a wide choice of trophies to select from. John Wahl, present holder of the Gonska trophy, will this year defend permanent ownership privileges from the 20-yard mark, under the class handicap. A hot race is sure to result in this event, particularly among the A class scatter gun men, although several B class men are likely to give them a hard run.

It is hoped that the heads of the Central and Northwestern clubs will get together in the near future and thrash out the difficulties pertaining to the place of the next shoot, as the Northwestern members are in mid-season form at the present time.

A tournament will be given this season by the hilltop aggregation, and some of the real cracks of the Northwest will be entered.

Refreshments will be served all day tomorrow on the grounds and it is expected that all records for attendance and number of birds trapped will be broken.

ENGLISH POLO PONIES IMPRESS AMERICANS.

New York, May 17.—American polo experts who have had an opportunity to look over the ponies to be ridden by the English team during the coming international play for the Westchester cup, are vastly impressed with the class of the imported mounts. The forty-four ponies which arrived early in the week are quartered at the Piping Rock club stables at Locust Valley, Long Island, in charge of a large squad of grooms. Thus far they have been only lightly exercised in order to accustom them to turf after the long ocean voyage. It is planned to give them the tryout next Monday in a practice game between the English team and a scratch four. The invading players say that while the team is perhaps not quite as strong as the 1911 combination, the ponies are far superior to those ridden two years ago.

Athlete Will Enter College.

Provo, Utah, May 17.—A. W. Richards, the Brigham Young university high jumper who won the last Olympic championship, said yesterday that he purposed leaving for Chicago May 20, but that he had not decided whether he would enter the University of Chicago or the University of Pennsylvania next fall. Richards will wear the colors of the Illinois Athletic club in track meets in Chicago, until the time for him to re-enter college.

FREDDIE WELSH WALLOPS REDMOND.

Winnipeg, Man., May 17.—Taking a terrible amount of punishment and being forced to hold on in the last round to escape a knockout, Jack Redmond of St. Paul received a bad walloping from Freddie Welsh, the English lightweight champion, here, in the 12-round bout which created considerable excitement among the 2,000 fans who cheered the clever work of the man who is after Willie Ritchie's scalp. The speed of Welsh was wonderful and had the sturdy Redmond baffled at every turn and with the clever footwork exhibited by the old countryman the St. Paul boxer never had a chance, and served as a punching bag for his opponent from the first round to the last which was lightning fast with Welsh working at top speed to score a knockout and Redmond doing his utmost to withstand the terrible onslaught of punishment. Redmond had a hard time serving the third round but he weathered the storm, and from that on showed wonderful pluck.

Freddie Welsh was in fine condition and he looked much better than on his last appearance here last summer. His speed was fine, his footwork marvelous and whenever he cared to open up, the St. Paul man was simply smothered with blows and it is remarkable how he ever came through the mill. The English champion used both hands and also worked in the clinches showing more aggressiveness than in any of his bouts here, and he bored in continuously so clever was he in getting away that Redmond failed to land a half dozen solid smashes during the twelve rounds. The first couple of rounds opened tame but in the third the champion went after his man and sent him to the ropes and before the round was over Redmond was holding on in order to escape a knockout.

College Track Meets.

Harvard and Yale.

New Haven, Conn., May 17.—Yale and Harvard will hold their annual track meet on Yale field this afternoon with the odds favoring the Crimson.

Harvard has beaten Cornell on the track this year and Yale has beaten Princeton, but the Cambridge team is believed to be more evenly balanced. The Blue has a number of individual stars, but is not strong on second and third point men.

An analysis of the record of the athletes on both teams shows that Harvard apparently has the advantage in hurdlers, distance runners and weight men, while Yale is strong in sprinters, jumpers and pole vaulters. Yale is pinning faith on Capt. Wagoner in the pole vault and expects to take first and second in this event.

The Harvard team arrived here today.

Minnesota and Nebraska.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 17.—The track teams of the universities of Nebraska and Minnesota will meet in a dual contest on Northrup field today. The contest will not begin until 2:30, the ball game between Minnesota and Iowa being scheduled for 1:30.

Managers of both teams claim their men are in excellent condition for the contest. The rains for the last three days have made the track unusually heavy and fast time is not anticipated.

Illinois Defeats Wisconsin.

Champaign, Ill., May 17.—Illinois practically clinched the dual meet track honors of the conference when it defeated Wisconsin, 74 to 52, after a spirited contest yesterday. The tide turned to Illinois in the two-mile event, when Bullard made a sensational win after the race seemed certain for Goldie of Wisconsin. Capt. Jack Case established a new local record of :25 in the low hurdles, while he took the high barriers in easy style. Goldie of Wisconsin pole vaulted twelve feet. Other firsts by the Badgers were by Butler in the hammer throw, Wahl in the high jump, and Vangent in the shot-put.

Missouri and Kansas.

Lawrence, Kan., May 17.—With one team admittedly the stronger in the field events and the other excelling in the track contests, a close finish was expected in the annual outdoor dual track and field meet of the track squads of the university of Missouri and the university of Kansas on Cook field here this afternoon.

Kansas defeated Missouri in the indoor field meet in Kansas City in March, but the Missourians were confident of victory today.

HANDBALL TO START AT Y. M. C. A. COURTS.

Entries close today for the doubles of the handball tournament that is to start at the Y. M. C. A. during the coming week. It is expected that the best players of the association will enter.

It is planned to run this tournament until the completion of the two new courts, when the grand opening will be celebrated by a tournament.

Prof. Wegener stated today that the high school, Cathedral Athletic club and the Y. M. C. A. have a number of athletes in training for the cross country run that is scheduled for the last day of the present month. It is expected that some of the best runners of the city will take part in this event.

CARNEY LANDS WALSH FOR FLICKERTAILS.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 17.—Catcher Walsh, who worked for twelve games with the Toledo Mudhens in the American association last year, probably will be a member of the catching staff on the Grand Forks club. Playing Manager Carney brought him to Grand Forks yesterday and he will work today. Walsh batted .333 in his twelve games at Toledo, and previous to that, with La Crosse in the Minny league, he batted .320. Sharkey, who tried for an infield position with Virginia, is also here to try for a place.

Carney is well known in this district, for several years back he burned up the semi-pro clubs of the state as a pitcher. He also was in the old Northern league at one time.

Telegraphers Ready.

The Postal Telegraph company team has organized for the season and would like to arrange games with any Sunday morning team, the postoffice and the Western Union teams preferred. Games can be arranged by calling 90.

Rice Defeats Pelkey.

Brainerd, Minn., May 17.—Harvey Rice of Crosby defeated Ed Pelkey of Brainerd in a wrestling match last evening, securing the first fall with a hammerlock in 2 minutes and the second fall with a crotch and bar hold in 9½ minutes. Rice weighs 150 pounds and has never been defeated. After the match Rice and his brother gave an exhibition. John Anderson of Brainerd challenged the winner for a match in either Brainerd or Crosby.

LATEST HAPPENINGS IN AUTO WORLD

SALES HELD UP BY WEATHER

Rainy Week Brings Gloom to Duluth Dealers in Automobiles.

Settled Weather Will See Great Improvement in Road Conditions.

Weather conditions have interfered this past week with the automobile business in Duluth and vicinity. Auto dealers are agreed on one point and that is that bad weather suspends sales. Only the tempting days cause the prospective auto owner to yearn for a car. When the weather is gloomy or rainy or the roads are muddy there seems to be nothing stirring in the sporting section of his bosom. The prospect does not seem to realize that there will be other days when the road will be good and the skies propitious. These live only in the present and the weather is they take as the weather which guides them in their auto buying. It does not matter that the particular brand of weather on tap at that time will have no bearing on the time of delivery; there must be nice weather to induce the purchase first.

Auto dealers find that when the skies are blue, the air balmy and the roads hard, sales increase; also that repairing and over-hauling jobs are more numerous. But there is a reason for this, much more consistent than in the matter of buying; for on fine days there is more auto-driving and therefore more likelihood of damage. Autos kept in garages during bad weather do not get hurt unless a fire starts.

With the weather settled, it is firmly believed, the main roads out of the city and between here and the ranges, to say nothing of the road between Duluth and the Twin Cities, will form the next thing to a motorists' paradise. Rapid strides are being made in road building and it will not be long until the number of highways open for auto and team travel hereabouts will be great. Last year's improvements opened many new vistas of charm both as to smooth riding and scenery, but greater plans are made for the current year.

And the thought of that million dollar highway between here and Two Harbors, the donation of a Duluth millionaire, connecting as it will with the highway being constructed piecemeal between Two Harbors and the Canadian Head of the Lakes, is already making the mouth of motorists water—so to speak—with pleasurable expectancy.

As to the present dullness in auto sales due to the regular rainy spring weather, it has not mattered much for most sales were made long before this happened. Every auto dealer in the city got his share, and some of them have considerably oversold their allotment and have had to beg quite earnestly with the factory to increase the allowance. Other autos are being brought in on orders that have been held up and every day or so new machines are to be noticed on the streets. The range cities are also participating in this distribution, for many range people have ordered cars this year. It is expected that there will be a great volume of machine traffic between the ranges and Duluth this summer.

T. D. Westover of Omaha was the man who guided the Cartercar when it dragged 32,000 pounds of Scott-Graff lumber along Superior street as far as Ninth avenue east and back last Saturday. It was quite a feat and was interestedly watched by thousands. The test demonstrated the gigantic hauling qualities and powers of endurance of this light car. Mr. Westover is an expert mechanician and was sent here purposely by the company to aid the local agent, Mr. Obermeyer, in the demonstration. As a result of this demonstration Mr. Obermeyer received quite a number of orders and during the coming week will deliver five cars. The company will get the machines here as rapidly as possible and having anticipated a good list of orders as a result of the demonstration, is in a position to deliver quickly.

The Chemical Rubber company recently organized by E. J. Fillatrault and others for the manufacture of a chemical rubber to be used as a tire filler in lieu of and as an improvement over air, is being swamped with orders. As fast as auto owners see how the filler works and discover that it has all the resiliency of air combined with the fact that with the filler the tire is punctureless and will wear longer, it takes but a few minutes for them to make up their minds and an order is the result. The plant in the garage of the Mutual Auto company is being rushed these days and Duluth will soon be well represented with the fraternity of autoists who can laugh at nails, broken glass and other terrors of the average driver.

The good work of instructing prospective chauffeurs and not only prospective owners but actual owners of cars in the fine art of how to minimize trouble and how to meet it when it comes is still going on at the Y. M. C. A. night school for autoists. This school is conducted on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings of each week at Haley's garage, 310 East Superior street and 309 East Michigan street, and there are always three large classes, the beginners, the medium class and the advanced pupils. The school is being recognized as one giving instruction at a moderate cost that is of inestimable value. It is well for the chauffeur to know his car, but it is better for the owner to know it well also even should he employ a chauffeur, for it will save him many dollars. There are so many things to learn about a car.

Despite the fact that this year many of the cars, and especially the higher-priced ones, are equipped with self-starters, electric or otherwise, the cranking problem still remains more or less, and it is a wise owner who personally studies this phase of the touring problem. On all cars where hand-cranking is necessary, if the batteries are operating properly, it should be possible to turn the engine over and get a spark and action with a three-quarter turn of the crank. And there is a certain snappy action to this that is required which every owner should acquire. If, after two or three of these turns, the engine still remains stubborn, it is owing to its having suffered a too long cooling, and the difficulty can be easily remedied by lifting the hood, opening the pet cocks and flooding the cups with gasoline from a priming torch, which should be a part of the equipment of every car before going on tour. There are many other tricks for the autoist to learn also.

The Interstate Auto company reports that the sales of Michelin tires this spring have surpassed all former years. The tires, long honored as the best, have gained in popularity; not so much through the selling agencies as through the advice given by users of them to those who have not been using these tires. It is always the fact that the best salesmen for tires or anything else are the satisfied users, and such have made the Michelin.

N. L. Blake, manager of the Electric Service and Repair company, agents for the Hudson car, on East Superior street, was in a reminiscent mood the other day. Speaking of auto selling in the past and now, he said:

"There are none of us so old that we do not remember our first important purchase. Whether it was a pocket-knife or a suit of clothes, if our own money paid for it we can all recall the pleasurable anticipation, the almost piece de joy, with which we awaited the approach of the momentous occasion. And even the disappointments and annoying after experiences, if that first purchase was not up to our expectations, fail to dim the delight in the sense of power and realized ambition which came when we laid down our money and walked away with our first independent, exclusive possession.

"Since men are 'but boys grown tall,' most of us have that same feeling of elation in the purchase of our automobile. There is one marked difference in the buying of a first automobile today and the same step a few years ago, however. It is that in the present time there is more of an unalloyed pleasure in the occasion than there was before. The natural development of the industry has robbed the first purchase of much of that sweetly painful after-effect the pioneers were likely to know; today we have the benefit of the experiences of hundreds of thousands of our fellows in their first 'buys,' and, too, the honesty and conscientiousness of the manufacturer take much of the danger of disappointment out of the operation.

"The smart buyer of today can more readily take the word of the maker and his representatives as to the merits of the car. Dishonesty is no more tolerated in the marketing of motor cars today than in any other line. The embryo motor enthusiast nowadays must be practical, of course, as befits a grown-up boy; he must be cute, cunning, alert, awake to all the tricks of the trade; careful with his ways and means and keenly alive to all the blandishments of the unduly optimistic salesman. It is being all these things that adds to the zest of the undertaking. But he need not be nearly so alert and on his guard as at sometimes in the past. His predecessors in the game have paved the way for him, and manufacturers and salesmen do not now regard him as legitimate prey, to be sold a car at all hazards and regardless of what he desires."

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE AUTOMOBILE WORLD

When the first self-propelled vehicle was made to run—and then more remarkable, was actually stopped at will, people laughed. That laugh soon changed into an ever-increasing cheer all over the world.

When four Indianapolis men presumed to suggest a speedway upon which automobiles would be raced at unheard of speeds, the same people smiled knowingly. That smile has changed into a look of surprise and admiration.

Such is the progress in Indiana, where the first car was built and where the fastest time with motor cars has been made. The four men who conceived the new world-famous speedway are Carl Fisher, A. C. Newby, James Allison and Frank Wheeler, all connected with the motor car industry of Indianapolis.

In 1909 the first meet was held on the two-and-a-half-mile speedway. The track was not paved then. At that time one manufacturer watched his cars practice and suggested that the day would come when he could do a mile a minute on the track. Last year cars traveled at the rate of 100 and more miles an hour on the speedway. Such is the rapid growth in the motor car building.

The speedway has done much for the entire motor car industry; it has done much for the particular car builders who entered their product; it has done much for the city of Indianapolis and more surprising, it has declared dividends for the owners.

The next contest to be waged for cylinder-supremacy will be held May 30. At that time American-made and foreign-built cars, driven by intrepid experts, will "go after" the international championship in the 500-mile race, 200 times around the two-and-one-half mile track. The track has been paved with brick.

Last year the largest paid admission that ever attended a sporting event in the history of the world, paid real money to come inside of the speed arena and watch the making of a new world's record. It was won by a National car. Who will win this year is a matter that even the most skilled "railbirds" hesitate to predict. The record as now hung up is fast; some of the foreign entries are puzzlers as no one knows just what they are capable of; some of the American-made cars may spring some surprises and the Hoosiers are eager that the record be kept at home.

The speedway has had a practical benefit furnishing an exhilarating sport and gala holiday carnival. It has been a great manufacturing adjunct. The manufacturer who can put his craft through miles of sustained terrific speed, and then makes an analysis of his car, every part of it, can learn a great deal. This is proven true by the fact that when the track was first built, the cars could not produce nearly as much speed as they can today. A race is a white heat test upon every ounce of power and every fiber of strength that furnishes the public its unimpeachable guarantee of the merits of the car. Touring is not nearly as hard a test upon a car's "make-up" as the 500-mile race.

This speed-battle-grounds contains 328 acres; the grounds will accommodate 200,000 people; there are parking spaces for 10,000 automobiles; the turns of the track are banked sixteen feet and have a radius of 1,500 feet; 3,500,000 bricks were required to pave the track; and there are forty-one buildings within the enclosure.

The prize money for the winner of the 500-mile race is divided into ten prizes, the first being $20,000.

Increase in Business.

Leading automobile manufacturers predict that this year's business will show an increase of more than 40 per cent over that of 1912. Makers of standard cars generally state that sales have opened up bigger than ever before and that in several instances the entire output of 1913 models will be exhausted within a short time. An accurate and detailed report compiled by the Chalmers Motor company, shows business to be unusually good. The increase set forth in this report is not confined to certain sections, sales being uniformly large all over the country. Even in Ohio and Nebraska where floods and tornadoes have handicapped business heavily, the report shows sales to be running far ahead of last year's.

Runs 200 Hours.

Having broken the official world's record for a non-stop motor test, by running 200 continuous hours at the Automobile Club of America, New York, a standard Packard "38" motor will be continued in operation for 100 hours more. The former record was 132 hours made four years ago in England. At the 200-hour mark the motor was running so smoothly that coins could be balanced on the test rack. The motor is maintaining a constant speed of 1200 revolutions per minute. Measured in road performance, it is pulling the "38" car, with full load, at a speed of 37.46 miles per hour, over roads heavy enough to call for a wide open throttle. Making 800 miles a day, the motor rolled up nearly 7,500 miles in 200 hours.

DULUTH-TWIN CITY HIGHWAY PLANS

Duluth Men Will Make Good Report at Rush City Meeting.

A meeting will be held in Rush City next Thursday to organize for joint action in getting the Twin City-Duluth highway completed this year, and Dr. J. D. Park, president of the Duluth Auto club and H. J. Mullin, secretary, will attend as representatives of the Duluth organization.

They will have a fine report to make to the convention, among other things, that the St. Louis county commissioners have decided to aid the auto club and have already done considerable work, contracting for the construction of the necessary bridge across the St. Louis river at Chamber's Grove, and grading and repairing the old government trail. The new route will run through Fond du Lac to Carlton and parallel to the Northern Pacific tracks to the Twin Cities.

Delegates from every city along the route will be present at the meeting and it is believed that work will start on this end within sixty days and be completed by fall. Many sections of the route are already ready for use, other counties having stolen a march on St. Louis.

Dr. Park expresses the belief that with this route completed, it will mean expenditures here by tourists of over $300,000 a year, if he can judge from similar routes in other parts of the country. An effort is being made to increase the membership of the auto club from the 160 as at present to 400 or better, in order that more money may be raised.

MINING MEN ARE ASTONISHED BY CAPT. WOLVIN'S FIGURES

Cost of Producing Finished Copper By His Leaching Plant.

Corbin Rushing Work of Shaft-Sinking on Gambrinus Claim.

Butte, Mont., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. A. B. Wolvin, who is operating in the Butte-Duluth property, has given out some figures in regard to the cost of producing finished copper which are, to say the least, very astonishing to the mining men of the district. Several months ago the captain purchased the Brundy claims, and it was not long before he opened a large body of copper ore on the surface of the Altoona claim. His next step was to have erected a small leaching plant capable of handling about fifty tons a day. He is now having the plant enlarged to a capacity of 200 tons a day and he says that in time he proposes to further enlarge the plant to a capacity of 1,000 tons a day. With the small plant he makes the statement that he is mining and milling at a total cost of $2.35 per ton of ore a day. The addition to the plant will be completed by the latter part of the month, and he says that he will then be treating 200 tons of ore a day which, figured on the basis of the present operating costs, will place him in a position to produce the finished copper at less than 7 cents a pound. He goes further in his statement and says that the installation of a plant of 1,000 tons a day capacity of ore will permit of the introduction of mechanical appliances for its operation, and the management is confident that, upon the basis of operation, finished copper will be produced at the rate of $1.50 per ton of ore, or 3 cents per pound of finished copper. The average assay of a car of finished copper we are now shipping is 67.7 per cent copper, says Mr. Wolvin. If all Capt. Wolvin says as to the success of the leaching process can be verified by some of the big mine operators of the country, it would seem that the day is not far distant when leaching plants similar to that of the Butte-Duluth will be springing up all over the country.

Corbin.

The Corbin Copper company is rushing along the work of shaft sinking on the Gambrinus claim, and in the course of another week the windlass system of hoisting waste will be dispensed with and the surface plant operated by electricity in use. In trench digging to install water pipes a depth of six feet the ground is shown to be well mineralized with a large percentage of lead and some silver, that adjoining the Gambrinus claim is what is known as the Bernard placer on the east side and recently some parties who are said to be friendly to the Corbin Copper company located the property as a quartz mining claim. Some small openings have been made and mining engineers who have examined the ground say that there is no question that the Gagnon vein runs right through this claim. The question as to whether the property is placer or a quartz claim will come up in the courts in the near future and should the decision be favorable to those who have located it as a quartz claim it is understood that the Corbin Copper company can have an opportunity of acquiring the same.

Butte & Superior.

Those in charge of the management of affairs in connection with the Butte & Superior Copper company's operations in this city are not disposed to give out even the smallest kind of information as to what is being done in the way of the treatment of ore, the amount handled each day or just when the second section of the concentrator will be placed in commission. From workmen about the mill it is learned that there is being handled about 600 tons a day and that the recovery is in the vicinity of 30 per cent, although it is stated in some Eastern papers that the recovery is upwards of 90 per cent.

Running of Crossent Stopped.

The work of running the crossent from the 2,000-foot level of the Gagnon mine to the ground in the Silver King mine of the Davis-Daly company for the purpose of getting under the rich ore body opened by the leasers in the Silver King has been discontinued but may be resumed some time in the future. It was estimated that a distance of about 2,000 feet would have to be gone, and when the work was stopped a distance of 1,200 feet had been covered.

East Butte.

It will be a month and possibly longer before the East Butte company can commence the work of increasing the capacity of its smelter by the enlargement of the furnaces. The material is about all on hand but with copper remaining around the present price it is not considered good policy just now to start a work which would mean at least a month when only about one half the present capacity could be maintained. During April the company produced in round figures 1,400,000 pounds of copper and unless something unforeseen occurs the output this month will be about the same. When the enlargement is completed the company will be in a position to produce about 2,000,000 pounds of copper a month and in order that this output may be secured a large force of men is being employed at development work and more ore is blocked out today than in any period of the history of the company.

Heinze May Sell Stewart.

Heinze may sell his Stewart property, according to reports reaching here from the Coeur d'Alene district. It is said that the Federal company is negotiating for the property. One report as to the deal has it that it is proposed to purchase the Independence-Gettysburg property at Mullan, which adjoins the Morning mine operated by the Federal. The Stewart at the present time is making profits around $50,000 a month, milling its ore in the Mammoth mill under lease from the Federal. The possession of the Stewart would materially increase the Federal ore reserves, as the Stewart is a young and rich property in the early stages of development. The Independence-Gettysburg property is a non-producer at present and was acquired by E. Augustus Heinze through a mortgage loan.

Alder Gulch Work Starts.

William C. Watson and his California associates who propose to make an effort to again locate the lost Alder Gulch bed in the Virginia City district have commenced work. They have installed the largest drill ever in use in this country and before many months they expect to be in a position to uncover some of the richest placer gold deposits ever seen in America. Mr. Watson is very confident as to the correctness of his theory as to the location of the lost bed.

Miners' Higher Pay.

The miners of the various companies operating in this district are to receive $2.75 a day for the month of April. This is in accordance with the agreement entered into between the miners' union and the companies regulating the rate of wages according to the price of copper. In March the price of the red metal fell below 15 cents a pound and the wages were but $3.50 a day. In April the average price of copper for the month was 15.29 cents a pound and the checks now being made out for April are at the rate of $3.75 a day.

Davis-Daly.

The first floor of a stoping set is being constructed on the 1,400-foot level on the Hesperus vein which stoping will add to the Davis-Daly company output. It is said that for a distance of 150 feet the ore body has continued unbroken, ranging in width from eight to seventeen feet. Six feet of 4 per cent copper with silver values is being mined on the intermediate 1,404-foot vein in the Clara claim, whence the principal tonnage of the Davis-Daly was secured prior to cutting the Hesperus vein. The development work on this vein during the month of April has shown marked improvement, drifting operations giving an increased width of ore from three to six feet. Davis Daly is shipping from the Colorado mine about 170 tons a day now.

Anaconda Mines.

The St. Lawrence, Modoc, Tramway and Steward mines are all now down to a depth which is equal to the 2,800-foot level of the High Ore, and in each of those mines the new drain tunnels to connect with the High Ore are being cut through. The Anaconda is already connected with the High Ore drainage system. In the course of the next three months all the mines mentioned will be connected at the 2,800-foot level.

ELM ORLU IS TO USE FROTH PROCESS

Payment of Licenses Depends on the Butte & Superior Suit.

Butte, Mont., May 17.—The Miner has received a letter from Henry D. Williams of New York, counselor for the Minerals Separation company, limited, in which he says the Elm Orlu Mining company has taken a license from the Minerals Separation company to use the agitation froth process in the concentration of ores of the Elm Orlu mine. It is stated in Mr. Williams' letter that the process will be installed as quickly as possible and mining operations will be resumed, the Elm Orlu companay to have all improvements taht go with the separation company's patents.

While the Miner is not aware of the conditions and terms of the contract between the separation company and the Elm Orlu, it is a well known fact that the Inspiration Company of Utah, and, it is understood, several other mining companies that have taken licenses to use the agitation froth process, are doing so solely on the condition that they will pay royalty to the separation company, if that concern wins its suit with the Butte & Superior oompany. Should the Butte & Superior win, it is authoritatively asserted the Inspiration company, for one, will pay the separation company nothing for the use of the froth process. Should Butte & Superior lose, the licenses must be paid for.

Mr. Williams failed to state these conditions in his communication.

BARNES-KING'S APRIL REPORT

Production Lower Owing to Power Plant Being Repaired.

Butte, Mont., May 17.—The April report for the Barnes-King is in. It shows the April production for the North Moccasin to be 3,048 tons and this produced $24,875.15, an average of $8.15 per ton. Of this amount, $10,655.37 goes to North Moccasin owners, leaving a balance of $14,219.78 for the Barnes-King. The total amount paid to the North Moccasin people to date is $64,457.15. Of this $5,000 was paid in cash at the beginning of the option, making a balance due on May 1 of $85,542.85.

Owing to the necessary repairs on the Kendall water power plant, which required seven days, the production for April was at least $6,000 less than it would have been if the repairs had not been necessary. New tanks are being erected so as to enable the company to treat more ore. Underground developments justify this expenditure. The drift from the Norman tunnel at the Gloster mine holed into the workings which were abandoned twenty-five years ago, and at that point the ore assayed $4, though the width of the vein was eight feet. The last seventy-five feet driven by the present company showed low grade ore.

NEW SMELTER OF CALUMET & ARIZONA

First of Two Great Blast Furnaces to Start on June 1.

Douglas, Ariz., May 17.—The Calumet & Arizona will blow in the first of its two great blast furnaces at the new smelter on June 2, practically inaugurating the service of the splendid plant on that date. Announcement that this would be possible and that all plans were completed to that effect, was made by General Manager John C. Greenway.

The meaning of this announcement is large in several ways. In the first place it means that on June 2 Calumet & Arizona will begin coming into larger reduction facilities, and from that time on will increase both its ore output and copper output in meeting the requirements of the new plant, built to accommodate the growing needs of the company in utilizing to the best advantage the ores it has available. Of as great importance, or even greater from the economic administration standpoint, is attendance of lower costs which the improved facilities and greater capacity of the new smelter will enable the company to enjoy in the output of its metal. These costs, due to the richness and kindly character of Warren district ores, have in the past touched the low in the copper producing divisions of the United States, Calumet & Arizona being generally conceded to produce copper cheaper than any other copper mining company in the country.

The blowing in of the new furnace will be attended by dedicatory ceremonies of modest character, but in which there will be plenty of enthusiasm. Attending will be directors and officers of the company from the East. With the starting of this furnace, the work necessary to completion of the second blast furnace will be attacked with double forces, and it will be but a short time until it is going. Following this, the balance of the smelter will be brought in rapidly, unit by unit, until the entire new plant is in full operation.

ACTIVE WORK ON CUYUNA

Scores of Properties Being Tested and Many Drills Operating.

Shipments From Range This Season Will Approximate Million Tons.

In no other district of the Lake Superior iron region is exploration being conducted so actively this spring as on the Cuyuna range. Scores of properties are being tested. Dozens of drills are at work. The range is in its infancy and there is a great deal yet to be ascertained concerning it. Nevertheless it appears safe at the present stage to estimate that the district contains more than a quarter of a billion tons of merchantable ore and in addition very large tonnages of lower grade material, the mining of which at this time would not be profitable or that will require treatment by the washing or other process.

The shipments from the Cuyuna this season will approximate a million tons. This ore will come from at least nine mines—the Kennedy, the two Armours, the Thompson, Pennington, Barrows, Cuyuna-Mille Lacs, Cuyuna-Duluth and Adams. Last year there were four shippers, with a total tonnage of 305,000, and in 1911 there was only one, the cargo from which was 147,000 tons. It is possible several properties other than the nine mentioned will send out a few cargoes of ore this season, among these those of the Iron Mountain Mining company and the Pittsburgh Steel Ore company. The mines already producing and those in course of development are substantially equipped. Many of the shafts are of steel and concrete, as are many of the buildings. Steel head-frames are the rule. The machinery is of the best and in most cases electricity is used to large extent. It is the belief of many Cuyuna mining men that the district is a continuation of the Mesaba. The range is about 100 miles west of Lake Superior. It has a length of about fifty miles, east to west, and a width of fourteen miles. There are north and south formations.

Shipping for Third Year.

The Rogers-Brown Ore company's Kennedy mine, the oldest in the Cuyuna district, is shipping this year for the third season. It is in section 30, 47-28. The Kennedy has three shafts, is down about 275 feet and is employing 250 men. Its cargo this year is expected to be a quarter of a million tons, 85,000 tons of which were mined during the winter and put into stock. The Armour No. 1, which is in section 10, 46-29, and also is operated by the Rogers-Brown interests, probably will ship 200,000 tons or more this season. It is opened to a depth of 300 feet and is giving work to about 200 men. An underground electric haulage system is in operation. The Rogers-Brown company's Armour No. 2 mine, in section 11, 46-29, is expected to send out 225,000 tons this year. A force of 250 men is employed. The Meacham property, also in section 11, has been opened by the Rogers-Brown interests, but is inactive at present. A concrete shaft is down to the ore body.

The proposition of transforming the western part of the Armour No. 1 into an open pit is in contemplation. It is figured that there is 600 feet of the deposit that could be mined by steam shovels to as great a depth as such method is practicable. The overburden averages seventy feet in thickness. Similar stripping operations are in prospect at the Inland Steel company's Thompson mine. The project is reported under consideration. The Thompson is in section 11, 46-29, as are the Armour No. 2 and the Meacham, and is employing 150 men. Its estimated output for the season is 100,000 tons. Adjoining the Armour No. 1 on the west, in section 10, 46-29, is Tod, Stambaugh & Co.'s Pennington mine, now being developed as a stripping proposition and which is counted upon for a production of 100,000 tons this season. By the removal of 1,000,000 cubic yards of overburden the Pennington will, it is figured, be able to mine 1,000,000 tons of ore by the steam shovel method and fully that much by the "milling" system. The lease under which the property is operated and which runs from George H. Crosby and associates calls for the payment of a royalty of 80 cents a ton, the highest yet recorded in the Cuyuna country.

Hydraulic Power Used.

A second Cuyuna property in process of stripping is the Garrison-Williams tract in section 18, 46-29, recently leased to the Pittsburg Steel Ore company at a royalty of 60 cents. The method employed in removing the overburden is unique in the Lake Superior region. Hydraulic giants are used to loosen the surface material, which is then cared for by a centrifugal pump. Electricity for power purposes is furnished by the Cuyuna Range Power company, which has recently completed the installation of a 3,000-horse power hydro-electric plant in the Crow Wing river northwest of Brainerd. The Pennington and the Armour mines are supplied with power from the same source. There is a possobility the Pittsburg interests will ship some ore this season. Railroad facilities are afforded by an extension of the Soo line. The overburden averages forty feet. The installation of electrically-operated steam shovels is contemplated. The operating concern is incorporated by E. H. Bindley, W. F. McCook and W. H. Rowe of Pittsburg and P. H. Nelson of Duluth. It is a subsidiary of the Pittsburg Steel company.

Notwithstanding water has greatly retarded production at M. A. Hanna & Co.'s Cuyuna range mine—the Barrows, in section 30, 44-21, operated by the subsidiary Virginia Ore company—it is expected the property will ship 100,000 tons this year. The working force of 100 men will be increased to 150. So much water gushed into the workings as to lead to a belief in some quarters that an underground stream had been tapped. It is at any rate noticeable that several swamps in the vicinity of Brainerd have become dry this spring for the first time on record. To work the water out of the mine it was necessary to install several additional pumps and increase the steam capacity, the three 150-horse power boilers being reinforced by a Scotch marine boiler and a Northern Pacific road engine. It is expected that ore will again be coming from the workings shortly. The shipments will be handled by the Northern Pacific.

Adams to Start Shipping.

The Adams mine, in section 30, 46-28, owned by Cuyler Adams of Duluth and associates, will enter the Cuyuna producing list this season, although its output will of necessity be limited. Sinking in the overburden has been through quicksand and has been about the most difficult experienced on the range. However a concrete shaft is now well into the ledge and for the time being will be bottomed at the 200-foot mark. At that point a pump will be installed and the initial drift will be run. It is expected the first ore will be hoisted in the fall.

The Cuyuna-Mille Lacs mine, in section 3, 46-29, is being developed by the Locker-Donahue interests of Duluth. Its estimated production this year is 50,000 tons. The mine is upwards of 200 feet deep and has been provided with an excellent plant of machinery. Several carloads of manganese were shipped last season. A few miles to the south the same company is opening the Cuyuna-Duluth property. Water has caused little trouble at this tract, for the reason the ground has been well drained by the Armour shafts. The mine is expected to send out 25,000 tons of ore this year.

The Iron Mountain Mining company is developing a property northwest of the Kennedy mine, near the town of Manganese. A concrete shaft is sinking. There is a possibility the mine will ship this season.

CUT MADE INTO COPPER GLANCE

Strike By Shaft Sinkers at the Butte & Minnesota.

Butte, Mont., May 17.—Copper glance was encountered last Tuesday at a depth of 75 feet in the shaft of the Butte & Minnesota property southwest of Butte. The company has been sinking on the vein, which had iron outcroppings and which showed lead, gold and silver values as the shaft went down. An assay of the ore in the vein, which now carries the stringers of copper glance, shows from 1 to 2 per cent copper. Manager P. E. Peterson is jubilant, as he believes the new find is a strong indication of copper bodies at a greater depth. A No. 7 pump is now handling the water nicely and is capable of handling a larger volume.

BLACK FRIDAY IS AGAIN OPERATING

Radersburg's Best Producers, Closed By Litigation, Is Reopened.

Radersburg, Mont., May 17.—Operations have been resumed on the Black Friday Gold Mining company's property. This comes after a shutdown caused by litigation. All the boards are clear now, however, and the company will push work.

The Missouri Valley Index has this to say of the company's plans:

"The Black Friday Gold Mining company's property has been the best producer in the Radersburg district while in operation before the suit was entered, having produced nearly $250,000 in less than two years' operation. Most of this time was spent in development work. The mine is now down to the 700-foot level and has a body of ore on that level that carries a value of between $40 and $50 per ton in gold.

"It is the intention of the company to sink to the 800-foot level and get under this very valuable body of ore; also to drift on the 400-foot level to a point below the surface where they have uncovered very high grade ore. The property has been closed since the suit was entered, nine months ago.

"The Black Friday mine is equipped with electric power, and has all the necessary machinery to go to the 1,600-foot level, and it is the intention to sink so long as the ore is in paying values. There is now broken down and piled on the dump enough $12 per ton ore to bring $150,000, but there is no concentrator to concentrate this ore. It is the intention of the company to get capital to erect a concentrator at the mine of sufficient capacity to handle the output. With this machinery installed they expect to have a property that no other in the district equals."

CALUMET & SONORA READY TO RESUME

Will Put on Force of 100 to 130 Men to Start.

Cananea, Mex. May 17.—The Calumet & Sonora is preparing to renew operations. The electrolytic mill has been started and is handling the zinc and lead concentrates which have been piled up. The company has now eight carloads of concentrates ready for shipment, the cars being in the local railroad yards, and is awaiting cars for shipment of five carloads more. When operations are resumed in the mine and wet mill, the company expects to put on a force of between 100 and 130 men to begin with and will undoubtedly begin operations on a paying basis. The big 36-ton crusher has been installed, as has also the picking belt, and with these in use the company should have no difficulty in increasing its earning capacity, as before it was forced to temporarily suspend operations it was earning a fair rate on its capitalization. The use of the picking belt and new crusher will naturally increase this earning. The operations are in charge of W. T. Tangye.

AT THE CHIEF CONSOLIDATED

Earnings Considerably in Excess of the Dividend Requirements.

While figures are not available as to ore values it is generally understood that the earnings of the Chief Consolidated company are considerably in excess of the dividend requirements. Supt. Cecil A. Fitch says underground conditions are as satisfactory as they have been at any time. Considerable development work is now in progress on the lower levels of the property and it is thought that the second ore system will soon be located on the 1,600 level. For several months the Chief Consolidated people have been driving a drift over toward the Gemini mine and it is understood that these two mines will be connected up within the next month or six weeks. Work is being carried on from both the Chief and Gemini sides and according to a recent survey something like 400 feet of work remains to be done.

Indiana.

The Indiana Mining company, engaged in diamond drilling from the bottom of the vertical shaft, has finished the first hole of a series designed to locate the copper bearing felsite at this depth. The first hole was driven horizontally for a distance of 300 feet without disclosing anything of value. The second hole is now under way. Work elsewhere in this property is centered in exploratory work on the 600-foot level, where a cross-cut and drifts have opened some copper ground in a mixed trap and felsite formation about thirty-five feet from the shaft. Drifts are now being run along the contact between felsite and trap in an effort to locate commercial values. The ground is badly shattered and thus far offers no showings of consequence.

South Lake.

The South Lake is centering all activity in shaft sinking and will not for the time being run a cross-cut to the Evergreen lode on the 300 level, as originally planned. This work will probably be delayed until the shaft has reached a depth of 500 feet. The management is bending every effort to reach the so-called South Lake lodes at the earliest possible date, and to this end is using three rock drills in the shaft, which together with the pumps, use up practically all of the compressed air power available. The cross-cut to the South Lake lodes on the 500-foot level will start as soon as this depth has been attained in the shaft and will become the principal endeavor of the company. The Evergreen lodes, though promising, are merely a side show and work in them will not be allowed to interfere with the more important work planned in the South Lake lodes.

Superior.

The Superior continues to open excellent copper ground at depth in two lodes, particularly in the so-called west lode, which is showing rich on all levels below the twelfth. The Superior lode in which the shaft is sinking, has been opened to a depth of about 2,000 feet and discloses excellent copper ground both at depth and in the north drift on the fifteenth level, which is now over 1,500 feet from the shaft and in very good ground. These developments are all in ground tributary to the No. 1 shaft. The No. 2 shaft is sinking for the eighteenth level, when a drift will be run north to connect with the No. 1 workings. Work in this area has thus far failed to reveal copper ground of commercial grade. The productive area in the Superior acreage has not been proven beyond a few thousand feet each way from No. 1 shaft, but is is itself a mine, yielding in the neighborhood of 600 tons of rock daily and easily capable of a daily output of 1,000 to 1,200 tons. The rock is exceptionally rich as it is produced by the yield, which ranges from twenty-two to twenty-eight pounds of fine copper per ton of rock milled.

Calumet & Hecla.

The Calumet & Hecla is opening exceptionally rich ground at and below the seventy-ninth level in South Hecla. The upper portion of this area was quite thoroughly worked out years ago above the fifty-fourth level, and recent operations have been almost entirely confined to the removal of shaft pillars. This work is still in progress, and in No. 11 shaft South Hecla is yielding copper ground of exceptional richness. The last of the pillars in this shaft will probably be removed, and all work ended here by July or August. This shaft is 2,400 feet deep. The No. 12 shaft adjoining, has a depth of 6,700 feet and there is now some talk of deepening this shaft for the purpose of reaching the rich ground now under development at and around the seventy-ninth and eightieth levels, and through its operation eliminate the long and expensive trams from this area to other shafts.

La Salle.

The La Salle is preparing to resume mining operations in No. 1 shaft. The workings have been cleaned up and the first productive ground will be hoisted within the present month. The No 2 shaft is already producing in a small way and a small stockpile is accumulating at that point. This shaft is not equipped with rail facilities, but a survey for a temporary spur track has been run and rails will probably be laid before the first of the month. The shaft has been unwatered to within fifty feet of the bottom, and development work is under way on several levels down to and including the sixteenth. The No. 1 shaft has been thoroughly overhauled, improvements at surface iscluding a new shaft rockhouse, and is now in shape to yield a steady production. The shaft has been unwatered to a point below the seventeenth level. New development work does not show any material change from that noted is the past, and the vein continues to show fair mineralization in a rather narrow lode. The rock appears to be of average richness, and will probably yield around fourteen to fifteen pounds of fine copper per ton of rock milled.

New Baltic.

The New Baltic is drifting both ways on the copper deposit recently encountered 1,500 feet west of the shaft on the 500-foot level. The north drift is showing exceptionally rich ground. The cross-cut which passed through this deposit at 1,525 feet is driving west to intersect a copper-bearing amygdaloid previously disclosed in diamond drilling. The identity of this lode is not known, but presumably it is an extension of the Isle Royale or the Portage lodges, as it lies in the approximate horizon of these amygdaloid beds. The drill hole which located this lode yielded a core of fairly rich copper rock. The company is making excellent progress considering the small number of workers employed and small monthly expenditures, and is in easy financial condition, with funds sufficient to continue work for the balance of the year without further assistance from the shareholders.

DULL DAY IN THE MARKETS

Wheat Regains Ground Lost During Early Part of Session.

Little Change in Flax Prices With Market Very Narrow.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 17.—Toward the close of the session today, which, as always on Saturday, was at noon, there were some regains of lost ground from the opening earlier in the session. July wheat came back and closed unchanged, and September, which had fallen off ¼c regained ¼c, closing ⅛c under. July durum, after an indolent day, closed at a loss of ⅜c. May durum also lost ¼c net.

Cash wheat closed the same as July. Oats, barley and rye remained unchanged.

The grain market opened a trifle lower this morning, probably by way of a reaction from yesterday's little advance without reason. There are other reasons for the drop also, but as soon as the opening was past the market steadied and held firm. So far as the supply and demand feature is concerned the condition is bearish, but the Chicago attitude seems to set the pace and there today the sentiment is in favor of buying on declines, which sentiment prevents the declines from taking place. Liverpool closed ⅜@½d lower on Broadstreet's report of shipments, and the heavy shipments, 130 cargoes in all, sent to Liverpool from various parts this week. Argentine offerings also helped make the cables weak.

July wheat opened ¼@¼c under on the Duluth board and September ¼c under. Both held steady at that level for the first half hour of the session. There was no change and no trading in durum options.

Flax Market Narrow.

After one of its quietest days, flax closed uneventfully, with trading practically unknown. Buyers seem to be taking a vacation, the only orders being filled being small ones; and there seems to be a lack of a disposition to sell. The flax closed ¼c under and July 1c up. September and October options closed unchanged.

Kansas City wires that Allan Logan has assessors' reports showing that thirteen additional Kansas counties are in crop, making an increase of 100,000 acres over his previous report, which he now amends to read 7,400,000 acres.

P. E. Stroud of Minneapolis, a member of the John Miller company, is here today and visited the board of trade this morning. He has just been on a trip through North Dakota and says that the wheat seeding is finished and the coarse grain seeding well under way. He expects about as much coarse grain to be put in as there was last year. The conditions, he says, are ideal for another tremendous crop.

This is "Frank Chance" day in Chicago, the Highlanders to play the White Sox. A board of trade man received a wire from a friend there this morning, which read:

"Looks like rain. Crowd trying to sell baseball tickets and buy theater tickets at even money."

It was agreed that this would make a good "spread."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Is Easier From Showers in Spring Crop Belt.

Chicago, May 17.—General showers in the spring crop belt today eased wheat. Deficiency of moisture in that section had been causing some apprehension. Lower prices at Liverpool counted also against the bulls. The opening was ⅛@⅜c to ½c down. July started at 88¼@88⅜c, a loss of ¼@⅜c, touched 88⅛@88½c, and then fell to 88¼@88¾c.

Subsequently the market hardened in consequence of big clearances of the seaboard. The close was steady with July at 88¾c, a gain of ⅛ on net.

Although corn was firm at first on account of receipts being small, the market later weakened with wheat. July, which opened unchanged to a shade higher at 56c to 56@56¼c, sold at 56⅛c and then sagged to 55⅞c.

Steadiness prevailed the rest of day. The close was ⅛c net higher for July at 56⅛c.

Oats weakened because of promise of rain in Illinois and Indiana. July started ¼c off to a sixteenth up at 36¼c to 36⅜@36½c, reached 36⅛c and declined to 36@36⅛c.

Holders bid up provisions, little business, however, was done. First quotations were the same as last night to 7½@10c higher, including July at $19.45 for pork, $10.85 for lard and $11.10@11.12½ for ribs.

Cash close: Wheat—No. 2 red, $1.05@1.06 ;No. 3 red, 95c@$1.01; No. 2 hard, 90½@92c; No. 3 hard, 89@91c; No. 1 northern, 91@93c; No. 2 northern, 90@91c; No. 3 northern, 88@90c; No. 2 spring, 90@91c; No. 3 spring, 88@90c; No. 4 spring, 82@86c; velvet chaff, 89@94c; durum, 90@96c. RISE IS NOT MAINTAINED

Stocks Move Up Above Friday's Close But Recede Again.

Selling Orders Appear as the Session Draws to Close.

New York, May 17.—Few orders were on hand when the stock market opened today and trading was exceptionally dull. Prices of the active stocks in most cases showed slight recessions from yesterday's close. There was renewed pressure against some of the lower-priced railway shares. St. Louis and San Francisco second preferred receded to 18, a new low record. Rock Island preferred lost 1¼.

Selling of the dividend-paying shares stopped when the realizing sales had been disposed of. With this weight off the market rallied ½ or more, although the Rock Island and St. Louis & San Francisco issues continued to go down.

The market closed heavy. Trading operations were confined within a narrow range, and movements of the active issues were without feature during the half-day session. The general market was not affected by a further break in the Rock Island and St. Louis & San Francisco securities, for which no authoritative explanation was offered. Some heaviness was shown at the outset, with special pressure against Canadian Pacific, but this tendency soon wore off and the list moved up to above yesterday's close. Top figures, however, were not maintained, some selling orders making their appearance again as the session drew to a close. Bonds were steady.

WOMEN WHO ACHIEVE.

In Harper's Bazar are printed the achievements of several women who have made profitable careers for themselves. Here is one of them:

Mrs. J. Russell Selfridge, widow of an admiral in the United States navy, was left on her own resources when her husband died suddenly. This woman of culture, gentle training, and fashionable acquaintance suddenly and unexpectedly showed a practical side. She entered the School of Household Arts, Teachers college in New York, and learned all there is to learn about up-to-date scientific laundering. Then she established a model "Country Laundry" 'n a New York suburb, inviting her patrons to come and visit their weekly wash, receiving in a pale gray barn, with flowers blooming in the windows, surrounded by neat, uniformed laundry-girls happily at work. The proper care of these girls was one of Mrs. Selfridge's chief problems and contributed largely to her success. For she was highly successful, building up a patronage including some of the most distinguished names in a locality of distinguished people. Recently, however, she has given up the active laundry and has been busily employed lecturing and writing on the subject of efficiency in laundry work. Mrs. Selfridge has become an authority on her subject.

D. LEWIS LEADS IN RUN GETTING

Boston Outfielder Has Batted in Most Runs in American League.

During the first two weeks of the American League championship season, Duffy Lewis of the Boston Red Sox drove in more runs than any other player in the junior organization. The Speed Boys' left fielder batted in eleven counters, nine of the tallies being registered on safeties and two on sacrifice flies. Two other Johnsonites—Joe Jackson and J. Gadstone Graney of the Naps—reached double figures in batting in runs, each man having hit in ten tallies. Tied for fourth place in the timely hitting list are Moeller of Washington, Johnson of St. Louis and Baker of Philadelphia, each man having driven in eight runs. Napoleon Lajoie, during the first fortnight of play sent seven of his teammates to the bureau of registration and Trig Speaker, who won the Chalmers American league trophy last year, five.

Up to last Wednesday, Lewis had been Boston's timeliest thumper. Graney or Jackson, Cleveland's; Moeller, Washington's; Johnstone, St. Louis'; Baker, Philadelphia's; Collins or Borton, Chicago's; Moriarty, Detroit's, and Cree, New York's. The record of the American leaguers who batted in five or more runs during the first fortnight's play are appended:

JEFF TESREAU GETS BAD START

The Big New York Boy Fails to Exhibit Class of 1912.

Baseball is full of upsets, as the records show. Prior to the opening of the season fans confidently expected that Big Jeff Tesreau of the Giants would start right off the reel and pile up a string of consecutive victories. Instead McGraw's mammoth spit-baller drops the opener to the Boston Braves, getting driven from the slab while dropping it, and then, on his first appearance in a relief role, allows the opposition to come from behind and win out.

Tesreau undoubtedly will win a great number of games for the McGrawites this year and possibly may surpass his 1912 record. There is one record he made in 1912, however, that he cannot possibly equal, even though the season be still in its infancy. That record relates to home runs. Last year only one National league player made a homer off Big Jeff, who worked in 243 innings, equivalent to 27 complete games. On Tesreau's first two appearances on the slab this season he labored for just seven stanzas and in that time was located for two four-baggers. John Titus was the lone National leaguer who clouted for the circuit off Tesreau last season, the present Bostonian, then a Phillie, making his four-bagger in the game played on May 2.

The players who poled homers off Tesreau this year were Bill Rariden, who used to be Rube Marquard's backstop when the tall portsider was with Canton, and J. Carlisle Smith, who started the season in sad fashion, since Tom Seaton whiffed him thrice.

Despite the fact that Tesreau has had two home runs made off him in less than one full game, he undoubtedly will remain on the Giants' payroll all season long and will receive the consideration of the jury of experts serving on the Chalmers car award for the National league's best player.

Certain pastimers start brilliantly and then slow up. A National leaguer who got away to a grand start in 1912 at the expense of a pitcher was Jack Spratt, then third baseman of the Bostons. The records show that he made three home runs and all were obtained off Grover Cleveland Alexander of the Phillies. When the season ended Alexander was the strike-out king of the National league and Spratt was in the minors, having been sent there in June.

FEAR OF TOE HOLD BEATS THE OPPONENTS OF GOTCH

Chicago, May 17.—It is the fear of the terrible toe hold that foreign wrestlers have that defeats them before they get into the ring with Frank Gotch. This at least is the opinion of Gotch himself, expressed when he was in the city the other day and discussed his recent bout in Kansas City with George Lurich, the Russian.

This was described by the Kansas City sport writers as an easy thing for the Humboldt man, they claiming that Lurich did not show anywhere near as well against the champion as he did against some of the lesser lights that he tackled there in previous matches.

That was perfectly natural, for a champion is supposed to show superiority over all of them. But Gotch has his own explanation of the situation that developed just before and immediately after Lurich faced him in the ring.

Hold Talk of Europe.

"You can bet all you've got in the world that this toe hold of mine—of course other wrestlers use it, but it generally has been credited to me as being something of my own invention—has been the talk of Europe ever since I defeated Hackenschmidt the first time," Gotch said. "Remember that I have been over there and know just how they feel about it.

"Of course it gets noised around, for wrestlers are no different from any other kind of people and do a lot of gossiping among themselves. I heard some of this while I was over there, and know that the Europeans look upon me as being some sort of a terrible animal and a bone crusher.

"Naturally this gossip goes from one to another, and the stories do not lose anything by repetition. They think over there that all I do is to get the toe hold, or try to get it, all the time I am wrestling.

Seldom Uses Toe Grip.

"As a matter of fact, I have used it but seldom, and do not now recall that I ever won a fall with it in an important match. Wrestlers over here know that I use it more for a feint than anything else.

"It is useful for that, especially when an opponent has his legs tightly clamped together. Well, at any rate, when Lurich was preparing for the ring he was talking excitedly in German to his handlers, and the whole gist of the conversation was on the toe hold.

"When finally we were ready to begin and started for the ring I noticed that he was as white as chalk and looked about as nervous as any man I ever saw. This didn't wear off at all after we got started, and he kept jerking his feet and legs away from me in a horrified manner every time I reached for him.

"I knew what he was thinking of and naturally kept him worried by feinting at him. This made him forget all that he seemed to know about ordinary wrestling and naturally made him an easy mark.

"Hack" Feared Gotch.

"Hackenschmidt was deadly afraid of the same thing, and the constant brooding over the toe hold in advance of a match with me beats all of them. You see, the hold hits the knee more than any other place, as the leverage is placed right there. And water on the knee is an athlete's most hideous nightmare. Once you get that you are out of business for all time."

It may be mentioned right here that George Hackenschmidt was put completely out of business through the injury he suffered to the knee while training for the second Gotch bout. It is understood on this side that Hackenschmidt has had several operations to relieve the injury, but that they have been unsuccessful.

In consequence, the once mighty Russian is unable to show with even a passing act. It is said that his career is completely at an end.

WHY AMERICANS SUGGEEDED

President of International Olympic Committee Gives Opinion Why Americam Athletes Won at Stockholm.

Lausanne, Switzerland, May 17.—Baron Pierre de Coubertin, president of the international Olympic committee, who has visited the United States several times of recent years, has very decided opinions to account for the success of American athletes at Stockholm last year. In explaining his ideas the baron said:

"The American contestants were successful primarily because of their scientific training, and next, on account of their 'morale,' that is to say their minds were made up beforehand to win. Finally, their intense patriotism, when pitted against other nations, was an added reason.

"Scientific training alone cannot win, in my judgment, without moral training and patriotism. The Finnish athletes were without the first, as they came from a poor country, but with the other two attributes they did splendidly. Not only the body but the mind must be trained to win in sports, and the athletes of many nations overlook this, but not the Americans."

Referring to the Thorpe case, the baron said:

"I cannot praise the American sportsmen too much for their prompt action in that delicate and unfortunate affair. The regulations governing the status of amateurs and professionals are today so vague and unsatisfactory that a similar case might arise tomorrow in any country. We hope at our meeting in Paris in 1914 to make an international definition of amateurs and professionals. My idea is that every Olympian candidate shall swear on his country's flag that he is a pure amateur. This would, I think, settle the question."

MANY BOXERS ARE AFTER TITLE HELD BY RITCHIE

Who will get the next championship battle for the lightweight title seems to be the question bothering boxing fans at present. It is practically assured that the bout will be staged either in San Francisco or Los Angeles July 4, and undoubtedly Willie Ritchie will be one of the opponents, but who will be the other fellow is still uncertain.

Billy Nolan, who not only directs Ritchie's campaign even to the finer points on how to eat and sleep, but also forces the promoters and managers to come to his terms, has mentioned many men whom he would like to send against Ritchie. Packey McFarland, Joe Rivers, Ad Wolgast, Leach Cross and Charley White are only a few of the lightweights whom Nolan would like to see in the ring with Willie July 4. There seems to be no doubt that one of the five named will be the opponent.

Mandot Out of Race.

Joe Mandot was successfully eliminated from all chances of a championship argument when he took the count from Leach Cross a few weeks ago at New Orleans and when he was outpointed in Los Angeles by Rivers. Harlem Tommy Murphy, who had a splendid chance to land the plum had he gained the decision over Wolgast in their affair at Frisco, is on the shelf, for Tommy could do no better than draw with the former champion.

The arguments that may keep Murphy out of the running might apply to Wolgast. Nolan was disappointed when Wolgast failed to beat Murphy and acknowledged then that the former title-holder had partially eliminated himself from the right to a return match. Frisco critics are planning on a Wolgast-Ritchie affair, but Nolan is of the opinion that some other lightweight will be a bigger card than Wolgast.

It was pointed out to Nolan that the ending of the title battle fought last Thanksgiving day still rankled in the minds of many Wolgast boosters, who are sticking to the demand that Wolgast be given a chance to redeem himself, but Nolan insists that Ritchie won cleanly and handily and that Wolgast must go out and beat some of the best of them before he will be considered again. Nolan says further that he will sign up for Wolgast if the promoters insist upon such a card.

Cross Has Chance.

Leach Cross, the New York dentist, right now looms up as the biggest possibility among the contenders. His decisive victory over Mandot has raised his stock many per cent, and if he should be able to win as decisively over Rivers when the two get together next week at Madison Square Garden, there seems to be little doubt but Cross will be picked to oppose Ritchie. But Cross will have to beat Rivers to gain any recognition from the coast promoters.

Rivers is the best drawing card outside of the champion in the lightweight division. His battles in and around Los Angeles have gained him a world-wide reputation, and when he put away Knockout Brown, the pride of New York, in short order, he jumped into the limelight with a vengeance. Should the bout be staged in Los Angeles, Rivers will be Ritchie's opponent for Tom McCarey, the Los Angeles promoter, has an interest in Rivers, and will see to it that his "boy" gets the chance.

Rivers has shown class on a few occasions, but he never has shown the dash and hitting ability usually possessed by a champion. His victory over Brown was clean cut, although it was a chance blow delivered in the ninth round that unsettled Brown, and the Mexican never let up after that long enough for Brown to gain control of himself. Rivers was bested by Mandot once and won from the New Orleans boy once. Also rivers was knocked out by Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion.

Nolan Wants McFarland.

It has been Nolan's wish that Packey McFarland and Ritchie should come to blows, and during his trip through the East Nolan boosted this match with the object of signing the two. He tried to hit upon an agreeable weight for the set-to, but Packey absolutely refused to talk business unless the beam was set at 135 six months before the mill. Nolan, of course, refused to allow this, as Willie would be sadly handicapped, as Packey would enter the ring weighing close to 140.

One thing that has developed from the feeling around for the match is that Packey McFarland is not a lightweight. Packey admitted that he cannot make 133 ringside or at any time of the day, and he says he will not make ringside weight for any boxer unless the balance reads around 140. He says he does not have to box any more and that the worry of making weight is becoming too much of an oppression for him to try. He adds that he would like to meet Ritchie, but the match would have to be made at catch weights to interest him.

McFarland and Ritchie would put up an interesting argument were they ever to battle. Both men are exceptionally clever, with Packey the better versed in ring tactics and Ritchie the stronger of the two and the harder hitter. Ritchie would have a hard time solving Packey's offense and getting around Packey's left hooks and jabs, but if he ever did master the defense he would have an easy time trimming the pride of the stockyards.

COBB LEADS BATTERS OF AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Chicago, May 17.—Unofficial batting averages for the first month of the season show Ty Cobb leading the American league with a percentage of .488 for the twelve games in which he has taken part. Five American leaguers are hitting better than .400: Hendriksen, of Boston, with .471; Schaefer, Washington, .444; Collins, Philadelphia, .432; Jackson, Cleveland, .423; and Lajoie, Cleveland, is next with .356.

No National leaguer is slugging at such a rate, but Cathers of St. Louis for ten games is pretty near the .400 mark with .391 and leads the league. Viox, Wagner's understudy at short for Pittsburg, leads Honus .370 to .351. Both are following Erwin, Brooklyn, who is second to Cathers, with .375.

Brothers Outbox Opponents.

New York, May 17.—The Gibbons brothers, Mike and Tom, St. Paul middleweights, outpointed Jack McCarron of Philadelphia and Young Mike Donovan of this city, respectively, in ten-round bouts at the Madison Square Garden Athletic club last night. Mike at no time gave McCarron a chance, as he kept up a continuous jabbing with his left, crossing his right occasionally, and with clever side-stepping and blocking made McCarron look like a novice.

In the other bout Tom Gibbons had the better of Donovan in every round save one, that was even. Donovan, like McCarron, was game, but he was outclassed and outfought.

White and McFarland Draw.

San Francisco, Cal., May 17.—Jack White, a Chicago lightweight, fought four fast rounds to a draw last night with Tommy McFarland, a local boxer.

SANITATION IN THE PHILIPPINES

Uncle Sam Has Done Work There That Is Being Studied By Other Nations as a Model.

Springfield, Mass., Republican: "Cleaning up" has been an American specialty, and the work done in Havana and in the Panama canal zone has won the highest praise from foreign experts. Not quite so much attention has been paid to the excellent work done in the Philippines, of which an interesting account is given in the Journal of the Race Development for last October by Dr. Victor G. Heiser, insular director of health. It can readily be imagined that the conditions found in Manila and other towns at the time of the American occupation a decade ago were very shocking indeed from the twentieth century American point of view. What they were and the effects Dr. Heiser briefly recounts.

With the exception of the impure water system of Manila there was not a reservoir, pipe line or artesian well for the 7,200,000 people of the archipelago. Manila itself, with a population of over 200,000, had no sewer system. There was no food law, and the vilest food was imported; dysentery, in consequence, was rife. There was no meat inspection and suitable slaughter-houses were lacking. Half of Manila was inundated at high tide, and in large parts of the city houses were so closely crowded together that there was no room for streets or alleys, and as there were no building laws, small, dark rooms were common, as throughout the Orient. That the city was dirty was a matter of course.

Ravages of Disease.

As a consequence of these conditions, 40,000 persons were dying annually from smallpox, and at least 50,000 from tuberculosis. The first task of the sanitarians was to combat a severe epidemic of cholera, and the task was found very difficult because of the passive resistance of the Orientals. "It was soon learned that nothing was to be gained by using actual force." The early efforts to stamp out the plague resulted in similar lack of success, and it was found necessary to enlist the support of the people instead of trying to compel them to obey rules which they thought nonsense. When they saw that no cases of cholera occurred among the Americans they were converted to the practice of drinking only boiled water and eating only freshly cooked food.

When the plague had been dealt with smallpox had its turn, and after the failure of various methods the plan was adopted of having twenty or thirty vaccinators march straight across a province, vaccinating everybody as they went. In the provinces about Manilla, where for centuries smallpox had been about 6,000 deaths annually from smallpox, there have been none since of local origin, and in the islands at least 30,000 deaths annually have been prevented by vaccination. The island of Cullon, twenty miles long and ten wide, has been set apart as a leper colony, and it has been estimated that by this segregation the number of new cases in the islands has been reduced from 1,200 annually to 600. In Manila $2,000,000 has been spent to obtain a good water supply from an uninhabited watershed, and as a result 800 deaths annually from intestinal diseases have been prevented. Another $2,000,000 has been spent on a modern sewer system. The canals have been cleansed, polluted wells have been closed, jails have been made sanitary, beriberi, which used to cause 5,000 deaths annually, is being largely reduced, the plague has been completely extirpated, and there has been no cholera for a year.

Studied By Other Nations.

It is a splendid record, and those who have had part in making it take reasonable pride in the attention which these reforms have attracted throughout the Far East. During the past four years experts have come from Japan, China, Hongkong, Indo-China, the Straits Settlements, Java, India, the Federated Malay states, Australia, Ceylon, Siam and other countries to study the American methods of dealing with tropical diseases, and the new Chinese republic has invited a sanitary official from the Philippines to come to China to give advice in regard to the reforms to be undertaken there. The leper colony was the first in the Orient, but now at least three countries are planning to take the same sten, and at a conference held in 1912 at Hongkong an agreement for similar quarantine regulations throughout the Far East was reached. All this is a notable result of American occupation, and no doubt the islands will be left in spick and span order when the time comes to leave them to work out their own destiny. It is hopeful that the Filipinos have been persuaded to take an active interest in sanitation.

BILLIE FAIRFIELD'S PROMISE.

How "Cottage Pudding" Came to Be Good Memory Words.

A. M. L. Hawes in the Sunday School Times: When Billie took the milk to Mrs. Selden one morning, and she asked him if he would bring another quart that night, he said, "Yes'm" promptly, and then never thought of it again until he was in bed.

"Well, I can't take it now," said Billie; but he could not go to sleep, though he turned and tossed and twisted till he was tired. At last he went to the head of the stairs, and shouted, "Mother!"

Mrs. Fairfield had just threaded her needle and stretched a stocking with a big hole in it over her hand. She said, "Oh, dear!" but she went to see what Billie wanted.

"You'll have to go now," she said quietly, when he had told her.

"O mother! I can't go away up there alone." Mrs. Fairfield knew that, for Billie was never out alone at night. His father had gone to bed downstairs with the baby; and, if they waked him, baby would wake too. So Mrs. Fairfield thought a minute. Then she said: "We'll see. I'll have the milk ready when you come down."

When Billie got into the kitchen, his mother stood at the door with her hat and shawl on. Billie began to feel ashamed. He wished he dared to go alone; but he did not, for it was a lonesome road. He took the milk and they tramped over the snow up the long hill without a word. The wind blew in their faces, and Billie's ears were cold; but he had the milk-can in one hand, and pulled his sled with the other, so there was no way to warm them. He was ashamed to ask his mother to take the milk.

Mrs. Selden exclaimed when she opened the door: "Why, what made you come away up here tonight? And you, too, Mrs. Fairfield. It's too bad! I could have got along somehow without the milk."

"Billie promised you," Mrs. Fairfield answered. And Billie wished nobody would look at him.

"'Twan't any matter, she said, mother," he urged, when they had started for home again.

The wind was in their backs now, and Billie's ears were warm.

"The matter was your promise, Billie," said his mother. "Would you break a promise just to get rid of walking up to Mrs. Selden's!"

Billie made no answer. He was ashamed again.

Presently he asked his mother if she would slide down the hill. Mrs. Fairfield laughed; but she tucked herself up on the front of the sled, while Billie stuck on behind, and they slid down the long hill to their own yard, where Billie skillfully steered in. His mother praised the way he managed the sled, but Billie was still uncomfortable.

"Why didn't you say something to me, mother?" he said, while they were warming themselves at the big coal-stove.

His mother smiled at him.

"I'll tell you how you will be punished, Billie," she said. "It's too late to finish mending these stockings tonight, so I shall mend them tomorrow when I was going to make a cottage pudding, and there'll be no pudding for dinner."

He and his father would say "cottage pudding" to each for a long time afterwards if anything was in danger of being neglected or forgotten. When Billie had grown up to be a man, and people said, "Just give me Billie Fairfield's word; that's all I want." Billie would smile, and say, "Yes, my mother taught me to keep a promise."

HOW THEY MARKET GRAIN IN CANADA

Government Board That Assists Farmers to Overcome Natural Handicaps.

Springfield Republican: Owing to the immense distances across which it is necessary to transport the Canadian grain crops and the still somewhat inadequate railway facilities, a complicated system of government inspection and control of the grain trade has been found necessary in the interest of the Canadian farmers. In order to perfect the system the Canada grain act was passed by the dominion parliament in April, 1912. The provisions of this act are outlined in the November issue of the Monthly Bulletin of Economic and Social Intelligence, published by the international institute of agriculture. It is the object of the grain act to give to the farmer as many facilities as possible for the easy sale of his grain, and all possible security that he shall receive the whole price of the sale he has made. In whatever way he may sell his grain—and there are many open to him—the law protects him from dishonesty on the part of the grain dealers or from unfair treatment at the hands of the railway companies.

The act provides for the appointment of a board of grain commissioners, charged with the general supervision of the grain trade throughout the whole dominion. For purposes of inspection Canada is divided into two divisions—the eastern division and the western division. For each division a chief inspector is appointed, having, under the board, the direction of the inspector and deputy inspectors. The board of grain commissioners has power to establish for any division or district in a division, a grain survey board, to serve as a court of appeal against the decisions of the inspectors.

In Canada grain is usually sold by the "grading system." That is, the law establishes certain grades or standards of quality, and the grain is bought and sold in accordance with the grade to which it belongs, from the time it leaves the farmer's wagon until it reaches its destination. Generally speaking, no attempt is made to preserve the identity of any particular shipment of grain, it being bulked with grain of the same grade. If he wishes it, however, a farmer can insist upon the identity of his grain being preserved from the starting point until it reaches Europe.

The "elevators" in which the grain is stored are divided into two classes—"terminal elevators" and "country elevators." The latter are the elevators in which grain is stored prior to inspection. If the owner of grain and the warehouse man cannot agree as to the grade to which it belongs, samples may be sent to the chief inspector, whose decision shall be final. All grain coming from the West is inspected at Winnipeg and its grades fixed. After this sampling and grading it is sent on to the "terminal elevators" at Port Arthur and Fort William. There it is unloaded from the railway wagon to the elevator, weighed and placed in its proper bins under the supervision of government officials. The shipment of grain out of the elevator is similarly supervised and the grain is inspected on its way to the wagon or the lake vessel so as to insure that the grade of grain which enters at one side of the elevator comes out at the shipping side and that there is no deterioration. If the grain is consigned to Europe, it is under supervision until it reaches the Atlantic seaboard.

One of the most important sections of the act is that which gives the government power to construct or acquire terminal elevators. The government ownership of terminal elevators had long been demanded by the farmers of Western Canada, who contended that under the control of private interests these elevators had been run to their detriment. According to a statement issued July last, the board of grain commissioners were preparing to construct an elevator, to be owned and operated by the government, with a capacity of 3,250,000 bushels. The act contains various provisions for regulating the transport of grain by rail. The railway companies cannot refuse to supply wagons and must deal with the applications for wagons in the order in which they are received without discrimination of any kind. When there is a shortage of wagons, the board of grain commissioners can direct the railways to make an equitable distribution of empty grain wagons to all stations or sidings in proportion to the amount of grain available for shipment.

OUTGUESSING IN BASEBALL.

C. H. Claudy in St. Nicholas: Whenever you see a pitcher strike out a batter who doesn't swing at the ball, you can know either that the pitcher is outguessing the batter—serving him "strikes" when the batter expects "balls"—or that the batter has been instructed to "wait all you can," in order to tire the pitcher. Of course, if he takes enough time, and gets the pitcher to throw three balls and two strikes, he may still be fooled on the last ball, and strike out; but in that case the real fault will lie in the orders given him beforehand. When you see a man swing sturdily at the ball and miss it, he is either outguessed by the pitcher, and is swinging at balls he can't reach, or else the pitcher is fooling, not his mind, but his eye—is throwing perfectly good strikes which, nevertheless, curve or "jump" so that the batter is powerless to "connect with them."

JAPANESE FESTIVAL CARS.

Wide World: Most Japanese towns have a shrine or temple dedicated to the tutelary deity of the city. At Ueno, in the Iga province, several beautifully-decorated cars are kept at the shrine, and figure annually in a curious procession.

When the day of the festival arrives hundreds of pious worshipers drag the cars, by means of ropes, through the gaily-decorated streets of the city—thereby, they believe, greatly pleasing the gods of the shrine. The cars are wonderful examples of Japanese decorative art, richly ornamented with gilding and lacquer work.

REAL ESTATE

VOLK SELLS FIRST DIVISION HOLDINGS FOR $350,000

Duluth Man Makes Fortune From Steel Plant Property.

Chicago and Minneapolis Investors Take Over Big Tract.

One of the largest and most significant real estate deals which has been consummated in Duluth for the past six years was closed yesterday afternoon, when Andrew C. Volk, one of the townsite owners at Gary, transferred his entire holdings in Gary, First division, to a syndicate of Chicago and Minneapolis investors headed by Alfred W. Kuehnow. The purchase consists of about 700 lots and the consideration is reported to be in the neighborhood of $350,000.

The deal is the biggest turn in Duluth realty which has been made since Mr. Volk sold the United States Steel corporation 1,500 acres for the site of their Minnesota steel plant, about seven years ago.

Mr. Kuehnow with his Chicago and Minneapolis associates, the purchasers of the Volk interests in Gary, First division, have taken over the property for investment purposes. The deal is the result of the announcement of the steel plant's model town.

Mr. Volk still retains large holdings of unplatted acreage in the immediate vicinity of Gary and the steel plant, including a choice stretch of river frontage which is being held for dock sites.

Has Made Fortune.

It is understood that when he sold the Steel corporation the 1,500 acre tract up the river six years ago that he realized enough from the deal to pay for the property he retained in Gary, First and Second divisions, and along the river front. This would make it appear that yesterday's deal involving $350,000 represents net profit.

It is currently reported that Mr. Volk has made a good-sized fortune in his operations at Gary during the past few years, and he is firm in his declarations that property owners in the vicinity of the steel plant have barely started to realize the profits which are eventually to be theirs.

The deal at Gary is of more than usual interest to the general public. It shows a healthy trend of the real estate business in that rapidly growing district tributary to Minnesota's largest industry and is accepted as an indication of what may be expected in the line of developing that end of the city.

Richardson, Day & Cheadle report considerable activity during the past week. Most of the sales made were for improvement. Among the deals closed were sales of the following:

Lot 4, block 18, Highland park, to Thomas McMeekin.

Lot 10, block 6, Trigg's and Kennedy's division, to J. A. Robertson.

A 50-foot frontage on Olney street, West Duluth, Sixth division, to Margaret A. McNeil.

Lots in Chamber's division to Joe Andrzejewski and Mrs. T. Wyman.

Forty acres in section 18-48-14, at $100 per acre.

Forty acres in section 36-52-12.

A 75-foot frontage on Eighth street, near Twenty-seventh avenue east, to Walter G. Amundson, who will erect a fine home on the lot at once.

The firm is platting 160 acres in section 10-50-14 into one acre tracts, to be known as Norton's Acre Tracts.

A. C. VOLK.

They are also grading the roads through this tract, Jacob Friedman having the contract. This adjoins the Norton Outlots north of the Villa Scholastica and Hartley's Woodland farm.

Lot selling at Gary this week continued at a brisk pace in spite of the inclement weather. A. W. Kuehnow disposed of five business and home sites, the Home Realty company closed up three sales and the Steel Plant Investment company sold twenty-four lots for Watson S. Moore.

The Alliance Real Estate company of which George E. Lynott is general sales manager, advises the sale of three tracts at Exeter farms during the past week and of two lots at Ironton, Fourth division, which adjoins the site which has been selected by the steel plant for the model town.

E. W. Markell advises that inquiry for property in the new Motor Line division near Woodland has been very good and that a number of sales have been closed during the past two weeks.

An item of more or less interest in the real estate transfers of the week is a deed which was put on record conveying the northerly 174 feet of the block between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth avenues west and Second and Third streets from the Reverend Oblate Fathers, incorporated, to the church of St. Jean de Baptiste. The consideration named in the transfer was $32,000.

DULUTH ON VERGE OF ERA OF TREMENDOUS ACTIVITY

Real Estate Owners Welcome Announcement of Model Town.

Believe It Will Bring Reawakening in All Duluth Property.

Settles Fact That Big Growth Will Be on This Side.

Is Duluth on the verge of an era of tremendous real estate activity?

Owners of real estate up the river, whether at Smithville, New Duluth or Gary believe it is and welcome the announcement, which was made this week by the United States Steel corporation, to the effect that $1,300,000 would be expended in the building of homes for employes at the steel plant.

The building of a model town by the steel company is regarded as a big item by the real estate men, who figure that the proposition will boom all river realty, in fact all Duluth realty, rather than hurt the chances of the suburb to grow. That there will be enough for all is the general sentiment.

Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club, had the following to say:

"The announcement by the steel corporation of the appropriation to cover building of houses for their employes is the most important announcement which Duluth has received in some time. It will do more to impress our own people and visitors with the fact that the steel plant is built for actual operation than even the construction of the immense plant itself. Knowing, as I do, from my intimate connection with the transportation interests of the city, that its transportation position has been immensely strengthened in the past two years and is being improved every month, I cannot help but feel that added emphasis must be laid on this demonstration that the steel company have faith in Duluth as a producing and distributing point in the steel business.

"Remembering the development yet to come in the iron ranges surrounding us, it is only common sense to believe that the plant here will be enlarged as rapidly as the demands of this growing western country call upon it; and that these demands must come insistently and increase steadily. Everything points to an immediate acceleration of the rate of growth of this city and warrants us in the conclusion that the position of Duluth is finally forcing the recognition it is entitled naturally to have."

Watson S. Moore, an operator at Gary, has given out the following interview with regard to the matter:

The announcement of the steel corporation recently made, means that Duluth's tremendous new steel plant will soon be in operation.

"An announcement such as this, a housing proposition alone, involving an expenditure of $1,300,000, guaranteeing as it does the speedy operation of a plant upon which the hopes of our city for years have been built, should stir the city from end to end. It also definitely settles the fact that both the plant and the town will be on this side of the river.

"Such an announcement with all it means to a city if made in any other Western city would set the town wild with excitement. Things are happening fast in Duluth. Almost every railroad system in the Northwest is now here or pointed in this direction. Will none of these things move us?

Only the Beginning.

"All our people need is to study the situation and grasp the facts, to be turned from doubting Thomases to believing citizens. One steel corporation official stated to me that the new steel plant now about to be started, big as it is, is only the beginning of what is to be done in Duluth. They are just laying the foundations.

"The announcement means an immediate large increase in our population with all that such increase in population means. More business for everybody, increased opportunities for business, new business enterprises coming to the city and greatly increased real estate activity.

"It is necessary that some one should build a large number of houses to begin with, to care for these men and their families. No one else has the money or the knowledge of the company's needs to take care of such a gigantic proposition, as the company itself. They can, however, only care for a portion of the men.

"The entire adjacent territory will be called upon to help house the employes of the company; provide locations for new business concerns and the large population not employed by the company, that will come in the wake of such an enterprise.

"As the result of this announcement others can go ahead according to their means and make investments with safety and proceed with the construction of buildings and do their share towards preparing for the speedy coming of this army of people to our city. I myself will go ahead at once and erect a number of additional houses upon property in which I am interested. The present demand for houses already exceeds the supply."

A. C. Volk, another Gary operator, expresses himself as being well pleased with the announcement of the steel corporation. He says:

"Owners of the townsite at Gary are jubilant over that fact that the company has decided to build a certain number of homes for workingmen. It relieves them of a big responsibility in the way of a housing proposition. It is a practical way of solving the situation at the start.

"It is undoubtedly one of the best things that ever could happen for that end of the city. It will boom things all around there. For one thing, it will probably mean that city water, gas and sewer will be brought to Gary and vicinity and that street car service will soon follow."

BUILDING BOOM PROMISED FOR STEEL PLANT DISTRICT

Corporation's Model Town Will Be Augmented By Private Activity.

First Installment of Ten Houses—New Buildings for Ranges.

Coming on the heels of the announcement that the United States Steel corporation will build a model town for its employes on its property is the assurance that the upper river district at Gary and vicinity will see one of the most extensive building programs which has been attempted in Duluth for years.

The steel company will outlay $1,300,000 and will construct about 350 homes and apartment buildings. At the same time the townsite holders at Gary and many of the private lot owners are hastening their plans to improve their property.

The townsite owners are expected to erect at least 100 new houses at Gary this summer. Contracts will be signed up within the coming week for the first installment of ten, according to Watson S. Moore, who has extensive interests at Gary. Other contracts will follow in quick succession and the indications are that Gary will witness a building boom this summer.

In spite of the fact that a number of new buildings have been erected at Gary this spring, every house is now occupied and housing conditions are none too good. The first of the steel company's houses are expected to be put up within the next two months.

Wangenstein & Gilluson, architects, are taking figures on a two-story and basement hotel building to be erected at Moose Lake, Minn., by the Duluth Brewing & Malting company. The estimated cost of the structure is $15,000.

The same firm will take bids next week on the remodeling of a store front at 123 West Superior street. The building is owned by Martin Smith and is to be occupied by the Sorensen Shoe company. A modern front will be installed.

Work will start next week on excavating for the $80,000 hotel building which is to be erected at the northwest corner of Twentieth avenue west and Superior street. The plans were prepared by this firm. Charles Danielson has the general contract.

Other projects are reported to be progressing favorably. Piles are now being driven by George H. Lounsberry, contractor, for the William Peet building to be erected at 222-224 West Michigan street. The building will be six stories, reinforced concrete and strictly fireproof. It is to be occupied by the Peyton Paper company.

The Colonial theater, which is being built for P. Johnson on Central avenue, is progressing favorably. The brick is now being laid.

At Virginia, work has been started on the new $100,000 First National Bank building, which when completed will be the finest commercial structure on the range. The plans for the building were prepared by F. G. German, architect of this city.

The building will be 50 by 120, five stories high and will be constructed of reinforced concrete. It will be modern in every respect including elevator service. The contract is being handled by Andrew Grande.

Holstead & Sullivan, architects, are taking figures on a Sisters' Home to be built for the Church of the Sacred Heart at Cloquet this summer. The building will be of brick construction and will cost $10,000.

The same firm is taking figures on a two-room brick schoolhouse to be erected at Blackberry, Minn., at a cost of $8,000. The contract will be let on Monday, May 19.

The city is advertising for bids on the remodeling and redecorating job at the city hall on plans which have been prepared by Vernon J. Price, architect. The bids will be opened on May 23.

QUEEN BUYS BUNGALOW.

Alexandra, Mother of England's King, Owns a Pretty Cottage.

Dowager Queen Alexandra of England has become a bungalow owner, says the New York Sun. The house is at Snettisham and when the mother of King George is in that part of England she stops at the bungalow. It is said to be one of the prettiest little houses in England, a country noted for its attractive cottages and manors.

At a distance it looks like a little country church, but as one draws near a pretty house is disclosed. Its peaked roof is not as flat as in the general run of bungalows, and the end walls are covered with a heavy coat of ivy like most old English churches.

The peak of the roof has the inscription: "Nisi Dominus," followed by letters signifying, "Alexandra Dowager Queen." The first two Latin words form the motto of the city of Edinburgh and are the beginning of a Latin version of Psalm 127, which in English is "Except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it."

SUMMER PROGRAM OF ARCHITECTS' CLUB.

Within a few days it is expected that the summer syllabus of the Duluth Architectural club will be announced. The club is planning on an active season of lectures and entertainments and is looking forward with much interest to the schedule which is being worked out.

NOT FAIR TO BACHELOR MAIDS

Crying Need in Duluth for Building With One, Two and Three Room Apartments.

Duluth builders are not playing fair with the bachelor maids.

Their indifference to the crying need for suitable individual quarters, such as the two-rooms-with bath apartments, is said to be driving spinsters into matrimony. Duluth has a fairly good proportion of five, six, seven and eight-room flats, but for the bachelor girl—and the batchelor boy, for that matter—or the newly weds who want to start homekeeping in a tabloid pigeon cote, there is no refuge except the baneful boarding house or the very public "private rooming house."

According to a Duluth woman who is an ardent devotee to "single blessedness" Duluth is "years and years" behind other cities of the country and some few "centuries" behind Los Angeles in respect to single apartment accommodations. Here is what she has to say about the lack of such miniature homes here and the utility of those elsewhere:

"There are hundreds of teachers, stenographers, and women in many other occupations who would welcome just such a home. A building arranged in small apartments—one room and bath, or two rooms and bath, or perhaps bath and a kitchenette—would be rented before it was built, so great is the need for such accommodations. I recently spent a season in the up-to-date city of Los Angeles and I will decribe the home one can find there: In that part of the city called Boyle Heights—a nice residence section—you can rent an apartment consisting of a large living room, kitchenette and bath completely furnished, together with all necessary cooking utensils—bed linen, towels and tea towels being given out weekly. The living room has a mantel with wooden paneling below, and touching a knob there rolls out of a recess in the wall what is called a 'disappearing bed,' because it can be rolled out of sight when not needed; there is also in the room a fine box couch, so that two people could occupy the apartment, one using the bed and the other the couch; telephone service is also included in this rental. The house in which this apartment was located was three stories high with large central halls and apartments on both sides, there were three wide piazzas at the end of the halls with a fine view over the city and everything was clean, cool and thoroughly sanitary."

MANY REALTY FORTUNES DUE PURELY TO LUCK

Foresight, Good Judgment and Quickness Also Have Helped New York Owners to Wealth.

There is romance in New York city real estate, but a great deal of it never comes to the attention of the public, says the New York Sun. Interesting stories might be read between the lines of many of the deeds and mortgages copied and filed away in the city's great Hall of Records. If the copyists only were clairvoyants and romanticists what tales they could tell. The most interesting things that such recorded changes of real estate ownership indicate are instances of wealth suddenly acquired and spectacular deals which have brought theretofore unknown men into prominence and influence, if not affluence.

While there is a strong fascination about stories of money made quickly in any way, a special interest seems to attach to accounts of big and quick profits in real estate, and people admire the man or the group of men that can do big things in this field of activity.

Nowhere else are there such interesting examples of money made in real estate as in New York city, where the rapid growth of population and the great public improvements and stupendous engineering undertakings that are being carried on to help the city keep up with its own progress have resulted in the almost magical creation of fortunes.

There are many instances of pure luck or what might be called a wise choice of ancestors among those who are enjoying the benefits of the vast enhancement in realty values in New York city, but there are also examples of the exercise of foresight, good judgment and quickness in taking advantage of opportunities and the latter are really the more fascinating. However, no such article as this would be complete without mention of cases where the mere inheritance of property which has increased largely in value has made the owners rich practically without any initiative or action on their part.

Remarkable Increase.

One of the most remarkable stories of increased values on Fifth avenue is that of the Burton property on the west side of the avenue between Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth streets. The block front, with the adjoining building at 1 West Thirty-eighth street, was, at one time, owned by Robert L. Burton. He disposed of all the plot with the exception of one parcel on Fifth avenue and the two side street pieces. In 1900 he gave these properties to his two sons, and since then the latter have purchased all but the 50-foot corner of Thirty-ninth street. In 1874 the late John S. Huyler bought 428 from the elder Burton for less than $10,000. In 1902 he resold it to the sons for $195,000. Adjoining property at 430 was sold in 1885 for $95,000. The Thirty-eighth street corner has experienced an almost incredible appreciation in value. The parcel, 25.9 by 117 feet, with a small L in the rear, was acquired by Mrs. Margaret Switzer in 1887 for $170,000. About 1909 the Burton brothers paid her $925,000 for it, a profit to Mrs. Switzer of $755,000 in a little over twenty years.

Rapid growth of real estate values in New York city has closely followed transportation improvements. It is safe to say that the present subway has produced the most remarkable enhancement of values ever witnessed in any city. It remains to be seen if the new subways will give an illustration of history repeating itself to the great advantage of property owners along the new rapid transit routes. In 1901 a syndicate headed by the late Charles T. Barney acquired a tract of about 110 lots near the station at One Hundred and Thirty-seventh street, Washington Heights, for $950,000. Within four years the company realized a profit of $800,000 on the parcel. In Forty-second street a noteworthy development began shortly after the subway was opened, and has continued steadily to the present time, and is now being accelerated by the completion of the new Grand Central terminal. The property at 8 East Forty-second street sold in 1900 for $80,000 and today is worth upward of $200,000.

Due To the Subway.

The Dyckman tract lying beyond Fort George at the north end of Manhattan has furnished examples of large real estate profits due entirely to the subway. In fact, some of the recent sales show a larger percentage of increase than can be found almost anywhere else on Manhattan Island. In 1904 a lot on the east side of Tenth avenue between Two Hundred and Sixth and Two Hundred and Seventh streets sold for $1,100. Recently the same property changed hands at a price of $12,500. The corner of Post avenue and Emerson street, a plat 100x100, was bought for $4,000 in 1899. In 1905 Minturn Post Collins paid $47,500 for the same plot and today it is valued at $10,000. A plot of six lots on Two Hundred and Seventh street near Tenth avenue was acquired in 1904 at the rate of $1,600 a lot. The property has been sold five times since then and the last sale developed a price of $9,000 a lot, an increase of nearly 600 per cent since 1904.

But although these instances of almost pure luck or reaping the benefit of the wonderful "unearned increment" are interesting they are really paltry compared with the stories of the rewards obtained by being able to plan broadly, organize effectively and carry out a determination with undaunted courage. In other words, the noteworthy and praiseworthy thing in real estate enterprise is the constructive idea as opposed to mere passivé acceptance of such benefits as accrue to one in the right position to profit by the operation of the great law of supply and demand in real estate, as inevitable in its effect as the law of gravitation itself. It takes a man with a vision to make money in real estate. He must look ahead and see what the future probably has in store for any particular city or section of a city, any special tract of real estate or even a single plot. While there is an element of chance in real estate success, and sometimes it is due to having large capital or good credit with which to operate, most often it is the result of being shrewd enough to recognize an opportunity and courageous and forceful enough to grasp it.

They Looked Ahead.

Take, for example, a group of men in Brooklyn, including Frank Bailey, Remsen Johnson and William M. Greve, who at the present time are in the way of making a lot of money just because they were able to look ahead ten or a dozen years and see the future utility of a certain long unimproved tract on the ocean front of the Borough of Queens, acting with an appreciation of what Macaulay called "the present value of a distant advantage."

The reason that this sandy tract, now the last available ocean front residence property in New York city, was not sooner opened up for development is the fact that nothing could be done about it pending the law's delays in clearing up the title involved in part because of conflicting claims of the United States government and the state of New York. But that has been all cleared up and already many

THE PATRICK KNITTING MILL.

Good progress is attending the construction of the Kitchi Gammi clubhouse which is being built at the northwest corner of Ninth avenue east and Superior street at a cost of $143,000. The building will soon be under cover. Within the next month it is expected that the new $100,000 knitting mill of the Patrick company, which is being built at Twenty-ninth avenue west and Superior street, will be ready for occupancy. Lack of material has delayed construction somewhat, but Contractor George H. Lounsberry reports favorable progress at the present time. Not a single accident has occurred while the building has been in course of construction.

fine streets and houses are there and a considerable community has been built up. A portion of the land has been sold for about $1,000,000 to New York city for a public park.

Similar good judgment and initiative made ex-State Senator William H. Reynolds rich. He was successful in a number of important real estate developments in the city before he took up his great work of creating a whole city by the sea. At present he is at the head of a company which is building a new Atlantic City at Long Beach, on the ocean side of Long Island, a few miles beyond the city limits of New York.

Started on a "Shoestring."

About six years ago James H. Cruikshank and William D. Kilpatrick, two energetic young New Yorkers, were real estate and insurance agents on a small scale. But they were on the lookout for opportunity, and when it came knocking it did not have to smash down the door and drag them out of bed. They were "on the job." As a result, while they started their operations half a dozen years ago on the proverbial shoestring—in this case a borrowed $1,000—the pare today worth at least $300,000, and at that rate they soon will be breaking into the ranks of the millionaires. These men early in their partnership decided that it was best to get out of the beaten path of real estate activity. They saw their opportunity in the middle west side portion of Manhattan in what is known as the Greenwich Village section of the old Ninth ward.

One of the most spectacular cases of large and quick profits in New York real estate has to do with a small but conspicuous piece of property the dimensions of which are 31 feet 10 inches by 50 feet 6 inches by 45 feet 7 inches by 16 feet, hemmed in on two sides by the big department store on the northwest corner of Broadway and West Thirty-fourth street. This is particularly interesting because Robert Smith, the man who a short time ago made a profit of $625,000 on the sale of this plot, not more than thirty years ago was a poor Russian immigrant boy, who started his business career in New York on about $5 and has always been his own boss, never having received a dollar of wages or salary from anybody. Merchandizing is his business, but he has made several fortunate deals in real estate. When the land surrounding this corner piece was bought for the purpose of building the big department store in 1901 the owner, Alfred Duane Pell, was in Europe and could not be reached. When he came back Mr. Smith went to him and offered him $200,000 for the plot. The bargain was closed at $575,000, which was quite a good deal for Mr. Pell, inasmuch as thirty years before his father had bought it for $30,000.

Some time ago Mr. Smith sold the property for about $1,000,000, but he was so convinced that it would be worth $1,500,000 in a few years that he has made a contract to buy it back again.

LAKE AS HIGHWAY FOR HOUSEMOVERS

Lake Michigan has proved, in one instance at least, an economical highway for house moving. The owner of a house and lot at Fifty-fourth street and Lake avenue, Chicago, and a lot at Lake avenue, and Seventy-seventh street, desired to move the house to the latter, some three miles distant, but found that the moving operation on land would cost him much more than the structure was worth. Then, convinced that he had a white elephant on his hands, he confided his troubles to a friend, who sarcastically remarked that he had better use it as a private yacht, and this gave him the idea of moving the house by water. Subsequently, continues Popular Mechanics, the house, which is a large two-story structure, was moved over to a pontoon bridge, made necessary by the shallowness of the water along the shore, and rolled on to two scows, which were towed three miles to the new location.

It took about three days of work to get the house on and off the scows, although the lake trip was accomplished in a little less than an hour. The cost of the operation was less than $1,000.

The business formerly conducted by Mr. Wangenstein alone will now be carried on under the firm name of Wangenstein & Gilluson in the Providence building. Mr. Gilluson has been in the office of Mr. Wangenstein for a number of years.

The Carlson Land company of Hibbing filed articles of incorporation yesterday afternoon with the register of deeds. Connors, all of Hibbing.

ORIGIN OF GANGMEN.

American Magazine: "The gangmen start as boys in the tenement house districts. The kids run in bunches and fight each other. The gang that wins out holds sway and becomes a desperate and hard crowd. Even before they drop the curtains (put on the first pair of long trousers) they get to running chances with the crooked game of robbing drunken men. The first watch they get they find it easy to turn into money at a pawnbroker's. If a cop sees a kid leaving a pawnbroker's he knows what is doing. If he goes in the shop to ask what about it the pawnbroker offers to slip him a little change. If the cop doesn't take the money the Fagin runs to his district leader. The district leader either persuades the cop to drop the case or has him shot off his beat if where he will find nothing but trouble.

"The young gangman never works. You can see him standing around the corner saloons and cigar stores and pool rooms in every election district in the city. He gets to know all the gamblers and crooks, and when he is 20 he doesn't mind trying a footpad job if the street is dark and clear. As he works for the party on election day he can always get bail if he is arrested. If he makes a clean-up on a job, a lawyer who stands in with the district leader shakes him down for the most of the money and the politician gets a drag on the fee. It doesn't take him many years to get in the gunman class. 'Monk' Eastman, Humpty Jackson, Chick Trigger, Big Jack Zelig, and the rest of them started that way. They always had protection, and when they got in trouble had bail and lawyers ready for them. They will cripple a man for life for $25 and kill one for $100."

EVOLUTIONS OF THE BATTLESHIP FLEET.

New York Post: Perhaps you have watched the evolutions of the battleship fleet in formation and have wondered whether those great ships, preserving that perfect alignment and distance, must not be parts of one single whole. If you are on board one of them, the illusion is still more striking. Perhaps you will not observe the slightest change in the line forward or aft, in a day's time. One man especially will never forget how, standing on the same spot on the bridge of the Rhode Island, he saw the sun set three nights in succession over the identical funnel of the Maine, following behind. As the red ball sank into the Pacific the stack split it evenly to the watcher's sight—three nights running!

WHEN MORGAN AND JAY GOULD CLASHED

An Exciting Chapter in High Finance.

Kansas City Times: The one point in the career of the late J. Pierpont Morgan upon which all intelligent students of the man agree is that he built up the properties he took hold of instead of tearing them down. There was nothing of the financial pirate about him; he never wrecked a railroad in order to help swell his fortune.

And in this tendency to build up instead of tearing down he stood diametrically opposite such millionaires as Jay Gould, founder of the Gould fortunes. All of which is preliminary to telling something of Morgan's first big fight with Gould, a fight that caught the public eye, and incidentally a fight in which the practical Gould was thoroughly and effectively beaten.

A Railroad the Prize.

It was in 1869 that the Gould-Morgan fight took place, and the prize for which they fought was the old Albany & Susquehanna railroad, a stretch of track 124 miles long, which connected the New York Central at Albany with the Erie railroad at Binghamton, N. Y. Gould wanted it to form a connecting link between Pennsylvania and New England, and started after it in characteristic, ruthless style. He bought a block of stock and caused the road to be thrown into bankruptcy. "Admiral Jim" Fisk, Gould's principal ally, and as picturesque and unscrupulous an old speculator as ever lived, was appointed a receiver.

It must be remembered that the handling of American railroad finances in 1867 reeked with a lawlessness almost unthinkable. Jay Gould had judges in the state of New York, and plenty of them, who were absolutely bought and paid for. He had only to tell them what sort of an injunction, receivership or legal what-not he desired, and they drew it up for him quickly and accurately. And if the law was slow in adding the work of plunder, there was Admiral Jim Fisk ready and eager to bring a gang of Bowery toughs to create a "rough house" in a directors' meeting, throw the directors of the opposition bodily out of doors and run the meeting to suit his dictates.

Ramsey, president of the Albany & Susquehanna, was panic-stricken when he saw that Gould was making moves to grab his road. Ho went to Samuel Sloan, president of the Hudson River railroad, and Sloan advised him to see J. P. Morgan.

"He's not afraid of Gould," Sloan said, "and he can fight. If your road is to be saved to you, Morgan can do it."

Morgan Agreed to Help.

Now, Morgan in those days was just past 30, and he had in no sense become a public figure. He was a thriving banker; but he had imagination and courage. And he agreed to help save the Susquehanna from Jay Gould. Of course, Morgan was to profit by the deal—that was only business. But it was better to have Morgan make a reasonable profit than to see Jay Gould wreck the property.

Morgan got first a full account of all the proceedings of Gould and Fisk. He then went to work with two lawyers to figure out how best to defeat Gould. Morgan knew well enough that Gould owned all the state judges around Manhattan island, so he prepared to fight the legal side of the case before an upstate judge, a member of the state supreme court at Albany from whom he could feel reasonably sure of getting justice.

A stockholders' meeting was called at Albany. Jim Fisk came up from New York with a carload of "roughnecks," intending to break up the meeting, throw enough of the opposition down stairs and out the door to leave his party a "quorum," and run the meeting to suit himself. But Mr. Morgan was forehanded. He learned about the scheme several hours before the meeting, and he could fight fire with fire, though rough and tumble proceedings were not much to his taste. There was only one stairway to the room where the stockholders' meeting was to be held, and when Fisk appeared with the following from the Bowery, Morgan and President Ramsay of the Susquehanna road were waiting at the top of the stairway to receive them. Fisk was thrown bodily down stairs by Ramsay, and alighted sprawling in the midst of his followers, who forthwith fled. Before Fisk could either follow their example or try to get back upstairs, he was nabbed by a policeman and dragged away protesting to a police station. There the man in uniform shoved him in through the door and disappeared.

Arrest Was a Fake.

And then Fisk learned that the supposed officer was not a policeman at all, but an employe of Morgan and Ramsey, disguised in uniform who had been posted at the foot of the stairs especially to get Fisk. The delay and the confusion had served to allow Morgan and Ramsey to handle their stockholders' meeting without interruption in the meanwhile.

But "Admiral Jim" Fisk—they called him admiral because as president of the Fall River boat line he chose to wear an admiral's costume—was not easily beaten. Ramsey and Morgan had the meeting. Very well. In the meantime Fisk would take the railroad. Employes of the Erie railroad, a Gould and Fisk property, were sent out, accompanied by the thugs who had been imported to break up the stockholders' meeting, and they were given instructions to capture all the rolling stock, engines and coaches of the Albany & Susquehanna railroad. In two work cars drawn by an Erie locomotive they set out over the Susquehanna's railroad to carry out their commission.

And thereafter ensued a week or two of as picturesque and unbelievable warfare as is on record in the annals of American railroading. The Erie men and the Susquehanna men were both trying to run trains over the same railroad. Fisk's followers captured cars and locomotives; Ramsey's men tore up track so that the Gould crowd couldn't get anywhere with their stolen rolling stock. Train service was at a standstill, of course. New York papers sent "war correspondents" up to the firing line on the Albany & Susquehanna.

Near Binghamton the bloodiest encounter of the "war" took place. The Erie crowd had a train filled with armed men at one end of a tunnel; the Albany & Susquehanna had a similar train at the other end. Finally the Erie crowd got up steam and came through. They were not molested, but as they came out on a curve on the far side, they saw the Susquehanna train coming down on them, full speed, on the same track. The Erie train whistled "down brakes"; the Susquehanna train did not slacken speed. The engines crashed together.

A Thousand Men in Battle.

As soon as the smash was over, the work cars of both trains disgorged their occupants, who went to work mauling one another with clubs, fists and revolvers. A thousand "rough necks" were engaged in battle. They fought until dark. Not many of them were killed, for the revolvers were few. When the fighting ceased the advantage lay with the Albany & Susquehanna crowd—Morgan's and Ramsey's men.

While this was going on, Morgan succeeded in persuading Gould and Fisk to write to the governor of New York, who had already threatened to take charge of the road and run it with militia men, telling him it was impossible to agree, and that he had better carry out his plan. The governor appointed an Albany man, A. Bleecker Banks, to look after the affairs of the road. There followed a calm. And then, before Gould and Fisk could gather their wits, Morgan held another stockholders' meeting, elected a new board of directors, the directors met on short notice and empowered Morgan to lease the railroad. Morgan rushed to New York, the lease and it was signed before Gould even heard about it. It was too late then for him to tie up the proceedings with an injunction; the road was safely in Morgan's hands. The stock of the Albany & Susquehanna, which had been selling around 18, jumped 100 points when it became known that the road was safe once for all from the clutches of Gould and Fisk.

J. Pierpont Morgan had won his first spectacular fight.

TURN SOMERSAULTS AND DEFY THE DOCTOR

Swedish Specialist Has New Panacea for the Ills the Flesh Is Heir to.

New York Press: If your vertebrae haven't as yet reached the stage of rigidity that to make a bow means to fall down, then there is no reason on earth why you should suffer from any of the ills that supposedly are the inheritance of sinful man—at least, that is the contention of one Dr. H. Hogner, a Swedish medical specialist.

There is nothing from housemaid's knee to the seven days' itch, with all the intervening complaints, that cannot be cured by a daily performance of the stunts that are best known as part of a circus clown's repertoire.

The particular feat that brought Humpty-Dumpty fame is worth more as a panacea than all the prescriptions that could be written from a close reading of the pharmacopoeia. The materia medica sinks into oblivion as a treatise on the subject and the Druggist's Manual is as useful as a dream book is to follow the movements of a Wall street operator as compared to a three-quarter back fall, a pirouette or the ordinary flip-flop of vaudeville.

Seems unlikely, but it's true; that is, if we are to take the Doc's word for it, and he ought to know, for he tried it, and, as he tells it, won back his lost health. The doctor, as the story goes, was suffering from an ailment that suggested the name of a railroad station on the Inter-Hellenic railway, that is, he owned the foreign and domestic rights to a case of gastroptosis, a complaint in which the stomach gets kittenish or trespasses upon preserves not intended for it by nature.

The doctor followed the course of his stomach for several days, and at several stages of its travels undertook to destroy its nomadic tendencies, but to no avail. Being a man of medicine and one of standing in his native city, Stockholm, the doctor couldn't see the humor of having his friends continually ask him if his stomach had reached home last night, and he accordingly undertook to overcome his food receptacle's wanderings.

Though a physician of standing, his fate was that of the ordinary man who made public the fact that he suffered from some complaint. Remedies from the old Southern idea of carrying a baked potato about in his pocket to dieting and frying the system in one of those incinerators were suggested to him, and he tried them all. Most people do. If there was a drug contained in a recess bottle that his M. D. ship overlooked it was due to eye strain or aphasia, for he had no favorites, and in many instances played return engagements.

Desperate from his sufferings and his failure to get relief, he was on the verge of having one of his own prescriptions filled, but the Doc was a thinking man, and just at that point is where he had the night shift put on his think factory, and the wonderful thought which is the kernel of this article came to him.

At a circus exhibition he had seen the clowns falling off horses, elephants, trapeze bars and the like, and each seemed to increase in happiness as he underwent the hair-raising stunts. The Doc was an explorer, and he felt it incumbent upon himself to try heroic measures if ordinary ones had failed. Accordingly he fell out of his seat in his excitement over the idea. Aside from having a very businesslike usher charge him an extra kroner for the change of seats, the man of medicine experienced no harm, so he decided to proceed further.

The next morning he came to breakfast by way of the stairs toboggan fashion, did a double somersault into the dining room, a three-quarter flip across the table in reaching for the coffee and had his eggs served on the loop. The morning paper he read while standing on his hands and he lit his favorite Stockholm stogie as he fell backward out of the dining room window onto the greensward.

If there was an antic in the calendar of calisthenics that he didn't perform between breakfast and luncheon it was something that was protected by foreign patents upon which he didn't dare to infringe. At any rate the Doc kept up the strenuous life for about a week, and, according to his story, at the end of that period his stomach was so homesick that he couldn't move it with seven dispossess notices and the local town marshal.

In a recent address before the Swedish Medical society the doctor expressed himself as being positive that there was no greater cure for the ordinary ills, and a greater producer of all around health and beauty, than a good rigorous treatment of athletics in which the leading figures should be somersaults, backfalls, flip-flops and three-quarter tumbles. After the address the doctor, who is 60 years of age, to illustrate to his fellows in medicine what a facile stunt it was, walked off the lecture platform on his hands. Aside from droping his car fare from his pants pockets, which rolled from the stage, Dr. Hogner's feat was accredited a big success.

And the fellows with the brass buttons have not called the doctor in yet. Try it over on your piano or up on the roof. They say the effect is amazing. As a secondary thought it is suggested that women folks exercise judgment and discretion in attempting the handwalking stunt.

Charles Weirling, a restaurant proprietor of Beaver Falls, Pa., has received a letter, dated McKeesport, Pa., and containing a draft for $22.08, which the writer says is in restitution for meals out of which he cheated Weirling several years ago.

A "TALE OF WOE AMONG THE DAFFODILS"

Of John Masefield's Latest Poem Quiller-Couch Says That Neither in Design Nor Telling Can "Enoch Arden" Approach Artistic Truth of "The Daffodil Fields."

Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch in the London Mail: I claim some little right to rejoice, and, anyhow, I am going to rejoice. Yes, some of us who have steadily protested against the malady of making after dinner speeches announcing the death of good literature have a real right to rejoice when a work of unmistakable achievement comes along to confound these Jeremiahs.

Even such a work is John Masefield's "The Daffodil Fields." For reasons in the main temperamental I could fetch up no thrill over "The Everlasting Mercy," though I questioned not its title to the crown awarded by the academic committee. But "The Daffodil Fields"—a narrative poem simple in conception, just in design, intensely full, ringing true, with a diction that duly rises and falls with the "argument" and rises at need to a very rare beauty.

The conception is simple. Mr. Masefield rigorously confines himself to the younger Dumas' demand for "three actions and a passion," and to Meredith's dictum that—

"• • • In human life, God wot,
No villain needs be. Passion spins the plot:
We are betrayed by what is false within."

There are only three actors in this tragedy—Michael, Lion and Mary, children of three neighboring Shropshire farmsteads. Each for aught that concerns us in their story, is an only child and the parents stand behind them as shadows, impotent against fate. The story, like most of the greater ones, can be reduced to few words.

The good, steady Lion adores Mary, but stands aside because her heart is given to the careless n'er-do-well Michael. Michael, having won her troth, sails for South America, where in the half-bestial life of a ranch he learns to forget, or at least to neglect her, having picked up with a woman of the country. No letters come from him, and so for three years Mary wastes her heart, Lion all the while watching her in honest sorrow.

The Remorseful Lover.

At the end of this time, having to travel out to South America with a champion bull of his rearing, Lion takes occasion to seek out his friend, paints Mary's desolation, and implores the recreant to return; but Michael will not.

They part, and Lion, reaching home, feels himself free now to press his own suit. At length Mary yields and becomes his wife.

The news of his marriage reaching Michael in a newspaper posted to him by Mary along with a handkerchief—his love gift, returned by her—stings the careless lover to remorse. He is a man born to trouble women, and he resolves (as much as men do) to return and feed his remorse with one last look—of course, a fatal last look.

At sight of him Mary cannot choose but own that, despite all, he has been, is, and must always be the one man on earth for her. She goes straightway to her husband, confesses the truth in his parents' presence, and walks out of the house to follow Michael. Most pitifully and yet most nobly the husband—scorned for it by countryside and market town—again and again tries to win her back from destruction; vainly, and—as time passes—with a gathering rage against life.

A Blind Gust of Fury.

It is no small part of the beauty of the story that this rage takes long to translate itself into hatred of Michael, his boyhood's friend, cause of all the woe; and even at the end the tragedy happens not in cold hate, but in a blind gust of fury. The two men meet and slay one another—Lion having forced the fight on Michael, who is actually coming to announce Mary's return—in the daffodil field, where all three had played together as children. The two bodies are carried into the farmhouse, where the poor, tragic woman, dying of heartbreak, decks their common bed with spring flowers of the field. But it is the breast of the beloved, not of the wronged one, that she dies upon.

Now, here is a story of the sort that Tennyson is seen groping toward in "Enoch Arden," and it is no disparagement of Tennyson to say that neither in the design nor in the telling did or could "Enoch Arden" come within miles of the artistic truth of "The Daffodil Fields." In mid-Victorian times even a very great poet could not tackle such a theme; he had to shirk the full consequences of passion, and—even so far as he dared to go—gloss the plain telling with decorative language. The conventions were all arrayed against his venturing further.

Rare Heights of Beauty.

I have said that the diction on due occasion reaches rare heights of beauty, and could cite many passages for evidence, but will content myself with the most poignant stanzas which tell how the broken hearted woman went forth, singing, to the meadows to gather flowers and array her two lovers for burial:

"So triumphing her song of love began,
Ringing across the meadows like old woe
Sweetened by poets to the help of man
Unconquered in eternal overthrow;
Like a great trumpet of the long ago
Her singing towered; all the valley heard
Men jingling down to meadows stopped their teams and stirred.

"And they, the Occleves, hurried to the door,
And burst it, fearing; there the singer lay
Drooped at her lover's bedside on the floor,
Singing her passionate last of life away.
White flowers had fallen from the blackthorn spray
Over her loosened hair. Pale flowers of spring
Filled the white room of death; they covered everything:

"Primroses, daffodils and cuckoo-flowers.
She bowed her singing head on Michael's breast.
'Oh, it was sweet,' she cried, 'that love of ours.
You were the dearest, sweet; I loved you best.
Beloved, my beloved, let me rest . . .
By you forever, little Michael mine.
• • • "

Like a true artist, however, Mr. Masefield will not conclude upon this note of anguish; but, leading us out beside the river that washes the banks whereon the tragedy has played itself out, dismisses us "calm of mind, all passion spent," to follow it down until we decry the masts of shipping, "and all the ocean opens:"

"Then the mates
Cry, and the sunburnt crew no longer waits,
But sing triumphant, and the topsail fills
To this old tale of woe among the daffodils."

My one grievance against Mr. Masefield's handling of his stanza is his too frequent trick of neglecting or misplacing the cesura in the final alexandrine—e. g., "Cawing, or blackly circling in enormous rings." "Boyd'd sounds strange," she answered, 'in my present life.'" But this is not the place to carp over small technicalities, and I prefer to end as I began, by saluting a poet.

HOW TO REFINISH OLD SURFACES.

Woman's World: The first thing to do in refinishing old wood surfaces is to remove all varnish and paint. They may be done easily by the use of a good varnish remover. The varnish remover may be bought at any paint store. It is applied with a brush and allowed to stand for a few minutes; then the varnish and paint is easily removed. If there are any burnt or stained places it may be necessary to scrape the surface with a piece of glass. Then the surface is thoroughly smoothed with sand paper and is ready for a new paint or varnish. If it is desirable to keep the color and grain of the wood as it is, a clear varnish may be used which contains the desired color.

BRAIN IN BASEBALL.

C. H. Claudy in St. Nicholas: To the lad who pitches, let it be said that it is brain as much as brawn which strikes out batters. The major league teams are full of pitchers, no longer in their muscular prime, in whom skill, cunning and knowledge have made up for the efficiency of pace and curve of which time has robbed them. You, too, are in their class, for time has not yet given you all that he will in strength and muscle; so, up against a fine batter, it is cunning which you must employ.

First, then, study your batter and learn what balls he hits most easily, and what he hits with the most difficulty. Normally, you will try to give him only those balls at which he hits with least effect. But not always; sometimes the unexpected ball, exactly where he likes it best, is as effective in its utter surprise as one where he likes it least.

NO WONDER HE WAS ANGRY.

Lippincott's: The previously accepted lover was infuriated when one evening he called on "the only girl" and was informed by her that their engagement was at an end.

"If you insist, Grace Cheever, on breaking off our engagement, I will publish in the Oakdale Times the letters you have written me."

"Use your own pleasure," she replied indifferently, toying with her bracelet. "There is nothing about those letters I need be ashamed of—except the address."

fine streets and houses are there and a considerable community has been built up. A portion of the land has been sold for about $1,000,000 to New York city for a public park.

Similar good judgment and initiative made ex-State Senator William H. Reynolds rich. He was successful in a number of important real estate developments in the city before he took up his great work of creating a whole city by the sea. At present he is at the head of a company which is building a new Atlantic City at Long Beach, on the ocean side of Long Island, a few miles beyond the city limits of New York.

Started on a "Shoestring."

About six years ago James H. Cruikshank and William D. Kilpatrick, two energetic young New Yorkers, were real estate and insurance agents on a small scale. But they were on the lookout for opportunity, and when it came knocking it did not have to smash down the door and drag them out of bed. They were "on the job." As a result, while they started their operations half a dozen years ago on the proverbial shoestring—in this case a borrowed $1,000—the yare today worth at least $300,000, and at that rate they soon will be breaking into the ranks of the millionaires. These men early in their partnership decided that it was best to get out of the beaten path of real estate activity. They saw their opportunity in the middle west side portion of Manhattan in what is known as the Greenwich Village section of the old Ninth ward.

One of the most spectacular cases of large and quick profits in New York real estate has to do with a small but conspicuous piece of property the dimensions of which are 31 feet 10 inches by 50 feet 6 inches by 45 feet 7 inches by 86 feet, hemmed in on two sides by the big department store on the northwest corner of Broadway and West Thirty-fourth street. This is particularly interesting because Robert Smith, the man who a short time ago made a profit of $625,000 on the sale of this plot, not more than thirty years ago was a poor Russian immigrant boy, who started his business career in New York on about $5 and has always been his own boss, never having received a dollar of wages or salary from anybody. Merchandizing is his business, but he has made several fortunate deals in real estate. When the land surrounding this corner piece was bought for the purpose of building the big department store in 1901 the owner, Alfred Duane Pell, was in Europe and could not be reached. When he came back Mr. Smith went to him and offered him $200,000 for the plot. The bargain was closed at $375,000, which was quite a good deal for Mr. Pell, inasmuch as thirty years before his father had bought it for $30,000.

Some time ago Mr. Smith sold the property for about $1,000,000, but he was so convinced that it would be worth $1,500,000 in a few years that he has made a contract to buy it back again.

LAKE AS HIGHWAY FOR HOUSEMOVERS

Lake Michigan has proved, in one instance at least, an economical highway for house moving. The owner of a house and lot at Fifty-fourth street and Lake avenue, Chicago, and a lot at Lake avenue, and Seventy-seventh street, desired to move the house to the latter, some three miles distant, but found that the moving operation on land would cost him much more than the structure was worth. Then, convinced that he had a white elephant on his hands, he confided his troubles to a friend, who sarcastically remarked that he had better use it as a private yacht, and this gave him the idea of moving the house by water. Subsequently, continues Popular Mechanics, the house, which is a large two-story structure, was moved over to a pontoon bridge, made necessary by the shallowness of the water along the shore, and rolled on to two scows, which were towed three miles to the new location.

It took about three days of work to get the house on and off the scows, although the lake trip was accomplished in a little less than an hour. The cost of the operation was less than $1,000.

Takes a Partner.

Of interest in local architectural circles is the announcement that E. C. Gilluson has become associated in business with J. J. Wangenstein, architect. The business formerly conducted by Mr. Wangenstein alone will now be carried on under the firm name of Wangenstein & Gilluson in the Providence building. Mr. Gilluson has been in the office of Mr. Wangenstein for a number of years.

New Land Company.

The Carlson Land company of Hibbing filed articles of incorporation yesterday afternoon with the register of deeds. The new concern is organized to engage in a general real estate and land business with a capital stock of $50,000. The incorporators are John Kleffman, Edward C. Kleffman and John B. Connors, all of Hibbing.

ORIGIN OF GANGMEN.

American Magazine: "The gangmen start as boys in the tenement house districts. The kids run in bunches and fight each other. The gang that wins out holds sway and becomes a desperate and hard crowd. Even before they drop the curtains (put on the first pair of long trousers) they get to running chances with the crooked game by robbing drunken men. The first watch they get they find it easy to turn into money at a pawnbroker's. If a cop sees a kid leaving a pawnbroker's he knows what is doing. If he goes in the shop to ask what about it the pawnbroker offers to slip him a little change. If the cop doesn't take the money the Fagin runs to his district leader. The district leader either persuades the cop to drop the case or has him shot off to a beat where he will find nothing but trouble.

"The young gangman never works. You can see him standing around the corner saloons and cigar stores and pool rooms in every election district in the city. He gets to know all the gamblers and crooks, and when he is 20 he doesn't mind trying a footpad job if the street is dark and clear. As he works for the party on election day he can always get bail if he is arrested. If he makes a clean-up on a job, a lawyer who stands in with the district leader shakes him down for the most of the money and the politician gets a drag on the fee. It doesn't take him many years to get in the gunman class. 'Monk' Eastman, Humpty Jackson, Chick Trigger, Big Jack Zelig, and the rest of them started that way. They always had protection, and when they got in trouble had bail and lawyers ready for them. They will cripple a man for life for $25 and kill one for $100."

EVOLUTIONS OF THE BATTLESHIP FLEET.

New York Post: Perhaps you have watched the evolutions of the battleship fleet in formation and have wondered whether those great ships, preserving that perfect alignment and distance, must not be parts of one single whole. If you are on board one of them, the illusion is still more striking. Perhaps you will not observe the slightest change in the line forward or aft, in a day's time. One man especially will never forget how, standing on the same spot on the bridge of the Rhode Island, he saw the sun set three nights in succession over the identical funnel of the Maine, following behind. As the red ball sank into the Pacific the stack split it evenly to the watcher's sight—three nights running!

WHEN MORGAN AND JAY GOULD CLASHED

An Exciting Chapter in High Finance.

Kansas City Times: The one point in the career of the late J. Pierpont Morgan upon which all intelligent students of the man agree is that he built up the properties he took hold of instead of tearing them down. There was nothing of the financial pirate about him; he never wrecked a railroad in order to help swell his fortune.

And in this tendency to build up instead of tearing down he stood diametrically opposite such millionaires as Jay Gould, founder of the Gould fortunes. All of which is preliminary to telling something of Morgan's first big fight with Gould, a fight that caught the public eye, and incidentally a fight in which the piratical Gould was thoroughly and effectively beaten.

A Railroad the Prize.

It was in 1869 that the Gould-Morgan fight took place, and the prize for which they fought was the old Albany & Susquehanna railroad, a stretch of track 124 miles long, which connected the New York Central at Albany with the Erie railroad at Binghamton, N. Y. Gould wanted it to form a connecting link between Pennsylvania and New England, and he started after it in characteristic, ruthless style. He bought a block of stock and caused the road to be thrown into bankruptcy. "Admiral Jim" Fisk, Gould's principal ally, and as picturesque and unscrupulous an old speculator as ever lived, was appointed a receiver.

It must be remembered that the handling of American railroad finances in 1867 reeked with a lawlessness almost unthinkable. Jay Gould had judges in the state of New York, and plenty of them, who were absolutely bought and paid for. He had only to tell them what sort of an injunction, receivership or legal what-not he desired, and they drew it up for him quickly and accurately. And if the law was slow in aiding the work of plunder, there was Admiral Jim Fisk ready and eager to bring a gang of Bowery toughs to create a "rough house" in a directors' meeting, throw the directors of the opposition bodily out of doors and run the meeting to suit his dictates.

Ramsey, president of the Albany & Susquehanna, was panic-stricken when he saw that Gould was making moves to grab his road. He went to Samuel Sloan, president of the Hudson River railroad, and Sloan advised him to see J. P. Morgan.

"He's not afraid of Gould," Sloan said, "and he can fight. If your road is to be saved to you, Morgan can do it."

Morgan Agreed to Help.

Now, Morgan in those days was just past 30, and he had in no sense become a public figure. He was a thriving banker; but he had imagination and courage. And he agreed to help save the Susquehanna from Jay Gould. Of course, Morgan was to profit by the deal—that was only business. But it was better to have Morgan make a reasonable profit than to see Jay Gould wreck the property.

Morgan got first a full account of all the proceedings of Gould and Fisk. He then went to work with two lawyers to figure out how best to defeat Gould. Morgan knew well enough that Gould owned all the state judges around Manhattan Island, so he prepared to fight the legal side of the case before an upstate judge, a member of the state supreme court at Albany from whom he could feel reasonably sure of getting justice.

A stockholders' meeting was called at Albany. Jim Fisk came up from New York with a carload of "roughnecks," intending to break up the meeting, throw enough of the opposition down stairs and out the door to leave his party a "quorum," and run the meeting to suit himself. But Mr. Morgan was forehanded. He learned about the scheme several hours before the meeting, and he could fight fire with fire, though rough and tumble proceedings were not much to his taste. There was only one stairway to the room where the stockholders' meeting was to be held, and when Fisk appeared with his following from the Bowery, Morgan and President Ramsay of the Susquehanna road were waiting at the top of the stairway to receive them. Fisk was thrown bodily down stairs by Ramsay, and alighted sprawling in the midst of his followers, who forthwith fled. Before Fisk could either follow their example or try to get back upstairs, he was nabbed by a policeman and dragged away protesting to a police station. There the man in uniform shoved him in through the door and disappeared.

Arrest Was a Fake.

And then Fisk learned that the supposed officer was not a policeman at all, but an employe of Morgan and Ramsey, disguised in uniform who had been posted at the foot of the stairs especially to get Fisk. The delay and the confusion had served to allow Morgan and Ramsey to handle their stockholders' meeting without interruption in the meanwhile.

But "Admiral Jim" Fisk—they called him admiral because as president of the Fall River boat line he chose to wear an admiral's costume—was not easily beaten. Ramsey and Morgan had the meeting. Very well. In the meantime Fisk would take the railroad. Employes of the Erie railroad, a Gould and Fisk property, were sent out, accompanied by the thugs who had been imported to break up the stockholders' meeting, and they were given instructions to capture all the rolling stock, engines and coaches of the Albany & Susquehanna railroad. In two work cars drawn by an Erie locomotive they set out over the Susquehanna's railroad to carry out their commission.

And thereafter ensued a week or two of as picturesque and unbelievable warfare as is on record in the annals of American railroading. The Erie men and the Susquehanna men were both trying to run trains over the same railroad. Fisk's followers captured cars and locomotives; Ramsey's men tore up track so that the latter crowd couldn't get anywhere with their stolen rolling stock. Train service was at a standstill, of course. New York papers sent war correspondents up to the firing line on the Albany & Susquehanna.

Near Binghamton the bloodiest encounter of the "war" took place. The Erie crowd had a train filled with armed men at one end of a tunnel; the Albany & Susquehanna had a similar train at the other end. Finally the Erie crowd got up steam and came through. They were not molested, but as they came out on a curve on the far side, they saw the Susquehanna train coming down on them, full speed, on the same track. The Erie train whistled "down brakes"; the Susquehanna train did not slacken speed. The engines crashed together.

A Thousand Men in Battle.

As soon as the smash was over, the work cars of both trains disgorged their occupants, who went to work mauling one another with clubs, fists and revolvers. A thousand "rough necks" were engaged in battle. They fought until dark. Not many of them were killed, for the revolvers were few. When the fighting ceased the advantage lay with the Albany & Susquehanna crowd—Morgan's and Ramsey's men.

While this was going on, Morgan succeeded in persuading Gould and Fisk to write to the governor of New York, who had already threatened to take charge of the road and run it with militia men, telling him it was impossible to agree, and that he had better carry out his plan. The governor appointed an Albany man, A. Bleecker Banks, to look after the affairs of the road. There followed a brief calm. And then, before Gould and Fisk could gather their wits, Morgan had another stockholders' meeting, elected a new board of directors, the directors met on short notice and empowered Morgan to lease the railroad. Morgan rushed to New York, lawyers drew up the lease, and it was signed before Gould even heard about it. It was too late then for him to tie up the proceedings with an injunction; the road was safely in Morgan's hands. The stock of the Albany & Susquehanna, which had been selling around 18, jumped 100 points when it became known that the road was safe once for all from the clutches of Gould and Fisk.

J. Pierpont Morgan had won his first spectacular fight.

TURN SOMERSAULTS AND DEFY THE DOCTOR

Swedish Specialist Has New Panacea for the Ills the Flesh Is Heir to.

New York Press: If your vertebrae haven't as yet reached the stage of rigidity that to make a bow moans to fall down, then there is no reason on earth why you should suffer from any of the ills that supposedly are the inheritance of sinful man—at least, that is the contention of one Dr. H. Hogner, a Swedish medical specialist.

There is nothing from housemaid's knee to the seven days' itch, with all the intervening complaints, that cannot be cured by a daily performance of the stunts that are best known as part of a circus clown's repertoire.

The particular feat that brought Humpty-Dumpty fame is worth more as a panacea than all the prescriptions that could be written from a close reading of the pharmacopoeia. The materia medica sinks into oblivion as a treatise on the subject and the Druggist's Manual is as useful as a dream book is to follow the movements of a Wall street operator as compared to a three-quarter back fall, a pirouette or the ordinary flip-flop of vaudeville.

Seems unlikely, but it's true; that is, if we are to take the Doc's word for it, and he ought to know, for he tried it, and, as he tells it, won back his lost health. The doctor, as the story goes, was suffering from an ailment that suggested the name of a railroad station on the Inter-Hellenic railway; that is, he owned the foreign and domestic rights to a case of gastroptosis, a complaint in which the stomach gets fullish or trespasses upon preserves not intended for it by nature.

The doctor followed the course of his stomach for several days, and at several stages of its travels undertook to destroy its nomadic tendencies, but to no avail. Being a man of medicine and one of standing in his native city, Stockholm, the doctor couldn't see the humor of having his friends continually ask him if his stomach had reached home last night, and he accordingly undertook to overcome his food receptacle's wanderings.

Though a physician of standing, his fate was that of the ordinary man who made public the fact that he suffered from some complaint. Remedies from the old Southern idea of carrying a baked potato about in his pocket to dieting and frying the system in one of those incinerators were suggested to him, and he tried them all. Most people do. If there was a drug contained in a recess bottle that his M. D.-ship overlooked it was due to eye strain or aphasia, for he had no favorites, and in many instances played return engagements.

Desperate from his sufferings and his failure to get relief, he was on the verge of having one of his own prescriptions filled, but the Doc was a thinking man, and just at that point is where he had the night shift put on his think factory, and the wonderful thought which is the kernel of this article came to him.

At a circus exhibition he had seen the clowns falling off horses, elephants, trapeze bars and the like, and each seemed to increase in happiness as he underwent the hair-raising stunts.

The Doc was an explorer, and he felt it incumbent upon himself to try heroic measures if ordinary ones had failed. Accordingly he fell out of his seat in his excitement over the idea. Aside from having a very businesslike usher charge him an extra kroner for the change of seats, the man of medicine experienced no harm, so he decided to proceed further.

The next morning he came to breakfast by way of the stairs tobogganfashion, did a double somersault into the dining room, a three-quarter flip across the table in reaching for the coffee and had his eggs served on the loop. The morning paper he read while standing on his hands, and it hit his favorite Stockholm stogie as he fell backward out of the dining room window onto the greensward.

If there was an antic in the calendar of callisthenics that the Doc didn't perform between breakfast and luncheon it was something that was protected by foreign patent upon which he didn't dare to infringe. At any rate the Doc kept up the strenuous life for about a week, and, according to his story, at the end of that period his stomach was so homesick that he couldn't move it with seven dispossess notices and the local town marshal.

In a recent address before the Swedish Medical society the doctor expressed himself as being positive that there was no greater cure for the ordinary ills, and a greater producer of all around health and beauty, than a good rigorous treatment of athletics in which the leading figures should be somersaults, backfalls, flip-flops and three-quarter tumbles. After the address the doctor, who is 60 years of age, to illustrate to his fellows in medicine what a facile stunt it was, walked off the lecture platform on his hands. Aside from droping his car fare from his pants pockets, which rolled from the stage, Dr. Hogner's feat was accredited a big success.

And the fellows with the brass buttons have not called the doctor in yet. Try it over on your piano or up on the roof. They say the effect is amazing. As a secondary thought it is suggested that women folks exercise judgment and discretion in attempting the handwalking stunt.

Charles Weirling, a restaurant proprietor of Beaver Falls, Pa., has received a letter, dated McKeesport, Pa., and containing a draft for $22.08, which the writer says is in restitution for meals out of which he cheated Weirling several years ago.

A "TALE OF WOE AMONG THE DAFFODILS"

Of John Masefield's Latest Poem Quiller-Couch Says That Neither in Design Nor Telling Can "Enoch Arden" Approach Artistic Truth of "The Daffodil Fields."

Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch in the London Mail: I claim some little right to rejoice, and, anyhow, I am going to rejoice. Yes, some of us who have steadily protested against the malady of making after dinner speeches announcing the death of good literature have a real right to rejoice when a work of unmistakable achievement comes along to confound these Jeremiahs.

Even such a work is John Masefield's "The Daffodil Fields." For reasons in the main temperamental I could fetch up no thrill over "The Everlasting Mercy," though I questioned not its title to the crown awarded by the academic committee. But "The Daffodil Fields"—a narrative poem simple in conception, just in design, intensely felt, ringing true, with a diction that duly rises and falls with the "argument" and rises at need to a very rare beauty.

The conception is simple. Mr. Masefield rigorously confines himself to the younger Dumas' demand for "three actors and a passion," and to Meredith's dictum that

"... In human life, God wot,
No villain needs be. Passion spins the plot:
We are betrayed by what is false within."

There are only three actors in this tragedy—Michael, Lion and Mary, children of three neighboring Shropshire farmsteads. Each for aught that concerns us in their story, is an only child and the parents stand behind them as shadows, impotent against fate. The story, like most of the greater ones, can be reduced to few words.

The good, steady Lion adores Mary, but stands aside because her heart is given to the careless n'er-do-well Michael. Michael, having won her troth, sails for South America, where in the half-bestial life of a ranch he learns to forget, or at least to neglect her, having picked up with a woman of the country. No letters come from him, and so for three years Mary wastes her heart, Lion all the while watching her in honest sorrow.

The Remorseful Lover.

At the end of this time, having to travel out to South America with a champion bull of his rearing, Lion takes occasion to seek out his friend, paints Mary's desolation, and implores the recreant to return; but Michael will not.

They part, and Lion, reaching home, feels himself free now to press his own suit. At length Mary yields and becomes his wife.

The news of his marriage reaching Michael in a newspaper posted to him by Mary along with a handkerchief—his love gift, returned by her—stings the careless lover to remorse. He is a man born to trouble women, and he resolves (as much as men do) to return and feed his remorse with one last look—of course, a fatal last look.

At sight of him Mary cannot choose but own that, despite all, he has been, is, and must always be the one man on earth for her. She goes straightway to her husband, confesses the truth in his parents' presence, and walks out of the house to follow Michael. Most pitifully and yet most nobly the husband—scorned for it by countryside and market town—again and again tries to win her back from destruction; vainly, and—as time passes—with a gathering rage against life.

A Blind Gust of Fury.

It is no small part of the beauty of the story that this rage takes long to translate itself into hatred of Michael, his boyhood's friend, cause of all the woe; and even at the end the tragedy happens not in cold hate, but in a blind gust of fury. The two men meet and slay one another—Lion having forced the fight on Michael, who is actually coming to announce Mary's return—in the daffodil field, where all three had played together as children. The two bodies are carried into the farmhouse, where the poor, tragic woman, dying of heartbreak, decks their common bed with spring flowers of the field. But it is the breast of the beloved, not of the wronged one, that she dies upon.

Now here is a story of the sort that Tennyson is seen groping toward in "Enoch Arden," and it is no disparagement of Tennyson to say that neither in the design nor in the telling did or could "Enoch Arden" come within miles of the artistic truth of "The Daffodil Fields." In mid-Victorian times even a very great poet could not tackle such a theme; he had to shirk the full consequences of passion, and—even so far as he dared to go—gloss the plain telling with decorative language. The conventions were all arrayed against his venturing further.

Rare Heights of Beauty.

I have said that the diction on due occasion touches rare heights of beauty, and could cite many passages for evidence, but will content myself with the most poignant stanzas which tell how the broken hearted woman went forth, singing, to the meadows to gather flowers and array her two lovers for burial:

"So triumphing her song of love began,
Ringing across the meadows like old woe
Sweetened by poets to the help of man
Unconquered in eternal overthrow;
Like a great trumpet of the long ago
Her singing towered; all the valley heard
Men jingling down to meadows stopped their teams and stirred.

"And they, the Occleves, hurried to the door,
And burst it, fearing; there the singer lay
Drooped at her lover's bedside on the floor,
Singing her passionate last of life away.
White flowers had fallen from the blackthorn spray
Over her loosened hair. Pale flowers of spring
Filled the white room of death; they covered everything:

"Primroses, daffodils and cuckoo-flowers,
She bowed her singing head on Michael's breast,
'Oh, it was sweet,' she cried, 'that love of ours.
You were the dearest, sweet; I loved you best,
Beloved, my beloved, let me rest
By you forever, little Michael mine.
• • • • •"

Like a true artist, however, Mr. Masefield will not conclude upon this note of anguish; but, leading us out beside the river that washes the banks whereon the tragedy has played itself out, dismisses us "calm of mind, all passion spent," to follow it down until we decry the masts of shipping, "and all the ocean opens:"

"Then the mates
Cry, and the sunburnt crew no longer waits,
But sing triumphant, and the topsail fills
To this old tale of woe among the daffodils."

My one grievance against Mr. Masefield's handling of his stanza is his too frequent trick of neglecting or misplacing the cesura in the final alexandrine—e. g., "Cawing, or blackly circling in enormous rings," "'Belov'd sounds strange,' she answered, 'in my present life.'" But this is not the place to carp over small technicalities, and I prefer to end as I began, by saluting a poet.

HOW TO REFINISH OLD SURFACES.

Woman's World: The first thing to do in refinishing old wood surfaces is to remove all varnish and paint. They may be done easily by the use of a good varnish remover. The varnish remover may be bought at any paint store. It is applied with a brush and allowed to stand for a few minutes; then the varnish and paint is easily removed. If there are any burnt or stained places it may be necessary to scrape the surface with a piece of glass. Then the surface is thoroughly smoothed with sand paper and is ready for a new paint or varnish. If it is desirable to keep the color and grain of the wood as it is, a clear varnish may be used which contains the desired color.

BRAIN IN BASEBALL.

C. H. Claudy in St. Nicholas: To the lad who pitches, let it be said that it is brain as much as brawn which strikes out batters. The major league teams are full of pitchers, no longer in their muscular prime, in whom skill, cunning and knowledge have made up for the efficiency of pace and curve of which time has robbed them. You, too, are in their class, for time has not yet given you all that he will in strength and muscle; so, up against a fine batter, it is cunning which you must employ.

First, then, study your batter and learn what balls he hits most easily, and what he hits with the most difficulty. Normally, you will try to give him only those balls at which he hits with least effect, but not always; sometimes the unexpected ball, exactly where he likes it best, is as effective in its utter surprise as one where he likes it least.

NO WONDER HE WAS ANGRY.

Lippincott's: The previously accepted lover was infuriated when one evening he called on "the only girl" and was informed by her that their engagement was at an end.

"If you insist, Grace Cheever, on breaking off our engagement, I will publish in the Oakdale Times the letters you have written me."

"As you please," she replied indifferently, toying with her bracelet. "There is nothing about those letters I need be ashamed of—except the address."

For a man with $20,000, who wishes to take an active part in the management, an unusually good opportunity is offered. SCHWAB TESTIFIES IN STEEL CORPORATION'S DEFENSE AT NEW YORK

First President of Alleged Trust Tells of Its Origin.

Recounts Talk With J. Pierpont Morgan at Dinner in 1909.

Says Possibilities of Foreign Trade Formed Strongest Point.

New York, May 19.—Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel company and first president of the United States Steel corporation, took the stand today as a witness for the defense in the government suit to dissolve the latter corporation.

Mr. Schwab described the famous dinner given him in 1909 by prominent financiers, at which Schwab made a plea for consolidation in the steel industry on the ground of economy. Mr. Schwab sat next to J. P. Morgan at the dinner, and today he described the conversation he had with him.

Talked to Morgan.

Mr. Schwab said he explained to Mr. Morgan that a combination of certain steel companies would bring about a "completely integrated organization," which would have the advantages of the possession of raw materials, transportation and plants which would enable it "to conduct the business from the mining of ore and coal right through to the manufacture and sale of every finished product."

"I also pointed out to him," he said, "that only by combination could export business be made profitable. Probably more than anything else, I impressed upon him the advantages of combining for the sake of establishing an export trade."

WILL INDICT FIVE IN AEROPLANE PLOT

Federal Grand Jury at Work on Smuggling of Mexican Flyer.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 19.—Investigation by the Federal grand jury into the alleged attempt to smuggle a war aeroplane across the Arizona border into Sonora for the use of the insurrecto forces will be resumed here tomorrow. According to Assistant United States Attorney Dudley S. Robinson, at least five indictments for conspiracy to violate the presidential proclamation prohibiting the transportation of munitions of war into Mexico will be returned.

Mr. Robinson has returned from San Diego, where he procured new evidence. He said he expects indictments to be returned against Dedier Masson, the French aviator, and his assistant, Thomas Dean; Col. Manuel Rancho Alcalde, former publisher of the Nueva Era, a Maderista newspaper of Mexico City; his brother, Capt. Joaquin B. Alcalde, former fencing master in the Madero household, and Gen. Santiago Camberas of Nogales, Sonora.

The Federal prosecutor also intimated that others might be involved.

CAMORRA GETS MAN AFTER 10-YEAR CHASE

Man Who Turned Traitor Is Killed on the Sixth Attempt.

New York, May 19.—After a pursuit of ten years around the world, agents of the Camorra of Italy last night found Angelo Defino, said to have turned traitor to the organization in Palermo a decade ago. Five previous attempts had been made to kill him. The one last night succeeded. Bullets fired by three strangers who entered a Brooklyn dance hall, where Defino was sitting at a table chatting with friends, killed him instantly. In the turmoil following the shooting the murderers escaped.

Defino, who came to Brooklyn in 1911, was employed by a contracting firm. He was telling his friends the story of the world-wide chase after him, and declaring that at last he felt safe, when he met his fate.

MEXICANS GO TO ASK GEN. DIAZ TO RETURN

Delegation Is in Spain to Interview Former President.

Corunna, Spain, May 19.—A Mexican delegation arrived here today on board the steamer Ipiranga for the purpose of trying to persuade Gen. Porfirio Diaz, the former Mexican president, to return to Mexico and undertake the government of the country.

Conditions Are Acute.

Galveston, Tex., May 19.—Nearly two score refugees from Mexico arrived aboard the steamer Noruga and reported conditions in the Southern republic acute, in some instances bordering on a state of anarchy. They boarded the steamer at Vera Cruz and Tampico.

The refugees included business men and their families, employes of foreign concerns operating in the larger cities, a Methodist minister and two men who are said to have been officers in the Federal army during the regime of the late President Madero.

The Noruga had the largest passenger list of any steamer arriving at this port this season.

DIES "TRUE TO SYSTEM"

"Happy Jack" Mulraney Electrocuted for New York Murder.

Plea of "Crooks' Code of Honor" Fails to Save Him.

Ossining, N. Y., May 19.—John Mulraney, who was to have been put to death as a murderer on March 17, but who won a 60-day reprieve by declaring in a personal appeal to the governor that he was going to his death as the martyr to a criminal "code of honor," was electrocuted at Sing Sing prison early today.

"Happy Jack," as he was known to his comrades, wore to the last the smile that had won him his nickname, and called back to the other inmates of the death cells a cheerful "Good-bye."

Charles Becker, the former New York police lieutenant and the gunmen involved with him in the Rosenthal murder, were among the fourteen who answered.

The murder of which "Happy Jack" was convicted was that of Patrick McBreen, known as "Paddy the Priest," a New York saloonkeeper who was shot while standing behind his bar on the night of Oct. 3, 1911. John J. Dowling, who died before he could be tried, and Mulraney, both signed confessions to the murder, but in the death house Mulraney repudiated his admissions, claimed an alibi, and asserted that he had accepted the conviction following a "crooks' code of honor not to squeal on the other fellow." Justice Rosalski of New York decided, however, there were no grounds for a new trial.

TROOPER AT FORT SNELLING A SUICIDE

Member of Draft From the East Jumps Off Bridge.

St. Paul, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Well, boys, I won't be here in the morning."

With that exclamation on his lips, Frank T. Kelly, a trooper of Battery D, Fort Snelling, sprang to the railing of the old Fort Snelling bridge last night, and plunged to his death.

What actuated Kelly to end his life is unknown. He had been at Fort Snelling only two weeks, having come with a draft from Fort Slocum, New York.

UNCLE SAM SHOWS USE FOR BAD MILK

Wants It Sent to Farms as Food for Livestock.

Washington, May 19.—With the approach of summer, when large quantities of milk are condemned and destroyed in cities throughout the country the agricultural department today issued an appeal to health inspectors to stop the waste, and after denaturing the condemned product, return it to farms to be fed to livestock. By this method the department's experts are convinced a considerable saving could be made in the cost of raising beef and pork.

The department advocates the use of rennet, which will transform condemned milk into thick curds. In connection with the appeal the department gives the results of experiments with rennet, giving the temperatures at which the powder works most quickly and effectively.

Sugar Prices Reduced.

New York, May 19.—All grades of refined sugar were reduced 10 cents a hundred pounds today.

SCORE DROP FROM SIGHT

Some Well-to-Do Men Have Disappeared in Philadelphia.

Charles J. Pennock Latest Addition to the Missing.

Philadelphia, May 19.—Charles J. Pennock, a well-known business man, naturalist and public official of Kennett square, near here, today was added to the long list of mysterious disappearances which the police of this city are trying to solve. Twenty-five men, several of them well to do, have been reported as missing within the last two months, and in only a few instances have they been located.

Pennock, who is a brother of Assemblyman Theodore Pennock and an uncle of Herbert Pennock, the Philadelphia American league team pitcher, has been missing since last Thursday night, when he left the home of friends in Broad street to take a train for his home, after attending a meeting at the Academy of Natural Sciences. He is 55 years old and is a justice of the peace.

SALOON MEN HANDLE STOLEN BANK FUNDS

Over $100,000 of Canadian Money Changed in Chicago.

Chicago, May 19.—Almost $100,000 of the $271,000 in Canadian money stolen from the branch of the Bank of Montreal at Westminster, B. C., has been exchanged for United States currency by Chicago saloon keepers, according to the assertion of the superintendent of a detective agency.

Michael J. Flanagan, proprietor of a saloon, was arrested early yesterday morning when two men accused him of giving them Canadian money to exchange. Three other saloon keepers are under surveillance and arrests may result.

William J. Lawler and Charles O'Leary, arrested Saturday night, charge Flanagan with being the receiver of part of the stolen money. Lawler asserted he received $645 in bills from Flanagan on Wednesday afternoon. The money finally reached the local branch of the Bank of Montreal and was traced back.

Three of the robbers who tunneled into the vault of the Westminster bank are in prison awaiting trial. The fourth member of the gang is hiding in Chicago, detectives say, and it is from him that Flanagan is said to have obtained the money which was given to Lawler.

CLEAN DIRTIEST PARK IN COUNTRY.

New York, May 19.—Determination to turn New York's Central park from what has been—one of the dirtiest—to one of the cleanest parks in the country, has seized the responsible authorities with such force that more than 150 persons were taken to court yesterday and last night, charged with "mussing up" the park. In view of the fact that the warning had been given in posters of circus bill size, the magistrates imposed fines upon most of the offenders, and one man who had walked on the grass with his girl was locked up over night as a penalty for his disorderly conduct.

PRESBYTERIANS IN TURMOIL OVER CHARGE OF POLITICAL SCHEME

STARVATION IN COSTLY HOME

Yonkers Woman, Supposed to Be Wealthy, Dies of Lack of Food.

Officials Find Valuable Furniture Falling Apart in Dirt.

Yonkers, N. Y., May 19.—In the spacious residence occupied by herself and her brother on a fashionable street here, Ada Dunscomb, a middle-aged spinster, died early today a victim of starvation, according to Coroner Dunn. Searchers could discover no food. A physician whom Whitney Dunscomb, Jr., 60 years of age, the woman's brother, had summoned, found Miss Dunscomb dead on a couch in her bedroom, her body clad in mere rags.

The Dunscomb residence has been a house of mystery to neighbors for the twelve years since the family moved here, the blinds always being drawn, no servants being employed, and no one ever being seen to call. Officials who visited the place today reported that the costly old furniture seemed to be falling to pieces, while dust and dirt had been allowed to accumulate, apparently, for years. Dunscomb was reticent as to himself and family affairs in general.

Neighbors believed the pair to be wealthy.

134 NAMES ON THE BALLOTS IN DENVER

Five Women Are Candidates for First Commission in That City.

Denver, Colo., May 19. — Today marked the close of Denver's campaign preparatory to its first election under the commission government, to be held tomorrow. The names of 134 candidates for the six commissionerships will appear on the ballot.

The list of candidates includes five women. The headless ballot and preferential system will be used in voting.

MANUFACTURERS MEET IN DETROIT.

Detroit, Mich., May 19.—A ten-year precedent was broken today when the National Association of Manufacturers met here in annual convention. For the last decade all meetings of the organization have been held in New York.

A number of matters of vital interest to American business, workmen and consumers, will be discussed during the three-day sessions.

Method of Stone's Election as Moderator Is Assailed in Print.

Report Is Branded "Error in Judgment" By the Official.

Important Matters Yet to Be Settled By Assemblies.

Atlanta, Ga., May 19.—Reproduction in Atlanta today of a story in a New York newspaper charging that the election of John T. Stone of Chicago as moderator of the Northern Presbyterian general assembly was the result of a "deep-laid political scheme," threw that assembly into a turmoil of excitement.

Dr. Stone himself took the floor. He said he had not seen the publication, and begged that the article be overlooked as an "error in judgment."

William T. Ellis of Pennsylvania, who seconded Dr. Stone's nomination, denounced the story as untrue.

Commissioners to all the assemblies of the big branches of Presbyterianism resumed their work today, with indications that the present week's labors would develop some of the most important actions yet taken in the matter of committee reports and the settlement of many questions brought up in overtures from a country-wide constituency.

Heresy Question Raised.

In the Northern assembly the proceedings today were published majority and minority reports by the committee appointed to consider differences between the church and the Union Theological seminary of New York city. Since all relations between the institution and the church which founded it were broken off because of the alleged heretical beliefs of members of the seminary's faculty, it has been expected by many Presbyterian laymen that an amicable adjustment mutually beneficial might be arranged, and to this view the majority of the committee agreed, asking for another year's time. In two minority reports, however, the task is regarded as hopeless.

Dr. Frank C. Monfort of Cincinnati submitted a minority report in which he declared that members of the faculty of the Union Theological seminary had failed to answer important questions regarding their belief, and that the answers they had given indicated that they had no right to be recognized as orthodox Presbyterians.

TAFT'S SUMMER HOME IN CANADA.

Beverly, Mass., May 19.—Murray Bay, Quebec, on the St. Lawrence river, will be the home of ex-President Taft and family this summer, Mr. Taft has written to a friend here that he has leased a cottage at Murray Bay, about ninety miles from Quebec, and will spend the summer there.

Before his election to the presidency Mr. Taft spent his summers at Murray Bay, where his brother, Charles P. Taft, has an estate. There is a fine golf course there, plenty of country and an ideal vacation ground.

WILLIAM M. WOOD IS BEFORE JURY; ACCUSED OF DYNAMITE PLOTS

ACCUSED OF PLOTTING TO DISCREDIT STRIKERS

WILLIAM M. WOOD.

Manufacturer Charged With Conspiracy to Discredit Strikers.

Two Alleged Accomplices Are Put on Trial With Him.

One Man Has Been Convicted and Another Committed Suicide.

Boston, May 19.—William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen company and a textile manufacturer of international reputation; Frederick E. Atteaux and Dennis J. Collins were placed on trial today charged with conspiring to "plant" dynamite at Lawrence during the textile strike in that city in January, 1912.

The trial has been awaited with special interest because of the prominence of Mr. Wood, and also because it is the first time in Massachusetts that a serious criminal charge arising from labor difficulties has been made against a manufacturer. The indictment and arrest of the mill man last August caused a sensation.

Atteaux is a dealer in chemicals and a friend of Mr. Wood. Collins is a dog fancier of Cambridge.

One Accused Man Suicide.

It is charged that the three defendants conspired with John J. Breen, an undertaker of Lawrence, and Ernest R. Pitman, a builder of Andover, to place dynamite in a house occupied by striking textile operatives for the purpose of prejudicing public opinion by making it appear that the strikers had possession of an explosive which they intended to use in damaging mill property.

The police discovered the dynamite and arrested several striking operatives who lived in the house. All subsequently satisfied the court of their innocence and were discharged.

Soon afterward Breen, a member of the Lawrence school board, was arrested, convicted, and fined $500 for "planting" the explosive. Pitman, who built the mill of the American Woolen company, committed suicide on the day that the Suffolk county grand jury began an investigation of the alleged conspiracy.

JOHNSON SIGNS THE ALIEN LAND BILL

Sacramento, Cal., May 19.—Governor Hiram Johnson today signed the anti-alien land bill passed by the California legislature against the opposition of President Wilson. The act will go into effect ninety days from date, or Aug. 17.

KENYON HAS TARIFF IDEA

Would Have Monopolies' Products Go Automatically on Free List.

Democrats May Abandon Pairing for Action on Nominations.

Washington, May 19.—An amendment to the tariff bill, introduced today by Senator Kenyon, proposes that when any corporation or concern is adjudged a monopoly, its products shall automatically go on the free list. Mr. Kenyon has hope that the finance committee may favorably consider the amendment, but if not he will press it on the floor.

The proposal has almost unlimited possibilities for overturning schedules. The question whether products of concerns reorganized since the supreme court held them to be monopolies might still be under monopolistic control also would enter into the application of the law should the Kenyon amendment be incorporated.

Subcommittees of the finance committee plan to meet every day this week to consider the wool, cotton, sugar and chemical schedules of the tariff bill. On all those, manufacturers are here pleading to be heard against the rates of the Underwood bill.

Kern Resolution Again.

Senator Kern's resolution to investigate conditions in the West Virginia coal strike region was again the unfinished business when the senate met today, and although several senators planned to discuss the need for an inquiry, a vote was expected before adjournment.

Senators opposing the inquiry resolution in its present form planned today to have it referred to the labor committee to determine whether an investigation should be conducted. Should it develop that the resolution could not pass as it now stands, its proponents probably will propose that it be referred to the same committee, directing however, that a subcommittee of three conduct an inquiry. If this is done, Senator Borah, who introduced the original bill in the last congress, would be appointed chairman of the subcommittee.

May Abandon Pairs.

Tightening of the lines to put through President Wilson's nominations began today when Democratic senators in caucus practically decided that the old custom of pairing should be abandoned, so far as executive sessions and consideration of appointments are concerned. Democrats have had great difficulty in retaining a quorum in executive sessions, but without pairs they expect to keep enough senators present to conduct the fight for confirmation of hundreds of nominations pending.

KAISER PARDONS ENGLISH SPIES.

Berlin, May 19.—Emperor William, as an act of grace in connection with the visit of King George of England to Berlin for the marriage of Princess Victoria Louise, today granted a pardon to three English spies undergoing long sentences in German jails.

Oil Hearings Resumed.

Kansas City, Mo., May 19.—Further hearings in the case in which the Standard Oil Company of Indiana seeks to show why it should not be ousted from the state of Missouri as a trust were begun here today before Commissioner Montgomery, appointed to take testimony a week ago by the Missouri supreme court. The hearing is a continuation of one held in Chicago last week.

ONE PATERSON MILL EMPLOYES RETURN

Silk Manufacturers Say It Means Strike Is Near End.

Paterson, N. J., May 19.—Through lines of police two blocks long, twenty former employes of the silk mill of the Arthur Price company returned to work today after a strike of more than two months. Hundreds of pickets of the Industrial Workers of the World sought to prevent their return, but the police guard was too effective. There was a lively scrimmage for a time, and sixty pickets were arrested.

The Price mill is a comparatively small one, employing normally thirty hands. The return of the strikers to this mill with demands unsatisfied is heralded by the manufacturers as meaning the near end of the strike. Leaders of the Industrial Workers of the World, on the other hand, maintain that the fight will go on unabated and few others will yield.

VOSS DISCOVERS ANNUAL "LEAK" OF NEARLY $20,000

Interest Charges Rapidly Depleting Permanent Improvment Revolving Fund.

Commission Must Promptly Change Its Method of Procedure.

The city's present method of issuing certificates of indebtedness for public improvements will consume the entire permanent improvement revolving fund of $150,000 in comparatively few years, according to a discovery which has been made by Finance Commissioner Fred J. Voss.

Commissioner Voss declares that under the system which is being followed the city is losing at the rate of $16,000 to $20,000 a year. He states that a change is imperative and must be made at once.

The annual loss is due to the interest which must be paid on certificates of indebtedness which have been issued against the permanent improvement revolving fund under the charter provision which gives property owners three years in which to pay for the street improvements, principally paving. Up to date the issues have been made on the theory that all property owners would ask for the full time allowed by taking advantage of the extensions. As a matter of fact but little more than 12 per cent of them have been asking for the extensions. The others have paid their assessments in full, except those who have become delinquent, a comparatively small minority. In the meantime the certificates are bearing interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum. If the property owners all asked for extensions they would pay the city 7 per cent on the certificates to the same amount as the city pays 5 per cent. But most of them have paid in full. The city has to go on paying interest on the certificates and is getting nothing in return on them from the property owners, most of whom have been avoiding the payment of 7 per cent interest.

Big Loss Annually.

Thus far $420,000 of certificates have been issued and sold. Commissioner Voss liberally estimates that extensions may be asked on $120,000 of that sum. On that basis the fund would be out $15,000 to $20,000 a year.

He asserts that the system will have to be changed or the amounts kept within the sums on which extensions are asked and paying the city interest. He also says that further improvements will depend on the collection of assessments.

The commissioner points out that the city has been letting its contracts too late to be finished the same season, with the result that the city has had to carry them over the winter. He recommends that all preliminary preparations be completed in time which will enable the contractors to start work as soon as the season opens.

Commissioner Voss has prepared a complete statement of the situation, which was presented to the commission at its meeting this afternoon. It reads as follows:

"I wish to call your attention to the fact that the old council during the year 1912 issued $206,000 5 per cent certificates of indebtedness against the revolving fund under the provision of the old charter, which provision is also embodied in the new charter, chapter 8, section 10. These certificates were sold on a 6 per cent basis, or at a discount of 2 per cent, which on the whole issue of $206,000, amounted to $4,120; the interest paid on this issue in 1912 was $5,562.48; the interest for the year 1913 will amount to $10,300; the interest for the year 1914 will amount to $7,400; the interest for the year 1915 will amount to $3,500, a total expenditure to the revolving fund of $28,882.48 on this issue from the time they were sold to date of maturity.

"At this date assessments to the amount of $141,921.75 have been made, and of that amount applications for extension have been made to the amount of $18,647.62, or about 13.1 per cent; $72,949.95 has been paid in cash, and the city's share for intersections, etc., amounts to $29,607.65, leaving $20,756.53 delinquent to which 10 per cent penalty has been added. This 10 per cent penalty would amount to $2,075.65, interest on extended assessments to date of maturity, $3,263.53, leaving a net loss to the city on this issue of $23,543.30. However, allowance must be made for the assessments yet to be made on this issue of $206,000, which will slightly reduce this loss.

Out the Interest.

"At the present time $420,000 of these certificates have been issued and sold. Presuming that all contracts let under these issues will be completed and assessments made ready for collection and extension within one year from date, and that the extended assessments on which the city would collect interest at the rate of 7 per cent, as provided by the charter, would amount to $120,000, which I think is a high estimate, the revolving fund would still be out the interest on $300,000, a loss anywhere from $15,000 to $20,000 per year, and the fund would be depleted in a few years. It will therefore be necessary either to change this system or to keep the issuing of these certificates within the limit and amount of the extended assessments on which the city is drawing interest. This would mean that any further improvements, for a time at least, would depend on the collection of assessments. What this would amount to and how fast improvements could be made I am unable to say at this time. I am trying to figure out the condition of the revolving fund which will require some time.

"This fund was started in 1900 with an issue of $99,000 4 per cent bonds and later increased with a further issue of $50,000 4½ per cent bonds. These with the $420,000 5 per cent certificates now outstanding makes a total liability of $569,000 for this fund in addition to amounts due on contracts. As an asset there is in the fund at this date $403,221.01 in cash and $18,647.62 in extended assessments drawing 7 per cent interest. The difference between these amounts and the liability should be in the contracts completed and uncompleted for which assessments have not yet been made and the delinquent assessments on the books of both the city and county auditor. What I wish to determine is whether or not these delinquent assessments together with the extended ones and the cash in the fund will equal the liability. We will not be able to make nearly so many improvements if we stop issuing these certificates, and it is out of the question to go on issuing them.

Recommendations.

"I do not wish to see the system done away with altogether as it is a great convenience to those who are unable to pay, but we should issue only to the amount of the applications for extensions. If it is found that we cannot make improvements fast enough we can go back to the system of making advance assessments. Whether or not this can be done without an amendment of the charter is a matter for the city attorney to determine.

"We have been letting our contracts too late to be finished the same season, and have had to carry them over the winter, six or seven months. This should not be done. The work of next summer should all be planned this fall and winter and contracts let in time to start the work as soon as the season opens. Improvements should be completed the same season, assessments promptly made and collected, and all made ready for the next season."

MRS. LONGSTREET RESENTS CHARGES

Tells Senators She Was Wrongfully Ousted From Postoffice.

Washington, May 19.—Mrs. Helen D. Longstreet, widow of the noted Confederate general, had a hearing before the senate postoffice committee today to give her version of the circumstances leading to her displacement as postmaster at Gainesville, Ga. Mrs. Longstreet did not ask reinstatement, but sought to reply to Postmaster General Burleson's statement that her office was poorly managed. She referred to Mr. Burleson as "President Wilson's sixty-day postmaster general."

Mrs. Longstreet declared that she was the victim of the "Georgia Railway & Power company," which she said had pursued her because she urged legislation "to curtail its favors." She presented a long list of indorsements of her administration, and asserted that the people of her community who knew her were more competent to judge her than the postmaster general.

"The immortal commander whose name I bear, who resigned a commission in the American army to follow the banners of the South until the last stainless one was furled at Appomattox, and thenceforth found himself an outcast in the land whose battlefields had run red with his heroic blood," declared Mrs. Longstreet, "was not made to suffer more than I have been made to suffer at the hands of that branch of Democracy which is in the saddle down in the good old Democratic state of Georgia in the year that has placed a Virginia gentleman in the White House."

Slate is in jail in Taylorville. Windsor died at a hospital here at midnight.

The shooting occurred at Mount Auburn last Friday.

JURORS LISTEN TO "BOY FINANCIER"

He Says He Was Intimidated Into Scaring Grandmother.

Chicago, May 19.—Butler R. Storke, "the boy financier," whose grandmother, Mrs. Laura G. Rogers of Milwaukee, is suing to recover $30,000 from the National City bank and eight other defendants, took the witness stand in Federal Judge Carpenter's court here today.

Mrs. Rogers alleges that the money was tricked away from her by the defendants, who threatened to send young Storke to prison for embezzlement unless she made good the $30,000 they claimed to have lost through Storke.

Storke testified that he was intimidated by certain of the defendants into helping to get the money from Mrs. Rogers.

Attempts Suicide.

Frank Thompson, 30 years old, attempted suicide at Amnicon early last evening by jabbing himself in the throat and neck several times with a pocketknife. Doubts of his recovery are held. The deed is said to have been committed while the man was in a state of delirium tremens. He is at St. Francis hospital.

PLACED ON TRIAL FOR ROBBERY.

Gust Hill, accused of robbing John Thompson at the Union station on the evening of April 21 last in an indictment returned by the May grand jury charging him with grand larceny, second degree, was brought to trial late this afternoon in Judge Dancer's court.

The state claims that a policeman caught Hill going through Thompson's pockets and taking out $30. Hill's attorney is Richard Jones. Warren E. Greene, county attorney, is prosecuting the case.

FIRST WIFE TO RESCUE

Helps Wife No. 2 of Chris Walhood to Secure Annulment of Marriage.

Says She Is Still Lawful Wife of the Defendant.

Clara Kittelson Walhood, wife No. 1 of Chris Walhood of Pekin, N. D., against whom Antonio Vollen Walhood of this city has pending in district court an action for the annulment of her marriage on the ground of bigamy, has come to the rescue of wife No. 2.

Miss Vollen—as she calls herself—was recently required by the court to furnish further testimony tending to absolutely prove the alleged first marriage of her husband, Chris Walhood. Permission was secured to take depositions, and the testimony of the first wife, Clara Kittelson Walhood, was secured.

The deposition was taken last week at Belle Fourche, S. D., before J. W. Raish, notary public. Mrs. Walhood No. 1 testified that her present home was in Glen, Colo., and swore that she was the wife of Chris Walhood, now residing at Pekin, N. D. She stated that she was married to him at Hudson, Wis., on Dec. 27, 1910.

At that time, she deposed, Walhood gave his name as Chester Walhood, and his address was Olympia, Wash. She explained that he expected to trade some property for an apartment house at Olympia, Wash., and that he told her if he went by the name of "Chester" instead of "Chris" he could put up a better front. She testified that his true name, however, was Chris, and that it was wrongly given in the marriage records at Hudson.

She also declared that the marriage had never been annulled or set aside by any court. The witness stated, however, that on Feb. 22, 1912, about one month after his marriage to Antonio Vollen of this city, she entered into a written agreement for a separation and division of property.

The deposition will probably be referred to Judge Fesler of the trial court as the further evidence required to satisfy the court of the dual marriage of the North Dakota man.

LAND SALE WILL BE HELD WEDNESDAY

Large Attendance and Spirited Bidding Are Expected.

State Auditor Samuel G. Iverson and his assistant, Theodore Nelson, manager of the state department, will be in Duluth Wednesday to conduct the second of the series of state land sales to be held during the coming season. The sale will be held in the county commissioners' room at the courthouse at 10 a. m.

Several hundred descriptions of property will be offered, and if the interest taken in the first sale of the year which was held on April 16, at which time several hundred bidders were present and approximately 11,120 acres were sold at an average price of $12 an acre, is any indication of what may be expected Wednesday, the sale will probably be well attended.

The last sale was the largest and attended by the most spirited bidding, of any in the history of the county.

VERDICT AGAINST INSURANCE COMPANY.

Pickands, Mather & Co. were awarded a verdict for $147.17 from the London Guarantee & Accident company, limited, by a jury in district court before Judge Fesler this morning.

The lawsuit involved a dispute over the provisions of an employers' indemnity policy, the plaintiffs seeking to recover $409.50 with interest, this amount, it was claimed, having been paid to the estate of a dead miner. The evidence showed that John Mozina, a miner at the Elba mine had died of sunstroke on June 23, 1910, and that the company had paid the estate of the dead man the equivalent of twenty-six weeks' wages. The defendant insurance company claimed that death by sunstroke was an exception to the policy, but the evidence showed that it had been crossed out from the list of exceptions.

INSPECTORS ON WARPATH

Hicken and Webster Plan Clean-up in the West End.

Some Progress Made, But Still Room for Improvement.

Commissioner Hicken, head of the division of public safety, and Dr. Webster, derector of public health, made an inspection of the sanitary condition of the eastern end of the city this morning.

They found that while considerable cleaning up has been done, there is a vast amount of room for improvement in many quarters. Many yards, lots and alleys in the city are still in a disreputable condition. They are filthy, and if allowed to remain will become prolific breeding places for flies. They are also decidedly odorous and constitute a menace to the health of the city.

The result of the trip will be more activity in cleaning lines than Duluth has heretofore witnessed. The officials under the new regime are determined that Duluth shall be as nearly clean and slightly as it can be made. New orders will be issued to the sanitary inspectors, and they in turn will inform the owners or occupants that they must comply with the regulations. If they do not they will have an opportunity to explain their disregard for the law in police court, where they will be haled on warrants sworn out by the health officials.

Pitcher Suspended.

Chicago, May 19.—Pitcher Ashenfelder was suspended indefinitely today by President Chivington of the American association, because he "jumped" to the Indianapolis Federal league club when released by the Indianapolis American association team instead of reporting to the Grand Rapids team of the Central league which bought him. Secretary Farrell of the National Association of Minor Leagues, was notified of the suspension.

Looking for Pitchers.

Chicago, May 19.—Eight scouts today began a systematic search of minor leagues for pitchers for the Chicago Nationals. Practically the entire country will be scoured under President Murphy's order to strengthen the staff, to whose weakness the poor showing of the team on its Eastern trip is partly attributed. Murphy himself left today for Boston and while he denied he expected to land a pitcher on his visit to the East, he admitted that one promising twirler in the International league was under consideration.

COMMERCIALIZED VICE CAN BE ELIMINATED, SAYS ROE

"Not Fool Enough to Think We Can Stop Prostitution."

Minnesota Has a Powerful Weapon in New State Law.

Clifford G. Roe is that most effective of reformers—the reformer who doesn't seek to live up to the popular conception of what a reformer should be.

Mr. Roe is now general counsel of the American Vigilance association, an organization formed to fight the white slave traffic. He was formerly assistant district attorney at Chicago. While he held that office, the authorities of Chicago, under his leadership, made the first systematic, successful attempt to combat the white slave traffic and commercialized prostitution. When he left office he continued the fight, lecturing, writing, organizing, inspiring.

Mr. Roe is the recognized leader of the earnest men and women of the country who are fighting commercialized vice in every city. He is a reformer who has worked reform, yet he does not expect the world to be changed in a day. He doesn't rave and tear his hair when the serpent appears, but views it from every angle and seeks the vital spot. He is that marvel among reformers—the calm man.

"I'm not fool enough to believe that prostitution can be wiped out entirely," said Mr. Roe this morning at the Commercial club. "I don't think that clandestine prostitution can be driven out of any city. We will have it until the millennium, or until public opinion undergoes a radical change."

"But," he continued and here his voice without being raised acquired an earnestness of expression that was a reflection of the earnestness of the man, "commercialized prostitution can be driven out. It has been done; in some cities, it will be done in other cities, until the country is free of the evil. The change will not come at once, but gradually people will begin to see the light, and once the people see clearly, the rest is easy."

Knows His Subject.

Mr. Roe talks easily, readily. He knows his subject. He has studied it from coast to coast and from Duluth to the gulf. He has the lawyer's faculty of analysis. He seeks the weakness or arguments and endeavors to expose them. He has met every objection ever raised to the program he is working for, and he is ready to meet others.

"You know I look at this thing from the lawyer's viewpoint," he said. "I haven't any false ideas on the extent of the traffic or the effect of it. I have tried to be a good lawyer and assemble my facts before expressing an opinion. I started in this fight as a lawyer and I am continuing it as a lawyer, not as a moralist. Here is a condition; how can we meet it?' is the question I asked myself and we are trying to meet it in the only proper way—absolute abolition of commercialized vice.

Effective Weapon.

"The new injunction abatement law passed by the legislature of Minnesota is the most effective weapon I know of to be used against the white slave traffic. It not only hits the segregated district, but it hits the flats in the residence districts and the free and easy hotels. The law hits the whole building, wherever commercialized prostitution is discovered and no owner of property, if he has the least business judgment, will take a chance on having his building closed.

"The law has been in operation in Iowa for four years. Des Moines was about as bad as any city in the commercialization of vice. It had a segregated district that was just as other segregated districts. It had scattered houses of prostitution also, for segregation never segregates, no matter what its supporters may claim. The commissioner of public safety of Des Moines, with the aid of the nuisance abatement law, started out and he has cleaned up Des Moines, until a person familiar with the city as it was before wouldn't recognize it. Des Moines has proved two things: Commercialized vice can be driven out of a city, and the abolition of commercialized prostitution does not jeopardize the women of the city. The number of attacks on women in Des Moines decreased just in the proportion that commercialized vice decreased, and Des Moines now seldom has a case of a woman being insulted on the street.

"Nebraska adopted the law two years ago and it worked well there. Washington, California, New Mexico and Minnesota adopted it this year and I think Idaho did also. New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Illinois now have it before their legislatures. As the operation of the law becomes known in other states they will fall into line, and as that law spreads, so will commercialized prostitution become restricted."

Mr. Roe arrived in Duluth this morning for the day. He was in conference with the members of the city commission this morning and at noon was a guest of local people at luncheon at the Commercial club. This afternoon at 3 o'clock, he will address a meeting of women at the Y. W. C. A., and this evening at 8 o'clock, he will address a mass meeting of men and women at the First M. E. church.

A committee has been at work in Duluth for some weeks gathering information on which to base a recommendation as to the organization of a branch of the American Vigilance association in Duluth. The committee will make its report tonight and a branch of the association is expected to be organized.

CHURCH AS A SOCIAL CENTER

Addition to First Presbyterian Structure Will Bring Wider Activities.

Will Lay Corner Stone of Best Sunday School in State.

Duluth is to have a departmental church which will be a social center for its community.

With the laying of the cornerstone of the addition to the First Presbyterian church this evening, comes the statement of W. H. Locker, secretary of the Minnesota Sunday School association that Duluth will have the best planned Sunday school rooms in the state.

The new edition, which will cost $37,000, will have an assembly room seating 600 people, and separate class rooms for all departments of the Sunday school. There will be rooms for the beginners' class, the primary class, the intermediate classes, the junior classes and the senior classes.

When the addition is completed a motion picture machine will be installed, with the intention of showing pictures of missionary activity in all parts of the world, and travel pictures. BIG COTTON ACREAGE.

Government Revises Figures of Its July Report.

Washington, May 19.—The area planted to cotton in the United States last year, and which was under cultivation at the end of June, was 669,000 acres more than the department of agriculture estimated in its preliminary report in July. A special investigation was made by the department, and with the assistance of the census bureau's report on the quantity of cotton ginned, it reaches the conclusion that the area planted was 34,766,000 acres, instead of 34,097,000 acres, the preliminary estimate.

The area picked is estimated at 34,283,000 acres, indicating that the area abandoned was less than 1.4 per cent. The revised figures will be used by the department in making its cotton acreage estimates this year in July.

Revised estimates placed the acreage yield at 190.9 pounds instead of 193.2 pounds, as preliminarily estimated.

GIROUX IN BIG MERGER

Report of Consolidation of Copper Properties Can Not Be Confirmed.

T. F. Cole and J. B. Cotton Now in New York Working on Plan.

A dispatch received late Saturday from Boston announces that the Giroux Consolidated Mines company will be consolidated with other properties and that the merger will assume proportions of an $8,300,000 concern. At the offices of T. F. Cole and J. B. Cotton, two of the prime movers in the organization of the Giroux company, it is claimed that nothing is known of the merger, but they would not deny it in the absence of Mr. Cole and Mr. Cotton, both of whom are in New York in connection with the deal for the reorganization of the Giroux company. A letter was received from Mr. Cole at his office this morning in which he said that matters were shaping themselves very satisfactorily, but he said nothing about a merger. The office people expect to know definitely in a day or two as to whether or not the merger talk is authentic. The Boston dispatch said:

"The Giroux Consolidated Mines company will form the nucleus of an $8,000,000 copper merger, in which an issue of $3,500,000 bonds will play an important part. The properties to go into the combination will be the Copper Mines company and the Chainman Consolidated Copper company, controlled by W. B. Thompson, and the Butte & Ely company, already controlled by the Giroux. It is understood the new company's capital stock will consist of 400,000 shares, par $20; the proposed bonds will be convertible into stock.

"In effecting the merger Giroux stockholders will be offered one share of new stock for each 10 now held, while Butte & Ely will go in at one for 25. Just how the Thompson company will fare has not yet been learned.

"Under the proposed plan of exchange Giroux stockholders will be allotted 150,000 of the 400,000, while 175,000 shares will care for conversion of bonds. There will be needed, in addition, 20,000 shares to take up the Butte & Ely stock, leaving available for acquisition of Thompson properties 55,000 shares.

"The syndicate headed by T. F. Cole secured control of Giroux years ago at $4.50 a share. At the same time W. B. Thompson sought control and offered, it is understood, $6.50 a share, notwithstanding which fact the property was turned over to the Cole-Ryan interests."

RENEW PRIZE RING DEBATE IN CELLS

"Jack" Mills and "Kid" Williams Fight Draw in San Rafael Jail.

San Rafael, Cal., May 19.—John ("Jack") Mills and Paddy ("Kid") Williams, derelicts of the prize ring, met in the county jail here yesterday and harking back in argument to a former battle, a four-round bout to a draw five years ago, agreed to hold an immediate return bout.

Referee, timekeeper and seconds were chosen from their fellow prisoners. Lacking gloves, they went at it with bare knuckles, stripped and barefooted.

The bout had reached the sixth round and the men were bleeding and groggy when the courthouse janitor heard the uproar and descended upon the ring armed with a mop. Again the decision was a draw.

Mills is serving a year for shooting and Williams six months for vagrancy. Mills is a negro.

PRIESTS GIVE UP TRIP TO ROME.

QUIT CALOMEL!

Thousands Are Turning From This Dangerous Drug.

A Safe Vegetable Substitute Is Olive Tablets for the Liver.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, a prominent physician of Ohio, has discovered a new laxative and liver toner in a combination of vegetable materials, mixed with olive oil, which is in effect almost exactly like the old and untrustworthy calomel, except that there are none of the bad after-effects of calomel.

Dr. Edwards has long been a foe of calomel, though he recognized its value along with its dangers.

His distrust of the uncertain drug eventually started him years ago towards experiments with the view of discovering a substitute, and he is today in possession of the long-sought-for combination, which is in the shape of a little sugar-coated, olive-oil colored tablet.

The results of 17 years' experience and practice are embodied in these marvelous little tablets.

They are called Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They oil the bowels, and their effect on the liver has been the means of relief to many of Dr. Edwards' regular patients as well as to thousands of others who have suffered and were afraid of calomel.

They are gentle in their action; yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of harmful impurities. 10c and 25c per box.

GETS NO PREFERENCE.

Wakefield Bank Must Take Chance With Other Creditors.

Bessemer, Mich., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The suit of the Citizens' Bank of Wakefield against the Bank of Ironwood was heard before Judge Cooper here in circuit court. W. S. Baird, administrator of the estate of Fritz Karste, who is in charge of the affairs of the Bank of Ironwood, defended the case personally, while Belmont Waples of Ironwood represented the Wakefield bank. The case was won by Mr. Baird, the administrator, the court ruling that the Wakefield bank was not entitled to any preference over other creditors of the defunct institution. It was the claim of the Wakefield bank that it was entitled to recover in full about $3,000 which was deposited in the bank the day after the death of Fritz Karste. Under this decision, the Wakefield bank becomes a general creditor for the amount of its deposit.

"PEPPERED" WRONG MAN

Felix Hoyman Receives a Charge of Bird Shot in Leg.

Mistaken for One of Party Midnight Brawlers.

Felix Hoyman is at St. Mary's hospital and "Red" Grozick is in the Proctor jail as the result of a shooting at Proctor at 11:30 o'clock last night. The shooting is said to have resulted following an attempted invasion on some beer cases in the latter's home following a "beer party" in which a number of men took part early in the evening.

Grozick claims to have been disturbed shortly after retiring by some one trying to break into his cellar. He claims to have called out for the intruder to get away, but was not heeded. Grabbing a shot gun he went outside and shot at Hoyman, who was just passing the place at the time.

Homan says he was going home from a visit in the village and had not been the one who was disturbing the wine cellar. The charge of bird shot fired by Grozich entered Homan's leg just below the knee. Hoyman was taken to Dr. Joseph Spect for treatment and this morning removed to the Duluth institution. Grozick is being held in jail pending the outcome of the wound.

AFTER STRAY DOGS AND COWS

Poundmasters Threaten to Arrest Owners---Other Police Court News.

Owners of cows which are allowed to roam at large as well as stray dogs are liable to arrest if caught, according to poundmasters in this end of the city. Two women were arrested Saturday afternoon for allowing their bovines to amble too freely and will be given a hearing in the West Duluth court this week.

Mrs. Mary Schubart of Gary was arrested on a warrant sworn to by Poundmaster J. M. Carlson, who alleged that her cows were allowed to roam at large. She pleaded not guilty and will appear again before Judge Lanners on Wednesday. Mrs. Hanson of Highland street was arrested on a warrant sworn to by Poundmaster Mann, who claimed that the woman had allowed her three cows to trample the gardens of her neighbors.

Capt. Mann said this morning that he had received a number of complaints about dogs and was busily engaged in running some of them down. "There are too many dogs in this end of the city. They will be killed unless the owners hurry up and pay the tax due now," said Capt. Mann.

Ole Ellstrom appeared before Judge Lanners this morning to answer to the charge of having imbibed too freely. He pleaded guilty to having been drunk and was fined $20 and costs or twenty days in the county jail. He chose the latter.

Elmer Johnson started in bright and early this morning in acquiring a "load" of wet goods. He got most of it on the inside and at 9 o'clock was unable to navigate. Officer Stahl took him in tow and he will appear before the judge this afternoon to explain how it happened.

NEW DORMITORY TO BE ERECTED

Addition to Smithville Finnish College Will Cost $20,000.

Plans are completed for the construction of a $20,000 dormitory building for the Finnish Socialist college at Spirit Lake. Work on the structure will commence early in June.

The building will be of frame construction, three stories high. It will be erected so that additions can be made when found necessary.

The new building will be located near the present school hall and on the site formerly occupied by the old Spirit Lake hotel, which burned down two years ago. The first floor will be arranged for a large dining hall and kitchen with the front part used as club rooms for the students. The second and third floors will be used exclusively for sleeping quarters.

It is expected that about 200 students will enter the school next fall. It is for the purpose of housing these that the new hall is to be erected. During past semesters the attendance at the college has been about 125. These young men represent nearly every state in the Union.

Inquiries received by the dean of the college from various parts of the country during the past winter relative to the institution cause the directors to believe that the attendance next year will nearly double. Lack of facilities to house the students has made it necessary during the past two years to refuse admittance to a number of students.

NEW MACHINE SHOP.

Berwind Company Will Make Repairs to Its Own Dock.

Construction work on a $25,000 machine shop to be erected on the Berwind Coal company's property at Redruth street and Fiftieth avenue will be started this week. The shop will be built so that all necessary repairs required at the dock can be done on its own property.

The building will be 73 by 122 feet. It will be located just south of the Alger-Smith saw mill. It will be equipped with its own special lighting arrangement and a traveling crane to handle the heavier articles.

Barnett & Record will built the shop. This concern has also got the contract for a large part of the work in connection with the construction of the Berwind company's dock. The ground is rapidly being filled in by a sand sucker dredge which is digging the channel to the property. It is planned to have the dock far enough along this fall so as to be in condition to receive coal.

REFERENDUM ON THE LAND BILL ASSURED

Washington Expects Tokio to Disapprove of Such Slow Methods.

Washington, May 19.—The movement in California to submit the anti-alien act to a referendum, is understood to be viewed by the administration as affording further opportunity for diplomatic adjustment of the issues between the United States and Japan.

It had been assured here that because of the apparently overwhelming sentiment in California in favor of Japanese exclusion from land owning, there might be difficulty in securing the 20,000 signatures necessary to invoke the referendum. Now, however, that the exclusion element itself, or rather its most radical component—the Asiatic Exclusion league—has taken up the movement, the probability of its success has greatly increased, in the official judgment.

The Japanese government is not expected to approve that method of dealing with its protest, though probably it will be difficult for the Tokio foreign office to find technical grounds for objection to the method in which California is attempting to legislate. Officials here feel that Japan regards the present as the best time permanently to settle the question, and that it will contemplate with impatience a delay of at least a year and a half, even though in the interim the proposed laws were not applied to the Japanese in California.

It was reiterated here that the exchanges with the Japanese ambassador, Viscount Chinda, had been of the most friendly and cordial nature.

PROBLEM PLAYS NOT NEEDED

There Is No Necessity of Making the Distresses of Others Our Own.

Helen Sard Hughes, in the North American Review: How far does an asserted moral purpose justify the presentation of immoral material?

The Anglo-Saxon is traditionally credited with a strong ethical bent; with an instinct for reform; with a genius for denominating a spade, a shovel. But is this accredited virtue his due, or has he builded this reputation for himself out of the stuff of loud assertions of a highly moral and didactic purpose while he continues to deal with material which pitch could not defile? The early English novelists pleased themselves and the public by setting forth in long introductions lofty sentiments on the conduct of life and on the hopeful aims behind the writing of their volumes and with inserting paragraphs of moral reflections here and there—drops of oil upon the troubled waters of their tales! But too often these idealistic reflections are utterly outweighed by the vivid realism that precedes and follows them. Psychologically considered, are these tales as a whole a warning against so much as an example of certain phases of life? * * *

These very arguments with which the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries justified themselves are being offered to us today in extenuation of our problem novel and problem drama. A prominent playwright presents a play which is forced off the New York stage. Certain broad and artistic persons censure this boorish intolerance, insisting upon the great moral value of such a production as a lesson and a warning. Yet, we may question, how large a proportion of the audience who witnessed that play is in need of warning? Is the small proportion which is sufficiently versed to read it aright wholesomely sensitive to its truth? And is the large proportion, comparatively unread in these chapters of the moralities, made better by partaking of the fruit of the tree of knowledge in this artistic form?

As usual, reflection on my years-old query leaves me an uncompromising idealist. I have a good deal of sympathy with the remark of Lovelace, Richardson's villain, that "There is enough in the world to make our hearts sad without carrying grief into our diversions and making the distresses of others our own."

The government recently placed a quarantine on lumber and other forest products from sections of New England infested with gypsy and browntail moths, in order to prevent the spread of these pests throughout the country.

Oatmeal and rice will be substituted for pie and charlotte russe as desserts by the Harvard Dining association, as being better brain food.

Stumps of trees of certain kinds, such as the Cuban pine, the long leaf pine, the Douglas fir and the redwood, sometimes continue to grow for years after the trees are cut down.

TO DOUBLE CAPACITY

Great Northern Road Will Build New Elevator at Head of Lakes.

Consolidated Will Also Enlarge---Preparing for Great Growth Here.

As a result of the increased acreage in the Northwest and consequent extension of its railway lines to tap newly developed farming country, the Great Northern road will soon begin the work of practically doubling its elevator capacity at the Head of the Lakes.

This has been the subject for some time but nothing of a concrete nature was given out until today. One of the leading members of the Duluth board of trade, who is closely connected with the Great Northern interests, admitted today that plans are being formulated for a great extension of the road's elevator capacity at this point. The road now has elevator capacity amounting to between 6,500,000 and 7,000,000 bushels, but the past season has shown that with the great amount of new land being farmed in the Northwest and bumper crops likely to become the habit, there is not nearly enough elevator capacity at the Head of the Lakes and the Great Northern road has suffered in particular for its lines, main and branch, tap the richest of the farming country of this part of the grain growing world, and its new branches, continually being built, are not only tapping but opening up new and rich farming territory and are carrying the crops therefrom.

The new elevator will be built on the Superior side of the bay and work will begin soon. No ground is yet broken, but that is a mere matter of detail and will be attended to as soon as the size of the elevator has been fully determined. It is expected that a steel structure will be built which will have a working house of about 2,000,000 bushels capacity and an annex, the capacity of which will be about 4,000,000 to 6,000,000 bushels. This will be one of the largest working houses in the Northwest, the average capacity being usually about 1,000,000 bushels.

The site of the new elevator will be that of the present flour dock on St. Louis bay. The flour dock will be dismantled and a new one put up in the vicinity of Allouez on Allouez bay. Work will begin on this dock before long.

It is quite generally believed and voiced too, and the Great Northern interests are not denying it, that that organization is looking for the Duluth market to grow tremendously in the near future and are merely forestalling any danger of being caught short in the way of storage capacity. The tendency of elevator people is to look upon Duluth as the place where the increased acreage will cause the greatest growth on this side of the line, and despite the fact that much elevator capacity is being constructed and more planned for Port Arthur and Fort Williams, Duluth, it is expected will be one of the greatest handling points for Canadian grain.

In the matter of elevator extension, it is expected that the Consolidated Elevator company will soon announce plans for an extension of considerable size. G. H. Spencer, manager of the company, said this morning that they have been considering such a project for the last six months and that while nothing has been determined as yet, it is quite likely that the company will make extensions; but further than that he could not say.

IDENTIFIED BY HIS WIDOW

Body Found on Lake Shore Was That of Edward Abelson.

Manner in Which He Met His Death Not Yet Known.

MESSAGE CAME TOO LATE.

The police this morning received a telegram from Mrs. Lane, sister of Edward Abelson, whose dead body was found on the lake shore Saturday morning, asking them to stop the funeral.

When the wire was received the services had already taken place at Flood & Horgan's undertaking rooms and the body was on the way to the Jewish cemetery.

Mrs. Lane asked the officers to tell her the cause of Abelson's death and stated that if the funeral could be stopped she would come to this city.

Mrs. Lane's address was given at 1206 Troy avenue, Chicago.

The body found on the lake shore at the foot of Thirty-fifth avenue east Saturday morning has been positively identified by his wife as that of Edward Abelson, a clothing merchant, who disappeared about four months ago.

So certain was she of the fact that the body was that of her missing husband that she convinced the authorities and was allowed to make the arrangements for the funeral. The services took place this morning at the undertaking rooms of Flood and Horgan. Interment was at the Jewish cemetery.

The manner in which the man came to his death is still a mystery which remains to be solved. How he came by the long fracture in the skull over the right temple or what became of his clothes is still unknown. When found the body was nude except for a pair of black socks.

May Have Dived Over.

The theory advanced is that Abelson disrobed some place on the top of the cliff at the foot of which the body was found. Diving head first over the precipice, which is about twenty-five feet high at that point, he may have struck his head on a projecting piece of rock or he may have fractured his head on the frozen ground of the beach. If that were the case he may have crawled a few feet and succumbed with the body in the position in which it was found, with the head towards the water and the feet in the direction of the cliff.

Abelson was about 47 years old and was in the clothing business on the Bowery for many years. At the time of his disappearance a wide search for him was instituted without result. The man dropped completely out of sight one forenoon during the winter. The last trace obtained of him was an overcoat which he had left in the residence of T. W. Wahl. At that time it was feared that he had wandered into the woods about the city or to the lake shore and frozen to death.

Mrs. Abelson based her positive identification upon several facts. She said the size and appearance of the body was that of her husband. She stated that the teeth were those of Abelson. The dead man had about a two weeks' growth of beard, mixed with gray, similar to that of Abelson. She also asserted that the hands were those of her husband.

Another Man Missing.

Mrs. J. C. Sloan, wife of a barber who has been missing for the last two months, called at the undertaking rooms last night to determine whether or not the body might not be that of her husband. She was not sure of it but thought that the body might be that of her husband, although the socks were not such as he had been in the habit of wearing.

Another feature which helped satisfy the authorities that the body was that of Abelson was the condition of the brain disclosed by the postmortem examination which was made by Dr. McAuliffe, deputy coroner. When Abelson disappeared it was asserted that he was slightly demented. The post mortem showed evidences of a disease of the brain.

Cleans Blood Through Kidneys

A Most Important Function and One to be Carefully Guarded.

S. S. S. is a Wonder. It Makes You Look and Feel the Picture of Real Health.

The purpose of the kidneys being to filter the blood the question of treating supposed kidney weakness should be considered carefully. Instead of drugs and alleged kidney stimulants the better plan is to purify the blood with an antidotal effect such as you get from S. S. S.

It should be remembered that the kidneys are made up of a fine net work of blood vessels, and it is to stimulate the functional activity of kidney tissue through this capillary net work that S. S. S. shows one of its most remarkable effects.

The medicinal value of the components of S. S. S. is relatively just as vital to healthy kidney action as the nutriment obtained from grain, meat, fats, sugars, or any other part of our daily food is to the natural reconstructive requirements of the tissues. And there is one component of S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating the cellular tissues of the kidneys to a healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. Thus, in cases of rheumatism, cystitis, chronic sore throat, huskiness of voice, bronchitis, asthma, and the myriad of other reflex indications of weak kidney action, first purify your blood with S. S. S. so it will enable the tissues to rebuild their cellular strength and regain their normal health.

S. S. S. is prepared by The Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., and if you have any deep-seated or obstinate blood trouble, write to their Medical Dept. for free advice. It will be worth your while to do so.

You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores.

WOMAN FINED $2,000 FOR CUSTOMS FRAUD

Mrs. Agnes Mangels of San Francisco Punished By Court.

Trenton, N. J., May 19.—Judge Cross in the United States court today imposed a fine of $2,000 on Mrs. Agnes Mangels of San Francisco, who is alleged to have landed on May 12 from the steamer Amerika at Hoboken, N. J., without declaring a proper value of goods brought by her from abroad. Mrs. Mangels entered a plea of non vult.

The value of the goods brought into the country was estimated by the Federal customs appraisers at about $5,500, of which $1,800 was declared. It was stated to the court that restitution to the value of 60 per cent had been made to the customs officers.

Miss Agnes Tillman, a niece of Mrs. Mangels, also was cited to appear because of alleged improper declarations of gowns and jewelry, but the charges against her were withdrawn when she agreed to pay the duty for the full value of her property.

AMERICAN THEATER MAN IS ARRESTED

J. Salter Hansen Accused of Threatening English Actor in London.

London, May 19.—J. Salter Hansen, the American theatrical manager, was brought up at Bow street police court today charged with threatening Arthur Bourchier, the English actor-manager, with violence. His case was continued until Friday.

The attorney for the prosecution described Mr. Hansen as a man of very violent character. The police testified that they had to throw him to the ground in order to search him. Detective Inspector Carlin said he thought Mr. Hansen was mad. If the prison doctor reports favorably on the state of the prisoner's mind, Mr. Hansen will be released on Friday on a bond of $5,000 binding him to keep the peace.

The quarrel between the two men arose over the method of the production of a play at a London theater.

CAYUGA LAKE HIDES BODIES OF STUDENTS

Two Men and Two Women in Canoe Party Probably Drowned.

Ithaca, N. Y., May 19.—Cayuga lake still holds the bodies of four Cornell students last seen on its surface in a canoe Saturday night.

The entire southern end of the lake was dotted with grapplers today. They went over every square yard of its surface. Preparations were made to dynamite the waters, firing many charges simultaneously. It was feared, however, the bodies might never be recovered.

The students, Brainerd Bailey of Troy, N. Y., an editor of Cornell's Daily Sun; Reinhart A. Zimmer of Rochester, Miss Martha McCormick of Troy, N. Y., and Miss Neil C. Malett of Middletown, N. Y., were guests at a fraternity house party at Willow Point. The four put out in a hired canoe to paddle to Renick, planning to walk back along the lake shore.

A heavy wind was blowing and as the canoe was loaded nearly to the water's edge, it is believed the high waves swamped the little craft.

The tragedy has cast a gloom over Ithaca and the university and has resulted in the cancellation of many social and college functions.

"UNEQUIPPED ROADS HAD BETTER RETIRE"

The Commerce Commission Makes Ruling in Soo Line Ice Case.

Washington, May 19.—In a spiritedly contested case involving freight rates on ice from Wisconsin points to Chicago, the interstate commerce commission today held, in effect, that a railroad is not warranted in exacting increased rates merely because it has no direct facilities for delivering the shipments.

The Soo line has no terminal facilities in Chicago.

"If it cannot afford to pay for terminal services," the commission announced, "it will doubtless have to retire from competitive traffic. It may not, either by itself or in conjunction with other carriers, make unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory charges."

SAYS LAW HAS NO MAJESTY IN U. S.

Missouri University Man Says Science Has Usurped Morals.

Kansas City, Mo., May 19.—The "dignity and majesty of the law has lost its meaning in the United States," said Dr. William J. Hudson, professor of philosophy at the University of Missouri, in an address here last night. "There is too great a lack of respect for laws and morals. We are drifting into a state of demoralization. We have lost our morals in biology. Science has been allowed to usurp our belief in morals and religion until now we are willing to explain everything by animal nature.

"Laws unless backed by public opinion are spineless. The church is the conscience of the state, but it has not been alive to its duty.

"The vice investigation committees could go as far as they liked if public opinion were united on the question. Until such time as public sentiment wants the social evil eradicated it will not be."

SLEEP DISTURBING BLADDER WEAKNESS BACKACHE-RHEUMATISM, QUICKLY VANISH

Even Most Chronic Sufferers Find Relief After a Few Doses Are Taken.

Backache, urinary disorders and rheumatism, are caused from weak, inactive kidneys, which fail to filter out the impurities and keep the blood pure, and the only way on earth to permanently and positively cure such troubles is to remove the cause.

The new discovery, Croxone, soon relieves such conditions because it reaches the very roots of the disease. It soaks right into the stopped up, inactive kidneys, through the walls and linings; cleans out the little filtering cells and glands; neutralizes and dissoves the poisonous uric acid substances that lodge in the joints and muscles to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism; heals the inflamed membranes of the bladder, and cleans out and strengthens the stopped up, lifeless kidneys so they filter and sift all the poisons from the blood, and drive it out of the system.

So sure, so positive, so quick and lasting, are the results obtained from the use of Croxone, that three doses a day for a few days are often all that is required to cure the worst backache, regulate the most annoying bladder disorders, and overcome the numerous other similar conditions.

It is the most wonderful preparation ever made for the purpose. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone fails to give the desired results, regardless of how old you are, how long you have suffered, or what else has failed to cure you.

MYSTERIOUS BLONDE ARRESTED IN CHICAGO

Margaret Kennedy the Same Who Was at Logue's Office.

Chicago, May 19.—Margaret Kennedy, known under a number of aliases, who was taken into custody here last night with Isidor Goldstein, an alleged pickpocket, was indentified by the police today as the mysterious blonde seen in the office of Joseph H. Logue, a jewel merchant, a short time before he was found murdered in his office in the McVicker Theater building.

The murder of the jewel merchant was one of the most mysterious in the records of the police. A blonde woman was the last visitor at Logue's office before the crime was discovered. Stephen Durza, who was the jeweler's office boy, said the woman called at about 11 o'clock the day of the murder and tried to sell watches to him. An hour later he was found murdered.

Durza was positive in identifying the Kennedy woman as Logue's caller.

WOUNDED BRIDE HAS A FIGHTING CHANCE.

St. Paul, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Logan Curl of Kansas City, the bride of John Curl, whom he shot, then killed himself in a local hotel Saturday, following a suicide pact, after Curl was arrested charged with padding the payroll of a construction company, has a fighting chance to live, according to physicians. "I wish to recover," she said. "I prayed for death Saturday night when I learned poor Jack had died," she wheezed painfully through her perforated lung.

"I have suffered greatly but the real suffering is yet to come. I loved Jack and it was all for his sake."

Attending physicians would not permit her to talk further and she sighed and fell back upon her pillow.

Mrs. Curl, who is 22 years old and comely, told attendants that she would return to relatives and endeavor to forget the romance and tragedy incident to her trip to St. Paul and her marriage to Curl.

Physicians consider her recovery little short of a miracle because of the large amount of two different poisons she drank a moment before she was shot to make death certain.

It develops that Curl has relatives living at Chicago and Fort Dodge.

RESENTED HIS SNORES

Gust Thompson Nearly Murdered Because He Slept Too Loudly.

Gust Furman on Trial for Using Whisky Bottle as Weapon.

Gust Thompson's habit of snoring during the wee small hours of the morning, has probably cost him his chances for ever winning a prize in a beauty contest and may be the reason why he will be obliged to carry around a nasty scar on the right side of his head and face.

Thompson is the state's star witness in the prosecution of Gust Furman, better known in police circles as "The Terrible Swede," for felonious assault. Furman was brought to trial this morning before Judge Dancer and a jury, on a charge of second degree assault.

He is accused of having split open the left side of Thompson's face by throwing a whisky bottle on the night of March 19 last in a cheap rooming house at 119 St. Croix avenue, where the two men were stopping.

Furman, who was known at one time as the "King of the Bowery," Thompson, and some three or four other men had been occupying a common double room at the lodging house for about three nights previous to the alleged assault.

Midnight Concert.

Furman, according to the testimony, took a peculiar dislike to Thompson because the latter insisted upon producing sounds which reminded him of the days when he used to work in the sawmills. Furman, the night previous got out of bed, walked over to where Thompson was sleeping and interrupted the concert.

Furman testified that when he woke Thompson up and told him he was snoring he was informed by the latter that he was a first-class candidate for the Ananias club. Furman went back to bed and didn't say or do anything, although he thought things about Thompson.

The next evening before Thompson came to the lodging house to turn in for the night, Furman came to the proprietor, the testimony showed, and informed him that if that "d—— fool" who was snoring didn't cease he would feel obliged to take him in hand personally.

A few minutes later Thompson came in. Furman, who had been drinking during the day and who brought a bottle to the room with him, asked Mr. Thompson if he did not wish to join in a friendly drink.

Mr. Thompson admitted on the stand that he had "half a shine on" at the time and readily accepted. In the dimly lighted room he advanced toward the bed of the Terrible Swede. Before he arrived at his destination he was met with an obstruction in the form of a whisky bottle.

The bottle broke in a hundred pieces and inflicted a terrific gash across Thompson's face. He staggered back to his own bed and called to the proprietor for the police. When the police arrived, Furman had left and was in search of other quarters to spend the night when he was arrested.

Furman on the stand admitted throwing the bottle but told the jury that it was in self-defense. He claimed that he was led to believe that Thompson was going to pull a knife on him and he said he wasn't going to take any chances. Furman is a big, husky man and towers head and shoulders over Thompson.

Furman admitted under cross examination that he had been convicted in police court thirty-four times since 1905. Most of the convictions have been for drunkenness, vagrancy and brawling. A year or so ago he drove a fisherman from his shack on the lake shore, beating him quite severely and took possession of his property.

FIFTEEN KILLED IN MINE.

Firedamp Explosion Occurs in Ohio Workings.

Belle Valley, Ohio, May 19.—Burned and blackened, the bodies of fifteen miners who lost their lives Saturday evening when an explosion of firedamp occurred in the Imperial mine, have been brought to the surface by rescuers working under the direction of Deputy State Mine Inspector Abel Ellwood. As each body was brought to the surface, it was identified and taken into the mine foreman of the mine, where it was prepared for burial.

Nearly all of 1,000 inhabitants of Belle Valley gathered at the mine entrance soon after the explosion and stood for hours watching the work of the rescuers. Grief of relatives was pitiable as the bodies of their loved ones were brought out of the pit.

The bodies were found a mile and a quarter from the mouth of the mine. They were lying on their faces and were badly burned.

The Imperial mine is owned by the Gates company of Chicago. The mining property was purchased from the O'Gara Coal company of Cleveland about a year ago.

ONE TRUCK CARRIES ALL THE PRODUCE.

A contributor to the current issue of Farm and Fireside says:

"The complete output of my farm of 187 acres is carried by this truck to market, a distance of twenty-three miles, which is easily covered in two and one-half hours. By horse from seven to eight hours are required.

"Before the truck was used two loads left each day during the marketing season. Both loads required an extra tow-team. The following day another crew alternated. By this system twelve horses and six men were continually in service. Here another item should be considered, that of boarding and lodging men and horses while at market. On the other hand, the truck requires but one operator, who makes the trip daily, going and returning so rapidly that there is plenty of time to rest for the return trip."

The seventh international congress of medicine will be held in London in August.

PREVENTION FIRST NEED

Redemption Secondary Problem of Vice War, Says Clifford G. Roe.

Luncheon Is Given Chicago Worker By Duluthians Interested in Movement.

The enforcement of the law and measures to care for the women who are driven out of the immoral business are all Duluth needs effectually to suppress commercialized vice in the city, Clifford G. Roe, general counsel of the American Vigilance association, told a party of Duluth people at the Commercial club today.

Mr. Roe has little hope for confirmed inmates of houses in the redlight district.

"Very few will be redeemed," he said. "When we closed one district in Chicago, there were between 5,000 and 6,000 girls and only three applied for an opportunity for reform. It is not a question of redemption, but of prevention. We must cut off the supply and prevent the confirmed prostitutes from carrying on their business.

"The average prostitute doesn't want to be reformed. She is generally a dope fiend, likes cigarettes and drinking. She regards herself as an outcast from society and wants to remain such. The best method I know of dealing with them is at Bedford, N. Y., where they are sentenced to remain for three years in pursuits that will drive the dope and perhaps the immoral impulses out of them.

"Square Policy."

"The square thing to do in closing up a redlight district is to give them notice so as to adjust their affairs. The next square thing to do is for some organization to go down there and offer to help all those who want to get out of the business. Then those who do not want to get out should be put in the penitentiary or somewhere where they cannot inflict themselves on society. That seems harsh, but it doesn't do any good to drive them from one place to another. They should be reformed if they will, but if they will not, they should be made to take the consequences."

Mr. Roe said that Duluth knows what it has, has the laws and only needs their enforcement. He advocated co-operation between Duluth and Superior on account of the problem presented by the proximity of the two cities. He said the American Vigilance association is seeking to band the cities together, so that a nation-wide movement will prevent the dumping of vice from one city into the back yard of another.

"I do not believe that the economic side is of such importance as many believe," he said in discussing white slavery. "The wages working girls receive do not contribute nearly so many victims as ignorance—ignorance on the part of the public, the parents and the child, and the double standard of morals. I believe a law requiring physical examinations before marriage would wipe out the double standard, and then by education we can cut off the demand that is now responsible for the supply of white slaves."

The luncheon was attended by Dr. F. C. Bowman, W. L. Smithies, Bert N. Wheeler, Dr. Mary McCoy, Mrs. A. A. Kerr and Dr. R. C. Bowden of the general committee; Commissioner of Public Safety W. A. Hicken, City Attorney Harvey S. Clapp, Municipal Judge W. L. Windom, County Attorney Warren E. Greene, Courtenay Dinwiddie, secretary of the board of welfare, and Rev. Knowles of Superior.

After Mr. Roe's talk, the meeting resolved itself into a conference on the vice conditions in the city, and Commissioner Hicken promised his entire support in any campaign for the suppression of the evil.

CHICAGOAN SHOOTS SELF AT HIBBING

Paul Zero Fires Two Bullets in Head While in Hospital.

Hibbing, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Paul Zero, aged about 40, traveling representative of Zero Bros., Chicago tailors, shot himself twice in the head with a pistol while a patient in a local hospital about 1 p. m. today, and is expected to die. He was apparently getting along all right from a bad cold and the hospital people cannot account for his action.

He was well dressed, well supplied with money and appeared prosperous. He belongs to the U. C. T. and has a wife living at Richview, Ill. It is feared late this afternoon that he cannot survive. It was not known he had a pistol when he entered the hospital.

IDEAL FARM IN 120 ACRES.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside the editor reports the opinion of J. F. Sparks, an Iowa farmer, that the farm of 120 acres in the corn belt is the ideal. He has had experience on farms of 80, 120, 160 and 490 acres and believes in the 120-acre farm. Following is an extract from the article:

"How much clear money can a man make on this sort of farm? The ideal farm of 120 acres described by this 120-acre farmer should sell, he says, products on the average to the amount of $4,600 a year. Feed to the value of $1,000 a year would be bought. This would leave the farmer, as interest and wages, $3,600. He deducts the $600 for incidentals, and gives $3,000 as the net return.

"Mr. Sparks says he knows of families that are doing a $400 poultry business yearly, but he sticks his pin at $250 as what anyone should do who makes the most of his chances and keeps the right kind of hens. A dozen cows should turn off $480 in the year, at the minimum of $40 each—or the butcher's block. This farm should sell three colts in two years, or one and a half a year, for $300. Even in the present slump the right kind of colts will bring $200.

"The central thought is efficiency. No poor cows, no poor sows, no poor horses, no poor buildings, no poor machinery, nothing but the best. He says that the way to get these things is to buy them and pay for them if you can, and if not, go in debt for them."

Miss Hazel King and her sister, of San Francisco, are going to begin farming for themselves in a short time, having been inspired to become agriculturists while at college. Their father is the president of the Bank of California.

CLAPP WANTS BAR ON POLITICAL WORK

Would Prohibit Congressmen From Serving on Party Committees.

Washington, May 19.—Senator Clapp introduced a bill today to make it unlawful for a senator or representative to serve on any political committee or club organization, and to prohibit congressmen, under penalty of fine and imprisonment, from soliciting campaign funds.

For years both the Republican and Democratic congressional committees have been headed by members of congress. Within the last few days political advisers of President Wilson, at his request, urged the naming of more senators upon the Democratic congressional committee.

Senator Clapp is a member of the senate elections committee and was chairman of the special committee which conducted an exhaustive investigation last year into political campaign affairs.

HARVESTER CASE IS TAKEN TO CHICAGO

Company's Business for 1912 Beyond That of Other Years.

Chicago, May 19.—Taking of testimony in the defense of the United States government suit for the dissolution of the International Harvester company was scheduled to be resumed here today before Special Examiner Robert S. Taylor. Some 775 witnesses already have been examined. The names of 570 additional witnesses whom the defendant company expects to examine in Chicago have been furnished the government.

Hearings have been held in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, St. Paul, Omaha, Wichita, Kan., Kansas City and Sioux Falls. It is expected that the Chicago hearing will continue several weeks.

Record in Business.

The annual statement of the Harvester company, issued on the eve of the Chicago hearing, showed that during the last year the company's business reached the highest point in its history. Total sales for 1912 reached $125,438,104, compared with $108,033,595 for 1911, an increase of $17,404,609 or 16 per cent. The greatest increase was in foreign sales, which advanced 20 per cent and passed the $50,000,000 mark.

A NEW SABER.

Thrusting More Important to the Mounted Soldier Than Cutting.

Popular Mechanics: The new sword just adopted by the United States army for cavalary use is strikingly different in almost every detail from the old saber. The blade is 35⅞ inches long, perfectly straight, sharp on both sides, and tapers to a sharp point. The guard is strongly constructed and affords complete protection to the hand. The sword itself weighs a trifle more than the old saber, but the combined weight of sword and scabbard is about two ounces less than the old equipment. The service scabbard for the new sword is of wood covered with a rawhide canvas. Officers' service scabbards are of dull finished steel, while they will wear blue steel scabbards on garrison duty.

The new sword makes it easier to train soldiers to use the point instead of the cutting edge. Cavalry experience has demonstrated that the sword is much more effective for thrusting than for slashing, although the tendency of the beginner with the saber is to swing it as though it were an ax or a club. A cutting blow, even with a sharp sword, seldom dismounts or disables an opponent, while the forward thrust with the point, even with comparatively little force behind it, usually disables or kills if it reaches its mark.

"SAFETY FIRST" WORKERS HERE

"Only Americans Get Hurt in Paris," Says Frederick Hughes---Series of Lectures in Public Schools.

"No one but Americans get injured on the streets of Paris," said Frederick S. Hughes, "Safety First" expert, who is giving a series of talks in the city on prevention of accidents.

Mr. Hughes spoke this morning at the Central high school and at the Jefferson school. This afternoon he spoke at the Adams school.

Mr. Hughes said that in France the victim of the accident was arrested if it happened in the middle of a block. If the accident occurred at a crossing the driver of the vehicle was the one who was held liable by the officials.

Mr. Hughes is accompanied by Mrs. Hughes in making the campaign to have people take better care of themselves when walking along the street. They admonish their listeners to follow the rule of stopping, listening and looking when crossing a thoroughfare or railroad track. The schedule of talks is as follows:

RAISE $34,877 FOR MISSIONS.

St. Louis, Mo., May 19.—The raising of $34,877 for the Judson Jubilate mission offering was the climax of yesterday's proceedings of the Southern Baptist convention. The money was raised by the Women's Missionary union at a mass meeting at which only women were present. Alabama led all the states with a contribution of $8,225. More than 400 sermons were preached by visiting Baptists in the various churches of St. Louis during the day.

Woman's Realm

Peace day in the public schools will be a feature of the week, Friday of this week having been set aside for its observance in the public schools of all cities in the state. Programs will be given in the various buildings, bearing on the subject, and songs, recitations and talks have been prepared. The established "Peace and Arbitration" day is May 18, but as that date was on Sunday this year the school observance was postponed until Friday, May 23.

"To 'defend the flag' is not necessarily to fight for it, but rather to devise the best means for preserving and uplifting all beneath its folds, and extending the protection and assistance of wise and just laws to all humankind," says Martha Brett-Moran, patriotic instructor of the department of Minnesota, Woman's Relief corps.

"Peace and arbitration," she says, "or the settlement of difficulties between nations or divisions of nations without war, is a subject well worth the attention and best efforts of all patriots."

Forethought Needed.

To think beforehand of the results of war, to resort to careful and deliberate discussion of the situation before rushing into war and to remember the useless sacrifice of lives and material treasure which has resulted from former wars, are points urged by Mrs. Moran.

"Peace and arbitration in the present light of human advancement offer a solution of a problem which has existed throughout all history, and which has retarded the progress of every known race and wasted millions of precious lives and unlimited material treasure," she says. "Arbitration presents the best known substitute for war, with its accompanying horrors, its needless sacrifice and its desolation and heartbreak. Its methods are simple, sane and practical and appeal to the better rather than the worse side of human nature.

"In no department of human endeavor is the power of thought more potent than when danger from without or within the national borders threatens.

"To think beforehand of the results which are sure to follow a resort to arms, and to realize how paltry is the gain at best, rather than to yield to rash impulse, when so-called national or civic pride is aroused, as has so long been the custom, would in most cases lead to the finding of a better way. What that way shall be is the theme for Peace and Arbitration day consideration.

"A study of this farreaching and allembracing topic will well repay all who are interested in the perfecting of American citizenship. While telling the youth of our country of the grandeur of sacrifice, which has made and kept us a nation, it is well at the same time to emphasize the fact that changing conditions are revealing the need of a better way."

PREFERS PETS TO A HUSBAND

MISS LESLA SHELDON

Miss Lesla Sheldon, a belle of South Kensington, London, England, prefers the love of the so-called lower animals to that of a husband. She believes firmly that human devotion can never equal that of dogs, horses, etc. She possesses a horse, seven dogs, six cats, four canaries and a small alligator. She declares a good-natured dog is more appreciative than the average man, is a better companion, has a better temper and is not so reckless as a man. Miss Sheldon is very popular in London society and has had many offers of marriage, but so far has refused to give up her beloved pets to make a pet of a husband.

FREE EXHIBIT FOR MOTHERS

Duluth Women Have Rare Opportunity to Get Information on Care of Babies.

The infant welfare exhibit being presented in Duluth under the auspices of the Scottish Rite Masons opened today at the auditorium of the Temple and the pupils from the seventh and eighth grades of the city and the high schools viewed the exhibit.

Tomorrow will also be reserved for pupils of these grades and Wednesday the exhibit will be open to the general public.

The exhibit has been prepared by the women of Baltimore and has been sent throughout the country for the education of mothers and others in charge of children and to improve the care and general condition of children. The exhibit deals with the care that should surround the expectant mother, and in charts showing the rate of mortality among children up to the second year, the proper feeding is interestingly contrasted with pictures of improper care and feeding. Some electrical exhibits most vividly present figures that are startling, and if the mother once sees the model of the soothing syrup bottle, it is safe to say that she will think twice before she again dopes her baby with soothing syrups of any kind.

The exhibit is most interesting and the public is urged to attend some time during Wednesday, Thursday or Friday.

A most interesting schedule of lectures by prominent physicians of the city has been arranged for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and seldom is so much information and knowledge of value placed at the disposal of the public in a series of free lectures. The first lecture of the series will be given Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock when Dr. S. H. Boyer will be the speaker. His subject will be "The Prevention of Infant Diseases."

The exhibit and lectures are free to the public, and everyone is urged to plan to attend sometime during the week.

Children Innocent Sufferers in Divorce Tangles.

I never read about a divorce case that I do not breathe a sigh of relief if it is stated that the couple who are seeking relief from Hymen's vows have no children. To me divorce, in any form or under any circumstances, is a terrible thing; but when there are innocent children to suffer for the sins or shortcomings of their parents, it always seems much worse to me.

There is no doubt that the presence of children in the family often serves to keep husbands and wives who are more or less mismated, uncongenial and unhappy, together. The pity is that it is not more often so that this is so. I know of a case where a husband and wife had lived together for nearly twenty-five years. Everyone in the community, especially their friends and neighbors, knew that they were not congenial and were not especially happy together. They seldom went out among their friends together and were rarely seen together in public. Each moved along in a little circle which each had created.

So far as anybody knew, there had never been an open breach between them. They managed to get along and to tolerate each other for these many years. The reason was that there were two children, a son and daughter. Then, suddenly, one day, when both children had reached the late teens, this couple shocked their friends by seeking a divorce, both having agreed upon the action beforehand, and their bonds were freed by the court on the grounds of "incompatibility of temperament."

Surely, you will say, if this couple lived thus long together for the sake of their children they could have gone on living so the rest of the days. Perhaps so; but the fact that they considered the children in the equation is more than many couples do.

Paternal and maternal love, especially the latter, should go a long way toward healing the breach between husbands and wives. The life of the child whose parents are separated is, to a certain degree, blighted. He must go through life parentless, in the true sense, and will always be marked with a stigma from which there can be no escape.

Surely, if parents cannot compose their differences, resolve to give and take and to remember their marriage vows, for their own sake, and in order to maintain their own self-respect, they should do so for the sake of the innocent little ones whom their union has brought into the world, and to whom their separation means a heartrending deeper than they can ever know.

SMALL STARS NOT SO SMALL

They Are Really Big Suns and Some of Them Are Twenty Trillion Miles Away.

New York Press: In the course of a lecture on "The Stars" which Sir Robert Ball, the distinguished astronomer, delivered at the Royal Institution in London, the lecturer said that those orbs which appear so small to us because of their immense distance are in reality, of course, great and shining suns. If, he said, we were to escape from the earth into space, the moon, Jupiter, Saturn, and eventually the sun, would become invisible; but, as far as we are from the stars, they would still shine brightly upon us.

Many of these stars are heavier than our sun. For example, Mizar, the middle star in the tail of the Great Bear, is forty times as heavy as the sun. To the naked eye there are 5,000 to 6,000 of these heavenly bodies visible. In all probability there are planets—perhaps habitable worlds like ours—revolving around them.

Sixty-one Cygni is the nearest star to us in this part of the sky. Alpha Centauri, in the constellation Centaur, in the southern hemisphere, is the nearest of all stars. The sun is a long way off—93,000,000 miles. Now, multiply this by 200,000 and the result is, roughly speaking, 20,000,000,000,000, and this is our distance from Alpha Centauri.

Take the speed of an electric current which is nearly the same as that of light—180,000 miles per second. Suppose a message to be sent at this speed from a point on the earth's surface it would go seven times around the earth in one second.

Again, let it be supposed that messages were sent off to the different heavenly bodies. To reach the moon at this rate it would take about one second. In eight minutes a message would get to the sun, and allowing for a couple of minutes' delay, one could send a message to the sun and get an answer all within twenty minutes. But to reach Alpha Centauri it would take three years; and as this is the nearest of the stars, what time must it take to get to the others?

If, when Wellington won the battle of Waterloo, in 1815, the news had been telegraphed off immediately, there are some stars so remote that it would not yet have reached them. To go a step further, if, in 1066 the result of the conquest had been wired to some of these stars, the message would still be on its way. If the tidings of the first Christmastide in Bethlehem had been sent to the stars, there are some orbs, situated in the furthermost depths of space, yet not beyond the reach of our great telescopes, which could not receive the message for a long time yet.

California vegetable growing is on a big scale. From one place this season twenty-two carloads of rhubarb and from another, thirty-four carloads of fresh asparagus went east. One association cannery packed 4,500,000 pounds of berries in 1912.

JACK JOHNSON—AND OTHERS.

The Lincoln State Journal writes an editorial about the conviction of Jack Johnson, in which, after admitting that the conviction is popular and that the punishment to follow will be even more popular, it proceeds to lay a good deal of the blame for Jack Johnson's fate upon society.

And probably the indictment is a true one.

"The big black prize fighter," says the Journal, "could plead extenuating circumstances. We all admit that environment has much to do with character. Johnson's progress toward a prison door has been the consequence of a peculiar environment, an environment made for him, or at least tolerated by many who now join the hue and cry against him.

"White society encourages an institution which inevitably forces men into fame and wealth by the force of sheer brute strength. The man who can 'lick any man on earth' gains in a two-hour fight what the average man of equal intelligence and probably higher mind cannot hope to earn in a life time. Jack Johnson, without training in self-restraint, without practice in the proper use of money, came into a fortune at the Reno ringside three years ago. With fortune came fame sufficient to turn the head of a man, to say nothing of a child mind like his. White vultures, men and women, gathered to divest him of his wealth. Others, fools rather than knaves, came to shower him with sickly sentiment. We created the environment that made him what he is, first having brought him—his ancestors—here by selfish force. He is little more responsible for his conduct than the beast led to the ring to be the central figure of a bull fight. Small right have we to feel anything but pity and sorrow over Jack Johnson, sorrow for our own mistakes and pity for his."

We guess there is a good deal to the Journal's contention. We ought not to have brought the black people over from Africa to make them slaves; but, if it helps any, we are not doing it any more. We ought not to have encouraged a sport so brutal and degrading as prize fighting; but it is plain enough that we have revolted against it and that we are not going to encourage it much further.

But that doesn't help Jack Johnson. His ancestors were brought here, and he was raised in an environment that produced a suddenly rich pugilist, whose unearned wealth has landed him behind prison bars after a swift downward career.

As to "practice in the proper use of money," the only way that can be gained is by earning the money. Many a wastrel heir to fortune which he did not earn is at least as much entitled to our sympathy as Jack Johnson.

But we like the spirit of the Journal's comment, even though the case of Jack Johnson does not appeal to our sympathy quite so much as some others.

It would pay all of us to look at the other fellow's side of it more. It would be more Christian, and it would broaden our ideas and sweeten our hearts.

We foster slums, and then punish the prostitution and crime that inevitably grow there, when at least we should accompany punishment with pity and help.

Society permits class poverty to persist, and then punishes the crime that grows out of an environment of ignorance and deprivation as certain to create crime as night is to follow day.

A little more thought of society's responsibility to its members, and a little more charity to the fellow who hasn't had a fair show in life, would become all of us.

That name "Harry Thaw" lends itself just as readily to the use of the writer of head lines as it did in the days of yore.

PATRIOT OR CATSPAW?

Recent developments in Europe put it beyond doubt that the war spirit which is leading European nations into stupendous and ever increasing expense for war equipment has been artfully created and skillfully maintained by the agents of those who have war materials to sell.

Mark Sullivan, writing from Washington to Collier's Weekly, says that there is a well defined belief there that a war making machine on the lines of those exposed in Europe exists at our own national capital.

In other words, men interested in selling war equipment spend money to create war scares and to foster large military and naval appropriations.

They seize on such incidents as Japan's discontent with California's legislation against alien ownership of land to create a feeling that we would be safer if we had a lot more guns and ships and forts—all of which cost the taxpayers much money and profit hugely those who sell the materials to make them.

It will be worth while, therefore, for the citizen who feels inclined to belligerency toward Japan or any other country, and who finds within himself the disposition to carry the chip of jingoism on his shoulder, to analyze his emotions carefully, and especially to locate their source.

It may be that when he thinks himself a patriot he is merely a catspaw for men with armor plate and ammunition to sell.

Now that the tariff bill is safely in the senate committee, the real work of the lobbyists will begin.

FARMERS' CLUBS.

In an interview in The Herald the other evening Fred Ward, county agricultural agent, reported that almost every farming community in St. Louis county has a farmers' club or is organizing one.

That's good news; and the statement that Mr. Ward has been devoting much of his time to organizing these clubs is good to hear. For the present, he could hardly put in time to better advantage.

Rural organizations, especially when they take on co-operative features as they must if they persist, are capable of great good for the rural communities and for the cities as well.

They afford an opportunity for note-comparing on many subjects. They afford an opportunity for co-operation in seed-buying, producing and marketing.

By no means to be despised is the fact that they also offer an opportunity for social gatherings in which the farmers' wives and daughters may participate.

They work for the promotion of better agricultural and marketing methods, both of which are all to the good not only for the producer but for the consumer.

Governor Eberhart took lunch with Congressman Hammond in Washington. Political dopesters will now dissect this fact and give the public their suspicions.

A MINIMUM WAGE FOR PREACHERS.

The Episcopal diocese of New Jersey has passed a canon which fixes the salaries for its clergy at $1,200 for married men and $1,000 for single men.

The diocese doubtless has figured it out that ministers worried about making both ends meet cannot be as efficient as they should be. Hence the minimum wage canon. Though applying only to new parishes, it is a step in the right direction.

While it is true of the clergy that insufficient pay so fills the mind with financial difficulties that efficiency is curtailed, it is also true of nearly everybody else.

Hence the growing public interest in minimum wage laws.

It is for the good of society that every worker, whatever his field, shall be able to earn enough to live decently, to marry and raise a family in self-respecting comfort, to feed his mind as well as his body, and to educate his children into efficient citizenship.

That's why it is, though many resent the idea of government interference in the wage problem, that many others believe it to be the duty of society, through its governmental agencies, to establish minimum wage scales and insist that they be observed.

Now comes a man who says he can get carbon dioxide down to a temperature of 110 degrees below zero. And here a lot of us have been thinking it was cool in Duluth!

Control of Local Utilities.

Kansas City Star: The municipal regulation of rates, service, etc., of a public utility owned by a private company is sometimes viewed with distrust by courts, on the ground that the city is a party in interest. That a state public utilities commission is not thus affected is one chief reason why such a commission does its work well and why its work finds favor with all courts, state and federal.

The law creating the public utilities commission of Missouri does not prevent the exercise of a general supervision of utilities by the city in which it operates. But by that statute even the minor work of city boards and of the city council is supplemented by the work of the state commission. And as to general authority over rates, etc., the state commission is supreme, except for a court review.

Why Not.

Kansas City Journal: "The point seems to be to get the hats as hideous as possible."

"Well," said the woman coldly, "what is it you wanted to say?"

"Why don't you put bats on 'em instead of birds?"

BATTLE HYMN OF THE REPUBLIC.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Would you please print the words of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" in the Open Court column in the next issue of The Herald? Thanking you in advance, I remain, SUBSCRIBER.

Ironwood, Mich., May 17.

Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord;
He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
He has loosed the fateful lightnings of His terrible swift sword;
His truth is marching on.

Glory! glory! hallelujah!
Glory! glory! hallelujah!
Glory! glory! hallelujah!
Our God is marching on.

I have seen Him in the watch fires of a hundred circling camps;
They have builded Him an altar in the evening dews and damps;
I can read His righteous sentence by the dim and flaring lamps.
His day is marching on.

I have read a fiery gospel, writ in rows of burnished steel;
"As ye deal with my contemners, so with you my grace shall deal;
Let the Hero, born of woman, crush the serpent with his heel,
Since God is marching on."

He has sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat;
He is sifting out the hearts of men before His judgment seat;
O! be swift, my soul, to answer Him; be jubilant, my feet!
Our God is marching on.

In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea,
With a glory in His bosom that transfigures you and me;
As He died to make men holy, let us die to make men free.
While God is marching on.

MODEL TOWN AT DOOR OF A FUTURE MODEL CITY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The Minnesota Steel company is placing a gem at the door of Duluth in the form of a model town, which, as it has been justly observed, will have in more than one respect a beneficent influence on the city of Duluth.

A model town is a town which has been planned according to the principles of city planning, and if this David of a city will furnish an object lesson to its Goliath parent, and the latter not disdain to learn from it, its teaching will not be the least of its virtues.

The Steel trust is a big business enterprise, so is the corporation which we call the city of Duluth, and if the former manages to tend to its own business and build besides model cities as a side issue, the city of Duluth should sit up and take notice, for city building is by no means a side issue with cities, but their specialty.

When Hanibal approached the gates of Rome, the Romans woke up and shouted "Hanibal ante portas." The Duluthians should do the same. The citizen's pride will then be aroused, for not only at our door is where we want the model city.

Two hundred and thirteen years ago a model western suburb was placed at the doors of Paris, which increased its sphere of influence until it transformed the parent city. What the king of France did for Paris the king of industries is doing for Duluth, and the effect will be the same as long as we remember that a city is like a growing individual, the trousers of streets and thoroughfares have to be fitted according to the changed conditions and future expectations.

VOICE FROM THE UNDERWORLD.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I read in the editorial section of one person who used good common sense in regard to the red light question, and also the segregated district. Does the public want us again for their neighbors and spread us all over the city? The city is in terrible shape now and it will be worse if they wipe out the district. No good woman of any description has come around to ask any of those poor girls if they want a helping hand or tried to uplift them in any way, and if they did, I doubt if any girl would go with them, for they would make life so miserable they would drive them to suicide. I have worked for society people who thought they were good people, and I had to sleep and eat in a place where they wouldn't let their dog sleep for fear the draft would hurt him. They had no consideration for me whatever. I was insulted in every place I ever worked, whether it was a hotel or a private family, it made no difference. There was no segregated district in the town I worked in and every girl in the vicinity was going wrong. If I made a complaint I was fired; if I told the truth I was fired; if I kept quiet I was fired, and I was hired and fired until I found a new field where people were kind to me. Such is the underworld. My ideal of life always was to be the mother of a large family of children, for I always loved them, but my hope was blasted. Now, I want to ask the public—if it wasn't for the bad women what would become of the good women? J. W., St. Croix Avenue.

QUESTION ANSWERED.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Will you kindly inform me through the Open Court of the nationality and religion (previous to her marriage) of the present queen of Spain? Thanking you, yours very truly,

MRS. W. G. FRANKLIN.

Duluth, May 14.

She was English and an Episcopalian, becoming a Roman Catholic when she married the king.

A Lightning Sketch.

New York Tribune: "President Wilson ought to have been a novelist," said a Princeton professor. "He has the most marvelous faculty for tabloid characterization."

"Tabloid characterization?"

"Yes. By that I mean the faculty of portraying a man's character in a few words. Let me give you an example.

"President Wilson once mentioned a certain individual in my hearing, and I said:

"'What sort of a chap is he?'

"'Well,' President Wilson answered, 'you can't get an idea into his head, and you can't get one out of it.'"

Where Mothers Go to School

From the London Standard.

In the center of Adelaide, the capital of South Australia, in a daintily furnished cottage, with its pretty back garden where the children may play undisturbed, and where rest may be found under the shady awning, amidst cool, refreshing grapevines, Adelaide mothers congregate on two afternoons a week at their own special school.

There they have their babies weighed, compare notes, and after a helpful talk with those in charge, during which tea is dispensed, go home cheered and invigorated, with a little added knowledge of their infant and its needs. After the primary business of the afternoon (weighing the babies and entering up the charts) is concluded, the nurse superintendent incidentally chats with the mothers on the importance of proper feeding, and in the little model kitchen, gives practical demonstrations on the care of the bottles, the proper methods of preparing the artificial foods, and generally helping to make the school for mothers one in deed as well as in name. To these consultations comes the medical officer, herself a busy woman doctor, giving ungrudgingly of her precious time to show her interest and sympathy with the mothers and children.

The committee has recently organized a training course dealing with sanitation, the care of the child, social conditions, and other subjects calculated to render the work of the visitors to the homes of the mothers more useful to the state, as it is recognized that some expert knowledge is necessary to make for efficiency in this important service. This branch of the work has scarcely passed the tentative stage, and it is difficult at present to estimate the results. The duty of the visitor is to see the infant in its home, and to report to the secretary any cases of neglect, improper feeding, or other matters which may make a visit from the nurse advisable.

A class for dressmaking where practical instruction is given to the mothers in cutting out and making their own and their children's clothes, is much appreciated; whilst another inducement to thrift is the savings bank, for which any small sum, from one penny upwards is received, the money when it reaches a pound, being transferred to the general savings bank.

The Prophet

Toledo Blade: Something more than 150 years ago Dr. Samuel Johnson wrote:

"Trade and manufactures must be confessed often to enrich countries, but trade and manufactures, however profitable, must yield to the cultivation of lands in usefulness and dignity. * * * Agriculture alone can support us without the help of others in certain plenty and genuine dignity. Whatever we buy from without, the sellers may refuse; whatever we sell, manufactured by art, the purchasers may reject; but while our ground is covered with corn and cattle, we can want nothing, and if imagination should grow sick of native plenty, and call for delicacies or embellishments from other countries, there is nothing which corn and cattle will not purchase. * * * This, therefore, is the great art which every government ought to protect, every proprietor of lands to practice and every inquirer into nature to improve."

Dr. Johnson's own country, after his death, came to think that that view of national wealth was a mistake and while devoting herself to building up an enormous world's trade, neglected agriculture and let the acres once cultivated go into parkland and shooting preserves. The government of Britain is now engaged in fighting for those lands that they may be restored to agriculture and made again to serve as the national bulwork against want and the fickle desires and needs of the world without.

Dr. Johnson deserves remembrance from his countrymen as a prophet.

Our Improving Land.

Collier's Weekly: All the land in United States—just the bare land—is valued at something like $40,000,000,000 or $50,000,000,000. All the improvements thereon, the farm houses and factories and skyscrapers and railways, are probably worth about as much more. The improvements represent human toil and thrift. The value of the land represents simply human need—of food and clothing. The value of the bare land is due solely to the pressure of population, and not to what the owners have done upon it. The improvements are perishable and of steadily declining value. The land value is imperishable and advances steadily. In the last fifteen years the land value has more than doubled. In these same fifteen years the larger part of what stood thereon—factories and buildings—has had to be replaced. The greater the amount of the improvements, the greater the value of the bare land. Those who made the improvements—that is, the whole of the population—presented to the owners of the land something like $20,000,000,000 or $30,000,000,000. The gift was masked by the fact that a very large part of the improvers were also the landowners. But the rapid rise of farm tenantry and city tenantry will soon make the line of cleavage clear. Then perhaps we shall become intelligent enough to secure the increment in land value to the whole community, and not to the steadily decreasing number to whom it is now a source of private and enormous gain.

Impractical Schedule.

Washington Star: "I suppose you are interested in gardening?"

"Yes. If there is anything I enjoy, it is to work an hour or two before breakfast. There's only one difficulty."

"What is that?"

"If I postpone breakfast till I have worked in the garden an hour or two it's liable to be almost noon before I get to the office."

Venus's Mirror.

(On Sight of a Gentlewoman's Face in the Water.)

Stand still, you floods! do not deface
That image which you bear;
So votaries from every place
To you shall altars rear.

No winds but lovers' sighs blow here,
To trouble these glad streams,
On which no star from any sphere
Did ever dart such beams.

To crystal then in haste congeal
Lest you should lose your bliss;
And to my cruel, fair reveal
How cold, how hard she is!

But if the envious nymphs shall fear
Their beauties will be scorned,
And hire the ruder winds to tear
The face which you adorned,

Then rage and foam amain, that we
Their malice may despise;
When from your froth we soon shall see
A second Venus rise.

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Dick" Austin put on his kidding clothes the other morning and started out on a jestful day. By way of identification, Austin is the representative from the Knoxville, Tenn., district, president of the Looters' club—of which Phil Campbell of Kansas is vice president—and the most zealous member of congress in the dispensing of public moneys. Besides all this, he is given to jokes and japery of a quiet sort, and he has great sport with his more serious-minded colleagues.

On the morning in question, Austin caracoled into the office of the secretary of the treasury, and whom did he find there but Representative Fitzgerald of New York, watchdog of the appropriations committee, and himself a bit of a joker. The two were ushered into McAdoo's private office together.

"I want to warn you against this man," began Fitzgerald, indicating Austin.

"Oh, you can't warn me against him," said McAdoo; "I've known the fellow ever since we were youngsters together down in Knoxville. Why he—"

"But I must warn you against Fitzgerald," interrupted Austin, "on account of his scandalous waste of public money."

"I thought he was one of the watchdogs," put in McAdoo.

"That's just it," admitted Austin; "the man doesn't like to spend a cent, but would have the money stay right here in the treasury vaults going to waste. If he had his way, Mr. Secretary, when you go out of office four years from now, you would have on hand not only all the money that was in the vaults when you came, but all the money that has been paid into the treasury since then."

From the treasury department, Austin proceeded to the capitol, still in his kidding mood. One of the first men he met was Oscar Underwood.

"Underwood," said Austin, "there is just one great fault I find in this tariff bill. If you had left the duties the same as they were in the Payne bill, and then added the income tax provision, we would have had a great many millions more of revenue than heretofore, and just think of the fun I and the rest of the looters could have had trying to get it all spent.

A little later Austin approached A. Mitchell Palmer, who has only a moderate sense of humor, and mysteriously beckoned him to one side.

"Palmer," said Austin in his low, serious voice, "I have been down to lunch for the last few minutes. How many great American industries have you Democrats destroyed during my absence?"

Austin's next victim that day was Cordell Hull, author of the income tax provision.

"Inasmuch as we are both from Tennessee," remarked Austin to Hull, "I am proud to know that you are the author of the only good thing in the tariff bill. Still I think you are greatly in error as to the amount of revenue to be derived from the income tax. There is one great and all-important fact that you seem to have overlooked in making your calculations."

"And what is that?" asked Hull, interested.

"Why," replied Austin, "the fact that the only people who will have any income to speak of after your tariff bill is in force will be the sheriffs."

Austin says the "Looters'" club is going to have a parade up Pennsylvania avenue one of these days, and he is going to ride at the head of it on a white horse, carrying a banner with "Loot" on it in big type.

Martin B. Madden, wealthy member of congress from Chicago, wishes he might have been built along more original lines. The trouble with him is that he looks like too many people. He makes a specialty of being a ringer for long-lost brothers. On an average of once a month he gets a letter from some one who has seen his picture and claims him a brother thought to have been lost at sea or strayed from home years and years ago. The other day he heard from a woman, who said she had a locket with an "M" on it, and containing a boyhood picture of her long-lost brother that looked exactly like the one of Madden in a Chicago paper. Madden was obliged to tell her that his congressional duties are too pressing to allow him any time for being a long-lost brother this year.

This happened when Senator Shafroth of Colorado was prosecuting attorney in Denver. He was about to prosecute the case of a man who had once skipped town under a forgery charge. While the man was away, his attorney confided to Shafroth that he was guilty. But when the fellow came back, the attorney agreed, much to Shafroth's surprise, to defend him.

"Yes," said the attorney, "as I told you he's guilty, but he seems to prefer to stand trial and has offered me $50 to defend him."

"Oh, George, you can't afford to do that," said Shafroth, thinking of the deplorable lack of ethics.

"That's exactly what I told the man," promptly said the lawyer. "I told him I ought to have at least a hundred."

Senator Warren has a little scar across the back of one hand. It dates back to the time he was presiding officer of the Wyoming territorial legislature, and tried to defend himself from being swatted with a chair when the minority tried to put through a bill moving the capital away from Cheyenne.

Hat Chasing Out West.

New York Times: "Yes," said the man just back from the West, "when I went out in Montana I did what nearly every other tenderfoot does—bought one of the broad-brimmed felt hats like the ones stage cowboys wear, and put it on at the first opportunity.

"Mine wasn't the only one in town, but I felt conspicuous just the same. Somehow or other I hadn't acquired the knack of wearing it. One windy day—and, believe me, it can blow some in B—— without half trying—I walked down the main street of the town holding onto my hat with one hand and my coat with the other. As I turned a corner the wind seemed to stop blowing, and I let go of the hat, when a sudden gust came, took it off my head, and sent it rolling like a frightened hoop down the street.

"I started to give chase, when another hatless man—he was a sure-enough Westerner, too—took me by the arm and said:

"'Don't chase it, partner, there'll be another one along in a minute.'"

Beat Him to It.

Houston Post: "I understand that the young man in the house next to you is a finished cornetist?"

"Gee! Is he? I was just screwing up my courage to finish him myself! Who did it?"

The State Legislature

Press Views on the Session.

Get Much Of It Back.

Fergus Falls Free Press: A great deal of fault is found with the last legislature—as the editor of the Free Press predicted several weeks ago—because of the large appropriations; but there is one thing which most of the critics forget—that a great deal of the appropriated money comes back to the people in the form of state aid. Thus about $1,500,000 will be paid back to the various counties for good roads, over $3,000,000 as aid to the public schools, $250,000 toward building county sanatoria for consumptives and a great many thousand dollars for county fairs and county agricultural experts.

Worthy Objects.

Elk River Star-News: The increase in the tax rate by the state legislature is largely due to the passage of the good roads measure and increase in appropriations for county schools, both of which objects the country public ought to approve.

The Speaker's Views.

Speaker Rines, in Mora Times: Governor Eberhart proposes to call an extra session of the legislature to pass a law taking away from the people of villages and cities the right to regulate the service and rates of the public service corporations, such as water, power, light and street railway companies. Why should not the people who have to pay for this kind of service have something to say about rates instead of leaving it to a board of politicians at the state capitol? The popular cry of the day is "Let the people rule," but the governor is taking the opposite position. We are convinced that our chief executive will have a hard time winning a majority of the legislature over to his way of thinking.

Are They Bigger Than State?

Anoka Union: The railroads already give it out cold that they don't know whether they will adopt the 2-cent mile passenger rate or not. If they are bigger than the state of Minnesota all right. If not, they should be made to waltz to the legislative music.

Time Should Be Limited.

St. Peter Free Press: To do justice to all bills by every individual member is physically impossible and it is therefore little wonder that so many bills become law at every session that as a matter of self-protection must either be considered or repealed at the next session. Perhaps the most effectual way to overcome the difficulty of too many bills would be to limit the time of introducing them. The first six weeks would be ample for this purpose and in no event should it exceed eight weeks. It is mighty poor policy to permit the general introduction of bills during the last month of the session and it should never be tolerated.

Good Job.

Hibbing Tribune: On the whole the legislature of 1913 did a pretty fair job, a better job than most of its predecessors have made of law making. A lot of good legislation was enacted, fewer petty grafts and private gifts crept through, less time was wasted, and not many explanations are necessary to the folks at hime. A very great deal of money was spent, but Minnesota is a great state and its expenses must keep on increasing. Besides, the legislature that will not spend more money than is necessary will never exist this side of the millennium.

Is Governor Warranted?

Madison Independent-Press: What will be the result or outcome of the proposed special session for public utilities law making is now the question. Will the outcome demonstrate that the governor was warranted in resorting to the means he did to compel the enactment of legislation along this line to meet his views in the matter?

Satisfied Either Way.

Wadena Pioneer Journal: Perhaps, after giving the matter a little more consideration, Governor Eberhart may decide not to call a special session of the legislature for the purpose of enacting a public utilities bill. So-called propressives are opposing the proposition bitterly, fearing, perhaps, that such an accomplishment might add to the governor's strength. There are a few of us, however, who would be perfectly satisfied if the legislature did not meet again until it is compelled so to do under the Constitution.

Is It Incurable?

New York World: Political parties are not reformed by resolution. It is deeds and not words that count. What Republicanism lacks at this time is public confidence, and if that could have been supplied by conferences like that held yesterday in Chicago the two great conventions assembled in that city last year would have done the business.

Of Republican protestations and promises the country has had more than enough. The men who make them have made others to no purpose. Some Republicans are still in positions where performance is possible. If they would re-establish themselves and their party in the good opinion of the people, why do they not take at least one step forward in response to the known will of the people?

Why are the Republicans in congress voting almost solidly against tariff reductions? Why are the Republicans in the New York legislature lined up almost solidly on the side of Tammany and Murphy? Why are the Republicans in the New Jersey legislature practically a unit in opposition to the Democratic reform bills? Why are Republicans in office in California unanimous in adhering to the anti-Japanese demagogy?

The fact is that there is no evidence anywhere of Republican repentance. Every faction of the party stands pat for some kind of monopoly, privilege, ring rule, boss rule and gang rule. There is a yearning on all sides for reorganization and harmony, but is the reorganization to be merely for power and the harmony to be only for plunder?

Something They Hadn't Seen.

Chicago Post: Following a baseball game, in which the Yankees came to ignominious defeat, Irvin S. Cobb, the humorist, approached Frank Chance and said:

"Would you mind if I gave your team a little surprise—a little treat?"

"Not at all," responded Chance. "It might even cheer them up."

"When, then," continued Cobb, "call them over here and I'll show them third base."

For Refusing to Be Governor.

Springfield, Mass., Union: A law was made in Plymouth colony about 1640 inflicting a penalty of £20 on any person who should refuse to accept the office of governor. Apparently there is no necessity for restoring that penalty.

Butter Making Revolutionized.

McIntosh Times: Butter making will be entirely revolutionized. It has been the happy fortune of a McIntoshite to make this great discovery. It will no longer be necessary for the farmer to wait his turn at the creamery and perhaps drive several miles further than necessary to market his cream and then wait a few weeks or days to receive the returns. That method is all right for those people who have plenty of time. Gunder Omland has discovered something that will even take Edison's breath away. All he has to do is take the cream from his separator, put it into the milk can, load it onto his motor cycle, start for town, and by the time he has reached the town he takes the cover off the cream can and sells the butter at the highest market price. It commands a higher price than any other butter because of its being made by the most sanitary method known to science. We do not doubt but that every farmer in the not distant future will consider himself behind the times unless he has one of these modern butter churns. This is an actual fact and no dream. This actually happened the other day when Gunder was going to take his cream to the creamery. He had only gone a short distance when he discovered that the cream had turned into butter. He returned home, salted the butter and took it to town. All hats off to Gunder for discovering the rapid transit of butter fat.

CHRISTIAN EXPERIENCE.

Pastor Says It Is Real Factor in Man's Life.

That Christianity is the real factor in a man's life was the basis of a sermon delivered yesterday by Rev. Milton Fish, pastor of the Central Baptist church, Twentieth avenue west and First street. The pastor spoke on "Is Christian Experience Real or Fanciful."

He said in part:

"Millions assemble in churches Sunday after Sunday confessedly to celebrate the divine honors of Jesus Christ, the King of Glory. Multitudes know worship as merely having a share in magically endowed rites and ceremonies. Some enjoy the uplift of religious thought and inspiring music. But few really meet Jesus Christ in a soul satisfying religious experience. But among the real Christians we find confessions of experience that are of real significance to truth-seekers and scientists.

"We search the unregenerate man in vain to find the elements of the Christian life experience. No combinations of shadows can make sunshine. No confluence of eddies can turn the whole course of the Mississippi back from the Gulf to the Rockies. Greater than such suggested miracles is the change of an unregenerate man into a sin-hating, Christ-loving man.

"The careful observer notes from the testimony of Christian experience results that are personal and that argue for a personal power. A principle or a force or an impersonal absolute energy cannot vary their function in the mind of a man. The new life coming into the regenerate is personal because it charges the operations so as to reinforce the will or to illume the mind or to flood the sensibilities with joy.

"Christian experience is Christ, a person, not myself, that is satisfying, making changed personal conditions—physical, mental, moral and spiritual. The reality of Christian experience is Christ in us, the hope of glory compelling real Christians to declare, 'For me to live is Christ,'"

Driver of Machine Unable to Stop Within 200 Yards.

Warren, Ohio, May 19.—Three women and one man were killed when a Baltimore & Ohio express train struck an automobile in which the party were riding at Leavittburg, Ohio, late Sunday afternoon. Four of the occupants were carried for 200 yards on the pilot of the engine.

The dead are:
MRS. HENRY TURNER, aged 75.
MRS. FRANK HOUSEL, aged 40.
MRS. WARD TURNER, aged 40.
WARD TURNER, died at a hospital here.

Frank Howard was removed to his home with serious injuries. Frank Housel, the sixth member of the party, jumped just before the collision occurred and escaped. All of the party were residents of Warren.

Mr. Turner, who was driving the automobile, failed to see the train approaching until within 200 yards of the crossing. When he attempted to apply the brakes, he stopped the engine, and the machine coasted on the track in front of the train.

CANNIBALISM IN NEW HEBRIDES.

Sydney, N. S. W., May 19.—Cannibalism in its worst form exists among the natives of the New Hebrides islands, in the South Pacific, according to a statement by Rev. Thomas Gillan at the Presbyterian assembly of New South Wales, in support of previous statements made in connection with the islands. Human flesh is looked upon as a luxury, and tribal wars invariably end with a banquet unchecked by the authorities, he declared.

HATFIELD STANDS PAT

West Virginia Governor Issues Statement on Martial Law.

"Mother" Jones Addresses Meeting in Pittsburg Theater.

Charleston, W. Va., May 19.—Governor H. D. Hatfield has announced that "no relinquishment of martial rule would be made until those whose inclinations are to stir up new strife and turmoil end their lawlessness."

According to those close to the executive, the governor has recently received threatening letters.

"It seems as if there are some who do not want to end our industrial troubles," said the governor. "I have been waiting for the past few days for those who are responsible more than any one else for the strike in the coal fields to end their agitation. Military regulation will cease when the necessity for it ends, and that will be when those who are responsible for military regulation end their agitation.

"I am here to stay, and further detentions will be made if found necessary to guarantee peace and tranquility. No intimidations or threats can deter me from carrying out my plain duty to all citizens."

"Mother" Jones Defiant.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 19.—"We are going to organize the state of West Virginia if every one of us die in the battle," declared Mrs. Mary "Mother" Jones, the aged leader of the miners of the mountain state, to a large audience at a local theater yesterday afternoon. "I'm going back to West Virginia. If I can't go on a train, I'll walk in."

Mrs. Jones arrived from Washington, where she had presented the miners' side of the West Virginia strike situation to Senator Kern.

When martial law was declared in the West Virginia coal fields, "Mother" Jones hurried to the scene from Montana and announced her intention to address the men in the trouble zone.

"One of the boys," she said, "told me: 'If you go up there, mother, you'll come back on a stretcher; no organizer can speak there.'

"I spoke there; I didn't come out on a stretcher; I raised hell!"

She explained that after organizing the men, she went to work to organize the women.

Organized the Women.

"I organized the women," said the speaker, "because the women can handle a scab better than you fellows here can."

In discussing the question whether the miners had weapons, she admitted that "the miners had some guns—they needed them."

"When I was addressing the boys at a meeting," she added, "I said, 'The governor wants your guns. Don't you dare give up any of them. If you are forced to use them, you use them.'"

In a vigorous attack on the laboring classes of the country, she exclaimed:

"You are moral cowards! There was a drumhead court-martial made up of military despots, and you did not even stir!"

The aged labor leader was followed by Harold W. Houston, secretary of the Socialist party of West Virginia and attorney for the striking miners. He discussed the legal phases of the situation in the state. The reason Governor Hatfield has not lifted martial law, he declared, is "because Fritz Merrick (editor of the Socialist paper Justice, now under arrest at Charleston), told Governor Hatfield to go to hell."

Calls Hatfield Anarchist.

"The situation in West Virginia," declared Houston, "is such that if any person writes or does anything Mr. Hatfield does not like, they are committed to some penal institution."

He said West Virginia has a "brand of martial law" different from that any other state has had in force.

"West Virginia has more than its share of anarchists. Some of them have been elected to public office. All of the anarchists in America have not violated the law as has the governor of West Virginia," declared the speaker in conclusion.

WIFE TELLS TALE OF CRUELTY

Says Husband Forced Her and Her Children to Drink.

Agnes Mierzovinski, 22-year-old wife of Mikolaj Mierzovinski, who is being sued in district court for divorce on the grounds that she is an habitual drunkard, filed her answer Saturday afternoon.

Among other things, she claims that her husband has on several occasions forced his children to drink beer and whisky. She relates that when they were living in Fort William, in 1911, he failed to properly provide her with food and fuel and that she found it necessary to sell some of the household goods to buy bread.

Married at 16, she claims, she found that her husband was a heavy drinker. She admits that on several occasions she drank also, often under his express direction and always with his knowledge.

She also claims that on a number of occasions her husband has abused her and that on one occasion he was arrested for maltreating her.

"SHAPING A LIFE."

Pastor Takes His Sermon Theme From Longfellow's Poem.

"Shaping a Life" was the subject of the sermon given by Rev. W. F. Hovis at the Endion M. E. church yesterday.

Dr. Hovis used for illustration Longfellow's poem, "The Building of the Ship." The figure by which the building of a structure represented the building of a life is plain, he said, and within the comprehension of all men. Just as the character of a structure is determined by the thought and actions of the men who build it, so the character of a life is determined by the thought and actions of the man who is building his life.

"It is within one's power to make his life largely what he chooses," he said. "To have a will is to be the possessor of a power by which one may be the conscious author of an intentional act. Every day we are either wittingly or unwittingly shaping the fabric of our lives. It is more to our credit if it be wittingly rather than otherwise. The true man who gives the matter of character building sufficient thought finds his work beautifully illustrated by 'The Building of the Ship.'"

REPRESENTATION IN STATE FEDERATION

Duluth Labor Unions Want a Vice President If McEwen Withdraws.

If W. E. McEwen is succeeded as secretary-treasurer of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor by a man not a resident of Duluth, Duluth union men will request the election of an additional vice president from Duluth.

Mr. McEwen has announced positively that he will not be a candidate for re-election under any circumstances and thus far no Duluth man has become a candidate for the place. If a man from Duluth is not named, Duluth will be left with only one representative on the executive council. S. S. McDonald is now vice president from this district.

Labor men throughout the state express the opinion that little opposition will be offered to Duuth's request. Minneapolis has two vice presidents in addition to the president of the Federation. St. Paul has two vice presidents. The Sixth congressional district has two vice presidents, one from Brainerd and one from St. Cloud.

An attempt may be made at the annual convention at St. Cloud June 15 to have Mr. McEwen reconsider his decision to retire, but he has declared positively that he will be a candidate under no circumstances.

"The demands of the office are such that I am forced either to give up the office or to cease publication of the Labor World. I will stick to the Labor World," said Mr. McEwen today.

WANT AMERICAN ELK PROTECTED

Duluth Members of B. P. O. E. Interested in Plan to Start Preserve.

Duluth Elks are interested in plans being made by Livingston lodge, No. 246, B. P. O. E., of Livingston, Mont., for securing a tract of land for an elk preserve near Yellowstone national park.

Options have been secured on between 5,000 and 6,000 acres of land near Yellowstone park and the Livingston lodge will endeavor to obtain the support of other Montana lodges in presenting the matter to the annual convention of the grand lodge to be held at Rochester, N. Y., in July.

Minnesota Elks had a plan some months ago to secure from the government a herd of elk to be protected in Itasca state park, but no definite steps have been taken.

CHARLES A. PHELPS DIES AT LONG BEACH

Had Been in California Three Months on Account of Ill Health.

Charles A. Phelps, 54 years old, for several years a resident of Duluth, died yesterday at Long Beach, Cal. Mr. Phelps has been on the coast for three months in the hope of improving his health. Death, which was brought on by stomach trouble, was not unexpected.

Mr. Phelps traveled through this part of the state for a number of years for Reed, Murdoch & Co. of Chicago. Later he was city salesman for the Wells-Stone Mercantile company. He remained with that firm until it became reorganized as the Stone-Ordean-Wells company.

He then became interested in the organization of the Wright-Clarkson Mercantile company and during the year 1905 was its secretary. Later he became manager of the canned goods department in the Stone-Ordean-Wells company.

Mr. Phelps is survived by two children, Lester Phelps, real estate dealer at Great Falls, Mont., and Miss Leta Phelps. His wife died eight years ago. Both of his children were at his bedside when he died. Charles Wright, of the Wright-Clarkson company, was also with Mr. Phelps at Long Beach at the time of his death.

The body will probably be taken to Strawberry Point, Iowa, for burial. Mr. and Mrs. Phelps were married there and made that place their home for a number of years.

THIS WEEK'S WEATHER

Washington, May 19.—Generally fair weather over the eastern portion of the country during the early days of the coming week, with a continuance of showers in the Pacific states and the plateau region for a day or two and their extension into the plains states and the Missouri valley, may be expected, according to the weather bureau's weekly bulletin.

"By the middle of the week," the bulletin said "the showers should extend through the great central valleys and the upper lake region, the Middle Atlantic states and New England. After the middle of the week generally fair weather should prevail west of the Mississippi river for a few days with higher pressure but by the end of the week another disturbance will probably appear over the Northwest. In the South Atlantic and East Gulf states, local showers are likely during the first half of the week. Temperatures will be moderately low early in the week over the middle sections and higher later in the week, but not unusually so. In the South they will be about normal.

TAYLOR WILL HOLD HEARING AT CHICAGO.

Robert S. Taylor, one of the official reporters of the St. Louis county district court, is in Chicago today where he appears in the capacity of special examiner before whom testimony will be taken in the government suit to dissolve the International Harvester company.

Hearings have already been held at New York, Chicago, St. Louis, St. Paul, Omaha, Wichita, Kansas City and Sioux Falls. The defense has served the government with a list of 570 witnesses it proposes to call to Chicago.

The government will have about seventy-five witnesses.

CITY MAY HAVE GARAGE OF ITS OWN.

If the proposition being considered by the city commissioners just now is adopted, the city will soon have a motor repair shop of its own, at which a mechanician will be employed and all city autos and motorcycles will be taken care of instead of being sent to some one of the various garages and repair shops about the city. The commissioners believe that this will prove a big saving for they feel that charges for such repairs to the city's power vehicles have been exorbitant.

Just at present a fire department repair shop is being constructed at the rear of the No. 3 hall, First avenue east and Third street, and it may be that this and the proposed equipment for it may be extended so that it will become a general repair shop for the city. Just what the scope will be has not been decided upon, but it may involve a complete motor equipment.

CHIEF AND TWENTY FIREMEN OVERCOME.

Washington, May 19.—Fire Chief Wagner and twenty firemen were overcome, several of them being seriously injured, by smoke and illuminating gas from a broken main while fighting a fire in an F street building occupied by the geological survey. The blaze destroyed valuable government records and did considerable damage to the building, unpublished data valued at $1,000,000 escaping damage.

The American Express company, a leather store and a Japanese bazar which occupied the ground floor were also damaged.

Thousands of people gathered to witness the fire, which threatened the center of Washington's shopping district.

FRED WOOD AFTER MILITIA SUPPLIES.

Washington, May 19.—Adjt. Gen. Fred B. Wood is in Washington to take up with the war department the question of giving the Minnesota National guard certain supplies and equipment.

Gen. Wood came by way of Gettysburg, where he arranged for the housing of the governor and staff during the celebration of the Battle of Gettysburg. He also viewed the field, and obtained information about the accommodations to be given the veterans who will attend.

"The Pennsylvania commission has arranged to take care of 40,000 men," said Gen. Wood, "and I am satisfied that the Minnesota veterans will be well taken care of."

DEFENDS SON'S FAITH.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke Objects to Proposed Heresy Trial.

New York, May 19.—In his sermon following the service at which his son, Tertius Van Dyke, was ordained for the Presbyterian ministry, Dr. Henry Van Dyke last night deeply moved the congregation at Christ church by defending the young man and three other Union Theological seminary graduates who have just been received by the New York Presbytery despite charges of heresy made by a minority committee, which is carrying the fight into the general assembly of the church.

"If there must be a heresy trial," Dr. Van Dyke said, "let the general assembly try it on a grown man and not on eager-hearted, sensitive boys."

Dr. Van Dyke said that if these young men were unfit for the ministry he was unfit, and that the doctrinal questions they could not answer are not essential to the Christian faith.

Besides his son, Dr. Van Dyke referred to Philip S. Bird, Chalmers Holbrook and John A. Murray.

Want Eight-Hour Day.

New York, May 19.—A campaign for an eight-hour day in the Standard Oil company's works in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania was started at a conference of delegates at the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen.

He said that representatives of the men would confer with company officials before other action is determined upon. The firemen now work from ten to eleven hours a day, Healy said.

Harms Students

More Than Most Anyone Else.

The Chief of the Presbyterian Hospital in N. Y., Dr. Fisher, tells one very easy way to avoid some physical ills.

His comments on

are most interesting (see letter in southeast corner.)

If the subject appeals to you, try leaving off coffee and tea entirely, use Instant Postum and carefully note, day by day. the return to health and strength.

A level teaspoonful of Instant Postum in an ordinary cup of hot water dissolves instantly and makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more, and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in cup of hot water.

"There's a Reason" for POSTUM

SPEAKS OUT.

Dr. C. Irving Fisher, for a quarter century at the head of New York's great Presbyterian Hospital, says in the New York Times of March 23, 1913:

"Coffee poisoning is becoming constantly more common in this country, especially among students, whom it harms more than it would harm almost anybody else.

"Coffee intoxication does not lead to wife beating, but its physiological effects upon some of its victims are almost as bad as those of alcoholic poisoning.

"We continually find at the various clinics signs of the harm done by the excessive use of tea and coffee among children.

"Surely this is quite preventable.

"Children not infrequently appear whose nervous and digestive systems have been wrecked by these two beverages."

WHAT A GOOD SET OF TIRES

"STILL ON THE WATER WAGON"

Tribute Paid to the Neal Treatment By Minnesotan Who Quickly Routed Drink Habit.

"I am still on the water wagon with a good set of tires under me," is what a former patient of the Neal Institute writes from his Minnesota home to the institution for the treatment of alcoholism.

Climbing aboard the water wagon is comparatively easy. Sticking there any length of time is what is hard. The Neal Treatment provides the required "sticking power," for the reason that it quickly knocks out the alcoholic poison found in the systems of all drinkers, which cause so many people of good intentions to topple off the water wagon before they have ridden very far.

The Neal Treatment is a physician's harmless vegetable remedy, taken internally, with no dangerous hypodermic injections. The results are tonic in effect and in three days all desire for liquor is changed to dislike for everything alcoholic.

There is no publicity. Names are never revealed. Your own investigation is not only invited, but urged. Call in person or address for booklet the Neal Institute, Superior, Wis., corner Belknap and West Seventh street.

ON THE IRON RANGES

HIBBING TAKES BOTH BALL GAMES

Defeats Eveleth Saturday and Sunday in Trolley League Series.

Hibbing, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hibbing defeated Eveleth in the trolley league games Saturday and Sunday by scores of 16 to 5 on Saturday and 11 to 9 on Sunday. Both days were cold, the attendance was light and the playing of neither team was up to standard.

Hibbing won Saturday's game in the first innings, when heavy hitting off Reed's delivery, combined with loose playing on the part of Eveleth, netted Hibbing nine runs and proved a lead that Eveleth could not overcome. Grady and Williams pitched for Hibbing.

Aura of the Hibbing high school team went on the mound for Hibbing yesterday and was hit freely, but held the game fairly well in hand until the fifth, when Booth went in and finished the game. Foster for Eveleth pitched a good game except in the fifth and sixth innings, when he gave up six hits and seven runs and virtually won the game.

Singles by Richards and Murphy with errors and a sacrifice by Olsen, gave Eveleth one in the first. In the third, Clifford and Foy singled in succession, scoring five runs. After that, however, Booth was invincible and the visitors failed to get another man across the plate.

Geiselman singled in the first and Brookins put the ball over the right field fence. Two runs. A three-bagger by Clifford and a fielder's choice gave one more run in the second. In the fifth, Geiselman walked, Brookins was safe on Stevens error and C. Booth made a pitched ball, filling the bases. Dwight Booth slammed out a home run, clearing the bases, and scored double, clearing the bases, and scored double, clearing the bases, and scored later on Kleffman's double. In the next inning, after having two strikes and three balls called on him, Geiselman doubled to center. Brookins and Carroll pounded Booth each singled and Carroll pounded out a two-bagger, netting three runs. The score:

Ely, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Former Police Officer Matt Mchovich was arraigned in municipal court Saturday on the charge of conducting a blind pig. He pleaded guilty and was fined $65 and costs, and within a few hours later representatives of the United States taxed him $62.50 for selling liquor without a government license. Muhovich was the officer over whom the last city administration had so much difficulty, an effort having been made to secure his dismissal from the force.

DEDICATE NEW GILBERT CHURCH

St. Joseph's Catholic Edifice Is Scene of Notable Ceremony.

Gilbert, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under the direction of Bishop McGolrick the handsome new St. Joseph's Catholic church was dedicated to worship Sunday at 10:30 in the presence of a large congregation. Bishop McGolrick delivered the dedication sermon and high mass was held by Rev. Father Pirnat, assisted by Father Bilban, deacon; Father Pollock, sub-deacon and Father Schliffer, master of ceremonies.

Several societies marched to the church at 10 a. m. headed by bands. There was special music by the choir, consisting of the following: Sopranos, Misses Angela Schunmaker, Julia Costin, Annie Galligan, Mary Small, Irene Fay; altos, Misses Magdalene Ferguson, Philomena de la Pointe; tenors, A. E. Schneider, Ted Butler; bassos, F. A. Bowman, W. J. Dowling.

Those who assisted at the exercises from out of town were: Rev. James McGolrick of Duluth, Father M. Bilban of Eveleth, who was the first pastor of the old Sparta church; Father J. Pollock of Biwabik, Father W. Powers of Virginia, Father T. Culligan of Eveleth, and Father Schiffrer of Chisholm.

Is Very Fine Edifice.

St. Joseph's church is the finest structure that has been erected the past year on the range, and is a handsome piece of architecture. The pastor, Rev. Father Pirnat, has reason to feel proud of his work since coming to Gilbert. The building of this church is due largely to his efforts and, taking into consideration that $11,699.50 was required to complete the church as it now stands, is a glowing tribute to the pastor and the building committee who have done their share toward building the church. Those of the building committee are: A. E. McInnis, Mike Kraker, Patrick Nolan, J. P. Sullivan, Eugene Rivet and Joe Kern. Their good work is appreciated and many compliments have been given them by Gilbert people for the good service they have rendered.

The funerals of Puranen and Partti were held from the Finnish Lutheran church, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Rev. TO ENTERTAIN WOMEN.

Virginia Fair Sex Ready for Coming of Club Delegates.

Virginia, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.—The ladies of the Virginia Study club and the Women's Progressive club are about ready for the reception and entertainment of the delegates Tuesday and Wednesday in attendance at the convention of the federated clubs of the Eighth district. The visitors will represent twelve cities and about twenty clubs. They will be entertained at the homes of members of the local clubs and by being shown the industries, including the sawmill with the greatest output of any mill in the world, and the mines.

The sessions will be held in one of the two large rooms in the new public library building, which were designed and equipped in the building for the use of local clubs and other improvement organizations and for conventions. The rooms have been found to be admirable for the purposes for which they were intended and are in almost constant use. As many of the delegates come from Duluth and cities other than the range, the ladies have arranged with automobile owners to place their machines at the disposal of a committee for sightseeing a part of Wednesday afternoon.

TOWER BRIEFS.

Tower, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—N. J. Benson returned Saturday from a several day's trip to his farm. He was accompanied on the return by John Owens of Cook, formerly a Tower resident.

Ed Loferer came from Virginia to undergo an operation at Soudan hospital for appendicitis, which was successfully performed on Saturday.

A number of the teachers of the public school enjoyed a drive on Saturday. The day was cold and very windy, which did not add to the pleasure of the occasion.

The recent rains have greatly delayed seeding operations of the farmers in this locality. Some of the larger farmers have several days seeding undone.

The officers and members of the Potter Teachers' association are planning to give the teachers of the public schools a banquet soon. A committee has the matter well in hand and this method will be taken by the public to show its appreciation of the teachers' efforts the past year.

Dr. P. L. Burns of the Soudan hospital was called to Virginia Saturday.

The operations at the Cook & Ketcham sawmill were suspended several times last week by small strikes, the fall of a tramway, and other slight causes.

The various enterprises of stripping and mining now in progress at Mesaba is giving employment to over 1,000 men. The pay rolls for the past two months have aggregated about $17,000 each month.

Mr. Iverson, in charge of the local fish hatchery, reports the hatching of wall-eyed pike is progressing satisfactorily, but slowly, owing to the cold weather.

Eveleth Couple Have Returned.

Eveleth, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Van Slyke have just returned after spending several weeks in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and other Eastern points.

RANGE HIGHWAY WORK PLANNED

Several Improvements on Roads in That Section Under Way.

Virginia, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The township of Nichols is doing much this year in the way of road building and highway improvement. H. E. Mitchell, township clerk has lately advertised for bids for right-of-way clearing and construction work on the Virginia-Wolf road, for concrete and metal bridges on the same road and also for work on the road known as the Williams cartway, which connects with the Mountain Iron-Buhl road.

Missabe Mountain township will also spend a large amount on roads several thousand dollars of which will be on roads near Virginia reached by a short drive. The Commercial club and other organizations are already at work to find a route that will take the place of the main road leading north and which is a part of the road to the International boundary. A new route is essential for the reason that open pit mines will sooner or later cut off the present road.

Follow Canadian Northern.

It is said that a route following the line of the Canadian Northern railway and joining the Mountain Iron is the most practical as the great hill to the north, which is the continental watershed can be avoided by following the course of a stream. The city will also spend $3,000 or more in opening a new route to Eveleth, which will be the main route from here to the Miller trunk road. Altogether the present season will see more in the way of road construction in the country about Virginia than any two years heretofore.

VIRGINIA SEEKS SUPERINTENDENT

School Board Decides Not to Retain Lafayette Bliss Longer.

Virginia, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.—At the meeting of the school board Saturday evening, the expected action was taken after the resignation of C. E. Hendrick, member of the board. The board chose as Mr. Hendrick's successor A. B. Holley, mechanical engineer with the Interstate company, and he at once took the oath of office and assumed his seat at the board. He also takes the place of Mr. Hendrick on all committees. The first action of the changed board was to vote to not retain for next year Lafayette Bliss as superintendent of schools. The only dissenting vote on this action was that of R. J. McGhee, who has all along been a supporter of the superintendent.

To Seek New Man.

It was then decided to at once begin a search for a new superintendent and the work of seeking out available men and presenting several names to the whole board, is in the hands of the teachers' committee. Members of the board anticipate that trips will have to be made to various cities to look into the qualifications of applicants before the board has advertised, it has many applications from men who expected there would be an opening at Virginia. The present school year ends in five weeks and it is intended to have the new superintendent in the city during the summer vacation, making his plans for the work to be commenced in the fall.

Dr. M. M. Hursh, who was scheduled for an address, was unable to be present, and Rev. Mr. La Rose of Cohasset gave the address of the evening, speaking on "The Teen Age." He told of how 75 per cent of the young people leave the Sunday schools when they reach their 'teens, and the larger share of them never return. He urged the necessity of a teacher's being with her class all the week, not simply for an hour on Sunday, but enjoying the good times during the week, looking out for each pupil, and helping in every way possible.

The address was followed by a short musical program, followed by benediction by Rev. Mr. La Roe.

Ely, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lid was on tightly yesterday and the people are liking it. The saloon men themselves realize that no favorites are being played and show a readiness to obey the law. In all but a very few saloons yesterday not only were they closed, but the blinds were drawn, showing the interior of the saloons, and while some secure refreshments Saturday night, yet there were no drunken men seen on the streets yesterday.

PROLONGING LIFE IN DIABETES

On Monday, May 6th, 1912, San Francisco dailies published an offer that is unique, as follows:

"To show that Codein containing opium which locks up secretions, commonly used in Diabetes, is wrong and that Fulton's Diabetic Compound, which contains no opium or sedatives but promotes secretions, is right, we will say that if four physicians of good standing in this city will send us a Diabetic between fifty and seventy years of age, strong enough to call at our office, showing high specific gravity thirst and a large quantity of sugar, we will with this mild infusion to help the liver oxidize the sugars and starches, attempt to return him in sixty days with half of the sugar eliminated, with thirst and symptoms largely reduced and on the road to recovery. If we fail we will publish the fact; if we succeed, the physicians to acknowledge it. We want a patient whom we can both trust. This offer is not in the nature of a contest, but to demonstrate that life can be prolonged or recoveries had in many cases of Diabetes now dying under codein."

If you have Diabetes and are of middle age or over, you owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Diabetic Compound before giving up. It can be had at druggists supplied by Leithhead Drug company.

LAKE VERMILION NOW VERY HIGH

Not in Years Has Water of Lake Submerged So Much Land.

Tower, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Not in years has Lake Vermilion been as high as right now, according to old residents. Only twice in the memory of the white man has the lake been so high.

Heavy winds have prevailed for days and at some points the shore is badly washed. At some points in the Cook & Ketchum lumber yards the railway tracks are submerged.

Tracks Are Undermined.

A part of the track leading along the east shore of Pike bay to the Vermilion Lumber company's yards the track is undermined. The heavy rains of the past ten days have brought the river to high water marks, and East Two rivers, flowing through this city, is very high. A number of the boathouses are practically useless, being far out in the stream at the present time.

TO ACQUIRE EIGHTY.

Virginia School Devises Plans for Taking Over Land.

Virginia, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school board already has its plans well made for proceeding when its acquires the state eighty acres of land to the northwest of the city for a demonstration farm in connection with the schools.

The old North Side school building, a one-story wooden structure with four rooms, will be moved to the farm, a distance of only a few blocks and will be transformed into a model farmhouse. The state tract has been used by the schools for two seasons and a large tract has been cleared by the high school boys, working under the direction of Supt. Bliss. By obtaining the land and performing the required work the school district will be entitled to the state grant of aid to the amount of $2,500 per year. The board also proposes to establish a normal course and obtain from the state aid of $1,000 a year. For the position of director of the normal work, Supt. Bliss has recommended Ida M. Flood, now engaged on the teaching staff at $1,000 per year. The recommendation is in the hands of the teachers' committee and will be reported upon at the next meeting of the board.

MOST NUTRITIOUS FOOD SOLD IN DULUTH

To some Duluth women it will be news that "Minnesota" Macaroni, besides being so delicious, is also four times as nutritious as beefsteak and six times as nutritious as potatoes.

"Minnesota" Macaroni contains more proteids than most foods and is therefore more strength giving, and it gives the body great power of endurance without overloading the stomach.

If it is served often in place of meat the whole family will be much healthier. And, besides, it will reduce the cost of living, as "Minnesota" Macaroni costs only about one cent a dish.

Try the handy "Minnesota" Cut Macaroni, which is cut into uniform pieces—it cooks more evenly and is quicker to prepare. Adv.

NORWEGIANS CELEBRATE

Two Festivals in Observance of Anniversary of Norway's Independence.

Large Crowds Hear Programs at Central High School and Armory.

There were two celebrations of Norway's natal day as an independent nation yesterday in Duluth. One was held at the Central high school auditorium and the other was at the Armory. Both were largely attended and those in attendance listened to excellent speeches and delightful music. May 17, Saturday, was the ninety-ninth anniversary of Norwegian independence and the sons and daughters of that Northern land never fail to observe the anniversary no matter what part of the globe they may be in. The Duluth celebrations are among the best in the country and those of yesterday were fully up to standard.

The high school meeting was under the auspices of the Normanna male chorus. John J. Moe of Duluth, one of the leading men of the Norwegian race in the Northwest, was chief speaker and another was Waldemar Ager, editor of the Eau Claire Reform. A program that was elaborate as to music was given under the direction of Jens Flaaten, leader of the chorus. It abounded in Norway's patriotic airs so far as the chorus work was concerned, and among the soloists were A. J. Mayer and H. Morley. Miss Valborg Gunderson and her violin made one of the most complete hits of the program.

In his address Mr. Moe urged that suffrage for American women should be helped along by the Norwegians by voting for it and by using personal influence. He spoke of the fact that through the teachings and sacrifices of the men who, in 1814, brought about Norwegian independence, and the true spirit of equality, the women of Norway have the right to vote and have the right of representation in the storthing, where they have much influence for good in legislation.

Mr. Moe spoke also of the contribution to the advancement of science and the general good of humanity by such Norwegians as Bjornsen, Ibsen, Grieg, Nansen and Amundsen and others of the race.

Editor Ager advocated the use of the mother tongue and the retention of old ideals in the American homes of the Norwegians, maintaining that parents should teach their children the Norwegian language and that it should be taught in the high schools of Minnesota and Wisconsin and in the universities of these states as well.

At the Armory meeting Rev. J. H. Steenberg of the First Norwegian Lutheran church was chairman and introduced Mayor Prince as the first speaker. The mayor spoke of the greatness of the love of country and declared that the Norwegians in America are fortunate in being able to claim two great nations as their countries. He said that Norwegians should be proud of the mother country and the progress it has made under the blessing of independence. He also said that Norwegians are of so sturdy and excellent a type of citizens that Duluth is fortunate in possessing so many of them.

Rev. A. J. Huitenq of Grand Forks and C. J. Hambro, editor of the Margensbladt of Christiania, Norway, spoke in the Norwegian language.

The program of music provided was of the best quality and excellently given. Westgaard's orchestra played national Norwegian airs and a large choir, under the direction of John Olsen, sang the airs. Mr. Olsen sang as a solo, "The Viking's Son."

"America," with everybody singing, concluded the program.

REV. THORPE PLEADS FOR CLEAN CITY.

Rev. C. N. Thorp, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational church, spoke on Duluth yesterday in his morning sermon. "The Name of the City" was the subject of the sermon.

He urged citizens to give their moral support to the commissioners who were trying to "clean up" the city. He spoke of the smoke nuisance, dirty streets, unsightly bill boards and of the red light district.

In speaking of Duluth's natural surroundings he said: "Highlands have power to elevate the soul. The rugged hills that crown our city tell us of the protecting presence of God and inspire us to seek higher levels of character.

"As a commercial asset and a reservoir of pure air and peerless water supply, we give thanks for the lake. Let us not overlook the spiritual effect of that magnificent body of water, in storm and calm, symbol of vast and infinite power."

BRYAN DENOUNCES BREEDERS OF WAR

Secretary Makes Address Before Washington Peace Society.

Washington, May 19.—Vigorous denunciation of a "subsidized patriotism which seeks to create war because of the profits in armor plate and battleships," and of the "sensational and mercenary newspapers which prefer big, scare headlines to the truth," marked an address by Secretary Bryan here at a Hague anniversary meeting held under the auspices of the Washington Peace society. It was in celebration of the fourteenth anniversary of the first meeting at The Hague.

"War is in the interest of a few people, not of all," Mr. Bryan declared. "The profits are garnered by a few, while the masses pay the taxes. A few men gain glory, while the mothers of the nations furnish the sons who make food for battlefields. War rests upon feeling, not upon necessity. Back of much of the horror of war is a selfish interest in the manufacture of battleships. And there are men so unpatriotic that they try to stir up trouble in another country against their own so as to make personal profit therefrom, and is there any baser position for man?"

Intelligence and Peace.

The secretary asserted that the world was drawing away from the time when wars will be made to gratify selfish interests and ambitions.

"Increasing intelligence," he added, "is one of the forces working for peace because the people are learning to understand the causes that lead to war.

"The people are learning to discriminate also," he continued, "between patriotic newspapers and those that seek only for big headlines. I was glad to see the attack Secretary Daniels made on this sensationalism. I hope to see this discrimination by the people increase."

—THE— HOMECROFTERS' CORNER

Conducted by C. E. ROE.

Questions will be answered by Mr. Roe in this column.

Peas and Beans

If you are particularly ambitious, your first planting of garden peas are well above ground by this time. The top soil should be carefully loosened and puverized about them about one inch in depth, and this process should be repeated after each rain so as to preserve the dust blanket.

Put in your second planting of peas now, using a wrinkled variety this time. While the wrinkled peas are somewhat later than the smooth varieties they are much sweeter and larger. If you cannot brush or trellis them plant dwarfs, such as American Wonder, Little Gem, or Nott's Excelsior. If you want quality and peas in abundance, use Senator or Telephone. These last named varieties grow about three feet tall and will have to be brushed or trellised. The Senator is the most satisfactory from the standpoint of quality.

By means of about four successive plantings, one may have delicious green peas for the table from about July 4 until Oct. 1. When your early radishes and lettuce are out of the way utilize the ground a second time by planting peas or beans.

The first beans may be planted now, and I would recommend Early Red Valentine. This is a very hardy greenpod variety, but they are extremely tender and are delicious in flavor. Next week will be early enough for wax beans. I like Burpee's New Kidney Wax better than any of the other varieties that I have tried. Do not put in bush limas until after the first of June. All lima beans are extremely tender and will not grow well until the ground is warm and all danger of frost is over.

Most amateur gardeners plant beans too deep. Do not cover with more than one inch of soil and be sure to loosen the top soil just as soon as the beans are above ground. Never hoe beans when either the soil or the leaves are wet unless you wish to rust them or stunt their growth. Beans may be planted in either hills or drills. If planted in hills use about five beans to the hill and plant fifteen inches apart. If planted in drills, thin out so that the plants will stand from three to four inches apart. Remember that a few beans will yield an abundant harvest if carefully cultivated. Do not use your whole garden for beans.

Many of us are tempted to plant things too early in this climate, hoping to outdo some neighbor. A friend called me up a few evenings ago to tell me that he had planted his corn. It froze that same night and the weather has been uncomfortably chilly ever since. If his corn grows at all, that planted ten days later will mature much sooner, and it will give far better results. Tender plants will not grow while the ground is cold; and, even though your seeds come, the plants will be sickly and become stunted. Don't be in too much of a hurry.

If you have radishes and lettuce that are up and flourishing put in a second planting, or carefully lift out some of your lettuce plants and set them six inches apart for head lettuce later. Better put in another supply of spinach and carrots at this time. The spinach will be out of the way in time for rutabagas or late peas.

CLAIMS STOCK IS DUE HIM

Joseph De La Motte Brings Suit Against Clearance Company.

Judge Cant Saturday afternoon listened to testimony in the lawsuit which Joseph De La Motte has brought against the Northwestern Clearance company in which he seeks to force the company to turn over certain stock to Frank Kreidler, one of the directors, who in turn had agreed to convey half to him.

The company claims the attempt of De La Motte to secure the stock in this manner was fraudulent and that in attempting to enforce the agreement which he had with Kreidler he was violating his duties as a director. In its answer and cross complaint, the company asks that the thirty-five shares of stock which were issued to Kreidler as a part of the $8,400 due him be cancelled.

V. V. Wiley, president of the company, was on the witness stand Saturday. The company is organized for the purpose of dealing in piano contracts and other securities.

UNITE UNDER OLD DOCTRINE

Presbyterians Are Urged By Committee to Join Forces.

Holy Scriptures Are Declared "The Very Word of God."

Atlanta, Ga., May 19.—Committees appointed by the United Presbyterian Church of North America and the Presbyterian Church of the United States to devise a practical basis of union between the two organizations, submitted the following join report to their respective general assemblies here:

"Believing in the essential oneness of the church of Christ, remembering the historic lines that bind us to revered ancestors, who witnessed valiantly for the truth as it is in Jesus, and aiming only for the glory of God in the higher advancement and wider extension of His kingdom on earth, we, the members of the Presbyterian church in the United States and the members of the United Presbyterian church of North America, do find a common standing ground in the following statements and upon the basis of these fundamental truths we covenant to joint our ecclesiastical bodies in organic union.

Use Westminster Confession.

"The doctrinal standards now held in common by the two churches, namely the Westminster confession of faith, the larger and shorter catchisms shall be the doctrinal standards of the United Church.

"The standards are to be interpreted in their natural and obvious meaning, and no one shall be authorized to teach or preach in the United Church who cannot give an unqualified assent to the doctrinal systems contained in these standards."

In the joint report particular stress is laid in the following "doctrines as essential parts" of the proposed union.

"The Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are to be received as the very Word of God, and their authority is to be recognized as the only infallible rule of faith and life.

"Our Lord, Jesus Christ, is not only the Son of God in respect to His natural, necessary and eternal relation to the Father, but also the true and supreme God, being one in essence with the Father and the Holy Spirit.

Dominion of Christ.

"Our Lord, Jesus Christ, besides the dominion which belongs to Him as God, has, as our God-man mediator, a two-fold dominion with which he has been invested by the Father as the reward of his sufferings. These are a dominion over the church and also a dominion over all created persons and things.

"As the constitution of the person of our Redeemer, the Scriptures teach that He was conceived by the Holy Ghost and born of the Virgin Mary without human father. He lived a life of perfect obedience, and by the shedding of his blood made full atonement for sin and purchased redemption for his people."

This report contains recommendations as to the basis of representation at the first general assembly of the proposed united church, the official title of which is suggested as "The General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of North America," provision also is made that the subordinate courts of the churches, the synods and the presbyteries shall remain, temporarily at least, as at present constituted.

Will Act In 1914.

Upon recommendation of the two committees the general assemblies of both churches unanimously agreed to postpone consideration of the proposed basis until the convening of the 1914 assemblies.

PLAIN WORDS BY GARRISON

Secretary of War Issues Statement on Coast Defense Matters.

Admits Present System Must Be Supplemented By Troops.

Washington, May 19.—Secretary Garrison, in a statement, discusses the preparedness of seaboard cities to defend themselves against land attack. Mr. Garrison emphasizes at the outset of his statement that he issued it because of a "recently published article respecting the land side defense of our coast defenses." The statement says in part:

"My attention has been directed to a recent article concerning the land side defense of our coast defenses.

"It is perfectly true that many of our seacoast defenses would find serious difficulty in defending themselves by their garrisons against a land attack by a numerous force, and it is also true that they have been constructed, in many instances, without any reference to an attack coming from the land side, but, as was natural, almost wholly with a view to giving protection to the cities and harbors behind them against an attack by a hostile fleet.

"This being their principal function, pretty much everything else was subordinated to this end, and in many cases fortifications were so placed in the effort to secure the best field of fire over the sea front and channels as to render their defense from land attack extremely difficult.

Draw on Militia.

"It can be said of many of them, in fact most of them (except those which are on islands), that their defense, in case of any serious attack from the land side, must rest on bodies of mobile troops assigned to this duty. Such mobile troops would probably be drawn, to a great extent, from the militia. The coast artillery troops, while available for a certain amount of work as infantry, are primarily trained for service with the big guns, and cannot well be assigned to other work without jeopardizing the efficiency of the work for which they are maintained; so that, as stated above, in case of a land attack, it will be necessary to assign considerable bodies of mobile troops to defend these works.

"Before the advent of the modern gun, the common type of fortress constructed was in the form of an enclosed work capable of defense against land attack by its own garrison; but with the advent of the modern gun and the construction of works involving a great outlay of money, insufficient attention was given to the problem of their defense from land attack, and as a result many of them are so situated and constructed as to be liable to successful attack by even moderate forces landing from ships.

Needs More Attention.

"With a view to correcting this defect, lines of land defense works have been laid out and necessary instructions prepared for their prompt construction in case of threatened war. In future defenses, much more attention should be given to making each individual group of works reasonably secure against a land attack, even though unsupported by troops other than its own garrison. Certainly the construction should be of such a type as to enable the defense sufficiently long to permit the arrival of assistance from coast guard troops.

"But after all, this whole question brings up very forcibly the folly of depending upon fortresses alone. Their usefulness is very much restricted unless there is an adequate mobile army. The real purpose of seacoast defenses is to prevent hostile fleets from bombarding cities behind them, occupying the harbors whose entrance they are designed to close, or bombarding fleets taking refuge in these harbors.

Mobile Troops Needed.

"In short, all systems of coast defense which look to security through fortifications alone are destined to be of little assistance in real war; the fortifications are only a part of the defense, and while they are adequate for the purpose for which constructed, they are fixed defenses, effective only over the area within the range of their guns; beyond this range an enemy is entirely free to operate unless he is opposed by mobile troops.

"The department is now considering the installation of guns up to six-inch caliber with all-round fire, with a view to helping out in the defense of the works from land attack, and it has paid much more attention than heretofore to the construction of batteries which have a well-thought-out and prepared system of defense against land attack."

SCULPTOR WILL NOT GIVE ABBEY.

Perpignan, France, May 19.—George Grey Barnard, the sculptor of New York, it is announced, has reconsidered his decision to present to the French government the marble cloister of the Abbey of St. Michael De Coxa. He now offers to give $1,000 to the municipality of Pradier, if authorized to remove it. The cloister was said to have been purchased for an American collector, but the local authorities had applied to the government to prevent its removal.

ENDS CENSUS OF SCARLET WOMEN.

New York, May 19.—Fifty thousand women of the underworld—a scarlet army no census has heretofore enumerated—ply their trade in one borough in Greater New York alone. This is the estimate of the bureau of social hygiene, an organization of which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is chairman, as made public in an abstract of a forthcoming report by George J. Kneeland, a special investigator, after a painstaking inquiry into commercialized vice conditions in Manhattan, extending over a period of nearly ten months.

The report suggests no remedies, fixes no responsibility. That phase is to be dealt with later on. It purports merely to "describe accurately vice conditions in New York city with the sole purpose of bringing out the facts." The hope is expressed that subsequently a satisfactory policy to check the evil may be worked out.

MAN AND WIFE KILL MEXICANS.

Aguas Calientes, Mex., May 19.—John M. Walker, a British mine owner, and his wife, fighting shoulder to shoulder, recently killed five and wounded three men out of a band of eleven employes of the mine near Villa Garcia, Zacatecas. Mr. and Mrs. Walker arrived here Sunday under the escort of troops. After the battle Mr. and Mrs. Walker made their escape.

(BY BRUCE.)

Athletic Park, May 19.—(Special to the United States via dog sled route.) —The rest and the rain apparently have done us no good. Winona took the first Saturday, as well-informed readers know, and then it came back yesterday, as few readers know, there being no Herald out yesterday, and defeated us by the caustic count of 9 to 5. This is bad, sure enough.

It was cold and chilly and raw, the weather and some of the playing. We made young Mr. Snow, brother-in-law of Mr. Thomas North, hard enough to win the ordinary game, but Toliffe Johnson of Red Wing was not upon speaking terms with control and the thanksgiving of our brave soldiers went for naught.

Right at the present time Mr. O'Brien is shy on pitchers, and what pitchers he has are shy on control. Mayhap that was why it was that he kept Mr. Johnson in the game as long as he did and then sent Dusty Rhoades to the pitching forum. Formerly, back in the medieval days of the Minny league, back with Wausau, this Dusty traveler was a flinger. After relieving Fort Johnson, but one hit was made off the delivery of Rhoudeve. Said hit was of the ancient order of the scratch.

Davis Is Peeved.

One amusing mixup occurred to enliven the festivities. Mr. Lefty Davis, so called because he throws and converses with his port side whip, was the primal cause of the complications. A double play was pulled, Mr. Schrieber to O'Brien to our Mr. Meniece, and with Ewaldt on third. Mr. Davis came walking on to the diamond and, seizing the ball rudely, threw it to the grandstand. Mr. Ewaldt, being an alert young man, followed the cue of his leader and scored. It is said that some of our boys were under the impression at the time that there was one out when the double was pulled. They were very angry and red of face when they discovered their error. A formal protest was entered regarding the impulsive action of Mr. Davis.

It is said, though of course we don't know, that Mr. Davis was exceedingly peeved at Mr. Kissane, the umpire, and that he threw the ball at his ample carcass. That is only rumor, however.

After being presented with a box of candy that the young lady cigar girl at the Lenox had personally wrapped and trilled up for him, Connell hit the first ball pitched in the first inning over the left field paling for a homer and the game was well under way. That was all but quite enough for the opening inning.

Two More Scores.

Mr. Schreiber took part in a rousing double play in the next round, thus stopping the enemy. In the third Mr. Snow singled, which is entirely lacking in professional courtesy upon the part of a flinger, and was sacrificed along by Friend Connell who desired to hustle back to the bench and read the note that was enclosed with the candy. Balter lofted, Collins was hit and then Davis singled over the bean of O'Brien and the second run was in. Elmer Miller fumbled the ball and then hesitated about throwing and Mr. Collins came home.

In our half Toliffe Johnson flew out and O'Brien was safe on Connell's mess of his dinky little grounder. McGraw walked and Miller was down on an infield fly. Meniece hit and O'Brien cantered home. Rhoades walked and then Smith singled and two more runs were in.

Two bases and a single gave the enemy one in the next round. Also we gathered one in the fourth on a walk sacrifice, infield out, McGraw's single and a balk that sent the runner home from third.

The sixth and seventh rounds were busy ones for the enemy. Fautsch walked at the start of the sixth and was sent along by the dear old sacrifice. Croake was hit on the head and it looked for a brief second as if he would croak. Murphy singled, but our splendid Mr. Miller heaved Fautsch out at the pan. But Snow got a scratch double and Croake and Murphy counted.

With one down in the seventh, Mr. Johnson lost all control of the ball. Collins walked, Davis singled past third and Mr. Fautsch scored Comedian Collins with a double. A wild pitch counted Davis and with Rhoades on the mound a single allowed Fautsch to come in with the third counter of the inning.

That was all and quite enough. McCarthy walked in the eighth, went all the way to third on Brackett's hit to right field and then counted on a wild pitch.

Mr. McGraw, who has just been married and is evidently glad of it, got his second single to start the ninth, but this was as far as the fireworks got.

RED SOX BEATEN BY VIRGINIAS

Virginia took yesterday's game from Superior by the score of 5 to 4, Rube Wadell going in at a critical part of the game and scaring the hitters of the Red Sox to death. Faeth pitched steadily until the ninth, when he got into a tight hole. Shannon sent Waddell in and he accomplished the purpose by making the Red Sox eat out of his big mitt.

The Rangers took the Saturday's game by the close score of 1 to 0.

ST. PAUL WINS A PITCHING DUEL

Grand Forks, N. D., May 19.—St. Paul won the second game of the present series by the score of 2 to 1 here yesterday afternoon. Niedenfuer held the Flickers to three scattered hits. Hruska won the game for the visitors in the final frame by stealing second and home. Reaching first on an error he pilfered second and went to third when Thomas got the fourth hit of the game off Wilson. Glockner at bat Hruska made a dash for the plate and put over the winning run.

It was a grand pitching duel between Wilson and Niedenfuer and honors were in favor of the local flinger until the ninth when two of the four hits were bunched and with the sensational base running of Hruska enabled the Saints to take the game.

After the sixth inning not a Saint got past first base and the four hits, all singles, were scattered over as many innings. He fanned eight and walked three. The score was 3 to 2.

Gerlach's sticking gave Grand Forks two in the second when he doubled with two on the paths, in the twelfth Sharkey and Gerlach singled, Wells forced Sharkey at third and Gerlach scored from second on a close decision at the plate on Fishback's Texas leaguer to center. O'BRIEN AFTER CLOQUET STAR

Darby O'Brien, manager of the Duluth Baseball team, has lines out for Cunningham, the crack pitcher of the Cloquet team. The Orator has been tipped off by some of the scouts in this vicinity that the kid is a comer and O'Brien has about decided to give the youngster a trial.

Yesterday Cunningham struck out thirteen of the Fitwell team and held the clothiers to two small hits. The youngster has been winning practically all of his games for the past two years. Those who have watched him in action have told the Dook that the Cloquet Kid has the making of a good twirler and it may be that he will be seen in a Duluth uniform before long.

TWO SHUT-OUTS AT WINNIPEG SATURDAY.

Winnipeg, Man., May 18.—Winnipeg and Minneapolis scored shutouts in the two games played here Saturday, the visitors taking the afternoon contest, 4 to 0, after two fine exhibitions of baseball.

The evening affray was featured by the fact that young "Bud" Moe twirled a no-hit game, not a semblance of a hit being made off his delivery. Sherrin twirled goth games for the Little Millers and was in excellent form, holding the Maroons to three singles in the afternoon and only allowed six blows in the evening. Nearly 6,000 people paid to see the two games which makes nearly 12,000 for the first five games of the Northern league here.

Nelson hurled in great style against Sherrin in the first contest and neither team scored until the visitors put over a run in the seventh on a double and a single. The Maroons filled the bases in the eighth but a bad decision at first base stopped a big rally with one out. Umpire Perry Werden had to be escorted from the field after the game.

In the evening both teams again played rattling fast ball but Young Moe's twirling was excellent and besides not allowing a hit, he struck out twelve batsmen. The Maroons scored one run in the second on an error, stolen base and a single. A triple by Wilkes in the eighth followed by Clothier's single was responsible for the other tally. The scores:

CHARLEY JONES AND HIS APOSTLES HERE TUESDAY

Charley Jones, another of the greatest of all baseball players back in the days of his prime, will be here tomorrow with the Little Saints. At the present time both Jones and the team he manages are going at a rapid rate. The former star outfielder of the Washington Americans got two triples and a single out of four times up in a game at Winnipeg and a triple and a single the day previous.

The St. Paul aggregation will be here for three games and this will be the first visit since the days of the old Northwestern league when Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Eau Claire and several other cities made up the famous old association.

That was back in the years that only the oldest fans recall. Upon one famous occasion the St. Paul aggregation came here and played a game for the pennant, bringing a band and several hundred rooters to the Head of the Lakes.

While the pitchers of the Dooks are going bad at the present time it is as much the fault of the weather as it is the members of the hurling staff. In this mid-winter season brand of offering no fair-minded man could reasonably expect close and effective pitching, and the proof of this is the large score games over the length and breadth of the country.

New Pitcher.

O'Brien has at the present time strings out for Pitcher Hanafin, who was with Rochester in the Minny league, and it is expected that this player will be here during the present week. In time in fact, to take part in the Minneapolis series. The Orator is also after Chief Baptiste, the famous Indian who pitched for the Gaudet deaf and dumb school of Washington, D. C. Clark Griffith of the Washington Americans thought so much of the twirler that he wanted to give him a trial with the Senators, but at that time the Indian had no desire to play baseball professionally.

O'Brien expects to take two out of three from the St. Paul team, but at the rate the Saints are traveling at the present time the Orator will have to get his machine well oiled up to accomplish this end.

In addition to Charles Jones, the Saints have Roy Thomas, the former American association and American league outfielder, who is playing a sweet game in the outfield for the Apostles.

Hollingsworth, another American league former star and one of the fastest little men who ever handled a baseball, is on third base for the Saints and he is really playing a great game for Jones.

Back in the old days of Aurora park, St. Paul, this midget was one of the speediest men who ever played in the capitol city. Holly went up from the Saints and is now back in the new league, along with some of the other stars that have been up under the big show top.

Weidel, who is known here from the Minny league days, is also with the St. Paul crowd. Mike Kraemer, the former Duluth boy is pitching for the Jonesites and has been rated as one of the most effective flingers of the down river gang.

Charles Jones has his team going right merrily at the present time, and when he starts the three-game series here it is expected that there will be three great battles with the Dooks.

If the weather warms up some fast baseball will be given to the fans. During all of the present spring every team and every player in the league has been laboring under a handicap. The coming of decent weather holds the promise of the greatest baseball in the history of the pastime in these parts.

Ninth for Johnson.

Detroit, Mich., May 19.—Walter Johnson won his ninth straight victory of the season yesterday when Washington defeated Detroit, 2 to 1, in a thrilling struggle, before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a ball game at Navin field. Neither team scored an earned run, and while Johnson allowed the locals but five hits, he grew wild and unsteady on several occasions, but when possible defeat stared him in the face, he braced up and pitched wonderful ball.

Zamloch, a recruit from Missoula, Mont., started his first major league game and deserved a shutout. In the third Shanks singled to center and advanced to second when Cobb threw wildly. Zamloch, after striking out Ainsmith, tossed out Johnson without allowing Shanks to advance. Moeller singled, scoring Shanks and then stole second. As he was stealing third, McKee threw to left field and Moeller brought home the visitors' final run. Cobb's daring base-running produced Detroit's only tally. With one out in the seventh, Cobb beat out an infield hit and went to third when Gandil muffed Johnson's throw to catch Cobb off first. As Johnson prepared to pitch to Veach, Cobb streaked home and slid safely around Ainsmith who appeared to be waiting with the ball for the runner. Johnson then walked Veach and hit Gainer and the runners advanced when Moeller threw poorly to second, after retiring Moriarity. In the crisis, McKee rolled to La Porte and was thrown out. In the eighth, Johnson passed High and Crawford and retired the side by tossing out Cobb. Score: R. H. E.

Champs Trounced.

St. Louis, Mo., May 19.—Roy Mitchell pitched steady ball while his teammates fielded sensationally and but for fumbling in the final inning, would have shut out the world champions here yesterday afternoon. The score was 9 to 1 in St. Louis' favor. Fast fielding by Pratt and Walsh kept the visitors from scoring several times when Boston men were as far as third base.

Boston's lone tally came in the ninth inning when, after one was out, Janvrin hit to center. The hit, if fielded properly, would have been a double, but Shotten fumbled long enough to allow the visitors to cross the plate with their only score.

St. Louis scored its first runs in the second inning on a single, a double and a sacrifice fly. The locals scored three runs in the fifth on three singles and a triple. In this inning, with two men on bases, Hall relieved Bedient. A single and a pass followed by a passed ball and an outfield error in the seventh inning counted two more runs for the home team. Two bases on balls, a stolen base and Shotten's double in the eighth inning netted St. Louis two more runs. Mitchell issued only one walk in the last inning after two were out. The score: R. H. E.

Chicago Wins Fourth.

Chicago, May 19.—Chicago made it four straight from New York yesterday, winning the final game of the series, 5 to 3. The game was lost by New York in the third inning when bunched hits behind Fisher's wildness, coupled with daring base running, netted the locals four runs. In this inning Fisher argued with Umpire O'Loughlin about the umpire's decision on balls and strikes, and was ordered out of the game, having held the locals to two hits during his reign on the mound. His successor was touched for two hits, which were bunched and netted the other run. The visitors bunched hits in the sixth inning and scored three runs. The fielding of Chase, Fournier and Weaver featured. The score: R. H. E.

Bender Saves Game.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 19.—Philadelphia and Cleveland broke even on their first series, the visitors winning yesterday's game, 4 to 2. Wyckoff, who started the game for Philadelphia, was driven from the mound in the second inning, but Bender went in and saved the game.

Barry's hits accounted for three of Philadelphia's runs, and an error let in the other. For starting an argument with Umpire Dineen, Oldring was sent from the game, but Daly, who took his place, got three hits in four times at bat. The score: R. H. E.

Saints Lose Two.

St. Paul, Minn., May 19.—Columbus shut St. Paul out in both games of a double-header yesterday before the largest local crowd of the season. In the first, which Columbus won, 4 to 0, McQuillen held the home team to two singles, one in the first inning and the other in the ninth. Perring made a double and three singles in this contest and Benson three singles. Syd Smith hit a freak home run, sending the ball under the stand in left field Though Smith only reached third base on the hit, he was allowed a home run because the ball had gone out of sight. Karger was found for thirteen hits in the first game, but good fielding kept the score down.

In the second game Davis held St. Paul to five scattered hits, while Gardner was found for ten, including two triples by Miller.

Play Twelve Innings.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 19.—Louisville defeated Minneapolis, 4 to 3, yesterday in a twelve-inning game, which was filled with thrills. In the second inning Frank Delahanty of the Minneapolis team, attacked Pitcher Loudermilk of the visitors with a bat after he had been hit by a pitched ball. Loudermilk managed to save himself from serious injury by throwing up his hand. The bat struck him on the wrist and may keep him out of the game for some time. Delahanty was removed from the game.

The visitors tied the score in the ninth inning after two were out after Clemons doubled and scored on Burch's long triple. In the twelfth a base on balls to Hulswitt and Stansbury's two-base drive, settled the contest. Patterson pitched for Minneapolis and fanned eleven men. Loudermilk worked for six innings for the visitors and allowed only two hits, but was removed for pinch hitters. Powell and Smith finished the game. R. H. E.

Baskette making his reappearance as a Toledo pitcher twirled good ball, but bunched hits in the first and third beat him. Chappelle's hitting was a feature, his two hits being responsible for all of Milwaukee's runs.

Nicholson was a puzzle in the second game, while Stevenson and Walker were hit hard. Chappelle's home run was one of the longest hits ever made at Athletic park.

Works was wild and was replaced by Schardt in the fifth. Indianapolis started a rally in the ninth, bringing in two scores. Runners were on second and third when Downs struck out and ended the inning.

Hansen pitched for the winners and the Stones gathered but two hits off the delivery of the husky Northern flinger. Sloan was on the hill for the Stones and but four hits were garnered off his delivery. The game dedicated the new park as the home of amateur and semi-professional baseball, the opening game being a dandy and thoroughly appropriate to the occasion.

AMUNDSON TO BE AVIATOR

South Pole Discoverer Says Air Flying Is Easy as Motoring.

Three of Party on North Pole Trip Will Be Aviators.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. Roald Amundson, when he goes to the Arctic circle next year, will be a full fledged aviator, and he is quite pleased at the prospect of learning to fly. The South pole discoverer was here three days, leaving yesterday for Winnipeg after having delivered two addresses at Crookston.

"I have been up in the flying machines," said Capt. Amundson, "and I think that operating one of them is as easy as running an automobile. In fact, it looks easier, for you don't have to watch out for bumps or hills in your travels."

Three of the Amundson party in the forthcoming expedition will be aviators. Two other members of the party and the leader will take their lessons in aviation in San Francisco next winter, Capt. Amundson expecting to have his ship, the Fram, at the Golden Gate by that time. He has given orders to sail it to Colon, Panama, where it will remain until the canal is opened.

One South Pole Dog Alive.

Of the fourteen dogs that made the trip to the South pole, only one is now living, says Capt. Amundson. "Colonel" is the only dog that remains, and he is spending his last days on the Amundson estate in Norway.

"He will have an easy time from then on," said the discoverer. "All he has to do is eat and sleep. The other dogs died at Buenos Ayres recently, contracting a disease."

Capt. Amundson will fill lecture dates in Northwestern Canada. He returns to the United States at the end of the tour, and leaves soon for England where he will lecture for some time before returning to Norway to complete the plans for his voyage of seven years in the North.

"Are you going to the North pole," Capt. Amundson was asked.

"Well, we are not planning to, but if we should find the right conditions, I wouldn't be surprised if we would try to take an excursion up there."

ROOSEVELT IS COMING.

To Attend His Case at Marquette, Mich., in Person.

Marquette, Mich., May 19. — Word from New York is that Former President Roosevelt will leave that city Saturday, May 24, for Marquette, to appear in circuit court as affirmant in his $10,000 damage suit against George A. Newett, publisher of the Iron Ore, weekly newspaper at Ishpeming.

In preparation for trial of the suit, fifty venire men, in addition to the regular panel for the May term, are shortly to be drawn. This precaution is to be taken so that the trial of the suit may be expedited, as, because of the prominence of the complainant and Mr. Newett's general acquaintance in the county, considerable difficulty in drawing a jury is anticipated. It is expected that the court will uphold many challenges for cause. Col. Roosevent has been credited with the purpose of having a number of men of national reputation here, among them Gifford Pinchot, whose relations with him over a long period of years have been of the closest nature. It is also reported that witnesses for the defense will be presented in person.

In addition to James H. Pounds of Detroit and Mr. Hills, Col. Roosevelt will be represented by a firm of New York attorneys. Mr. Belden will also have able assistant counsel.

The farm is located about twenty miles southwest of Carrington.

CONGESTION AT ORE DOCKS

Big Fleet Arrives and Is Waiting for Chance to Load.

Shortage of Men Adds to Troubles of the Shippers.

The worst congestion of the season is being experienced at the Allouez ore docks at the present time. Fifteen boats are now waiting to be loaded at the docks.

Since Saturday noon twenty-eight boats arrived in the Duluth and Superior harbors for ore loads. A fleet of about thirty boats was already loading so that the docks became congested. During the past forty-eight hours thirty-five boats have cleared from the local harbors with ore loads, but the congestion is still serious and it is expected conditions will not be improved for at least twenty-four hours.

The steamer Thomas Barlum is loading ore at the Soo docks, the second boat consigned there this year. The Carrier took the first ore load there this season.

The reason that there is such a congestion at present is that there is a shortage of men, according to a local vessel agent. That this condition will continue throughout the summer is the belief of many.

The steamer Norwalk, which ran aground above the Northern Pacific bridge last Friday morning, was released late Saturday night by the tugs Mahoney and Crosby. It was necessary to lighter the large cargo of lumber before the boat could be released.

GRAIN MOVEMENT MAY INCREASE

More Activity Looked for After Present Ore Rush Abates.

As soon as the ore shipments fall off and the present congestion is overcome the grain movement is expected to increase considerably.

The present congestion at the ore docks has brought a big demand for more boats for the first of this week, so that very few or no grain charters are being made. By the time the congestion is over shippers will be able to get boats at rates offered last week.

Saturday afternoon a local shipper chartered a grain boat at 2 cents, with a guarantee of dispatch. This further shows the boat owners will not accept cargoes without assurance of dispatch or guarantees, if necessary. They can get ore cargoes much easier at present.

The coal movement is increasing right along and although a boat congestion is reported at Lake Erie docks, large shipments are constantly being received here. It is believed by many that a car shortage is due and that from now on the coal movement will decrease. Hard coal rates have been advanced by the shippers to Chicago and Racine.

The steamer J. M. Schoonmaker arrived Saturday afternoon with the biggest coal cargo this season. She carried 13,159 tons. Her sister ship, the William P. Snyder, Jr., is loaded with the record coal cargo of the season and is reported bound for Cleveland. She is carrying 11,985 tons.

Will Straighten Channel.

Detroit, Mich., May 19.—Work of straightening the Fighting island section of Detroit river channel, an improvement long urged by President William Livingstone and the Lake Carriers' association probably will be underway within the next sixty days.

Lieut. Col. Mason M. Patrick, corps of engineers, U. S. A., in charge of Detroit district, will open bids June 16 for excavation work covering a portion of this improvement. About $140,000 is available for beginning the work.

The improvement involves dredging and straightening the channel west of Fighting island, in which vessels are now compelled to make five turns, in dropping one set of ranges to take up another. The completion of the dredging will reduce the number of turns to two by removal of shoal places.

When the improvement is completed the channel will have a width of about 800 feet and depth of 20 feet, which will permit of its use by vessels on both the up and downbound courses.

Limping to Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., May 19.—With all of the buckets stripped from her wheel, the steamer Sierra, in tow of the steamer Livingstone, entered St. Clair river Saturday morning on her way to a Lake Erie point. She was met at Port Huron by the tug Mercereau, which will assist the Livingstone in towing her across Lake St. Clair. So that all danger of the boat grounding in the Livingstone channel will be eliminated, the Harding will meet them in the lower river and will assist the Mercereau. The tugs will take her down below Bar point lightship, where the Livingstone will again pick her up. The Sierra stripped her wheel last week above the Soo.

RESINOL A SAFE SKIN TREATMENT

You need never hesitate to use Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. There is nothing in them to injure the tenderest surface. Resinol is a doctor's prescription which proved so successful for eczema, ringworm and other itching, burning, unsightly skin eruptions, that it has been used by other physicians all over the country for eighteen years. No other treatment for the skin now before the public can show such a record of professional approval.

In a single month, two hundred and twenty-one doctors wrote us endorsing the Resinol preparations. They would not have done so if they had not found them highly valuable in their own practice. They prescribe Resinol freely, confident that its soothing, healing action is brought about by agents so bland and gentle as to be suited to the most delicate skin—even of a tiny baby.

The nearest druggist sells Resinol Ointment (50c and $1.00) and Resinol Soap (25c) or you can try them free by writing to Dept. 23-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md., for liberal sample of each.

DEEP CHANNEL TO MONTREAL

Welland Canal Improvements of Importance to Duluth.

Ottawa, Ont., May 19.—The determination of the government that the new Welland canal shall be the best possible in every respect in modern canal construction is further evidenced by the fact that Alfred Noble of New York, one of the authorities of the continent on this class of work, has just been appointed to examine, review and report upon the plans for the new canal.

The two officials of the department who are chiefly responsible for the plans have returned from the Panama canal zone, where they had the opportunity of examining at first hand the great work that is now nearing completion there.

When the Welland canal is completed, and probably before it is completed, it is altogether likely that the St. Lawrence river canals between Lake Ontario and Montreal will be deepened or duplicated, thus providing a thirty-foot channel from the Head of the Lakes clear to Montreal.

GRAND RAPIDS IS BOTTLED UP

Michigan City Complains of Lake and Rail Discrimination.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 19.—Alleging that the Crosby Transportation company, operating boats between Grand Haven and Milwaukee, has entered into a traffic agrement with the Grand Trunk railroad, Traffic Manager E. L. Ewing, of the local association of commerce, has filed a request with the interstate commerce commission in Washington for an investigation of the situation, which he terms is a lake traffic monopoly.

It is charged that the Crosby company refuses to consider any arrangement whereby through tickets from and to Grand Rapids may be purchased by the way of the Muskegon interurban road, which runs parallel to the Grand Trunk from here to Grand Haven.

Ewing also informs the commission that the Crosby company has announced its intention to cancel all freight rates applying from Grand Rapids except in connection with the Grand Trunk.

It is alleged that the Crosby company has notified the G. R. & I. that rates and divisions with Muskegon must be canceled; also the Muskegon interurban to the effect that all rates and divisions will be canceled and that rates and divisions in connection with the Pere Marquette have been canceled, but may be restored in connection with traffic to and from points north of Muskegon and north of Grand Rapids. This puts a serious crimp in local shippers who asked for the Federal probe.

Similar complaint against the Crosby company was made a few days ago by an organization of commercial travelers in Grand Rapids.

"THE SKY PILOT OF THE GREAT LAKES."

A booklet has been prepared by H. C. Jankowski of Milwaukee on the life and work of Rev. Richard W. Law of Detroit, who is familiarly known as the "Sky-pilot of the Great Lakes."

In the booklet Mr. Jankowski refers to Rev. Mr. Law as the "Laughing Doctor," describing him as follows in the opening chapters:

"He doesn't look a bit like a minister of the gospel. In fact, if you met him on the highway at any hour of the day or night, you would mistake him for a human being—and you would be very right in that. There is a certain make in his sailor cap, a certain girth around the 'equator,' especially after 'splicing the main brace,' a jovial smile in his wind-tanned face and a merry twinkle in his eye that usually are not affected by the men of the cloth.

"He is known by several names. By business men he is called 'Captain,' because he has sailed a forty-foot sloop-rigged yacht in his mission work for many years. By sailors he is known as the 'Sky-pilot of the Great Lakes,' but he is usually called the 'Laughing Doctor.'"

OIL BARGES WILL BE TAKEN FROM LAKES.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 19.—The Standard Oil Company of New York sent the Barges No. 86 and No. 83 to Montreal yesterday from where they will go to the coast. The steamer Impoco, formerly owned by the Imperial Oil Company of Canada, has been sold to the New York company and her name changed to Waneta. The Renown and Barge No. 96 have been sold to the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, and are being operated out of Whiting. The Imperial Oil company has two new steamers, Impoco and Imperial, coming from across the ocean for use in the trade between Cleveland and Upper Lake Canadian ports. The Standard Oil Company of New York will transfer all its vessel property from the Great Lakes this fall and thereafter will not do any lake business.

Canal Not Yet Open.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 19.—Word was received from Tonawanda Saturday that although Friday was the date set for the opening of the Erie canal it will be a week or more before any traffic passes through the canal at this point. Supt. Edward H. Rogers of the Buffalo division of the Erie canal has announced that the towpath and canal banks are in fine condition and that everything is in readiness on the Buffalo division.

Water will be let into the Lockport-Medina level today and it will be Wednesday before water will be let into Medina-Rochester level. Shippers are anxious for the opening of the canal and every day the canal remains closed means a great loss of the shippers.

Notice to Mariners.

William Livingstone, president of the Lake Carriers' association, has sent the following notice through H. W. Brown, local agent for the Pittsburg Steamship company:

"A gas buoy, No. 29, showing white five seconds, dark five seconds, has been placed on the westerly bank of Livingstone channel, abreast of intersection gas buoy, which shows green and white lights. Vessels pass between these two buoys."

Wreck Untouched.

Port Huron, Mich., May 19.—No action has been taken by the war department toward having the sunken schooner Iron City removed from St. Clair river, near Russell's Island, where she sank in a collision with the Thomas F. Cole, two weeks ago. As soon as the owners give notice of their abandonment of the wreck the war department will proceed to remove the craft.

Lake Changes.

Buffalo Receipts.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 19.—According to the records at the grain office of the Lake Carriers' association, 7,661,992 bushels of grain were unloaded here during the week ending last Friday. This is a decrease of nearly 1,000,000 bushels, as compared to the previous week, when 8,623,267 bushels were elevated. The grain rush is rapidly coming to an end, and it is expected that in another week conditions at the elevators will be practically normal. The destruction of the Erie elevator has not handicapped the elevators, and grain consigned to the Erie, is being distributed among the other houses.

PROPRIETOR WAS VICTIM

Bartender Opened Saloon on Sunday and Emptied Till for Bail.

Forfeits Bail and Owner Swears Out Warrant for Him.

Harry Gill, proprietor of the saloon at 105 East Superior street, where Henry Chase, bartender, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of violating the closing regulations, appeared at police headquarters this morning to ask for a warrant for the arrest of his booze dispensor for embezzlement.

Gill claimed that the bartender helped himself to $56 of his (Gill's) money, with which to obtain the amount necessary to furnish $100 bail. It seems that after he cleaned out the cash register the bartender called up the agent of a brewery, who came across with another $50.

Chase left Gill a note, explaining that he had been pinched and needed the money. He said that he would use $50 toward his bail and would take the other $6 as part of his wages. The first that Gill knew of the bartender's arrest was when he came downtown this morning and found his saloon locked. Chase closed Saturday night and was supposed to open this morning.

Chase was arrested yesterday afternoon by Capt. Fiskett and Humane Officer McKercher, who chanced to be in the station when a report was received that Chase was doing business. The two went inside when the door was opened by Chase. They found a man at the bar with a bottle of whisky and a drink of beer.

When Chase's name was called in police court this morning he failed to respond and the $100 bail was forfeited. The police think that he left the city.

HEBREW ASSOCIATION HAS BASEBALL TEAM

The Young Men's Hebrew association has organized a baseball team from among the members of the new society and plans are now being made for a series of games the coming summer.

A special practice will be held tomorrow evening at Thirteenth avenue east and London road. At that time a manager and captain will be selected from among the members of the team. Arrangements for a schedule will also be made.

HUSBAND DENIES CHARGES OF CRUELTY.

Alexander Nyysti denies the charges of cruelty which have been lodged against him in a divorce suit which has been started in district court by his wife, Wilhelmina Nyysti. The denial is contained in his answer which was filed today with the clerk of the court.

The Nyysti's live near Cloquet. In his answer the defendant claims that he has always treated his wife in such a manner "as is befitting a woman of her station in life." He specifically denies the charge that he had threatened to kill her.

Nyysti asks the court to dismiss the action and give him the custody of the children.

Fargo's Civic Celebration.

Fargo, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The success of the Civic day parade here June 7 is assured in celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the big fire which destroyed the business section of the city and also the thirtieth anniversary of the establishment of the Scottish Rite bodies here. The Masonic Home-Coming week will commence June 1 and continue until June 7. Hundreds of former residents of Fargo from all over the United States are coming.

CONSIDERING ORDINANCES

Commissioners Have Three New Measures Before Them.

May Start an Investigation of Local Coal "Combine."

The dance hall, moving and dog ordinances come before the city commission at its meeting this afternoon for their third reading and final passage.

Some opposition has developed to them, particularly that provision of the dance hall ordinance which prohibits dance halls, roller rinks and amusement places within 600 feet of any public park. The sentiment of the commission appears to be practically unanimous, however, leaving little doubt but what all of them will pass.

The ordinance appropriating $8,000 for coal to be used by the division of public safety is scheduled for its third reading. The commissioners will not pass it without giving the coal question considerable attention. They are very likely to start a complete investigation of the subject to find out why about 3,000 tons of coal cannot be contracted for at one time at a much better price than can be obtained by the consumer who buys a ton or two at a time. Duluth's coal costs between $20,000 and $25,000 a year and the commissioners think an order of that magnitude is worthy of more consideration than that of the man who spends $25 to $100 a year for his fuel.

Commissioner Murchison will send in a long list of cement and plank walks which should be ordered in this season. The list covers twenty typewritten pages. Under the bids for sidewalks, which were opened last week, those to be laid in Duluth this summer will cost over $50,000. The bids were based on estimates of quantities furnished by the city engineer.

MUST WAIT UNTIL FALL

Mayor Prince Postpones Beginning of Social Center Work.

Closing of Schools and Lack of Money the Cause.

The city will not attempt to institute social center work in Duluth until next fall, according to Mayor W. I. Prince.

The mayor states that the entire situation is being carefully investigated, but that for several reasons it is not deemed advisable to start the social centers in the schools at the present time. He does not believe that it would be well to attempt anything along that line until the coming fall.

Among other grounds which present themselves, the school year is drawing to a close and the social centers might interfere with them to some extent. More vitally important is the state of the city exchequer. The levy for the current was made last year under the old form and the treasury will not permit of any heavy strain on it. The mayor also desires to make an extensive preliminary survey before active work is started and this will require some little time, which is not plentiful with a vast amount of other city business pressing for attention.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Kinemacolor Motion Pictures.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

NEW VAUDEVILLE BILL AT EMPRESS

The Empress for the first half of this week has the best vaudeville bill it has presented since the new management took charge.

From the headliner, Jeannette Adler and her Five Cabaret Girls, who present a most pleasing musical act, to Lenoir's Manikins, one of the most popular acts of its kind, the bill is exceptionally good and readily scored with the three large audiences yesterday. The theater was packed for each performance.

The bill is opened by Lenoir's Manikins, a most cleverly contrived apparatus, which presents a small stage and a series of vaudeville acts. In addition Lenoir introduces several beautiful drops and stage effects in presenting the numbers.

Ethel and Beatrice, two sprightly young misses, who introduce several popular songs and dances, are exceptionally good. They present their numbers in their own novel way, one of the duo appearing in male attire, and they scored immediately.

All the fun and humor of the bill is left to the Bruce Richardson & Co., who present the farce comedy, "Moving day," which is a scream. Housemoving in all its humorous phases is very capably presented by the members of the company, who go along without much plot, but with plenty of action and comic situations.

The hit of the bill is without a doubt Jeannette Adler and her Five Cabaret Girls, who present a musical act that is exceedingly pleasing. The girls are the Misses Gwendolin Allen, Hazel Goff, Theresa Lombar, Bessie Davenport and Hazel Giwnup.

The young women play everything from the piano to the bass drum. Miss Adler is very pleasing in her several solo numbers and the ragtime songs, aided by the girls, "I'll Get You," and "When I Lost You," scored a hit at the evening performances yesterday.

Miss Adler was formerly on the Orpheum circuit and many local vaudeville patrons will remember her in the act, Jeanette Adler and the Five Pickaninnies. Miss Adler appears in two stunning gowns during the act.

Two reels of motion pictures showing "His Chum, the Baron," and "The New Conductor," opened and closed the show. The pictures are of the average comedy sort. The vaudeville bill will continue until Wednesday evening and on Thursday afternoon the tabloid musical show, The Girl Question," will open for the remainder of the week.

KINEMACOLOR MOTION PICTURES

Duluth theatergoers evidently appreciate excellent motion pictures, presented in a well-ventilated fireproof theater, with big roomy chairs and all conveniences, as the Lyceum kinemacolor pictures are playing to well filled houses at every performance.

Yesterday's and today's program in kinemacolor consists of scenes on the famous island of Santa Catalina, California, and kinemacolor photographers have produced travel scenes in nearly every part of the civilized world, but few rival in interest and beauty some of the views presented in this series of views in and near the California coast. The colorings are exquisite and the views offer surprise after surprise. "The House That Jack Built," a kinemacolor comedy, is full of laughs and a Pathe two-reel comedy, "An Exciting Honeymoon," is one of the funniest pictures ever shown on the screen in Duluth. It was taken at heavy expense, as it involves the use of a big ocean liner and an ocean tug and a number of other expensive settings. A vitagraph comedy-drama "The Sea Maiden," with its scenes laid on the beautiful Catalina island concludes the program. A novelty in connection with the program is a splendid cornet solo of "The Rosary," by Charles Helmer.

Druggist Loses Permit.

Leeds, N. D., May 19.—Special to The Herald.)—Judge Buttz revoked the permit of Druggist Vornholt of this place because of a discrepancy between the sales reported and the number of affidavits. Vornholt admitted selling between Sept. 23, 1912, and April 13, 1913, 3,322 half pints, but his affidavits were for only 2,241. There were 1,081 unaccounted for. Under the order of the court Vornholt cannot hold a permit in this state for five years.

To Beautify Hannaford.

Hannaford, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Citizens of Hannaford have a plan to beautify the town, which has greatly increased in commercial importance since the Great Northern cut-off from Fargo to Minot crossed the Northern Pacific at this point. A park is wanted and there is a location that can be secured. A swiftly running creek will furnish the water. It is fed by springs and runs over sandy bottoms and is not alkali. There are some fish in it and the water is so fresh that it is thought it would make a fine trout stream, properly stocked. Active action.

Aitkin County Land Sale.

Aitkin, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the monthly state land sale here Friday nearly 8,000 acres were sold from $5 to $25 per acre. Dr. C. Graves purchased a 40-acre tract that was delinquent in section 10, 47-27, paying $25 per acre.

Fairmont, Minn., May 19.—Chris Virgens, a farmer living about one mile from Triumph, was arrested Saturday by Sheriff Carver of Martin county, and Detective John C. Lawler of St. Paul, assisted by Court Reporter W. L. Nicholas, for the murder of John Steen, after a desperate hand to hand battle with the three officers.

The body of Steen, whose farm was but one-half mile distant from Virgens' farm, was found lying in the hoghouse Thursday, May 8, with a bullet wound in the head. Feeling against Virgens is said to have run high at Triumph, where it is reported threats of lynching were made.

FIRM TONE TO MARKETS

Grains Open Stronger and Maintain an Advance Throughout Session.

Little Trading in Any of Options—Durum Only Weak Spot.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 19.—The upward tendency of the grain market, which began immediately upon the start of business this morning, held good until the close this afternoon. May wheat, almost stagnant all session, closed ½c above Saturday's close; July made a net gain of ¾c to ⅞c, and September advanced ⅞c to 1c. May durum fell off ¼c and July lost ⅝c. Practically no trading was recorded in either of these options. Cash wheat closed even with July, oats gained 1⅛c and barley and rye remained unchanged.

Cables were strong this morning, and that started the grain market off with a tone of strength which was not overcome all morning. Following that was the very distinct disposition of holders of wheat to keep their holdings and not to sell on declines. Then again, as a further sustainer of strength, came the figures of last week's shipments, which at 20,000 bu larger than the week preceding showing an immense decrease of wheat in this country; and so far as that news did not weaken foreign markets, especially Liverpool, to the least, so that Europe must be prepared for a further influx of grain. Saturday's clearances showed up heavy, and the primary receipts, while larger than a week ago today, did not show up in proportion to the clearances.

In all, looking at the conditions enumerated above on one side, and the continual splendid reports regarding crops from all parts of the country—with the exception of the Pacific coast, which does not grow much grain anyway—on the other, the bulls and bears have about a stand-off, and the market ruled strong as a result. Trading was slow, however, as it was bound to be under the circumstances.

May wheat remained without action at Saturday's close July, which opened unchanged, bulged ¼@⅜c early and held it most of the session; September option had no opening figure, but advanced ⅜@⅝c over Saturday. There were no opening figures in the durum columns, but May, with two quotations, fell off ⅜@½c, and July fell off ¼c.

Brisk in Flax Trade.

The business in flax brisked up today on the board and the result was that each option of the seed made a distinct advance. Some filling orders were covered and this caused a distinct feeling of strength. May close 1½c up, July advanced a similar amount, September flax bulged 1c and October climbed 1¼c.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Is Firm on Outlook for Visible Supply Report.

Chicago, May 19.—Wheat developed firmness today in view of an expected decrease in the visible supply statement. Bulls also asserted belief in a continuance of premiums for old wheat until the movement of the new crop becomes free. Steadiness of cables tended further to discourage the bears. The opening was unchanged to ⅛@¼c lower. July started at 88⅜c to 88⅝c, touched 88½@88⅝c and then advanced to 89@89⅛c.

Afterward the market scored an additional gain owing to reports that bumper prospects Southwest were receding. The close was firm with July ⅝c net higher at 89⅜c.

Smallness of receipts gave strength to corn. July, which opened the same as Saturday night to a shade higher at 56⅛c to 56⅛@56¼, rose to 56⅜c.

A further upturn ensued in consequence of reports that much planting had been delayed in Iowa and Nebraska. The close was steady at 56⅜c for July, ⅝c net gain.

Commission house buying, though not large, proved sufficient to lift oats. July started ¼c to ⅛@¼c up at 36¼c to 36½@36⅝c, and went to 37⅛c.

Provisions took the upgrade because offerings were few. First sales were unchanged to 5c higher, including July, as follows: Pork, $19.60 to $19.65; lard, $10.90 to $10.92½; ribs, $10.17½.

Wheat—No. 2 red, $1.05½@1.07¼; No. 3 red, 98c@$1.02; No. 2 hard, 91@93¼c; No. 3 hard, 89@92c; No. 1 northern, 91@93¼c; No. 2 northern, 90@92c; No. 3 northern, 88@90c; No. 2 spring, 90@92c; No. 3 spring, 87@90c; No. 4 spring, 85@87c; velvet chaff, 88@93½c; durum, 90@96c.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

List Shows Stability in Face of Heavy Foreign Selling.

Bulls More Hopeful of Their Position and Close Is Firm.

New York, May 19.—Acute weakness of St. Louis & San Francisco and other low priced railroad stocks put the general market to a test, under which it gave indications of underlying strength. St. Louis & San Francisco common and second preferred dropped five points each and the first preferred 12 points.

No authoritative explanation of the movement was made. Rock Island stocks and bonds also were weak.

Fluctuations among the more prominent shares were small and the general undertone was good. Failure of bears to influence sentiment adversely caused some covering which raised the general level for the important stocks above last week's close. Bonds were irregular.

Opening prices of stocks today disclosed irregular changes. A majority of the leaders began the session fractionally higher, but the first few minutes the trading cased off. Rock Island common and preferred and St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred made new low records for the year. The copper shares were heavy.

Reactionary tendencies of the market leaders did not amount to much, buying orders appearing after fluctuations reached half a point or so. Liquidation of low priced stocks was unchecked and several new low records were made. St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred slumped 4 points to 13.

Low priced stocks made partial recovery of their big losses of the morning. Speculation generally was apathetic, about the only feature of interest being the comparative strength of the market leaders.

Speculation became decidedly stronger in tone. Advances of 1 and 2 points respectively in Reading and Canadian Pacific promoted a better demand for other favorites. Completion of the urgent liquidation of minor railroad stocks enabled them to rally briskly.

The market closed firm. Stocks were in scant supply around current prices and the execution of small buying orders sent the general level higher. Bulls were more hopeful of their position, owing to the stability which the list showed in face of the heavy foreign selling and the early demoralization in certain securities.

NEW TRAIN ON MISSABE

Extra Service Will Follow Opening of Canadian Northern Line.

Three Trains Will Be Operated Each Way Daily.

Another train on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, connecting Duluth with the range towns, will be started on June 8 as a result of the opening of the Canadian Northern road. Only tentative arrangements have as yet been made by the local officials for the new service. Two trains are now running to the range, in addition to the through train to Winnipeg.

According to the arrangements already made the new train will leave Virginia at 4 30 o'clock every afternoon, arriving here at 7 o'clock in the evening. The train will leave for the return trip at 8 p. m. the same evening, arriving at Virginia at 10:30 o'clock.

The new train will make the same stops that the present two trains are now making, which includes Cnisholm, Hibbing, Mountain Iron, Eveleth and Biwabik among the larger towns.

Range people are especially pleased with the announcement of another train over the line. They will now be able to leave Virginia in the afternoon, arrive in Duluth in time to attend a show at one of the local theaters, and return home the next morning. One of the old trains now leaves here at 7:40 a. m. for Virginia.

The schedules of the present trains to the range are: Train leaves Virginia at 6:55 o'clock in the morning, arriving here at 10:30 o'clock, leaving again at 3:50 o'clock in the afternoon and arriving in Virginia at 6:50 p. m. The other train leaves Duluth at 7:40 a. m., arriving in Virginia at 10:35 a. m., leaving for Duluth at 12:30 p. m. and arriving here at 3:21 p. m.

The additional train is being put on because of exceptionally large business that is now being done on the trains making the range towns, according to a local official. Another reason is that the Canadian Northern road will use its own tracks to Winnipeg after June 7 and the new train will be installed the next day. The two new trains on the Canadian Northern will give a net increase in service of two trains daily each way.

LOW RATES TO HINCKLEY

Railroads Make Concessions to Development Association Delegates.

The Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads will both give a rate of a fare and one-third for the round trip for the meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association at Hinckley, June 5 and 6.

The tickets will be issued June 2 to 6, inclusive, good for return up to and including June 10. They will be issued on the certificate plan. Purchasers of tickets will pay the full rate for the trip to Hinckley, obtaining a receipt and certificate from the local agent, and on arriving at Hinckley they will turn them over to Secretary W. R. Mackenzie of the development association. Mr. Mackenzie will issue a certificate entitling the holder to a rate of 1 cent per mile for the return trip.

The meeting at Hinckley is expected to be one of the best in the history of the association. Reapportionment has been accomplished, but that is only a start and the association still has much to do before the development of Northern Minnesota will go forward with the desired rapidity. The program for the Hinckley meeting has not yet been announced, but Mr. Mackenzie said on a recent visit to Duluth that he is in communication with several well known speakers and that some interesting subjects will be up for discussion.

MUST PAY $9,000 FOR RIGHT-OF-WAY.

Jamestown, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Midland Continental Railroad company must pay $9,000 damages to the B. W. Fuller estate if it wants to build its line across the Fuller farming properties south of here. A jury in the district court fixed that amount as the damages, and provision also must be made for overhead crossings at several points. To cross the land big fills must be made, and the land owners charged that the fills would damage the farming.

The company must pay $50 an acre in addition to the damages, the total being $11,125.

LOCATE AITKIN'S NEW N. P. DEPOT.

Aitkin, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Division Supt. A. V. Brown of the Northern Pacific, visited Aitkin, and the matter of the site for the new Northern Pacific depot was settled with no change in the original plan which was to place the new building on the south side of the tracks. An objection to the location by local people has been overcome.

DATES FOR CLOSING.

Catholic School Exercises Will Begin June 12 and End June 20.

The dates have been set for the closing of the Catholic schools of Duluth. The first school to close will be the Girls' Cathedral high school, which will hold its closing exercises on June 12. The other dates set at Villa Scholastica, June 13; St. Anthony's school, June 13; St. Mary's school, June 16; Cathedral grade school, June 16; St. Peter and Paul's school, June 17; Brothers' high school, June 18; St. John the Baptist school, June 19; St. Clements' school, June 20.

Mott Contracts Let.

Mott, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The contracts for the new 350-barrel mill, the electric plant and 50,000-bushel elevator has been let by Mr. Stewart. It is thought the light plant will be ready for operation by Sept. 1. Material is already being assembled. There will be both a day and a night service.

ARC LIGHTS ARE BROKEN

Up to Property Owners to Hunt Down Mischievous Boys.

Lights Will Be Discontinued When They Are Deliberately Smashed.

Residents who want street lights maintained in their localities must cooperate with the city and the electric company to prevent them from being maliciously destroyed. Otherwise they will have to go home in the dark, or the light of the moon.

Since April 26, street lights on nine different corners have been deliberately smashed, some of them several times. The police department has tried to apprehend at least part of those who have been responsible, but without success. The force is too small to allow the detailing of men to that kind of work for any length of time. And from indications, it will take time and quite a number of officers to get results. The belief is that rowdy boys have been guilty, but whoever they have been, they have been too shrewd to fall into the clutches of the police.

As a result, Commissioner Hicken, head of the division of public safety, today ordered lights on those corners discontinued. That many complaints will be made seems a foregone conclusion, but the commissioner declares that the practice must stop. He asserts that if the people want light they must co-operate with the authorities to put an end to the wrecking of the globes and arcs.

The lights which have been ordered discontinued are located in the eastern part of the city, as follows: Twenty-first avenue east and Second street, Seventeenth avenue east and Fourth street, Seventeenth avenue east and Sixth street, Thirty-second avenue east and Superior street, Twenty-fifth avenue east and Second street, Twenty-fourth avenue east and Second street, Twenty-seventh avenue east and Fourth street, Forty-fifth avenue east and Dodge street and Forty-seventh avenue east and Dodge street.

Under the present mandate it would appear taht some of the sturdy and athletic householders, particularly the sprinters among them, will have to get out after dark and run down some of the "kids" whose rowdyism has resulted in the lights being discontinued, before the juice is directed to be turned on once more.

LIGHT GAS IN WELL.

Occurrence at Drake, N. D., Starts Gas Belt Rumors.

Drake, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Excitement over the possibility of Drake being in the gas belt has been created here by the explosion of accumulated gas in an old well. William Beutler and B. B. Bennett were investigating the well, which was on a vacant lot. They dropped a lighted match into it to ascertain the depth of the water. An explosion occurred which seriously burned both men, shook the windows in the houses for several blocks distant and threw out a great deal of rubbish and dirt. For many years the claim has been made that there was gas underneath the town and it is believed that proper borings would probably locate a sufficient supply to light and heat the places of business here as is done at Westhope and other points to the north of this place.

ALLEGES EXORBITANT PRICES FOR WHISKY.

Des Lacs, N. D., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Protesting that his friend Nelson, had charged an exorbitant price when he kept $1 for a half pint of whisky, a man, named Blackey, incurred Nelson's indignation and was pounded over the head with a rock and knocked down. After awhile he recovered and proceeded to beat Nelson with another rock. Both were in a serious condition.

A REAL LADY.

Margaret Was She, Although She Was Called a Tomboy.

The Presbyterian: Margaret was a tomboy. Even her two grandmothers, who thought that Margaret, like the king, "could do no wrong," secretly confessed to themselves that the child had earned the title her father gave her. To be sure, they didn't speak it right out. One grandmother said she was "lively," and the other declared that she was "excitable"; but what they really meant was plain "tomboy." Of course she was fond of playing with dolls, especially on rainy days, but her chief delight was in climbing big trees and hanging head down from the stout limbs. She was fond of fishing, too, and she knew how to bait her own hooks. Her father said she could swim like a puppy dog, and he never had a caddy as active and untiring as she on the golf links. She could row a boat better than her brothers, and as to sailing a cat boat, there wasn't a boy in the harbor that could beat her. She never went through a gate if there was a fence to climb and she often came home bearing the evidence in torn skirt and stockings of a wrestling match with that "abomination of desolation," a barbed wire fence. Lost hair ribbons were her daily sacrifice to the idol of heedlessness! Beyonw all reasonable question, Margaret was a tomboy. Nobody knew it better than the dog, Bowser who always sought her after his daily bath, and left his autograph on the front of her white dress!

The dear old ladies who daily sat on the porch of the summer hotel, making embroidery for the country church fair and mildly abusing the minister, wondered if Margaret would ever outgrow her masculine habits and become "lady-like." The maiden ladies, who always know how to raise children, and were just old enough to forget when they were "tomboys" themselves, sadly shook their heads and hoped they were mistaken about her future. And Margaret was scolded and disciplined and reasoned with until the end of the long, joyous summer; and the only person who rejoiced in her abundant activity was the Irish laundress, to whose weekly income she made so abundant contributions! And the bright September found the girl stronger, brighter, handsomer, more freckled and sunburned, but not a mite more "lady-like" than she had been in June.

Margaret's dearest and most intimate school chum was Eunice Freeman. They shared each other's secrets and chocolate candy, and their teacher said they reminded her of the letter Q and U in the alphabet, as they were never found apart! In every word you spelled that had a Q in it, you always found U following it! So the school girls nicknamed them Q and U. Margaret was Q, because she always led, and Eunice followed with a blindness of devotion that almost reached idolatry.

Just before Christmas the school was to have a grand entertainment, and in the procession which formed part of the festivity, Margaret and Eunice were to march side by side. Margaret's mother had bought her a beautiful new dress for the occasion, and the child's eyes glistened with pleasure when she saw it, for she was very fond of pretty clothes.

"Don't you think it's very handsome, dear?" her mother asked.

"Oh, yes, mother, beautiful, and I'm so much obliged to you!" replied Margaret, enthusiastically.

"With that pretty pink sash that grandma gave you for Christmas, I think my little girl will look as well as any girl in the procession," said mamma, with a little pride in her voice.

"Mother," said Margaret, with a serious look in her big brown eyes, "would you mind very much if I didn't wear it in the procession."

"Not wear it, dear! Why, what do you mean?" exclaimed her mother.

"Why, you see, mother," said Margaret, "Eunice is not going to have a new dress, and I thought—you don't care much do you mother?" And Margaret had her arms about her mother's neck.

When Margaret came into school on the day of the festival, Eunice was the first to meet her.

"Why, Margaret Redfield," cried Eunice, "Where is your lovely new dress?"

"Don't I look well enough in this?" laughed Margaret.

"You'd look sweet in a calico kimmo!" said her fervent admirer. "But you said—"

"There's Miss Williams beckoning to us," interrupted Margaret, "I can beat you running up stairs!" And Eunice never knew.

"Tomboy, is she!" exclaimed Grania Chaffin, with tears in her dear old eyes. "Tomboy, eh! Well, maybe she is; but, if she isn't a real lady, there are none in these days!"

And I agree with her, don't you?

GOLF DREAM CAME TRUE.

London Express: A story of a golfer's dream that came true comes from the Rochford Hundred Golf club, near South-end-on-Sea.

One of the members, E. Simpson, entering the clubhouse, said he dreamed the previous evening that he had drove a ball over a sheet of water bounded by a high hedge and a wire fence, on the green and into the hole in one shot.

"Of course, that is the Pond Hole, the short fifth," laughed the members.

"What is the betting against your dream coming true?" asked one. "I give you 100 to 1 in sovereigns." "And I give £1.000 to £10," said a sporting city magnate.

Mr. Simpson could see nothing in these tempting odds except the sure loss of his money. To hole out in one comes to few golfers in a lifetime, so made no bets. How keen is his chagrin on this score may be imagined when what followed is related. He went out at once on the crowded course. At the Pond Hole tee his partner reminded him of his vision and Mr. Simpson laid down his ball for an easy iron shot, the hole being a "bogey three."

He said afterwards that he felt an eerie sensation, and shook at the knees. He was sure he did not keep his "eye on the ball," or rather only his mind's eye."

The couple in front stood near the green awaiting eventualities. Straight for the pin came the ball. It dropped gently on the grass twenty feet away, and, with its last revolution, trickled into the hole.

A wild whoop and frantic gesticulations intimated to Mr. Simpson that his dream had been fulfilled; also that he had lost a small fortune by declining the bets offered him.

PORTABLE ACETYLENE LAMPPOSTS.

By means of a new portable acetylene lamppost, described, with illustration, in the Popular Mechanics Magazine, parks, squares or other open places may be vividly illuminated for special occasions, such as band concerts, and the like, the time taken for the erection or removal of the posts being negligible. All that is necessary is to force the pointed base of the pole into the ground, place a pail of water beside it, drop the acetylene box in the water, and make the required hose connection between the box and the piping in the post.

AMERICAN MURDERED BY MEXICANS ABOUT TAMPICO; OTHERS HURT

Anti-American Feeling in That Section Is Very Strong.

Diaz Declines to Comment on Possible Return From Europe.

Aeroplane Seized Near Border Is Stolen and Taken Across.

Mexico City, May 20.—The killing of one American and the wounding of several others in the last thirty days in and about Tampico has been made the subject of a report to the state department at Washington, as indicating a strong anti-American sentiment. The attention of the Mexican foreign office has also been called to this matter.

James Crawford was stabbed and killed near Tampico; another American was slashed with a machete and his condition is serious, and the others are suffering from lesser injuries. No arrests have been made. Several hundred American colonists and oil well workers reside in that region.

The rebels who are threatening Tampico are holding their positions, and an attempt by the Federals to run a train into Tampico from San Luis Potosi resulted in a rebel attack at Ebano.

Gen. Pasquale Orozco, who was recently dispatched north by the government, suffered his first defeat on Saturday at Fresnillo in northern Zacatecas. He lost sixty killed and retreated to the city of Zacatecas.

Diaz Is Silent.

Paris, May 20.—Gen. Porfirio Diaz, former president of Mexico, who is staying at a hotel here, declines to make any statement in reply to inquiries as to the arrival of a delegation from Mexico to offer him the presidency.

The report current yesterday in Corunna, Spain, on this subject was founded on statements made by officers of the steamer Ypiranga. They said passages to Europe on board that vessel were engaged as long ago as January

Becker, the former New York city police lieutenant who is under sentence of death for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, has submitted to Judge Swann of the court of general sessions affidavits embracing 152 typewritten pages, as grounds for a new trial for his client. Judge Swann said he would refer the question to Supreme Court Justice Goff, before whom Becker was tried. The argument on the motion of Mr. Shay will come up before Justice Goff, May 28.

MAKES REPORT TO THE MANUFACTURERS

JOHN KIRBY, JR.,
President of the National Association of Manufacturers.

KIRBY FLAYS LABOR UNIONS

Cites Dynamite Cases in Report to the Manufacturers.

Regards Congress' Action With "Horrified Amazement."

Detroit, Mich., May 20.—Charging that organized labor has failed to clear itself of "the stains which violence and lawlessness has cast upon it," John Kirby, Jr., of Dayton, Ohio, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, in his annual report dwelt at length on present industrial and legislative tendencies and their effects upon manufacturers and employers. He referred in detail to the treatment of great corporations and the railroads and the attitude of manufacturers toward the tariff. He said in part:

"Conspicuous in the momentous events of recent years that have transpired in the field of American industry is the tragedy of Los Angeles and the drama of Indianapolis. As a reward to the principal accomplices in

IS WITNESS FOR STATE

Co-Defendant of William Wood Testifies in Conspiracy Case.

Dennis Collins Tells of Putting Dynamite About in Lawrence.

Boston, Mass., May 20.—Dennis J. Collins, a dog fancier of Cambridge, on trial with President William M. Wood of the American Woolen company and Frederick E. Atteaux, a Boston dye manufacturer, for conspiracy to "plant" dynamite at Lawrence during the textile strike of 1912, testified as a witness for the prosecution when the trial was resumed today.

Collins said that on May 19, 1912, he met John J. Breen, the Lawrence undertaker who was convicted of actually "planting" the explosive in a saloon in Boston. In the course of their conversation Breen asked him if he would like to go to Lawrence that night.

"I told him I would go if I could help him any," Collins said. Breen continued:

"We shall probably meet some folks, and you had better carry this bundle to keep your end up," at the same time handing the witness five $5 bills. Breen, the witness said, agreed to give him more money the following day.

Collins said that after leaving the saloon they met two men. One of the men, described by the witness as "Mr. Rice," gave Breen a package weighing about forty pounds, which they carried

SICK WOMAN TOO BIG FOR AMBULANCE

Chicago Authorities Have Struggle to Get Her to Hospital.

Chicago, May 20.—Mary Perry, 47 years old, professional "fat woman," exhibiting at a local amusement park, suddenly became ill from blood poisoning last night and was taken to the county hospital after a series of obstacles had been overcome. She weighs 600 pounds.

A police ambulance responded to the call of park employes but the vehicle was found too small for Miss Perry, and a patrol wagon was substituted. Then the stretcher was found too fragile and it was strengthened by the addition of two pieces of timber. Breathing heavily, five policemen and three park attendants managed to place her in the patrol wagon.

At the hospital no bed strong enough to support her could be found and two were placed together and supported with chairs.

Attending physicians after examining the patient, expressed the opinion that she would recover.

MONK IS MADE ROMAN BISHOP.

Hoboken, N. J., May 20.—Rev. Paul Nassebaum, a monk in the monastery of the Passionists here, laid aside today the coarse black habit of his order which he has worn for a quarter of a century, and put on the purple of a Roman Catholic bishop. He has been appointed by the pope as bishop of the diocese of Corpus Christi, Tex., and he is the first of these missionaries to be raised to the purple with jurisdiction in this country.

BARNES WILL FIGHT PLANS

New York Man Is Opposed to Republican Peace Plans.

Sydney Anderson of Minnesota on Reconciliation Board.

Washington, May 20.—Republican reorganization through the medium of a special national convention to provide a new basis of representation and for revision of state primary laws, will be combatted by William Barnes of New York, a member of the national committee.

Coincident with this information, which reached Washington today, came news of a fresh movement in New York to eliminate Mr. Barnes and bring the party organization in the Empire State more into harmony with the progressive program that is taking hold in the country as a whole.

The announced opposition of Barnes to the national convention movement is not greatly terrifying to the friends of the idea, although it is known that with the solid South and the loyal representatives arrayed against the scheme, the margin in favor of it on the part of the members of the national committee will be very narrow.

Committee of Peacemakers.

Senator Sherman of Illinois, chairman of the Progressive Republican conference held at Chicago a week ago, today announced the "committee of conciliation" which will wait upon the executive committee of the national committee when it meets here next Saturday and urge action along the

CARRIES HIS EAR TO SURGEON IN POCKET

St. Cloud Man Gets Member Washed and Sewed in Place.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 20.—Charles Chapple, 50 years old, yesterday rushed into the office of a local physician. He was bleeding profusely from a wound on the side of his head, and while the astonished physician looked on Chapple reached into his pocket and drew forth his right ear, which had been torn off by a sharp rock when he fell from a twenty-foot embankment. The ear was washed and sewed back into place.

TAFT FIRES GUN.

Gives Starting Signal for Foot and and Bicycle Races.

New Haven, Conn., May 20.—Former President Taft is preparing to transfer his voting residence from Ohio to Connecticut. He will have his name put on the list of "voters to be made," and in September the board for admitting voters will pass on his qualifications, after an examination which will include the applicant's reading, as usual, of any section of the Constitution of the United States that the board may select. As President Taft must live in the state one year before he can vote, he will not be eligible for the city election in the fall, but will be qualified for the state election in 1914.

Prof. Taft officiated last night as starter in the running and bicycle races of the New Haven Amateur Athletic association. He fired a pistol for both events and was loudly cheered.

INAUGURATE GEN. MENOCAL

Cubans Install New President and Other Officials.

Outlook for Peace and Prosperity in the Island Is Bright.

Havana, May 20.—With the inauguration today of Gen. Mario G. Menocal as president in succession to President Jose Miguel Gomez and of Dr. Enrique Jose Varona as vice president, the Cuban republic enters on a new phase of its existence in a spirit of high hopes for the preservation of peace and the establishment of the prosperity of the island.

President Menocal on taking office contents himself with the declaration that he will devote all his energies to giving the country a clean business administration which will foster the industries of the island and develop its splendid resources which will welcome foreign capital and immigration and maintain friendly relations with all nations, especially with the United States to which Cuba is so closely linked by bonds of mutual affection and interest.

Gen. Menocal was born in 1866 at Jaguey Grande, Matanzas province. His family soon removed to the United States and he was educated in the military college of Washington and then at Cornell university. He graduated from Cornell as a civil engineer.

Upon leaving Ithaca he went with his uncle, Aniceto G. Menocal, chief of the engineering staff which made the

HENRY M. FLAGLER DIES AT HIS HOME IN FLORIDA

Oil and Railway Magnate Succumbs to Injuries.

Formerly Interested in the Minnesota Iron Ranges.

West Palm Beach, Fla., May 20.—Henry M. Flagler, aged 83, capitalist and railroad magnate, died at his winter home here this morning after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Flagler recently fell down a flight of steps in his home, and because of his advanced age his recovery had not been anticipated.

Henry M. Flagler was born at Canandaigua, N. Y., in 1830. Little is known of his early life except that he was clerk in a country grocery in Orleans county, Mich., while in his teens. Later he removed to Saginaw, Mich., where he engaged in the manufacture of salt.

Helped Originate Standard Oil.

Becoming interested in the possibilities of the petroleum industry he moved to Cleveland, Ohio, where he organized the company of Rockefeller, Andrews & Flagler, engaging in the refining of oil. The Standard Oil company was the outgrowth of this venture, and Mr. Flagler has remained actively connected with the management of the great corporation since its inception.

Mr. Flagler became interested in the Vermilion iron range when a syndicate purchased the Minnesota Iron company, including the Duluth & Iron Range road, from Charlemagne Tower of Philadelphia. He was a director of the iron company and the railroad, retiring when they became subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation.

In 1885 Mr Flagler paid his first visit to Florida, and became impressed with the business possibilities presented there by the railroad field in connection with the development of winter resorts.

Built "Flagler's Folly."

Mr. Flagler built the Florida East Coast railroad and later erected the Ponce de Leon and Alcazar hotels, at a cost of $3,000,000.

His greatest achievement was the extension of his railroad from Miami to Key West. For many years his plan was ridiculed as impracticable and was called "Flagler's folly." The opening of this "over seas" line is regarded as one of the engineering triumphs of the age.

The body will be buried in a mausoleum at St. Augustine, in the yard of the memorial church which he gave to the Presbyterians.

At Mr. Flagler's bedside were his son, Harry, who arrived yesterday from Europe, and Rev. Dr. George Morgan, his pastor, who will conduct the funeral services.

SCHOOL HOUSES ARE DECLARED FIRE TRAPS

Bureau of Education Says Only Three States Protect Children.

Washington, May 20.—School houses that are fire traps continue to be erected throughout the country, despite the tragedies of the past, and the United States bureau of education today issued an appeal for better construction of buildings in which the youth is educated. Ohio, Massachusetts and Kansas are the three states given credit for seeking for better safeguards against fire in schools. The remainder of the country, in the opinion of the bureau, fails to take necessary precautions. Most communities appear to be still oblivious of the fire risk in schools, says the bureau's report.

The bureau condemns emphatically what it terms "gingerbread schoolhouses that are a constant menace to the lives of school children."

"It is pointed out that the rapid spread of the school social center movement," the report concludes, "which involves extensive use of the school buildings by the general public outside of school hours, makes it more important than ever to insist upon adequate fire proof construction in schools."

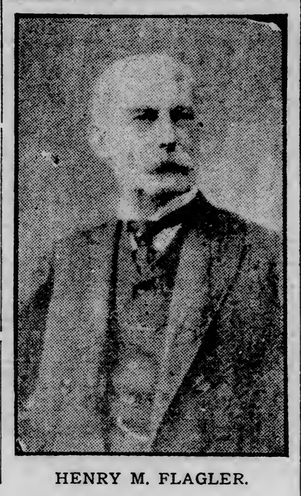
MILL CITY MAN KILLS GIRL IN PINE CITY AND ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

RAILROAD MAGNATE SUCCUMBS TO INJURY



HENRY M. FLAGLER.

Frank Kuhlman Murders Effie Jones for Refusal to Wed.

Tries to Drown Himself With Three Shots in His Breast.

Loses Nerve in Cold Water and Hides in the City Lockup.

Pine City, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Kuhlman, a tinner from Minneapolis, last night shot and instantly killed Miss Effie Jones of this place, and then fired three shots into his left breast one inch apart, just below the heart.

Kuhlman was employed as a tinner about two months ago by the Smith Hardware company here and boarded at the Jones house. He became infatuated with the girl and wanted to marry her, but she refused him. He threatened then to kill her, and was given twelve hours to leave the place. He left at once, going to Henrietta, a station on the Great Northern twelve miles west of here.

Called Girl to Door.

Last night at 9:30 he went to the kitchen door of the Jones boarding house and rapped. Miss Effie went to the door. Kuhlman was disguised with a black wig and dark glasses, but she knew him in spite of his disguise, and screamed to her mother:

"Here's Frank!"

He immediately shot her through the left shoulder and heart and she fell dead. He fired two more shots and threw the revolver down by the side of his victim. He ran from the yard, losing his hat and wig there and ran north to the bridge crossing Snake river, about three blocks from the scene of the shooting. There he saw some one coming across the bridge and he jumped under the end of the structure.

Ed Galles and Frank Carlson were down at the edge of the river putting in a boathouse and upon seeing them Kuhlman fired three shots. The two men, thinking some one was shooting a dog, ran up the bank with their lantern and found Kuhlman lying on his face wounded.

Tried to Drown Himself.

A young woman who was crossing the bridge at the time became hysterical at the sight and one of the men went to quiet her while the other ran to telephone for a doctor. During their absence Kuhlman crawled to the river to drown himself, but said afterward the "water was too cold."

He then skirted the town and got back and into the village lockup, where he was found about 1 o'clock this morning by a deputy sheriff, who went to open the lockup to accommodate two boarders who were afraid to stay at Jones' over night. Kuhlman, although seriously wounded, will in all probability recover.

JAPANESE MOVE NEXT

Washington's Answer to Land Law Protest Received.

May Be Dissatisfied With Plan to Go to Courts.

Washington, May 20.—With the answer of the United States to its protest in hand, it is now up to the Japanese foreign office to take the next step in negotiations over the California alien land act. It is expected that the forthcoming rejoinder to Secretary Bryan will be strongly argumentative, and calculated to result in the conduct of the future negotiations on a strictly legal basis.

As it is understood that the state department is looking to the Japanese government, or some Japanese citizen, to test the new law by recourse to the United States courts, it may be significant of the drawing of another issue that the Japanese are believed to be reluctant to begin such a movement.

Relying on Washington.

In his protest May 9 to the state department, the Japanese ambassador is understood to have made it perfectly clear that Japan, finding it impossible to deal directly with the state of California, was relying entirely upon the Federal government to insure what he believes to be fair treatment for its subjects. Probably that contention will be extended to cover the legal test of the California land law, though the ordinary procedure in such cases would be to allow a Japanese subject, threatened with escheatment of his lands, to begin action by application for an injunction.

Meanwhile, it is expected that several days will elapse before the Japanese rejoinder is received in view of the fact that ten days were taken for the preparation and delivery of the American reply to the original protest.

Cable To Tokio.

Secretary Bryan late yesterday handed Ambassador Chinda, the United States' reply to the Japanese protest to the California land legislation. The ambassador immediately cabled it to Tokio. No indication as to the nature of the reply was given out.

CALIFORNIA ROBBER ADMITS POSING FOR YEARS AS WOMAN

James A. Baker Confesses Counterfeiting and Forgery Deals.

Kansas City, Mo., May 20. — James Arthur Baker, arrested here last night charged with theft committed at Summerland, Cal., in a signed confession to the police said that during much of his life he had posed as a woman and that he had been involved in intricate counterfeiting and forgery schemes.

He early adopted the profession of school teacher, he said. After teaching a few years in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma, he went to the Pacific coast, where he found that men teachers were not in demand. He disguised himself as a woman and obtained a position in an Idaho village under the name of "Alice Baker." No one suspected his secret, although he taught one entire season.

"Married" a Lawyer.

In 1910 Baker, still garbed as a woman, went to Los Angeles. Here he met a young attorney who became infatuated with the teacher, and a few months later they went through a ceremony of marriage.

Baker said this attorney exercised a hypnotic influence over him and induced him to take a course of engraving in an art school to make him proficient in counterfeiting. Later they perfected $7,000 worth of bogus one hundred-dollar bills, he said, and afterward went to Japan, where the bills were exchanged for gold.

After their return to California, Baker said, the attorney proposed that they steal the blank money order book at Summerland, where Baker said a relative of his was postmistress. Baker visited this relative, he said, and stole twenty-four of the blank money orders. He said they filled out the orders for $100 each and cashed fourteen of them at Riverside, Cal., and two at Pasadena.

Married Iowa Girl.

Before going west, Baker said, he married an Iowa girl, from whom he was divorced. They were remarried several months later and divorced a second time.

Baker is small, has a high falsetto voice, and has features resembling those of a woman. He will be held pending the arrival of the California officers.

"GENTLEMAN FORGER" IS TO BE DEPORTED

Ernest A. M. Stephens Leaves Stillwater for England.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Wearing a silk hat, a frock coat and carrying a cane, Ernest A. M. Stephens, just released from Stillwater prison, left early today for New York city to be deported to England. With him was George L. Weaver of the United States immigration office, carrying the prisoner's suitcase.

Stephens was known as "the gentleman forger" when he was sentenced to prison three years ago. His frock coat, cane and silk hat were kept for him by the prison authorities. When Stephens was released yesterday he refused to accept the suit of clothes offered him by the prison officials, declaring they were not fit for a gentleman to wear. He ordered that his own clothes he brought to him, and he donned them and was brought to Minneapolis and turned over to the immigration officials. Stephens will be deported Thursday.

WHERE IS MARGARET?

Fortune of $450,000 Awaits Missing Michigan Girl.

Chicago, May 20.—The local police have been notified to search for Margaret Hawthorne, 26 years old, who, according to a telegram from a law firm at Hastings, Mich., is heiress to a fortune of $450,000 left by David Shafter at Vassar, Mich. The latter died five years ago.

The young woman was the daughter of Almina and Henry Hawthorne, but they separated shortly after her birth. The mother died at Amethyst, Colo. The father was then at Des Moines, Iowa. He was last heard from several years ago in Honolulu. The child is supposed to have been left in this city. Asylums will be searched for records of her, as the police fear she may be unaware of her own identity.

NOT AIMED AT CHOP HOUSES

New Saloon Ordinance May Be Amended Before Being Passed.

Object Was to Abolish Free Lunches and Brewery Control.

The ordinance eliminating restaurants and eating places in saloons is directed principally against the free lunches, according to Commissioner W. A. Hicken of the safety division, who introduced the measure at the commission meeting yesterday afternoon.

Commissioner Hicken stated that as the measure now stands it operates against all chop houses in saloons, but that this may be amended. He explained that his chief desire is to put an end to the free lunches. The measure was introduced in its present form to bring forth an expression of opinion as to all eating places and it is not impossible that the measure may be amended so as to allow those which are unobjectionable to continue, with the free lunches cut out.

The same ordinance aims to put an end to brewery control of saloons. It is claimed that if it is passed and can be strictly enforced quite a number of bars will be put out of business. One man said this morning that easily half or more of the saloons in Duluth owe their existence to breweries. He added that if they are eliminated the city will lose $75,000 to $100,000 of revenue which is now derived from their licenses, each of which costs $1,000 per year.

Interesting Relic.
An interesting relic of one of Duluth's first park boards was turned over to Mayor Prince, head of the park system, this morning. It is an order for $5 payable to Joseph Plaunt, issued by the board of park commissioners. It is dated July 4, 1890 and bears the name of W. K. Rogers, president. Mr. Rogers was the originator of Duluth's famous boulevard and it is after him that it is named.

He suggests that they be given several times a week as well as on Sundays and that the band be increased to 35 or 40 pieces. Mr. Smith states that the city does not provide sufficient entertainment for the hundreds of visitors and tourists who visit Duluth annually during the summer months.

Arrested On Train.
Sam Slayton, a plumber, was arrested at the union station this morning for the International Falls authorities, who wired that they hold a warrant charging him with embezzlement. The wire did not reach the police station until 9:30 but the Canadian Northern train was over an hour late, enabling the local authorities to make the arrest as he left the train.

Stopped Street Cars.
The police assert that Andrew Wagner, a longshoreman, accumulated too many high ones last night and started to amuse himself by stopping street cars on Superior street. He was arrested on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He denied the allegation in police court and his hearing was set for 2 o'clock today.

Coal Docks Shut Down.
Owing to the funeral of A. F. Holden, president of the Island Creek Coal company, operations on both the West Duluth and Superior docks were suspended today. Mr. Holden, who was 48 years of age, died Sunday at Cleveland. His funeral is being held this afternoon.

Admits Robbery.
Carl Olson, 20 years old, was arrested this morning by Sergeant Holmstrom on a charge of robbing several fellow boarders who were stopping in the same place on Nineteenth avenue west. He is said to have taken $15 from one, a watch and fob from another and a ring from a third. He denied his guilt at first, but later admitted it and took the officer to the place on the hillside where he had cached his booty, somewhat after the manner of the freebooters of song and story. The young man will probably be arraigned in police court this afternoon.

JAPS DISAPPOINTED.

Feel Honor Is at Stake in Land Law Dispute.

Tokio, May 20.—The news that the California alien land ownership bill had been signed by Governor Johnson was received here with regret, although it had been discounted in official and non-official circles. The newspapers published extra editions with the announcement that the bill had been signed.

The efforts of the Japanese government are concentrated at present on pacifying public opinion, but the task is regarded in many quarters as a more difficult one than at the time of the California school controversy of a year ago.

Since the death of the old Japanese emperor the authority of the government steadily has diminished in resisting the growing influence of public opinion, and the spirit of democracy is augmenting throughout the empire.

A prominent official said today:

"The Japanese people feel that their national honor is involved. The political question will be solved peacefully, but what is needed to assure the permanence of our traditional friendship is a change of heart in some Americans towards the Japanese."

COUNTY SCHOOL HEADS DROPPED.

Madison, Wis., May 20.—The first of the large educational reforms growing out of the survey of Wisconsin rural school conditions by the board of public affairs was ordered to engrossment in the assembly today after a hard fight. This provides for a county board of education to supersede the county superintendent, giving it more powers and scope for educational activities and placing common schools on a better basis.

The assembly adopted an amendment by Speaker Hull, making optional the right of members to employ clerks.

The Zinn bill, providing for the recall of judges, was killed by the assembly.

MANY ARRESTS AT SILK MILL.

Paterson, N. J., May 20.—Fifty-seven arrests were made this morning in the vicinity of the Price silk mill, to which the hands returned yesterday in the face of protests from Industrial Workers of the World leaders conducting the strike. Twelve hundred or more strikers and others gathered in the streets near the mill today to jeer the returning workers. There was no actual violence, and those arrested were taken in because they refused to "move on."

Three of the prisoners taken were women, one with a baby in her arms. She was paroled immediately.

SENATORS TALK ABOUT TARIFF.

Washington, May 20.—Majority members of the senate finance committee held their first meeting today to hear preliminary reports from the sub-committees working on the tariff bill and suggesting revisions for approval of the entire committee and the Democratic caucus. No reports were made relating to sugar and wool.

BEGIN THURSDAY ON COMMITTEES.

Washington, May 20. — Democratic Leader Underwood has called a meeting of the Democratic members of the ways and means committee for Thursday to begin the task of assigning the members of the house to committee places. Mr. Underwood has completed a preliminary slate made up from the requests of individual members for places. This will be laid before the committee, which will probably be in session continuously for about two weeks revising the list.

WILL PROBE THE CHICAGO VOTE.

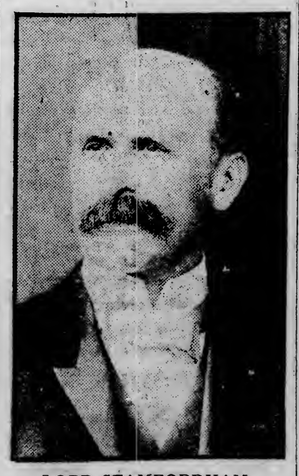
Chicago, May 20.—States Attorney MacLay Hoyne today forestalled his rivals by obtaining a special grand jury and a special state's attorney to investigate alleged irregularities in the election last fall, at which Hoyne was elected over William A. Cunnea, George I. Haight and Lewis Rinaker, candidates respectively of the Socialist, Progressive and Republican parties.

Yesterday Attorney Frank D. Ayers, representing the defeated candidates, asked Judge Baldwin to appoint a special prosecutor to conduct an investigation, but the court replied that a special grand jury would be required, and that he would call one if petitioned, and then take up the subject of a special state's attorney.

This application was to have been made today, but Hoyne was ahead in Judge Kersten's court by a few minutes. Judge Kersten ordered a panel to report tomorrow, and out of four Republicans and four Democrats submitted by Hoyne, selected Clyde L. Day, a Republican, as special prosecutor. Hoyne is a Democrat.

A recount of ballots thus far has shown consistent gains for Cunnea.

IS MADE SECRETARY TO KING GEORGE V.



LORD STAMFORDHAM.

Lord Stamfordham is the successor of Lord Knollys as secretary to King George of England. He is almost unknown outside the immediate confines of court and official circles in England. Unlike his three immediate predecessors in office, Lord Stamfordham does not belong to what are popularly known as "the court families. He is the son of a country clergyman and may be said to owe his success in life to the start which was given him by Empress Eugenie. He was appointed through her influence as an officer of artillery and was sent to South Africa, and it was he who was selected to bring back to England the remains of the Prince Imperial, son of the empress.

BILL ON ALIEN LAND LAWS IS PROMISED

Bartholdt Notifies House He Will Seek Congressional Action.

Washington, May 20.—During a ten-minute session of the house today, Representative Sisson of Mississippi announced his intention of making a speech on the legal points involved in the California-Japanese situation when the house meets again Friday.

Representative Barthholdt of Missouri also announced today that he purposed to introduce next Friday a resolution to empower congress to legislate exclusively on all questions affecting the rights of aliens residing in the United States. The purpose of the measure would be to prevent individual states from passing laws which might cause friction with foreign countries.

ASK WILSON TO VETO SUNDRY CIVIL BILL

Manufacturers Adopt Resolution on Exemption of Unions.

Detroit, Mich., May 20.—The National Association of Manufacturers, assembled in convention here, this afternoon unanimously adopted and forwarded to President Wilson resolutions urging him to veto the sundry civil appropriation bill which has passed congress, containing a provision preventing the use of public funds, appropriated to enforce the Sherman act, for the prosecution of labor and agricultural organizations violating that statute.

The resolution was introduced by James A. Emery of Washington, general counsel for the Manufacturers' association.

NEVER IMAGINE YOURSELF AS SLIGHTED.

In the Woman's Home Companion a contributor makes the following inquiry in the "home problems" department:

"I am one of three friends, and have been equally fond of both the others. Lately I have often found myself rather out of the group. Mrs. A. who used to run in and see me every day, who would take walks with me, come in with her sewing, and seek my advice, is neglecting me, and is constantly with Mrs. W. Not long ago I discovered that they had a secret in common which had been withheld from me. As we live in a small place where neighbors are dependent on one another, and as we have been called the Three Graces, I am just as unhappy as I can be, and do not know what to do."

The editor of the "home problems" department makes the following reply:

"A triangular friendship is a trifle difficult. Two persons may share an intimacy. The third person must sometimes be de trop. I think that you are needlessly disturbed about your friends. I make it a rule never to imagine myself slighted. As for secrets of the kind you mention, they sometimes concern a pleasant surprise that is planned. My advice is to take a fourth neighbor into see how it may work."

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION GETS "DOWN TO BUSINESS"

Is Likely to Play a Very Important Part In New City Government.

W. B. GETCHELL,
President, Civil Service Commission.

RUBEN JOHNSON,
Secretary, Civil Service Commission.

Duluth's new civil service commission, the sole non-salaried board under the new form of government and a body which promises to be an active force under the charter, met at the city hall last evening and completed its organization.

W. B. Getchell, appointed for the two-year-term, was elected president, and Ruben Johnson was chosen secretary. The other two members of the board are James L. Cromwell, appointed for the four-year term and T. H. Hawkes, named for the six-year-term. The secretary is not a member of the commission and in the past his position has been combined with that of secretary to the health commissioner. The charter has not made provision for the secretary but as one is obviously needed the matter will be laid before the city commission at its meeting.

Further than the election of officers the commission took no action last evening. A general discussion of the situation took place and it was evident from the statements of the members that the present civil service board will be a much more active organization than has been the case in the past. It was made plain that all employes of the city will be given opportunities to be heard if they desire to lay their cases before the commission.

In the health department some notices have been sent out to certain employes that their services will no longer be required. At least one of them has declared his intention of fighting summary removal, asserting that the new charter gives him rights which should be observed. The provision which states that employes shall be removed only "for cause" is plain.

The indications are that no new men will be placed on the payroll until they have passed civil service examinations. These will be competitive and under the new regime merit will count more than pull.

Rules and regulations for the governing of the civil service board were tentatively gone over last night and as soon as they have been put into shape another meeting of the commission will be called to consider them. This will be done without loss of time so that the next gathering will probably be held within a week.

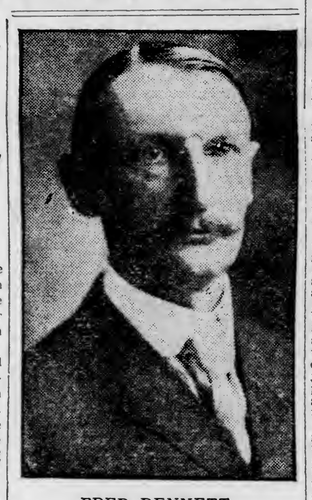
DEVELOPMENT, NOT PROFIT SHOULD BE LAND POLICY

Commissioner of Land Office Talks on Uncle Sam's Domain.

Says Pioneers in Industry Should Be Protected, Not Taxed.



FRED DENNETT.

Development, not profit, should be the aim of the Federal government in handling the public domain, in the opinion of Fred Dennett, commissioner of the general land office, who is in Duluth today.

"I am a little different from a good many people who make public expressions of opinion on the public domain policy of the United States," said Mr. Dennett today. "I do not think the United States should endeavor to make as much money as possible out of the latent resources under the control of the Federal government. I do not believe that the people who make possible the development of natural resources should be penalized for their pioneering.

"Take in the case of a waterpower. Before the commercial development of the country in which it is located, it is nothing but a raging torrent. Without cities and factories and an accompanying market for power, the torrent is commercially worthless. But just as soon as the pioneers build up their country and make possible the development of the commercial possibilities of that torrent, some people would have the government tax them by deriving a profit from the waterpower on its development.

Protect Pioneer.

"I do not believe that this nation needs such profit. I believe that the laws should protect the pioneers in their industry. The community creating the commercial value of that torrent should be given protection by law. I would not have the government release control entirely, but I would have development and not profit the first consideration. The same is true of coal lands and other resources. The local community is responsible for the commercial value of any natural resource in the public domain, and the local community should be given all the opportunity to enjoy the production of the developed resource. I do not believe in robbing Peter to pay Paul by exacting for the national treasury a tribute from those who make development possible."

Mr. Dennett said that the laws relating to the public domain are entirely inadequate to meet the situation.

"Do you know that there are 236 different provisions of law under which the United States may pass title to public lands?" he asked. "That is an astounding statement, and it shows the necessity for codification and harmonization of the existing laws. Still the laws are inadequate, especially those relating to the coal lands. Coal lands may pass only on fee. Only 160 acres may go to an individual or 640 acres to an association. No association can undertake the expense of the development of any mine with only 640 acres of coal land to develop. The capital necessary is out of all proportion to the holdings that may be obtained.

Lease System.

"The present tendency is toward the lease system. Legislation to that end should be enacted, but I still hold that even under the lease system, development and not profit should be the end. The lease system would allow the government to hold control and still it would bring about the development that is needed. There is now only one lease of public coal lands in effect, and that was given on a tract of land in Wyoming by special legislation. The development of Alaskan coal lands is being held up absolutely pending legislation."

Mr. Dennett has charge of an immense branch of the government's service.

"There are now about 1,800 employes under the commissioner of the general land office," he said. "We have 101 land offices at points from Nome, Alaska, to Gainsville, Fla. We have thirteen surveyors general offices and eleven chiefs of field divisions.

"At a recent hearing before the appropriations committee of the house I gave some figures showing that the land office is constructive, not destructive, as has often been charged against us. In the period from June, 1908, to December, 1912, four and one-half years, the office issued patents on 53,000,000 acres of land, or a territory as large as New England with Delaware and New Jersey thrown in. We collected $1,318,000 in compromises, judgments and fines, and cancelled patents on land worth $20,000,000. That shows the need for an efficient, organized field force.

"Three and one-half years ago congress gave us the right to do surveying by our own men instead of letting the work on contract. In that time we have saved 25 per cent of the expense under the old system and have saved one to three years in time. Instead of the old wooden stakes, we place concrete-filled iron posts with brass tablets.

Shamefully Defrauded.

"The way the government was defrauded under the old contract system was shameful. The land office will have to fix millions of dollars' worth of surveying over again. In some states the work was all done on paper. Field notes were written without a line being laid. The new system has proved itself."

Mr. Dennett is a strong advocate of the abolition of the receiver of the local land offices.

"All of the reforms have not yet been made," he said. "The receiver should be abolished and his place taken by a bonded clerk. The receiver and register, having concurrent jurisdiction, clashes were bound to occur, to the impairment of the service. With one man at the head of each land office, a better organization would be effected, and the government would be saved about $100,000 a year."

As a result of Mr. Dennett's visit, South Dakota is added to the territory of the field division of which S. J. Colter of Duluth is the chief. Mr Colter's territory, beginning with July 1, will include North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Mr. Dennett was formerly publisher of a newspaper at Milton, N. D. He was appointed commissioner of the general land office in 1908, and prior to that he was assistant commissioner for one year. The office is filled by presidential appointment, and Mr. Dennett expects to be succeeded soon by an appointee of President Wilson. Mr. Dennett declined to talk on the proposed consolidation of the Cass Lake land office with the Duluth office. He said it is a matter for his successor to determine.

Mr. Dennett will complete his business in Duluth today and will leave this evening for Washington.

WOULD TIE UP COAST SHIPPING.

Philadelphia, May 20.—Threats to tie up shipping all along the Atlantic coast unless the longshoremen on strike here are granted their demands are made by national organizers of the Industrial Workers of the World.

Robert L. Warwick, secretary-treasurer of the national industrial union of marine telephone workers, arrived and ordered the firemen, cooks, water tenders and coal haulers to leave their posts. Nearly 3,000 men are said to be on strike here.

Tornado in Nebraska.

DEPARTMENT STORE SELLS ST. PAUL BONDS

More Than $55,000 Worth Are Disposed of in Two Hours.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sale of municipal paving bonds over the counter of a local department store was begun here yesterday, more than $55,000 worth being disposed of in less than two hours. The sale was continued today.

Nine-tenths of the purchasers yesterday were women and considerable excitement prevailed during the sale. The plan of disposing of the bonds has been so successful that the same method probably will be adopted in the sale of playground and waterworks securities.

CLAIM CHICKENS' CROPS WERE LOADED

New York Jobbers Refuse to Receive Shipment of 80,000 Fowls.

New York, May 20.—Twenty carloads of live chickens, 4,000 chickens to the car, were being held in Jersey City today because angry jobbers refused to receive them. Hardly a live chicken was handled by dealers yesterday.

The trouble arose over a recent complaint of jobbers that receivers were stuffing chickens' crops with weight-producing sand and gravel to make up for shrinkage sustained in transit. Until receivers agree to abandon the practice the dealers say they will boycott all live poultry. Ordinarily about 125,000 live fowls are handled daily.

SOON TO LAUNCH CHILIAN CRAFT.

Seattle, Wash., May 20.—Plans were announced today for the launching of the Chilean submarine Iquique, which with its sister boat, the Antofagasta, is under construction at a local shipyard.

The Iquique will be sent into the water June 3, Mrs. Mary Von Schroeders of Valparaiso acting as sponsor. Mrs. Von Schroeders is the wife of Lieut. Edgar Von Schroeders of the Chilean navy, who will command the Iquique when she is turned over to Chile by the constructors.

The Iquique and the Antofagasta are of the same general type of submarine as types Y and H class in the American navy, two of which are on the ways at the same plant. The Antofagasta will be launched Aug. 1.

SUFFRAGETTES THREATEN LINKS

People of St. Andrews Put 5,000 Guards About Greens.

St. Andrews, Scotland, May 20.—This little town is almost in a state of siege as the result of threats muttered by the militant suffragettes that they will destroy the putting grounds and thus render play impossible in the world's amateur golf championship, which is to be competed for here next week.

The most intense excitement prevails among the townspeople, who depend largely for their prosperity upon the golf links, while the members of the Royal and Ancient Golf club also are extremely anxious. They and the citizens have organized a vigilance committee whose members, together with 5,000 volunteers, will guard the greens night and day.

Will Use Vitriol.

The general anxiety becomes keener every day, as it is thought that the militant suffragettes may refrain from delivering their attack until the last moment, when it would be impossible to repair the damage. As it is understood that the women will use vitriol to destroy the greens, all the sentries stationed there have provided themselves with large umbrellas to prevent the corrosive fluid being thrown into their faces.

The River Tay routes, by which the links are reached from Dundee, a hotbed of suffragettes, are closely guarded, and to make assurance doubly sure a powerful searchlight has been mounted on the railroad bridge, the light from which sweeps the grounds nightly.

MRS. JANE L. McMANUS DIES AT SUPERIOR.

Mrs. Jane L. McManus, 79 years old, mother of Attorney A. E. McManus of this city, died at the St. Francis hospital of Superior at 9 o'clock last night following a short illness. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of her son, 1914 East First street, Duluth, and the body will be taken to her old home at Rawdon, Quebec, Can., for burial.

Mrs. McManus was the widow of Francis McManus. She leaves three other sons besides A. E. McManus. They are George J. McManus of Dallas, Tex., Edwin McManus of Superior and Dr. William McManus of San Antonio, Tex.

"BRIDE'S ROOM" IN NEW CHURCH.

New York, May 20.—Plans for alterations to the Church of Incarnation on Madison avenue, of which Rev. Howard Robbins is rector, provide for a bride's room, which is believed to be an innovation in church arrangements. The organ loft in the rear of the church will be removed, and in its place a beautifully equipped room will be built. Here the bride may arrange her attire after the drive from home and assure herself that she is in readiness for the march to the altar. It is planned to have dressing tables and all the conveniences a bride could desire.

MATTHEW WHITE DIES IN FIRE.

Monterey, Mass., May 20.—Matthew White of New York City, a retired malt manufacturer and father of Matthew White, Jr., the writer, lost his life today in a fire that destroyed the summer home of the family here.

HOW MUCH WILL 500 POLICE EAT?

Washington, May 20.—Expert testimony is being sought as to the food capacity of 500 chiefs of police, for the chamber of commerce has taken upon itself the task of feeding that number of aristocratic bluecoats when they get here June 11 to attend the annual convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs. One of the features of the convention will be an old-fashioned Potomac shad bake. One thousand fish, or two to each delegate, have been ordered in anticipation of the feast.

LABORER FINDS PHONEY $17,000.

Aberdeen, S. D., May 20.—Eric Blando, a Milwaukee railway section hand, thought his fortune was made when he discovered a package containing $17,000 in money, and was greatly disappointed when his foreman insisted on taking charge of the money and turning it over to the company to return to the rightful owner. His feelings were relieved, however, when it was discovered the money was of the make-believe variety used by business colleges in teaching business operations to students.

TORPEDO COMES BACK.

Pokes Two-Inch Hole In Vessel That Fired It.

Newport, R. I., May 20.—The torpedo boat Vesuvius was struck by one of its own torpedoes late yesterday and beached on Hope island, Narragansett bay, when the lives of those on board seemed imperiled by the waters which rushed in through a two-inch hole astern. Besides the regular crew, fifty seamen gunners were on board.

The Vesuvius, which is a dynamite cruiser, was famous as one of the first vessels of the "new navy" and was being used for torpedo instruction at Narragansett bay. As a practice "whitehead" torpedo left her side, the mechanism went awry in some manner not yet determined. The torpedo turned like a boomerang and crashed into the Vesuvius astern, below the water line, gashing a two-inch hole.

Hammocks, blankets and other materials were used in trying to patch up the hole, but the Vesuvius began to settle astern and a call for help was sent out by wireless.

Chief Gunner Thomas Smith ordered full speed ahead toward the nearest land, Hope Island, two miles away. All pumps were kept working until the Vesuvius ran her nose on the beach of Hope island. The crew massed in the bulkheads and the master notified the torpedo station. Soon the crew from the station ranged alongside the Vesuvius. Later the Vesuvius worked herself off the beach and proceeded to the torpedo station under her own steam.

ACCUSED OF MURDER OF WIFE AND CHILD

Former Colorado Legislator Arrested on Return From Funerals.

Cripple Creek, Colo., May 20.—When James L. Bacon, mining man and former Colorado legislator, stepped from a train on his return from Denver, where he had attended the funerals of his wife, Ida, and her daughter, Josephine Davidson, killed in an explosion which wrecked the Bacon home here on April 28, he was arrested on a warrant charging him with the murder of the woman and child.

Bacon is accused by the authorities of having caused the explosion which killed his wife and stepdaughter and caused injuries which resulted in his spending several weeks in a hospital.

The explosion was at first thought to have been accidental, resulting from an attempt to thaw dynamite in a kitchen stove oven. Later Bacon recovered sufficiently to give his version of the affair, in which he declared his belief that enemies had blown up the house. To substantiate this he told of having received threatening letters. The coroner's inquest failed to clear the mystery, a verdict of death as the result of an explosion, with cause unknown, being returned.

Since Bacon's partial recovery he has been closely watched, and two deputy sheriffs accompanied him to Denver when he attended his wife's funeral. The warrant for his arrest was sworn out secretly by the sheriff ten days ago.

He was charged with having, with the aid of two unknown accomplices, robbed one Joseph Warner of $200 in a Bowery saloon on the night of April 9 last. Tomasewski was defended by Attorney S. F. White.

BOSTON REPORTS COPPER MERGER

No Confirmation of Giroux Deal Has Yet Been Received.

Boston, Mass., May 20.—A report of a merger of four mining companies all having headquarters in Duluth was received on the local stock exchange yesterday, but up to a late hour could not be confirmed. The companies affected, according to the report were the Giroux Consolidated Mines company, the Copper Mines company, the Chainman Consolidated mines and the Butte-Ely. The Giroux is the only one of the companies listed on the Boston exchange.

Nothing is known as to the authenticity of the reported combination of the mines named, at the offices of T. F. Cole or J. B. Cotton, who are in the East at present. E. J. Maney, secretary to Mr. Cole, says that he has received no word of any such combination and while it may have taken place as reported he does not expect to know anything about it until Mr. Cole returns.

For the past twenty days Giroux has been shipping ore going from 2 per cent to 2½ per cent copper to the Steptoe smelter at McGill. Up to this time, the general run of Giroux shipments has been around 2 per cent. Extraction attained by the Steptoe concentrator on Giroux ore is from 70 per cent to 76 per cent.

PETER TO LEAVE SERVIAN THRONE.

Geneva, Switzerland, May 20.—King Peter of Servia intends to abdicate as soon as he possibly can after peace between the Balkan states and Turkey has been signed. He plans to return to Geneva, where he lived for many years before he was called to the Servian throne in 1903 after the murder of King Alexander and Queen Draga.

The Servian monarch's intention became known when his emissary arrived here to find a suitable residence for his majesty. Crown Prince Alexander and Prince George, the king's sons, were educated here, and his majesty, as Prince Karageorgevitch, has many friends in Geneva with whom he corresponds regularly.

The health of King Peter, who is 69 years old, has broken down, it is understood, as a result of the war with Turkey, and he wishes to end his days in peace among his friends in Switzerland.

ADVENTISTS PLAN ON TAX.

Washington, May 20.—Every member of the Seventh Day Adventist church will be called upon to contribute 20 cents a week, in addition to the regular tithe, toward a fund for furthering the denomination's work, if a resolution presented at the Adventists' world conference at Takoma park is adopted. Seventy-five per cent of the amount thus raised would be for foreign missions and 25 per cent for increasing the efficiency of the church's institutional work.

MAKE STUDY OF NEGROES

Presbyterians Find Their Attention Turned to Race Problem.

Lively Tilt Occurs Over Division of Mission Funds.

Atlanta, Ga., May 20.—With the likelihood that nothing further will be accomplished until next year toward the organic union of all branches of Presbyterianism following the action of the Southern Presbyterians in voting to consider for the present no union except with the United Presbyterian church, the big assemblies today devoted their attention largely to matters of denominational interest.

In all three assemblies, however, recommendations urging all Presbyterian churches to study the negro problems were made by a committee from the Council of Federated Churches in America. It is evident among the visiting ministers and laymen that the opportunity for close study of the negro afforded during sessions of the assemblies in Atlanta has done much to crystallize sentiment for the more vigorous advancement of negro education and religion.

Seminary Debate Resumed.

While deliberations of the assemblies today were marked by less controversy than those of yesterday, more than ordinary interest was shown in the Northern Presbyterians' continuation or speeches for and against a resumption of church relation with Union Theological seminary. The beliefs entertained by the institution's faculty again were made the object of attack on the charge that doctrines out of accord with the church are taught in the seminary.

A lively tilt between supporters of home and foreign missions yesterday afternoon resulted in several minutes of prayer before a vote was taken on an impending question. The standing committee on "systematic beneficence" in its report advocated apportionment of 60 per cent of the income to foreign missions and 21 per cent to home missions. An apportionment of 54 per cent to foreign missions and 27 per cent to home missions was strongly urged by the permanent committee on the same subject. Sharp exchanges took place between the supporters of the two schedules. After several minutes' of prayer, the resolutions of the permanent committee were adopted.

"Petty Personalities."

The first ripple of dissension that has appeared at the sessions of the United assembly since Tuesday occurred when Rev. D. B. Smiley charged that politics was at the root of a move to permanently shift the Sabbath school extension work from the board of publication to the board of home missions. Dr. Smiley pleaded with the assembly to "lift the work out of petty personalities into which it has fallen.

After a discussion lasting two hours, it was decided to postpone action until the convening of the next assembly, but Rev. George P. Raitt was chosen to succeed Dr. Smiley as secretary of the board.

lines proposed in the resolutions already adopted.

The committee appointed by Senator Sherman consists of Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, leader of the Chicago conference; Former Governor Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri, Roosevelt leader in the Republican national convention at Chicago last summer; Senator Coe I. Crawford of South Dakota, a recognized Progressive Republican; Senator W. L. Jones of Washington, a regular with progressive leanings; Representatives Louis C. Cramton of Michigan; Sydney Anderson of Minnesota, successor to James A. Tawney, formerly chatrman of the house appropriations committee, and John J. Rogers of Massachusetts, author of a plan to reduce Southern representation in Republican national conventions.

James B. Reynolds, secretary of the Republican national commitee, arrived in town today to prepare for the meeting of the executive committee on Saturday. At that time the political situation, especially with reference to the congressional campaign will be canvassed carefully. The Republican congressional committee, it is announced, will be organized early next month and it is expected that both committees will work in harmony.

One of the first men whom Mr. Reynolds met was "Tom" Pence, in charge of Democratic national organization headquarters. The two are old friends although political opponents.

"Hello," said Pence in greeting, "where's your office?"

"Under my hat," snapped Reynolds. It developed that the Republicans have not yet made arrangements for headquarters here yet.

this conspiracy they have one after another, through the power of the invincible 'inner circle' of the American Federation of Labor, been re-elected to their respective offices. Point to me one single labor leader or delegate who has arisen and indignantly demanded that such type of leadership be forever barred from the administration of union affairs.

Says Law Is Violated.

"During recent years we have witnessed the prosecution and conviction of many business men under the Sherman anti-trust law for seeking in some way to protect their business against ruthless competition and dominant methods of the labor trust. If they have violated the law, we have no complaint to offer for the penalties which they may be called upon to pay; but we do protest against the free and unmolested manner in which the labor trust defiantly continues to violate the same law.

"We are justified in our condemnation of representatives and senators in congress who, in the name of political expediency, stoop so low in the scale of public duty as to vote for such legislation as the Clayton anti-injunction and contempt bills, passed in the lower house of the Sixty-second congress, and which only escaped passage in the senate by a hair's breadth.

"There are men now acting in the capacity of representatives of the people who, under the cowardly pretense of political expediency, have been willing to violate their oath of office for a cheap price offered by the leaders of an organized gang of dynamiters who, with their entire affiliated membership, represent less than 2 per cent of the population of the country.

"Horrified Amazement."

"And should not we gaze with horrified amazement upon the spectacle presented to us in the closing days of the last congress, when both the house and senate passed the sundry civil appropriation bill containing provision that no funds appropriated for the use of the department of justice in prosecuting violators of the Sherman act should be used for the purpose of prosecuting these defiant combinations—a bill which William Howard Taft promptly vetoed? The same bill is pending again, having been promptly passed by the house in the special session. And this is the way the party in power starts out to make good its boasted slogan of equal rights for all, privileges to none!"

Referring to the Industrial Workers of the World as being supplemental to the American Federation of Labor, Mr. Kirby said:

"Against these forces of evil, domestic and alien, we must stand flint-like in our resolve that our government is and must be a government of law.

"If, as a result of radical and ill-advised tariff legislation, we suffer business depression and the loss of opportunity to labor," he said in conclusion, "the aftermath, like in the recent floods, will plainly be visible and the remedy sharp and decisive But this is not the case with respect to the insidious class legislation which is creeping upon us. Experience teaches us that once such legislation is incorporated in statute law, it is written there to stay."

for a delegation which was to be sent to Gen. Diaz in the name of all the factions in Mexico, to offer him the presidency.

Hold Up Money Orders.

Washington, May 20.—An order has been issued by Postmaster General Burleson directing that postmasters refuse to pay money orders issued on and after May 25 at any point in Mexico unless they have received the corresponding advices previously indorsed by the Huerta postal administration with a special stamp reading: "Visador por la direction general de correos de Mexico D. F."

When payment is thus refused, the instructions say, the holder should be advised to return it to the sender. The order is in accordance with an agreement entered into between the Mexican and American postal departments.

Aeroplane Is Stolen.

Nogales, Ariz., May 20.—The war aeroplane that crossed into Mexico near Naco last night was the same flying machine confiscated by United States Federal officers two weeks ago. The machine has disappeared from a ranch between Tucson and this point. With it disappeared Reuben Hopkins, a United States deputy marshal of Tucson, who was left to guard the air craft.

The machine, in sections, was taken in three automobiles south to the international line and safely crossed in daylight. With it went high power bombs of the gravity contact type, that the insurgents expect to drop on the Federal gunboat Guerrera, which lies in Guaymas harbor ready to assist the garrison of the town in defending the only remaining point in Sonora state held by the central government. The flying apparatus and bombs for aerial use went south today on a special train. The attack on Guaymas, to which point the defeated Federals have retired, has been postponed, it is explained, awaiting the aeroplane to offset the power of the gunboat.

American Deputy Missing.

The disappearance of the aeroplane, supposedly safe in the keeping of the Federal officers, led to a search for the missing deputy marshal. It is asserted that he was kidnaped. The Mexican customs collector of Nogales Sonora passed the incident with the remark: "It cost us a lot of money, but we got it."

The aeroplane, a 3-passenger, 80-horse power biplane, was held two weeks ago when Didier Masson and his mechanic, Thomas Deane, began setting up the machine at Pike's ranch, twenty miles below Tucson. Masson and Deane escaped with some necessary parts of the machine, and it was rumored that still another aeroplane had been smuggled over the line.

to Breen's house in Lawrence and opened it. "It contained sticks which felt 'cold.'"

Package of "Juice."

"I asked Breen what they were," the witness added, "and he told me it was juice."

Collins said that when he pressed Breen for an explanation of the package, Breen said:

"You'll see the joke tomorrow."

The witness told of a conversation in which Breen said:

"I'll be mayor of this city next year. There are millions back of me."

"I asked him what he meant," said Collines, "and he asked me if I knew President Wood of the American Woolen company. I told him I did not, and then he said that I would see the joke in the papers the next day."

That same night, Collins said, they went out in a sleigh, carrying some small bundles made from the contents of the bundle brought from Boston. They left packages at a Syrian tailor shop and a cobbler's shop, and also deposited one in St. Mary's cemetery.

"Mum Is the Word."

Another payment of $25 was made by Breen to Collins. Breen said that he had received $100 and he wanted to "split even" with the witness. As the witness was leaving Lawrence, Breen's parting words to him were: "Mum is the word!"

The word "dynamite" was not mentioned by Breen, Collins said.

On the day that Breen's trial began at Salem, Charles Breen called at Collins' home in Cambridge.

"He told me," said the witness, "that his brother, John, had sent him to tell me to 'beat it.'"

Collins said that until he read in the newspapers of the discovery of the dynamite at Lawrence he did not know that the packages distributed by Breen and himself contained dynamite.

INAUGURATE GEN. MENOCAL

survey of the Nicaragua canal, and worked with him. He returned to Cuba as an engineer for a French company. At Santa Cruz he joined the revolutionary forces as a private and rose rapidly until he became general of division.

Served the Americans.

His military record was brilliant; he rendered great service to the Americans at the time of the Spanish evacuation, and Gen. Ludlow, civil governor of Havana province, appointed him chief of police of Havana, a position requiring at that time great tact and ability. He managed the Chapara sugar estate up to a few weeks before his inauguration.

Vice President Varona was born in Camaguey April 13, 1849, was graduated from the University of Havana and is professor of philosophy and ethics in that institution. He was deputy to the Spanish cortes from Camaguey province shortly after the ten years war (1868-78). Under Gen. Wood's administration he was secretary of public instruction. He is an author and newspaper man and president of the Conservative party, which won the recent elections.

Cosme de la Torriente, secretary of state, is the vice president of the Conservative party. At the time of the second American intervention he was Cuban minister to Spain, a position he resigned.

Fought Chicken Fighting.

Cristobal de la Guardia, secretary of justice, is the only member of the cabinet who has no war record. In 1898 he made an unsuccessful effort to organize a labor party. As a senator he made a strong fight against the lottery, chicken fighting and jai-alai. His selection for the portfolio of justice is considered an excellent one.

Col. Aurelic Hevia, secretary of the interior, was one of Gen. Callxto Garcia's expedition which embarked on the Hawkins for Cuba and when that vessel sank off the Jersey coast he narrowly escaped with his life. During the first intervention he was assistant secretary of state. Since 1906 he has practiced as a lawyer.

Leopoldo n Cancio, secretary of the treasury, has been a cabinet minister several times. He assisted in the preparation of the reciprocity treaty with the United States in 1903.

Invented Dynamite Gun.

Jose Ramon Villalon, secretary of public works, was graduated in 1889 from Lehigh university, where he obtained his degree of civil engineer. While in the United States, prior to joining Gen. Maceo, he built the first dynamite gun ever used in the world, and employed it in the operations in Cuba. He is a professor of mathematics in the University of Havana and a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and the American Institute of Mining Engineers.

Gen. Emilio Nunez, secretary of agriculture, commerce and labor, has been president of the national council of veterans for two terms. After the treaty of San Juan—1878—he went to the United States, residing in Philadelphia for years. Five of his six children were born in the states.

Ezequiol Garcia, the secretary of public instruction, is professor of literature in the University of Havana.

Enrique Nunez, secretary of public health, was graduated from the University of Havana in 1886, and as a surgeon in 1893.

ESSAD, DEFENDER OF SCUTARI, MURDERED

Assassination May Be the Work of Gen. Hassan's Relatives.

Vienna, May 20.—Essad Pasha, who commanded the Turks at Scutari throughout the siege, has been murdered at Tirana, according to reports which have reached the Albanians at Trieste, says a dispatch to the Reichspost from that city.

Tirana is where Essad Pasha marched with many thousands of Turkish troops after the evacuation of Scutari and formed a provisional Albanian government.

It is thought the murder may be the result of a blood vendetta carried out by relatives of Gen. Hassan Riza Pasha, who preceded Essad as commandant at Scutari, and whose death was laid to Essad Pasha.

CUT WAGES TO KILL EIGHT-HOUR PLAN

Illinois Manufacturers Will Give Only Starvation Pay.

Chicago, May 20.—A cut to the starvation point in the wages of women workers in Illinois, provided an 8-hour law is passed, was threatened in open hearing before the state senate subcommittee on labor yesterday. A committee of the state senate has such a bill under consideration.

As an alternative the manufacturers predicted a general exodus of industry and commerce to other states more friendly toward employers from all parts of the state, who applauded vigorously as every point was registered.

Admission that the present 10-hour law is being openly violated by employers who find it cheaper to pay occasional fines than to obey were made by employers in the course of the hearing.

Says Women Like Long Day.

D. E. Prescott of the Burson Knitting mills of Rockford, told of the circumstances under which a petition signed by his women employes had been prepared. This document stated that the women employes of that company would prefer to work ten hours per day rather than eight hours. He admitted that the petition had been typewritten in the office of the company and duplicates passed out to the department foremen, who gave it to the girl employes to sign. He denied that any coercion was used to obtain signatures. He said that the girls understood that their wages would be cut 20 per cent if an eight-hour law should go into effect, and that they preferred present hours without a reduction in pay to smaller wages and shorter hours.

A. B. McCall of Gibson City, representing the fruit canning industry, said he would seek an exemption from any limitation in hours of work for women that the legislature might pass. He said it was his present practice to ignore the 10-hour law and pay any fine that might be assessed against him because of the violation. He declared it impossible to get enough girls to handle a ripening crop, and that it is necessary to work long hours to keep it from spoiling.

KERN RESOLUTION TO COMMITTEE.

Washington, May 20.—After more than a week of debate the senate referred to the education and labor committee Senator Kern's resolution for a Federal investigation of conditions in the West Virginia coal fields. Senator Kern announced on the floor before the viva voce vote was taken that an agreement had been reached to refer the resolution, and it was understood that the committee would report it out within a few days. It will then come before the senate for final action.

Senators opposed to the resolution believed tonight that they had won a partial victory and that they had no reason to give up hope.

TEST WISCONSIN UPPER BERTH LAW.

Washington, May 20.—Whether states have the right under the Federal Constitution to enact a law prohibiting the "making down" of sleeping car berths before they are actually sold, will be passed upon by the supreme court of the United States.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad company has filed an appeal from the action of the Wisconsin courts in upholding the validity of the Wisconsin law to this effect. The Wisconsin courts held that in the absence of Federal regulation on the point, the state could enforce the law.

Sailor Plans Long Paddle.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—Andrew Koehn, honorably discharged from the United States navy, has arrived on his way to begin his proposed row of 2,40 miles from Lake Itasca to the gulf of Mexico, traversing the entire course of the Mississippi. Koehn hopes to establish a record for long distance rowing. He expects to start from Itasca about June 15.

Lake to River Road Assured.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—That the lake-to-river highway between Milwaukee and St. Paul is assured and that it will be a big factor in promoting closer relations between the towns of Minnesota and Wisconsin, is the statement of Malcolm MacKinnin of Milwaukee, secretary of the Lake-to-river Road association, who is in St. Paul. Mr. MacKinnin, who has just completed a trip over the proposed route, declared today work would be begun in many localities at once.

Aunt Sally's Advice To Beauty Seekers

Lydia says: "I've tried most everything for my freckles, but can't lose them. What do you suggest?" See answer to "Stella." The treatment suggested I've never known to fail in any case of freckles or other cutaneous blemish.

P. J. K. asks: "Is there anything better than massage to remove wrinkles?" Too much massaging may aggravate a wrinkled condition, tending to soften and loosen the tissue. I advise bathing the face in an astringent lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This is remarkably effective.

Stella writes: "My complexion is horribly muddy. What shall I do for it?" Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's. Apply this nightly like you'd use cold cream, washing it off mornings. This will cause the offensive cuticle gradually to make way, by a process of gentle absorption, for the clear, velvety, healthy-hued skin underneath.—Woman's Realm.

Woman's Realm

Mrs. John J. Moe gave an interesting talk on "Women's Suffrage" at the meeting of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Norwegian-Danish M. E. church at the home of Miss Hilda Peterson, 11 North Twenty-fifth avenue west, last night. Mrs. Moe pointed out that giving women the right to vote would materially better the home surroundings.

In her talk she cited several reasons why women should have suffrage. She said that the United States constitution states "We the people of the United States are free and equal" and if people meant women, as well as men, then women, as well as men, have had the right of suffrage since 1776.

"Women, intellectually, are equal if not superior to men," she said. "Still our government does not give us the right to cast our choice for the men to fill the offices. It places women in the same class with idiots, children and newly arrived foreigners by refusing us the right of suffrage. The drunkard walking our streets holding a claim on citizenship can cast his vote, while the mother, whose every interest centers in her home and the welfare of her children cannot have any word in saying who shall or shall not be the officers of our city."

A general discussion followed the talk and all the members present gave their indorsement to the suffrage cause.

Amusements

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM — Kinemacolor Motion Pictures.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

Amusement Notes.

A change of program, both in the Kinemacolor and black and white pictures takes place at the Lyceum today. The Kinemacolor program consists of a Western novelty drama, "When a Woman Wills," with comedy climaxes taken amidst beautiful natural scenery, which Kinemacolor alone realizes in all its gorgeous hues. A masterpiece of trick photography is "Golliwog's Motor Accident," which shows a motor car that is made of a boot. Golliwog comes to grief and most miraculously is preserved. Pathe's weekly No. 19 with scenes in Salamanca, N. Y.; Issy-Les-Moulineaux, France; New York, Seville, Spain; Spokane, Wash.; Stockholm, Sweden, and cartoons of Mutt and Jeff. A biograph comedy entitled, "The Coveted Prize," and an Edison drama, "Bill's Sweetheart," make up the rest of the program.

A story that commences in the weird, mysterious shadows of faraway India, and reaches its climax in the sunshine of rural England on the downs of Sussex—"Sussy-by-the-Sea"—this is the forecast for "The Witness for the Defense," the new play in which Blanche Bates will return here to the Lyceum for one night, Monday, May 26.

An experience never to be forgotten befell the lot of Bruce Richardson while playing in an Eastern city. The street scene carried by Mr. Richardson, representing a row of tenement houses, had scarcely touched the floor when a man in the audience arose, climbed over the orchestra rail on to the stage, scanned the row and demanded to know who had the rental of those houses. His peculiar actions set the whole house roaring with laughter. The stage hands yelled at him to "Get off the stage; get off!" but the more they yelled the more he threw his arms around, made faces and jumped up and down until the audience was screaming with hysterical laughter. Just as the tear-bedimmed spectators settled down for an all-night laugh, two gentlemen walked from opposite sides of the stage. They stood and eyed him for a minute. Their piercing gaze seemed to paralyze his speech, for he stopped instantly; looking from one to the other the two men approached him quietly, each took an arm, and with the submission of a timid child he was led from the stage and returned to the ward for harmless incurables. Not one in the audience even dreamed of the man's condition. So when Mr. Richardson appeared laughter had so permeated their systems that "Moving Day" was a bigger hit than ever. Bruce Richardson and company are making quite a hit with their sketch at the Empress this week.

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

Housekeeping Should Be Pleasure to the Modern Woman.

Nowadays, so far as I can see, there is no reason why housekeeping should not be a real pleasure to the average American woman. Many women make drudgery of it, largely because they do not use their heads to save their feet and hands. Modern science, domestic and otherwise, has lent itself toward making house-keeping easier, just as it has improved other branches of human activity.

Any work is drudgery or pleasure in accordance with the spirit which is brought to the doing of it. The woman who puts pride, interest, love for home and family, enthusiasm and cheerfulness into her daily tasks, is pretty apt to enjoy her work, and to find that, which to many others, is mere drudgery, the source of real pleasure. On the other hand, when a woman looks forward to the day's routine with dread, and sees in it only one more day of doing the same thing over again, she will find it just that way.

The first woman is pretty apt to be one who will plan her work, and make her head save her feet and hands. She will have a want list to save her mind from worries, and she will have all the routine activities of the household done upon a strict schedule—a certain day for this and another for that, and she will keep her house clean all the time, instead of having to worry over the semi-annual bugaboo of "housecleaning." She can do this, too, with the modern vacuum cleaning or even without it—with the modern fashion of using rugs and hard floors, instead of carpets with straw and papers underneath to catch the dust of two whole seasons.

I guess I am a bit old-fashioned—at least from the standpoint of some persons—but I still believe that a good housekeeper and home-maker is worth a dozen suffragette leaders in any community. Every woman's first duty is to her home and family, and if she discharges them aright, her obligations to society will be pretty well fulfilled. As I have said many times before, I want her to be advanced in thoughts and interests, and to be informed and interested as to what is going on, and to take a hand in works for the moral and spiritual uplift of the community; and most sensible women do all of these things.

But her first study should be of methods of making housekeeping interesting and attractive, and creating a home atmosphere that will keep her husband and children at home and make them love it better than anything else in the world.

FOR MEN

THE ONLY MEN'S SPECIALISTS

In the City of Duluth for More Than 20 Years

We have cured hundreds of men who have long suffered a gradual decline of physical and mental energy as result of ailments. Our success in curing difficult cases of long standing has made us the foremost specialists in treating men's disorders. This success is due to several things. It is due to the study we have given our specialty; to our having ascertained the exact nature of men's ailments, and to the original, distinctive and thoroughly scientific methods of treatment we employ.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

is sweeping thousands of young and middle-aged men into a premature grave. Early indiscretions, EXCESSES, ABUSES and BLOOD DISEASES are the causes. Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy? Specks before your eyes? Dark circles under them? Weak back, irritable kidneys? Palpitation of heart, are bashful? Have debilitating dreams, sediment in urine, pimples on face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careless, distrustful, lack of energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, hair loss, etc.? We CAN CURE YOU AND MAKE A MAN OF YOU.

RHEUMATISM, STOMACH TROUBLES.

We offer any man with rheumatism $500 if we fail to cure him. Have swollen joints, pain in back, lithic acid urine, with brickdust-like sediment, burning at times and kidneys wrong? That is a sign of uric acid diathesis you have stored up into your body; poisons and bad digestion may be at fault, a bad stomach and constipation. Your blood will be loaded with poisons which the organs should carry off. If you fail to cure this condition you will have to pay with many a year of dear life for it.

NEW VITALITY.

There is today no excuse for any man remaining weak. The vital, manly man is admired by all men as well as all women; there is an influence about him no one can resist; he knows no fear; he knows no weakness; he knows no result of debility. It is the same VITALITY which carries our young soldiers to war without thought of death. Vitality, reader, is what you MUST have if you would enjoy a life of health, strength and manly vigor. I can give you this same life and vitality; if I can do what I am doing for thousands of others I can put the vigor of youth into your blood and nerves; I can make you feel young again and keep you feeling young; I can drive away all debility, weakness and despondency. You will laugh at trouble; you will tackle obstacles with the vim to win, just as all other hearty, vital men may do. I don't ask you to use drugs, I ask no change in your present mode of living; all I ask is to come to our office and let us fill your body with new power, to dissolve disease poisons and liberate your system from poison. If everybody else failed to cure you of these troubles, we won't, we will cure you. Consulting free from 9 to 8; Sunday, 10 to 1. Ask for free instruction books.

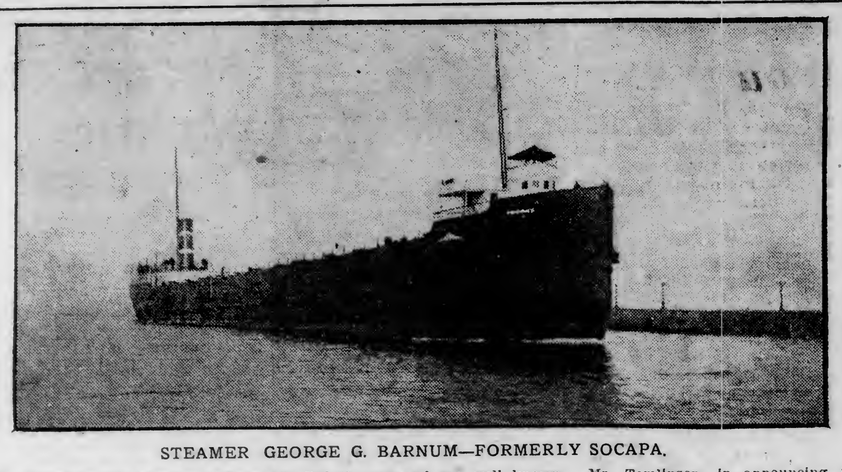
TWO DULUTH MEN HONORED BY CHANGE IN NAMES OF STEAMERS



STEAMER GEORGE G. BARNUM—FORMERLY SOCAPA.

The names of the steamers Sahara and Socapa, both of the Tomlinson fleet, have been changed to Cuyler Adams and George G. Barnum, respectively.

G. A. Tomlinson, president of the Globe Steamship company of Duluth, owners of the steamer Sahara, and the Superior Steamship company, owners of the steamer Socapa, announced the change in names this morning. Special notice has been filed of the change in accordance with the navigation laws.

Cuyler Adams and George G. Barnum are Duluth men and are well known throughout this section of the country. The former is well known as one of the early operators on the Cuyuna range and is one of the heaviest holders of mining property in this state. He is now making his home at Deerwood.

Mr. Barnum is secretary of the Barnum Grain company of Duluth and also one of the principal holders in the Washburn-Crosby company of Minneapolis. He is one of the veteran grain men in Duluth and among the most prominent on the local exchange.

Mr. Tomlinson, in announcing the change of names this morning, stated that he chose Mr. Adams and Mr. Barnum because they aided in building Duluth.

The steamer Sahara was built in 1904. It has a gross tonnage of 5,785 tons and net tonnage of 4,497 tons. W. C. Jones is its master and S. K. Kissack, chief engineer.

The Socapa was built in 1905 and is in command of Capt. W. G. Maltby and L. Vanderberg, chief engineer. Her gross tonnage is 6,272 tons and net tonnage 4,826 tons.

CANADIAN TWINS SHIPPED MORE THAN 100,000,000 BUSHELS OF GRAIN DURING YEAR ENDING MAY 1

Consular Agent George H. Freeman of Fort William Ont., has issued a review of the grain situation at the Canadian Head of the Lakes for the year ending May 1, 1913, which gives some interesting facts.

The review follows in part:

When navigation officially opened on April 24, 1913, there were in elevators, on steamers and in cars on tracks at Fort William and Port Arthur over 42,750,000 bushels of grain awaiting transportation, some of which was on steamers that had left the harbor on the opening of navigation of Thunder bay within the six prior days. Competent authority estimates that the amount of grain in the hands of farmers of Western Canada waiting for transportation facilities was in April approximately 25,000,000 bushels. From reliable information received the amount of grain then in the Western country elevators awaiting cars for transportation was about 20,000,000 bushels. This made 87,000,000 bushels in sight. Grain in the elevators and vessels loaded at Port Arthur and Fort William ready for navigation was slightly in excess of 25,000,000 bushels. This left an enormous quantity waiting for room in the elevators here, in cars, in country elevators and in hands of the farmers. With the opening of navigation this congestion began to be relieved.

When full, the terminal elevators at Port Arthur and Fort William will hold approximately 30,000,000 bushels of grain, but owing to the different grades of grain and its condition, this total capacity is hadly ever reached. There are eleven terminal elevators in Fort William and Port Arthur, all within a distance of nine miles and with splendid harbor frontage. One of these terminal elevators is now increasing its capacity by 750,000 bushels. Another is being constructed that will have a capacity of 5,000,000 bushels. A contract has been let for another elevator with a capacity of 750,000 bushels. Others are in contemplation. The contemplated plans for the present operating elevator call for the enlargement to a total capacity of 70,000,000 bushels. With the new ones stated, this may reach 80,000,000 bushels. One of the plans is for an increased capacity of 32,000,000 bushels, so that it will in time hold 40,000,000 bushels.

The grain shipped from Port Arthus and Fort William for the season of 1912 was as follows:

RAIN CAUSES FURTHER DELAY

Interferes With Loading at Ore Docks—Big Fleet Still Waiting.

Today's rain is increasing the congestion at the local ore docks.

Most of the boats at the ore docks are not loading at all today because of the rain and as a result the congestion is expected to increase considerably within the next twelve hours. There were fifteen ore boats waiting at the Allouez dock alone yesterday noon, while a similar congestion was reported at the other docks.

Although twenty-four boats have left since yesterday noon loaded with ore cargoes, the congestion has been but little alleviated owing to the arrival of twelve more during the same time. The boats are continually arriving and with very little loading going on today, a more serious condition than yesterday is expected before night.

Inquiries were received from the East yesterday for grain and it is expected that some heavy shipments will be made before the week is over. Conditions at Buffalo are much improved and boat owners are expected to accept the offers within the next day or two. They have been demanding guarantees before accepting cargoes.

The coal movement is exceptionally good at present, large fleets arriving here daily from the East. Six boats have arrived since yesterday noon.

The steamer Pennington arrived yesterday afternoon and was towed to the Superior shipyards, where she will undergo repairs to her hull.

The steamer America of the Booth line will arrive this afternoon and will make one more trip to the north shore returning to Duluth Friday noon. She will leave at 5 o'clock Friday for her first trip to Ashland.

NO CHANGES IN INSPECTION SERVICE.

Washington, May 20.—Announcement has been made by Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce, after conference with President Wilson, that he has no intention at present of making changes in the personnel of the steamboat inspection service in any section of the United States.

Lumber Receipts.

Tonawonda, N. Y., May 20.—During the first fifteen days of May a total of 10,510,000 feet of lumber was unloaded at Tonawanda. A large part of the stock was hemlock, of which nearly 2,000,000 feet were for the Rochester Box company of Rochester.

The Eastern Lumber company has chartered five lumber carriers of the O. A. Blodgett fleet to bring lumber here. The company has over 40,000,000 feet at Cloquet, Minn., to be brought here this summer, and, in order to get down, other boats will have to be chartered. The company received nearly 2,000,000 feet of stock last week.

But little pulpwood will be received this season for the Niagara Falls Paper company, unless tonnage is available. Reports from Seven Isles, Que., were to the effect that but one vessel has been chartered, and that the company has been unable to get other boats, because the channel here will permit a draught of only fourteen feet. Unless boats can be chartered, the pulpwood will be shipped by rail.

MAY CONSOLIDATE LAKE WATER SUITS.

Washington, May 20.—Secretary Garrison of the war department has asked the attorney general to consolidate the two government suits dealing with the question of the Chicago drainage canal, for which, it is claimed, more water is being taken from Lake Michigan than can be spared without damage to navigation.

The secretary took this action after he had been informed by the attorney general that it would take no longer to reach a decision in the case by having the suits combined than if only one was presented.

SAYS ICE IS STILL HEAVY IN MIDLAKE.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 20.—Capt. Fred Bernier of the United States lighthouse tender Marigold, which arrived here yesterday from Duluth, describes ice conditions as the worst he ever has seen at this time of the year, with no prospect of it clearing away before June 1.

He reports Lake Superior full of ice from Ontonagon up past the Apostle islands. Ice fields necessitate vessels moving with caution. There practically is no ice from the Soo to Marquette and very little from Marquette to Ontonagon, but from there to the Head of the Lakes the ice is extensive.

Placing Buoys.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 20.—The United States lighthouse tender Crocus arrived in Buffalo Saturday morning and began work immediately placing the buoys in the Buffalo harbor and at this end of the lake. The Crocus, in charge of Capt. Fred Herbert, has been busy during the past few weeks placing the buoys in Lake Erie. The work at this end of the lake completes the work for the vessel this season.

Changes on Channels.

Capt. Albert Swenson of the United States hydrographic office has received notice of the following lake and river changes from the United States bureau of lighthouses:

St. Clair river—St. Clair flats canal east pierhead light to be established about June 10, 1913; to be an occulting white light, of about 55 candle power, twenty-nine feet above water, on a red cylindrical structure, on a concrete foundation, five yards from westerly edge of revetment. Illuminating apparatus to be a lens lantern burning oil gas; light will be unwatched.

Detroit river—Waterworks intake crib light established; a group flashing white light forty feet above water to mark intake crib at head of Belle Isle. It shows two flashes every fifteen seconds. Illuminant is acetylene and light is unwatched.

Lake Michigan—Straits of Mackinac—New shoal gas and bell buoy No. 3 has been established on station formerly occupied by new shoal gas buoy No. 3, which was then discontinued; no other change.

Straits of Mackinac—White Shoal Light Station—Submarine bell to be temporarily discontinued, from May 21 to June 11, 1913, on account of repairs.

ALONG THE LAKES

Detroit, Mich., May 20. — The tug Premier, towing the steamer Ionica of the Northern Navigation fleet, Sarnia to Midland is aground off Lions Head, Lake Huron. Tugs have been sent from Midland to release her. The Ionica kept off the shore.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 20. — The steamers Millinokett and Durston were in collision Sunday. When the Millinokett was going out of the narrow Menomonee river she struck the Durston. Neither ship was seriously damaged. They will make repairs later.

Officials of the Hill Steamboat line of Waukegan, Ill., are reported to be planning to place an order for a modern steel passenger and freight carrier 200 feet long for the Chicago, Waukegan & Kenosha route.

Owing to there being another older vessel of the same name, the name of the tug Active, owned by John Fraser, dredgeman of Amherstburg has been changed to Charley Gale. The craft was formerly a fish tug at Lorain.

The repairs to the steamer W. S. Mack in drydock at Ashtabula, will consist of a new rudder, three plates on the starboard side, reroiled and a straightened shoe.

AUXILIARY TO HOLD MEMORIAL EXERCISES.

The Sons' of Veterans auxiliary will hold its memorial exercises tomorrow evening at the Memorial hall of the courthouse. Plans will be made to take a prominent part in the joint services to be held next week.

On Friday, this week, several of the members of the auxiliary will visit local schools. Among the women who will speak to the children are Mrs. A. J. Stark, Mrs. E. F. Heller, Mrs. William Beaton, Mrs. E. A. Huot, Miss Ella Foster, and Miss M. Budden.

VINCENT SEES OPPORTUNITY

President of Minnesota University Enthusiastic Over Extension Course.

Says People Are Ready to Welcome Courses Brought to Them.

President Vincent of the University of Minnesota, who is in Duluth today, is enthusiastic regarding the university extension work.

"Duluth holds all the advantages for this sort of work that are to be found in St. Paul and Minneapolis," said President Vincent. "Also the proximity to the range is to the advantage to the course we have planned.

"While I dislike to anticipate the university extension work with the blare of trumpets, at the same time I feel very sanguine that a splendid success is going to be achieved. This work has been made a great success in our neighboring state of Wisconsin, and it seems that the stage has been properly set for it in our own state.

"In this work the university is made a sort of clearing house of education. We shall expect the co-operation of teachers here, practical business men and engineers. Experience and study have taught us that the business and engineering courses are the ones most in demand. These shall be started at the first. Later as we see the demand for other courses they shall be added.

"There should be many students from the range, and engineers connected with some of the large industries there should give valuable assistance toward making the course very valuable to the students.

"In Wisconsin the people have been quick to perceive the value of the interest of the university in their educational welfare, and the authorities of the university have likewise been very alert along progressive lines. We are endeavoring to make the University of Minnesota a valuable aid to those wishing to be benefited by it, and we believe that this work has been more or less prepared for during the past years, and that it will be able to accomplish greater good at the present time than would have been the case some years ago. The people have been prepared for it and are apparently eager to co-operate with us."

CORNER STONE OF NEW CHURCH

St. Mark's African Methodist Congregation Will Complete Building.

Next Sunday afternoon the congregation of the St. Mark's African M. E. church will lay the corner stone to its new church at the corner of Fifth avenue east and Sixth street. A special program has been prepared for the occasion.

The festivities will start at 2:30 o'clock, with an address by Rev. T. Tyler, pastor of the church. The corner stone laying will be in charge of the local lodge of colored Odd Fellows. A short service will be held in the basement of the new church.

The basement of the new edifice was completed several years ago and has been used by the congregation ever since. During the past winter enough money was raised to insure the construction of the building and negotiations were immediately started for the building of the superstructure. It is planned to have the structure finished by August.

The congregation of the African M. E. church was organized about twenty years ago and up to five years ago a small frame structure was used for the service. The new building is of brick and the total cost is estimated at $5,000.

Rev. Mr. Tyler took charge of the local pastorate last October.

SHOE MACHINERY CASE IS ON TRIAL

Eleven Companies and Twenty-Three Individuals Are Defendants.

Boston, May 20.—The trial of the government suit to dissolve the United Shoe Machinery company was begun in the United States district court here today. Eleven corporations and twenty-three individuals are defendants. They are charged with entering into contracts, combinations and conspiracies in restraint of trade for the purpose of effecting a monopoly in the manufacture of shoe machinery in violation of the Sherman law.

The company's machinery is leased to manufacturers, and not sold outright. Although there is said to be nothing in the terms of the leases requiring shoe manufacturers to use only the United Shoe company's machines, the government has contended that the effect of the leases is to bring about the exclusive use of the company's machines.

James A. Fowler, assistant to United States Attorney General McReynolds, came from Washington to direct the prosecution.

CINCINNATI CAR STRIKE SETTLED

Men Win Union Recognition and an Advance in Wages.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 20.—The suit of the city of Cincinnati for the appointment of a receiver for the Cincinnati Traction company was dismissed in the common pleas court today, after City Solicitor Bettman had informed the court that the street car strike had been settled and the purpose of the suit accomplished. Street car service was resumed on all lines today.

The two arbitrators named to take up the questions to be arbitrated met today to select a third member. The agreement provides that in case they failed to agree upon a man, the selection should be left to the state board of arbitration and conciliation.

Union Is Recognized.

The street car men won the vital point for which they were contending —recognition of their recently formed union—but in return conceded the "open shop" principle whereby the company will be allowed to employ non-union workers. The company also pledges itself to an increase of wages to all union and non-union employes without discrimination, but the amount of the increase is subject to arbitration.

The union also won the point that all the old employes shall return to work. There are many other clauses in the document signed last night by traction officials and leaders of the union. There now remains but the formality of having it indorsed by the directors of the company and by vote of the union.

POISONED BANKER MAY GET WELL YET

Walker's Case Puzzles Physicians Who Are Treating Him.

Macon, Ga., May 20.—The case of B. Sanders Walker, the young banker who last Wednesday swallowed a seven-grain bichloride of mercury tablet, mistaking it for a headache remedy, is puzzling his physicians. The condition of Mr. Walker early today was unchanged and his physicians said there were indications that he might recover. He suffers no pain, and is conscious.

Water is being given the patient intravenously. A pint of olive oil is given him every twelve hours, and the patient is kept in steaming blankets to eliminate acid. The kidneys are responding to treatment.

ELOPER HELD AS MOTHER'S SLAYER.

Camden, N. J., May 20.—Her skull crushed by an ax, the body of Mrs. Mary Prondero, 40 years old, was discovered in her home by her 11-year-old daughter on her return from school. The house had been ransacked and $160, the savings of the family, had been taken from its hiding place.

Late last night Mary Prondero, 18, another daughter of the murdered woman, and Dominic Eonkart, 21, the girl's sweetheart, were taken to police headquarters. The police had learned that Mrs. Prondero had forbidden Eonkart to continue his attentions to her daughter and that the couple had disappeared yesterday. They were found in a house some distance from the scene of the murder. Both denied any knowledge of the crime.

WAR RISKS ON COAL TO MANILA.

London, May 20.—There were many inquiries on the insurance market yesterday respecting rates to cover the risks of war on coal sent to American consignees at Manila. Rates varying from 5 to 20s for three months were quoted. To cover property on the California coast against the risk of a Japanese bombardment 5s per cent for a year was quoted.

MANY CITIES WANT MEETING.

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 20.—Buffalo, St. Paul, Columbus and St. Louis are competing in lively fashion for the 1914 session of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Tin and Steel Workers, which is rushing the work of its annual convention to a close in this city. It hopes to finish the work Thursday.

Reports submitted today set forth a membership gain of 46 per cent in the last year, and plans are under way for still further increasing the total during the coming year.

Illinois Village Scorched.

Paris, Ill., May 20.—Fire, originating in the Brinkerhoff elevator, destroyed the entire west portion of the village of Redmon, ten miles west of this city, early this morning. The loss will approximate $100,000, including the elevator, lumber yard, Vandalia depot, several stores and a number of residences.

DEMONSTRATION OF PULMOTOR

Commissioners See Resuscitating Device in Operation at City Hall.

Demonstrations of the workings of the pulmotor were given at the city hall this morning for Commissioner Hicken, head of the division of public safety, who is planning to have one provided for use under the direction of the police department. Other members of the commission and city employes were interested spectators.

The simplicity of the apparatus was clearly brought out. It can be attached in a moment or two and regulates itself automatically. When the machine is working it artificially restores respiration, pumps out the lungs and fills them with oxygen.

The invention has been the means of saving many lives, and has been found invaluable in other cities which have secured them. One has been in use at the plant of the Zenith Furnace company at West Duluth, and it has given excellent service. It resuscitates men who have been nearly drowned, electrocuted, overcome by gas, etc.

As the cost is comparatively small, $150, there is little question but what one will shortly be in the possession of the city. It will be kept at the police station with the new Peerless patrol and emergency ambulance, ready for use day or night at a minute's notice. Any of the men attached to the headquarters detail can become familiar with the method of using it in a short time.

DENVER ELECTING COMMISSIONERS.

Denver, Colo., May 20.—Lowering skies reduced considerably the usual number of voters at the polls when balloting began at 7 o'clock this morning in Denver's first municipal election to choose five commissioners and an auditor. The registration is placed at approximately 65,000. The polls will close at 7 o'clock tonight.

PLACED ON TRIAL ON ROBBERY CHARGE.

John Miller was brought to trial in Judge Dancer's court this morning on a charge of first degree robbery. An indictment which was returned by the May grand jury accuses him of having on the night of March 5 held up and robbed Gust Johnson, woodsman, of $37, a watch and a knife. The hold-up is alleged to have taken place on Michigan street near the union station. Miller is said to have had an accomplice, who escaped from the police.

HOMESTEADER FOUND DEAD NEAR BAGLEY.

Bagley, Minn., May 20.—The body of John A. Lindgren, a bachelor homesteader, aged 50 years, was found in his shack just west of Bagley Sunday afternoon. It is supposed he died several months ago. The coroner could find no indications of violence, and decided the man died of heart disease.

FOR MEN
THE ONLY MEN'S SPECIALISTS
In the City of Duluth for More Than 20 Years

We have cured hundreds of men who have been suffering a gradual decline of physical and mental energy as result of ailments. Our success in curing difficult cases of long standing has made us the foremost specialists in treating men's diseases. This success is due to two things. It is due to the years we have given our specialty; and having ascertained the exact cause of men's ailments, and to original, distinctive and thoroughly scientific methods of treatment we employ.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Is wrecking thousands of young and middle aged men into a premature grave. Early indiscretions, EXCESSES ABUSES and BLOOD DISEASES are the causes. Are you weak and weak, despondent and see specks before your eyes? Suffer from lumbar pains? Weak back, irritable kidneys? Palpitation of heart, are bashful? Have debilitating dreams, sediment in urine, pimples on face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careless, distrustful, lack of energy and strength, tired feelings, restless nights, changeable moods, hair loss, etc.? We CAN CURE YOU AND MAKE A MAN OF YOU.

RHEUMATISM, STOMACH TROUBLES.

We offer any man with rheumatism (or) if we fail to cure him. Have swollen joints, pain in back, stiffness in arms, with brick-dust-like sediment, burning at times and kidneys wrong? That is a sign of uric acid diathesis you have stored up in your body; poisons and bad digestion may be at fault, a bad stomach and constipation. Your blood will be loaded with poisons which the organs should carry off. If you fail to cure this condition you will have to pay with many a year of dear life for it.

NEW VITALITY.

There is today no excuse for any man remaining weak. The vital, manly man is admired by all men as well as all women; there is an influence about him no one can resist, he knows no fear; he knows no weakness, he knows no result of inability. It is the same VITALITY which carries our young soldiers to or without thought of death. Vitality, reader, is what you MUST have if you would enjoy a life of health, strength and manly vigor. I can give you this same life and vitality, if I can do what I am doing for thousands of others I can put the vigor of youth into your blood and nerves; I can make you feel young again and keep you feeling young. I can drive away all debility, weakness and despondency. You will laugh at trouble; you will tackle obstacles with the vim to win, just as all other hearty, vital men may do. I don't ask you to use drugs. I ask no change in your present mode of living; all I ask is to come to our office and let us fill your body with new power, to dissolve disease poisons and liberate your system from poison. If everybody else failed to cure you of these troubles, we won't, we will cure you. Consulting free from 9 to 8; Sunday, 10 to 1. Ask for free instruction books.

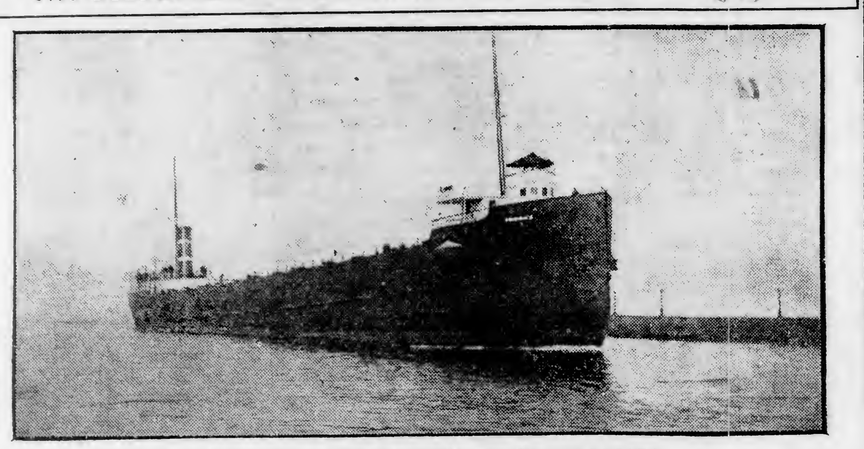
TWO DULUTH MEN HONORED BY CHANGE IN NAMES OF STEAMERS



STEAMER GEORGE G. BARNUM—FORMERLY SOCAPA.

The names of the steamers Sahara and Socapa, both of the Tomlinson fleet, have been changed to Cuyler Adams and George G. Barnum, respectively.

G. A. Tomlinson, president of the Globe Steamship company of Duluth, owners of the steamer Sahara, and the Superior Steamship company, owners of the steamer Socapa, announced the change in names this morning. Special notice has been filed of the change in accordance with the navigation laws.

Cuyler Adams and George G. Barnum are Duluth men and are well known throughout this section of the country. The former is well known as one of the early operators on the Cuyuna range and is one of the heaviest holders of mining property in this state. He is now making his home at Deerwood.

Mr. Barnum is secretary of the Barnum Grain company of Duluth and also one of the principal holders in the Washburn-Crosby company of Minneapolis. He is one of the veteran grain men in Duluth and among the most prominent on the local exchange.

Mr. Tomlinson, in announcing the change of names this morning, stated that he chose Mr. Adams and Mr. Barnum because they aided in building Duluth.

The steamer Sahara was built in 1904. It has a gross tonnage of 5,785 tons and net tonnage of 4,497 tons. W. C. Jones is its master and S. K. Kisack, chief engineer.

The Socapa was built in 1905 and is in command of Capt. W. G. Maltby and L. Vanderberg, chief engineer. Her gross tonnage is 6,272 tons and net tonnage 4,826 tons.

CANADIAN TWINS SHIPPED MORE THAN 100,000,000 BUSHELS OF GRAIN DURING YEAR ENDING MAY 1

Consular Agent George H. Freeman of Fort William Ont., has issued a review of the grain situation at the Canadian Head of the Lakes for the year ending May 1, 1913, which gives some interesting facts.

The review follows in part:

When navigation officially opened on April 24, 1913, there were in elevators, on steamers and in cars on tracks at Fort William and Port Arthur over 42,750,000 bushels of grain awaiting transportation, some of which was on steamers that had left the harbor on the opening of navigation of Thunder bay within the six prior days. Competent authority estimates that the amount of grain in the hands of farmers of Western Canada waiting for transportation facilities was in April approximately 25,000,000 bushels. From reliable information received the amount of grain then in the Western country elevators awaiting cars for transportation was about 20,000,000 bushels. This made 87,000,000 bushels in sight. Grain in the elevators and vessels loaded at Port Arthur and Fort William ready for navigation was slightly in excess of 25,000,000 bushels. This left an enormous quantity waiting for room in the elevators here, in cars, in country elevators and in hands of the farmers. With the opening of navigation this congestion began to be relieved.

When full, the terminal elevators at Port Arthur and Fort William will hold approximately 30,000,000 bushels of grain, but owing to the different grades of grain and its condition, this total capacity is hadly ever reached. There are eleven terminal elevators in Fort William and Port Arthur, all within a distance of nine miles and with splendid harbor frontage. One of these terminal elevators is now increasing its capacity by 750,000 bushels. Another is being constructed that will have a capacity of 5,000,000 bushels. A contract has been let for another elevator with a capacity of 750,000 bushels. Others are in contemplation. The contemplated plans for the present operating elevator call for the enlargement to a total capacity of 70,000,000 bushels. With the new ones stated, this may reach 80,000,000 bushels. One of the plans is for an increased capacity of 32,000,000 bushels, so that it will in time hold 40,000,000 bushels.

The grain shipment from Port Arthus and Fort William for the season of 1912 was as follows:

	To United States. Bushels.	To Canadian Ports. Bushels.

RAIN CAUSES FURTHER DELAY

Interferes With Loading at Ore Docks—Big Fleet Still Waiting.

Today's rain is increasing the congestion at the local ore docks.

Most of the boats at the ore docks are not loading at all today because of the rain and as a result the congestion is expected to increase considerably within the next twelve hours. There were fifteen ore boats waiting at the Allouez dock alone yesterday noon, while a similar congestion was reported at the other docks.

Although twenty-four boats have left since yesterday noon loaded with ore cargoes, the congestion has been but little alleviated owing to the arrival of twelve more during the same time. The boats are continually arriving and with very little loading going on today, a more serious condition than yesterday is expected before night.

Inquiries were received from the East yesterday for grain and it is expected that some heavy shipments will be made before the week is over. Conditions at Buffalo are much improved and boat owners are expected to accept the offers within the next day or two. They have been demanding guarantees before accepting cargoes.

The coal movement is exceptionally good at present, large fleets arriving here daily from the East. Six boats have arrived since yesterday noon.

The steamer Pennington arrived yesterday afternoon and was towed to the Superior shipyards, where she will undergo repairs to her hull.

The steamer America of the Booth line will arrive this afternoon and will make one more trip to the north shore returning to Duluth Friday noon. She will leave at 5 o'clock Friday for her first trip to Ashland.

NO CHANGES IN INSPECTION SERVICE.

Washington, May 20.—Announcement has been made by Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce, after conference with President Wilson, that he has no intention at present of making changes in the personnel of the steamboat inspection service in any section of the United States.

Lumber Receipts.

Tonawonda, N. Y., May 20.—During the first fifteen days of May a total of 10,510,000 feet of lumber was unloaded at Tonawanda. A large part of the stock was hemlock, of which nearly 2,000,000 feet were for the Rochester Box company of Rochester.

The Eastern Lumber company has chartered five lumber carriers of the O. A. Blodgett fleet to bring lumber here. The company has over 40,000,000 feet at Cloquet, Minn., to be brought here this summer, and, in order to get down, other boats will have to be chartered. The company received nearly 2,000,000 feet of stock last week.

But little pulpwood will be received this season for the Niagara Falls Paper company, unless tonnage is available. Reports from Seven Isles, Que., were to the effect that but one vessel has been chartered, and that the company has been unable to get other boats, because the channel there will permit a draught of only fourteen feet. Unless boats can be chartered, the pulpwood will be shipped by rail.

MAY CONSOLIDATE LAKE WATER SUITS.

Washington, May 20.—Secretary Garrison of the war department has asked the attorney general to consolidate the two government suits dealing with the question of the Chicago drainage canal, for which, it is claimed, more water is being taken from Lake Michigan than can be spared without damage to navigation.

The secretary took this action after he had been informed by the attorney general that it would take no longer to reach a decision in the case by having the suits combined than if only one was presented.

SAYS ICE IS STILL HEAVY IN MIDLAKE.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 20.—Capt. Fred Bernier of the United States lighthouse tender Marigold, which arrived here yesterday from Duluth, describes ice conditions as the worst he ever has seen at this time of the year, with no prospect of it clearing away before June 1.

He reports Lake Superior full of ice from Ontonagon up past the Apostle islands. Ice fields necessitate vessels moving with caution. There practically is no ice from the Soo to Marquette and very little from Marquette to Ontonagon, but from there to the Head of the Lakes the ice is extensive.

Placing Buoys.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 20.—The United States lighthouse tender Crocus arrived in Buffalo Saturday morning and began work immediately placing the buoys in the Buffalo harbor and at this end of the lake. The Crocus, in charge of Capt. Fred Herbert, has been busy during the past few weeks placing the buoys in Lake Erie. The work at this end of the lake completes the work for the vessel this season.

Changes on Channels.

Capt. Albert Swenson of the United States hydrographic office has received notice of the following lake and river changes from the United States bureau of lighthouses:

St. Clair river—St. Clair flats canal east pierhead light to be established about June 10, 1913; to be an occulting white light, of about 55 candle power, twenty-nine feet above water, on a red cylindrical structure, on a concrete foundation, five yards from westerly edge of revetment. Illuminating apparatus to be a lens lantern burning oil gas; light will be unwatched.

Detroit river—Waterworks intake crib light established; a group flashing white light forty feet above water to mark intake crib at head of Belle isle. It shows two flashes every fifteen seconds. Illuminant is acetylene and light is unwatched.

Lake Michigan—Straits of Mackinac—New shoal gas and bell buoy No. 3 has been established on station formerly occupied by new shoal gas buoy No. 3, which was then discontinued; no other change.

Straits of Mackinac—White Shoal Light Station—Submarine bell to be temporarily discontinued, from May 21 to June 11, 1913, on account of repairs.

VINCENT SEES OPPORTUNITY

President of Minnesota University Enthusiastic Over Extension Course.

Says People Are Ready to Welcome Courses Brought to Them.

President Vincent of the University of Minnesota, who is in Duluth today, is enthusiastic regarding the university extension work.

"Duluth holds all the advantages for this sort of work that are to be found in St. Paul and Minneapolis," said President Vincent. "Also the proximity to the range is to the advantage to the course we have planned.

"While I dislike to anticipate the university extension work with the blare of trumpets, at the same time I feel very sanguine that a splendid success is going to be achieved. This work has been made a great success in our neighboring state of Wisconsin, and it seems that the stage has been properly set for it in our own state.

"In this work the university is made a sort of clearing house of education. We shall expect the co-operation of teachers here, practical business men and engineers. Experience and study have taught us that the business and engineering courses are the ones most in demand. These shall be started at the first. Later as we see the demand for other courses they shall be added.

"There should be many students from the range, and engineers connected with some of the large industries there should give valuable assistance toward making the course very valuable to the students.

"In Wisconsin the people have been quick to perceive the value of the interest of the university their educational welfare, and the authorities of the university have likewise been very alert along progressive lines. We are endeavoring to make the University of Minnesota a valuable aid to those wishing to be benefited by it, and we believe that this work has been more or less prepared for during the past years, and that it will be able to accomplish greater good at the present time than would have been the case some years ago. The people have been prepared for it and are apparently eager to co-operate with us."

CORNER STONE OF NEW CHURCH

St. Mark's African Methodist Congregation Will Complete Building.

Next Sunday afternoon the congregation of the St. Mark's African M. E. church will lay the corner stone to its new church at the corner of Fifth avenue east and Sixth street. A special program has been prepared for the occasion.

The festivities will start at 2:30 o'clock, with an address by Rev. T. Tyler, pastor of the church. The corner stone laying will be in charge of the local lodge of colored Odd Fellows. A short service will be held in the basement of the new church.

The basement of the new edifice was completed several years ago and has been used by the congregation ever since. During the past winter enough money was raised to insure the construction of the building and negotiations were immediately started for the building of the superstructure. It is planned to have the structure finished by August.

The congregation of the African M. E. church was organized about twenty years ago and up to five years ago a small frame structure was used for the service. The new building is of brick and the total cost is estimated at $5,000.

Rev. Mr. Tyler took charge of the local pastorate last October.

SHOE MACHINERY CASE IS ON TRIAL

Eleven Companies and Twenty-Three Individuals Are Defendants.

Boston, May 20.—The trial of the government suit to dissolve the United Shoe Machinery company was begun in the United States district court here today. Eleven corporations and twenty-three individuals are defendants. They are charged with entering into contracts, combinations and conspiracies in restraint of trade for the purpose of effecting a monopoly in the manufacture of shoe machinery in violation of the Sherman law.

The company's machinery is leased to manufacturers, and not sold outright. Although there is said to be nothing in the terms of the leases requiring shoe manufacturers to use only the United Shoe company's machines, the government has contended that the effect of the leases is to bring about the exclusive use of the company's machines.

James A. Fowler, assistant to United States Attorney General McReynolds, came from Washington to direct the prosecution.

CINCINNATI CAR STRIKE SETTLED

Men Win Union Recognition and an Advance in Wages.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 20.—The suit of the city of Cincinnati for the appointment of a receiver for the Cincinnati Traction company was dismissed in the common pleas court today, after City Solicitor Bettman had informed the court that the street car strike had been settled and the purpose of the suit accomplished. Street car service was resumed on all lines today.

The two arbitrators named to take up the questions to be arbitrated met today to select a third member. The agreement provides that in case they failed to agree upon a man, the selection should be left to the state board of arbitration and conciliation.

Union Is Recognized.

The street car men won the vital point for which they were contending—recognition of their recently formed union—but in return conceded the "open shop" principle whereby the company will be allowed to employ non-union workers. The company also pledges itself to an increase of wages to all union and non-union employes without discrimination, but the amount of the increase is subject to arbitration.

The union also won the point that all the old employes shall return to work. There are many other clauses in the document signed last night by traction officials and leaders of the union. There now remains but the formality of having it indorsed by the directors of the company and by vote of the union.

POISONED BANKER MAY GET WELL YET

Walker's Case Puzzles Physicians Who Are Treating Him.

Macon, Ga., May 20.—The case of B. Sanders Walker, the young banker who last Wednesday swallowed a seven-grain bichloride of mercury tablet, mistaking it for a headache remedy, is puzzling his physicians. The condition of Mr. Walker early today was unchanged and his physicians said there were indications that he might recover. He suffers no pain, and is conscious.

Water is being given the patient intravenously. A pint of olive oil is given him every twelve hours, and the patient is kept in steaming blankets to eliminate acid. The kidneys are responding to treatment.

ELOPER HELD AS MOTHER'S SLAYER.

Camden, N. J., May 20.—Her skull crushed by an ax, the body of Mrs. Mary Prondero, 40 years old, was discovered in her home by her 11-year-old daughter on her return from school. The house had been ransacked and $160, the savings of the family, had been taken from its hiding place.

Late last night Mary Prondero, 13, another daughter of the murdered woman, and Dominic Eonkart, 21, the girl's sweetheart, were taken to police headquarters. The police had learned that Mrs. Prondero had forbidden Eonkart to continue his attentions to her daughter and that the couple had disappeared yesterday. They were found in a house some distance from the scene of the murder. Both denied any knowledge of the crime.

DEMONSTRATION OF PULMOTOR

Commissioners See Resuscitating Device in Operation at City Hall.

Demonstrations of the workings of the pulmotor were given at the city hall this morning for Commissioner Hicken, head of the division of public safety, who is planning to have one provided for use under the direction of the police department. Other members of the commission and city employes were interested spectators.

The simplicity of the apparatus was clearly brought out. It can be attached in a moment or two and regulates itself automatically. When the machine is working it artificially restores respiration, pumps out the lungs and fills them with oxygen.

The invention has been the means of saving many lives, and has been found invaluable in other cities which have secured them. One has been in use at the plant of the Zenith Furnace company at West Duluth, and it has given excellent service. It resuscitates men who have been nearly drowned, electrocuted, overcome by gas, etc.

As the cost is comparatively small, $150, there is little question but what one will shortly be in the possession of the city. It will be kept at the police station with the new Peerless patrol and emergency ambulance, ready for use day or night at a minute's notice. Any of the men attached to the headquarters detail can become familiar with the method of using it in a short time.

PLACED ON TRIAL ON ROBBERY CHARGE.

John Miller was brought to trial in Judge Dancer's court this morning on a charge of first degree robbery. An indictment which was returned by the May grand jury accuses him of having on the night of March 8 held up and robbed Gust Johnson, woodsman, of $37, a watch and a knife. The hold-up is alleged to have taken place on Michigan street near the union station. Miller is said to have had an accomplice, who escaped from the police.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

MANY POOLS, SAYS SCHWAB

Steel Manufacturer Says They Were Going on All the Time.

With Formation of Steel Corporation They "Started to Stop."

New York, May 20.—Charles M. Schwab resumed the witness stand today for further cross-examination by government counsel in the suit to dissolve the United States Steel corporation.

Before being questioned by Judge Jacob M. Dickinson, the government attorney, he asked permission to correct the testimony he had given yesterday to the effect that the Illinois Steel company and the Carnegie Steel company, subsidiaries of the so-called trust, were competitors before they were absorbed. He said today that the Illinois company manufactured "only small parts" and was not in reality a competitor of the Carnegie company.

The existence of competition between these two concerns is one of the important points in the government's case against the corporation.

Agreements on Rails.

Judge Dickinson asked about certain pool agreements on rails in 1897. The witness admitted that the Carnegie Steel company, of which he was then president, had some agreements of that kind. The government attorney then read a memorandum which set forth that English rail manufacturers proposed to allot 100,000 tons of rails to the Carnegie company in England and Canada.

"You say you never heard of an international steel rail pool. What was it?"

"Oh, that did not appeal to us," Mr. Schwab said. "It was not big enough. I never considered the proposition. Russia, Germany and France all made rails and would have to be dealt with in making such a pool."

Pools All the Time.

"There were pools going on all the time, weren't there?"

"Yes, all the time."

"But when the Steel corporation was formed they stopped?"

"They started to stop."

Another minute, read by Judge Dickinson, indicated that the Carnegie company had agreed to stay out of the girder rail market for one year for a consideration of $100,000.

"We stayed out chiefly because we were not in a condition to compete," said Mr. Schwab, "but we put up a good front and got the $100,000."

"Moral influence" on Prices.

During his testimony late Monday, when asked as to the question of prices, Mr. Schwab asserted the corporation exerted only "a moral influence toward steadying prices," and this moral influence it used to steady the industry. This steadying influence, he continued, averted failures in the steel industry during the panic of 1907. The Gary dinner held during the panic was called with the object of steadying the industry, he said, but there were no agreements expressed or implied as to prices.

"The policy of the corporation toward its competitors was not one to stifle competition," Mr. Schwab continued. "Its policy was to publish prices once a week and to stick to them. There was no secret understanding."

Price of Steel Rails.

Asked to explain why the price of steel rails had remained fixed at $28 a ton, Mr. Schwab said that figure "had been deemed a fair price" by both the manufacturers and the railroads.

"I never knew of a railroad man," he said, "who thought the price ought to be lower."

Mr. Schwab said that no plants had ever been dismantled by the corporation except where two were manufacturing the same products in the same district or were obsolete. "No plant was ever purchased," he said, "for the purpose of dismantling it."

Testifying in connection with the price paid by the Steel corporation for its ores, which the government, in the case of the Hill ore lands, maintains was too high and was paid in order to prevent the lands from going into the hands of competitors, Mr. Schwab said:

"Within the last two weeks I have offered $1 a ton for ore in the ground and had the offer refused. I am proud to say that this is the price which at the time the corporation was formed I predicted ore would go to."

"No Ore Monopoly."

For the purpose of showing that the corporation could not have a monopoly of ore, Mr. Schwab described ore bodies in various parts of the world, particularly in Cuba, Venezuela and Brazil.

"If all the steel plants of the United States were duplicated and located on the Atlantic coast," he said, "there would be enough ore available in these countries to supply their needs."

Cross-examined by Judge Jacob A. Dickinson, attorney for the government, Mr. Schwab was asked if the Carnegie Steel company and the Illinois Steel company were competitors before they were absorbed by the corporation. If it can prove this question in the affirmative, the government hopes to show that the corporation was organized to suppress competition.

Counsel for the corporation sought unavailingly to prevent Mr. Schwab from answering, on the ground that at the time mentioned he was not in a position to judge. It was then that the witness conceded that the companies did compete "to a certain extent."

MONTANANS GOING EAST.

Headed By Governor, Will Call Upon Secretary of Interior.

Great Falls, Mont., May 20.—Headed by Governor Samuel V. Stewart, a party of Cascade and Teton county men started last night for Washington to urge the secretary of the interior to make no ruling that will menace irrigation projects in Montana. Governor Stewart was joined here by President Charles H. Campbell of the Commercial club, William M. Bole and Former Governor Edwin L. Norris of this city, and Phil Cole of Choteau.

It is expected that James T. Stanford, president of the Valier Irrigation company, one of the big private projects, will join the party at Chicago or Pittsburg, as he is now in the East, and has been invited by telegraph.

Canal is Growing.

Washington, May 20.—The Cucarach slide, the greatest of the earth movements in the famous Culebra cut, will be entirely removed by the end of this year, in the opinion of Col. D. D. Gaillard, the engineer in charge of the Culebra district of the Panama canal, who is in Washington. He believes that in spite of all the difficulties caused by the earth slides, which involved about fifty acres, the Culebra cut will be finished sooner than some other parts of the canal.

Unitarians Meet.

Boston, Mass., May 20.—With 1,000 delegates of the American Unitarian association in attendance, the annual meeting of the Ministerial union was held yesterday with Rev. Edward Cummings of this city as the speaker. The national woman's alliance also was in session.

WAS "LOOKING FOR A $5 BILL"

Old Man Created Much Excitement on Central Avenue.

There was real excitement for about a half hour on Central avenue and Ramsey street last evening. It was all started by an old man looking for a five-dollar bill.

A small pile of rubbish was scattered in the gutter. The old man had a walking stick with which he was diligently poking the rubbish.

"What are you looking for?" asked a passerby.

"A $5 bill," said the old man.

"I'll help you," and he did. Not only did this man help, but the crowd gathered and all took a hand. After about fifty people had gathered, all of whom were assisting in the search and some of whom got down on their knees in order that it might be more thorough, the policeman came along.

"What's all this about?" he asked.

"Looking for a $5 bill," answered some one.

"Who lost it?" asked the copper.

"The old man," some one volunteered.

"No, I didn't lose no money," said the old man. "I was just looking to see if I could find one, but I guess there is none here."

The crowd dispersed, while some remarks were made which would not look good in print.

WILL DISCUSS WHITE WAY

The establishment of a white way system of lighting for West Duluth will be the principal business to be discussed Friday evening at the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club. Business men are much interested in the scheme and the club will probably appoint a committee to interview the property owners.

According to the plan advanced it is proposed to install the system on Central avenue between Roosevelt and Cody streets; on Grand avenue between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-eighth avenues, and on Ramsey street from Fifty-second to Fifty-seventh.

Those back of the movement intend advocating five standards for each side of the street in each block. They place the estimate of each of these at about $116 and the cost of maintenance at an annual expenditure of 71 cents per front foot.

It is estimated that the installation will cost each owner of a 25-foot lot about $36. The cost of maintenance will, it is believed, be reduced considerably by the city paying for a part, because of the arc lights on these various corners being done away with.

NEW STATION IS COMPLETED.

The West Duluth passenger station of the Northern Pacific railroad which has been under construction for the past four months will be thrown open to the public next week. The offices will be moved during the latter part of this week.

The station has been built by the company's crews and was completed yesterday. The building has cost the company about $3,000.

As soon as the change into the new building has been made the old station will be moved from its present location to a point east of the new station. The present site of the old station will be parked and cement sidewalks leading from Central avenue crossing will be laid. The driveways will be paved with sandstone.

MERCHANTS PLAN ORGANIZATION.

A Merchants' and Clerks' association with its object that of early evening closing will be organized in West Duluth within the next month. Plans are now being made to perfect the organization and a petition will be circulated within the next few days to secure the names of those merchants and clerks who will join.

Among the merchants, many of whom now close early and others who are remaining open, who favor the early closing idea and intend perfecting the new organization are: F. H. Wade, A. Freimuth, Otto Haller, C. Neilsen, P. J. Blais, J. O. Johnson, T. F. Weiland, R. J. Baker and W. A. Pond.

According to the plans of the new organization it is proposed to get some agreement to close at least one hour or possibly two hours earlier than is now done. Most of the stores, with the exception of hardware and grocery stores, now have their doors open until 9 and 10 o'clock every evening. It is expected to have an agreement reached before June 15 when every business place will close not later than 7 o'clock.

NEW HOSPITAL FOR WEST DULUTH

Swedish Lutheran Churches Will Choose Site in Western Suburbs.

West Duluth will be selected as the location for the Serephime hospital which will be erected within the next two years at the Head of the Lakes. The plans for its construction will not be started until after the success of the proposed Hoyme hospital to be constructed this year by the Norwegian Lutheran church societies has been assured.

The Serephime hospital will be built by the Duluth district of Swedish Lutheran churches of the Augustana synod. It was proposed to construct the institution near the two uptown hospitals, but according to local directors they are of the opinion that the field in that direction is well covered.

Rev. John A. Krantz, pastor of the Elim Swedish Lutheran church, who is a member of the directors, said last evening that the plans for an uptown institution had been practically abandoned. The directors are now considering locating the hospital in West Duluth probably in the vicinity of Sixty-third avenue or Smithville.

"The field in this section of the city is not well provided for in cases of emergency," said Dr. Krantz. "While the plans are in no way settled upon still it is the opinion of members of the board that this end of the city would be the best location."

A meeting of the directors will be held early this summer. Local members besides Dr. Krantz are: Rev. C. G. Olson, pastor of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church; Rev. Theodore Ekblad of Superior and Dr. D. E. Seashore of West Duluth. A number of West Duluth physicians besides Dr. Seashore are also said to be interested in the establishment of the proposed institution in this end of the city.

Railroads

WANT HIM REINSTATED.

Garretson, S. D., People Petition to Have Depot Agent Put Back.

Garretson, S. D., May 20.—William J. Mackay, for ten years agent for the Great Northern road here, has been relieved of his position and as a result a monster petition is being circulated to have him reinstated. The charges against Mackay are that he did not report irregularities among employes at Garretson and that the company was forced to send spotters to learn the real condition of affairs. There is no charge of dishonesty or inefficiency.

TRAIN MEN TO VOTE ON STRIKE.

San Francisco, Cal., May 20.—Strike ballots will be provided and a referendum vote will be taken by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen to determine what action shall follow the refusal of managers of railroads operating east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio rivers to consider a 15 per cent increase in pay for conductors and brakemen. The result of the vote will be known by the end of June.

OBJECTS TO COMPROMISE

Property Owner Holds Up Settlement of Street Ends Case.

Attorney Michael F. Bright served an injunction this morning on the city of Superior restraining it and the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Eastern Minnesota railways from effecting a settlement regarding certain bay front property. The proposed settlement of the bay front property is due to granting the railroads all street ends in return for a solid stretch of property stretching about a half mile along the water front.

Mr. Bright claims to be the owner of two lots on one of the streets that is vacated by the city in making the transfer of the property. He claims that the vacation of the streets reduces the value of his lots and asks that the injunction be made permanent.

The pending deal is said to mean a great deal to Superior, as it gives the city control of a large water frontage in consideration of the city's release of a few street ends which are said to be of little value. It is expected that the difference between Mr. Bright and the city will be settled.

FOWLER VICTIM OF "SPITE" CASE.

Olympia, Wash., May 20.—Governor Ernest Lister denied yesterday requisition for the extradition of Walter T. Fowler, president of a grocery company of Everett, who was wanted in Superior, Wis., on a warrant charging the embezzlement of $10,000 six years ago from a company with which he was then connected.

The governor held that the complainant sought to take Mr. Fowler back to Wisconsin merely for revenge, having lost a civil suit based on the same charges three years ago.

Anti-Vice Campaign.

A branch of the American Vigilance society will be organized this evening at a meeting of the clergymen of the city, to be held at the Superior high school. Clifford G. Roe of Chicago will speak.

Injunction Issued.

Judge Ross of the circuit court yesterday issued a writ of injunction against County Treasurer Frank Kenyon against selling the Soo Line ore and merchandise docks for delinquent taxes. The Soo, Omaha and Great Northern roads have refused to pay taxes on their dock property under the provisions of the terminal bill passed at the last legislature making such property taxable by local authorities instead of by the state.

Mr. Webster will visit on the range, and after another short stay here the latter part of the week, will go to Winnipeg.

FOR DISTURBING REVIVAL MEETING

William Kennebrook Is Charged With Trying to Outpreach Evangelist.

William Kennebrook was arrested last night by Patrolmen Ricketts and Monahan when he tried to outpreach an evangelist who was conducting a revival meeting in a West Superior street hall. It is claimed that he made a number of objectionable remarks to the minister of the gospel which also offended the members of the audience. In police court this morning he denied that he was disorderly, and his trial was set for this afternoon.

Jailed for Slandering.

Finley, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—For slandering a young woman, Elmer Qualley was given a jail sentence. The judge decided that a light sentence would serve the ends of justice as Qualley's offense had been more through thoughtlessness than from malicious intent.

FEEL NEED OF NEW CITY HALL

Commissioners Are Badly Cramped in Their Present Quarters.

Sinking Fund May Be Established With Next Tax Levy.

Duluth's sad need of a new city hall, apparent as it has been for some years past, has never been so obvious as since the new city commission took over the reins of government.

The five commissioners are on the job every day and scores of people are calling daily to see them. None of them has fit offices in which to receive visitors. They are making the best of rather a difficult situation, but it is not easy. Most of the visitors come on business matters. The commissioners have no easily available place for the keeping of their papers and documents. They have no files in which to place them. The vaults are already overcrowded and were they empty, they are needed for the treasurer, comptroller and engineer. It is hard to make quick use of them when it is necessary to refer to them. In their present quarters it is difficult for the commissioners to keep their papers and reference matters.

The building itself is getting old and out of date. It is not properly arranged and making provision for the various departments is a constant problem.

Rent for city departments is getting higher as more room becomes necessary. The water and light department and the municipal court alone are paying $6,000 a year for the use of the quarters they now occupy. At 6 per cent this will pay the interest on $100,000 of bonds, and at 4½ or 5 per cent, for which bonds can be placed on a more favorable market, $6,000 a year would pay the carrying charges of a larger bond issue.

Sinking Fund.

Mayor Prince believes that the city should start a sinking fund for the construction of a new city hall. In that manner the cost could be spread over a period of years, and the necessity of a bond issue, or at least a heavy bond issue, would be done away with. Duluth's present assessed valuation is approximately $50,000,000, and this will increase with the years. A levy of 1 mill would produce $50,000 a year on that basis. In ten years the city would have a fund of more than half a million dollars, which would be more than enough to defray the cost of a new city home amply large to care for all the branches of the municipality for years to come.

"The question of a sinking fund for a city hall will undoubtedly come before the commission when it meets in the fall to make the levy for 1914," said Mayor Price this morning. "Duluth needs a city hall, and needs it badly, very badly.

"We are going to remodel the present building to help relieve the congestion, at least temporarily, but that can only be a makeshift. The cost will be a few hundred dollars, but the expenditure is absolutely necessary if we are to get along and facilitate city business. Some of the offices must be enlarged and more vault space must be provided. That will be done by taking away some of the council chamber, which is now larger than necessary.

"From the present situation, the sinking fund appears to offer the best solution of the question. It will spread the cost over a number of years. The burden would not be seriously felt and the expense is one which must be borne in a very few years. Why not begin making provision for it as soon as possible, when it will be easier? It seems to me that it would be better to raise the money by means of a sinking fund than through a bond issue."

ONE DIVE PUT OUT OF BUSINESS

Commission Brings Proprietor of Saloon to His Senses.

One alleged disreputable joint on West Superior street has gone out of business, or changed its location, since Saturday.

Reports were made to the police that women were seen in the window, trying to attract men who were passing. The place was located over a saloon and the rooms were controlled by the proprietor, or at any event he had enough influence to have them vacated. He was informed that if the women were not out of them by Monday night steps would be taken to have the commission revoke his saloon license. The rooms were vacated. If the new moving ordinance were in effect the police would know without investigation where they had gone, but as it is their whereabouts are unknown, at least just now.

LET'S CULTIVATE THE CARNIVAL SPIRIT.

Who was it said the American people take their pleasures sadly?

We stroll through a circus and glumly munch peanuts while we watch the antics of the monkeys. We sit handcuffed at the theater and dare the comedian to amuse us. We attend picnics from a sense of duty and pick the ants out of the butter in a bored fashion. We motor—at least some of us do—with fixed jaws and staring eyes, victims of the speed mania. We travel—a few of us do—to California or Florida in a mechanical way and without enthusiasm.

Without doubt most of us take our pleasures sadly, almost grimly.

A little of the carnival spirit will therefore need to be aroused in Duluth this summer, if the "Lark o' The Lake" is to be the success it deserves to be.

The alliterative title designates a series of week-end entertainments planned by a joint committee from several of Duluth's public spirited organizations. There will be six of them, beginning late in June and ending early in August, and the sole object is to bring visitors to Duluth and amuse them when they get here.

Duluth is to play the host, and it therefore behooves us to put a little geniality into the welcome, and to catch the carnival spirit for the summer.

Flying boats, band concerts, street parades, water sport programs, and excursions will comprise the entertainment. They will doubtless bring thousands of visitors weekly. It is our part to shed the American manner of "enjoying" ourselves for the summer, and show our visitors that we are in truth enjoying summer life in Duluth and that we are glad to have them with us.

The carnival spirit does not necessarily predicate the pointed cap and bells of the Pierrot, nor the license of an art student's frolic.

It simply means laying aside the formal manner, and letting the spirit of good fellowship be manifest. Above all let us not give our visitors any reason to believe we are reaching for their pockets with our left hand while our right is extended in friendly greeting.

Welcome to our guests, and success to the excellent plan of the "Lark o' The Lake" committee.

Prof. Taft has not yet denounced the playing of baseball, but perhaps he will get around to that later on.

MAKING PROGRESS.

The census bureau reports a reduction in the typhoid death rate from 23.5 per hundred thousand to 21.

This is isn't a radical reduction, but it is a reduction, and that's the main thing. Until the fight against this scourge took its present definite form the reports showed increases constantly.

Cleaner living conditions in cities and on the farm, cleaner milk, cleaner water to drink, and especially the campaign against the fly, have made what reduction there is, and will make still greater reduction hereafter.

New York's city employes gave a parade the other day. But what would really make New York sit up and look around would be a parade of "the system" and its allies.

EUROPE COPIES MINNESOTA.

Europe is taking note of American methods of spreading rural knowledge for the good of the community.

The American consul at Liverpool reports to the state department that a little while ago an "egg and poultry demonstration train" toured North Wales to carry the latest practical knowledge to farmers, and that it was modelled on the "American agricultural missionary trains."

The demonstration train, it is related, visited thirty towns, including Pwllheli, Amlwch and Llanymynech. An extra locomotive, no doubt, could successfully get the train by those names.

One of the two demonstration cars, with a capacity for thirty people, had a testing room for eggs and various testing apparatus. Here were exhibited eggs from various countries selling in the British market. This car also carried specimens of table poultry, with fattening apparatus, etc. The second car was a museum of appliances for an up-to-date poultry farm, such as brooders, trap nests, chick boxes, incubators and egg boxes of various forms. There were also models of poultry houses, diagrams, charts, photographs, etc., illustrating successful poultry keeping. A staff of eight speakers and demonstrators accompanied the train.

This is copying to good advantage a practice that has accomplished great good in this country, and which is very familiar in Minnesota, a leader among the states in the spread of modern agricultural knowledge. It makes for more economical production and better, and it makes for better marketing methods. It profits both the producer and the consumer.

If it really proves possible to fly across the Atlantic, the question will at once be raised as to whether duty must be paid on an airship that comes in under its own steam.

POPULAR BUYING OF CITY BONDS

The St. Paul department store which successfully carried out the innovation of a sale of city bonds over the counter, in precisely the same manner as though they had been stockings or ribbons, has pointed out a way which the cities, including Duluth, should investigate.

St. Paul having put out a large bond issue, this department store bought bonds to the value of $100,000, and is selling them to its patrons like so many lengths of cotton voile at forty-eight cents, formerly seventy-nine. The first day's allotment went like the proverbial hot cakes, and the full amount could have been sold, it is related, if the bonds had been ready.

A department store having shown the way, what is to prevent the cities themselves from conducting future "sales" of bonds?

The St. Paul experience shows that the people are willing to buy if they are given a chance. Taking money out of the savings bank where it is drawing two to three per cent, and putting it in city bonds paying four to five per cent, is the finest kind of business deal for those with small savings.

All that is necessary, apparently, is to issue the bonds in denominations of twenty dollars and up, and to give the people a chance to buy them at par and accrued interest.

It may be a little more trouble to the city, but it's worth it.

It keeps the interest money at home. It encourages thrift. It gives these local bondholders a new interest in public affairs and a new incentive to good citizenship.

We recommend this interesting St. Paul experiment to the city commission for its earnest consideration.

The way this man McAdoo is fixing over things in the banking world is almost enough to persuade folks that the trouble heretofore has been less the fault of the laws than the fault of the folks who administer them.

THE CITIZENS' STAFF.

The Citizens' Staff, which was organized several years ago to help the veterans and the public suitably observe Memorial day, is appealing for more members.

It is an appeal that should be heeded.

For many years the arrangements for Memorial day observances were largely in the hands of the Grand Army of the Republic. The youth of the holiday was their youth, and theirs were the proper hands for it to come into. Theirs are the proper hands still, but their youth is no more, and they need younger men to bear the heavier burdens of the day. Hence the Citizens' Staff.

So instead of going fishing or attending a ball game—though with the morning's work well done there is no objection to attending the ball game in the afternoon if there is one—why not join the Citizens' Staff and help the veterans observe the day? It costs a dollar a year, and every penny of the money goes to pay the expense of the celebration. The least you can do, if you have a dollar to spare, is to join the organization and let your dollar work even if you do not.

Why can't San Francisco and Tokio settle the whole thing by a game of baseball?

LESE MAJESTY?

Do the Bull Moose jingoes of the California state government know that in their anti-Japanese movements they are committing lese majesty?

In a message sent to congress Dec. 31, 1906, upholding the Japanese side of the controversy, Theodore Roosevelt said: "I recommend to the congress that an act be passed specifically providing for the naturalization of Japanese who come here intending to become American citizens."

The Bull Moose idea is that the king can do no wrong; hence, from a Bull Moose viewpoint, Roosevelt must have been right in 1906.

We don't agree with him; but it is hard to see how the Bull Moosers of California, even under the propulsion of a public sentiment apparently fostered by discredited dynamiting labor demagogues, dare thus to fly in the face of political providence.

THE SMOKE NUISANCE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

It is a pleasure to note that stationary engineers, business men and the city officials will co-operate and meet shortly and endeavor to find a plan to abate or lessen the abominable smoke nuisance. But I think the enforcement of the smoke ordinance should be left in the hands of the health department as I consider the gas thrown off by black coal smoke as injurious to the health of many persons, to a greater or lesser extent, when breathed into the lungs. I have heard quite a number complain who reside, work and sleep within the limits of the smoke zone of Duluth, that the dirty coal smoke and gas was injuring their throats, lungs and general health. Escaping gas from a coal stove during the cold and winter season has overcome during sleep, and caused the death of several persons in this city, so that evidently coal gas, in concentrated form and in small space is a deadly agent. An employe of the health department is going around with a kodak and taking snapshots of belching smoke pouring from the smokestacks of large buildings, factories, foundries and other transgressing buildings and the worst transgressors of all the railroad engines. Photos of the smoke nuisance thus taken would be evidence which could not be truthfully contradicted. I understand an official has been doing this. Well whatever is done, let all join in harmony in an honest endeavor to abate or lessen the smoke nuisance.

Yours truly,

Duluth, May 20. R. M.

Spelling Bees in Minnesota

Christian Science Monitor: In Minnesota, it seems, the revival of interest in the spelling bee has become so intense that the state superintendent of public instruction has come to recognize its importance and to lend it his countenance and his aid. In Faribault county, he has found it to be "a vital feature of school life." He believes that much can be said in favor of it. "Good spellers are all too rare," he says, "while the need of good spelling is constant." Modern inventions, conveniences and methods have made the ability to spell well an increasingly desirable accomplishment. It is more difficult now than ever before to conceal poor spelling. Especially is this the case in business, where the typewriter is rapidly taking the place of the pen. Time was when one might slur a few words and leave the recipient of a letter in doubt as to whether the spelling was correct; this cannot be done with the typewriter.

The Minnesota superintendent of public instruction thinks that the old-time spelling bee developed good spelling. It did. In some of the contests it used to seem a long time before anybody was spelled down. Usually the contestants began to fall not upon the difficult, but upon the easy words. "Separate" played a strong part in humbling the over-confident, and all words ending with "ent" and "ant," and words with and without two "ns" and two "ts" were generally harder to get over than the unusuals. The experienced bee speller always had the unusuals pat. The way to get him was to wait until he had managed a stumper and then rush him with a few words beginning with per and pur.

At all events, the bees of other days graduated some excellent spellers, and the spelling, moreover, was not everything. Everybody who attended spelling bees, or walked home from spelling bees, did not necessarily spell. Sometimes it was like going to or coming from a circus; oftentimes it was better than doing either. Perhaps they are combining pleasure with instruction in Minnesota. One is disposed to think so from the fact that spelling bees have there become a statewide custom. So nearly universal is the custom, indeed, that there are to be district try-outs that will send contestants to county contests that will send contestants to the state fair for the crowning contest of the year in September. It is not impossible that, as a result of all this, advertisements of stenographers and typists and others looking for clerical positions may in many instances be found, next fall and winter, to read "advertiser was a regular attendant at Minnesota spelling bees and was never spelled down," or "advertiser was next to the last to fall in a Faribault county (Minn.) spelling bee," or "advertiser swept all the districts in his county in the Minnesota spelling bee contests of 1913, and fell in the state fair contest only by failing to catch the sound of an easy word." However, it will not need to go as far as this in order to convince people who are interested that the state-wide spelling bees in Minnesota will do spelling no harm.

Humor of Chancery.

London Globe: Most of the humor of chancery is epigrammatic. The opening sentences of a judgment given by Lord Justice Knight Bruce, in an action in which two brothers were the litigants, may be regarded as typical. The father of the litigants had invented a particular kind of sauce, and the brother who had inherited the business sought to restrain the other from selling a sauce under the family name: "All the queen's subjects," began the lord justice, "are entitled to manufacture pickles and sauces, and not the less so that their fathers have done it before them. All the queen's subjects are entitled to use their own names, and not the less so that their fathers have done it before them."

Lord Justice Knight Bruce was the author of the lines:

"The curate's eyes our ladies praise,
And never see their light divine.
He always shuts them when he prays
And, when he preaches, closes mine."

Sometimes, however, the humor of the chancery courts can be as garish as that of the common law courts. Was it not a chancery judge—Vice Chancellor Malins, to-wit—who, when an egg was thrown at him on the bench, had the presence of mind to remark: "This must have been intended for my brother Bacon." And the late Mr. Oswald, whose sharp retorts are freshly remembered in Lincoln's Inn, was a chancery man. "I can teach you law, sir, but I cannot teach you manners," said an angry judge to him. "That is so, m'lud," was the characteristic reply.

One Way to Save Money.

Boston Post: As a part of its spring campaign to kill off a pest and remove a menace to life, the board of health of New York state has printed and distributes cards reading thus:

Flies follow filth. Fever follows flies. Swatting avos sickness.

It costs less to buy a screen door and keep the garbage receptacle carefully covered than it does to get ill and lay off for a month.

Back to the Farm

By Savoyard.

Washington, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The debate of the Underwood tariff bill under the "five-minute rule" was amusing and edifying. Republican statesmen insist that the tariff is not a tax. They gravely argue that the measure will destroy many prosperous industries and at the same time advance the prices of the products of those industries to the consumer. For instance, here is a shop making boots and shoes. It is now prosperous, sending abroad immense invoices and selling its wares to foreigners at a profit. J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania tells congress that free trade in boots and shoes will advance the price of those articles to the men who buy them to wear, but that the American shop will have to close down.

That is what they all say—Mann, Payne, Mondell, Humphrey, Fordney, the whole lot of them—that manufacturers will cease operation just as soon as the prices of the goods are increased! That is absurd, and it is as untruthful as it is ridiculous.

All the bill is is this—only this: Our manufacturers must relinquish their monopoly of the domestic market. They must put up with a competitive tariff. They shall no longer write the customs taxes laid on the people. They must go out and seek markets abroad now monopolized by free-trade England. They must show, as they can, that they can fashion as cheap goods as England or any other country. That is what this measure means. And a great number of the most extensive manufacturers of the United States are ready for the struggle with England for the markets of the world, and most of them do not doubt their speedy triumphant success. Certainly they disastrously failed under protection.

Of course they prate about the farmer, insisting that the Democratic party is destroying agriculture by the same weapons with which it is murdering manufacture. Well, we know what protection has done for the farm. It has sent farm labor to the city. We know that. Iowa, a Western farm state, actually decreased in population the decade 1900-1910, while Massachusetts, an Eastern manufacturing state, enormously increased in population the same period. That was natural and it was inevitable. The government by its system of taxation encouraged men at work in the field to abandon the plow and enter the shop. The factory was protected and the farm paid the bounty. People wondered; they could not understand the exodus from the country to the town. The solution was plain to everybody who knew anything about the Dingley and the Payne tariffs.

Daniel Webster saw what effect protection would produce. He said it would drive the farm boy to the shop, and everybody now knows that the following eloquent passage from Webster was prophetic. It has been realized. Millions of acres east of the Mississippi have been abandoned. Within fifty miles of New York are vast areas of wild lands once fertile fields. Webster foresaw it when he said:

"I am not anxious to accelerate the approach of the period when the great mass of American labor shall not find its employment in the field; when the young men of the country shall be obliged to shut their eyes upon external nature, upon the heavens and the earth, and immerse themselves in close and unwholesome workshops; when they shall be obliged to shut their ears to the bleatings of their own flocks upon their own hills, and to the voice of the lark that cheers them at the plough."

For fifty years protection has not only levied a tribute of money on the farm, but it has recruited much of the labor of the shop from the farm. Miles of silly stuff have been written in standpat newspapers bewailing the exodus from farm to shop, and silly speculations have been indulged as to the causes.

There is just one cause—protection.

Remove that cause and agriculture will regain the primacy that is rightfully hers. Cities will cease to grow at the expense of the village, the hamlet, the farm. On the contrary cities will give back to the farm millions of their congested population. The waste lands of the states east of the Mississippi will be reclaimed and again become fertile fields. All the farm asks is an equal chance, relief from taxation for private interests. It was disclosed in the tariff debate that the Harvester trust sells its wares to foreigners at a price one-half that the American farmer is compelled to pay for them. That is the way the farmer has been "protecting" all the trusts all the time.

They have the impudence to say it is not the protection of capital that owns the fabric; but of labor, that forges the wares; and of the entire gamut of error in statecraft that is the biggest lie. There never yet was a tariff laid for protection that was not designed for, and did not have the effect to, advantage the man who owned the article and not the artisan who fabricated it. Our government is 124 years old, and for more than a full century of that entire period we had a protective tariff. At first it was to nourish infant industries; then it was to give the farmer a home market; and it was not until after the war of 1861-65 that we were told that protection is for labor. And it was not till 1890 that anybody ever heard of the enormous fallacy that the tariff protects the farmer. That was a wonderful discovery of Robert M. La Follette, now a senator in congress from Wisconsin. Simultaneously with that diabolical miracle William McKinley made the startling revelation that the office of protection is to make goods cheaper to the consumer!

But the fact is the only purpose protection ever served was to give the "interests" a monopoly of the home market in order that they might rob according to law.

But the jig's up, gents, unless the senate shall muster enough treason to 'Gormanize" the Underwood bill.

Those Eternal Twins!

Chicago Record-Herald: "I thought your minister was to have a call to Minneapolis?"

"He did expect it, but he went up there to preach a trial sermon and took his text from St. Paul, so it's all off."

The Lover to the Cubist Portrait of His Inamorata.

Beautiful brown and blue eyes!
Spread over the front of your blouse!
Oh, most adorable nose!
Is it a nose or a louse?
Chin where your mouth used to be,
Oh, how it fascinates me!
Red, green and yellow and blue,
Those wonderful sharp teeth of you!

Long-pointed, tapering ears,
Each of a different size!
Strands of a strange-colored hair,
Hiding some of your beautiful eyes!
Oh, adorable being look down,
From the top of the wall where you frown.
And tell me what is it you're in,
A landscape, a dress or your skin.

—Life.

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.) — Representative Young of North Dakota has been going through life these many years with a cloud hanging over him. When Young was a small boy his mother inveigled him into promising to real Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress." She told him that if he didn't read "Pilgrim's Progress" he would never amount to anything. That being the case, he promised. But the promise did not include any time limit, so he let the thing slide, especially after he got the book and looked it over. He intended to keep his promise, of course, but saw no occasion for any great rush about it. The book would keep. Once, when he was 12 years old, he read almost two pages and a half about the Pilgrim and his doings. Then he decided to wait a day or two before finishing the chapter. He put it off from day to day, then from week to week, and from year to year. To this day he still intends fully to read, "Pilgrim's Progress." He would give a good sum of money to have his promise all fulfilled and the thing over. If he had it to do over again, he would make no such rash agreement. A less conscientious man might have passed up the book years ago and regarded the promise as outlawed, but Young thinks a promise is a promise. Hardly a day passes that he doesn't recall with a sigh the boyhood covenant and wonder when he will find time to make good on it. A sad life is Young's; yet he seems cheerful through it all.

A new member of congress made a speech on a particularly dreary item in the new tariff bill that they're fixing to enact. The subject matter of the speech was such that a man might have been justified in keeping his emotions fairly well under control, but it was our hero's first speech in the house, and he earnestly desired to make an impression. He spoke in impassioned tones, pounded the table, waved his arms like semaphores, and carried on generally. One would have thought he was pleading to save the only son and sole support of a widowed mother from being shot at sunrise. And yet it was all about a dry-as-dust tariff item.

When he had finished the new member happened to take a seat near Representative C. B. Smith of Buffalo, N. Y., and he asked Smith what he thought of the speech.

"It was all right," replied Smith, without enthusiasm.

"Now, tell me the truth," persisted the new member. "Just what did you think of it? I should like your frank opinion."

"Well," said Smith, "you know I used to be a newspaper man, and a long time ago I found that it was unwise to place a seven-column headline on an unimportant news item. Because then there's nothing bigger to use when something really important happens. It's the same way, as I look at it, with speeches."

As Senator James Hamilton Lewis sat in a hotel lobby here one evening a friend entered, unnoticed by Lewis, and conceived a cute little prank. He called a page boy, gave him certain explicit instructions, and then retired to a secluded nook to await developments.

In a moment the gayly whiskered Illinois senator was startled to hear a page boy going about exclaiming, boisterously:

"Ha-am-m Lewis! Mr. Ha-am Lewis!"

Lewis beckoned to the boy.

"I am Senator J. Hamilton Lewis," said he. "Do you suppose there is any chance that that call could be intended for me?"

"Oh, no, sir," said the boy, "because the man that told me to call Mr. Lewis was very particular about me putting especial emphasis on the Ham."

Elmer Murphy, of the Washington staff of the New York Tribune, was hurrying toward a capitol elevator the other day, and was greatly vexed because the outfit didn't stop at his floor.

"Didn't you hear me say 'Going up?'" he asked the elevator man in a hurt tone.

Then he noticed who one passenger was, and understood—and smiled.

The passenger smiled, too.

It was Woodrow Wilson, en route to one of his little capitol conferences.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley was about to deliver a lecture in a North Dakota town and the chairman, in making the introduction, was properly brief.

"I shall not take up your time telling about the works of the speaker," he said. "I simply present to you the only Harvey Wiley."

"Your chairman probably meant well enough," observed Wiley when he got up, "but he has made a grievous error. I am not the only Harvey Wiley. There is another Harvey Wiley, nine months of age, and my wife, who knows us both intimately, will bear me out when I say that he is ten times the more important."

The house committee on foreign affairs, of which William Sulzer, now governor of New York, used to be chairman, sat down to a dinner last summer in honor of a number of visiting foreign diplomats. Invitations to the dinner had been sent out by Sulzer, and the members of the committee complimented him highly, not only upon his kind hospitality, but upon the lavish arrangements. He smiled in a funny way and said they were great jokers, but they didn't know what he meant—not until a day or two later, when the members of the committee got large assessments for their share of the dinner. It seemed that it wasn't Sulzer's dinner at all, but was given by the whole committee, he, of course, simply issuing the invitations in his capacity as chairman.

Baby's Cries Won the Case.

New York World: "Yes, sir judge, it was this way," began Mrs. Yetta Vogel to Judge John R. Davies of the municipal court, desperately trying to explain why she did not owe Mrs. Sina Kaplan $21 for groceries and at the same time stop the yells of the 6-month-old baby in her arms.

"Yi, yi, yi, yi!" bawled the baby.

The judge held one hand behind his ear and leaned over. It was no use. Dollars sounded like cents and bills paid like bills owed.

"Somebody must hold this baby," he finally said, looking in bewilderment around the room. "Is there some woman here who will keep the child quiet?"

"I will do it," bravely said Maxwell Goldberg, a court attendant, who had been recently married.

He took the child as if she was an immense bunch of roses, sweet but full of thorns.

"You don't know how to carry a baby," said several persons, as Goldberg started back, cooing and rocking the now louder-than-ever yelling girl.

"Perhaps not," answered the new nurse, "but I won't hurt her, and I guess I had better get some practice."

With the nursery noises in back of the courtroom, Judge Davies decided the case in favor of the mother.

Minnesota Opinions

Comments of the State Press.

Same Old Story.

Elk River Star-News: The opposition to the state political machine shows a disposition to repeat the folly of last year by entering several candidates for governor. The trouble is there are too many statesmen who think themselves more particularly competent for the position than anyone else, so there you are, with a divided opposition which means the triumph of the organization.

Reorganization Needed.

Brown's Valley Tribune: Minnesota has about one-third too many hired men, and reorganization of departments ought to be brought about so that a useless bunch of salary-drawers would be dispensed with.

Great for the Farmers.

Spooner Northern News: It has been figured that according to the present assessed valuations of the state, the residents of the cities and villages of Minnesota will pay $4.47 to every $1 paid out by the farmers of the state, under the Dunn good roads law passed at the last session. None of this money will be spent on the improvement of streets, but the farmers alone will reap the benefit in the way of better highways. But probably some farmer will still complain.

Itasca County Progress.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Itasca county is surely going after good roads in earnest. The county commissioners of that county have decided to expend $400,000 for trunk highways under the provision of the Elwell law, whereby the state stands a share of the expense.

These trunk highways, together with the feeders that the county will build, will give Itasca county a road system that should be the best in any county in the state. This will mean the earliest development of the agricultural possibilities of the county, as the prospective settler goes where he can get good land and good roads at the same time.

The Greatest Help.

Gheen Record: A great many measures are being advocated these days for the benefit of the farmer and settler, but none of them would give greater help, especially for the settler, than a system of good roads, roads that could be used at any time of the year, and over which the maximum load could be hauled.

A Hard Worker.

Itasca News: For the past four years great strides toward populating and making habitable the rich northern section of Minnesota has been a business that now shows for itself direct results of its work, and the working agent has been the Northern Minnesota Development association. This big aggregation of enthusiastic men of progress has met twice a year since its organization and every meeting has borne fruit. More and better roads, more and better farming, more and better education and proper laws have been the reward of this association's labors. It has cast abroad a ginger bug that seems to have pricked the starter of every man in business, every newspaper and every taxpayer.

At Least!

Cambridge North Star: The Wisconsin legislature passed a bill to allow the people of the state to vote on woman's suffrage in 1914. So Wisconsin is at least two years more progressive than Minnesota.

Growing Industry.

Austin Transcript: It is estimated that Minnesota will produce approximately $25,000,000 worth of eggs in 1913. The increased revenue from this source is due to a better grade of product and the result of increased interest in poultry growing. The estimated revenue from the egg market last year was nearly $20,000,000. The hen has become an important factor in our productions.

A Whirlwind Courtship

Youth's Companion: The recent death in a New Hampshire village of a placid, pleasant old woman, afflicted with very few infirmities at 97, has recalled anew the story of her courtship, which the villagers delight to tell.

As a girl, she was very pretty, and had several suitors. It gradually became evident that she especially favored a certain Joshua. The others, one after another, withdrew, and left him a clear field, and there seemed nothing to hinder the happy conclusion of his wooing. He was, however—like the fair Diantha—of a leisurely disposition. It was two years before he proposed, and was accepted. Everybody expected the wedding to follow soon; all the relatives approved, there was plenty of money, and each owned a house and land. But it was five years later when a farm helper overheard Joshua, invited to appraise the apple crop of his bride to be, digress from business a moment at the orchard gate.

"Dianthy," he inquired, mildly, "when be ye goin' to marry me?"

"Land Joshuay," was the reply, "if I'd known you was goin' to spring upsettin' questions, I wouldn't have ast ye over. Don't ye know a girl can't be hurried? Let's talk apples."

"No hurry, no hurry, Dianthy; take your time," agreed Joshua, amiably. "We're both comf'table as we be. Only folks seem to be kind of expectin' us to hitch before the season's out, and I didn't know's we'd ought to disapp'int 'em."

It was another five years before Joshua—whether of his own motion or under pressure of public opinion—repeated his question. Then he was put off on the plea that Diantha must "get her things ready."

She was several years about that; then the deaths of various uncles and aunts deferred the wedding for several more. After all was ready, it took six years for the lovers to decide whether they should live in his house or in hers; then three years were required to dispose of the house to be vacated. Altogether, it took them a quarter of a century to get married.

They were very happy, however, and Diantha, after she was left a widow, never wearied of eulogizing her departed consort.

"Joshuay wa'n't what you'd call a driver," she would sigh, reminiscently, "but then, Providence had so fur provided for us that he had no call to be; and if he was slowgoing, there never was a man more comf'table to go along with."

Lucky, Indeed.

Life: Parke—Bildat is certainly tied to his wife's apron strings.

Lane—Well, in these days he is lucky if he has a wife with apron strings.

Secure.

Life: A monument is proposed in memory of the late John Bigelow.

Good idea, but Mr. Bigelow's memory is all right. A 5-cent cigar has been named after him.

A Remarkable Duel.

Indianapolis News: Perhaps the most singular duel ever fought was one in which the hero was a dog, and this duel was fought so long ago, and the chronicler thereof was so careless that the name of this gallant hero, except that he was called "the dog of Montargis," did not appear, though we have the name of his antagonist. It happened in France, this duel, about the year 1280. A man named Aubry had been murdered in the forest of Bondy, near Paris. Aubry had a faithful dog. Unfortunately the breed as well as the name of this four-footed friend is lost. After the disappearance of his master the dog every three or four days for some time would come to the house of his master's intimate friend to be fed. One day this friend followed the dog, and was led by him to the forest of Bondy. Here the dog scratched away the earth, disclosing the body of Monsieur Aubry. From that time the dog would never quit this friend, and it was noticed that whenever he met a man named Macaire he would show every sign of anger, and once he flew upon him, and was with difficulty taken off. This caused Macaire to be suspected of the murder of the man in the forest, and a duel was resolved upon by the authorities to decide whether Macaire was guilty or not. This was so different from the French duel of today that an immense throng of people crowded to see it. The dog had his claws and a good set of teeth. More than this he had a tub to which he could withdraw when he was weary. The man was only allowed to have a stick and a shield. The combat lasted so long that Macaire, who had been severely bitten, fainted from loss of blood, and later confessed that he was the murderer. There is no record that the dog said anything to express his satisfaction, but doubtless he was for nine days at least a much admired dog and the talk of all Paris.

Houses Without Nails.

Detroit Free Press: In Alberta, Can., there is a village of houses which have been constructed without nails. As a matter of fact, little or no hardware of any character has entered into their construction.

These houses have been built by Ruthenian immigrants, and their architecture is quite novel. Their first attempts at house building are usually of the kind they had been accustomed to over in Europe, and their buildings are of the typical Ruthenian style—log, pitch roofed, thatched and wide in the eaves. In many cases these buildings are put up without a dollar's worth of hardware. Even the door, an affair of slender twigs woven and laced together, swings on homemade hinges, and is latched with a wooden hasp. The floor is of hewn logs, unnailed. The roof, as the favorite Russian roof always is, as a wonderful fabric of poles and cross-woven wheat straw, ten inches thick, packed tight and solid, and laid with such care that it will shed the weather for twenty years.

HOW TO PERMANENTLY OVERCOME BILIOUS ATTACKS

A CONSTANT sufferer from bilious attacks and difficult vomiting, "Mr. William W. C.," says:

"I am troubled very much with attacks of biliousness and scarcely go two weeks without one. At these times I always have stomach pains and vomit a large quantity of thick yellow bile with a great deal of difficulty. I avoid all pastry, cheese and rich foods and take very little meat. I keep my bowels regular, but still these attacks of biliousness continue. I shall be very glad for your advice."

The regular periodic times of your bilious attacks with vomiting reveals one thing very clearly. Your system becomes overloaded. That's the reason for the attacks. These are the efforts that Nature is putting forth to get rid of the excess of poisons and waste matters that depress and injure your flesh. The system will only stand for the accumulation of a certain amount of waste materials that irritate it.

When depressing waste matters circulate around through the blood, saturating the millions of your blood cells with their products, a condition of toxemia is produced. It is this toxemia, which is merely another name for "a human flesh poisoner," that makes your liver and other organs so rebellious that your attacks become inevitable.

The diet question with you is most important. Do this: Procure from your grocery man a five or ten-pound supply of clean, well-packed figs. Also get a supply of good dried fruits and canned fruits. In the supply you should include peaches, pears, prunes, apricots, raisins, dates and apples. LIVE ENTIRELY ON THIS FRUIT DIET FOR ONE MONTH. The acid juices from the fruit will furnish your system with some of the ingredients needed so badly by it. And, furthermore, your system will not become poisoned by these foods, and there will be no depressing waste products to circulate around in your blood in such excessive quantities as formerly, as a result of decay or putrefaction.

This latter condition is what is now taking place within your bowels and stomach. Your foods are putrefying instead of nourishing you.

Drink at least two quarts of water daily. The plain carbonated water or the soda fountain or seltzer water, as procured in syphon bottles, is most excellent.

After one month's regime of the above, you can allow your stomach some dry cereal. Within a week or two after this addition, take on a few articles of vegetable diet, such as baked potatoes, stewed peas, boiled cabbage (it must be boiled very soft until it almost falls apart), boiled rice and tomatoes. Eat whole wheat or else graham bread, and well cooked Virginia corn bread occasionaly.

During this course of treatment take once every week a five-grain dose of powdered calomel, followed four hours afterwards by two ounces of castor oil. Warm the latter slightly on the stove before taking. Two months should put you in fine shape. If it does not on the above treatment, there is some obstructive cause within your body that needs the attention of a surgeon. If this should become necessary, get his services promptly.

WILSON NOT SATISFIED

President Might Prefer a Change in the Sundry Civil Bill.

Manufacturers Discuss Exemption of Unions From Attacks.

Washington, May 20.—President Wilson, at a conference with Chairmen Fitzgerald and Martin of the house and senate appropriation committees respectively, is said to have indicated that he might prefer to have eliminated from the sundry civil appropriation bill the much-discussed section which forbids that a certain item be used in prosecuting farmers and workingmen's organizations for violation of the Sherman law. President Taft vetoed the bill because of it, and President Wilson at first indicated that inasmuch as he thought it did not establish a general principle, he would not object to it.

Opposes the Provision.

Detroit, Mich., May 20.—"The sundry civil appropriation bill, which has passed both houses of congress and is awaiting the signature of the president, is the outcome of constant agitation by closed shop unions to prevent their being held subject to the Sherman anti-trust law," declared Joseph W. Bryce of Battle Creek, Mich., in an address before the National Association of Manufacturers here. Mr. Bryce's address on the "open shop" was the principal event on the first day of the first meeting ever held outside of New York city.

Privilege for 5 Per Cent.

"If all who labor were members of the closed shop unions," said Mr. Bryce, "or were even sympathizers with them, one might consider it political wisdom for the party in power to manifest its sympathy with closed shop ideas as it has done. However, the number of people in closed shop organizations would not equal 5 per cent of all the laboring people in this country. Yet it seems the 5 per cent are being given special privilege which cannot help but work injury to the 95 per cent.

"The labor unions, and more especially the American Federation of Labor and Industrial Workers of the World, are constantly attempting to unionize the industries of the country so that none but members of their organizations may be employed. In many cases their agreements are absolutely in contravtntion to all law."

Reports were submitted by the committees on union label, bankruptcy and uniform state laws.

As to Union Labels.

With reference to the union label, the committee reported:

"It is gratifying to note that, like other union suggestions, the identification that a label conveys has not been welcomed by the general public. In urging that our members discourage manufacturers and retailers from permitting the discriminatory and misleading union label to be placed upon products for general consumption, we would remind them that the total membership of the unions that undertake ot pass upon the 'fairness' or 'unfairness' of a manufactured article is only 400,000, a small fraction of the great working forces in American industry."

Last night the visiting delegates were entertained at different places in the city. The convention will last three days.

PINE INDUSTRY IS NOT AT AN END YET.

Thomas Murphy, superintendent of the logging operations of the Swan River Logging company, who was in Duluth last night on his way to Aitkin to serve as a grand juror, says that instead of logging in Northern Minnesota being pretty nearly at an end, there is a good deal of timber still to be taken out. The Swan River company, he says, has 150,000,000 feet of standing pine and it will take about five or six years to remove it. He says that the past season, during which the company employed 400 men in the logging business, was the best for logging in many years.

GOLD DUST

makes pot and pan spick and span

Pots and pans collect more dirt and grease than any other cooking utensil. The one best way of cleaning them is to use Gold Dust. Gold Dust not only takes off the outer surface, but digs deep after germs and hidden particles, and makes them as spotlessly clean and sanitary as when new.

If you want your pots and pans so bright you can see your face in them—your pots and kettles spotless and germ-proof, use Gold Dust in cleaning. It will do the work, too, in half the time of the ordinary cleanser—and save most of your labor. Gold Dust does the bulk of the work alone; you merely assist it.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy

W. M. TILDERQUIST IS SUMMONED

Well Known Mining Engineer Passes Away at His Home.

William M. Tilderquist, 44 years old, until recently superintendent of the North Uno, South Uno, Herald and Mississippi mines and former chief engineer of the Oliver Iron Mining company at Hibbing, died yesterday at his home, 2126 East Fifth street. He resigned his position four months ago because of ill health.

The late Mr. Tilderquist was recognized as one of the most capable mining engineers in Northern Minnesota. He graduated from the engineering college of the University of Minnesota in 1895 and has since been actively engaged in following his profession in this section of the state.

Besides his widow he is survived by three sisters and three brothers, one of whom is Dr. D. L. Tilderquist of this city.

The funeral will take place Thursday at 1 o'clock from the residence, and 2 o'clock from the First Swedish Evangelical Lutheran church, Sixth avenue east and Third street.

ROTARIANS MAY COME TO DULUTH

Delegates to Buffalo Convention May Pass Through Zenith City.

At a meeting of the Rotary club held yesterday, steps were taken to try to induce delegates from the West and the Northwest who will go to the convention of Rotarians at Buffalo during the week of Aug. 17, to come by way of Duluth, and all take a steamer from here to Buffalo, or if the delegates feel this will take too much time, to come here anyway and take a train to St. Ignace or some other embarking point and finish the trip by water.

Southwestern delegates could meet the party at Detroit for instance, and take the lake trip from there. Should this attempt prove successful or even partly so, the Rotarians of Duluth will endeavor to have the visiting Rotarians here for one of the Lark o' the Lake celebrations.

Active steps have been started to advertise Duluth at the Rotary convention at Buffalo as the city has never been advertised before. Literature will be spread broadcast and those attending the convention will know most emphatically that Duluth is the greatest port in the Northwest and second greatest in the world.

The meeting yesterday was one of the most largely attended that the club has ever enjoyed.

CORNER STONE OF ADDITION LAID

First Presbyterian Church to Have Sunday School Building.

With brief but impressive ceremonies, the corner stone for the $37,000 addition to the First Presbyterian church, Third avenue east and Second street, was laid at 7:30 o'clock last evening.

The new building will be three stories in height and is to follow the same line of architecture and construction as the main edifice. It will have an assembly room capable of seating 600 and separate classrooms for all departments of the Sunday school.

The wall will be taken from the rear of the church and a big archway built. The addition will be used mostly for the social features of the church and Sunday school.

The consecration ceremonies were lead by Rev. Robert Yost, pastor, who expressed the hope that the children of the community might consider it their home for pleasure as well as spiritual learning.

Others who took part in the ceremonies were W. H. Hoyt, chairman of the building committee; Abraham Holstead, architect; and Dr. R. W. Bowden, superintendent of the Sunday school.

DEMOCRATS PLAN FOR 1914 CAMPAIGN

More Senators May Be Put on Congressional Committee.

Washington, May 20.—Plans for active co-operation between the Democratic national committee and the Democratic congressional committee in the campaigns of 1914 and 1916 continue to advance. Leaders of both bodies are preparing for a conference they are to hold in the near future, and President Wilson has told Chairman Lloyd and Secretary Page of the congressional committee that he approves the new program.

In the meantime, the senate Democrats authorized Leader Kern to appoint five of their number to confer with the national and congressional committees about the proposed increase of the senate's representation on the latter. It is expected that after the conferences Messrs. Lloyd and Page will recommend that the membership be enlarged so as to admit 39 representatives and 21 senators. The committee membership now comprises 39 representatives and 9 senators. The increase of 12 senators would follow the president's original suggestion that the committee should be strengthened by giving its membership one senator from every state where there is to be an election in 1914, provided the state is now represented in the senate by a Democrat.

Representative Palmer of Pennsylvania, chairman of the national executive committee, and Thomas J. Pence, the publicity manager, met at the national committee headquarters and talked over the coming conference.

The congressional committee will meet within a fortnight, when, in all probability, the permanent organization will be effected. Officers will be elected and a committee of five chosen to serve with five members of the national committee as a joint executive campaign committee to act virtually as a board of strategy of the Democratic party.

TEST ALASKA COAL.

Government May Find It Valuable for Navy.

Washington, May 20.—Final tests to determine the value of Alaskan coal to the navy will be made by the cruiser Maryland during the present summer. Incomplete tests of coal from the Bering river fields indicate that it is high grade and may prove valuable for naval purpose.

The government pays $3 a ton for coal on board colliers at Norfolk and Baltimore, and delivered on Pacific coast points, Hawaii or the Philippines, it costs between $7.50 and $8.25 per ton. About 250,000 tons per year are sent to the Pacific. Most of it is transported in British bottoms, unavailable in time of war unless chartered before hostilities begin.

The whole American commercial fleet would be needed with a consequent paralyzing of industry to furnish the nation with colliers in war time to take coal to the Pacific.

NORTH DAKOTA WIDOW REPENTS.

Washington, May 20.—A North Dakota widow, stricken by conscience for some fraud against the government of the United States, has sent Secretary McAdoo $164 in restitution with this note:

"This is money that I promised God I would send back if ever I was able.—A Widow."

The money came by registered mail, and the identity of the penitent was not disclosed.

BRANNER PREXY OF STANFORD U.

Stanford University, Cal., May 20.—John Caspar Branner, professor of geology and since 1899 vice president of the Stanford university, will become president, vice Dr. David Starr Jordan, resigned. President Jordan's retirement as active head of the university will leave him free to devote his time to his work in behalf of world peace. He will receive the same salary he is drawing now.

IMPROVE TWO ROADS.

Walsh County, N. D., to Spend Motor Tax in Practical Way.

Grafton, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.) — Walsh county will spend its automobile taxes for road construction in a more sensible manner than some other sections of the state. Instead of spreading it over the county to all townships pro rata, the money will be expended on two roads in this county, one running north and south and the other east and west. It is probable the Meridian road will be taken for the one running north and south and the road to Park River for the other.

GIRL WHO AVENGED SISTER ACQUITTED.

Muncie, Ind., May 20.—Miss Doris Hood, the Hartford city school teacher held on a charge of attempting to kill Otis Fisher, a Muncie drug clerk, who, she alleges, wronged her younger sister, Ada, was found not guilty late yesterday. The jury was out only a short time and but one ballot was taken.

You'll Do Better at Kelly's

YOU'VE convinced us you like our new store—we believe that most of you do—the fact that we've just closed the largest April in our history and that May sales are leaping ahead at a great rate proves that you've been here. Salves Can't Cure Eczema

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this:

Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT.

A simple wash: A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D.D.D. Prescription. This penetrates to the disease germs and destroys them, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

A 50-cent bottle will start the cure and give you instant relief.

We have made fast friends of more than one family by recommending this D.D.D. Prescription to a skin sufferer here and there, and we want you to try it now on our positive no-pay guarantee.

STEFF CASE UNIQUE ONE

North Dakotan Accused of Firing Through Barrel, Killing Wife.

Denies He Knew Woman Was Concealed in Cask When He Fired.

Minot, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—To prove that John Steff knew that his wife was concealed in the barrel through which he shot and instantly killed her at the Steff farm home near here is the task confronting the prosecution. Steff, held for trial in the district court, is a prisoner in the Ward county jail.

Steff says he did not know that his wife was in the barrel. Remarks made by him before and after the shooting will be used by the defense as proof of his contention.

Jealousy Is Blamed.

Jealousy was responsible for the quarrels between Mr. and Mrs. Steff, which the prosecution says led up to the shooting. Steff had, on several occasions, accused her of infidelity, according to testimony introduced, and on the morning of the shooting he had accused her of being unfaithful.

After Steff had fired the fatal shot he walked some distance to where his hired man was working. He talked to him about ten minutes about seeding operations, and then went to the house where one of his children told him he had shot his wife.

There are six children and already applications have been made for permission to adopt, and all will be placed in good homes.

PLAN JUDGING OF LIVESTOCK

Feature of Coming Minnesota Trip of the Livestock Special.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A special feature of the livestock special to leave here June 9 with agricultural experts for a tour of Minnesota will be the livestock judging, which will be conducted at each stop. The farmers are invited to bring in their best bull, cow, calf, colt or pig and have them judged at the stock judging performance. Prizes are being offered by the business men in many towns for the best stock.

A grade Guernsey herd, consisting of five animals and headed by a pure bred Guernsey bull, has been secured from the Northeast experiment station farm at Grand Rapids and will be a feature of this stock demonstration. The results of using a pure bred bull in a herd of common cows is here illustrated. The four females are headed by Old Gracie, a common cow of unknown lineage. Her calf, Grace II, shows by her record the improvement in milk production. Grace III shows still further improvement. A fourth generation is represented in the heifer calf, which is seven-eighths pure and it cannot be distinguished from a pure bred animal.

Horses, Sheep and Hogs.

Besides the Guernsey stock above described, other dairy and beef herds, as well as horses, sheep and hogs, will be represented. A Holstein bull and cow, a beef type short horn, a dairy type short horn and a typical beef (Angus) bull will be among the animals carried and exhibited.

The stock that will be carried on the train is not "fancy" stock prepared for show only; they are all utility animals which show the results of careful and intelligent breeding. Each stop will have a full half day, thereby affording time for questions and discussion. Note the date when the train arrives and the time when the program begins. The schedule will be carried out rain or shine and the train is to be moved on time.

GRAND LODGE OF A. O. U. W. MEETING

North Dakota Organization and Degree of Honor Meets at Fargo.

Fargo, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The North Dakota A. O. U. W. and the Degree of Honor are in grand lodge session here. In addition to all the grand lodge officers of each Supreme Master Narviss of Muscatine, Iowa, is here and will deliver an address this evening at a reception for visitors. The usual welcoming speeches were postponed from this morning till this evening. President Emery of the city commission and Secretary Hardy of the Commercial club will tell the visitors how the city is theirs. Grand Master Carmody, Grand Chief of Honor Lyman and others will respond.

The A. O. U. W., with its 6,000 membership and 110 lodges in this jurisdiction, has disbursed $2,000,000 for the widows and orphans of members in this state since the division from South Dakota eighteen years ago. The Degree of Honor has about half the total membership of the A. O. U. W. and both are reported by the grand lodge officers to be in a flourishing condition.

JUDGE MORRIS TO TRY BISMARCK PUBLISHER.

Fargo, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge F. A. Youmans of Fort Smith, Ark., will be here next week to hold a term of Federal court for Judge Amidon of the United States court of this state. Judge Amidon, because of his seniority as a district judge, is frequently called to hear circuit court cases outside this district and is busily engaged in preparing some decisions in those he heard some time ago. Judge Amidon will also have Judge Morris of Duluth in this district to hear the case against Sam H. Clark, editor of a notorious bismarck publication, the second trial of which is to come up at Bismarck soon.

BOTH WANT CORPSE.

Suicide's Bride and His Aged Mother Would Give It Sepulchre.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—The body of J. J. Curl, who Saturday shot and seriously wounded his bride of two days and then committed suicide, will be turned over to Mrs. D. W. Shaberg, sister of Mrs. Curl, for burial, according to Coroner Jones. Mrs. Shaberg arrived from Kansas City last night and immediately went to the bedside of her sister, whose condition is causing some apprehension.

"Please don't take the body away," Mrs. Curl moaned throughout Monday after she had been informed that the aged mother of the dead man wanted the body sent to her home at Paris, Ill., for burial. "He is mine and I want to bury him. It is all I can do."

The funeral probably will be held in Kansas City, although definite arrangements have not been made.

CONFESS TO ARSON.

Wabasha County Man, Who Fired Plant, Goes to Penitentiary.

Wabasha, Minn., May 20.—J. S. Gedney, owner of a sauerkraut factory at Plainview, Wabasha county, was sentenced Monday to seven years in prison in the state penitentiary at Stillwater, after he had confessed to having committed arson in the third degree. Gedney's factory was burned some time ago.

George Cramer, who confessed to a similar charge, told the court that Gedney hired him to set the building on fire, agreeing to give him 15 per cent of the insurance money. He said Gedney misrepresented as to the amount of insurance carried.

INDICT RAILROAD MEN.

Conductor and Brakeman Alleged to Have Taken "Short" Fares.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—William A. Marks, a Northern Pacific conductor, and John Schott, a brakeman, were arrested here Monday by United States deputy marshals on the charge of having allowed passengers on trains between St. Paul and Fargo, N. D., to ride on "short" fares. The men were indicted on this charge by the Federal grand jury at Fergus Falls last Thursday.

The men will be prosecuted under the interstate commerce laws, which make it illegal for any railway employe to permit persons to ride on rates lower than scheduled. Marks was released on $2,000 bonds and Schott on $1,000 bond.

DUPES BY TELEGRAPH.

Confidence Man "Vagged" in Milwaukee Catches Many Victims.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 20.—Alexander Preston, 27 years old, an alleged check forger and all around confidence man and said to be wanted in Chicago, was sentenced to ninety days in the house of correction Monday on a charge of vagrancy.

Preston, according to the police, used the telegraph companies in duping his victims. From Chicago he sent telegrams to local physicians saying that he was a college chum and was coming for a visit. While in Dr. S. W. Markson's office, his first intended victim, a messenger boy arrived with a telegram for him saying that his mother was dead.

He thereupon asked the doctor to cash a check, but Mr. Markson failed to recall any of his classmates by the name of Preston, so he called the police.

Preston is said to have secured $275 from a Chicago physician on Saturday. He had many checks and names of physicians in Chicago, Milwaukee, and Detroit on his person when arrested, say the police.

While sojourning "on the farm," the police here are investigating the prisoner's record.

PAROLED MILWAUKEE YOUTH IS FORGER.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 20.—Arthur Langenbecker, 27 years old, on parole from the Green Bay reformatory, Monday was arrested and sentenced to two and a half years in the house of correction on charges of forgery and burglary.

Langenbecker, according to the police, admitted forging forty checks and committing twenty robberies in the last two months. When arrested the man was dressed as a laborer and had a large diamond pin in his necktie. The pin was missing when the prisoner reached the police station, but was later found imbedded in the mud on the mudguard.

Both animals died of the over exertion and their owners are endeavoring to discover the identity of the stranger with the automobile.

R.," the "man of mystery" at the state institution for the insane here, staff officials announce that the proposed operation upon the patient's brain in an effort to clear his memory has been postponed indefinitely.

Ontonagon—D. J. Norton, head of the Ontonagon Lumber company, is in search of bark peelers, the season for this work now being on. So much difficulty is experienced right now securing help, that the lumbermen are up against a tough proposition, according to Mr. Norton, and the question of securing laborers for the woods is one that is more than perplexing.

Calumet—Gulbrand Sether, the noted Norwegian artist and traveler, known as probably the foremost painter of snow scenes in the world, is visiting in Calumet for a short time, and has placed an exhibition of his splendid paintings in the Sauer building sample rooms, Fifth street, Red Jacket.

Baraga—The Baraga sawmills are preparing for a good season's cut. The Nester Lumber company extended the crew's shift to one day and a quarter. The logs in sight make it possible for the Nester Lumber company to work a longer shift in order to finish their season's cut before the closing season sets in.

Ironwood—Robert S. Rose of Marquette, one of the owners of the fee of the property on which ore was recently discovered near Wakefield, has arrived and will remain here the greater part of the summer. Mr. Rose will make his headquarters in Ironwood.

FACE TERRIBLE SIGHT WITH PIMPLES

Festered and Formed Hard Crust. Spread Rapidly. Soon Body was Covered. Terrible Itching. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

37 East 3rd Ave., Columbus, Ohio.—"When my little boy was eleven months old a tiny red spot appeared on the left side of his face. Tiny pimples sprang up from the red spot and they festered and formed a hard crust which spread rapidly. Soon his entire body was covered. His face was a terrible sight to see; one side was entirely covered and his ear was held tight to his head by the crusts which filled in so rapidly. His ear could not be seen. I had to keep little mittens made out of old soft linen tied on his hands to keep him from digging and tearing at his face and body. I kept his body bandaged in old linen because his clothes increased his suffering. We had to cut off every bit of his hair. He could neither sit down nor lie down and I could not hold him because the heat of my body increased the terrible itching.

"Then one day I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. I bought some more. Within two weeks' time not a blemish was left to show where the terrible disease had been. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured him." (Signed) Mrs. Grace O. Lind, Mar. 31, 1913.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

STEFF CASE UNIQUE ONE

North Dakotan Accused of Firing Through Barrel, Killing Wife.

Denies He Knew Woman Was Concealed in Cask When He Fired.

Minot, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—To prove that John Steff knew that his wife was concealed in the barrel through which he shot and instantly killed her at the Steff farm home near here is the task confronting the prosecution. Steff, held for trial in the district court, is a prisoner in the Ward county jail.

Steff says he did not know that his wife was in the barrel. Remarks made by him before and after the shooting will be used by the defense as proof of his contention.

Jealousy Is Blamed.

Jealousy was responsible for the quarrels between Mr. and Mrs. Steff, which the prosecution says led up to the shooting. Steff had, on several occasions, accused her of infidelity, according to testimony introduced, and on the morning of the shooting he had accused her of being unfaithful.

After Steff had fired the fatal shot he walked some distance to where his threshing was working. He talked to them about ten minutes about seeding operations, and then went to the house to tell one of his children told him he had shot his wife.

There are six children and already applications have been made for permission to adopt, and all will be placed in good homes.

PLAN JUDGING OF LIVESTOCK

Feature of Coming Minnesota Trip of the Livestock Special.

St. Paul, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A special feature of the livestock special to leave here June 9 with agricultural experts for a tour of Minnesota will be the livestock judging, which will be conducted at each stop. The farmers are invited to bring in their best bull, cow, calf, colt or pig and have them judged at the stock judging performances. Prizes are being offered by the business men in many towns for the best stock.

A grade Guernsey herd, consisting of five animals and headed by a pure bred Guernsey bull, has been secured from the Northeast experiment station farm at Grand Rapids and will be a feature of this stock demonstration. The results of using a pure bred bull in a herd of common cows is here illustrated. The four females are headed by Old Gracie, a common cow of unknown lineage. Her calf, Grace II, shows by her record the improvement in milk production. Grace III shows still further improvement. A fourth generation is represented in the heifer calf, which is seven-eighths pure and it cannot be distinguished from a pure bred animal.

Horses, Sheep and Hogs.

Besides the Guernsey stock above described, other dairy and beef herds, as well as horses, sheep and hogs, will be represented. A Holstein bull and cow, a beef type short horn, a dairy type short horn and a typical beef (Angus) bull will be among the animals carried and exhibited.

The stock that will be carried on the train is not "fancy" stock prepared for show only; they are all utility animals which show the results of careful and intelligent breeding. Each stop will have a full half day, thereby affording time for questions and discussion. Note the date when the train arrives and the time when the program begins. The schedule will be carried out rain or shine and the train is to be moved on time.

While in M. Markson's office, his first intended victim, a messenger boy arrived with a telegram for him saying that his mother was dead.

FACE TERRIBLE SIGHT WITH PIMPLES

Festered and Formed Hard Crust. Spread Rapidly. Soon Body was Covered. Terrible Itching. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

37 East 3rd Ave., Columbus, Ohio.—"When my little boy was eleven months old a tiny red spot appeared on the left side of his face. Tiny pimples sprang up from the red spot and they festered and formed a hard crust which spread rapidly. Soon his entire body was covered. His face was a terrible sight to see; one side was entirely covered and his ear was held tight to his head by the crusts which filled in so rapidly. His ear could not be seen. I had to keep little mittens made out of old soft linen tied on his hands to keep him from digging and tearing at his face and body. I kept his body bandaged in old linen because his clothes increased his suffering. We had to cut off every bit of his hair. He could neither sit down nor lie down and I could not hold him because the heat of my body increased the terrible itching.

"Then one day I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. I bought some more. Within two weeks' time not a blemish was left to show where the terrible disease had been. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured him." (Signed) Mrs. Grace C. Lind, Mar. 31, 1913.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Tender-faced men should use Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick, 25c. Sample free.

WOULD CHANGE JUDGES.

Senator O'Gorman Introduces Bill on Judiciary.

Washington, May 20.—Senator O'Gorman has introduced a bill to amend the judicial code so that circuit judges of the United States may be transferred in case of necessity. It would provide that when calendars are crowded and business becomes congested in one court, a judge whose calendar is not crowded can be sent to the congested circuit.

The measure was presented at the request of Judge Lacombe of the southern district of New York and his associates, who stated that on account of the small number of judges and the preference given government actions, litigation of citizens was delayed.

WILLIAM WEST MUST STAY IN PRISON.

William West, St. Louis county convict, was not successful in securing his liberty on a writ of habeas corpus in district court at Stillwater yesterday. The court remanded him to the penitentiary.

West sought his freedom on the ground that he is being required to serve two sentences for the same crime, one for burglary and another for grand larceny.

Mason M. Forbes, assistant county attorney, appeared in opposition to the granting of West's petition and argued to the court that the charges were separate and distinct and did not cover the same offense.

Mr. Forbes returned from Stillwater yesterday afternoon.

GUST FURMAN IS FOUND GUILTY

Gust Furman, or the "Terrible Swede," as he is better known in police circles, was found guilty of assault in the second degree by a jury in district court before Judge Dancer yesterday afternoon. The jury was out twenty-five minutes.

Furman broke a whisky bottle across the face of Gust Thompson while the two were occupying the same room in a lodging house at 110 St. Croix avenue on March 19 last. The evidence showed that Furman had become angered at Thompson because the latter had snored on the night previous.

MOUNT VERNON CLOSED SUNDAYS.

Washington, May 20.—Mount Vernon, home of George Washington, will remain closed to visitors on Sundays as heretofore as the result of resolutions adopted by the council of regents of the Mount Vernon association, now in annual sessions. This action was in response to a recent formal request from the chamber of commerce of Washington, pointing out that if open Sundays Mount Vernon would be visited annually by thousands who are unable to do so on week days.

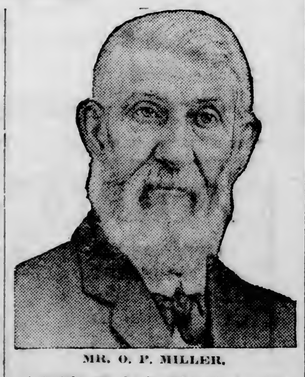
Bowels Get Weak As Age Advances

The First Necessity Is to Keep the Bowels Gently Open With a Mild Laxative Tonic.

Healthy old age is so absolutely dependent upon the condition of the bowels that great care should be taken to see that they act regularly. The fact is that as age advances, the stomach muscles become weak and inactive and the liver does not store up the juices that are necessary to prompt digestion.

Some help can be obtained by eating easily-digested foods and by plenty of exercise, but this latter is irksome to most elderly people. One thing is certain, that a state of constipation should always be avoided as it is dangerous to life and health. The best plan is to take a mild laxative as often as is deemed necessary. But with equal certainty it is suggested that cathartics, purgatives, physics, salts and pills be avoided, as they do but temporary good and are so harsh as to be a shock to a delicate system.

A much better plan, and one that thousands of elderly people are following, is to take a gentle laxative-tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which acts as nearly like nature as is possible. In fact, the tendency of this remedy is to strengthen the stomach and bowel muscles and so train them to act naturally again, when medicines of all kinds can usually be dispensed with. This is the opinion of many people of different ages, among them Mr. O. P. Miller, Baroda, Mich., who writes: "I am 80 years old and have been constipated for many years. Since receiving your sample bottle I have procured two 50c bottles and find that it is the best remedy I ever used and does just what you claim for it to the very letter. I can not recommend it too highly."



MR. O. P. MILLER.

A bottle can be bought of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar. People usually buy the fifty cent size first, and then, having convinced themselves of its merits, they buy the dollar size, which is more economical. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded. Any elderly person can follow these suggestions with safety and the assurance of good results.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

Charles O. White, 71 years old, who died last week, and Mrs. White celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary last February. They have been residents of Duluth for the past sixteen years. Besides four children, Mr. White leaves seventeen grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

CITIZENS ARE INDIGNANT

Twenty-Third Avenue Property Owners Denounce Action of Commission.

Say They Should Be Allowed to Choose Material for Pavement.

The letting of Twenty-third avenue paving contract to include the paving of the thoroughfare with crushed rock above Fifth street has aroused the ire of a large number of the property owners. They say that 75 per cent of the owners wanted sandstone all the distance, while under the terms of the contract the street will be paved from Michigan to Third street with brick, from Third to Fifth with sandstone and above Fifth street with crushed rock.

"The wishes of the property owners did not seem to have been consulted in this matter," said J. M. Olson, who owns 140 feet of frontage of Twenty-third avenue and Seventh street. "Fully 75 per cent of the owners here wanted sandstone. We are the ones who will pay for it and it should not make any difference to the commission what kind of material is used."

"I think the commissioners have made a big mistake in letting the contract for crushed rock," said A. Trulson, whose property is on Twenty-third avenue and Seventh street. "Every time it rains parts of the pavement will be washed down. The property owners were willing to pay for something permanent. I favored sandstone for the entire paving."

"I am surprised that the commissions let the contract the way they did," said E. A. Swanstrom. "It is perfectly clear in my mind that fully 75 per cent of the owners wanted sandstone for the entire street."

Will Be Washed Away.

"Who is paying for this job, anyway?" asked Dr. O. A. Oredson. "My assessment will come to over $500. The sentiment has always been for a permanent pavement and not some shoddy affair like crushed rock which will be washed out every time the elements pour on us. The property owners are willing to pay for sandstone and it has surprised us that the commission has taken it on itself to tell us that we don't know what we want. Why the members of the commission should want to prevent a first-class improvement is more than I can understand."

"The property owners wanted a permanent pavement and believed that sandstone would give it to them," said E. H. Olson of Enger & Olson, whose property adjoins Twenty-third avenue on Second street. When the petition was circulated the majority were in favor of sandstone. Those who were opposed to this pavement were also opposed to any improvement. It is the property owners and not the commissioners who will have to pay the cost and the property owners should be the judges as to what kind of a pavement they wish to pay for."

Helmer Jentoff who owns seventy-five feet on Third street and 140 on Twenty-third avenue, was also highly indignant because the contract was let for crushed rock for the upper two blocks of the street. He said that the crushed rock would not be permanent and that it would be only a question of time before a series of repairs would have to be made. Other property owners who are protesting are Charles Benson, A. Lofgren, the Zenith Telephone company and many of the owners above Fifth street.

IS BECOMING INTOLERABLE

Billboard Nuisance in West End Growing Worse, Say Residents.

Members of the West End Commercial club will be asked to indorse a resolution to the city commission asking for the suppression of glaring signboards throughout the West end, at its meeting Friday night at the Woodmen hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street. Sign boards, say business men and residents, are hemming them in on every side and fast becoming an intolerable nuisance.

"It matters not which way we look," said a Superior street merchant yesterday, "we have glaring signs telling us of baked beans, someone's sauce, the virtues of another's beer, form-fitting corsets, abilities of skirt dancers and hundreds of other things too numerous to mention. The signs are becoming worse and are being placed on every available space. A merchant is now glared at by a signboard advertising theaters, beer, tobaccos and cigars and other things which the church people are fighting against.

"The commission should pass an ordinance abolishing the sign board entirely. Similar ordinances are in effect in other cities. Here it should at least cover the principal streets. It is a shame to bring visitors to Duluth, take them along the principal thoroughfares that are lined with posters and cheap chromos."

West end people are especially aroused over the fact that the sign board nuisance appears to be entirely limited to the western end of the city. "You find no sign boards built in the East end, but the people out here are imposed upon by them, and so far have tolerated it."

Plan Annual Ball.

Plans were made for holding its third annual ball at the meeting of Duluth homestead, No. 3131, Brotherhood of American Yeomen last night. The party will be held at the Woodmen hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street on June 2.

The following members were appointed a committee to complete arrangements: J. A. Bellmeur, John C. Wesenberg, John Allen, Joseph Robinson, John Sluer and J. J. Hughes.

A class of candidates was initiated at the meeting. Following the work a social session was held at which a number of musical selections were given.

S. H. & E. F. Lodge Plans for National Convention in June.

The committee in charge of the entertaining of the delegates to the S. H. & A. F. national convention which will be held in the West end on June 3, 4 and 5, planned a series of affairs for the visitors at its meeting in the Sloan's hall last evening. A banquet, boulevard drive, excursion up the river and a visit to the steel plant are among the entertainments planned.

The banquet will be held at 6 o'clock on June 4 at the Woodmen hall, Twenty-first avenue west and First street. Following the dinner the delegates and visiting members will be entertained at dancing.

It is proposed to take the delegates over the boulevard on the afternoon of June 4. On the evening of June 3 a moonlight excursion is planned. On June 5 it is planned to visit the steel plant, if a permit can be secured from the company.

The business sesion will open on the morning of June 3. It is believed that the business of the order can be done during the morning hours of the convention days so that the visitors can enjoy themselves in visiting points of interest during the afternoons and evenings. Oscar Peterson is chairman of the executive committee in charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Backstrom Dies.

Mrs. Augusta Backstrom, 45 years old, wife of Andrew Backstrom, 711 Garfield avenue, died yesterday at St. Luke's hospital, following a short illness. She is survived by one child and her husband. The funeral arrangements will be made this afternoon.

Baptist Conference.

Rev. Milton Fish, pastor of the Central Baptist church, and Mrs. Fish, left yesterday for Detroit, Mich., where they will represent the local church at the annual Northern Baptist conference to be held there on May 23 to 28. They will return home in about ten days.

Entertains for Guest.

Smith, and Mrs. J. Mathieson. The guests were Mesdames A. Carroll, I. W. Smith, C. Shursen, F. Peterson, J. Wold, R. Fisher, F. Sandstedt, B. Olson, W. Lindberg, A. Christopherson, E. Anderson, J. IS KILLED BY AN ORE TRAIN

August Lundgren Is Victim of Accident Near Adolph.

A man, supposed to be August Lundgren, from a name written in a notebook found in his pocket, was run over and killed by an ore train at Adolph, the first station above Proctor, on the D. M. & N. between 5 and 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The body was horribly mutilated, both legs being cut off and the skull crushed.

The victim is believed to have been trying to steal a ride into the city on a down-bound ore train. The mutilated body was found lying beside the rails by the following train. It was picked up and brought to this city, where it was removed to the undertaking rooms of C. J. Stewart.

He was about 25 or 30 years of age and was clothed as a laboring man, with blue overalls, brown coat and vest, soft shirt and soft black hat. In the notebook was the notation, "August Lundgren. Tent No. 3."

HERO MEDAL FOR CAPT. VAN SCHAICK.

Washington, May 20.—In the presence of Maj. Gen. Wood, chief of staff, and several other high army officers, President Wilson presented to Capt. Louis J. Van Schaick, Sixth infantry, the congressional medal of honor for distinguished gallantry in the Philippines.

While in pursuit of a band of insurgents, Van Schaick was the first of the detachment to emerge from a canyon, and he engaged the enemy single-handed until reinforcements could arrive.

"It is a great pleasure," said the president, "to be the person to present this medal. The particular kind of gallantry which you showed, I may say, appeals to me in an unusual degree because the officer who knows how to protect as well as lead his men is of the sort, particularly in a country like ours, where thought is for the rank and file as well as for ourselves. I esteem it an honor to represent a nation which has officers who have this particular impulse and capacity."

Gets Father to Give Up.

Columbia, S. C., May 20.—Robert Garrett, who killed his son-in-law, Aaron Campbell, and the latter's father, John H. Campbell, has surrendered near Bishopville, where he was surrounded by a posse of 400 persons. Garrett's daughter, whom he forced to accompany him to the swamp, pleaded with Garrett to give himself up.

Athletic Park, May 19.—Still above the Vegetation Line—While the heavens smiled not yesterday, a deep black frown hanging like a pall over the park and encasing the spirits of those bold enough to venture forth in quest of their favorite sport, still the fates smiled with lavish and expansive grin and we won the third and final game from the Winona invaders by the count of 7 to 1.

Monty Woods, a southpaw with control, was on the mound for us, and during the murky and chilly afternoon but two hits were gathered off the cross fire delivery of our hero. One of these properly belonged to the ancient order of the scratch.

After the game, taking your correspondent aside, Mr. Woods stated that he had almost decided to run for mayor of Bottineau, N. D., this coming year.

"If I can control the ball as I did this afternoon," he spake forth, 'then surely I should be able to control sufficient votes of the young and old men of my native city."

Rousing Double Play.

During the matinee, which lasted but one hour and thirty of the minute things, but twenty-nine of the opposition faced Mr. Woods. A rousing double play in the fifth, which started when Ted Corbett hit to Rhoades and that gent flung to O'Brien who in turn whipped to Meniece in time to beat the opposing pitcher to the bag—at least Kissane so ruled—hurried things along. Then again the fact that Woods issued but two passes prevented a waste of time.

In at least two stages of the baseball journey of yesterday young and rotund Mr. Woods of Bottineau was given some glittering support.

In the first inning Mr. Connell, the first man up, hit one of those pestiferous things called a Texas leaguer to shallow right center. Our Darby ran like a fat fish out of water and turned as she neared the ground and speared her going back with his glove hand. Loud applause from those on hand. On hand, see. Some from those on foot. also.

Then in the fourth Mr. Lefty Davis came to bat. Grim was his face. Maddened by the taunts of the bleachers, and no doubt recalling those ancient and glorious days of Pittsburg, New York and Cincinnati and several other well-known towns, he resolved to do. He would, had it not been for our Elmer Miller of Sandusky, where glue is made. Mr. Davis hit one to the right of Mr. Smith of Milan and far to the left of the other Elmer. They were both after it, but the Miller Elmer beat the Smith Elmer to it, and leaping lightly into the air with all the grace and abandon of a Russian dancer who learned to dance in the Ghetto, he speared the ball.

The first hit of the visitors came in the second inning, when Davis hit one down the right foul line for one base. The other one came in the eighth inning and was secured by Pitcher Reiger. He hit one that O'Brien got his hands on while cantering with the ball, but was unable to hold.

One Score for Giants.

The one score of the Giants came in the second inning. Davis singled and Fautsch whiffed ignominously. Then Ewald hit a fly which Smith dropped and then recovered in time to heave Davis out at second. Buddy Ewaldt swiped second and came all the way home when Meniece dropped a throw to get Meyer on an infield hit. Corbett ended the round by whiffing.

After this little streak of sadness the visitors did not get a man to second base, but two reached first base during the remainder of the game. Woods gave the best exhibition of pitching we have seen on the home grounds this season.

Samuel Sycamore Meniece singled over second in the second and then went all the way to third when Old Man Davis let the ball roll unconcernedly to the fence. Rhoades lofted to left and Meniece beat the heave to the pan.

Smith singled to right and Schreiber and McCarthy beat out infield hits, and the bases were what is known as being choked. The infielders and the brave outfielders played in, and when Woods filed to Baxter, that gent was so near the infield that Smith hesitated too long to make the gallop for home. O'Brien lofted to center, and this propitious inning with its four hits yielded but one run.

Woods walked to open the eighth and O'Brien was perfectly safe on Connell's bubble. McGraw fouled out to Meyer and then Miller cracked one to left and our fat little Woods was in. Meniece flew to Davis and our Darby flew home with all his accustomed speed. Faster than ever this year.

Frank McGraw Shines.

In the loving sixth Smith of Milan, who claims relationship with the glink who penned the immortal words regarding the lure of liberty, shot one to the immediate right of Lefty Davis for two sacks worth. Young Mr. Schreiber laid down his life for the advancement of Comrade Smith. Here Daredevil Jack McCarthy shot one a mile a minute to right and Brother Smith was home. Woods flew to Davis and then O'Brien brightened up his batting average a trifle by shooting through Connell.

At this point Mr. Franklyn McGraw, the newlywed, with a sheepish grin on his handsome countenance, such as all newlyweds who have never been wed afore wear, stepped into one, wishing to prevent any possibility of playing the last half of the ninth in order that he might hasten home to little wife, and when the ball was relayed back to the diamond our little benedict was on third. You done noble, Frank! Frank was left stranded at third, but he scored two by his valorous deed.

Meniece walked in the eighth, was sacrificed to second and went to third when young Reiger will pitched this gracefully. Sam counted when Fautsch made a bubble of Schreiber's ground hit.

There is a rumor that all of the players conspired to make the game fast in order that McGraw might get home to his wife.

The baseball players all say that the only signs of spring they have observed is the marriage of Franklyn McGraw.

DEVORE-SHAFER-DOYLE-HARTLEY OF NEW YORK—EGAN-BECKER OF CINCINNATI.

DULUTH'S PENNANT WILL BE RAISED NEXT SATURDAY

Saturday will be flag day at Athletic park. President Harry Blume made this announcement today. Minneapolis will be the opposing team and the chief ceremonial of the day, besides the playing of the game, will be the raising of the proud pennant that was won by the Sox last season.

Yesterday a long, white object lay stretched out full seventy feet in center field. She was the majestic flag pole that is to bear aloft the big pennant that the White Sox of 1912 bore away from the eager clutches of Winnipeg, Superior and Grand Forks.

If the cursed weather is decent, even half way decent, the day promises to be a large one.

All of the amateur teams of the city have been cordially invited to participate in the doings at the park. Members of all the amateur teams of the city who appear in uniform will be admitted to the park free of charge and will have a conspicuous place in the flag-raising festivities.

There are several amateur pennants to be presented and it is planned to give these to the various teams while the See-Eye gonfalon is being formally and eloquently presented to the city of Duluth.

It is very probable that Monty Woods, the boy who gave so remarkable a pitching exhibition yesterday, will be sent to the firing line on flag day to oppose Ralph Comstock, the great pitcher of the Minneapolis team.

Officials of the club want to make the program as attractive as possible, and with Woods and Comstock as the opposing heavers the game should be one of the best of the season to date, with the weather in mind always.

Just at the present time Minneapolis is leading the league and playing a remarkable game. This team was selected to share in the honors of flag day as it is occupying the top position in the race and also because some of the most famous players in the new league are with the Bronchos.

The big flag pole will be set up today and will majestically tower some sixty-five feet over the grounds. From this proud position the pennant will float during the remainder of the season, an inspiration to the players of the team and a source of pride to the true fans of Duluth.

If young Cunningham reaches here some time the present week the youngster may be sent into the box against Minneapolis either Friday or Sunday.

If we have any kind of weather it is believed that next Sunday's game with Minneapolis will break all attendance records at the local park.

DULUTH vs ST. PAUL

GRAND FORKS WINS FINAL FROM ST. PAUL.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 20.—Grand Forks won the closing game of the series from St. Paul yesterday by the score of 4 to 2, Jarnigan being steady in the pinches and teing stingy in the matter of hit when hits would have proved disastrous for the home team. Foster hit for a triple and Altman for a home run in the fourth inning, three runs resulting from this vicious attack on the curves of Mike Kraemer. Bill Carney, the recently appointed manager of the Flickers, got in the game and made a good showing. Score:

Play Eleven Innings.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 20.—The Brooklyn and St. Louis teams wound up their series with an 11-inning battle yesterday, the locals making it three straight by a 2 to 1 score. Rucker, who started off for Brooklyn, injured his hand stopping a ball in the first inning and had to retire. He will be out of the game for several days. Yingling, who relieved him, twirled a sensational game. Konetchy's single, Cathers' sacrifice, an out and Whitted's hit sent across the only St. Louis run in the fourth. Griner also pitched sterling ball. Brooklyn tied the score in the sixth on Stengel's scratch hit, Wheat's out and Daubert's single. The teams then fought evenly until the eleventh when Whitted fumbled Stengel's grounder and then threw wild to the grandstand. Stengel took third on the double error, Wheat flied out and Daubert was walked intentionally. Smith made a drive past Konetchy then and Stengel scored the winning run. Score:

Win in Fourteenth.

New York, May 20.—New York defeated Pittsburg in a hard-fought 14-inning game by a score of 3 to 2. Cammitz and Marquard engaged in a wonderful pitchers' battle, but both gave way in extra innings to pinch men. Hendrix, who relieved Cammitz, allowed New York to tie the score in the twelfth and to win out in the fourteenth.

Pittsburg scored in the first inning on Carey's single, Viox's double and a fielder's choice. The Giants tied it up in the fourth on Fletcher's single and Doyle's triple. The game was a tie until the twelfth, when Simon singled. Kelly ran for him and scored on a wild pitch, a single and a sacrifice fly. The Giants tied it again in their half on Herzog's double, a passed ball and Kelley's wild throw to third. They won out in the fourteenth when Herzog and Meyers singled with one out. Score:

Go Extra Inning.

Boston, Mass., May 20.—Connolly, whose home run drive with three on bases in the ninth inning helped Boston tie the score, contributed to his team's defeat is the tenth when he dropped Clarke's fly. Clarke scored on Becker's single, Cincinnati, winning 9 to 8. Cincinnati apparently had the game when Boston came to the bat in the ninth, five runs behind. Benton had been keeping the locals' hits scattered, while Cincinnati hit Tyler hard in the fourth, gaining their big lead. In the ninth Benton weakened and was succeeded by Johnson, who passed Meyers, filling the bases. Connolly's home run followed by Sweeney's single caused Johnson's retirement in favor of Brown. Then Sweeney scored on two sacrifices. Brown retired Boston in the tenth by striking out Calhoun and Myers and throwing out Maraville. Score:

Phillies Win Series.

Philadelphia, May 20.—Philadelphia made a clean sweep of the series of three games with Chicago, the visitors losing yesterday, 10 to 4. Chicago got a lead of three runs by hitting Brennan's delivery hard in the first two innings, but after that the home twirler had things his own way. In the third inning Philadelphia piled up six runs on four hits and three bases on balls off Lavender and an error by Phelan. They also made good use of their hits in the fourth and sixth innings. Zimmerman was ordered off the field in the fourth by Umpire Byron for disputing the latter's decision in refusing allow a claim that Knabe had left third base before Miller made a sensational catch of Magee's fly. Tigers Win Opener.

Detroit, Mich., May 20.—Willett held Philadelphia hitless in all but the third and eighth innings yesterday and Detroit took the opening game of the series by a 9 to 3 score. The Tigers hit Wyckoff and Bush hard, Cobb leading the assault with three clean singles.

After Vitt, in the first inning walked and advanced on an infield out, Cobb's single scored him. In the third, Philadelphia made three runs on singles by Thomas, Wyckoff and Oldring, and a triple by Collins, in the Detroit half of the third, after Bush walked Vitt and drew a pass, Cobb singled and stole between Walsh and Murphy; Crawford drew a pass, Cobb singled and stole and Veach's single produced the winning runs. Bush was then sent in to pitch for Philadelphia. Detroit ran bases almost at will while Thomas was behind the bat. He was relieved in the fourth inning by Lapp. Score:

Highlanders Victorious.

St. Louis, Mo., May 20.—The New Yorks won the first game of the series from St. Louis here yesterday, 8 to 6. The St. Louis undoubtedly will protest the game to President Johnson of the American league on account of Manager Chance batting out of his turn in the eighth inning. St. Louis protested to Umpire Hildebrandt after the inning but he said it was too late. Chance batted for Fisher in the eighth and grounded out. Later when he came up the second time he batted in Derrick's place and singled, scoring two runs. New York bunched five singles with two bases on balls and an error for seven runs in the eighth inning. New York scored in the first on two singles and an error. Two singles, a hit batsman and two errors gave St. Louis three runs in the sixth. In the ninth a double, a passed ball, a sacrifice fly, two bases on balls and two singles netted St. Louis three more runs. Score:

Ninth Straight Victory.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 20.—Pitcher Cy Falkenberg won his eighth straight victory at the expense of Washington, the score being 4 to 1. An error of judgment by First Baseman Johnston, who put a base runner out at first when he might have cut off Williams when he plate in the eighth, deprived Falkenberg of a shutout. Cashion was wild in the first inning. Johnson reached first on a single, Olson bunted safely. Turner walked forcing Johnson in with a run. Chapman was out at the plate, but Jackson singled, scoring Olson and Turner.

Williams scored Washington's run in the eighth on his triple and an infield out. Cleveland then scored on Chapman's single as a sacrifice out and Johnson's single.

Jackson killed a triple for McBride by a shoe-string catch. Score:

Joe Wood Wins.

Chicago, May 2.—Joe Wood, the "smoke ball" star pitcher of the world's championship, had the locals at his mercy yesterday and Chicago lost the opening game of the series, 1 to 10, after eight innings of playing. The game was called at the time on account of darkness. Scott's wildness, coupled with opportune hitting, gave Boston six runs before Scott was replaced in the fifth inning by Smith. While Smith pitched, the visitors added three more runs. Cicotte pitched a creditable game.

The fielding behind Wood was perfect, while that behind the local twirlers was very poor. All the errors made by the locals were costly. Score:

Superior Hitting Wins.

Kansas City, Mo., May 20.—Indianapolis took a 6 to 3 game from Kansas City yesterday through superior hitting. Covington's wildness also contributed to the locals' defeat. Walker went to second on a wild throw and scored on Fiene's single.

In the second the visitors evened things, scoring two runs on Down's single and four bases on balls. In the eighth Indianapolis added two more runs on Metz's single, a base on balls and Crandall's double. Brandt and Lyman Go and Walsh Is Signed By Carney.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 20.—Playing Manager "Bill" Carney of the Grand Forks team in the Northern league has begun changes which he expects will materially strengthen the aggregation. Brandt, who has played right field, was the first to go, and he was immediately signed up with the St. Paul club, playing with the Jones team yesterday.

Lyman has been displaced at second by Sharkey, a Virginia, Minn., early season release, while Walsh, of Minneapolis, has got into the outfield and will catch.

Attendance figures in Grand Forks have proven remarkaby good. In two of the three games against Minneapolis the local club paid more than the guarantee to the Millers. Sunday about 2,500 witnessed the contest between the locals and St. Paul.

BADGERS WILL ROW ST. PAUL OARSMEN.

Madison, Wis., May 20.—Coach Vail of the University of Wisconsin crew is rounding the varsity eight into condition for the first race of the season, which will be rowed against the Minnesota Boat club on Saturday. The race will be rowed over the mile and a half course on Lake Mendota and will give the Badger crew adherents their first opportunity of the year to size up Wisconsin as a factor in the intercollegiate regatta to be held at Poughkeepsie on Saturday, June 21.

Wisconsin defeated the Minnesota Boat club last year in a two-mile race in eight minutes, sixteen and two-fifths seconds. This is usually the trial test given the Badgers a week or so before the trip to the Hudson. Coach Vail already is planning for several four-mile time trials over the lake course before the squad leaves for the East early in June.

The new eight-oared and four-oared varsity shells now being built in the East are nearing completion and will be ready for the oarsmen when they arrive at Poughkeepsie. In addition another eight-oared rowing craft will be carried with the squad in order that the Wisconsin camp may not be hampered in case of accidents to the new shell.

AVIATOR DRIVEN OFF HIS COURSE.

Key West, Fla., May 20.—Augustine Parla, a Cuban aviator who left here on an attempted flight to Havana, Cuba, at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, landed at Bay Mariel, forty miles west of Havana. Parla had been notified by the Cuban government that it would be impossible to have a ship patrol the course and it was announced that he would make a short flight to Sand Key and return.

Parla failed to turn back at Sand Key and was soon lost to sight, nothing being heard from him until news of his arrival in Cuba was received. He was competing for the prize of $5,000 offered by the city of Havana for the second successful flight from here to that city.

Parla alighted at 4:38 o'clock in the harbor of Mariel, forty miles west of Havana. During the trip he encountered strong adverse winds, as a result of which he was driven off his course.

FREE LUNCHES AND MUSIC BARRED FROM SALOONS

The New Ordinance Strips Thirst Quenching of All Its Frills.

Law Also Aimed at Brewery Control—Other Ordinances Passed.

Commissioner W. A. Hicken, head of the division of public safety, introduced an ordinance at the meeting of the city commission yesterday afternoon which, if it becomes operative, will eliminate all restaurants, eating houses and free lunches in saloons; prevent brewery control of saloons and prohibit pool or billiard tables or any gambling device as well as any musical contrivance in any saloon in the city.

The proposed new ordinance took its first reading yesterday and will be given the second reading at the next meeting. At the third reading it will be passed as drawn unless amended.

Enforcement of the ordinance as presented yesterday would put some of Duluth's well-known chop houses, operated in connection with saloons, out of business. It provides that no "restaurant, eating house, table or any means or contrivance to provide, supply or furnish food for giving away or selling to a customer" shall be allowed in a saloon. Most of the restaurants in question have been conducted for years, catering almost solely to men, and much opposition to this section of the ordinance will undoubtedly develop before it comes up for its final passage. Equally effective is the ban which it places on the "festive hot dog" and the free lunches generally.

No Brewery Saloons.

Under it, no brewery can own or control or have any interest in any saloon. No employe of a brewery or any one connected with a brewery can obtain a license to operate a retail liquor establishment, nor can any saloon keeper obtain any financial aid from any brewery whatsoever. The only connection which a saloon keeper can have with a brewery is that which comes of making purchases of liquor from a brewery. Before a license shall be granted the person making the application shall make a sworn statement covering the above ground and answering such questions as may be prescribed in the form presented with the application.

Dance Hall Ordinance.

The dance hall ordinance was passed as drawn, prohibiting dances and roller rinks within 600 feet of any public park or playground and reducing the age limit from 21 to 18 years, to conform in the latter particular with the state law. The sentiment of the commission was clearly expressed that none of its members wish to eliminate wholesome amusements in connection with the parks. The ordinance will be tried out as it now reads, but should any changes be found necessary the proper amendments will be passed. The commissioners stated specifically that they do not desire to prevent the labor organizations from holding a dance in their pavilion at Fairmont park, nor do they wish to stop private parties from enjoying themselves in one or two of the other properly conducted pavilions adjacent to parks. Their aim is to put an end to the continuous public dances which have come into bad repute.

Dog Ordinance Passed.

The dog ordinance was given its final reading and passed. Under it the owner of Fido gets off much more cheaply by taking out his license at the office of the city clerk than if forced to do so by the dog catcher. If his canine is impounded it will cost him $2 to have him released, in addition to the $1.25 fee required at the clerk's office. And there's an inducement for the dog catcher to get busy, for every dog which is taken from the pound means 25 cents to him, besides his salary. Thus far about 600 licenses have been taken out at the clerk's office, as compared with less than 200 at the same time a year ago. The ordinance states that any person who feeds or harbors a dog for six days shall be considered the owner or keeper of such dog.

Consideration of the coal ordinance was continued for one week. The commissioners want more time to investigate the situation. They believe that the city should be able to get a better price on its fuel, as it uses about 3,000 tons a year, than the man who purchases a ton or two at a time.

Water Extensions.

An ordinance appropriating $7,000 for extensions for the water and light department was given its first reading. When it was read Finance Commissioner Voss pointed out to Commissioner Leonidas Merritt, head of the division of public utilities, that the fund for the extensions is low. "Your department will be unable to make any large amount of extensions this year unless the city sells the $100,000 of water and light bonds which are yet unsold," he said. "The bond market at this time is unfavorable and if we can get along without disposing of them now, I recommend that we do so." Commissioner Merritt stated that he would give the matter his immediate attention. All of the commissioners agreed that the present time is not favorable to the sale of bonds.

Moving Ordinance.

The moving ordinance was passed without any objection. It requires any one moving any one to have a permit, which shall be returned to the police department, giving the name of the person moved and noting the old and new locations. No fee is attached to the permit.

An ordinance making a tentative blanket appropriation of $10,000 for the construction of plank and cement sidewalks in Duluth this season was given its first reading. The estimated cost of walks for the current year is $60,000, as stated at the meeting yesterday, but the general fund is practically fundless, so that sum could not be appropriated in the ordinance. When the money comes in the additional sums necessary can be appropriated.

Commissioner Murchison stated that in his opinion it would not be advisable to change the location of the mixing plant adjacent to the Iron Range tracks between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth avenues east. He explained that it is necessary for the plant to be located near a railroad siding and that it is late in the season to be seeking another site for it. He added that as the locomotives cause considerable smoke it is difficult to estimate how much the nuisance is augmented by the mixing plant.

Contract Let.

The contract for improving Seventh street from Fourth avenue west to Fourteenth avenue east was awarded to J. A. Johnson for crushed rock with cement curb and gutters. His bid was $63,340. The contractor has been slow with city contracts in the past and Commissioner Murchison stated that he had explained to him that similar delays would not be tolerated. He said that he had told him that if he couldn't do the job he must be prepared to expect to have the city step in or to pay the penalties provided by the contract.

W. C. Agnew sent in a communication complaining of the condition of East First street between Nineteenth and Twentieth avenues. It was referred to the division of public works.

The Loyal Order of Moose was given a license to conduct a dance hall at 224 West First street, upstairs.

Ordinances granting franchises for the construction of spur tracks at Fourteenth avenue east and Water street and near Forty-ninth avenue west and Ramsey street were given their first hearings.

O. Lindstrom was awarded the contract for hauling pipe for the water and light department for the current season. An ordinance appropriating $6,000 for that purpose had already been passed.

A sanitary sewer was ordered constructed in Jay street from Forty-fourth to Forty-eighth avenues east.

SUPERIOR MUST HELP

Duluth Cannot Stamp Out Vice If It Flourishes Across Bay.

Clifford G. Roe Talks on Prodigal Son and Prodigal Daughter.

Clifford G. Roe, general counsel of the American Vigilance association, who was in Duluth yesterday, is spending today in Superior.

Mr. Roe declared yesterday, and he was in hearty accord with the views of Duluth people interested, that Duluth and Superior must co-operate if vice is effectively to be suppressed in either city. Rev. H. W. Knowles, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Superior, was in Duluth yesterday and conferred with Mr. Roe. He declared that the Superior people will be just as active as Duluth people in the battle for moral cleanliness. Superior is handicapped by the lack of an effective weapon such as the injunction law of Minnesota, but Mr. Knowles expressed the belief that even without that law vice can be wiped out in Superior.

A branch of the American Vigilance association will be organized in Duluth, according to a decision reached at a mass meeting at the First M. E. church last evening. Mrs. A. A. Kerr read the report of a committee which has been making an investigation. Mrs. Kerr reported that the committee estimated that 1,000 Duluth women could be enlisted in the cause and a fund of at least $1,000 raised. She recommended that the Duluth Vigilance association be composed of two committees, one to consist of one or more delegates from each organization interested, and the other to be an executive committee of five members. The committee was given more time and at a future meeting will recommend the names of the two committees.

In his address last evening Mr. Roe declared that the new injunction abatement law should make easy the task of those who would drive commercialized prostitution out of the city. He said that Duluth should show no mercy to the segregated district and once that is wiped out, vice can also be driven out of the residence and business sections of the city.

One Moral Standard.

Mr. Roe made a plea for education and for the single standard of morals which he said will be a result of education. He told of the methods of procurers and cadets in the cities where the white slave traffic has a hold. He said they reach out, not only for the girl who has made one mis-step, but for the pure girl who is not sufficiently protected by education to resist the blandishments of those who would accomplish her ruin.

Ignorance on the part of parents and the public, immoral literature, pictures and songs, hasty marriages and other causes were given for commercialized vice always having a new supply of human material. Mr. Roe said that the low wages paid girls were not entirely responsible for conditions, for low wages paid men had just as great an economic bearing on the subject. If fathers were able to provide properly for their daughters there would be fewer girls going wrong, he said.

Prodigal Daughter.

"We still have the prodigal son," said Mr. Roe. "He comes home and the fatted calf is killed, but where is the fatted calf for the prodigal daughter. The door is opened for the prodigal son and closed for the prodigal daughter and there is the greatest evil of the double standard of morals."

At a meeting at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday afternoon, Mr. Roe urged that a committee of women visit the women in the red light district and offer them encouragement to leave the immoral life. He held out little hope that any of the old-timers in the district would avail themselves of the opportunity, but he said that some girls might be found who had not been in the life sufficiently long to become enamoured of it. The committee was promised hearty support in its efforts, thirty names of women willing to help being handed to Dr. McCoy. Mrs. J. T. Davis was appointed treasurer to act until the organization is completed.

"You can't redeem a girl, exploited under the social evil, by placing a Bible and a hymn book in her hand," Mr. Roe told the women. "She must have more than the Bible to exist on. Our society and church women must give her a chance."

Mr. Roe said the women must lead in the suppression of the white slave traffic, for until the women were willing to grapple with the problem and hold out a helping hand to their fallen sisters, the white slave traffic would go on and keep its hold upon its victims.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES OPPOSE TARIFF BILL

Senate Committee Receives Protests on Administrative Features.

Washington, May 20.—While Democratic senators are wrestling with home manufacturers protesting against numerous rates in the Underwood bill, they are confronted also by protests from foreign countries against administrative features of the bill and the provisions that would grant a 5 per cent reduction of the duty on imports in American bottoms.

Protests from England, Germany, France, Italy, Australia and other countries have been lodged with the state department and communicated to the finance committee, where they will first be considered by a sub-committee of which Senator Williams is chairman.

The attention of the chairman is called to a meeting of the National Association of Industry and Commerce of France a few days ago, at which the Underwood bill was condemned, the administrative features of which, it was claimed, would arbitrarily increase the hindrances to trading with this country.

Oppose Exclusion Clause.

From many countries have come protests against the new provisions in the bill which would give the secretary of the treasury authority to exclude from entry goods of merchants or manufacturers who refuse to submit for inspection by United States agents their accounts pertaining to valuations or classification of merchandise whenever disputes arise. The present attitude of the committee and the administration is to adhere to this provision, the claim being that it will not be abused and will serve as a bar to professional defrauders. Foreign governments maintain that it will result in unusual trouble.

One request of the foreign governments is for a return to a provision of tariff laws before the Payne-Aldrich bill, which in cases of disputed valuation would give the appraiser the right to increase it 5 or 10 per cent. Such a provision was originally included in the Payne-Aldrich bill, but it was not there when the bill passed, the claim being that it was unintentionally omitted. Consideration of all these protests will be taken up by the finance committee soon.

TRAVELING MAN'S WOUNDS ARE FATAL

Drummer Who Shot Himself While in Hibbing Hospital Dies.

Hibbing, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The two bullet wounds that Paul Zaro, a Chicago traveling man fired into his head yesterday afternoon while a patient in the Adams hospital where he was being treated for congestion of the lungs proved fatal as death resulted about 4 p. m. Pending the arrival of his brother, Arthur, from Ashley, Ill., no arrangements for the funeral will be made. It is expected the body will be taken to Richview, Ill., where Zaro's wife lives.

Cause Is Mystery.

He was about 40, traveled for Zaro Bros., Chicago tailors, of which firm he was a member, and belonged to Englewood Hill lodge No. 822, Odd Fellows and to the U. C. T. He was well dressed and well supplied with money.

Only two hours before the shooting he was chatting with J. H. Nelson, who had called to see him, both being Odd Fellows. He showed Mr. Nelson a telegram from his brother asking if he should come to Hibbing. Zaro asked Mr. Nelson to wire his brother that he was getting along fine and that he did not need to come. At the hospital he was regarded as an ordinary patient and it was not known that he had a revolver in his possession.

HIBBING CLUB NOT YET BEATEN

Trolley League Team Has Won Every Game So Far Played.

Hibbing, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Every team in the Trolley league has now lost at least one game, with the exception of Hibbing, which can still boast an unsullied 1,000 per cent.

Hibbing took two games from Eveleth Saturday and Sunday, Chisholm lost to Biwabik Saturday by the disheartening score of 10 to 0, but came back strong on Sunday and won, 13 to 6. The Mahomis and Gilbert did not play Saturday owing to wet grounds, but Sunday Mahomis won, 14 to 4.

The teams of the Trolley league now stand as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Hibbing	4	0	1.000
Biwabik	3	1	.750
Mahomis	2	2	.500
Eveleth	2	3	.400
Chisholm	1	3	.250
Gilbert	0	4	.000

Gilbert to Strengthen Team.

Gilbert is the only team in the league which has not made a fair showing thus far, and the Gilbert team is to be materially strengthened before any more games are played. Chisholm is close to the bottom of the percentage table, but Chisholm has had some very hard games and has lost by close score for the most part. The Chisholm team is a strong one and will be a vigorous contender for the range Trolley league pennant. Biwabik has a fine team and with Hibbing and Chisholm has thus far shown the best class in the league. The Mahomis team has some splendid ball players and is going to be dangerous at all times. Eveleth has had some hard luck but it has a well rounded team that is capable of playing very good ball. On the whole the league is fairly well balanced except that Hibbing appears a trifle too strong and Gilbert a trifle too weak.

GOES AFTER POINTERS.

Chisholm Village Engineer to Consult State Health Board.

Chisholm, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Village Engineer F. C. Lang left today for the Twin Cities to confer with the state board of health with regard to the latest improved methods in sewage disposal tanks. The village recently purchased a site upon which to establish a disposal tank and the plans that were drawn two years ago were at that time in conformity with the state laws, but improvements in that line advance rapidly and in order to have the new plant strictly up to the minute, the council decided that the sending of the engineer to St. Paul would permit of embodying the most modern ideas. The plant without the site was estimated to cost about $30,000. Bids will be called for just as soon as the engineer's report can be obtained.

Long Needed Improvement.

The matter of improving the pumping plant has been under consideration for a number of years and whenever the point has been raised the obstacle of how the pumping shall be done has deterred it.

Many pumping schemes have been suggested, both electricity and steam playing the big factor and since the electrical pumping plan has been temporarily dropped the steam power will be installed and in sufficient capacity to provide for the growing needs of the town for several years to come.

SKELETON IN MARSH.

Tower Deputy Coroner Not Able to Learn Much About Find.

Tower, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Deputy Coroner R. L. Burns has not been able to learn anything as to the identity of the skeleton of a man found last week in a cranberry marsh five miles from Embarrass by Oscar Lerander, a homesteader, about 100 feet from the Tower-Biwabik road. The man was evidently young, from the patches found had brown hair and his teeth were in good state of preservation. He had been dead at least three years. Nothing was found to indicate identity. No bones were fractured and the skull was intact leading to the belief death was not caused by foul play. The case is a puzzler.

NEW TURBINE FOR POWER STATION

Great Northern Company Decides to Add to Its Equipment.

At a special meeting of the directors of the Great Northern Power company held at the company's offices yesterday, it was voted to purchase a 20,000-horse power hydraulic turbine to be installed at the plant. The new turbine will be the largest of its kind in the world and will cost in the neighborhood of $300,000.

Several directors from outside of the city were here to consider the matter, which is considered a most important one not only because of the amount of money to be paid out, but because of the tremendous improvement it will make to the plant.

The new turbine will be ordered at once, but will not be completely installed until next summer. The company now has in use three 16,000-horse power turbines, but already these are loaded almost to capacity and with the immense growth that Duluth is enjoying just now, the company must anticipate further development. The new turbine, it was felt, is imperative. Directors present at the meeting were: H. W. Watson, New York; W. J. Warden, Philadelphia; P. L. Saltenstall, Boston; President C. A. Duncan, Secretary Oscar Mitchell, F. A. Patrick, Alexander McDougall, Duluth.

Superfluous Hair Truths

De Miracle

The Only Safe Hair Remover

Each application of an unknown depilatory is a dangerous experiment and likely to cause permanent disfigurement. The mere fact that such preparations are short-lived should alone be sufficient warning to avoid their use. De Miracle has stood the test of time, having been sold for over 11 years, therefore it is the only depilatory you can use without experimenting.

The Unoffensive Depilatory

If you use De Miracle it will be impossible for any curious person to know that you have used a hair remover because De Miracle evaporates immediately after accomplishing its work, therefore leaves no odor whatever. On the other hand, if you use any depilatory with a distinctive odor an offensive tell-tale smell will cling to your skin for hours.

Others Advertise "Guaranteed" but give no guarantee. De Miracle is the only depilatory that has a binding guarantee in each package.

Avoid permanent disfigurement by refusing substitutes offered by dishonest dealers merely for a few cents more profit. If your dealer will not supply you, send $1.00 direct. Free information how to determine which depilatories are harmful and worthless sent in plain, sealed envelope.

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

Prices Are Fractionally Lower After a Very Quiet Session.

Flax Options All Close Higher in a Narrow Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 20.—The active wheat options all closed at a decline today after a very narrow session, with few trades in any list. July declined ¼@⅜c from yesterday and September fell off a similar amount. May closed unchanged and wholly inactive. July durum lost ½c and May lost ¼c. Cash wheat equaled July option. Oats fell off ½c after having had a bulge, rye fell off 1c and barley remained unchanged.

This morning the market opened dull with July option in spring wheat the only factor recognized to any great extent. The beginning of business in this option was at an advance of ⅛c offered, owing to stronger cables, which were influenced by yesterday's strength in American markets, the decrease in world's shipments, light Manitoba offerings and steadiness in Argentine tenders. The advance held for a time, supplemented by the tendency toward a rise in Chicago, but after a time the naturally bearish conditions caused a drop and toward the end of the session July had fallen off from its little rise to unchanged to ¼c down. May option had no opening figure and gained ⅛c to ⅜c bid with little trading. September remained, up to a late hour of the session, unchanged to ⅛c decline with next thing to nothing doing. May and July durum remained practically inactive and unchanged from yesterday's close.

The market seems to be a waiting one, nobody seeming to be willing to start anything. The range of prices was very narrow throughout and there was a lack of demand in all markets.

Flax Has Bulge.

Flax enjoyed a bulge in prices today for no other apparent reason than that Winnipeg has forced it because of Canadian exports, which are still going forward. There is no demand on this side of the line, for the American flax market, glutted as it is, is practically lifeless. May flax and September flax gained 1¼c each for the day, July advanced ⅜c and October went up ⅛c to ⅜c.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Tends Upward on Adverse Foreign Crop News.

Chicago, May 20.—Adverse crop reports from Bulgaria and France, made wheat today tend upward. There was also a notable falling off in the European visible supply total. Beneficial rains in the American spring crop belt, however, had a restraining effect on the bulls. The opening was the same as last night to ⅛c higher. July started at 89⅛@89⅝c, a gain of ⅛@⅛c, reached to 89¾c and rallied to 89¾c.

Unseasonable conditions in Canada helped sustain the advance, but later a backset occurred owing to increased offerings. The close was steady with July ½c net lower at 88⅞c.

Weather unfavorable for planting and crop movement strengthened the corn market. July, which opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 56¾@56⅞c, advanced to 57@57⅛c.

A downturn ensued because of general selling at the higher levels. The close was easy, ⅛c net lower at 56⅝c for July.

Despite rains here, oats hardened with other grains, July starting a shade up at 37⅛c, touched 37⅛@37¼c and ascended to 37¼@37⅜c.

Sharp commission demand lifted provisions. Offerings were light. The opening was unchanged to 7½c higher with July at $19.90@19.92½ for pork, $11.10 for lard and $11.30@11.35 for ribs.

STOCKS HAVE MID-DAY RISE

Traders Take the Long Side of the Market for a Turn.

Reaction Takes Place in Final Trading and Close Is Heavy.

New York, May 20.—Disappearance of pressure against low priced railroad stocks, which were conspicuously weak during the preceding two days of trading deprived the stock market of its only sign of activity, and business during the morning was dull and featureless.

Traders took the long side of the market for a turn, on the theory that the action of yesterday's market indicated that liquidation of the standard stocks had been completed. The undertone was firm and some small gains were made.

Operations were curtailed, however, while word was awaited as to the outcome of today's offerings of New York city bonds here and the Chinese loan abroad.

Bonds were steady.

Prices moved irregularly at the outset today, with the bulk of the leaders fractionally under yesterday's close. The largest losses were those of Canadian Pacific, which opened off 1⅜ and Rock Island, which dropped ¾. St. Louis & San-Francisco second preferred which was conspicuously weak during the early trading yesterday, advanced ½ point on the first transactions today.

Secondary prices were better, the list gradually rising to a parity with last night's close or above. Special firmness was shown by a few low priced stocks which were especially weak yesterday.

Rumors that the various interests concerned in the Hartiman dissolution plan had reached an agreement, caused active trading and higher prices. Union Pacific mounted 1⅜, Southern Pacific 1⅝ and many other stocks from ½ point to a point. Activity was not sustained when the report failed of corroboration but prices held stronger.

Traders having secured a comfortable profit by the mid-day rise in prices, were not disposed to participate actively in the later dealings, pending word as to the success of today's bond issues on both sides of the Atlantic. In consequence speculation was spiritless and devoid of significance.

The market closed heavy. Tabulations of the bids for the $45,000,000 city bond issue were watched keenly, and when it became evident that most of the bonds would not bring much above par speculators sold stocks and the outstanding city bonds. Huge blocks of the new bonds were sold on the curb from 100½ to 110 3-16. Reaction in some stocks reached a point, and the market in the final dealings was under steady pressure.

Cotton Market.

New York, May 20.—Cotton opened steady at an advance of 1@3 points on a continuation of the covering movement which developed yesterday. Cables were generally due but the weather map was again favorable and the demand was barely active enough to sustain prices during the early trading. There was some further scattering demand from Southern sources but warehouses were sellers on the outlook for renewed showers in the Eastern belt and prices eased off to about the closing figures of last night during the first half hour. July seemed relative steady.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 12.00; middling gulf, 12.25. Sales, 136 bales.

JAPS SILENT ON ALIEN LAW CONTROVERSY

Foreign Office Will Not Publish Reply From Washington.

Division Among People Appears as to Patriotic Features.

Campaign to Preserve "Japanese Individuality" Is Begun.

Tokio, Japan, May 21.—The Japanese foreign office has received and is studying the reply of the United States government to its original protest in regard to the California alien land ownership legislation. It declares that, by agreement with Washington, the document will not be made public. The officials make no comment on the subject, and no statement as to whether it is satisfactory or not.

The Japanese press is waiting for information before expresaing its opinion on the American reply. In the meantime the press reiterates that the question goes deeper than the ownership of land or the making of treaties, and that it is racial discrimination which must be wiped out by mutual education and understanding.

Differ on Patriotism.

Ichiro Tokutomi, editor of the Kokumin Shimbun, writes today:

"The patriotism and loyalty of Japan should join forces with the liberality of America. By this means the Pacific would nobly justify its name."

On the other hand, much interest is attached to the formation of a new patriotic association by Count Shiganori Uesugi and other scholars "for the maintenance of Japanese individuality."

The founders declare that some of the Japanese are intoxicated with Western civilization to such an extent that they are apt to forget their nationality, and introduce dangerous thoughts into the minds of the people and interpret patriotism in a different light from that prevailing among their ancestors.

FRENCH WILL LEND MEXICO $100,000,000

Mexican Congress Gives Its Sanction to the Transaction.

Mexico City, May 21.—The Mexican congress early today gave its sanction to an agreement for a loan of $100,000,000 at 6 per cent interest. The amount is to be placed at 90 and will run for ten years. It is guaranteed by 38 per cent of the customs receipts. The Mexican National bank is named as the representative of the bankers in the provision of the disbursements.

The debate on the loan was a long one, lasting until midnight. The minister of finance was charged with failure to take better offers which had been made. He replied that Provisional President Huerta and the other members of the Mexican cabinet had urged upon him the immediate acceptance of this loan, as the other offers received necessitated more delay.

It is still necessary for congress to discuss and vote on the four articles of the financial measure, but its approval of the general terms of the bill makes it reasonably certain that it will also approve the details.

The loan has been placed with French bankers, but it is certain that British interests are participating. The names of the bankers have not been announced.

RENEW DEBATE OVER OPPOSERS OF TARIFF

Senators Clash as to Giving Names of Those Who Appear.

Washington, May 21.—The fight between Republican and Democratic senators over making public names of manufacturers who appear before senate finance subcommittees and publishing briefs in protest against rates, was renewed today when the finance committee met.

Senator Penrose, who led the fight on the floor yesterday, resumed the minority leadership in committee. Chairman Simmons announced before the meeting that he never had been opposed to making public the names.

The committee also had under consideration a lot of tariff questions to manufacturers, submitted by Senators Simmons, Stone and Williams, acting as a special subcommittee.

Democratic members of the senate finance committee decided today to hear no more manufacturers on the schedules of the Underwood bill after next Tuesday and then begin actual work of revising the bill.

Chairman Simmons was authorized to make the announcement.

DETROIT HOST TO BIG BAPTIST MEETING

Northern Church Turns Out in Record Numbers for Convention.

Detroit, Mich., May 21.—"Recent Assaults on the Patent System; What They Mean to Manufacturers," "Problems of Industrial Education," and "European Laws and the American Manufacturer," were among the topics discussed at today's session of the national convention of manufacturers. Today was the last business day of the convention, and it was expected that officers would be elected before adjournment was taken.

WELCOMED BY GERMAN ROYAL FAMILY

KING GEORGE V AND QUEEN MARY,
Of England, Who Are in Berlin to Attend the Marriage of Crown Princess Victoria Luise.

BRITISH RULERS ARE GIVEN ROYAL GREETING AT BERLIN

King George and Queen Mary Arrive at the German Capital.

"Hohenzollern Weather" Is Prospect for Royal Wedding Day.

Berlin, May 21.—The "Hohenzollern weather"—brilliant sunshine and cloudless sky—has set in for the wedding activities of Princess Victoria Luise, daughter of the German emperor and empress, and Prince Ernest August of Cumberland, which will take place on Saturday.

The official reception started this morning, with the arrival of the bridegroom and the state entry into Berlin of King George and Queen Mary of England. There was no ceremony to greet Prince Ernest August when he reached the station at 8:25. He drove at once in his automobile to the castle, where he took breakfast with his bride-to-be before returning to the station to meet the British royalties.

Kaiser Met Train.

At the station, awaiting the arrival of the royal train, were Emperor William and Crown Prince Frederick William in the uniforms of their British regiments, together with the empress and crown Princess. All the royal personages and princes assembled in Berlin and a mass of brilliantly uniformed military and naval officers and ministerial and court functionaries surrounded them.

King George and Queen Mary, when they alighted from the train, were greeted with the customary cordial embraces by the emperor and empress and the other members of the imperial family. King George and Emperor William then jointly passed in review the guard of honor drawn up on the platform.

Seen by "All Berlin."

This completed, the two monarchs together, and the queen and empress side by side, drove in open state carriages through the Avenue of Victory and Unter den Linden to the castle, each carriage escorted by a squadron of cavalry with pennoned lances. The wide thoroughfares were lined with troops of the guards' army corps, and behind them all Berlin seemed to have gathered.

The dirigible balloons Zeppelin and Hansa, flying the British colors, accompanied the royal train from Rathenow, about fifty miles away, and hovered over the carriages as they drove toward the castle.

MINNEAPOLIS GIRL BRIDE OF JAPANESE

Minister Who Married Them Boasts of Act in Telegram.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Kozo K. Maihori, a Japanese who came to Minneapolis some time ago from Yokohama, was married yesterday to Miss Bertha Royan, a Minneapolis girl, by Rev. G. L. Morrill, who some time ago bitterly denounced the California alien land bill in a sermon here. Maihori is employed in a local hotel, and with his wife will make his home in Minneapolis.

Mr. Morrill last night sent a telegram to Governor Johnson of California, in which he said:

"I have just married a Jap to an American, and done more for God and Uncle Sam than your alien land bill will do in a thousand years."

AWAKES TO FIND HIS BED IN FLAMES

Wisconsin Man Nearly Victim of Fire Lightning Started.

Tomah, Wis., May 21.—H. L. Burdick, a Tomah resident, was slumbering peacefully early today when he awakened to find his bed in flames. Lightning had struck a tree in front of his home, splintering it, and then entered the house and set fire to the owner's bed. Burdick escaped uninjured. Two passersby were thrown to the sidewalk and severely shocked by the lightning.

TALK ABOUT PATENT LAW

Manufacturers' Association Hears Addresses on the Subject.

Oldfield Bill Is Bitterly Attacked at Detroit Meeting.

Detroit, Mich., May 21.—The largest gathering of Baptists ever held in the United States is assembled today in Detroit for a convention which probably will last more than a week.

The principal convention is that of the Northern Baptist conference, consisting of pastors from all Baptist churches north of the Mason and Dixon line. The Woman's Baptist Home Mission society and the American Baptist Foreign mission, in addition to participation in the main convention, will hold separate meetings during the week.

A vigorous attack against the Oldfield bill was made by Gilbert Montague of New York, in his remarks on the patent situation.

"The Oldfield bill proposes," he said, "that if any applicant shall establish in a Federal district court that a pat-

CUT OFF IN WILL, THEN MURDERED

New Evidence of Hate in Sparta Tragedy Is Found.

Sparta, Wis., May 21.—Murderer of his wife, daughter and himself, William Hogue, central figure in the triple tragedy here last week, has struck again at his daughter after the death of both.

Today the will of Hogue, made shortly before his death, was opened and it was found that the daughter he killed, Mrs. Guy Wilson, had been cut off with $1, while the rest of the estate worth $20,000, was given to another daughter, Mrs. Grace Phillips, a son, Dr. B. B. Hogue of North Dakota, was also cut off with $1.

It is expected that Guy Wilson, husband of the murdered woman and her only heir, will contest the will on the ground of insanity.

The condition of Wilson, who was shot twice in the face by his father-in-law at the time of the latter's attack on Mrs. Wilson, continues to show improvement and the physicians have no doubt of his recovery. Wilson still is confined to his home, weak from shock and loss of blood.

HAS WONDERFUL WEED.

Woman Writes to Surgeon General of Navy About It.

Washington, May 21.—Surgeon General Stokes of the navy has received a letter from a woman, whose name was withheld, in which she informed him that she had a weed which would cure bubonic plague, also snake bites, tarantula bites, all kinds of poison insect stings, centipede sting and has been said to have cured hydrophobia. It is quite probable that it will cure the bubonic flea bite.

"It won't do any harm, if it don't do any good," she says, and closes her letter with a request to hear from the surgeon general on the matter.

POISONED MAN STILL ALIVE

Banker Walker Is Making Determined Fight for His Life.

Substitution of Kidneys Is Suggested By One Surgeon.

Macon, Ga., May 21.—Despite assertions by several physicians that he cannot live, B. Sanders Walker, the young banker who swallowed poison by mistake a week ago, is making a desperate battle for life today. Walker's remarkable vitality is puzzling physicians and specialists throughout the country.

After an all-night fight with death, Walker rallied slightly this morning. At 9 o'clock his pulse was 126, respiration 31 and temperature 99.

While unable to account fully for Walker's remarkable vitality, physicians today partially attributed his successful resistance of the poison up to this time to the fact that he emitted a portion of the tablet after it was swallowed. It was this development which alarmed the banker and caused him to call a physician. The physician's arrival, however, was not before the poison had taken sufficient effect to paralyze the kidneys.

All of the members of Walker's immediate family are gathered at his home here. Every precaution is being taken to prevent the patient from becoming unduly excited. Only his wife,

GET MEAL FOR SIX FOR ONLY 42 CENTS

Washington Social Settlement Workers Tell of Their Work.

Washington, May 21.—After a series of experiments lasting through many weeks, the officials of the colored social settlement have announced that they have lowered the cost of a wholesome meal for six persons to 42 cents, or 7 cents a person. The reduction in cost is brought about largely through an advanced knowledge of cooking, by which the cheap meats are made as toothsome and appetizing as meats of greater cost. Here is one division of cost:

"One and one-half pounds of flank beef at 12 cents a pound; spinach, 5 cents; potatoes, 5 cents; parsley, 1 cent; onion, 1 cent. The remainder of cost, or 12 cents, provides for beaten biscuits and baked apples."

The settlement insists that the 7-cent meal is not theoretical, and that such meals are the rule in their headquarters.

NINE DROWN IN GALE IN ALASKA.

Cordova, Alaska, May 21.—Nine men were drowned Sunday night when a storm blew a pile driver and a barge ashore near Katalla.

The men were building a fish trap for the Northwestern Fisheries company at the mouth of Martin river, near Katalla. A furious storm came up Sunday night and broke six anchors with which the pile driver and barge were made fast. They were driven eighteen miles along the shore, where they struck on the beach.

DETAILS OF PLOT TO PLANT DYNAMITE ARE TOLD IN WOOD TRIAL

Convicted Plotter Describes How He Was Paid $500 for Job.

Expert on Explosives Tells of Character of the Stuff.

Material Furnished By Pittman, Who Committed Suicide.

Boston, May 21.—In an endeavor to connect President William M. Wood of the American Woolen company and Frederick E. Atteaux with the alleged conspiracy to discredit striking textile workers at Lawrence by "planting" dynamite in buildings occupied by strikers in that city in January, 1912, the prosecution called John J. Breen, a Lawrence undertaker, to the witness stand today.

Breen, who was a member of the Lawrence school committee when the dynamite was found, was fined $500 in the Essex county court several months ago upon conviction of unlawfully hiding the explosive.

Testimony that Breen had paid him $50 for "planting" the dynamite was given yesterday by Dennis J. Collins, a co-defendant with Wood and Ateaux who turned state's evidence. His testimony did not connect either Wood or Atteaux with the alleged conspiracy.

Anticipating that Breen might give sensational testimony, a great crowd tried to gain admission to the court room today but the attendance was limited strictly to witnesses, attorneys and a few holders of passes issued by the district attorney or the sheriff.

Walter Wedgett, an expert on explosives and former manufacturer of fireworks, testified regarding the dynamite found at Lawrence. He went to that city on Jan. 27, 1912, to examine some dynamite for the state police.

From a bag the witness produced several sticks which, he said, resembled the dynamite he inspected. He explained that the sample did not contain dynamite, and said that he had no explosives in the bag.

He also produced imitations of de-

CLEARED OF CHARGES OF IMMORALITY

BARRATT O'HARA,
Lieutenant Governor of Illinois.

Springfield, Ill., May 21.—Lieutenant Governor O'Hara is exonerated from blame by the committee which investigated charges of immorality against him, in a report it made to the Illinois senate today. Miss Maud Robinson, whose affidavit concerning a meeting with O'Hara in Chicago led to the charges, and "Sam" Davis of Springfield, said to have induced her to make the affidavit, were charged in the same report with attempting to obstruct the work of the senate vice commission.

CASHIER SAYS BOY "SOLD" HIM

L. H. Grimme of Chicago Tells About Young Storke's Deals.

Recounts How the Youth Earned Title of "Boy Financier."

Chicago, May 21.—L. H. Grimme, former cashier of the National City bank, testifying in the suit of Mrs. Laura G. Rogers of Milwaukee to recover $30,000 from the bank and either other defendants, told a story on the witness stand today tending to illustrate why observers of Butler R. Storke dubbed him "boy financier."

Mrs. Rogers alleges that the defendants intimidated and tricked her into turning over $30,000 to them to save Storke, who is her grandson, from prison.

According to Grimme, he met Storke in December, 1912, when the young man, who is not yet 24, deposited $500 to open a checking account.

Boy's Story to Cashier.

"Storke told me he and his sisters were heirs to an estate which would reach $10,000,000," testified the witness. "He introduced me to the girl he said he was going to marry; said that their honeymoon trip would en-

FRENCH SOLDIERS ARE DISSATISFIED

Oppose Decision to Keep Them in Service After Time Expires.

Paris, May 21.—Some French soldiers are displaying considerable opposition to the decision of the government to keep them for another year in active service instead of discharging them at the expiration of their two-year term. Demonstrations have occurred in a number of garrison towns. The government is acting with great energy in suppressing opposition.

A number of soldiers who took part in a demonstration at Toulon on Sunday were tried by court-martial today and sentenced to serve the rest of their term with the disciplinary battalions in Northern Africa.

Fond du Lac and Oshkosh Would Donate Land at Van Dyne.

Fond du Lac, Wis., May 21.—A formal tender of a site for the state fair in the Fox river valley, free of cost to the state, was made by the joint committee of Fond du Lac and Oshkosh business men in a letter mailed today. The offer gives the legislative committee the choice of three sites near Van Dyne, midway between Fond du Lac and Oshkosh, the average value of the sites being $40,000. The proposed grounds are within twelve minutes of Fond du Lac and twenty minutes of Oshkosh.

SAN FRANCISCO POLICE CLEARED

Grand Jury Expresses Confidence in Accused Officers.

San Francisco, May 21.—San Francisco's police scandal, which has been engaging the attention of the city authorities for several weeks, came to an abrupt end last night, when the grand jury completed its examination by voting a resolution of confidence in the personnel of the department, the police commissioners, Chief White and Captain of Detectives Mooney.

It had been charged that a large part of the police force had been protecting a bunco gang, and recently eight officers were indicted for conspiracy in that connection. They are to appear for trial next Monday.

SCOUR TWO COUNTIES FOR GIRL'S MURDERER

Pennsylvania Crime Has Aroused Westmoreland Citizens.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 21.—The murder of Grace Johnston, aged 14, at Blackburn in Westmoreland county on Monday, has aroused the citizens in that section of Pennsylvania, and last night and early today detectives from Allegheny county, members of the Pennsylvania state constabulary and officers from adjoining counties conducted a search for the slayer. Two suspects, foreigners, were captured by state constabulary at midnight.

A reward of $1,000 has been offered for the murderer, and posters giving the description of a strange man seen near the place of the crime have been mailed to all cities in the state.

Grace Johnston left her home to attend school on Monday morning. When she did not return late in the afternoon, a search was made and her body was found in the woods near a railroad track. Upon examination, it was ascertained that she had been attacked, her death resulting from strangulation.

Bloodhounds were put on the scent yesterday, but lost the trail in the business section of Greensburg, the county seat of Westmoreland county.

PATENT MEDICINE MAN OPPOSES WILEY PLAN

Does Not Like Federal Health Bureau as Was Proposed.

Washington, May 21.—A sharp attack on the plan for a Federal department of public health, as recently outlined by Dr. George H. Simmons of the American Medical association and Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, was made here today before the convention of the Proprietary Association of America by O. C. Pinckney of New York, secretary and treasurer.

The association is composed of proprietary medicine manufacturers. The speaker disclaimed any opposition to a Federal department of health, and declared that the association had no place in its membership for "quacks or purveyors of fraud" and that it was in thorough accord with the pure food and drug law.

APOLOGIZES TO EVANGELIST

William Kennebrook Sorry He Interrupted Revival Meeting.

William Kennebrook, arrested Monday evening for disorderly conduct when he interrupted a revival meeting at Fifth avenue west and Michigan street, apologized to Evangelist F. E. Plumb when he was brought into police court yesterday afternoon.

In view of that action Judge Cutting stated that he would not be severe, letting him down with $10 and costs or ten days. The defendant didn't have the money and the court gave him a month in which to pay.

Evangelist Plumb told the court that Kennebrook's action was particularly aggravating, coming just as he was converting a man who had been a sinner for many years. He explained that the penitent was a gambler and was just professing his conversion when Kennebrook interfered. The evangelist said that the gambler had become a Christian and that as no particular harm had been done he had no desire to see the prisoner punished, although he did not approve of having disorder at his meetings.

PICK PLACES FOR MEETING

Southern and United Presbyterians Choose Kansas City and Newcastle.

Northern Church Avoids Storm By Delaying Seminary Action.

Atlanta, Ga., May 21.—Kansas City today was selected as the meeting place of the 1914 general assembly of the Southern Presbyterian church by the commissioners attending the 1913 assembly here.

With several slight changes in phraseology, the "brief statement of belief" compiled by a special committee was adopted by the Southern Presbyterian assembly by a vote of 119 to 64.

Interest among delegates to the Pan-Presbyterian Pentecost centered today about the session of the Southern assembly, where the debate bearing upon the alleged political activities of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America was resumed.

Would Quit Church Council.

Charges that this organization, composed of some thirty powerful churches of various denominations, is endeavoring to influence national politics, were made by Dr. T. M. Lowry of Memphis and Rev. R. M. Hall of Galveston. Dr. Lowry urged that the Southern Presbyterian church withdraw from the federal council.

Replying to these charges, Dr. Thornton Whaling, president of Columbia seminary, Columbia, S. C., and chairman of the committee on foreign correspondence, argued that while there are many things relating to the federal council which the Southern assembly does not approve, withdrawal would be unwise.

United Church Meeting.

Commissioners to the general assembly of the United Presbyterian church, in session here, voted today to have the 1914 general assembly at Newcastle, Pa.

By a unanimous vote the United assembly adopted a resolution intended to debar from schools supported by the government all denominational badges or uniforms. This resolution, which is to be presented to the president of the United States, was introduced by Prof. J. A. Wilson, occupying the chair of Biblical history of the Pittsburg Theological seminary, Pittsburg, Pa., says:

"Resolved, That the general asembly of the United Presbyterian church petition the president of the United States to direct that no badge or uniform distinctive of any denomination be permitted in any school supported by the funds of the general government."

Northern Air Cleared.

That the action of the Northern assembly in referring to a special committee the matter of negotiations with the Union Theological seminary of New York, with instructions to report back to the assembly in 1914, cleared the atmosphere of a threatened storm of considerable proportions, is agreed by the commissioners.

Another matter of prime importance acted upon by the Northern assembly was the adoption of recommendations contained in the report of the judicial committee on the missionary board matter. Investigation of the board was made by a sub-committee of the executive committee upon representations that the board has spent too much for supervisory purposes in proportion to the amount spent for home mission work.

Announcement was made that Moderator J. S. Lyons of the Southern assembly has appointed Rev. T. M. Hawes, D. D., of the Highland Presbyterian church, Louisville, Ky., to represent the church at the Pan-Presbyterian alliance at Aberdeen, Scotland, in June.

YOUNG OPPOSED TO EXTRA SESSION

Former Attorney General Discusses Subject in Letter to Stirrup Club.

E. T. Young, former attorney general of Minnesota and candidate for the Republican nolmnation for governor, will be unable to attend the public utilities conference and banquet to be held at the Spalding Saturday, but he is in sympathy with the purpose of the movement. This is indicated by a letter received today by I. K. Lewis, in which Mr. Young expresses his inability to attend the banquet. He writes:

"The governor vetoed two of the principal utility bills, in the interest of the people, passed at the last session—the so-called Minette bill and the Nolan bill. Both were opposed by the combined influence of the large public service corporations, the Minette bill, however, having the support of most all of the 'independent' or non-Bell telephone companies. Those interests had a bill before the session, embodying their ideas of utility regulation, which the governor's organization favored. The bill was ingeniously designed to make efficient regulation impossible. It also sought to put the power of regulation in the hands of an appointive commission to be named by the governor.

Situation Was Covered.

"We already have an elective railroad commission in this state, having control over steam and electric railroads, and express companies, the principal utilities. The Minette bill extended the jurisdiction of that commission over telephone companies, and required connection between all toll lines and exchanges.

"The utility commissions of other states were created largely for the purpose of regulating railroads and other state-wide utilities, a thing already practically accomplished here, which would have been completely accomplished if the Minette bill had not been vetoed. I know of no state having a separate commission created solely for the purpose of acting as guardian over its cities to prevent them from regulating their purely local utilities. That is what is now proposed in this state. Are the people asking for any such extraordinary thing so that an extra session is necessary?

"The two bills the people were asking for at the regular session have been vetoed and the utility bill, favored by the governor, having been defeated, it is to be supposed that at an extra session both the legislature and the governor will stand by their guns. This pretended ex post facto investigation by the governor in the East only adds ludicrousness to the situation. He will report having found justification for the stand he has already taken. The movement back of the bill he favored last winter originated in the East and has headquarters there still. The trouble with the governor on this question is that he is not a disinterested investigator. He has already taken sides. He is looking at it through colored glasses adopted by him for the purpose.

"The people of the cities can consider between now and the next session whether they want to be put in leading strings by such a commission as the governor proposes.

"I am opposed to an extra session under the circumstances, as I cannot see how any good can come of it."

WASHINGTON OARSMEN WILL LEAVE JUNE 5.

Seattle, Wash., May 21.—The University of Washington oarsmen, who are to row in the Poughkeepsie regatta next month, will leave for the East June 5 instead of June 1, as originally planned, it was announced today. The oarsmen had hoped to have two weeks for practice on the Hudson, but the faculty committee thought they should not lose so much time from their studies. Thirteen will make the trip.

The crew will row tomorrow against the University of California on Lake Washington. Washington, having won easily in the coast championship regatta last month, is a strong favorite.

TRACK MEET OFFICIALS WILL DRESS IN WHITE.

Chicago, May 21.—White, emblem of innocence, and the laundry, is likely to cut a big figure in Western athletics from now on. No longer will officials dodge the hammer or split the seconds on the runners, arrayed in rainbow-hued garments, which fashion and individual taste dictate. A new picture will be framed at the conference meet at Madison June 7 with the above-mentioned white for the background.

It has long been recognized by managers on track meets that more sartorial harmony might add to the beauty of the infield scenery. Dr. George K. Herman, who will referee the meet, has hit upon a scheme which is likely to add both picturesqueness and an air of peacefulness to the landscape and to the eye, by having all officials dress in the same kind of uniform. White trousers and caps and navy blue coats were decided on. The proposition was put up to the managing committee of the conference, which body has put the stamp of approval on the innovation.

Being thus arrayed, it was only a step to the addition of a few military frills. As the referee is major in the First infantry, it was but natural that a drill would follow the uniform, just as the cocktail pursues the flag, and so the spectators at the Madison games will see some thirty-four officials in white and blue march, two and two, onto the field, preceded by the University of Wisconsin band.

FILIPINO PLAYERS WILL TOUR COUNTRY.

Washington, May 21.—A small band of Filipinos is coming to the United States, the bureau of insular affairs has learned, to "knock the stuffin'" as they are reported to have declared, out of this country. It is to be on the baseball diamond, not on the field of war, that this hoped-for victory is to be scored.

The all-Filipino baseball team is expected to arrive in San Francisco about June 11, was the word which reached Brig.-Gen. McIntyre, chief of the bureau of insular affairs, today. One of the four pitchers, Jaropilla, a former star pitcher of the Iloilo high school, is reported to be a "southpaw bear" of no mean ability.

The team expects to tour the East as well as to play a series of games in the West coast states. The first contest in which the young Filipinos will cross bats in the great American game with the youth of continental United States will be at St. Mary's college, Oakland, Cal. The team will spend about three months in the United States.

Offer to McCarty.

Calgary, Alta., May 21.—Luther McCarty, who is to meet Arthur Pelkey here Saturday, has received an offer of $15,000 to meet "Gunboat" Smith. The offer is from a boxing club in Los Angeles and in the event of an arrangement being reached, the fight will be staged at Venice. McCarty's manager says he will not accept the offer unless his man is given a fair percentage of the receipts.

Track Men Leave.

Berkeley, Cal., May 21.—The ten men comprising the track team which will represent the University of California in the East left today for New York. They will take part in the intercollegiate meet at Cambridge, Mass., May 30 and 31. Carl Shattuck, holder of the world's hammer throw record, accompanied the team. Following the Cambridge meet, the Californians eligible to compete in the Middle West conference meet at Madison, Wis., June 7, will go there.

Knocks Burns Out.

Calgary, Alta., May 21.—In a training bout today Pelkey and Tommy Burns had a strenuous workout, the latter, who formerly was champion heavyweight of the world, quitting in the third round. Pelkey landed a right to the jaw and a left to the face and Burns took the count.

Would Prevent Gambling.

New York, May 21.—August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey club, yesterday formally requested the sheriff and district attorney of Nassau county to appoint deputy sheriffs to prevent "pool selling, bookmaking and other forms of gambling" at the race meetings soon to be held at Belmont park. Mr. Belmont's letter included an offer to pay the wages and expense of the deputies as the county authorities have no funds for that purpose.

NOT EASY TO JOIN THE NAVY

That it is no easy matter to join the United States navy is evidenced by the fact that many of the applicants at the local station have been rejected.

This morning Chief Quartermaster Erickson examined George Merritt of Decatur, Ill., who applied at the local office. He was rejected because he was unable to pass the medical test. This makes the fourth rejection in as many days.

She left Superior shortly after establishing the institution to become connected with the Loretta hospital at New Ulm. Mother Superior Flavia was well known for her philanthropic attainments.

Business Is Good.

The Baker Commission company, who have had offices at 102 Providence building for a number of years, removed today to Suite 104 and 106 Providence building, formerly occupied by L. H. Merritt & Co. Carl Swenson, who manages the offices, says the increase in business in the last few months made the increased office space necessary. The Baker Commission company have direct wire connections with New York, Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

The land brought $50,000 and will be used by the company to raise peas and corn for canning purposes. The company has increased its capital stock from $60,000 to $200,000.

Washington, May 21.—Secretary Daniels left today for Annapolis, Md., to look over the future admirals in the naval academy there. He will return tonight. The secretary had intended making his visit of inspection some weeks ago, but pressure of both public and private business forced him to postpone his call. He will visit the academy again June 6 to hand their diplomas to members of the graduating class.

GOOD BIDDING FOR STATE LANDS

About 2,750 Acres Sold at Prices From $5 to $40 an Acre.

In spite of the inclement weather, the attendance at the second of the 1913 sales of state lands in St. Louis county at the courthouse this morning was quite large and the bidding spirited. This sale was conducted by Theodore Nelson, manager of the state land department with headquarters at St. Paul. State Auditor Iverson could not attend the sale as had been expected.

Sixty-one descriptions, averaging slightly over forty acres to the description, were auctioned off by Mr. Nelson to the highest bidders. The prices ranged from $5 to $40 an acre. One 160-acre tract was sold and several eighties were disposed of. Approximately 2,750 acres were sold. The next sale will be held on June 18.

On Trial for Robbery.

Axel Makinen, accused of having robbed Gust Hermanson of about $80 while the two were drinking together in a Floodwood saloon on the night of March 10, last, was brought to trial before Judge Dancer and a jury in district court this morning. Makinen was indicted on a charge of second degree robbery. Victor H. Gran appeared in court as his attorney.

The state had not finished putting in its evidence when the noon adjournment of court was taken. Progress is slow owing to the fact that most of the witnesses can only talk the Finnish language and an interpreter is necessary.

BONDS MAY BE OFFERED

School District May Give Public Opportunity to Buy Securities.

Legal Question as to Right of Board to Reject Bids.

Do the people of Duluth want the bonds of the city or the school district in amounts of $50, $100, $500 or $1,000?

The people of the city of St. Paul wanted the bonds of the city in small denominations. A department store in St. Paul made arrangements for over $700,000 in the paving bonds of the city, and they were sold over the counter like calico or collars. They were snapped up by people with small amounts to invest, and now every municipal bondholder in St. Paul has a livelier interest in the government of his city.

The board of education of Duluth has a bond issue of $200,000 coming out within a few months. If the bond market remains in its present condition, there may be difficulty in selling the bonds in bulk and if the people of Duluth show an interest they may be given an opportunity to invest their savings in safe securities at home.

The legal question involved is whether the board of education has the right to reject all bids for bonds and sell them at public sale for the good of the city.

Legal Question Involved.

"We have had the matter under consideration," said Clerk C. A. Bronson of the board this morning. "The law provides that we must ask for bids and it is generally understood that the bonds shall go to the highest bidder. In the present condition of the bond market, the bids might be unsatisfactory, and then the question of the board's right to make other arrangements will come up. I have no doubt but that the board will consider selling the bonds 'over the counter' if reasonable assurance is given by public interest that the entire issue will be sold."

Fred J. Voss, commissioner of finance, was given authority last winter while he was city treasurer to sell an issue of permanent improvement fund certificates "over the counter." The deal Mr. Voss had in mind and which he made later was with the banks, the banks of the city taking over the whole issue. However at that time Mr. Voss said that if he could not dispose of the certificates in any other way, he would offer them to the public.

"The city has no authority to sell bonds 'over the counter,' but there is nothing in the city charter to prevent the city issuing certificates of indebtedness in denominations less than $1,000 and selling them to the public," said Mr. Voss this morning.

"I believe that the selling of bonds to the citizens is a good move. It offers safe security for investments of small amounts and arouses the people who buy the bonds to a greater interest in public affairs. Taxpaying is such a matter of every day expense that the mere payment of taxes does not give a man the same interest in government that the holding of bonds of the city would give, although the taxpayer as well as the bondholder has an interest in the city's financial status."

HAS A PLAN FOR HEATING DULUTH

Richard Cullen has evolved a new plan of heating the city of Duluth.

"Dick" was the man who conceived the idea of putting steam pipes under the lake to keep navigation open all winter. His new plan is to sink a huge shaft in the hillside to tap the interior heat of the earth and then distribute this heat throughout the city. "There will be much surplus hot water found also," said Mr. Cullen. "That could be used for hot baths."

AGREE ON BASIS FOR CURRENCY REFORMS

Chairman Owen Says Fundamentals Are Determined On.

Washington, May 21.—Chairman Owen of the senate banking and currency committee said at the White House today that an agreement practically had been reached as to the fundamentals of currency reform. Those working on the subject, he said, felt that a system of regional reserve banks was the best means of mobilizing reserves, and that an elastic currency could be obtained by the issue of money through such banks, based primarily on the credit of the United States, the gold in reserve and upon prime securities.

CITY LIGHT PLANT BUYS CITY BONDS

Connecticut Town Begins System of Owing Itself Money.

South Norwalk, Conn., May 21.—An unusual transaction took place here today when the city's electric works purchased $20,000 of outstanding city bonds.

This plan of buying up city bonds through the municipal plants, it is pointed out, inaugurates a new system of municipal business and will, if continued, eventually clear the city of debt, except for a sum which it will in reality owe itself.

FARM COLONY OF DAKOTA PEOPLE

Canton, S. D., Man Looking Over Lands Near Duluth.

Sent by a number of South Dakota people to look over land in the vicinity of Duluth with a view to the establishment of a South Dakota colony here, Dr. N. B. Baldwin of Canton, S. D., arrived in Duluth this morning. Despite the rain and the chilly air, he smiled cheerfully as he talked with Duluth agricultural enthusiasts and got prices on desirable land in the vicinity of the city.

"Land down around Canton is selling for $150 an acre," he said. "That's the only trouble with it; it's too expensive for the man who wants to make a start. The people with whom I am interested are people of small means and great willingness to work. They know the difficulties of settlement on cut-over lands, but they are not daunted. For the man who is willing to work hard, I believe a great opportunity exists here.

"I am satisfied with what I have learned thus far. I believe that within a short time a large colony of South Dakota people will be located on land in the vicinity of Duluth. I will have an encouraging report to bring them. I am getting much information on the results of agricultural development here thus far and the prospects for the future. I am particularly interested in the dairying industry in this section of the country and before I return to South Dakota I am going to see some of the fine dairy herds here."

FOUND GUILTY OF THREATENING WILSON

New Jersey Mountaineers Face Possible Twenty Years in Prison.

Newark, N. J., May 21.—Seeley Davenport and Jacob Dunn, mountain woodchoppers of Wharton, N. J., were convicted by a Federal grand jury last night of sending threatening letters to Woodrow Wilson while he was president-elect. In the case of Davenport the jury recommended mercy.

The communications made to Mr. Wilson were received by his secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, in May and November of last year, and demanded money in sums of $1,000 and $5,000 under a penalty of death.

The jury deliberated two hours. Davenport and Dunn were found guilty on all counts in the indictment. They were remanded for sentence. They face a maximum penalty of twenty years in prison and a fine of $4,000.

SAYS CHAMBERLAIN AIDED GUGGENHEIMS

Delegate Wickersham Tells Senators About Bill That Was Killed.

Washington, May 21.—Delegate Wickersham of Alaska startled the senate territories committee today by declaring that Senator Chamberlain, a member of the committee, had inadvertently been the author of a bill in a previous congress which would have turned over to the "Guggenheims" absolute control of the harbor of Cordova and the entrance to Bering river coal fields.

"There was a little, inoffensive looking bill introduced into congress—I believe you were the author of it, Senator Chamberlain," said Wickersham, "giving the right-of-way to the Guggenheims from Mile Twenty-five on the Copper River road to Three Tree Point. You didn't know what that bill meant. It passed the senate, but when it reached the house I killed it. If it had passed it would have given the Guggenheims title in fee simple to all of Cordova harbor and they would have had a monopoly like that of Mr. Ryan on Controller Bay."

Senator Chamberlain made no reply.

Mr. Wickersham told the committee that the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate had Alaska "by the throat," and that the legislation holding up Alaskan development "has helped the big man and killed the little man."

ANNUAL RUSH OF TAX PAYERS

First Half of Real Property Taxes Must Be Paid By May 31.

Taxes are piling into the office of George H. Vivian, county treasurer, and with scarcely more than a week left in which to pay without penalty, the collections of the 1912 taxes on real property are well under way.

Owners of unimproved property in the city are finding their taxes higher this year than last, owing to the policy of City Assessor Scott in making a general raise in valuations. In some cases, especially at Woodland and at Crosley park, where there has been little change in valuations since the property was first put on the market, the boost in valuations over the 1911 figures has been from 50 to 150 per cent.

The last day on which the 1912 real estate taxes may be paid without penalty is Saturday May 31. One half of the tax may be paid before that time and the second half before Oct. 31. If the first half is not paid before May 31 a penalty of 10 per cent will attach.

IMPROVEMENTS TO POORHOUSE

Commissioners Visit Farm to Ascertain Its Needs.

At a special meeting of the St. Louis county board of poor commissioners at the courthouse this afternoon, steps may be taken towards ordering improvements and repairs at the county poor farm this season. The special meeting of the poor commission was called for that purpose by Chairman John H. Hearding.

This morning, the members of the poor commission, accompanied by Charles Shogran, clerk of the board, made a trip of inspection to the farm. The commission is contemplating building a poultry house and making other improvements about the farm buildings.

In the main building, which comprises the county hospital and the almshouse, it is expected that bids will be asked for in connection with the repainting of two stories of the building.

MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS

Keating Gold Mining Company Will Elect Directors June 3.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Keating Gold Mining company will be held at the office of the mine at Radersburg, Mont., Tuesday, June 3, 1913, at 12 o'clock, for the election of directors and any other business that may properly come before the meeting.

The following letter has been sent out by the president, Julius H. Barnes:

"In our letter of a year ago we spoke of the actual commencement of work on a railroad connecting Radersburg with Three Forks, and that its completion was hoped for by the following September. Some work was done on this railroad and then, through some slip of the builders in financing, work was stopped and has been stopped for months. Early last year we curtailed our shipments with the idea that the completion of the railroad would allow us to save materially on our output so that for the calendar year of 1912 our output was about 16,000 tons of ore against 24,000 for the year 1911. Our average gross values in gold continue about the same as in the previous year, from $15 to $20 in gold, with a record during the year of 1912 of as high as $60 in carload lots.

"During the year we have completed the sinking of our shaft to the eighth level and have opened the eighth level for some little distance. We find values there as far as we have gone more encouraging than in any level in the mine and our theory as to the increase in copper values with depth seems to be borne out. Scarcely any ore we ship now carries less than about 2 per cent of copper with the gold.

"We have also completed the installation of increased pumping capacity and have resumed exploration work in a promising part of the mine within the last thirty days.

"We still have hopes that the railroad proposition will be re-financed in such a way as to lead to its early completion. Even on the present shipping facilities we could increase our output, except for the scarcity of miners, which was felt in all mining camps after the opening of the Bulgarian war.

"During the year just past the income of the mine has been sufficient to pay for its exploration work, the completion of the new shaft, the installation of the new pump, but has made no material addition to the financial resources of the company on that scale of output."

CABLE INTERRUPTS PARIS GIRL'S ROMANCE

Banker's Daughter Elopes With Son of Mexican Consul.

New York, May 21.—A special board of inquiry at Ellis island took up today the case of Carlos Dominguez, an attache of the Mexican consulate at Paris during the Diaz administration, and a pretty young woman companion, who were detained in their stateroom when the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II docked late yesterday. They were on the ship's manifest as man and wife, but on the strength of a cablegram from Paris saying that the young woman was the daughter of a Parisian banker and had eloped, they were not permitted to land.

The young Mexican, when questioned, admitted the trip was the culmination of a romance and that the girl was not his wife. It was thought probable that he would be permitted to land, but that the girl would be sent back to her mother on the next boat. The pair were on their way to Mexico City.

Fences Not Removed.

Manning, N. D., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three years ago the officials ordered a road southwest of this place. Property owners have not removed their fences and nothing has been done. Settlers in that section are making a bitter protest and unless some action is promptly taken legal action may result. The homesteaders have no suitable road to reach the county seat without going a considerable distance out of their way.

Let Other Advertisers Take All the Chances— Put YOUR Ad in the Herald

PUT the old witch of dust and disease to flight, when you start your spring house-cleaning this year. The old-fashioned unsanitary broom is inadequate—it does nothing but stir up the dirt and hidden bacteria of disease—endangering the health of every member of your family. If your home is electrically lighted, you really ought to modernize it still more, by installing a silent running, highly efficient Electric Vacuum Cleaner.

An Electric Vacuum Cleaner Lightens Household Labors

In scarcely any time and without any labor or annoyance, you can clean your entire home with an Electric Vacuum Cleaner. It draws out all the dirt, dust and germs from rugs, carpets, matting, draperies, upholstery, etc. No longer is house cleaning a terrible task to anticipate—a vacuum cleaner does away with the old-fashioned annual house cleaning entirely, because it keeps your home spick and span all the year 'round.

IS INJURED AT BLAST FURNACE

John Gunovich Slips and Sustains Broken Arm and Severe Bruises.

John Gunovich, an employe of the coke ovens at the Zenith Furnace company sustained a broken arm, severe bruises about the head and body and is probably internally injured, in a fall of thirty feet from the platform in front of the ovens shortly before 9 o'clock this morning. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital where he was attended by Dr. C. H. Payette.

The accident occurred while the man was attempting to pry open one of the ovens preparatory to loading the finished coke onto the cooling carrier. The slippery walk, made so by recent rains, is believed to have caused him to miss his footing which resulted in the fall.

Instead of being taken to a West Duluth hospital where the man could be given immediate attention the ambulance was ordered to proceed to the uptown institution. The man is said to have been in an unconscious condition resulting from the bruises about the head.

He is expected to recover.

WAGON FOR DOG CATCHER

Pound Master Will Pick Up All the Stray Dogs.

West Duluth is to have a "dog catcher's wagon." Arrangements are now being made by city officials to purchase two vehicles for this purpose and one of them will be put in use in the western end of the city.

Capt. J. W. Mann, poundmaster for West Duluth said this morning that he expected the wagon here in a short time and that this would make it much easier to pick up the stray dogs and others which the people refused to pay taxes on.

IN WEST DULUTH POLICE COURT.

Nick Ritol has a cut reaching from his scalp to chin and Victor Salo has a serious cut on his right arm as a result of a brawl in front of A. Erickson's saloon, 15 South Sixty-third avenue west, in which William Lendo is said to have been the assailant. The row started following a wordy battle in the saloon, where the men had been drinking.

Lendo is held on a charge of assault in the first degree. Only a drunk charge was placed against his victims. The wounds of the two men were dressed by Dr. R. S. Forbes at the police station.

Lendo claims to have drawn the knife to defend himself from serious injury from the other two. He told the police that the two men had set on him as soon as they had been put out of the saloon. When he found he was getting the worst of it he pulled the knife with the result that the men were seriously slashed.

The men were given a preliminary hearing before Judge Lanners in the West Duluth court this afternoon.

William Arbour, 214 North Fifty-second avenue west, came home last evening and started to throw his wife out of the house. An officer was called and Arbour was taken to the police station where he was booked up for being drunk and disorderly. In police court this morning he pleaded guilty and was given a suspended sentence.

Gust Peterson returned from the woods yesterday. His arrival in town was immediately celebrated with a drink. One drink called for another and late in the afternoon he had taken on enough to waterlog any ordinary person. He was picked up and taken to the station booked as plain drunk. He drew a suspended sentence from Judge Lanners this morning.

This afternoon Judge Lanners is hearing the charges against Roy Drake, Roy Merriam and Lawrence Carey. The three men are alleged to have created a disturbance on a street car on Sunday evening, May 11. They have been out on $25 bail each. Mrs. Mary Stewart of Cary will also have a hearing on a charge of having allowed her cattle to wander at large.

NEED OFFICER ON CENTRAL AVENUE

Business Men Say Uniformed Policeman Should Be Kept There.

A uniformed policeman is needed on Central avenue. Business men claim that only on rare occasions does a policeman appear on the principal thoroughfare, his duties in covering his "beat" taking him most of the time in other sections.

A request will be made of the police department to have a regular man stationed on Central avenue with his district not extending further than between Cody and Roosevelt street. It is said that since the influx of strangers to West Duluth that it is necessary that some uniformed officers of the law remain in the business district all the time.

The officer at present covering the beat during the day is required to visit patrol boxes in many and varied sections of the suburb. The walk between these is said to take a great amount of time and that little time remains for his stay on the principal business street.

ULCERATED TOOTH CAUSES DEATH

As a result of an ulcerated tooth, Genevieve Aldrich, the 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Aldrich, 217 North Twenty-eighth avenue west, died at St. Mary's hospital yesterday. Blood poisoning resulting from the tooth was the direct cause of death.

Funeral services were held this morning at 8 o'clock from St. Clement's church, Twenty-first avenue west and Third street. The body will be taken to Elroy, Wis., for interment on this afternoon's Omaha train.

SAYS NAPOLEON NEVER SMOKED

Memoirs of a Secretary Also Indicate Bonaparte Didn't Use Snuff.

Westminster Gazette: It has long been accepted as a fact that the first consul was a great smoker, but in the Journal des Debats reference is made by Augustin Filon to some memoirs of Napoleon compiled by Gen. Bertrand which are as yet unpublished, whence it seems equally certain that Napoleon was not only not a smoker, but a tobacco hater.

The memoirs of Bertrand, Napoleon's secretary, were transcribed by his daughter Hortense, afterward Mme. Amedee Shayer, and from these, as reported by word of mouth, by the Abbe Saliquet, comes M. Filon's story that Napoleon hated tobacco. Once only he tried to smoke, but scarcely had he put the amber mouthpiece of a hookah in his mouth than he thrust it away in disgust, with the words: "Take away that filth." Napoleon then taxed tobacco.

Nor did, if we may believe the same source, Napoleon ever take snuff, although we find it asserted in most histories. He did worse, however, for he pretended to. He used to take, in order to alleviate a disorder of the stomach, a mixture of licorice and black sugar. This he kept in his waistcoat pocket, whence he would take a piece and lift it to his nose with the gesture of the ordinary snuff-taker, and then quickly put it into his mouth.

This is a somewhat startling variation from our customary pictures of Napoleon, who is generally portrayed as a habitual snuff-taker; and M. Filon himself deposes at having seen on the margins of an "Orlando Furioso," which was in the library at Longwood, in St. Helena, and is now at Farnborough, the yellow marks of the imperial thumb, a thumb yellowed by incessant smoking.

But even this, as is pointed out, is not conclusive against the non-smoking evidence, for the thumb might as well have been stained by the mixture of licorice. Whatever be their ultimate truth, the non-smoking and non-snuff-taking theories are delightful.

NAVY BILL IS UP TO SENATE

First Time Closure Was Ever Used in Canadian Parliament.

Liberals Have Majority in Senate and May Defeat Bill.

Ottawa, Ont., May 21.—The navy bill granting $35,000,000 for the construction of three battleships for strengthening the naval forces of the empire, has at last passed the commons and is on its way to the senate. Much excitement, and not a little bitterness, were manifested during the discussion of the measure in its last stages in the popular chamber. The bill was put through under closure. This was the first time closure was ever used in the Canadian parliament. The opposition called out "gag" every time it was applied and the chairman of the committee was accused of making a "false report" to the speaker.

The fate of the bill in the senate is the question now uppermost. There is every reason to believe that the two parties will divide politically or nearly so. That being the case the bill will not be passed, as the Liberals have about twenty-eight majority. The Dreadnought bill will likely be amended and sent back to the commons. The amendment may call for reference to the people. Such an amendment will not be accepted by the government, and, therefore, it will be again returned to the upper chamber, as there is no intention of having a general election. The only way a general election can be had is for the senate to imitate the British house of lords when it threw out the supply bill containing the land tax and other radical propositions of Lloyd George. Many Liberals would support an action of this kind, but the senators, as a rule, have not yet made up their minds.

A Shock for Canada.

The Canadian daily produce department has just issued statistics and deductions therefrom as to this most important branch of Canadian trade. Taken on the whole, the figures are disappointing and cannot be regarded otherwise even by the most ardent optimist.

It reveals the astonishing fact that Canada, hitherto regarded as one of the great dairying countries of the world, has imported far more butter during 1912 than she exported. Under these conditions the dominion must be listed among the butter-importing countries. Just how serious the loss is may be gathered by comparing the official statement of 1911, when close to 10,000,000 pounds of butter were shipped from Canadian ports to foreign countries. Last year the exports of butter actually shrank to just over 500,000 pounds or barely more than one-twentieth of the amount sent out in the twelve months previous. The decrease in the quantity of cheese exported was about 28,000,000 pounds, while condensed milk and cream suffered proportionately.

It is certainly rather surprising that a great dairying country like Canada should find it necessary to go to the opposite ends of the earth for so large a portion of its supply of butter. During the twelve months ended last Nov. 30 the total import was 7,000,000 pounds. The bulk of this butter consists of direct shipments from New Zealand to Vancouver and Victoria to supply the Pacific coast trade. New Zealand butter is finding so much favor with consumers on the coast that they are paying a premium of 1 or 2 cents per pound above the price at which butter from Eastern Canada can be obtained.

Pacific Coast Defense.

Australia and New Zealand are still anxious that Canada should join hands with them for the naval defense of the Pacific. The suggestion has also been made in the press that Canada should make a working arrangement with the United States for joint defense of the Pacific coast in case of Asiatic invasion. British Columbia is now guarded by one small cruiser. A prominent writer says that if Canada is not willing to join Australia and New Zealand in the defense of the Pacific, then it should make an arrangement with the United States. When the Panama canal is opened the United States will be the strongest guardian of the Pacific coast of North America. It might not be advisable to go so far as to contribute a yearly sum towards the upkeep of the United States vessels along the coast; it would probably be better to do our own share of the work. But whatever we do about the navy we should co-operate in coast and harbor defense. The year 1915—the year in which the British-Japanese alliance expires—is not far away.

Lift the Embargo.

The only province in Canada that forbids the use of automobiles within its borders is Prince Edward Island. The legislation was put into effect many years ago, at the behest of the farmers, who at that time regarded the new machine as the invention of satan himself. The objection to the automobile now most commonly advanced by the Canadian farmer is that it destroys the roads, raises clouds of dust and is a nuisance to pedestrians or other travelers on the roads.

In Prince Edward island the primary objection was that the automobile frightened the horses, and since the machines have never been allowed on the island since those early days, the objection still holds. Horses in the other provinces where automobiles have been common are now broken in to the automobile as a rule. But the Prince Edward islanders are becoming tired of imposing such restrictions on themselves and petition after petition to the government has been the consequence. It is justly urged that the automobile is a good method of distributing the surplus wealth of the rich into the hands of the workers. Its introduction would bring tourist traffic, help business, and, now that the fox-breeding industry is making so many millionaires, keep these plutocrats in the province, as the prohibition bears too hardly on their desire to spend their money. As a matter of fact, the day for keeping out the automobile has passed, even for the agriculturists, as surely as the day of Indian objections to the railroad.

RESINOL CURED ITCHING ECZEMA

Too Terrible to Describe. Tortured By It Since Childhood.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12, 1913.—"Since early childhood I have suffered untold misery with that terrible torture eczema, on the backs of my hands and fingers. I have spent hundreds of dollars on treatments and consultations and bought every known remedy, but could not be cured. My hands would crack open, oft times showing the ligaments, and the skin would stick to the inside of my gloves.

"The itching was too terrible to describe and sleep was possible only when in an exhausted condition. This winter I had given up all hope of ever finding a cure, when I heard of Resinol and purchased some. The results were perfectly marvelous. I used three jars of Resinol Ointment, with Resinol Soap, and my hands are perfectly cured. I cannot find words strong enough to praise Resinol and what it has done for me. I wish everyone needing relief from that stubborn and torturing affliction would give Resinol a trial. I shall be pleased to answer any inquiries." (Signed) Mrs. Harry O. Jarboe, 621 E. St., N. W.

You can try Resinol free, for skin eruptions, pimples, dandruff, stubborn sores, boils, or piles. Sold by practically every druggist, but for trial, write to Dept. 24-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

ON EARTH TWICE BEFORE

And Was Once Hanged for Murder He Didn't Commit, Says Jersey Town Clerk.

Montclair, N. J., Cor. New York Times: In a book with the title "The Door Without a Knob," issued here today, Harry Trippett, the town clerk of Montclair, records that in a dream it was revealed to him that he had been on this earth twice before his present existence.

"It seems," says Mr. Trippett in the preface, "that on the first occasion I was hanged for a murder which I did not commit, although the evidence was all against me.

"For several years past I have been visited by a most disagreeable dream, and though I have made no record of dates, it has seemed to be recurrent at intervals of about four months. I have always awakened with the sensation of having killed some one, though the identity of the one killed never appeared. With each recurrence the feeling of dread became more difficult to throw off, and on the last occasion it remained for two days. Had it continued much longer I should have become a fit subject for the insane asylum, as the suicidal mania was gripping me with all its power. This was something over a year ago."

Continuing, Mr. Trippett tells how after having left the Congregational church to join the Presbyterian it became manifest to him, following a study of the great religious leaders of history, that all underwent as a part of their preparation some kind of a fast, and that during these periods of abstinence they seemed to have received information which they could obtain in no other way and at no other time. Lent was drawing near, and Mr. Trippett determined to try the experiment so that he could, if possible, get an interpretation of the dream that bothered him so much.

"It was easy for me to select the one thing above all others it would be most difficult for me to give up," says Mr. Trippett, "and the only question in my mind at the time was whether I could do it. I had been smoking since I was a small boy, so I stopped smoking for the first time in thirty-seven years and refrained from the practice all through Lent. I was anxiously waiting for midnight on the last day, so that I might smoke again. It finally came and I smoked for three hours and retired at 3 o'clock in the morning. Although I was very tired when I went to bed, I awoke at 5 o'clock entirely refreshed and with a perfectly clear memory of the dream which formerly had been a nightmare to me, and I got up and wrote the whole dream down."

The revelation showed Mr. Trippett that his name was Cedric in his first existence, and that he was engaged to be married to a girl named Lucy. By a curious combination of circumstances, Lucy was killed and Cedric was charged with her murder.

"They took me to the local jail over night," Mr. Trippett writes, "and in the early morning several masked men took me out and placing a black cap over by head, hanged me to a near-by tree."

In his next existence Mr. Trippett records, according to the revelation of the dream, he was a slave who had declined the freedom offered to him by his master. In this epoch Lucy is reincarnated as the daughter of his master.

Mr. Trippett writes that these revelations were so satisfactory that on Oct. 1 he determined to fast again, this time for ninety days instead of forty. This he did, and greatly to his dismay he got no results from his second efforts. He did not fully interpret his first dream, satisfactory as it was to him.

Mr. Trippett has given much study to psychological matters, and says that he has personal knowledge of some pronounced demonstrations of the existence of a sixth sense.

DEATH CALLS D. G. CUTLER

Well Known Business Man Dies After Illness of Five Years.

Prominent in Business and Social Life of Duluth for Many Years.

In the death of D. G. Cutler, which occurred at midnight, Duluth loses one of its best known and most honored business men.

Mr. Cutler had been ill for five years with pernicious anaemia, and had just returned from spending the winter in the South. Death took place at his residence, 2229 East Superior street. Mrs. Cutler and their only son, Gilbert Cutler, were present at the bedside. He spent the winter at Summerville, S. C., where he was under the care of Dr. Church, a specialist of Chicago. Some weeks ago he became more seriously ill and started for home. On his way back Mr. Cutler was taken to a sanitarium at Hinsdale, Ill., for consultation, but on his beginning to fail, was brought home. Since that time he has been rapidly losing ground.

Mr. Cutler came to Duluth in 1881 and went into the limestone and cement business, being for years senior member of the firm of Cutler & Gilbert, which during the past few years has become the D. G. Cutler company. He was born in Amherst, Mass., 61 years ago last Wednesday. He was graduated from Amherst college in 1875 and immediately came west to Grand Haven, Mich., where he resided for eight years before coming to Duluth.

Socially, Mr. Cutler was prominent and was a member of the Kitchi Gammi club, the Duluth Commercial club, the Northland Country club, the Duluth Boat club and the Duluth Curling club.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon, with services at the residence at 3 p. m., Rev. A. W. Ryan officiating. Interment will be at Forest Hill.

P. S. ELWELL DIES AFTER OPERATION

Short Illness Fatal to Manager of Pittsburg Coal Company.

Percy S. Elwell of Minneapolis, general manager of the Pittsburg Coal company of Wisconsin, passed away at 7 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's hospital, following an operation for appendicitis, which attacked him quite suddenly last Thursday.

Mrs. Elwell came up from Minneapolis and has been with him continually during his illness.

He leaves a young daughter and one sister.

Mr. Elwell spent a great deal of his time at the Head of the Lakes in connection with the construction and operation of the large new docks of his company, and his death will be universally regretted by his large circle of acquaintances and his business associates. He was born at La Crosse, Wis., forty-two years ago and lived in Superior for some years, but moved to Minneapolis about two years ago, where he has since had his residence.

Early in his career he studied law and practiced the profession prior to his acceptance of the position of assistant to C. E. Wales, at that time vice president of the Pittsburg Coal company, and later he was promoted to his present position.

ent owner who has purchased a patented invention from the original inventor is withholding it, 'with the result of preventing any other person from using the patented process,' more than three years after the patent is issued, the court shall order the patent owner to grant to the applicant a license to use the invention upon such terms of royalty as the court 'deems just.'

Advantage to Corporations.

"The burden of litigation which this proposal involves would give large corporations the greatest advantage over ordinary patent owners. The excuse offered for this universal prescription of patents is that patents are sometimes suppressed.

"For twenty-seven days the house committee on patents took testimony upon the Oldfield bill and not a single case of 'suppression' was cited. Almost unanimously the witnesses emphatically opposed the bill with conclusive proofs that its proposals were unwise.

"If American manufacturers and inventors, whose existence is now threatened by the Oldfield bill, will join hands with the opponents of the bill, the patent system can be saved."

Dr. John H. Leete, dean of the school of applied science, Carnegie institute of technology, Pittsburg, Pa., read a paper on the fundamental problems of industrial education. As a remedy for lack of school education in industrial lines, he urged:

"The provision of vocational training for the different fields of industrial activity approximately commensurate to the demand for trained men in those fields; more efficient direction of the student towards the work to which he is best adapted; facilities for supplementary education for the workman, and co-operation on the part of the industries to make such continuation schools efficient."

Tells of Foreign Field.

A. J. Wolfe, commercial agent for the United States department of commerce, speaking on "European Laws and the American Manufacturer," told in detail of a recent six months' study of European laws and European commercial organizations, concerning which he will make a report to the department of commerce. He urged American manufacturers thoroughly to acquaint themselves with the foreign laws before establishing foreign branches or agents. The fact that words and terms have an entirely different meaning in different countries, he said, led to needless litigation which could be avoided if the American manufacturer had acquainted himself with foreign conditions.

POISONED MAN STILL ALIVE

the attending physicians and nurses are permitted to enter his room.

Telegrams containing suggestions for treatment still are being received at the Walker home from every section of the country.

Might Transplant Kidneys.

Baltimore, Md., May 21.—To transplant the healthy kidneys from a man who has died to the body of B. Sanders Walker, millionaire banker of Macon, Ga., probably is the only remedy that would save the unfortunate banker's life if the tablet he swallowed has destroyed one of his kidneys, was the statement of a prominent physician who is a member of the Johns Hopkins hospital staff.

He pointed out that Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller institute of medical research has successfully transplanted the kidneys from one dog to another, and in a few hours the dogs were walking about and eating as if their organs had not been disturbed. According to Dr. Carrel, the same could be done to the human system, and he is the authority for the statement that blood vessels and other organs can be successfully transplanted and will continue to grow in the human body.

Another local physician predicted Mr. Walker's recovery, although he might be paralyzed for life. This doctor said he has had several cases just like the Macon one, and in only one of them did the patient die.

Other medical authorities here in discussing the case gave their belief that Mr. Walker could not possibly recover.

CASHIER SAYS BOY "SOLD" HIM

circle the globe; invited me to go to Panama with them, and showed me a photograph of a $14,000 house which he said he was buying.

"Soon after he asked me to act as his attorney while he was absent, as $50,000 or $60,000 would soon be deposited to his account, and he wanted me to take up $30,000 of the underlying bonds of the Wauwausee Inn company, which must be taken up before he could dispose of a new bond issue on the property."

The witness explained that from time to time he communicated with Storke, asking what had become of the deposit promised, out of which to take care of the underlying bonds, and finally Storke said he would go to Milwaukee and see where the hitch was. Grimme also had business at Wilwaukee, and accompanied the youthful financier.

Pointed Out Holdings.

"On the train," continued the witness, "he made a list of bonds which he said he had sold. He showed me land along the route and said, 'My family owns forty miles of that land.' He indicated a big office building in Milwaukee and said that that also belonged to his family."

Just prior to this trip, checks drawn by Secretary Bither of the Wauwausee Inn company began to come through the clearing house. Bither was informed that there was no deposit to that account, and Bither told the witness that Storke had instructed him to draw the checks, and that he, Storke, had deposited the money.

Storke, in recent testimony, said that David R. Forgan, president of the National City bank, intimidated him into countersigning the Bither checks which the latter had issued to take up the underlying bonds. The ink wasn't dry on them, Storke said, when Forgan threatened that unless he produced the $30,000 called for by the checks Storke would be sent to prison. It was this threat, it is alleged, that caused Mrs. Rogers to turn over her money and property.

DETAILS OF PLOT TO PLANT DYNAMITE ARE TOLD IN WOOD TRIAL

tonators and described the method of discharging them. Real detonators, he said, were very explosive.

Dangers of Dynamite.

The witness told of the various ways in which dynamite might be exploded by accident. Dynamite that was thoroughly frozen, he said, was hard to discharge, but partially frozen dynamite was apt to be discharged unexpectedly and was more dangerous than in any other form.

It was very dangerous to have dynamite and detonators near each other, and it would be extremely hazardous for a person inexperienced in explosives to carry a package containing both dynamite and detonators.

He described the methods by which he identified the Lawrence exhibits as dynamite and detonators. As part of the tests he and State Officer Flynn exploded three of the dynamite sticks at a cemetery at Lawrence. One of the blasting caps used to explode the dynamite had been given him by a Lawrence police official, who told him it had been found in a package of dynamite that had been "planted."

Wedgett said that the temperature of an ordinary railway passenger car in winter would thaw out frozen dynamite in three-quarters of an hour.

Breen on the Stand.

Breen said that he knew both Collins and Atteaux. In January, 1912, he met Atteaux at the latter's office. This was a few days before the dynamite episode. The conversation was in regard to the Lawrence strike.

"Atteaux said he was glad to see I was interested in keeping the striking element quiet," said Breen. "The next time I saw him was on Jan. 19. The conversation then was about the strike. I said affairs at the mills were getting pretty hot. I added: 'If I was fighting those fellows I'd fight them by their own methods.' 'What do you mean?' he asked; 'dynamite?' 'Dynamite or anything else,' I said."

"'Could you get some dynamite?' he asked. I said: 'No.' Then he suggested that perhaps Mr. Pittman might get some."

The Pittman mentioned by the witness was Ernest R. Pittman, a builder with whom the state alleges Wood, Atteaux and Collins conspired. Pittman committed suicide on the day he was subpoenaed to appear as the witness before the grand jury which was investigating the alleged dynamite plot.

Dealt With Pittman.

Atteaux telephoned to Pittman, Breen continued, and an hour later Pittman arrived at Atteaux's office.

"'Pittman said to me: 'I'll get some dynamite and detonators. How can I telephone you?' I told him.

"'Atteaux, who had gone out, returned after Pittman left and said to me, 'Well, you can't do this for nothing.' I said, 'No, I will have to hire someone to help me.'

"'How much do you need?' he asked; 'will $500 be enough?'

"I told him that would be enough. Atteaux asked me about the police and I told him that Inspector Rooney was a friend of mine and would never suspect me. Atteaux said he had no money with him, but would give it to me at 5 o'clock."

Breen told of meeting Collins and of asking Collins to go to Lawrence with him. Later he met Atteaux at a street corner. Atteaux got out of a taxicab and said:

"Follow me, John."

Dropped Package of $500.

"I followed him," continued Breen, "and he dropped a package. As I picked it up, he said: 'Don't say I never gave you anything.' When I opened the package I found $500."

Breen made a second trip to the street corner, this time with Collins.

"I stood on the corner," said the witness, "until Pittman came up. He took me down the street and introduced me to a Mr. Rice. 'Mr. Rice has the package for you,' he said. I took the bundle and said to Mr. Rice: 'What danger is there with this?' He said: 'None, it's frozen solid.'

"I carried the bundle up to the corner, where Collins was waiting in a doorway. I said to him, 'Here's the dynamite. Be careful, even if Mr. Rice does say there is no danger.'"

Breen said that he and Collins took a train for Lawrence, where they went to Breen's room. Here Collins opened the bundle and some smaller packages.

Collins yesterday denied that he knew the package contained dynamite. He declared that Breen told him only that it was "juice."

Breen saw the dynamite sticks wrapped in small bundles, but did not see Collins until later.

"Collins knew what he was going to do," said the witness, "because I had told him at the saloon in Boston that we were going to place dynamite around Lawrence."

Where They Left It.

Collins put the bundles in a suit case.

"One bundle was left at Assaf's, the tailor shop of an Assyrian," said the witness. "Then we went to an Italian print shop. The place was closed and no dynamite was left there."

The reason Breen selected the printing shop was because it was in the center of a district where the strikers and the police had frequently met, he said.

He said dynamite was left in St. Mary's cemetery, but denied that he told Collins to put the explosive near the Arlington mill.

EX-REBEL SPEAKS FOR GETTYSBURG.

Gettysburg, Pa., May 21.—The grand lodge of Pennsylvania Odd Fellows convened here yesterday under unusual circumstances, when Gen. Felix Robertson of Texas, one of the few living Confederate generals, consented to make the address of welcome for the town, extending to the delegates the hospitality of Gettysburg and the courtesy of those in charge of the battlefield on which the cause which he espoused received its first decisive blow.

An ovation greeted the Southerner when he was introduced, all the delegates rising to their feet, and at the close of his address he was greeted with applause. It was, perhaps, the first time in the history of Gettysburg that such an address of welcome has been made.

UNCLE SAM MAY MAKE ARMOR PLATE

Secretary Daniels Says There is No Real Competition.

Washington, May 21.—Plans for manufacturing armor plate for American warships in the plants owned and operated by the government are being considered by the navy department. Secretary Daniels declared that there was no such thing as competition between private manufacturers, and that a government factory seemed to be the only solution of the problem. He added that he would not disturb the contracts let just before the close of the Taft administration because lower bids could be expected than those now accepted. "I am convinced," said Secretary Daniels in his statement "that the United States pays too much for its armor plate, and the only way to get it cheaper would be for the country to have its own plant, so that the outsiders may be forced to come down to a reasonable price."

OFFERS TO BUY MANITOBA PHONES.

Winnipeg, Man., May 21.—The National Telephone Company of Great Britain, which recently sold its system to the British government, is now negotiating with the Manitoba government with a view to purchasing Manitoba's telephone system for $7,000,000, according to an announcement last night. If successful, negotiations will be entered upon to gain telephone systems in Saskatchewan. Some members of the cabinet favor the sale, it is said.

SANDSTONE TOO COSTLY

Property Owners Above Fifth Street Satisfied With Crushed Rock.

While the majority of property owners below Fifth street favor sandstone for the paving of Twenty-third avenue it is claimed that with the exception of seven, owners of full lots above that point are satisfied with the crushed rock pavement as ordered by the commission.

"The commissioners carried out the wishes of the majority of property owners above Fifth street when they decided on crushed rock for Twenty-third avenue between Fifth street and Piedmont avenue," said E. Gustafson, owner of 75 feet on Twenty-third avenue and Eighth street. "Those men who insisted on sandstone for the entire street are owners of property below Fifth street and for the most part men who can very well afford the outlay.

"Some of those men were quoted as saying that the men opposed to sandstone were those who did not favor any improvement. There are very few men opposed to the improvement but the men who opposed the sandstone and insisted on crushed rock are those who feel they are unable to stand the higher cost of the improvement. The raise in the value in property on the hillside will not warrant the additional cost of the improvement."

Many other property owners in the hillside section expressed themselves in a similar manner this morning. Among these were John Hall, Alec Nelson and Christ Nelson. They stated that the men whose property would be affected were for the greater part laboring men whose incomes did not warrant the higher cost and many of these were now paying for their homes on the installment plan.

"It is all right for Dr. Oredson to insist on sandstone," said one of them. "His income is such that an assessment of $500 will not worry him half as much as an assessment of $5 will some of thest hard working people on the hillside."

BEGIN WORK ON HOTEL BUILDING

Excavation work started this morning for the construction of the hotel building at Twentieth avenue west and Superior street. The small buildings which occupied this 100 feet of frontage have all been removed and much of the material for the building has arrived.

The building will have a full basement. It is planned to have this part of the work completed by June 15. The building will be three stories high, the upper two floors arranged for 123 rooms each, while the first floor will be used for dining rooms, cafe, and store buildings.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR WEDDING PARTY.

The Misses Laura Le Maire and Nina Robitaille entertained last evening at the St. Jean Baptiste hall, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street, in compliment to Miss Georgia Grignon and Frank Dion, whose marriage will take place in the near future.

The tables were set in a hollow square and a huge bell of chrysanthemums hung in the center of the dining room from which colored streamers made a complete canopy, a miniature bride and groom being set beneath the bell. The background was set with woodland scenery and the whole lighted with Japanese lanterns. Carnations and American Beauty roses were the table decorations.

The evening was pleasantly spent by the 100 guests present.

PUBLIC BATHS NEAR BOULEVARD

West Enders Want "Swimmin' Hole" Established on Hilltop.

The West End Hillside Improvement club will discuss the establishment of free public baths above Fourteenth street on Miller's creek at its meeting at the Ensign school Friday evening. The project has been the subject of much discussion among the residents of the district, the majority of whom heartily favor it.

It is probable that the club will indorse the action of the park board in condemning the property and its recommendation to purchase it. The part to be acquired consists of about forty acres lying in a valley several hundred feet above the new bridge crossing the creek at Piedmont avenue and Fourteenth street.

According to the plans advanced it is proposed to build a dam across the creek at that point in order to create a pond whose greatest depth will be about four feet. The larger rocks in the bed of the creek will be removed and a sandy beach created for the bathing place. It is also proposed to erect small houses where the children may change their clothes for their bathing suits.

The pond will be just west of the boulevard and the ground between this highway and the pond will be prettily parked. When completed it is claimed it will be one of the prettiest spots in the city.

West End Briefs.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Swedish Methodist church will be entertained tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. B. Larson, 2115 Fourth street.

Andrew Horngren has returned from Two Harbors, where he instituted a new lodge of the Vasa order.

Rev. Swandy Nelson, pastor of the Swedish Baptist church will leave this evening for Two Harbors, where he will conduct services. He will return home tomorrow.

KANSAS SHERIFF KEEPS MOB AT BAY.

Hiawatha, Kan., May 21.—A mob of 200 persons from Falls City, Neb., last night made a threatening demonstration at the local jail, where William Bellew, a negro charged with attacking Mrs. Anna Kellar of Falls City, is a prisoner.

After the crowd had promised that the negro would not be harmed, he was brought on the jail steps that Mrs. Kellar might see him. When she identified him as her assailant, the crowd closed in around the jail entrance, but the sheriff and his assistants drew their pistols and held the mob at bay until Bellew could be taken back to his cell. The crowd made no further effort to enter the building.

Late last night the men on the street still were in an angry mood and an extra force of guards were on duty at the jail.

Mrs. Kellar was reported to be in a serious condition. She came here against the advice of her physicians.

HEAVY FINE IN WEBB LAW TEST.

Kansas City, Mo., May 21.—A fine of $4,000, with a sentence of 240 days in jail, the heaviest penalties ever imposed in a local court, was the judgment pronounced in the municipal court in Kansas City, Kan., on H. A. Hawver, a driver for the Kansas City Breweries company. Hawver was arrested two weeks ago when the police seized beer wagons making deliveries in Kansas City, Kan. The Kansas authorities made the arrest to test the police powers under the Federal Webb law and the state law and city ordinances designed for its enforcement.

The point raised was whether the delivery of beer in Kansas City, Kan., constituted a sale in that state. The defense stated that beer was paid for at the office of the brewing company in Kansas City, Mo.

Hawver's case was appealed and he was released under bond of $8,000.

West Virginia Governor Issues Another Strike Statement.

Declares He Intends to Ask Aid of the Courts.

Charleston, W. A., May 21.—Governor Hatfield of West Virginia has issued another statement in connection with the coal strike troubles of the state, in which he attacks all persons opposing his attitude of maintaining martial law. He states that he is convinced "there is an organized movement to create strife in the West Virginia coal fields by persons who have ulterior motives."

Governor Hatfield declared that he intends to ask the aid of the courts, through injunction proceedings, to deal with certain phases of the strike situation.

The governor states that labor officials have expressed to him personally commendation of his action in keeping the troops in the field, and further says that he has brought about an agreement with the operators and miners of the Kanawabah coal fields.

"The strike is settled. Both miners and operators, with but very few exceptions, are carrying out the proposals submitted by me and accepted by them. This, I am sure, will be vouched for by representatives of the mine workers themselves," said the governor.

MILITANT FOR FREE SPEECH.

London, May 21.—Advocates of free speech are adopting militant arguments with the object of making the British home secretary's life harder. A man strolled up to the home office and hurled a brick through the plate glass door of Reginald McKenna's sanctum. A howl of "vote for free speech" rose above the din caused by the shattered glass.

The man was arrested.

SINGER SCORES.

Miss Hallock Pleases Audience With Recital.

Miss Alta Hallock sang delightfully at her recital given last evening at the Endion M. E. church, before an enthusiastically appreciative audience. Every number was received with earnest applause, and other artists who assisted her shared in the honors.

Miss Hallock has a voice of wide range and rich quality, having the fullness of a contralto and the high sweetness of a soprano. Her biggest number was the aria, "The Death of Joan of Arc," which she gave with power and understanding and her group of shorter songs was also artistically given.

Miss Emily Smith, violinist, who assisted on the program, played with exceptional skill and feeling and her number was generally enjoyed.

The Scottish Rite quartet sang "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" with their usual popularity, the singers in this quartet being, Don Cole, A. R. Burquist, C. O. Applehagen and Don Gearhart.

The closing number was splendidly sung by an octet of singers with violin obligato by Gustav Flaaten, Miss Hallock singing the solo parts. The other singers were: Miss Mary Whitcomb, Miss Margaret Linehan, Miss Myrtle Harding, Mrs. Cutliff, Arthur Cameron, Roy Olson, Dwight W. Hiestand and Joseph Brendt.

SWEET CLOVER.

Farm and Fireside: Since colonial days there has grown along our roadsides a legume classed as weed by farmers, weed commissions, and even experiment station officers.

Until late years the only steadfast friend of sweet clover has been the beeman, whose neighbors have in many cases uttered imprecations against him, accusing him of scattering the seed with malicious intent.

This antagonistic attitude is undergoing a change, and the agricultural press now contains many articles by stock growers who are loud in their praises of this "new discovery" which promises to make their poor lands a profitable stock range for horses, cattle and sheep.

Protein is the most expensive constituent of farm feeds. Comparative analyses of sweet clover, alfalfa, red clover, timothy and cow-peas showed that only the alfalfa and cow-peas excelled sweet clover in percentage of protein, the alfalfa by 1 per cent. Considered from the standpoint of digestible nutrients, we find the following comparative values for the different feeds:

	Per ton.
Sweet-clover hay	$18.48
Alfalfa hay	20.16
Red-clover hay	14.12
Timothy hay	9.80
Cow-pea hay	19.76
Shelled corn	20.16

"COLLEGE AND LIFE"

Dr. George E. Vincent Talks at Reception Given for Senior Girls By Collegiate Alumnae.

"All education is self education, whether alone or in colleges and schools," said Dr. George E. Vincent in his talk on "College and Life" yesterday afternoon at the Commercial club at the meeting planned by the collegiate alumnae at which the senior girls of the city were their guests.

"What you want is intelligence and insight into human nature and your surroundings and a college education gives a thoroughness, a tolerance and openmindedness, suspended judgment and poise. College should give the process of mental growth for life, should give one a realization of the complexity of life and a recognition of the largeness and vastness of human knowledge and an appreciation of the limitations of any one person, thereby giving tolerance.

"Colleges are an expression of our social life and there have been vast changes in colleges and schools during the past fifty years. Then the only career for woman was that of getting married, and now there are some three hundred different types of service opened to women, and the colleges must fit them for this work. College courses are gradually becoming more serious and more adapted to the needs of women which will make them citizens of the world in the broadest sense.

"The most interesting phenomenon in the world is human nature, and we can understand human nature best by gaining an understanding of ourselves. This the college education gives through a thorough training in all branches and in different phases of life.

"Books are only tools and we get no more out of them than our view of life enables us to see there. They are only of importance to us as they enable us to understand human nature and give us a broader insight into things in general.

"Being at home in the world is the highest aim of education and the desire to be of service and to develop that you may do your part for civilization and the growth of your surroundings, and higher education gives a sense of efficiency and power and opens up new vistas and new points of view to the student."

After Dr. Vincent's talk six members of the senior class of the Central high school gave a little farce in three scenes, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," cleverly worked out.

With the simple stage setting of the stage in Shakespeare's time, the little scene of Pyramus and Thisbe was cast, rehearsed and presented with Miss Dorothy Wachtel ably taking the part of Peter Quince, the director. Miss Florence Whipple, as Pyramus, and Miss Marjorie Baillie, as Thisbe, were especially good and were well supported by Miss Marjorie Milne as the "wall." Miss Clara Fider had the part of the lion and Miss Vernie Larsen was "Moonlight."

A reception followed the play.

HOW TO BEAT CHILDREN

George Bernard Shaw Supplies One Lesson Not Given at Infant Welfare Exhibit at Masonic Temple---Physicians of Duluth Co-operate in Making Exhibit Effective.

Practically the only thing that an interested person cannot learn about the care of infants at the Infant Welfare exhibit to be seen this week at the auditorium of the Masonic temple is how to beat children. And that piece of advice, together with much else that is somewhat impracticable, has been taught to the world by that most iconoclastic of teachers, G. B. Shaw.

In the exhibit, which has been sent out by the National Society for the Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality, any interested spectator may find information that will prove most valuable in the care of babies. To supplement this information, which is presented with pictures, charts, posters and devices of various kinds, the physicians of the city have most generously devoted their time and knowledge. This afternoon the first lecture of a series of six was presented at 4 o'clock by Dr. S. H. Boyer on "The Prevention of Infant Diseases." The exhibit will be open again this evening and the speaker will be Dr. J. J. Eklund, whose subject will be "Surgical Aspects of Infant Diseases."

The lecture will be given at 9 o'clock, giving the visitors opportunity to view the exhibit before the lecture. Parents are cordially invited to attend. The exhibit is entirely free.

The speakers tomorrow afternoon and evening will be Dr. C. H. Schroeder who will speak in the afternoon at 4 o'clock on "Prevention of Infant Diseases." Thursday evening at 9 o'clock Dr. J. M. Robinson will talk on "The Eye, Ear and Throat in Relation to Infant Diseases."

And now for the information on the beating of children. George Bernard Shaw, in his treatise on the breeding of the superman, has his hero write:

"If you strike a child, take care that you strike it in anger, even at the risk of maiming it for life. A blow in cold blood neither can or should be forgiven.

"If you beat children for pleasure, avow your object frankly, and play the game according to the rules, as a fox hunter does; and you will do comparatively little harm. No fox hunter is such a cad as to pretend that he hunts the fox to teach it not to steal chickens, or that he suffers more acutely than the fox at the death. Remember that even in child beating, there is the sportsman's way and the cad's way."

OBSERVATIONS

By PEGGY PEABODY

Single Standard Is Urged in Bringing Up Children.

I read the other day of a physician who declared that "it is in the household that the double standard of conduct is unconsciously set up." I believe there is something in the statement.

We hear a great deal about the double moral standard which is applied to the sexes—the woman must suffer and be ostracised, and the man may go and sin again and again, and continue to hold up his head in society. We have all heard of it and deplored it as being unjust to the weaker sex that it should be made to suffer.

I had never really thought of the matter in just this light, that is, as to the cause of this double standard, until I read this physician's statement—and the physician was, by the way, a woman. She insisted that from the time a boy is old enough to toddle he is indulged in many ways, whereas the girl is held to a strict account for all her actions. The boy may be guilty, she says, of all sorts of carelessness and lack of consideration, but he is a boy, and excuses are made for him on that ground.

On the other hand, the girl must do nothing that is unlady-like, or she will be called to answer. She must be prim in appearance and in conduct, while her brother may be rough in manners and careless of appearance.

This line of division is started early in life, and it seems to cling as children grow older. That is, "the female of the species," when she passes beyond the age of strict accountability to the parent roof, and into the age of discretion, immediately becomes responsible to society, which is a rigid censor of her every act. She is held strictly accountable for her behavior, and if she is not careful her reputation will be in jeopardy, or, if she makes a misstep, her life is ruined and her happiness destroyed.

The boy, her brother, however, reaches the state of young manhood, and society makes excuses for him, just as had his parents in childhood. "Oh, every young man must sow his wild oats before he settles down," it says. And he proceeds to act upon his privilege and go his gilded way. And then, when some other fellow's sister is his victim, society rises up and condemns the girl and frees the youth of blame.

Perhaps the solution of the double standard lies in the home training of the boy and girl. The matter is worth thinking about.

A NEW CITY HALL.

The building of a new city hall is one of the things we expected the city commission to give its mind to after it had got settled in its new job and had a chance to look about.

So it is good to learn through Mayor Prince that the commission already has it in mind, and that there is talk of starting a sinking fund of a mill a year so as to be ready for action.

That the present city hall is old and unsightly and unsuitable is not to be denied. That Duluth needs a new city hall is as undeniable. In fact, the city has had a new city hall in mind for years, and has been restrained from building one only because it hadn't the money.

It never will have the money, of course, unless some such course as that suggested by Mayor Prince is adopted.

The first thing to be done, and it is a thing that should be done soon, is to tie up the site. The county, when it built the new courthouse, acquired ground enough for a city hall, and it still is holding the property.

There are two very good reasons why the city should take over the site adjacent to the courthouse as soon as it possibly can find the money. One is that the county cannot be expected to hold this property indefinitely. The other is that it is constantly increasing in value, and the longer its purchase is postponed the more the city will have to pay for it.

Any other site is, of course, unthinkable. The grouping plan formed when the courthouse was built, with the city hall on one side, a new postoffice on the other, and the courthouse in the back center, is ideally admirable, and should not be abandoned. Moreover, the new site is infinitely more convenient to the people than the present one.

The commission should by all means have constantly in mind the construction of a new city hall, and it should buy the site from the county as soon as it possibly can.

Prof. Taft is going to spend the summer in Canada. Now that he is an ex-president, perhaps the people over there won't worry about his possibly stirring up an annexation movement

A DEMOCRATIC PROSPERITY WAVE.

Says the Kansas City Star: "This country came through last season with the largest resources in its history. It is going forward into a wonderful crop year. All the conditions are healthy. The population is larger than ever before. With the increase in wealth people are going to eat better food, wear better clothes and buy more freely of household goods than they ever did. That means increasing business.

"There is plenty of prosperity in sight for every business man who deserves prosperity.

"These are obvious facts. They cannot be upset by the gloom of Eastern manufacturers who would like to scare the country into continuing the favors they have been getting for years from the government."

Truth, solid truth.

The fact is that the country is about to enjoy a run of Democratic prosperity.

Democratic prosperity will be different from Republican prosperity because it will be healthier, sounder, more substantial and more widely distributed.

Republican prosperity has been hothouse bred. Democratic prosperity will grow in the open and gain sturdiness from exposure to natural conditions.

Republican prosperity has enormously increased the bulk wealth of the country, without increasing at all the average well being of the people. Such increase in well being as there has been came in spite of it, not because of it. With a cost of living padded by tariff subsidies and advancing much faster than wages, this hothouse prosperity has meant luxury for a few and increasing hardship for the many.

The foundation for any prosperity, no matter what its arbitrary label, is agricultural. Good crops at good prices produce prosperity no matter what party is in power. The superstructure is industrial and commercial activity. Parties and governments can do little to affect crops or prices. There is little that they should do to affect industry and commerce. The protective tariff creates a fictitious atmosphere of prosperity, with an insidious poison accompanying it which breeds the diseases of plutocracy and poverty.

Good crops and good prices are as well assured now as they possibly could be. Commercial and industrial activity wait, if at all, only on the certainty of an enacted tariff law. The tariff law that is to be enacted will reduce swollen tariff subsidies, and in so far as it reduces prices it will stimulate consumption. It will make toward less congestion of prosperity and a wider distribution of prosperity; it will not decrease the bulk of prosperity in the slightest degree.

If the crop outlook fruits in a record-breaking production of wealth, the Democratic administration will be entitled to as much credit for it as the Republicans used to claim under similar conditions.

What the Democratic administration will surely be entitled to, however, is a tariff law that will tend to create a better distribution of the fruits of the people's enterprise and toil.

Prosperity is coming anyway, and if it is shared in by all instead of mainly by a few that will be the sign by which you may know it to be Democratic prosperity as distinguished from Republican prosperity.

Porfirio Diaz's nearness to or remoteness from senile dementia will be generally determined by the degree of promptness with which he declines that invitation to return to Mexico.

AN INNOVATION.

William M. Wood, a millionaire mill owner, head of the woolen trust and one of the most prominent manufacturers in the country, is on trial in Massachusetts on a charge of having conspired to "plant" dynamite in the homes of striking Lawrence workers in order to discredit them and their cause.

The Associated Press report of the case says: "It is the first time in Massachusetts that a serious criminal charge arising from labor difficulties has been made against a manufacturer."

Massachusetts is one of the largest manufacturing states in the Union. It has had many labor troubles. Criminal charges innumerable have been laid against striking employes. Yet this is the first serious charge made—in court—against an employer.

Is it the first time that an employer has been suspected of criminal acts against his employes? Probably not.

Apparently it is only another sign that times are changing—indeed, that they are changed.

Senator Clapp wants members of congress barred from membership on political committees. Bully idea—to keep our congressmen out of politics.

THERE IS SUCH A THING AS TOO MUCH.

Commissioner Hicken has a new ordinance, described in The Herald last night, which proposes to regulate the free lunch, music and other trimmings out of the saloon. Incidentally, as it stands it also regulates out of existence restaurants or chop houses conducted in connection with saloons.

Apparently as an after-thought, Mr. Hicken says that maybe the provision as to chop houses will be changed before the ordinance is enacted. It seems to us that it would be rather a good idea to do that.

Enthusiasm in the new broom of strict regulation should not lead to overdoing it. The principle of law enforcement seems to meet with general approval, but adoption of new laws should be undertaken carefully, with due regard to whether there is good reason for them.

Eliminating music and the free lunch won't meet with much objection. The music, as heard from the sidewalk, isn't very good as a rule. The free lunch is likely to be insanitary, to say the least; and probably the saloonkeepers themselves, if all speak of the effects of shrapnel fire as "murderous."

But the reason for, and the moral issue involved in, the elimination of the chop house are not quite clear. Maybe there is good reason for it. If so it will be well if it could be explained so everybody can know about it and be satisfied that putting the chop house out of business is going to be a great moral benefit to the community.

One good reason for going carefully in this matter is the possibility that overdoing reform might lead to a reaction in which the real good in reform might be lost.

Just the same, the settlement of this California business would cut off the school debaters from a mighty fat subject.

John Kirby, Jr., seems to be trying to qualify as the McNamara of the Manufacturers' association.

Now that the militant women have threatened to destroy the golf links in Scotland, it will be generally expected that John D. and Prof. Taft will join the pro-suffrage ranks.

VICE AND WAGES.

To the Editor of The Herald:

After reading a short paragraph, "Voice From the Underworld," and the interview with Clifford G. Roe, I wish to say a few words regarding the vice question. Perhaps, as he states, some cities are better since the new injunction abatement law has been put in force, but as this other voice from the underworld says, I have myself been in a number of towns where disorderly houses were closed and more girls are going wrong since these houses were closed.

If we are to close up every resort of this kind, what about the 8,000,000 of men in the country today, unable to support a family? Will Mr. Roe see that these men's wages are raised so they may be in position to take the good girls and marry them? Will his scientific ideas give the thousands of girls, working in department stores and shops, a living wage, that they will not be obliged to seek some friend and give their soul and body for the things every girl needs, wants and craves? Will their wages all be raised?

It seems queer to me that these men with their scientific ideas never get to the root of vice and crime. They always work on the effects of a condition. Picking off the bad fruit and expecting good fruit to grow where the roots are rotten. To eliminate any great wrong we must first find the cause, the root. When Christianity replaces selfishness and greed and pays men enough for their labor that they can see the way to take a wife and raise a family, when women are paid enough that they won't be obliged to sell themselves to live, at that time and not until then will this vice and crime be wiped out.

When we are all given the opportunity to be good if we want to be, 95 out of every 100 will grab at the chance, and a little thought and common sense reasoning will do more than scientific study by a hundred Mr. Roes.

In the large cities thousands of girls are paid an average of $4, $5 and $6 a week—good girls, and the majority are homeless. They cannot exist on that wage. These girls are not born bad. Thousands of them finally end in houses of prostitution.

The system itself is the cause. It is rotten to the core and a hotbed for vice, filth and crime of every sort. The daily papers prove all this.

Give us all, from the lowly up, wages enough to support a family decently and have a house and you will see prostitution and crime disappear.

The people are at fault and just so long as they prefer to have rogues and rascals govern them, then just so long will the good old Stars and Stripes float over a debased nation, where poverty, filth, crime and prostitution have a fertile field.

I would like to see this in print. But it's the truth, and people hate to know the truth. They prefer to be humbugged. P. W. C.

Wounds of Modern Warfare.

British Medical Journal: Surgeons in the South African war were astonished to find how rapidly men recovered from bullet wounds penetrating the thorax, the abdomen and even the head. These recoveries were credited at first to the healing qualities of the South African air. But very soon the explanation came that it was really the thin, narrow bullet traveling at high velocity which was making war more humane. In Manchuria the same experience was common. So in the Balkans the rifle bullet has done comparatively little damage. The Mannlicher bullet used by the Turks is long and narrow (6 mm. in diameter); it perforates cleanly, its track is aseptic and the tissues close quickly and firmly. The bones, especially the expanded articular ends, were simply tunneled. Wounds of the thorax with perforation of the lung healed generally without complication. And so complete abstention from exploration or other interference in rifle bullet wounds came to be the rule. The rule worked well, too, with much wider application, and M. Monprofit indulges in these obiter dicta:

"Modern military surgery ought to be, above all, surgery of watchfulness and expectancy: 'Moins on fait, mieux on fait.' All operations, except a few of absolute urgency, are contraindicated on the battlefield."

But the story is different when we consider the wounds made by shrapnel. Infantry fire is diminishing in seriousness, artillery fire is increasing. The wounds made by shrapnel were always severe; bones were pulverized, tissues torn, thorax and cranium crushed. Prof. Monprofit and his colleagues are by no means hypersensitive, but they all speak of the effects of shrapnel fire as "murderous."

A Fable Without Slang!

Ralph Bergengren in Life: A rich man, who suspected his only daughter was planning to elope with his chauffeur, took the fellow aside and offered him an excellent cigar.

"I understand," he said, "that you are about to elope with my only daughter."

The chauffeur was too surprised to answer, but his expression betrayed him.

"That's all right," said the rich man, "and it's no use to argue the matter. What I want you to promise is that you'll come back after the honeymoon. I dare say you can make a comfortable home over the garage, and I should be sorry to lose such a good chauffeur."

That night when the stars were shining like myriad eyes, the chauffeur did not elope with the rich man's only daughter.

Moral: A plain fact often discourages romance.

Willing to Oblige.

Judge: "While," says a New Yorker, "the Gotham car conductor is generally rude, sometimes he is witty.

"Not long ago, on a Broadway car, a woman said to the conductor, in a voice of command,

"'You will let me off at 931.'

"The conductor regarded her curiously for a moment, while the other passengers grinned; then, quite submissively, he answered,

"'Yes, ma'am; what floor, please, ma'am?'"

Playing With Dynamite

Editorial in New York World.

Capital as well as labor has its Industrial Workers of the World who advocate intimidation and anarchy.

What moral difference is there between the Haywoods who are trying to bulldoze government in Paterson and the protected manufacturers who are trying to bulldoze government in Washington?

What moral difference is there between the labor leader who threatens the employer with ruin and starvation if he cannot rule government and the employer who threatens labor with ruin and starvation if he cannot rule government?

A reign of terror is a reign or terror whether it is carried on by the demagogues of labor or the demagogues of capital.

Before the Underwood bill had passed the house, certain manufacturers who had grown rich by capitalizing the tariff laws of the United States began to threaten a general reduction in wages if their favored industries were put on a competitive basis.

Mr. Underwood's reply was that if any manufacturer reduced wages on the pretext that tariff revision had made it necessary, the department of commerce would proceed to examine his books and ascertain whether he was telling the truth or lying. The facts would be made public.

Mr. Underwood was instantly overwhelmed in a wave of high-protective denunciation. When Secretary Redfield declared that he would carry out the Underwood program, some of these manufacturers, including President Hanan of the National Shoe Manufacturers' association, threatened either to close their factories or to move to Europe. That is the measure of tariff-bloated patriotism. Having been subsidized all these years by the American people, these arrogant anarchists of industry now serve notice that the subsidy must be continued or they will retaliate upon the country whose opportunities and generosity have made them rich. They will accept tariff revision only on condition that labor alone is mulcted. That is their ultimatum to congress and the president.

These gentlemen are playing with dynamite as surely as Haywood and his irresponsible followers are playing with dynamite. In an article in the current Outlook entitled "Tariff Reduction From the Standpoint of a Business Man," George P. Brett warns protected industry that—

"Labor will not be 'liquidated,' and it is quite right that it should not be so long as the profits of management are what they have been in the past and what they are today. Nor can the reasonable reductions of the tariff now proposed suffice as an excuse for reductions in wages until liquidation has been ruthlessly applied to the evils of management as these now exist."

We believe that Mr. Brett voices the sober sense of the American people. There is no more sympathy with the Hanan kind of intimidation than with the Haywood kind. Anarchy in evening clothes is no more attractive than anarchy in overalls.

There is even less excuse for the Hanans who are trying to bluff the country than for the Haywoods. Haywood's followers have at least the excuse that they have not grown rich under laws framed at their own dictation. They are the underdogs of industry, not the pampered pets of a high-tariff bench show. But in either case, if the time has come when industry must be at the mercy of labor anarchists or labor must be at the mercy of capitalistic anarchists, this is no longer a free country and we need a new Declaration of Independence.

An infinitely greater issue than wages is involved in the warfare that Haywood and his followers are waging against society, and an infinitely greater issue than tariff schedules is involved in the warfare that protected industry promises to wage against society. Both issues might as well be fought out at once, with all the powers of constitutional government that society can command.

America's Ten Most Valuable Citizens

New York Independent: Recently we put the following question to our readers:

Who are the most useful Americans? If life insurance could really insure against loss of life on whose lives should the American people best afford to pay the highest premiums? In other words, who among our contemporaries are of most value to the community; whose places would be most difficult to fill? If congress should decide to award ten prizes to the most deserving men and women in the country and leave the choice to a popular referendum, who should get the largest number of votes?

Though we offered no prize for the correct answer to our conundrum, because we did not know it ourselves, the inquiry aroused a great deal of interest. It was put to classes in modern history and current events in several colleges and high schools. It was made a subject for debate in reading circles and clubs. It was discussed by ministers and editors.

When the returns came in we found that we had more than ten thousand names to count and that 343 different persons had been considered worthy the honor of being included in the list of the ten most valuable citizens of the United States. The ten who led are the following:

Thomas A. Edison	893	Alexis Carrel	470
Jane Addams	611	George W. Goethals	461
Andrew Carnegie	601	William J. Bryan	458
Theodore Roosevelt	514	Woodrow Wilson	427
Helen Gould Shepard	474	Luther Burbank	398

Altogether these names received more than 50 per cent of the votes, but since the number ten is purely arbitrary it is proper to name also those who stand next in order receiving over a hundred votes each:

Booker T. Washington, 326; Harvey W. Wiley, 310; Orville Wright, 221; William H. Taft, 182; the Mayo brothers, 143; Ben B. Lindsey, 122; Charles W. Eliot, 119; John H. Patterson, 101.

How to Poach an Egg.

Answers, London: Jane was a country girl, born and bred. It happened that, on the very day on which she took her first situation and became housemaid to Mrs. Robinson, the latter's cook was seized by a sudden illness.

On the following morning, therefore, Mrs. Robinson asked the new maid if she could manage to fry some bacon for breakfast.

"And, by the by," she added, "you might also poach half a dozen eggs."

"Very well, ma'am," replied Jane. "I can do that all right."

A few minutes later Mrs. Robinson went to the kitchen to see how the new maid was performing her unaccustomed duties.

Nowhere could the girl be found, until presently she came tripping into the house, wearing her hat and jacket, smiling radiantly.

"I've got 'em all right, ma'am!" she exclaimed exultantly. "Six beauties!"

"Six beauties! What do you mean?"

"Eggs, ma'am."

"But there are plenty of eggs in the house. There was no need to buy more."

"Lor, I didn't buy 'em! I poached em. Why, bless you, ma'am," she added confidingly, "my father and brothers have been at the game years. And, you can take it from me, what I don't know about it isn't worth knowing!"

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The correspondent for a New Orleans paper found that Representative Dupre was scheduled to make a tariff speech that would be of much interest down his way. This was a few days before the tariff bill passed the house. Dupre said he expected to speak late that afternoon.

"But I want you to make the speech early in the afternoon, for a certain reason," said the correspondent. "Couldn't you do it a little sooner?"

"No, I'm afraid not," said Dupre. "Victor Murdock is giving me ten minutes of his time and I must suit his convenience."

"Go and ask him to give you time right away," urged the correspondent.

"No, I don't like to bother him any more about it."

So the correspondent took things into his own hands. He went to Murdock and said:

"See, here, I want to take notes on Dupre's speech, wire it to my paper, and get away for the rest of the afternoon. Can't you give him the time you promised right away instead of late in the afternoon?"

"Well, you wouldn't expect me to change a legislative program just to suit your personal convenience, would you?" asked Murdock.

"Not ordinarily," replied the correspondent, "but this is a matter of considerable importance. The ball team's playing here this afternoon, and I want to get through in time to go to the game."

"Oh, well, in that case of course, we can fix it up," said Victor. "Why didn't you tell me that in the first place?"

So it was all arranged nicely, and the correspondent got to the ball park in time to see 'em warming up.

Vice President Marshall is chafing under hotel life like a creature of the forest suddenly brought into a zoo. When he came here to take up his new job, he engaged a suite at a good hotel, and thought he might stay there permanently, but he will not. He may stick it out the rest of this session of congress, but next winter will find Thomas Riley Marshall living in a private dwelling house.

Hotel life has a lot of objections, among them the fact that hotel meals and meals at home are entirely dissimilar; but that is not the thing that bothers Marshall. His disrelish for hotel life is based chiefly on the fact that he cannot sit on the veranda in his shirt sleeves and sprinkle the lawn evenings after he gets home from the office. When a man yearns to lounge about in one's old clothes on an open-work piazza, and to take a trusty garden hose and squirt water at various forms of plant life, a hotel is no place or him. And that is why Marshall is going to move his effects into a house next winter. True, he can't romp with a garden hose in the winter season, but pending the coming of spring there are other things that Marshall likes to do. One of these is to saunter down into the basement once in a while and see how many clinkers have been removed from the furnace.

Representative Augustus Gardner of Massachusetts has gradually been taking on flesh during the last few years, and while he has been good natured about it, the situation has preyed on his mind.

One afternoon recently as he was walking from his office over to the capitol with a colleague, Gardner stopped suddenly and stared at something a couple of rods away. The colleague stared, too, but could see nothing except a young newspaper man perched atop of a little stone fence.

"Isn't that great!" exclaimed Gardner, with enthusiasm. "Wonderful!" And he whistled with admiration.

"It may be great and wonderful, just like you say," observed his friend, "but what is it you're talking about?"

"Why, that chap sitting on the stone fence yonder," said Gardner. "You see his legs are nice and thin, and he not only can sit up there on that ridge, but can get his feet up also, one on each side of him. I'd forsake all political ambitions, and give almost anything I possess if I could do that."

Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia is one of the best offhand sleepers that state has produced. He is a man who seldom relaxes when he is awake, but when it comes to sleeping he can get under way on short notice. If he has a little spare time, on a train, or street car, he'll look at his watch, snap it shut, and say to himself: "I might as well sleep a while." A minute and a half later he will be sound aseep.

And he is equally keen at getting awake. If his nap takes place on a street car and he wishes to wake up twenty minutes later, in time to get off at a certain corner, he simply sets a little psychic time lock in the back of his head and gets awake right on the dot.

Delegate James Wickersham of Alaska, tells of the conversation he heard between two Fairbanks citizens, one of whom wished to borrow money. Said one: "Lend me $5."

"Nup," answered the other one.

"But you've lent me money before."

"I know it."

"And didn't I pay you back?"

"Yes, but you won't get a chance to fool me again."

Around the World in a Barrel.

Wide World Magazine: There seems to be no limit to the foolish things some people will do for the sake of a wager. Early in 1910 two Venetian brothers named Vianello, blacksmiths by trade, made a bet that they would travel around the world in a barrel. During the month of June they duly set out from Venice and later arrived at Berlin, where they received an enthusiastic reception. The barrel was a special construction, open at the end and having a "perch" inside so constructed as to remain always upright. On this one brother sits while the other trundles the barrel along. Food is stored along the sides, and at night, if no other shelter is available, both brothers sleep in their queer rolling home. They estimate that the trip around the world will occupy at least twelve years, so that they have some nine years of barrel-trundling to do before they can claim their bet.

Duluth and The Herald

Bouquets and Brickbats from the State Press.

Influence Is Widespread.

Hinckley Enterprise: It is given out that the United States Steel corporation will erect a model town near their new steel plant at Duluth and that at least 350 houses will be erected, of which 100 will be built this summer. Duluth is to be congratulated upon this accession to its wealth, comforts and sure increase of population. But Duluth is not going to reap all the benefits. Every county near Duluth will be benefited by the increased demand for farm products made by Duluth's growth and Pine county the nearest county to Duluth that is really doing anything, agriculturally, is going to come in for its share of increased prosperity.

Slightly Exaggerated.

Princeton Union: Now that the hot weather in other sections has begun to claim its annual toll of lives, it seems appropriate to remember the advantages of Duluth's climate.—Duluth Herald.

That's right. The usual time of year for the mercury to crawl above the zero notch in Duluth is July 4 or thereabouts.

Prepare for Dry Day.

Stillwater Gazette: The claim is made that the tight lid on at Duluth has made many men "forehanded"—not four hands—but has taught them if they do not desire to go round Sundays with their parched tongues hanging out, they must prepare Saturday night.

Coming Into Her Own.

Roseau Region: A citizen of Duluth, who wants his name withheld, has given $1,000,000 for the building of a road along the shore of Lake Superior from Duluth to Two Harbors. Northern Minnesota is coming into her own when individuals can be found who can afford to give such a large sum for public improvements.

The Calamity Howler.

Preston Times: The Duluth Herald intimates that the fears of business interests as to direful results to follow the passage of the Underwood bill and consequent reductions in wages, are "mere jack-o'-lanterns, mere bogey scarecrows brandished in the faces of fearsome lawmakers." The country will hope that The Herald is right, but the passage of a bill not nearly so radical about twenty years ago proved a very live "bogey" and resulted in the overthrow of democracy in the memorable campaign of 1896 to be followed by the greatest prosperity the country has ever known. Then came the day of the demagogue and the political charlatan, and here we are again threatened with business stagnation and soup houses.

Good Movement.

Cambridge Independent Press: The steel plant at Duluth will erect 350 homes for their employes and at least 100 of the buildings will be erected this year. When completed it is estimated that the total cost of the houses will be something like $1,300,000, that amount having been appropriated for that purpose by the company. The new city homes are not to be surrounded with slums, insanitary tenements, blind-pigs and saloons, according to a statement issued by the head officials of the company. The homes will be provided with modern improvements, such as bathrooms, basements, etc. This is a movement that will be commended throughout the land.

Real Government.

Wahkon Enterprise: Duluth is finding out what real government is. Their new form of government is making a clean sweep throughout.

A Great Organization.

Menahga Journal: The Duluth Herald wisely christens the Northern Minnesota Development association the "business agent" for Northern Minnesota, and it only requires a perusal of the resolutions adopted by this body and compare them with the laws enacted by the two last sessions of the legislature, to convince the most skeptical that the organization has made good.

Went Fishing With a Spoon.

Menasha, Wis., dispatch in the Chicago Inter-Ocean: Former Congressman S. A. Cook yawned twice, stretched himself and guessed that he'd go fishing. Whereupon he ambled into the kitchen of his home in this city, removed from the cabinet the cook's second best soup ladle and—went into the back yard.

The recent rise in the Fox river, which flows close to the Cook residence, flooded the grounds about the home with several feet of water. The sudden falling of the river left a thousand fish suffocating to death about the steps to the kitchen porch.

The ex-congressman found that he was not the only back yard fisherman. Twenty men and boys balanced themselves languidly on the surrounding fence and dangled hooks baited with angle worms about the noses of the expiring bass. A garden hose had been trained over the moist ground and there was an occasional fortunate fish that could bury its fins in a puddle.

This sign was posted on the fence later in the day:

"Fishing in this yard only by permit of Cook."

Growing Old.

A little more tired at the close of day,
A little less anxious to have our way,
A little less ready to scold and blame,
A little more care for a brother's name,
And so we are nearing the journey's end,
Where time and eternity meet and blend.

A little less care for bonds and gold,
A little more zest in the days of old,
A broader view and a saner mind,
And a little more love for all mankind:
A little more careful of what we say,
And so we are faring and won the day.

A little more love for the friends of youth,
A little less zeal for established truth,
A little more charity in our views,
A little less thirst for the daily news;
And so we are folding our tents away,
A passing in silence at close of day.

A little more leisure to sit and dream,
A little more real the things unseen;
A little bit nearer to those ahead,
With visions of those long-loved and dead;
And so we are going where all must go,
To the place the living may never know.

A little more laughter, a little more tears,
And we shall have told our increasing years;
The book is closed and the prayers are said,
And we are a part of the countless dead,
Thrice happy, then, if some soul can say,
"I live because he has passed my way."

Valuable Eggs.

Youth's Companion: There is often to be heard some active revolt and more angry protest at the high price of eggs. Had all "hen fruit" as precious a core as that sold some forty years ago by an old negro woman no crusade of housekeepers, league of considerate dealers, or rebellion of ultimate consumers could hope to keep the price from soaring far beyond the reach of common purses.

"How do you sell eggs, aunty?" she was asked one day by a pleasant man she had never seen before.

"Dem eggs," was the reply, "am worf a picayune apiece; fresh, too, de last one ob 'em. 'Biled 'em myself and knows dey's fust-rate."

The man was hungry, and the old woman's gay turban, neat dress and brimming basket made an enticing picture. He laid down a small coin, and took an egg. "Have you pepper and salt?" he inquired.

"Yas, sir; here dey is," she responded, beaming upon her new customer, who, producing a small penknife, proceeded leisurely to cut his egg exactly in half—when a bright new quarter was revealed, lying embedded in the yolk. Quietly pocketing his find, he picked up another egg, and asked its price. Her eyes, still fastened upon the pocket which held the treasure trove, the old woman hesitated, then announced:

"Boss, dat egg am worf a dime, suah."

He paid, and opened it, as he had the first. Within gleamed a shining gold quarter eagle, which he calmly transferred to his pocket before pricing a third egg. The old woman's eyes were fairly bulging as she gasped:

"Dere's no use a-talkin,' massa, I can't let you hab dat egg nohow for less dan a quarter; I declare I can't."

"Very good; there is your quarter and here is the egg," assented the purchaser; and he opened it, to disclose, snugly ensconsed in the middle, two $5 gold pieces. Jingling them carelessly he observed with a nonchalant air:

"Very good eggs. I like them. I think I'll take a dozen. What will be the price?"

"Price!" burst out the excited woman. "You couldn't buy dem eggs for all de money you's got. I's gwine take dem eggs all home, I is; and dat money in 'em's gwine belong to me. Couldn't sell no more o' dem eggs, nohow!"

They were good eggs; but their shells concealed no more buried treasure. Her customer was Heller, the famous sleight-of-hand performer.

A NEW CITY HALL.

The building of a new city hall is one of the things we expected the city commission to give its mind to after it had got settled in its new job and had a chance to look about.

So it is good to learn through Mayor Prince that the commission already has it in mind, and that there is talk of starting a sinking fund of a mill a year so as to be ready for action.

That the present city hall is old and unsightly and unsuitable is not to be denied. That Duluth needs a new city hall is as undeniable. In fact, the city has had a new city hall in mind for years, and has been restrained from building one only because it hadn't the money.

It never will have the money, of course, unless some such course as that suggested by Mayor Prince is adopted.

The first thing to be done, and it is a thing that should be done soon, is to move to the site. The county, when it built the new courthouse, acquired ground enough for a city hall, and it still is holding the property.

There are two very good reasons why the city should take over the site and move to the courthouse as soon as it possibly can find the money. One is that the county cannot be expected to hold this property indefinitely. The other is that it is constantly increasing in value, and the longer its purchase is postponed the more the city will have to pay for it.

Any other site is, of course, unthinkable. The grouping plan formed when the courthouse was built, with the city hall on one side, a new postoffice on the other, and the courthouse in the back center, is ideally admirable, and should not be abandoned. Moreover, the new site is infinitely more convenient to the people than the present one.

The commission should by all means have constantly in mind the construction of a new city hall, and it should buy the site from the county as soon as it possibly can.

Poor Taft is going to spend the summer in Canada. Now that he is an ex-president, perhaps the people over there won't worry about his possibly starting up an annexation movement.

A DEMOCRATIC PROSPERITY WAVE.

Says the Kansas City Star: "This country came through last season with the largest resources in its history. It is going forward into a wonderful crop year. All the conditions are healthy. The population is larger than ever before. With the increase in wealth people are going to eat better food, wear better clothes and buy more freely of household goods than they ever did. That means increasing business.

"There is plenty of prosperity in sight for every business man who deserves prosperity.

"These are obvious facts. They cannot be upset by the gloom of Eastern manufacturers who would like to scare the country into continuing the favors they have been getting for years from the government."

Truth, solid truth.

The fact is that the country is about to enjoy a run of Democratic prosperity.

Democratic prosperity will be different from Republican prosperity because it will be healthier, sounder, more substantial and more widely distributed.

Republican prosperity has been hothouse bred. Democratic prosperity will grow in the open and gain sturdiness from exposure to natural conditions.

Republican prosperity has enormously increased the bulk wealth of the country, without increasing at all the average well being of the people. Such increase in well being as there has been came in spite of it, not because of it. With a cost of living padded by tariff subsidies and advancing much faster than wages, this hothouse prosperity has meant luxury for a few and increasing hardship for the many.

The foundation for any prosperity, no matter what its arbitrary label, is agricultural. Good crops at good prices produce prosperity no matter what party is in power. The superstructure is industrial and commercial activity. Parties and governments can do little to affect crops or prices. There is little that they should do to affect industry and commerce. The protective tariff creates a fictitious atmosphere of prosperity, with an insidious poison accompanying it which breeds the diseases of plutocracy and poverty.

Good crops and good prices are as well assured now as they possibly could be. Commercial and industrial activity wait, if at all, only on the certainty of an enacted tariff law. The tariff law that is to be enacted will reduce swollen tariff subsidies, and in so far as it reduces prices it will stimulate consumption. It will make toward less congestion of prosperity and a wider distribution of prosperity; it will not decrease the bulk of prosperity in the slightest degree.

If the crop outlook fruits in a record-breaking production of wealth, the Democratic administration will be entitled to as much credit for it as the Republicans used to claim under similar conditions.

What the Democratic administration will surely be entitled to, however, is a tariff law that will tend to create a better distribution of the fruits of the people's enterprise and toil.

Prosperity is coming anyway, and if it is shared in by all instead of mainly by a few that will be the sign by which you may know it to be Democratic prosperity as distinguished from Republican prosperity.

Porfirio Diaz's nearness to or remoteness from senile dementia will be generally determined by the degree of promptness with which he declines that invitation to return to Mexico.

AN INNOVATION.

William M. Wood, a millionaire mill owner, head of the woolen trust and one of the most prominent manufacturers in the country, is on trial in Massachusetts on a charge of having conspired to "plant" dynamite in the homes of striking Lawrence workers in order to discredit them and their cause.

The Associated Press report of the case says: "It is the first time in Massachusetts that a serious criminal charge arising from labor difficulties has been made against a manufacturer."

Massachusetts is one of the largest manufacturing states in the Union. It has had many labor troubles. Criminal charges innumerable have been laid against striking employes. Yet this is the first serious charge made—in court—against an employer.

Is it the first time that an employer has been suspected of criminal acts against his employes? Probably not.

Apparently it is only another sign that times are changing—indeed, that they are changed.

Senator Clapp wants members of congress barred from membership on political committees. Bully idea—to keep our congressmen out of politics.

THERE IS SUCH A THING AS TOO MUCH.

Commissioner Hicken has a new ordinance, described in The Herald last night, which proposes to regulate the free lunch, music and other trimmings out of the saloon. Incidentally, as it stands it also regulates out of existence restaurants or chop houses conducted in connection with saloons.

Apparently as an after-thought, Mr. Hicken says that maybe the provision as to chop houses will be changed before the ordinance is enacted. It seems to us that it would be rather a good idea to do that.

Enthusiasm in the new broom of strict regulation should not lead to overdoing it. The principle of law enforcement seems to meet with general approval, but adoption of new laws should be undertaken carefully, with due regard to whether there is good reason for them.

Eliminating music and the free lunch won't meet with much objection. The music, as heard from the sidewalk, isn't very good as a rule. The free lunch is likely to be insanitary, to say the least; and probably the saloonkeepers themselves, if everybody is going to be doing it, will be willing to be rid of the free lunch expense. No great moral issue seems involved in either proposition.

But the reason for, and the moral issue involved in, the elimination of the chop house are not quite clear. Maybe there is good reason for it. If so it will be well if it could be explained so everybody can know about it and be satisfied that putting the chop house out of business is going to be a great moral benefit to the community.

One good reason for going carefully in this matter is the possibility that overdoing reform might lead to a reaction in which the real good in reform might be lost.

Just the same, the settlement of this California business would cut off the school debaters from a mighty fat subject.

John Kirby, Jr., seems to be trying to qualify as the McNamara of the Manufacturers' association.

Now that the militant women have threatened to destroy the golf links in Scotland, it will be generally expected that John D. and Prof. Taft will join the pro-suffrage ranks.

VICE AND WAGES.

To the Editor of The Herald:

After reading a short paragraph, "Voice From the Underworld," and the interview with Clifford G. Roe, I wish to say a few words regarding the vice question. Perhaps, as he states, some cities are better since the new injunction abatement law has been put in force, but as this other voice from the underworld says, I have myself been in a number of towns where disorderly houses were closed and more girls are going wrong since these houses were closed.

If we are to close up every resort of this kind, what about the 8,000,000 of men in the country today, unable to support a family? Will Mr. Roe see that these men's wages are raised so they may be in position to take the good girls and marry them? Will his scientific ideas give the thousands of girls, working in department stores and shops, a living wage, that they will not be obliged to seek some friend and give their soul and body for the things every girl needs, wants and craves? Will their wages all be raised?

It seems queer to me that these men with their scientific ideas never get to the root of vice and crime. They always work on the effects of a condition. Picking off the bad fruit and expecting good fruit to grow where the roots are rotten. To eliminate any great wrong we must first find the cause, the root. When Christianity replaces selfishness and greed and pays men enough for their labor that they can see the way to take a wife and raise a family, when women are paid enough that they won't be obliged to sell themselves to live, at that time and not until then will this vice and crime be wiped out.

When we are all given the opportunity to be good if we want to be, 95 out of every 100 will grab at the chance, and a little thought and common sense reasoning will do more than scientific study by a hundred Mr. Roes.

In the large cities thousands of girls are paid an average of $4, $5 and $6 a week—good girls, and the majority are homeless. They cannot exist on that wage. These girls are not born bad. Thousands of them finally end in houses of prostitution.

The system itself is the cause. It is rotten to the core and a hotbed for vice, filth and crime of every sort. The daily papers prove all this.

Give us all, from the lowly up, wages enough to support a family decently and have a house and you will see prostitution and crime disappear.

The people are at fault and just so long as they prefer to have rogues and rascals govern them, then just so long will the good old Stars and Stripes float over a debased nation, where poverty, filth, crime and prostitution have a fertile field.

I would like to see this in print. But it's the truth, and people hate to know the truth. They prefer to be humbugged. P. W. C.

Wounds of Modern Warfare.

British Medical Journal: Surgeons in the South African war were astonished to find how rapidly men recovered from bullet wounds penetrating the thorax, the abdomen and even the head. These recoveries were credited at first to the healing qualities of the South African air. But very soon the explanation came that it was really the thin, narrow bullet traveling at high velocity which was making war more humane. In Manchuria the same experience was common. So in the Balkans the rifle bullet has done comparatively little damage. The Mannlicher bullet used by the Turks is long and narrow (6 mm. in diameter); it perforates cleanly, its track is aseptic and the tissues close quickly and firmly. The bones, especially the expanded articular ends, were simply tunneled. Wounds of the thorax with perforation of the lung healed generally without complication. And so complete abstention from exploration or other interference in rifle bullet wounds came to be the rule. The rule worked well, too, with much wider application, and M. Monprofit indulges in these obiter dicta:

"Modern military surgery ought to be, above all, surgery of watchfulness and expectancy: 'Moins on fait, mieux on fait.' All operations, except a few of absolute urgency, are contraindicated on the battlefield."

But the story is different when we consider the wounds made by shrapnel. Infantry fire is diminishing in seriousness, artillery fire is increasing. The wounds made by shrapnel were always severe; bones were pulverized, tissues torn, thorax and cranium crushed. Prof. Monprofit and his colleagues are by no means hypersensitive, but they all speak of the effects of shrapnel fire as "murderous."

A Fable Without Slang!

Ralph Bergengren in Life: A rich man, who suspected his only daughter was planning to elope with his chauffeur, took the fellow aside and offered him an excellent cigar.

"I understand," he said, "that you are about to elope with my only daughter."

The chauffeur was too surprised to answer, but his expression betrayed him.

"That's all right," said the rich man, "and it's no use to argue the matter. What I want you to promise is that you'll come back after the honeymoon. I dare say you can make a comfortable home over the garage, and I should be sorry to lose such a good chauffeur."

That night when the stars were shining like myriad eyes, the chauffeur did not elope with the rich man's only daughter.

Moral: A plain fact often discourages romance.

Willing to Oblige.

Judge: "While," says a New Yorker, "the Gotham car conductor is generally rude, sometimes he is witty.

"Not long ago, on a Broadway car, a woman said to the conductor, in a voice of command,

"'You will let me off at 931.'

"The conductor regarded her curiously for a moment, while the other passengers grinned; then, quite submissively, he answered,

"'Yes, ma'am; what floor, please, ma'am?'"

Playing With Dynamite

Editorial in New York World.

Capital as well as labor has its Industrial Workers of the World who advocate intimidation and anarchy.

What moral difference is there between the Haywoods who are trying to bulldoze government in Paterson and the protected manufacturers who are trying to bulldoze government in Washington?

What moral difference is there between the labor leader who threatens the employer with ruin and starvation if he cannot rule government and the employer who threatens labor with ruin and starvation if he cannot rule government?

A reign of terror is a reign or terror whether it is carried on by the demagogues of labor or the demagogues of capital.

Before the Underwood bill had passed the house, certain manufacturers who had grown rich by capitalizing the tariff laws of the United States began to threaten a general reduction in wages if their favored industries were put on a competitive basis.

Mr. Underwood's reply was that if any manufacturer reduced wages on the pretext that tariff revision had made it necessary, the department of commerce would proceed to examine his books and ascertain whether he was telling the truth or lying. The facts would be made public.

Mr. Underwood was instantly overwhelmed in a wave of high-protective denunciation. When Secretary Redfield declared that he would carry out the Underwood program, some of these manufacturers, including President Hanan of the National Shoe Manufacturers' association, threatened either to close their factories or to move to Europe. That is the measure of tariff-bloated patriotism. Having been subsidized all these years by the American people, these arrogant anarchists of industry now serve notice that the subsidy must be continued or they will retaliate upon the country whose opportunities and generosity have made them rich. They will accept tariff revision only on condition that labor alone is mulcted. That is their ultimatum to congress and the president.

These gentlemen are playing with dynamite as surely as Haywood and his irresponsible followers are playing with dynamite. In an article in the current Outlook entitled "Tariff Reduction From the Standpoint of a Business Man," George P. Brett warns protected industry that—

"Labor will not be 'liquidated,' and it is quite right that it should not be so long as the profits of management are what they have been in the past and what they are today. Nor can the reasonable reductions of the tariff now proposed suffice as an excuse for reductions in wages until liquidation has been ruthlessly applied to the evils of management as these now exist."

We believe that Mr. Brett voices the sober sense of the American people. There is no more sympathy with the Hanan kind of intimidation than with the Haywood kind. Anarchy in evening clothes is no more attractive than anarchy in overalls.

There is even less excuse for the Hanans who are trying to bluff the country than for the Haywoods. Haywood's followers have at least the excuse that they have not grown rich under laws framed at their own dictation. They are the underdogs of industry, not the pampered pets of a high-tariff bench show. But in either case, if the time has come when industry must be at the mercy of labor anarchists or labor must be at the mercy of capitalistic anarchists, this is no longer a free country and we need a new Declaration of Independence.

An infinitely greater issue than wages is involved in the warfare that Haywood and his followers are waging against society, and an infinitely greater issue than tariff schedules is involved in the warfare that protected industry promises to wage against society. Both issues might as well be fought out at once, with all the powers of constitutional government that society can command.

America's Ten Most Valuable Citizens

New York Independent: Recently we put the following question to our readers:

Who are the most useful Americans? If life insurance could really insure against loss of life on whose lives should the American people best afford to pay the highest premiums? In other words, who among our contemporaries are of most value to the community; whose places would be most difficult to fill? If congress should decide to award ten prizes to the most deserving men and women in the country and leave the choice to a popular referendum, who should get the largest number of votes?

Though we offered no prize for the correct answer to our conundrum, because we did not know it ourselves, the inquiry aroused a great deal of interest. It was put to classes in modern history and current events in several colleges and high schools. It was made a subject for debate in reading circles and clubs. It was discussed by ministers and editors.

When the returns came in we found that we had more than ten thousand names to count and that 343 different persons had been considered worthy the honor of being included in the list of the ten most valuable citizens of the United States. The ten who led are the following:

Thomas A. Edison	808	Alexis Carrel	470
Jane Addams	610	George W. Goethals	461
Andrew Carnegie	601	William J. Bryan	458
Theodore Roosevelt	514	Woodrow Wilson	427
Helen Gould Shepard	474	Luther Burbank	398

Altogether these names received more than 50 per cent of the votes, but since the number ten is purely arbitrary it is proper to name also those who stand next in order receiving over a hundred votes each:

Booker T. Washington, 226; Harvey W. Wiley, 310; Orville Wright, 221; William H. Taft, 162; the Mayo brothers, 143; Ben B. Lindsey, 122; Charles W. Eliot, 119; John H. Patterson, 101.

How to Poach an Egg.

Answers, London: Jane was a country girl, born and bred. It happened that, on the very day on which she took her first situation and became housemaid to Mrs. Robinson, the latter's cook was seized by a sudden illness.

On the following morning, therefore, Mrs. Robinson asked the new maid if she could manage to fry some bacon for breakfast.

"And, by the by," she added, "you might also poach half a dozen eggs."

"Very well, ma'am," replied Jane. "I can do that all right."

A few minutes later Mrs. Robinson went to the kitchen to see how the new maid was performing her unaccustomed duties.

Nowhere could the girl be found, until presently she came tripping into the house, wearing her hat and jacket, smiling radiantly.

"I've got 'em all right, ma'am!" she exclaimed exultantly. "Six beauties!"

"Six beauties! What do you mean?"

"Eggs, ma'am."

"But there are plenty of eggs in the house. There was no need to buy more."

"Lor, I didn't buy 'em! I poached em. Why, bless you, ma'am," she added confidingly, "my father and brothers have been at the game years. And, you can take it from me, what I don't know about it isn't worth knowing!"

Statesmen, Real and Near

By Fred C. Kelly.

Washington, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The correspondent for a New Orleans paper found that Representative Dupre was scheduled to make a tariff speech that would be of much interest down his way. This was a few days before the tariff bill passed the house. Dupre said he expected to speak late that afternoon.

"But I want you to make the speech early in the afternoon, for a certain reason," said the correspondent. "Couldn't you do it a little sooner?"

"No, I'm afraid not," said Dupre. "Victor Murdock is giving me ten minutes of his time and I must suit his convenience."

"Go and ask him to give you time right away," urged the correspondent.

"No, I don't like to bother him any more about it."

So the correspondent took things into his own hands. He went to Murdock and said:

"See, here, I want to take notes on Dupre's speech, wire it to my paper, and get away for the rest of the afternoon. Can't you give him the time you promised right away instead of late in the afternoon?"

"Well, you wouldn't expect me to change a legislative program just to suit your personal convenience, would you?" asked Murdock.

"Not ordinarily," replied the correspondent, "but this is a matter of considerable importance. The ball team's playing here this afternoon, and I want to get through in time to go to the game."

"Oh, well, in that case of course, we can fix it up," said Victor. "Why didn't you tell me that in the first place?"

So it was all arranged nicely, and the correspondent got to the ball park in time to see 'em warming up.

Vice President Marshall is chafing under hotel life like a creature of the forest suddenly brought into a zoo. When he came here to take up his new job, he engaged a suite at a good hotel, and thought he might stay there permanently, but he will not. He may stick it out the rest of this session of congress, but next winter will find Thomas Riley Marshall living in a private dwelling house.

Hotel life has a lot of objections, among them the fact that hotel meals and meals at home are entirely dissimilar; but that is not the thing that bothers Marshall. His disrelish for hotel life is based chiefly on the fact that he cannot sit on the veranda in his shirt sleeves and sprinkle the lawn evenings after he gets home from the office. When a man yearns to lounge about in one's old clothes on an open-work piazza, and to take a trusty garden hose and squirt water at various forms of plant life, a hotel is no place or him. And that is why Marshall is going to move his effects into a house next winter. True, he can't romp with a garden hose in the winter season, but pending the coming of spring there are other things that Marshall likes to do. One of these is to saunter down into the basement once in a while and see how many clinkers have been removed from the furnace.

Representative Augustus Gardner of Massachusetts has gradually been taking on flesh during the last few years, and while he has been good natured about it, the situation has preyed on his mind.

One afternoon recently as he was walking from his office over to the capitol with a colleague, Gardner stopped suddenly and stared at something a couple of rods away. The colleague stared, too, but could see nothing except a young newspaper man perched atop of a little stone fence.

"Isn't that great!" exclaimed Gardner, with enthusiasm. "Wonderful!" And he whistled with admiration.

"It may be great and wonderful, just like you say," observed his friend, "but what is it you're talking about?"

"Why, that chap sitting on the stone fence yonder," said Gardner. "You see his legs are nice and thin, and he not only can sit up there on that ridge, but can get his feet up also, one on each side of him. I'd forsake all political ambitions, and give almost anything I possess if I could do that."

Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia is one of the best offhand sleepers that state has produced. He is a man who seldom relaxes when he is awake, but when it comes to sleeping he can get under way on short notice. If he has a little spare time, on a train, or street car, he'll look at his watch, snap it shut, and say to himself: "I might as well sleep a while." A minute and a half later he will be sound asleep.

And he is equally keen at getting awake. If his nap takes place on a street car and he wishes to wake up twenty minutes later, in time to get off at a certain corner, he simply sets a little psychic time lock in the back of his head and gets awake right on the dot.

Delegate James Wickersham of Alaska tells of the conversation he heard between two Fairbanks citizens, one of whom wished to borrow money. Said one: "Lend me $5."

"Nup," answered the other one.

"But you've lent me money before."

"I know it."

"And didn't I pay you back?"

"Yes, but you won't get a chance to fool me again."

Around the World in a Barrel.

Wide World Magazine: There seems to be no limit to the foolish things some people will do for the sake of a wager. Early in 1910 two Venetian brothers named Vianello, blacksmiths by trade, made a bet that they would travel around the world in a barrel. During the month of June they duly set out from Venice and later arrived at Berlin, where they received an enthusiastic reception. The barrel was a special construction, open at the end and having a "perch" inside so constructed as to remain always upright. On this one brother sits while the other trundles the barrel along. Food is stored along the sides, and at night, if no other shelter is available, both brothers sleep in their queer rolling home. They estimate that the trip around the world will occupy at least twelve years, so that they have some nine years of barrel-trundling to do before they can claim their bet.

Duluth and The Herald

Bouquets and Brickbats from the State Press.

Influence Is Widespread.

Hinckley Enterprise: It is given out that the United States Steel corporation will erect a model town near their new steel plant at Duluth and that at least 350 houses will be erected, of which 100 will be built this summer. Duluth is to be congratulated upon this accession to its wealth, comforts and sure increase of population. But Duluth is not going to reap all the benefits. Every county near Duluth will be benefited by the increased demand for farm products made by Duluth's growth and Pine county the nearest county to Duluth that is really doing anything, agriculturally, is going to come in for its share of increased prosperity.

Slightly Exaggerated.

Princeton Union: Now that the hot weather in other sections has begun to claim its annual toll of lives, it seems appropriate to remember the advantages of Duluth's climate.—Duluth Herald.

That's right. The usual time of year for the mercury to crawl above the zero notch in Duluth is July 4 or thereabouts.

Prepare for Dry Day.

Stillwater Gazette: The claim is made that the tight lid on at Duluth has made many men "forehanded"—not four hands—but has taught them if they do not desire to go round Sundays with their parched tongues hanging out, they must prepare Saturday night.

Coming Into Her Own.

Roseau Region: A citizen of Duluth, who wants his name withheld, has given $1,000,000 for the building of a road along the shore of Lake Superior from Duluth to Two Harbors. Northern Minnesota is coming into her own when individuals can be found who can afford to give such a large sum for public improvements.

The Calamity Howler.

Preston Times: The Duluth Herald intimates that the fears of business interests as to direful results to follow the passage of the Underwood bill and consequent reductions in wages, are "mere jack-o'-lanterns, mere bogey scarecrows brandished in the faces of fearsome lawmakers." The country will hope that The Herald is right, but the passage of a bill not nearly so radical about twenty years ago proved a very live "bogey" and resulted in the overthrow of democracy in the memorable campaign of 1896 to be followed by the greatest prosperity the country has ever known. Then came the day of the demagogue and the political charlatan, and here we are again threatened with business stagnation and soup houses.

Good Movement.

Cambridge Independent Press: The steel plant at Duluth will erect 350 homes for their employes and at least 100 of the buildings will be erected this year. When completed it is estimated that the total cost of the houses will be something like $1,300,000, that amount having been appropriated for that purpose by the company. The new city homes are not to be surrounded with slums, insanitary tenements, blind-pigs and saloons, according to a statement issued by the head officials of the company. The homes will be provided with modern improvements, such as bathrooms, basements, etc. This is a movement that will be commended throughout the land.

Real Government.

Wahkon Enterprise: Duluth is finding out what real government is. Their new form of government is making a clean sweep throughout.

A Great Organization.

Menahga Journal: The Duluth Herald wisely christens the Northern Minnesota Development association the "business agent" for Northern Minnesota, and it only requires a perusal of the resolutions adopted by this body and compare them with the laws enacted by the two last sessions of the legislature, to convince the most skeptical that the organization has made good.

Went Fishing With a Spoon.

Menasha, Wis., dispatch in the Chicago Inter-Ocean: Former Congressman S. A. Cook yawned twice, stretched himself and guessed that he'd go fishing. Whereupon he ambled into the kitchen of his home in this city, removed from the cabinet the cook's second best soup ladle and—went into the back yard.

The recent rise in the Fox river, which flows close to the Cook residence, flooded the grounds about the home with several feet of water. The sudden falling of the river left a thousand fish suffocating to death about the steps to the kitchen porch. The ex-congressman found that he was not the only back yard fisherman. Twenty men and boys balanced themselves languidly on the surrounding fence and dangled hooks baited with angle worms about the noses of the expiring bass. A garden hose had been trained over the moist ground and there was an occasional fortunate fish that could bury its fins in a puddle.

This sign was posted on the fence later in the day:

"Fishing in this yard only by permit of Cook."

Growing Old.

A little more tired at the close of day,
A little less anxious to have our way,
A little less ready to scold and blame,
A little more care for a brother's name,
And so we are nearing the journey's end,
Where time and eternity meet and blend.

A little less care for bonds and gold,
A little more zest in the days of old,
A broader view and a saner mind,
And a little more love for all mankind:
A little more careful of what we say,
And so we are faring and won the day.

A little more love for the friends of youth,
A little less zeal for established truth,
A little more charity in our views,
A little less thirst for the daily news:
And so we are folding our tents away,
A passing in silence at close of day.

A little more leisure to sit and dream,
A little more real the things unseen;
A little bit nearer to those ahead,
With visions of those long-loved and dead;
And so we are going where all must go,
To the place the living may never know.

A little more laughter, a little more tears,
And we shall have told our increasing years;
The book is closed and the prayers are said,
And we are a part of the countless dead,
Thrice happy, then, if some soul can say,
"I live because he has passed my way."

Valuable Eggs.

Youth's Companion: There is often to be heard some active revolt and more angry protest at the high price of eggs. Had all "hen fruit" as precious a core as that sold some forty years ago by an old negro woman no crusade of housekeepers, league of considerate dealers, or rebellion of ultimate consumers could hope to keep the price from soaring far beyond the reach of common purses.

"How do you sell eggs, aunty?" she was asked one day by a pleasant man she had never seen before.

"Dem eggs," was the reply, "am worf a picayune apiece; fresh, too, de last one oh 'em. B'iled 'em myself and knows dey's fust-rate."

The man was hungry, and the old woman's gay turban, neat dress and brimming basket made an enticing picture. He laid down a small coin, and took an egg. "Have you pepper and salt?" he inquired.

"Yas, sir; here dey is," she responded, beaming upon her new customer, who, producing a small penknife, proceeded leisurely to cut his egg exactly in half—when a bright new quarter was revealed, lying embedded in the yolk. Quietly pocketing his find, he picked up another egg, and asked its price. Her eyes, still fastened upon the pocket which held the treasure trove, the old woman hesitated, then announced:

"Boss, dat egg am worf a dime, suah."

He paid, and opened it, as he had the first. Within gleamed a shining gold quarter eagle, which he calmly transferred to his pocket before pricing a third egg. The old woman's eyes were fairly bulging as she gasped:

"Dere's no use a-talkin,' massa, I can't let you hab dat egg nohow for less dan a quarter; I declare I can't."

"Very good; there is your quarter and here is the egg," assented the purchaser; and he opened it, to disclose, snugly ensconsed in the middle, two $5 gold pieces. Jingling them carelessly he observed with a nonchalant air:

"Very good eggs. I like them. I think I'll take a dozen. What will be the price?"

"Price!" burst out the excited woman. "You couldn't buy dem eggs for all de money you's got. I's gwine take dem eggs all home, I is; and dat money in 'em's gwine belong to me. Couldn't sell no more o' dem eggs, nohow!"

They were good eggs; but their shells concealed no more buried treasure. Her customer was Heller, the famous sleight-of-hand performer.

CITE LABOR LEADERS.

Illinois House Demands Explanation of Charges.

Springfield, Ill., May 21.—The officers of the Chicago Federation of Labor and the members of its executive and legislative committees have been summoned to appear before the bar of the house forthwith to "answer to the charges contained in a vitriolic resolution" adopted by the federation, personally attacking Speaker McKinley and other members of the house for the defeat of the initiative and referendum resolution. In their mail yesterday, house members received a copy of the resolution passed by the Chicago Federation of Labor. It was addressed to them by Secretary E. M. Nockels.

Representative A. N. Abbott presented the resolution citing Secretary Nockels to appear before the bar of the house. It was unanimously adopted after being amended, on motion of Representative Lee O'Neil Browne, to include with Secretary Nockels the names of the other officers of the federation and the members of the executive and legislative committees.

INSPECTOR TO CLEAN UP LAKE SHORE.

Robert Metcalf, sanitary inspector of the health department, has been given a detail which will present some difficulties. He will take charge of the district along the eastern side of St. Croix avenue along the lake shore. The dumping of filth in that locality will be stopped and the present insanitary condition improved. All of the back yards in that district are littered with foul garbage and rubbish. The inspector will not be received with open arms when he appears to give his orders, but he has been instructed to get results if he has to use all the powers conferred upon the health department by the law.

The delegates elected to the annual convention of the National Association of Credit Men to be held in Cincinnati June 17 to 20 are: W. B. Cross of F. A. Patrick & Co., Bethel Robinson of the Northern Shoe company, H. A. Sedgwick, R. W. Higgins and W. A. Bergen.

The business session of the association was preceded by a banquet, attended by about seventy-five credit men of the city. Watson S. Moore talked on existing conditions in the business world. Bishop McGolrick gave an interesting talk on business ethics and W. O. Pealer reviewed the bankruptcy laws.

SEEK RELATIVES OF OLE TJOTLAND

Man Drowned in Cloquet River Believed to Have Been Well Educated.

An effort is being made to locate the relatives of Ole Torson Tjotland, 28 years old, whose body was recovered from the Cloquet river Sunday. Tjotland was drowned on April 25 while attempting to loosen a log jam above the junction of the Little Cloquet rivers. He was employed at the time by the St. Louis Dam & Construction company.

Tjotland is believed to have been a well educated man and to have sought work in the woods merely as an adventure. Letters found in his possession gave former addresses as 302 Tower avenue, Superior; and 1919 South L street, Tacoma, Wash.

MILITIA COMPANIES PLAN ENCAMPMENT

Plans for the annual encampment of the Third regiment, Minnesota National Guard, were discussed at a meeting of the officers of the three Duluth companies at the Commercial club last evening.

The regiment will hold its encampment at Camp Lakeview near Lake City, June 16 to 25. Several orders issued by the adjutant general relating to camp regulations were read at the meeting last evening.

MAY TAKE FURTHER O'HARA EVIDENCE

Illinois Senate Committee Has Not Yet Reported on Work.

Springfield, Ill., May 21.—The committee of senators appointed to investigate the charges of immorality made against Lieutenant Governor Barratt O'Hara was in session several hours last night, going over the evidence taken at the investigation preparatory to preparing the findings to be submitted to the senate.

At a late hour it was announced by Chairman Sinnott that it was not yet determined whether the committee will prepare its reports upon the evidence already at hand, or whether further testimony will be taken.

In order to make the Maud Robinson affidavit a part of the record, the much discussed but long suppressed statement of the woman was read by the chairman of the investigation committee. It follows:

"State of Illinois, County of Sangamon. Maud Robinson, being duly sworn in due form of law, says that on or about the 17th day of January, 1913, she met Barratt O'Hara, lieutenant governor of Illinois, on a Chicago & Alton train on the way to Chicago, and that the said Barratt O'Hara and this affiant had a drawing room on said train to Chicago, and that on their arrival in said city they were registered as man and wife at the Hotel Sherman in said city of Chicago, under the name of T. D. Duncan and wife, and occupied with one J. F. Miller, rooms 512, 513 and 515 in said hotel on the 17th day of Janaury last, and occupied said rooms until the 20th day of January last and on that day registered out.

"MAUD ROBINSON."

POLICE HELP WEDDING PARTY.

Chicago, May 21.—Fifty mounted police were called last night to assist at the wedding of Miss Ella Tyner to Dr. Frank A. La Gorlo, at the St. Procipous church on the west side. Great crowds of women surged around the church in an attempt to prevent the wedding. The police forced a lane through the crowd and escorted the bridal couple to the church and later to a railway station.

Miss Emily Huggins, who had threatened to prevent the wedding, did not appear. The engagement of Miss Tyner to Dr. La Gorlo was announced here a week ago. Miss Huggins, immediately after the announcement, filed a suit for breach of promise against the doctor, asking $20,000 damages. She also had announced that she would take some action that would prevent the wedding. The crowds were friends of Miss Huggins.

REPORTS ON TAXIS.

Aldermen's Board Acts Under Spur of Grand Jury.

New York, May 21.—With the so-called taxicab graft situation under investigation by the grand jury, the board of aldermen's special taxicab committee has submitted a report recommending lower rates for the public and the abolishing of private taxicab stands in front of hotels and other public places. This report has been delayed some fifteen months. The jury is inquiring to learn whether financial consideration granted by taxicab companies was responsible, in any way, for the delay. City officials and police inspectors and captains are alleged to have profited through the use of free taxicab passes.

If the board adopts the committee's recommendations, as is said to be likely, the mayor will have the authority to establish public stands. This will take from the taxicab companies the private control of space in front of railroad stations, restaurants, theaters, hotels and other places.

The companies have been paying upwards of $350,000 yearly for stand privileges, according to the committee's report. "This monopoly," the committee declares, "is responsible for the fact that there has not been a gradual increase in the number of cabs used in the service of the city, and is largely responsible for the present rates."

It is expected the grand jury inquiry will be temporarily suspended and that several indictments will be returned next week.

PEACE DELEGATES LEAVE AMERICA.

New York, May 21.—British, Belgian, Austrian and Canadian delegates to the international conference held here to arrange the program for the celebration in 1919 of 100 years of peace among English speaking peoples have ended their fifteen days' visit to America.

With the exception of Sir Arthur Lawley, who remained in Buffalo for a rest, and Lord Weardale, who sailed for England several days ago, the delegates, accompanied by several of the American commission, arrived yesterday from Buffalo, the last city visited on their tour. On their arrival here the European delegates immediately embarked on the steamer Mauretania, sailing late last night.

BALKANS WILL ASK $400,000,000.

Paris, May 21.—The Bulgarian minister of finance, T. Theodoroff, who is to represent Bulgaria at the financial conference in Paris in connection with the Balkan settlement, says the Balkan states will ask for a war indemnity of 2,000,000,000 francs ($400,000,000) of which Bulgaria's share would be 1,000,000,000 francs.

Precedents, he said, supported the Balkan demand. They did not ask to be indemnified for indirect losses due to the state of war, but merely for the reimbursement of purely military expenditures and the cost of pensions for those incapacitated and the families of the killed. It was on these considerations that the sum of 2,000,000,000 francs was asked.

CITY OFFICIALS GO TO COLLEGE.

Philadelphia, May 21.—Headed by Mayor Blankenburg, a delegation of more than 100 leading citizens left here last night for the University of Wisconsin to take a three days' course in advanced municipal government in that institution. Mayor Riddle of Atlantic City is also a member of the party, which is traveling on a special train. The pilgrims will be joined in Chicago by Mayor Magee of Pittsburg, Former State Senator Flinn and members from Boston and New York.

President Smith of the University of Pennsylvania and heads of many other educational institutions in this state are accompanying the mayor and other officials to study the "Wisconsin idea" at close range.

DAYTON TO HAVE COMMISSION PLAN.

Dayton, Ohio, May 21.—At a special election yesterday, a charter commission was elected to write a new city charter calling for a commission form of government. The fifteen men chosen to write the charter were nominated by a non-partisan citizens' committee. They were opposed by fifteen Democrats.

Twenty thousand votes were cast, nearly as many as were polled at the presidential election last fall. The citizens' ticket was headed by John R. Patterson, recently convicted of violating the Sherman anti-trust law and fined $5,000 and sentenced to one year in jail. Mr. Patterson's election was almost unanimous. In some of the wards he received every vote cast.

Stops Tobacco Habit in One Day

Sanitarium Publishes Free Book Showing How Tobacco Habit Can Be Banished in From One to Five Days at Home.

The Elders Sanitarium located at 1059 Main St., St. Joseph, Mo., has published a free book showing the deadly effect of the tobacco habit, and how it can be banished in from one to five days at home.

Men who have used tobacco for more than fifty years have tried this method and say it is entirely successful, and in addition to banishing the desire for tobacco has improved their health wonderfully. This method banishes the desire for tobacco, no matter whether it is smoking, chewing, cigarettes or snuff dipping.

As this book is being distributed free, anyone wanting a copy should send their name and address at once.

RECORD CLIP OF WOOL IN ALBERTA.

Lethbridge, Alta., May 21.—R. C. Harvey, president of the Southern Alberta Wool Growers' association, addressing the annual meeting, said in regard to the Underwood wool tariff bill now before congress:

"Sheepmen of Southern Alberta will profit immeasurably if the bill passes the senate, but I doubt if it will affect our 1913 clip. I have not seen any American buyers in the country as yet, but they are bound to come if the bill passes. The clip this year will be bigger than ever."

WARNING IS GIVEN.

German Parliament May Be Dissolved If Funds Are Not Voted.

Berlin, May 21.—The possibility of dissolution is hanging over the German imperial parliament owing to the disposition of the political parties—particularly the Centralists and the Socialists—to cut the appropriations in the new armaments bill.

The seriousness of the situation is pointed out in the Lokal Anzeiger. A correspondent of the paper asserts positively that during the discussions of the budget committee in April, when the Centralists and the Socialists were vigorously slashing the bill, the imperial chancellor, Von Bethmann-Hollweg, sent word to them that parliament would be dissolved if they persisted in their course.

ELIOT RE-ELECTED BY UNITARIANS.

Boston, May 21.—Rev. Samuel Eliot was re-elected president of the American Unitarian association. In his annual address Dr. Eliot spoke encouragingly of the affairs of the association, the reports of Secretary Rev. Lewis G. Wilson and Treasurer Henry M. Williams, both of whom were also re-elected, showed that the church was in a prosperous condition both as to membership and finances.

THE BROWN BOTTLE BUGABOO

Chicago, November 12, 1912

To our Clients:—

Please take note that we have recently given our opinion to one of our clients as to the relative merits of the white and the brown bottle for beer, as follows:

"Referring to your recent request for our opinion on the relative merits of the white and the brown bottle for beer, we wish to say that the ONLY advantage of the brown bottle over the light bottle consists in the protection it affords against the influence of light WHERE BEERS ARE NOT OF SUCH QUALITY AS TO BE IMMUNE

"Where, however, bottle beers have attained A HIGH DEGREE OF STABILITY, so that they are practically immune to such influences as prolonged chilling and prolonged storage at summer temperature, they also become less sensitive to the influence of light, so that with the usual precautions no bad effect need be feared.

"FOR SUCH BEERS THE LIGHT BOTTLE IS PREFERABLY EMPLOYED because it can more readily be inspected before filling to insure thorough cleanliness, and because the finished package reveals at a glance whether the contents meet the requirements of the consumer as to color, clarity and freedom from sedimentation."

DIVORCE IS DENIED THEM

Judge Dancer in district court yesterday filed an order denying the divorce decree to either Edward C. Chapman or his wife, Nina J. Chapman. The case is a contested action, which was heard at the March term of court and which was taken under advisement by the court at that time.

The Chapmans were married on June 10, 1901, in this city. He is 62 and she is 53. Chapman filed suit for divorce on the grounds of cruelty and desertion. In her answer, Mrs. Chapman denied the claims of Chapman and counterclaimed that her husband had been cruel to her.

The court finds that neither the charge of the husband nor of the wife has been sustained by the evidence.

NORTH DAKOTAN LOSES HOME BY FUMIGATION.

Marmath, N. D., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A rather complete job of house fumigation was done by S. Dixon, a rancher near here. He closed the doors and windows, lighted a fumigating candle and rode away while the germs were being exterminated. On his return a pile of ashes showed where his house, valued at $1,000, had stood. There was no insurance.

CITY LIBRARY FOR REFERENCE

Mayor Prince Plans Bureau Such as Operated in Other Cities.

Mayor Prince has under consideration the establishment of a municipal reference library, such as is now in operation in Philadelphia, Chicago, Cincinnati, St Louis and Portland.

Inquiries which have been made at the cities which have reference libraries disclose that their cost is not heavy, the biggest expense being the salary of the librarian. Where possible, they have been established as branches of the public libraries, but located in the city halls.

The libraries contain facts, figures, statistics and data of all kinds pertaining to municipalities. They include scientific volumes, histories of cities, engineering books, municipal publications, literature on social and welfare problems and all classes of magazines and periodicals which have to do with municipalities and municipal questions.

Those cities which have such libraries in operation state that they have been found invaluable. Mayor Prince said this morning that one would be found very useful in Duluth. Various organizations have collected data and information on several subjects, but they are incomplete and so scattered that it is difficult to make the best use of them. Gathered in one building we would form a good nucleus, which could be added to and developed into a city reference library without heavy expense.

JAIL TERM NOT LESSON TO HIM

Harry Dale Again Secures Money on Forged Check.

Harry Dale, employed at a local livery stable, was not impressed with the seriousness of obtaining money on worthless checks when he was arrested some months ago on that charge.

It was his first offense and he was arraigned on a charge of petty larceny, to which he pleaded guilty. He served forty days in the county jail. Yesterday afternoon he tried to pass another worthless check at the Gately Supply company. It called for $6.20, payable to George Barton and signed "Larry Meyers." In police court this morning he was arraigned on a warrant charging him with having forged the instrument. He waived examination and was bound over to the grand jury. Asked why he had again violated the law he said: "Oh, I was just hard up and it looked like an easy way to get a little money." Dale is 30 years old.

Thomas Martin, 54 years old was arrested yesterday afternoon for the Two Harbors authorities on a charge of larceny. He is said to be wanted for the theft of a watch. He was returned to Two Harbors today.

COMMISSIONER MERRITT MAY REVISE WATER RATES

Wants to Learn If Water Is Sold Below Cost.

Will Seek Advice of Those Familiar With Department.

Commissioner Leonidas Merritt, head of the division of public utilities, is working on plans for the reorganization of the water and light department.

The commissioner states that he has no intention of turning matters topsy-turvy, but is working to the end that the department may be put upon a more business-like, efficient and serviceable basis.

Among the problems which he is revolving are adjustments of the water rates, and service charges, the levying of a frontage tax where extensions are made, and the institution of branch offices.

Commissioner Merritt declares that favoritism should not be shown in the charges which are made for water. Complaints have been made to him that certain companies and corporations are getting water for less than the cost of pumping, with the result that the burden is shifted to the shoulders of the small consumer. He says that this will be given careful attention and gone into in minute detail, so that if any injustice is being done the inequalities may be adjusted. His attention has also been called to the charge that service charges might be adjusted and this will be delved into in connection with the rates, the two being closely allied.

Will Ask Advice.

The head of the utilities commission will call into consultation the men who have been closely connected with the water and light department for years. He will ask them to go over the situation with him, and seek the advice and suggestions which they may have to offer. In this way he is certain that he will be able to get much useful information, including facts and figures, which will be helpful in the reorganization which he is contemplating.

The frontage tax on extensions has been suggested from time to time in the past. Much complaint has been made that the residents who must have the extensions are compelled to pay not only for the benefits which they receive but for those of the unimproved property as well.

Under the system which has been in vogue in the water and light department under the organization formed by virtue of the old charter, no extensions would be made until a guarantee of 8 per cent of the cost of the extension was assured. The people who wanted the water provided the guarantee. They kept on paying it until the service was increased to the extent that the burden was removed. As the number of people who used water on the extension increased, the cost to each decreased proportionately. In the case of most extensions the mains passed in front of many vacant lots. The value of the property was increased but the owners did not stand any of the cost, but the mains were there so that they could connect with them at any time they saw fit. Commissioner Merritt believes that the vacant property which is benefited and increased in value by the extensions should pay something for that benefit. He plans to do so by means of a frontage tax, the details of which have not been worked out. The legal department has expressed the opinion that no legal obstacles are in the way and is now working on the proposition.

By establishing branch offices and spreading the time for payment through each month, instead of having all payments made at the central office at the same time, the public would be greatly convenienced and the work of the department simplified and made easier. Those who might want explanations of their bills could take them to the central office if the branches could not supply the desired information.

DR. WEBSTER WANTS ACTION

Premises Must Be Cleaned Up or Warrants Will Be Issued.

"About Through With Warnings," Says Director of Public Health.

"Many parts of the city are in a distressingly dirty condition," said Dr. H. E. Webster, director of public health this morning.

"We will never have a nearly spotless town and cannot develop the city beautiful to its approximate possibilities until we get a municipal system of garbage collection."

Dr. Webster has been looking over the city in all directions and he has not been impressed with the feeling that he should have a microscope to find the dirty places. They have been staring him in the face block after block, the worst kinds of eye-sores.

Many persons have cleaned their premises but hundreds have done nothing. These will be visited by the sanitary inspectors who have been given explicit instructions to visit all places which show that they have not complied with the regulations.

Arrests Will Be Made.

"Warnings do not seem to be effective in numerous cases," said the health director. "We have given about as many warnings as we intend to. It's action we want now. The bad places must be cleaned up. If the owners or occupants will not do it themselves, we will not keep on talking to them. Warrants will be issued for them and they can make their explanations to the judge. We shall keep right on making arrests until the sanitary condition of the city is somewhere near what it should be. In many instances that appears to be the only way in which many people can be convinced that we mean business."

Dr. Webster has investigated conditions at the city incinerator on the water front near Fourteenth avenue west. He has learned that Engineer J. Phalen has been so handicapped that he has not been able to give his work proper attention. As a result the incinerator has not been handling as much garbage as it should. The plant itself is in need of repairs. R. E. Patterson, who has been collecting data on the smoke nuisance, will co-operate with the engineer. He will go over the situation and together they will endeavor to work out a system whereby the capacity of the incinerator can be utilized. As a result of his investigation the health director has withdrawn his notice to the engineer that his services will not be needed after the end of the current month.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Kinemacolor motion pictures.
EMPRESS—Vaudeville.

Amusement Notes.

Blanche Bates will be seen here at the Lyceum Monday in a new play, "The Witness for the Defense," which was one of the conspicuous successes of the theatergoing season in London last year. The author is a well-known novelist, A. E. W. Mason, and he has provided Miss Bates with an acute character study of a soul-tortured woman, in which the fine powers are displayed to the fullest advantage. "The Witness for the Defense" has been described as a highly probable human episode. A bare outline of the story will be enough to inspire and pique interest and curiosity.

The play opens in a tent on the plains of Rajputana in India, where a man and a woman, husband and wife, are growing weary of the struggle of life. The man is a dipsomaniac and a brute; the woman, cowed and wretched, is reminded of her earlier self and earlier possibilities by the sudden coming of an old-time lover. She is about to commit suicide when, goaded to desperation by the jeers and taunts of the man who is her master, she kills him in self-defense.

Brought to trial, she is acquitted of the deed, but later, in England when she is about to marry a young English officer in a Sussex village, she is forced to reveal to him her past. Her woman's instinct tells her that her future happiness and peace of mind depend upon her confession of the truth of her case before the marriage takes place. This climax, of course, develops superb opportunities for powerful emotional work of the kind that create suspense and pulse with interest. Miss Bates is said to give such a superb portrayal of a tortured mind and heart that she enthralls every spectator who comes under the spell of her art.

With the two performances tonight the Empress will close the vaudeville program for the first half of the week. The bill is pleasing and full of comedy. The Lenlor manikins are making good with their show, the miniature stage with its pretty little drops and curtains all go to please a critical audience. The Nifty Girls, Ethel and Beatrice, are receiving the "glad hand" at every performance.

Fun fast and furious and foolish frolics are what Bruce Richardson & Co. give in their sketch, "Moving Day."

Cabaret scenes may come and cabaret scenes will go, but Janette Adler and her musical cabaret girls will always be remembered by Empress patrons. The act is one of songs and dancing. The singing is all done by Miss Adler, whose voice is pleasing. The violin selections are great. The little violinist does some clever work with her many opportunities. The whole act is one of class and merit.

Pictures of a comedy nature close a good bill.

Allen Morrison, who has scored a personal triumph of considerable proportions in the exacting role of Joe Foster, in the pretty musical comedy play, "The Girl Question," which will be the offering at the Empress for the last half of the week commencing with the matinee Thursday, was an assistant in the public library in St. Louis prior to embarking upon a professional career. Miss Morrison was in charge of all the books in the institution dealing with the drama and, after reading many of them, she decided to go upon the stage.

DENVER ELECTION COUNT IS SLOW.

Denver, Colo., May 21.—At 9 o'clock today returns from one-third the precincts showed that it is practically certain that no candidate for any office in the commission plan of government has received the required majority of either first choice votes or first and second choice votes combined. The election judges are adding each candidate's quota of "other choice" votes in an effort to discover who has been elected. There were 143 candidates, five of them being women.

KERN RESOLUTION IN COMMITTEE.

Washington, May 21.—Senator Hoke Smith, chairman, called the committee on education and labor today to consider the Kern resolution to direct an inquiry into conditions in the Paint Creek and Cabin Creek coal fields of West Virginia.

CHINESE FLOCK TO WEST CANADA.

Vancouver, B. C., May 21.—Notwithstanding Premier McBride's repeated declarations for a white British Columbia, the revenues of the province are profiting more than ever by the immigration of the Chinese. The number coming in during the last fiscal year was greater than in any previous year.

Altogether 7,745 Chinese entered, mostly through Vancouver and nearly all are to remain in British Columbia. Of these 367 were admitted as students, merchants, etc. The remainder paid tax at $500 per capita, aggregating $3,349,442, half of which is paid into the British Columbia treasury.

The total Chinese population of Canada is now 30,000, more than two-thirds of whom are in British Columbia. The immigration of Japanese is limited to 400 annually, for which no head tax is charged.

As to your own present physical condition, let me say from a close personal observation of hundreds of thousands of cases of lost vitality in young, middle-aged and elderly men, covering an experience of over 30 years, I honestly believe that "Lost Vitality," as we term it, is actually no real disease in itself at all, and that under certain favorable circumstances, any man anywhere, can easily and permanently restore his own full strength and nerve force if he but make an honest, conscientious effort along certain commonsense lines, which I am able to suggest, and which include absolutely no medicines or drugs of any kind. You simply use a vitalizing appliance of my invention called the Sanden Health Belt, which you wear comfortably around your waist during sleep for 60 to 90 days. That is absolutely all there is to the whole treatment excepting, of course, you are expected to lead a decent, manly life, free from debilitating excesses and dissipations. This Health Belt in itself is a marvel of power, and sends a great, soft, even flow of vitality into your blood, organs and nerves. Wearers the world over say it takes all pain and weakness out of the back, often from one application, and builds up the strength, thus giving back the full vigor of youth so you soon find yourself answering: "Never felt better in my life" to your friends' greetings; while they secretly marvel at the great change for the better which has come over you. With special attachments the Health Belt is also a wonderful treatment for rheumatism, kidney, liver, stomach, bladder disorders, etc.

DULUTH MAN IS "SPEAKER" AT SEMI CENTENNIAL OF SCHOOL FOR DEAF

Jay Cooke Howard Delivers Address in Sign Language to Graduates of His Alma Mater at Faribault.

JAY COOKE HOWARD.

Yesterday was graduation day and the fiftieth anniversary at the Faribault school for the deaf, dumb and blind, and quite a sized class received their diplomas and will go out in the world to make their way against their more fortunate brethren. Graduation is quite an event at the school and large numbers of the former students are on hand to encourage the new graduates on their way in the world. The chief address of the day was made by Jay Cooke Howard of Duluth, a former pupil at the school, and now one of the leading business men of Duluth. The address was delivered in the sign language, and is in part as follows:

"The celebration of anniversaries has had the sanction of civilized people since the conception of the first crude calendar. A certain anniversary may be of interest to but one person, or to a group of people or it may have world-wide recognition. The nature of the anniversary suggests the manner of its celebration. In the old world a fiftieth anniversary may be a mere bagatelle but in the new West it is harking back to the very beginning of things. Fifty years ago the state of Minnesota was only five years old. The state was full of hostile Indians and the Sioux massacre occurred that year not many miles from where we are today. The year before, the first ten miles of railroad was completed, extending from St. Paul to St. Anthony. In 1863 but 32,467 votes were cast in the election for governor. The Civil war was at its height, and in common with her sister states, Minnesota was sending her sons to the field of battle.

"It was in 1863 that the legislature appointed a commission to provide for the education of 'the deaf, dumb and blind of the state.' Sept. 9 of that year this school opened in an old frame building here in Faribault. There were five pupils enrolled on the opening day.

Fiftieth Anniversary.

"We are celebrating the completion of our fiftieth year. It is an occasion of pride for those who have forwarded the work; of rejoicing for every one who will pause to realize that this school sprang 'from the great Christian spirit in the hearts of men and women who loved their country and their race,' of thanksgiving for the hundreds of deaf men and women who have here had their minds awakened and have had instilled into them the sense of moral responsibility.

"Of the many, who in one capacity or another have carried on the work, two men stand out pre-eminently. Rodney A. Mott was one of the three commissioners appointed by the legislature in 183 to provide educational facilities for the deaf, dumb and blind. He was secretary of the first board of directors and remained secretary of the board almost until his recent death. He thoroughly understood and appreciated the deaf and they understood and appreciated him. He was an eloquent and forceful speaker and never missed an occasion to extol the merits of the school and its graduates. He contended 'that no existing school for the deaf has a better record than our Minnesota school,' and declared that its graduates 'ranked with the noble men and women of the state.' Of the many services for which we are indebted to him, probably the greatest was in securing as our superintendent, Jonathan L. Noyes. Dr. Noyes remained at the head of the school for thirty years and literally gave his life to the work. To his efforts, more than to the efforts of any other single man, has its success been due. His manly bearing, his fairness and justice, his high ideals lived up to, his abhorrence of all things mean, his practical common sense and his love and kindness influenced his boys and girls as such a character always influences the young.

Fruits Of the Work.

"Those in charge of the work at the present time are living up to the high standard set by their predecessors. Out of the children rather overawed by their misfortune it is making self-supporting and self-respecting citizens. The act of the pioneers of fifty years ago in establishing this school stands justified.

"In the past fifty years 1,577 children have been enrolled and about 400 have completed the full course and have been graduated. Of the graduates forty have entered college, some of whom have become teachers of the deaf, and stand among the foremost in their profession. A large proportion of the graduates have become farmers, as is fitting in an agricultural state, while the others are engaged in over forty different trades and professions. As an instance of what the deaf can do, Cadwallader Washburn, a graduate of this school, has served as war correspondent for one of the largest daily papers in Chicago all through the several Mexican revolutions of recent years. He interviewed Madero and his friends, enemies and successors, and directed the work of six assistants in the field. His predictions and conclusions are particularly valuable because of their accuracy.

School's Value.

"The value of the school to the state must be judged by its graduates, just as a mill is judged by its product. The graduates of this school have well repaid the state for the cost of educating them. It has been estimated that they own upward of $3,000,000 of real property on which they pay taxes, and that their annual earnings exceed the annual outlay by the state for the education of the deaf. That their moral training has not been neglected is demonstrated by the fact that not one of our graduates has ever been indicted for a criminal offense against the laws of Minnesota. Nor have we any beggars or dependents on charity among those who have been educated here. We are well aware that here, there and everywhere throughout the state and nation are people who ask assistance for various objects because they claim they are 'deaf and dumb.' What is known as the 'fake deaf-mute graft' is one of the easiest and most popular methods of begging. We would burn it on the heart and chisel it on the mind of every one that 'the deaf do not beg.' On their own initiative the deaf people of Minnesota had an amendment to the vagrancy laws passed by the legislature of 1911 dealing with this class of vagrants. In the past two years approximately thirty arrests and convictions have resulted in Duluth alone while many others have been made throughout the state. Similar laws are being enacted in other states and we earnestly request our friends to see that every 'deaf mute' beggar is arrested. It is imperative that this form of imposition and graft be stopped.

"We are deeply interested in the education of the deaf children of our state. Many of us are married and have children of our own but with very few exceptions our children are not deaf. It is the deaf children of our hearing friends whom we would assist, as we expect them to labor with us to educate our hearing children.

"We are also ready to assist young deaf people who have mental qualifications but lack the means to attain a college education. While working in the present we have thought to the future, and realize that the calamities of life may overtake some of us, and we are now arranging and preparing to care for our own aged and infirm. That these objects may be better carried out and our efforts systematically directed we have an incorporated association known as the Minnesota Association for the Deaf.

"You who are about to add another class to the honor roll of graduates will take your places in a state covered with homes, churches, towns and cities knit together with a mighty webb of railways, with the lightning of heaven as messenger boys and the daily papers rustling as the leaves of the forest in an autumn breeze.' You will find much of your way made easier for you by those of our graduates who have gone before. You will find people who will understand and appreciate you. You have had a better training than the average boy or girl. Make up your minds to live up to the high tradition of your alma mater, and to be men and women of whom the state will be proud. Pray that you may appreciate and make the most of the opportunities that are daily yours, rather than that you may chance upon some unearned and undeserved success. Do not be self-centered. Help yourselves, but help others also. Most of our happiness and much of our welfare comes from generous actions."

LABOR DEPARTMENT OFFICES ARE FILLED

Louis F. Post Assistant to Secretary—West Gets Two Places.

Washington, May 21.—Louis F. Post of Chicago has been selected as assistant secretary of the department of labor; Anthony A. Caminetti of San Francisco, Cal., for commissioner general of immigration, and John B. Densmore of Polson, Mont., for solicitor of the department of labor.

Louis Freeland Post is an editor, author, lawyer and lecturer, who has attained prominence by his discussions of economic questions, particularly single tax. He was born in New Jersey sixty-four years ago and for thirty years has been an advocate of the single tax and other economic reforms promoted by Henry George.

Anthony A. Caminetti, who will succeed Daniel J. Keefe of Detroit, Mich., as commissioner general of immigration, is of Italian descent and has long lived in Jackson, Cal. For many years he has been prominent in state politics and now is a Democratic member of the California senate. He is a student of sociological problems and has devoted much time to a special study of immigration.

John B. Densmore, selected for solicitor of the new department, already has won distinction in the practice of law, although he is comparatively young. He is a Democrat of the progressive type.

May Drop Keefe Case.

During the last week of the Taft administration, Secretary Nagle of the department of commerce and labor, on the strength of an investigation made into Commissioner General Keefe's official conduct, recommended to Mr. Taft that Mr. Keefe be dismissed and that the evidence adduced be submitted to the department of justice. No action was taken by the president upon the recommendation, but the papers in the case were turned over to President Wilson when he entered the White House. What, if any, action he may take has not been disclosed, but it is regarded as likely that the acceptance of Mr. Keefe's resignation will end the matter.

VOTE ON CENSUS OFFICIAL JUNE 25

Senate Also Confirms Guthrie's and Mitchell's Appointments.

Washington, May 21.—Senators who were looking forward to a discussion of census-taking from the days of Babylon to the present, were disappointed when the promised fight over the confirmation of W. J. Harris of Georgia as director of the census, succeeding E. Dana Durand, was submitted to arbitration last night and an agreement was made to vote upon it June 25.

Senator Burton had announced his intention to post his colleagues on census-taking as a fine art, and had piled the space under his desk with ancient and modern records. Other Republicans who opposed the confirmation of Harris were primed with figures and facts, and they looked forward to an indefinitely prolonged merry war. The Republicans had insisted that Harris be not confirmed before July 1, and offers of a compromise on June 1 had been frowned upon. The agreement for a vote June 25 was reached only after it became apparent that those opposed to confirmation at this time were prepared to take advantage of the senate rules and keep talking as long as the senate remained in session.

No charges have ever been filed against Harris, and since a voting arrangement has been made he probably will be approved, for the Democrats have plenty of votes to confirm the nomination.

In a two-hour executive session last night, the senate confirmed the nominations of several score postmasters and other officials, including George W. Guthrie as ambassador to Japan; John Purroy Mitchell as collector of the port of New York; G. M. Saltzgaber as commissioner of pensions, and Albert Lee Thurman as solicitor of the department of commerce.

GRONNA RAPS NEW TARIFF

North Dakota Senator Says Bill Was Not Scientifically Drawn.

Gives Views at Williston, N. D., While Attending Commercial Club Meet.

Williston, N. D., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Western North Dakotans are working to bring about an order from Secretary of the Interior Lane, placing certain North Dakota lands under the provisions of the enlarged homestead act. United States Senator A. J. Gronna of the state was here yesterday and attended a special meeting of the Commercial club, explaining the situation with the result that resolutions were passed urging the application of this act to certain North Dakota lands.

Senator Gronna said Commissioner Dennett had endorsed the plan of opening North Dakota lands to settlement under the 320-acre law. J. Otis Smith of the geological survey, however, opposed it, and any recommendation for lands to go under the act must come from the survey department.

About a year ago Senator Gronna secured the passage of a law including North Dakota under the enlarged homestead act. He has made several efforts to secure the classification of lands under it without success.

Scores Tariff Bill.

Senator Gronna, speaking on the tariff question, is not hopeful for any radical changes in the present bill, believing that it will pass the senate in practically the same form that it passed the house.

"While two of the Democratic senators have stated that they would vote against the bill," the senator said, "it is generally believed that one or two Republicans will vote for it, so that the effect of the change will be overcome in that manner.

"The bill has not been scientifically drawn, there being several features of it that appear faulty. As to the income tax, I believe it has been properly drawn, and I am strongly in favor of it."

Senator Gronna returns to Washington today. He is preparing a speech on the tariff question.

Even Farmer Who Runs Afoul Milwaukee Judge Has to Settle.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 21.—"Judge, I admit that I was speeding, but I was nearly out of gasoline and wanted to get home before the tank was empty," was the excuse of George Sackert, 26, when haled before District Court Judge George Page on a charge of speeding.

"Go to the head of the class," replied the court, "and also drop $10 and costs into the collection box."

Walter Schmid, a farmer, was found guilty of speeding forty-two miles an hour. He informed the court that he was needed at home for milking and his arrest was spite work on the part of the "city guys." He was fined $25, while Louis Marlham paid $10 for the same offense.

Diabetes No Longer Feared

Peculiar Action of a Remarkable Remedy in Controlling Liver Action.

S. S. S. Quickly Puts Vim and Energy Into You.

There is no need to feel any alarm over the symptoms of diabetes. This disease is apt to be purely a digestive trouble, and for this reason the liver is held largely responsible. The liver is the largest organ of the body, and is not only a mass of thread-like blood vessels, but throughout its entire fabric is intimately associated with the digestive system.

The thing to do is to so stimulate the action of this myriad of blood vessels that each cellular part selects its own essential nutriment by healthy and judicious divine discretion. This is accomplished by S. S. S., the most potent, the most active and the most naturally stimulating blood medicine known. You do not need purgatives; do not be alarmed at the presence of sugar nor of so-called sediment.

Just stick to S. S. S. and bear in mind that this celebrated remedy has such a specific stimulating action on the local cells of the liver as to preserve their mutual welfare and give a proper relative assistance, each cell to the other.

Dropsical tendencies are thus overcome, biliousness soon becomes a memory and jaundice, malaria, afflictions of the spleen and glandular swellings will be entirely eliminated. You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores and for competent medical advice, free, consult by mail the laboratory of The Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

PUTS AN END TO BACKACHE MAKES WEAK KIDNEYS STRONG

A Few Doses Give Relief, Help Lifeless Organs Regain Health, Strength and Activity

It is useless, dangerous, and unecessary to be tortured with the digging, twisting pains of backache and rheumatism, or suffer with disagreeable kidney and bladder disorders any longer.

The new discovery, Croxone, provides a remedy which every sufferer can now depend upon to promptly and surely relieve all such misery.

Croxone relieves these troubles because it quickly overcomes the cause of the disease. It soaks right into the stopped up, inactive kidneys, through the membranes and linings; cleans out the little filtering glands; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and makes the kidneys filter and sift from the blood all the waste and poisonous matter that clog the system and cause such troubles.

It does not matter whether you have but slight symptoms or the most chronic, aggravated case of kidney, bladder trouble, or rheumatism that it is possible to imagine, for the very principle of Croxone is such that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

[Note—This is what we have to write in weather like this.]

PEEPULS FIELD, May 21.—In a hart hitting game, which was featured by the repeated hits made by Harold Wainwright and Mary Jones, Virtue defeated Villainy this afternoon by the score of 19 to 12.

Harold Wainwright came to bat the oftenest as he was the best looking and also was supposed to make a hit. Mary Jones made a large number of hits, especially a great one near the end, when she cried, upon coming to bat, "I scorn your gold, Jack Dalton, Heaven will protect me." This was at a very critical moment and broke down the offense of Jack Dalton, who started strong. The vast assemblage cheered this corking hit to the very echo.

Glancing at the detailed score it will be noted that Hank Barkley, playing at constable, made one hit during the play. This was when he stopped Jack Dalton, in a critical moment, and saved Villainy from piling up several costly scores.

By Heaven and Brave Little Woman were the stellar batsman for the Villainy aggregation. Every time at bat these two made hits, bringing out vociferous applause upon several occasions.

Villainy started strongly and seemed to have the upper hand of Virtue till along near the end. It was here that Handsome Harold Wainwright came to bat with the bases choked and the situation indeed a tense one. He got hold of one of Jack Dalton's fast ones and hit it a tremendous crack, errors in relaying the hit upon the part of Slippery Ike and Lillian Redfield assisting in overcoming the lead of Villainy.

Jim Jones, a holdout from the Virtue team, played a very weak game for Villainy, his errors of omission coming at several critical times and proving very costly.

While a weak hitter, Jere Jones made several very good sacrifice hits. Old Father was also there with the sacrifice. At a very critical time Rev. Paul White made a pretty assist that brought the game to an end.

The Stern Aunt was sent in to bat for George Smythe who failed to show any hitting ability, but Stern Aunt failed to hit, going out by the Hiss route in speedy fashion.

It was in the seventh that the play turned. Up to this point Villainy had a big lead and several became hysterical and began to weep. Harold Wainwright came to the rescue in noble fashion.

He got Jack Dalton's goat by producing a paper showing that Jack Dalton was already married and had been in the real estate business in Superior for four years. It was shortly after this that Jack Dalton got his.

Hiss played a great fielding game for Virtue, putting out most of the characters on the other side. Hiss covered a lot of ground and no matter what the other side offered seemed to be able to meet the emergency.

Mary Jones failed to do much the first few times at bat, but near the end came into her own and made some tremendous hits. After the game Clarence Fish shook hands and congratulated Harold Wainwright.

Lillian Redfield had some beautiful curves and knew how to use them, and when Jack Dalton was hit hard she attempted to come to his rescue. Harold Wainwright, on the coaching lines, shouted, "I know you, Lillian Redfield, despite your bleached hair and black veil; you are Mrs. Richard Vane, alias the Beautiful Doris Dimple, the diamond smuggler."

Lillian Redfield wilted and was forced to leave her position.

With the bases full in the seventh and everyone standing up and yelling, Harold Wainwright stepped to the front.

"Ah, Jack Dalton," he cried, "I have you now." Then he hit Jack Dalton. This was the longest and biggest hit of the whole game and practically decided the end. Hank Barkley, who had not been hitting very strongly, came to bat shortly after this and made another hit off Jack Dalton, and the attacking power of the Villainy team was crushed.

Harold Wainwright was given excellent support throughout, few errors being made by the Virtue team. The support of Jack Dalton was terrible, many errors being made by this player and his team mates.

Hank Barkley caught several of the oppositon stealing and turned them back.

MCGRAW says he will tender Christy Mathewson a three year contract when the grand old boy loses all the cunning of the wonderful whip. The little Napoleon of baseball is of the opinion that the greatest pitcher of the National league will be of inestimable assistance to his team as a coach of the young pitchers. Perhaps he is right—McGraw generally is.

IT has been remarked upon and freely commented on that Ty Cobb's arm is gone. For years this haughty individual pitched half an hour before each game, and this despite the warning of many wise baseball men. If the reports are true, the arm of the gink called the greatest baseball player in the world is so weak that his efforts to throw are pitiable. If this statement is true Cobb can no longer be called the perfect player.

A. O. ROSTO, the Duluth boy who has built a flying machine, has promised to give the first public exhibition of the big air boat on the Fourth of July, when he will make a flight at the baseball park.

Rosto has labored long and diligently on his machine. He believes that he has one of the best air machines in the world. Whether this ingenious young man is able to make a high and sustained flight in the machine will probably be determined upon the day when the eagle screams.

Fritz Carlson, the Minneapolis boy who won the Boston Marathon, is also expected to take part in a distance race on the same afternoon.

VIRGINIA IS BADLY BEATEN

Winnipeg, Man., May 21.—Worman and Schimmens were hit to all corners of the lot yesterday and the Maroons defeated the Virginia team by the score of 14 to 1. After the first round the visitors could do nothing with Boly, while Worman, who took the place of Schimmens was so easy for the locals that it was like stealing confectionery from a very immature and illy developed person. Tim Flood decided to get into the game, the going was so good, and he hit one of the longest home run clouts that has ever been made on the local grounds. Despite the heavy cannonading both of the teams played great games in the field. Score: R. H. E.

FLICKERTAILS WIN EASY GAME

Grand Forks, N. D., May 21.—Terrible was the beating administered to the Winona team yesterday by the Flickertails, the score being 16 to 4 when the game was called in the seventh inning with no one out. Rain eased the misery of the tourists. Cold weather rendered good baseball playing next to impossible.

During the hard hitting of the pastime the cudgel work of Foster shone brightly. He hit out a single, a double, a triple, homer and another double in respective trips to the plate. It was the demon hitting of the first baseman of the Flickers that aided in the piling up of the large score. Altman also gathered three safe blows during the afternoon.

Bell, Snow and Reiger proved totally ineffective against the sluggers of the home team, while Morse had little trouble in keeping the hits of the visitors scattered.

Manager Carney was in the game again yesterday and his hitting proved one of the features of the day.

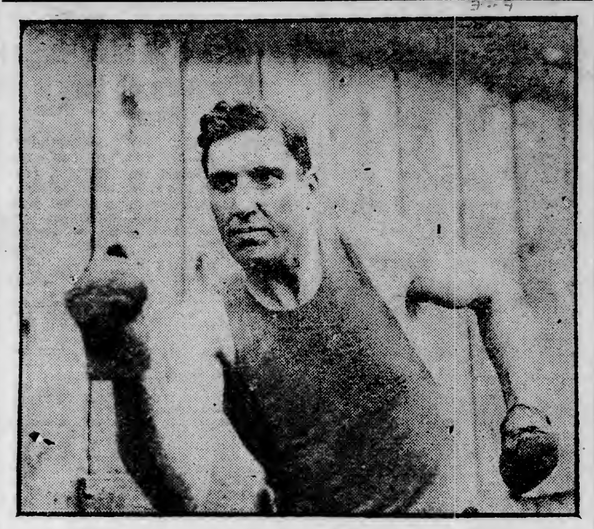
ANOTHER HOPE IS GONE



JESS WILLARD.

Like the American Indian and the buffalo, the white hope is rapidly becoming extinct. One more was eased off the landscape last evening when Jess Willard, one of the bund, was shunted away from the public lunch counter. The public is becoming somewhat convalescent from the pugilistic hysteria and the white hope may become only a memory of the past, unless some of the museums of the country take steps to gather one of the skeletons, as the bones of the mastodon have been preserved, and let future generations gather some vague idea of the curious creature.

Giants Shut Out.

New York, May 21.—Harmon held New York to two singles yesterday and St. Louis shut out the locals, 8 to 0. Harmon pitched an almost perfect game, only two New York players reaching first base. Murray singled cleanly to center with two out in the second, while Burns beat out a grounder to Whitted with two out in the ninth.

Mathewson for New York was hit harder than at any time this season, the visitors making twelve hits off him in six innings. The St. Louis batsmen bunted on Mathewson throughout and seven hits off the New York star were of the infield variety. They scored two runs in the fifth on singles by Oakes, Whitted, Wingo, Huggins and Magee and a wild throw by Meyers. With the bases full, Mathewson struck out Shocknard and threw out Mowrey. St. Louis got another cluster in the sixth on a pass to Konetchy, Oakes' sacrifice, Whitted's double and infield singles by Harmon and Huggins. After Wiltse relieved Mathewson St. Louis continued scoring. A muff by Burns let in two runs in the eighth and three bunched hits accounted for a fourth pair of runs in the ninth. Score: R. H. E.

Too Much Wagner.

Broklyn, May 21.—Too much Wagner beat Brooklyn in the first clash of the season with Pittsburg yesterday. The big shortstop not only cut off many a promising base hit, but came up in the fifth inning with the bases full and two out and drove out a single that Stengel made for the three bases by a fumble and three runs came home. Wagner tried to steal home, but lost the decision by a bad slide. Allen paved the way to the defeat by passing Robinson with one out in the fifth, and then making a wild throw on Mensor's grounder that should have been turned into a double play. J. Miller first up in the sixth hit to the left field wall for a homer. Allen was taken out in the eighth to let Phelps bat for him, the latter making good with a single. Stack finished the pitching.

Brooklyn's only run was earned on a double by Hammel and Wheat's single in the first inning. Robinson was effective after that. Wagner accepted nine chances at short, many of them difficult. A one-handed catch of a liner by Byrne stopped a promising rally by Brooklyn in the eighth.

Win in Second.

Boston, May 21.—Chicago scored enough runs on Perdue's lapses in the second to win from Boston, 7 to 3. All seven runs were scored in that session, three bases on balls and a hit baseman, counting four tallies. Overall held the Boston hits well scattered, two of the three local's runs coming in the seventh when Connolly drove his second home run in two days over the right field fence. R. H. E.

Philadelphia, May 21.—Philadelphia drove Fromme off the rubber in three innings yesterday and had no difficulty in defeating Cincinnati, the score being 5 to 1. Packard, who took Fromme's place was very effective, the home team being retired in order in four successive innings. Alexander held his opponents down to five hits and did not give a pass. Cincinnati escaped a shutout in the sixth inning when Bates scored on a muff of his liner by Luderus and Tinker's double. R. H. E.

Ty Cobb Stars.

Detroit, Mich., May 21.—Ty Cobb not content with hitting twice for extra bases, walking on two occasions and stealing home once, stretched a base hit into a double in the tenth inning when Daly was slow in fielding the ball, and brought home the winning run yesterday when Brown walked Gayner, Moriarity and High in succession. The final count was Detroit, 8; Philadelphia, 7. The contest from opening to close was one succession of thrilling situations.

Apparently beaten when they came to bat in the eighth, the Tigers drove in four runs with four hits which placed them one run ahead of Philadelphia. The Athletics then evened matters up by a "lightning" rally. With two men out and nobody on base, Oldring put the ball over the left field wall for a home run.

Cobb's hit in the tenth was a low drive to center. Veach bunted and was thrown out. Then Manager Mack ordered thrown to pass both Gaynor and Moriarity to fill the bases and set the stage for a possible double play. After this was carried out, Manager Jennings ordered High to bat for Stanage; the diminutive outfielder quickly drew four balls and the game was over.

Houck and Klawitter were the opposing pitchers at the start of the game, but both were hit hard, and replaced. Cobb's steal of home occurred in the third inning. It was his second performance of that nature in three days. Yesterday, as Monday, he had a perfect day at bat, either hitting safely or being passed every time he faced the pitcher. Score: R. H. E.

Win Out in Ninth.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 21.—Cleveland won yesterday's game in the ninth inning, scoring three runs and beating Washington, 10 to 9. Each team hit freely, Cleveland using five pitchers and Washington two. In the ninth Chapman singled and scored on Olson's two-base hit. Lajoie and Jackson were purposely passed and Olson was forced out at home on Graney's infield hit, the bases still being filled. Batting for O'Neil, Carlsch hit a two-bagger that sent in two runs and gave Cleveland the game.

Washington secured a big lead in the first three innings on hits off Mitchell and Blanding and Cleveland's errors. In the second Jackson's throw struck a bat and bounded away, three runners scoring.

On President Johnson's order, Umpire Dineen put Altrock off the bench, claiming that Washington exceeded their limit of two men in uniform. Score: R. H. E.

Highlanders Win Another.

St. Louis, Mo., May 21. — Although McConnell allowed the St. Louis Americans eight hits yesterday he kept them scattered and New York won, 6 to 3. Baumgardner was hit for nine safeties. The visitors began scoring in the second inning, singles by Cree, Chase and Midkiff netting two runs. After two outs in the third, three runs were scored by New York when Wolter walked, Hartsell singled and scored on Wallace's error and Chase's single which brought in Cree. Chase's single in the eighth scored Cree. St. Louis made one run in the first on Johnston's single, one in the sixth on Brief's single and one in the ninth on McAllister's double. Score: R. H. E.

TWO NEAR CHAMPIONSHIP RING BATTLES ARE FOUGHT

Gunboat Smith Whips Jess Willard Despite Latter's Physical Advantages.

Joe Mandot, Pride of New Orleans, Knocked Out By Anderson.

San Francisco, Cal., May 21.—Fifty pounds advantage in weight, six inches in height and a reach like the arm of a derrick could not win last night for Jess Willard from "Gunboat" Smith, who earned a referee's decision in the last round of a 20-round bout. The heavier punch of the more experienced and aggressive veteran counted for more in the result than the bulk and strength of his opponent.

Smith was a 10 to 7 favorite over Jess Willard in the ringside betting. Willard, 6 feet 6 inches in height, and weighing 230 pounds, towered above the conqueror of Bombardier Wells, whose height was given at six feet seven and weight at 180 podns.

It was 9:50 o'clock before the gong started Smith and Willard on their way. The first round was uneventful, but toward the end of the second Smith landed fiercely with right and left to the jaw and Willard spat blood as he went to his corner. The sailor took a long lead in the third, landing several hard swings to the jaw and Willard appeared distressed. The round closed with the Kansan on the defensive.

Willard Has Flash.

Willard began playing for the "Gunner's" stomach in the fourth round, rushing Smith to the ropes. In the succeeding round he continued his spurt, at one time almost putting Smith through the ropes. The sixth round was tame.

There was much clinching in the seventh and Referee Selig was kept busy separating the pair. Both slowed up perceptibly and not until the tenth round was fierce milling resumed. Smith then split the Kansan's ear with a right swing and blood flowed in a stream from the wound. The advantage at this stage was with the "Gunner."

Smith pecked away at Jess' ear in the eleventh round and the crowd jeered the giant who clinched repeatedly to avoid punishment. A left to the chin in the next round staggered Willard. Eager for a kockout, the "gunner" was now prancing around the bigger man, landing frequently but seemingly with little steam behind his blows. In the thirteenth he hit Willard almost at will, the Kansan seemingly content to back away and cover as best he could.

His Swan Spurt.

Willard opened the fourteenth round with an unexpected onslaught that took Smith unawares and slamming the "gunner" against the ropes, drove a left to the jaw that dazed him. Smith fought back gamely and lasted out the round. His left eye was closed when he took his corner in the fifteenth, but in the next round he showed up stronger, holding the Kansan even.

Honors were even in the seventeenth and eighteenth which were featured by heavy slugging. In the nineteenth Smith again opened Willard's ear outfighting the giant at close range.

The "gunner" forced the fighting throughout the twentieth, and when Referee Selig designated him as the winner at the end of the bout, the ringside crowd cheered in approval.

MANDOT BEATEN BY ANDERSON

Favorite No Match for Washington Boy—Fast Preliminary.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 21.—Bud Anderson of Vancouver, Wash., and Joe Mandot of New Orleans, met here last night in a twenty-round bout at the lightweight limit. Mandot was knocked out in the twelfth round. They weighed in at 6 o'clock and both were inside the limit of 133 pounds. Mandot was a 10 to 8 favorite, with light betting.

Cal Delaney of Cleveland earned a decision over Monte Attell, the San Francisco featherweight, in a fast ten-round bout, as a preliminary to the main event.

Mandot was not knocked down in the final round, but he was 'out on his feet." He was clearly insensible. Referee Eyton, seeing the condition of the Southerner, stopped the fight with Mandot staggering blindly about the ring, and held up Anderson's hand in token of victory.

Mandot was unable to land a blow in the first round. In the second, Anderson punished him severely with vicious rights to the body. Mandot stayed away from the hard-hitting Northerner in the third, but managed to put several light blows to Anderson's face. Mandot scored with a hard right to the jaw as the bell rang.

In the fourth and fifth rounds Anderson played Mandot's own game, long range fighting, and more than held his own.

Mandot took the aggressive in the sixth and tried repeatedly to put Anderson away with a punch but every intended knockout blow was cleverly evaded while Anderson found further opportunity to batter the Southerner's ribs with rights.

In the tenth round Anderson rocked Mandot's head with a right and left; and when the Southerner went into a clinch Anderson placed his right to the stomach with telling effect.

Anderson forced the fighting at the beginning of the twelfth and staggered Mandot with rights and lefts to the face and body. When a terrific right to the jaw made Mandot wilt, apparently helpless, but still on his feet, Referee Eyton stopped the fight to save him from a knockout.

DULUTH PLAYERS PASS AWAY THE IDLE HOURS

Blancke Reads Old Man Keats and Sam Meniece Bestows Loving Care on Onions---Darby After King Kohl and Others.

Darby O'Brien, whose team has been meeting with reverses of late, yesterday started negotiations with Edward King Cole, former shortstop of the Duluth team as well as the St. Paul American association team. The king is wanted for his hitting and if satisfactory terms can be reached the former shortstop of the pennant winning team of Minny league days may join the team before the second road invasion.

Young Cunningham was located at Sturgeon Lake yesterday and negotiations were entered into at once. It is believed that the Cloquet star will come here, though nothing definite is known as yet. Terms have been offered to the youngster who is classed as the best young proposition that has been seen in these parts for some time.

Darby Has Strings.

O'Brien is also on the lookout for another infielder. Just where this man will be played in the event that he is secured has not been announced by the Sox leader. O'Brien is negotiating with two Western league managers at the present time in the effort to land one of two men he is after.

Lucella Soura wants to come here but "she" is under contract and the local officials dare not encourage the slugging outfielder in his desire to get away from Muscatine.

Peggy Rhoades has been let out by the Superior team and will be given a trial with the Sox. Catcher Wilke of Madison, classed as one of the real receivers of the Wisconsin-Illinois league, may join the Sox during the present week, if he can get here by boat. Upon last reports the city was surrounded by water and this may interfere in the plans to transport players here.

Here is the rather large list the Orator has in mind bets—Pitchers Hannafin, Johnson, Rhoades, Cunningham and Fogel, the latter being of the Sioux City team; Infielders Kohl, Drew and Simmons; Catcher Wilke.

Yesterday it rained slightly. Consequently it was an off day for some of the players. It was also an off day for some of the players when it didn't rain, but that is done and past.

Blancke Reads Keats.

While the rain was falling and the world, or at least this immediate part, was wrapped in the drab blanket of gloom, Henry Clay Blancke lay on his couch at a local carvansary, and roamed with that other poet, Keats, through the misty vales of romance. And while he read, his Russian samavar, which he picked up among the Russian colony at Rising Sun, Ohio, while barnstorming with the defunct United States league remnants, simmered and issued forth steam and the delicious fragrance of high class brew.

Montgreith Woods, the hero of blue Monday, spent part of the day in the lobby of the St. Louis conferring with several politicians of North Dakota way. Sitting at right angles the heads of the trio met in close converse. Following this practical lesson our fat pitcher repaired to his room at the Lenox and getting down the map of dear old Bottineau, studied during the waning and raining afternoon the ward layout. The mayoralty bee is busily buzzing in the thatched top of our hero, the southpaw with control.

Franklyn McGraw—ah, need we say it?—spent a day at home. Franklyn is an upright youth, ever working for the interests of those employing him, and doubtless he wishes the association industriously and diligently to gather the kale; and yet who is he so bold to believe that this little rain was not welcome to Franklyn McGraw, yea, e'en though we have had by now five days of her?

Brave and youthful romance laughs at rain and says a prodigious pooh pooh to these tantalizing Northeasters. Romance thinks not even of coal.

Driving out to the home of Samuel Sycamore Meniece, we found that tall and angular gent at work in his Woodland garden. An umbrella was strapped to his back and upon his feet were hung long boots. The placid countenance wore a benign and peaceful smile.

Onions For the Eye.

"What is the secret of learning to hit?" we asked the demon hitter of the White Sox.

"Mr. Wagner has ruled on this question," said Mr. Meniece—"'Hit 'em where they ain't.'

"But here I have young onions. Greatest thing in the world for the batting eye. Brace you up in the hot weather."

"But there be no hot weather here," we added.

"But on the trips to warmer parts of the country," cut in Mr. Meniece, "we feel the hot weather terribly. Always in my grip there goes some of these Woodland onions. On arising and retiring and sometimes before the contest I eat one of 'em, sometimes two, and I find the diet a great benefit."

Toliffe Johnson secured permission yesterday afternoon to practice in the basement of the Quayle-Larsen company. There are targets down there, formerly used by marksmen. Taking several baseballs Toliffe repaired thither and during a large and gloomy section of the afternoon threw at the bulls eye. Near the close of the afternoon he was rewarded by hearing the ringing of a bell.

"Ah!" thought he, "patience hath its reward, as the copy books in all truth do say. I have at last, after throwing 169 balls, hit a bulls eye."

Ah, but it was not! It was the bell announcing the coming of the 6 o'clock hour, that gentle stroke of the Waterbury that bringeth joy to the weary and those who have early dates.

Poor Toliffe, sadly gathered his baseball and slowly left the store.

Daredevil Jack McCarthy spent part of the afternoon writing to East Seventh street friends in St. Paul. Part of the rest of the diem he spent reading John Redmond's speech regarding home rule.

Memories of Ireland.

"I have slight memory of my native country," said Mr. McCarthy to your correspondent. "Huge piles of potatoes and pigs of brown and black coloring crowd out other fancies of my youth. I was but a wee gossoon then, sir, but there was merry times. Every time I see Chauncey Olcott, man, I hark me back to the days of auld Ireland. 'Tis I, sir, who am hoping that she is made a free land. Good day to you."

Darby O'Brien played with his blue-eyed girl and later in the day mailed many missives to members of the Boo club, of which Bill Bradley is president. The Orator told them how good he is going, not enclosing the first batting averages of the season, as it is early yet and no one should be judged on so few trips to the plate.

Elmer Smith, classical looking, had a manicure and a long conversation. Mr. Rhoades read Proctor Knott's speech, adrutting that it assisted in the appreciation of present conditions. Mister Brackett read up on poultry and made marginal notes for practical demonstration at Morris, Minn. Mr. Fischel put on three woolen shirts and tramped three miles. Young Mr. Schrieber was homesick and later took in the movies and ate three pieces of creamed pie for dinner.

FLAG DAY WILL BE BIG EVENT

It was George Washington or some other distinguished gentleman who spoke regarding the advisability of preparing for war in times of peace. Thus while it raineth exceedingly and persistently the officials of our very excellent baseball association are preparing for the flag day of Saturday.

With Minneapolis here and fair weather, something that many of us have forgotten almost, and our nice new pennant to be hoisted to the top of the new white pole, it is expected that the varied program of the week end will bring out the fans in droves.

The coffers of the association have been drained by the rain, paradoxical as this may seem. After the rain the park will be drained.

Weather to date has dealt foully with the new Northern league. All of the clubs have suffered as have the club owners of the American association. Playing conditions have been wretched and the crowds have been reduced because of the general inclemency of the weather.

It is hoped that the present outburst of the various little devils will end this morbid fit of ibsonism upon the part of Brother Richardson.

All the amateur teams of the city are asked to co-operate in the making of a great success out of pennant day. Minneapolis, that has shown the strongest of all of the teams in the league to date, will be here for the first game on Friday, and according to the word received by President Blume, Ralph Comstock, the star twirler of the Minneapolis aggregation, will be on the mound for flag day. Monty Woods, the southpaw with control, may be saved to face the Mill City star, and in this event the fans here will see one of the greatest battles of the season to date, if the two men are right.

A large crowd on hand Saturday will be a help to the officials of the association and will be a mark of appreciation upon the part of the fans.

THOMPSON MAY GIVE UP ROWING

It is not certain as yet whether Louis Thompson, one of the best men in the senior boat, will row this season. Business is proving a serious handicap to the husky oarsman and he is not at all certain at the present time whether he can give up another year to the rowing game.

Bad weather is proving a frightful handicap to the coach. Ice has surrounded the boat house and work on the machines and runs have generally taken the place of work on the water. Two new men have been in the senior eight during the few rows that have been taken lately.

Weather conditions generally together with the ice have seriously interfered with decided progress.

NEW YORKERS SILENT ON LIPTON CHALLENGE

New York, May 21.—At the offices of the New York Yacht club last night, aside from an admission that a cable message had been sent, no statement could be obtained regarding the announcement from London that Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge for the America's cup had ben definitely accepted. The committee appointed at the last meeting of the club was clothed with power to act upon the challenge and the manner and time of any statement it may have to make regarding the matter is left to its discretion. There is no indication so far as to when it will make official announcement of its action.

Sir Thomas considers that the conditions of acceptance of his challenge by the New York Yacht club are a great victory for him. He says they will enable him to build a good seaworthy boat.

It is still a question whether Sir Thomas will be allowed to tow his yacht across the Atlantic. "It does not really matter much," he said, "whether I am allowed to tow or not. Anyway, I should not want to tow except in the case of a head wind or a dead calm."

Charles E. Nicholson, the yacht designer of Gosport, England, is already working on the plans of the boat.

The New York Yacht club's acceptance of the challenge says:

"The races are to be sailed as suggested in your cable under our present rules of measurement, time allowance and racing rules, it being understood that the rule requiring a yacht at the highest limit of her class in certain cases shall not apply to this match."

Kenosha, Wis., May 21.—Jack Britton of Chicago beat Eddie Murphy of Boston in a ten round fight last night. Murphy showed superiority in only one round and that was the third. In the eighth Murphy was groggy. Murphy was a big favorite with the crowd, but it cheered Britton as the winner.

VIRGINIA LETS SOME CONTRACTS

Awards for About $40,000 Improvements Let to Contractors.

Virginia, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Virginia will spend about $40,000 on street improvements this year. The contracts for the work were let by the council last night.

The successful bidders were: The General Contracting company of Minneapolis, who got the award for the work on First street, North side, from First avenue to Fifth avenue and Birch, Beech and Hemlock streets, all to be done with bitulithic at the bid price, $2.48 per yard; Lawrence & McCann company, who get Virginia avenue from the bridge between the two lakes to First street, to be done with creosoted block at $2.63 per yard; Risberg & Marvick, who get the cement walk work at 15½ cents per square foot; Lawrence & McCann, who get the cement curb and gutter work at 73 cents per lineal foot. Other bidders were; Butler-Coons company of Virginia and Hibbing and McDonnell of Duluth.

Pass Auto Hire License.

The council gave the final reading to the ordinance licensing autos for hire by which owners pay $25 per car. The charges are fixed at $4 per hour for a five-passenger car, $3 per hour for the first hour for a five-passenger car and $4 per hour thereafter. It is discretionary with the mayor as to where autos for hire may stand, except that none may stand on Chestnut street.

Arthur Caza, who had applied for a renewal of his liquor license, was denied it for the reason that he had been convicted of a law violation during the past year. The mayor reported that the council is invited to march in a body in the Memorial day parade and it was agreed that all should assemble at the city hall and take part in the parade.

HIBBING PARKS TO BE DISCUSSED

Council and Park Board to Take Up Matter Thursday.

Hibbing, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—There will be a joint meeting of the village council of Hibbing and the members of the park board on Thursday evening at the council chamber, when the matter of Hibbing's park system will be discussed and the council will learn just what work is being planned by the park board.

The matter of providing for an artificial lake at the fair grounds will also be considered. President J. J. Cox of the St. Louis County Agricultural association, addressed the village council at its regular meeting last evening, asking that the council and the park board provide for the making of two lakes at the fair grounds, one of about twenty acres water surface and the other about half as large. Natural formations at the fair grounds make the project one easy of execution according to Mr. Cox.

Asks For Fair Appropriation.

R. L. Giffin, secretary of the fair association, asked for an appropriation of $1,000 by the village under the terms of the law passed for that purpose by the recent legislature. Mr. Giffin said the St. Louis county fair has in the past three years grown from one of the least to be the greatest county fair of all the ninety-five Minnesota county fairs. Owing to the size and importance of St. Louis county, the fair must attempt expansion this year and for the next few years that will take every dollar of help that can be secured, and the association therefore expects to ask the village of Hibbing, the township of Stuntz and the county to appropriate the full limit allowed by law for the aid of the fair in each case. The council deferred the matter of the appropriation until Thursday evening in order to give the village attorney time to report upon it.

The council decided to repair the bridge on the Alice road over the sewer outlet, approved the paving bond of the Butler Coons Contracting company in the sum of $80,000, and referred the petition of A. P. Silliman for certain sidewalk grades in Brooklyn to the streets and alleys committee. The recorder was instructed to notify the city of Virginia that Hibbing will send representatives to meet with the railroad and warehouse commission concerning the withdrawal of the Great Northern passenger train from Duluth to Virginia via Hibbing popularly known as the Wooden Shoe, at any time that such a meeting is arranged for.

GILBERT TO ENTERTAIN FINNISH MIDSUMMER FESTIVAL

GILBERT FINNISH SINGING SOCIETY.

Top Row, Left to Right—E. Mahonen, A. Lehto, K. Kyryri, C. Hynnila, S. Rahko, C. Niemenen, J. Huttunen. Middle Row—H. Korte, Mary Johnson, Mrs. A. Erickson, Mrs. D. Moykkynen, Annie Lepisto, Mrs. J. Koskela, Mrs. J. Lepisto. Third Row—Mrs. G. Peterson, Sadie Sandstrom, Hilda Mattson, J. Koskela, Director; Mamie Aho, Lily Peltoniem, Ida Ero.

Gilbert, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Local Finnish people are making great plans for the Northern Minnesota Finnish-American's tenth annual midsummer festival to be held here next Saturday and Sunday. The main executive committee, the arrangement committee, is composed of J. Koskela, president; Nestor Laine, vice president; Jacob Korpi, secretary; K. Kykyri, treasurer; Isaac Hakoinaki, financial secretary. There are numerous sub-committees comprising about fifty people in all who are working all the time to make the affair the best one ever held. A very handsome souvenir program is being prepared. It will comprise sixty-eight pages and contain seventy-five articles written by prominent Finnish people all over the world. The articles are historical and deal with a great many of the Finnish customs with special reference to the midsummer celebration.

The corn design is a work of art drawn by John Kerttu of Virginia. Five thousand copies of this program will be printed. The program the first day will consist of speaking, vocal and instrumental music, with a grand concert in the evening in the high school auditorium. Many different singing societies will be represented. The second day will be mostly devoted to sports and athletic contests. The all around athletic competition will consist of five events: Putting the shot, throwing the javelin, running high jump, running broad jump and 100 yard dash. In this event the contestants must use both hands when the hands are required as the aim of athletics as seen by the Finnish people is the development of the entire body. The results are averaged and the best balanced man in development will win. Three medals are provided for this contest and John Ketola of Virginia has also donated a silver cup for the winner. Other sports are, hop, step and jump, throwing the discus, two mile bicycle race, one mile run and a one and one-half mile relay race. For this last race the contestants will be teams of three men from the different range towns, each of whom will run one-half mile. Events will also be provided in which the ladies can participate. Suitable prizes have been put up for the winners. In the evening at the Finnish hall a dramatic production will be presented by local talent who have been working hard and have the finishing touches ready for the performance.

It is expected that several thousand people will be present. The central location of Gilbert and the well known ability of the local Finnish people all guarantee that the crowd will come and that the affair will be the best ever.

TO FIGHT FIRES.

Virginia, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The directors of the Virginia & Rainy Lake company indorsed the plan for the establishment of a well organized paid volunteer fire department, with the employes of the mill as the firemen and A. F. Thayer, late chief of the Virginia fire department, as the head. All permanent employes of the mill will be members of the department and they will receive compensation for attendance at drills and also for service at fires. The mill property is well provided with pipes and hydrants and it also has 25,000 feet of hose. The mill department will co-operate with the city fire protection service, both in the mill yards and outside, where service can be rendered.

ATTEMPTS HIS LIFE.

Inmate of Hibbing Jail Foiled in Effort to Hang Self.

Hibbing, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—"You'll see one Norwegian corpse pretty soon; I'll never come out of here alive," Fred Berger, a Kelly Lake laborer, declared yesterday afternoon in the village jail.

A few minutes later Berger was found hanging by the neck from one of the cell doors within the jail. He had removed his suspenders, hung them over the cell door, slipped his neck in the noose and twisted around until he choked. The man had been hanging but a moment when found and was not much worse for his experience. He was promptly divested of most of his clothing and locked in the padded cell.

Berger was picked up by Officer Moore near the Oliver hotel, where he had been trying to embrace passers-by and otherwise acting queerly. He talked so rationally, however, that his threat of not coming out of jail alive was at first taken as a joke.

"Haven't you got any friends?" he was asked.

"Friends? Friends? Friends? What are they? Sneaks, thieves, humbugs," he replied.

Berger is single, about 40 years of age. He will be examined today.

TO FIX FAIR GROUNDS.

St. Louis County Agricultural Association to Make Improvements.

Hibbing, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bids are being called for today by the St. Louis County Agricultural society for the grading and leveling of the center field at the fair grounds. This improvement is one that has been sorely needed ever since the race track was installed and will prove a very great convenience and add much to the enjoyment of future fairs.

The principal work to be accomplished is the leveling of the hill with the race track at the west end of the grounds. On account of this small elevation it is impossible to see the horses rounding the northwest end of the track, a handicap that has always detracted much from the pleasure of horse racing at the fair grounds.

The rest of the space within the race track has been fairly well cleared heretofore. The work will be very thoroughly done this year, however, and the space within the track will hereafter be a fine location for various amusement features of the fair. Airship flights from this tract were impossible two years ago on account of the roughness of the ground.

VIRGINIA WOMAN DIES.

Mrs. Haller, Formerly of Eau Claire and St. Paul, Is Called.

All live here. Mrs. Haller was a member of the Woodmen circle and Rebekahs and St. Paul's Episcopal church. The funeral will be held Friday with interment in Greenwood cemetery, Virginia.

BOOSTS EDMONTON.

Brother of Hibbing Man Lauds Canadian Northwestern Section.

Hibbing, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—P. T. Butchart, a prominent business man of Edmonton, Alta., a brother of Dr. G. N. Butchart of this city, is spending a few days here on his way east and south. Mr. Butchart will spend some time touring Eastern Canada in an automobile this summer and will also spend several weeks in the South.

Mr. Butchart is an enthusiast regarding the Canadian Northwest. The rapid, phenomenal growth of its cities does not appeal to him so much as the steady development of the country, however. "Edmonton," said Mr. Butchart, "has had a most wonderful growth in the past few years. Five years ago it was without a railroad; today it has a population conservatively estimated at from 60,000 to 65,000. Yet I am free to admit that Edmonton has grown faster than the country and it must soon wait for the country to catch up. The Canadian Northwest is an agricultural country and the towns must build up the country if they are to prosper permanently. Edmonton is one of the young and oldest cities in the Northwest; it was a Hudson Bay trading post a great many years ago, yet the Edmonton of today is scarcely more than five years old."

NEW CHISHOLM SCHOOL PLANS

Edifice to Be Built in Range Village to Be Very Fine.

Chisholm, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—By Jan. 1, next, the school board hopes that the fine, new school building to be built on the same site as the present high school will be finished and ready to relieve the congestion in school facilities. It will cost complete about $200,000. The plans for the new building, which have been accepted and bids for its construction invited, indicate it will be, in dignity, fine proportions, health and durability, one of the finest in Minnesota. The ventilating and vacuum cleaning features will be of the latest. The building will be fire proof, being of concrete reinforced with an interior of vitrified brick, laid in Flemish bond with granite limestone trimmings.

There will be two main entrances on the Third avenue side and two supplementary entrances in the rear. This will give access to the basement and to the industrial departments. It will be two stories high with a high, finished ground floor, a third floor attic arrangement with skylight for the art department.

Domestic Science Department.

The ground floor will contain the domestic science and a dining room, conveniently arranged for easy access from every floor and department, where it is planned to serve meals a la cafeteria at cost to the pupils. The manual training department, gymnasium, swimming pool, etc., will all be in easy access to the dining room.

The swimming pool will be 18½ by 60 feet, with shower bath in connection. A room for the physical instructor has also been provided. The first floor and the administrative departments will each be equipped with a spacious vault and the supply room will be in easy access to them. The recitation rooms, class rooms and kindergarten room will also be on this floor. A suspended gallery will be provided from the first floor which will admit of an excellent seating capacity for witnessing games, contests, etc., carried on in the gymnasium. An experimental garden and growing room will be built over the swimming pool on the first floor.

The second floor will contain the study hall, with a library in the rear, and when built, will be shelved so that later the shelves can be removed and the room used for other purposes if the demands require it. A moving picture machine will be installed in one of the second floor rooms to assist in the school work. Chemical and physical laboratories and lecture rooms, recitation rooms and biological laboratory are a part of the second floor equipment also. A commercial department is also planned, including the usual topics, commercial law, commercial arithmetic, etc.

The third floor will contain the arts, crafts and art metal work, which will be suitably located in the center of the building where good light and air have also been arranged.

The main corridors of the building will be sixteen feet wide and adjoining corridors ten feet wide.

The building will be heated by enlarging the present heating plant of the high school, and a considerable saving of fuel will ensue from this plan.

ALICE ANNEXATION

Will Be Considered By Mass Meeting of Hibbing People.

Hibbing, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A mass meeting of the members of the Commercial club of Hibbing and the citizens generally will be called to discuss the annexation of Alice. This was the disposition made by the village council of Hibbing of the petition of the people of Alice for annexation and the resolution of the village council of Alice asking that the village council of Hibbing approve of the annexation and assume the indebtedness and obligation of Alice. Herman Antonelli, W. J. Ryder, J. A. McCarthy, Marks Rogalsky, Jasen Lewis, L. C. Newcombe and J. H. Nelson were appointed a committee today to arrange for the mass meeting.

The resolution passed by the village council of Alice asks Hibbing to annex Alice upon condition that Hibbing assumes the Alice village debt, pays the salaries of the village clerk and village treasurer of Alice for 1913 and approves and continues the liquor license for Al Walsh for 1913. These matters were referred to the village attorney for his opinion to the powers of the village of Hibbing.

A number of citizens of the village of Alice attended the council meeting last evening and were prepared to speak in favor of annexation if necessary. No one appeared from Alice opposing annexation.

An early date for the mass meeting will undoubtedly be set by the committee.

WIDE SCOPE GIVEN IN ANTI-TRUST CASE

Government Wins Important Point in Shoe Machinery Trial.

Boston, Mass., May 21.—An unrestricted probe into the acts of the United States Shoe Machinery company, the alleged shoe machinery "trust," will be allowed the government as a result of a ruling by Judge William L. Putnam at the opening of the suit to dissolve the company, in the United States district court.

Attorney Charles A. Choate, Jr., of counsel for the defense, requested the court to restrict the government to proof of a plan on the part of the defendants to monopolize the shoe machinery business of the country. If such a plan never existed, he said the government would lose its case, as it alleged all the acts complained of were done in pursuance of a plan of monopoly.

"It is pretty dangerous for the court to restrict counsel in a case of this character," said Judge Putnam, who is presiding with Judges Frederick Dodge and Arthur Brown. "It is dangerous for us to intimate anything just now," he added, "but I would suggest that instead of taking up the time of the court, counsel argue on facts so far as they relate to acts of the company operated incidental to the shoe machinery business."

Of the eleven defendant companies, nine were operated as incidental to the shoe machinery business conducted by the United Shoe Machinery company and its holding company, the United Shoe Machinery corporation.

Through these eleven companies, the twenty-three individual defendants acquired, from the date of the formation of the United Shoe Machinery company in 1899 to the time the dissolution suit was brought in 1911, the business of fifty-five individual partnerships and corporations which the government charges were formerly in competition with the defendants.

VISITORS WILL BE ENTERTAINED

Lark o' the Lake to Be Staged Primarily for Outsiders.

The Lark o' the Lake at Duluth is to be primarily a show for visitors. The committee in charge of the series of entertainments, at a meeting at the Commercial club today, decided that arrangements must be so shaped that every visitor to Duluth will be given an opportunity to see the show, will have a free ticket and will be shown every courtesy that Duluth hospitality can devise.

The tickets will be issued to the business houses of the city and the money from that source will defray the expenses of the entertainments. The merchants will give them to their out-of-town customers, the wholesale houses will provide them for the entertainment of their visiting patrons, and other unattached visitors will be accommodated with tickets by applying to the information bureau of the Commercial club.

The publicity program of the committee is well advanced. Two-sheet colored posters will be distributed all through Duluth trade territory. The committee will send out 60,000 booklets, and 100,000 stickers will be used on mail going from Duluth to nearby territory. Thirty papers will be used for advertising purposes, and the wholesale houses are already sending out letters to their patrons inviting them to come to Duluth and participate in the Lark o' the Lake at Duluth.

We Have No $30 Hats for $3.49! We Have No $3.00 to $4.00 Shapes at 39c

This statement might sound foolish if we were not trying to emphasize the difference between our own millinery and other millinery departments represented in advertising prevalent lately.

Furthermore we do not buy hats or shapes by the hundred dozen.

We know mighty well you would not care for a hat or shape which would be as common as one picked from a lot of twelve hundred, more or less, of a kind.

The Point We Wish to Make Is This —We Select Our Styles With Great Care

We choose only such styles as are desirably different and uncommon and we have milliners who understand their business. They will gladly assist you in selecting a hat that will be most charmingly becoming and distinctly individual.

And moreover our prices are reasonable.

HICKEN'S NOTED PREDECESSOR

Man Who Put the Lid on Rome---How Cato Got Himself Elected to High Office and Earned the Title of Kill-Joy.

Kansas City Star: This is the story of Cato, the kill-joy, who held office in Rome in the days before the bosses had turned the town into an empire. As there were no watchful Washington correspondents at Rome in those days, the bosses were able to do this and get away with it, though not while Cato was on the job.

Our old friend Cato you will find listed in the history books as Cato the Censor, though some disgruntled persons around Rome said it ought to have been Cato the Censorious. However, for present-day purposes, Cato the Kill-joy, is equally impressive.

Cato's papa lived up in the country of the Sabines—you certainly remember who they were—and he ran a farm.

By and by young Cato, wearying of the eternal round of feeding the hogs, packed his old gray telescope and came down to Rome to start a career. Now Cato was an honest lad who had never worn patent leather shoes or lavender silk socks in his life, and Rome was a great jolt to him. For it was a tough town. Even New York, with all its boasted iniquity, has never come up to Rome in many regards. You see, the trouble with Rome was it had started out to be very respectable indeed, and then slipped, and when a Puritan town goes wrong it is likely to go very wrong indeed.

His Slumbers Disturbed.

Sounds of ribald merriment frequently disturbed the virtuous slumbers of Cato, over in his modest room in the Y. M. C. A., and one night, when a cabaret show had kept him awake until 4:30, he sat right up in bed, clinched his fists and beat on the pillow and vowed that one of these days he'd get himself elected police commissioner or something, and then he'd saddle Rome with a lid it wouldn't forget in a hurry. The which, as you shall see, he did.

Though an honest lad, Cato had chosen the law for his profession and he dabbled in politics, as young attorneys will, and finally, after the local Shandergasts had made themselves especially obnoxious, Cato was elected consul. A consul in those days was a sort of mayor of Rome—only there were always two of them.

But it was eight years later that Cato made his first spectacular line buck against Roman luxury. A person who bore the rather flossy name of M. Fluvius Nobilior had just come back from cleaning up the country of Aetolia, wherever that is, and reducing the inhabitants to a properly humble frame of mind. Plans were made for a triumph in his honor. Triumphs, you know, were sort of like Priests of Pallas parades, only more so, and the captives were dragged at the chariot wheels and there were free-for-all games, and generally the town supplied wine for anybody that wanted it—and everybody did, of course—Oh, altogether they were very joyous occasions.

Cato—and now you begin to see where he earned that kill-joy title we bestowed upon him in the opening paragraph—Cato said such performances were all foolishness and a waste of the town's money that might better be spent for arc lights and improving the parks and boulevard system and paving the streets. Also he went after Gen. Nobilior roughshod, said he was a blooming silk stocking and snob, that he wouldn't put it past him to have his picture taken in a dress suit and plug hat, and that among other iniquities Nobilior had kept poets in his camp. This seemed to have rankled in Cato's honest breast worst of all—the idea of carting a bunch of poets along on a campaign! However, there are things to be said for Nobilior. Since poets seem inevitable, is it not better to have them along with an army where they at least run a chance of being killed, than to leave them at home to bring down editorial heads in sorrow to the grave?

The Triumph Held.

To get back to Rome, however. They went ahead and held the triumph anyhow, Cato to the contrary notwithstanding, and it was rumored that Gen. Fluvius Nobilior placed his thumb to his nose and waved his extended fingers in derisive glee when he passed Cato's house—where, by the way, the blinds were all pulled down and Cato was sitting in a straight-backed chair on the back porch reading "Pilgrim's Progress." Very likely he was asking himself as he heard the gay uproar from the street just whither we were drifting, anyhow.

But Cato's real triumph was to come. In 184 B. C. he was elected censor, a job which in those days held a lot of duties besides viewing the movies. Cato, with one other censor, had charge of the city directory, decided who was a citizen and who wasn't, was dictator of public morals and had some sayso about how the sesterces in the city treasury should be spent. He was a sort of director of the census, head of the board of public welfare and chairman of the appropriations committee all in one, with a few odd duties thrown in for good measure. And he had the chance of a lifetime to clamp the lid on Rome, a chance that old C. K. J. was not slow to improve, you may be sure.

He issued orders about what sort of simple clothes everybody should wear, placed the taboo on hobble skirts and three-foot hatpins and did a lot more unpleasant things. His ideas of what was decorous and what wasn't were rigid, to say the least. One man named Manilius was degraded from his pretorian rank of citizenship because he kissed Mrs. Manilius in the presence of their daughter. Whether Cato was sore because he wanted to kiss Mrs. M. himself is not known; anyhow, they reduced Manilius to the ranks.

Put Lid on Many Things.

But Cato, of course, did a lot of good. Many of the things he put the lid on temporarily needed suppressing. He spent the town's money well, improved the waterworks system and the rivers, and not even the folks who disliked Cato most and called him Old Sour Dough behind his back ever intimated that there was any graft in his department. The trouble with Cato was that he was at heart a standpatter. He was unable to distinguish between the good and the evil in the new ideas that were pouring in from Greece, and so he fought everything new.

One of the biggest services Cato ever performed for Rome was to stir the citizens up against Carthage. He was sent to Carthage as a peace envoy, to arbitrate some differences between the Carthaginians and the king of Numidia, and he came back very much alarmed over the wealth and power of the North African city. He felt that unless Rome swooped down and beat Carthage to a whisper pretty quickly, the Carthaginians were sure sooner or later to pounce on Rome and turn it into a mere suburb of Carthage. And so after he got back he began hammering away about the necessity of destroying Carthage. For years he never made a public speech without ending with the phrase, "Carthago delenda est," which means, roughly speaking, "Put Carthage on the blink."

And finally Rome did go to war, and you may remember that when Rome got through Carthage looked as if it had been through the Omaha tornado and the Dayton flood, with a few jolts from the San Francisco fire and earthquake. Old Cato in his grave must almost have smiled.

New York Herald: "Your wife is looking magnificent tonight," said one correctly garbed gentleman to another one night at the horse show.

The complimented husband smiled. "I'll tell you the secret," he declared. "I know you won't let it go any further."

"If you can tell me the secret of that outfit except in plain dollars and cents, and a great many of them, I'd like to know it," said the other man.

The husband grinned cheerfully. "It's the department stores," he confessed. "She got everything she has on from different ones and she'll send them back tomorrow and get credit for them. Then she'll get a little something later on the credit and take the remainder in money. It's a great method. Why, there isn't anything the department store won't do for the women nowadays."

It was one of those peculiar coincidences of real life that the manager of one of the largest department stores in the world happened to be standing directly back of the confidential husband and so was forced to listen with drooping head to the tale of the victimizing of the large stores by women of position.

And perhaps that is one of the reasons why many of the department stores at which it is the easiest matter in the world to return goods and have them credited are making an effort to put an obstacle in the path of Mrs. Worldly's never ceasing pursuit of variety in dress gained as little at her own expense as possible.

A little tag, apparently an inoffensive little tag, much the same as that which is attached to garments to state at which shop they have been bought and their price and size, is beginning to interfere to a considerable extent with Mrs. Worldly's exploitation of the department stores. The tag is attached to the garment so that it will not in the least mar even the most delicate fabric. But the tag which some of the stores are now using to check women from wearing gowns sent on approval and then returning them is a sly and persistent little demon with which Mrs. Worldly, in spite of all her experience at defeating the stores, contends in vain. The tag cannot be detached and then restored to its place without showing that this has been done, and on this determined little guardian of the rights of the store is printed in perfectly plain letters, "This garment cannot be returned if the tag is detached."

Sent On Approval.

Thus is Mrs. Worldly confronted with a frightful situation. With all the assurance in the world she has sought through the shops for the particular and charmeuse gown which will be especially apropos for that night at the theater. She wants a red gown badly as a striking midwinter note in her wardrobe, but she wants it for only that one occasion. The family purse will not endure another strain of such magnitude before it is time to select the Palm Beach wardrobe. And yet Mrs. Worldly is terribly tired of the frocks that she has had all the season. She will try it, at any rate. If the worst happens, if some one spills wine on her gown at the supper afterward, or a clumsy man puts his foot through the skirt it will have to be paid for. Mrs. Worldly, having reasoned it out thus far, shops for the red gown, finds it and orders it home.

"I do hope," she confides to her maid, "that clumsy Tom Brown isn't there; he will be sure to put his foot through it."

Then the gown is unpacked. The maid goes into raptures over the color, the style, the trimming. Mrs. Worldly congratulates herself on being a perfect figure. She tries it on and it fits without a bit of alteration.

"I don't see how women manage who haven't a well proportioned figure," says Mrs. Worldly complacently, regarding her gorgeous reflection in the mirror.

Then a patch of white in a very prominent place in the front of the skirt catches her eye.

"Oh, there's a tag, Lucille!" she cries. "Take it off!"

It is then that the cruel discovery is made. Before removing the tag Lucille idly reads its starting message.

"Madam," she cries, "we are undone!" or words to that effect.

But the tag isn't undone. At first, after reading it carefully, it is decided that it may be covered up. There are various suggestions as to flowers and choux and little bows, but everything looks odd when it is put to the test. After all, a well made gown cannot have strange extraneous little patches put on in prominent places without looking peculiar.

Also Mrs. Worldly and the maid have both grown horribly conscious of the white tag. It stares at them from every angle and will no more "out" than the stains on Lady Macbeth's hands. They struggle with the situation for a long time and then Mrs. Worldly does one of two things, according as she has a stern or an indulgent husband. If she is in sole command of the domestic situation she rips off the white tag with triumphant glee, wears the gown and pays for it. If she has good reason to be really afraid of making the purchase she sadly attires herself in another costume and sends the gown back next day unworn and properly tagged.

Gowns, wraps of all sorts and millinery are the articles of merchandise which women are most in the habit of having sent home on approval, using and then returning to be credited. Evening cloaks are an especial temptation because they are often needed to go with some particular gown which may be worn only a few times a season. The art of dress has now become so complex that women are not content with one handsome opera cloak. They want cloaks which are especially in harmony with each costume. As each of these cloaks cost a large sum, it is impossible for a great many women who possess moderate incomes to have as many as they want. Often on a special occasion a woman is anxious to make a particularly stunning appearance, and in order that her outfit may be quite perfect a faultless new wrap is needed. She knows that many of her friends use the department stores as a circulating wardrobe and she decides to try it for herself. It seems easy, and if nothing happens to the cloak she returns it without a question from the saleswoman or the management. Even if the cloak is slightly crushed, the trimming a little defaced, a tiny spot or two to be noticed, the customer has her explanation. The wrap was in that condition when she bought it. She is a charge customer. It is not safe to question her too closely or she might take offence and withdraw her trade.

Many Things Are "Borrowed."

But now the little tag is being tested to see whether it can exercise the necessary espionage over Mrs. Worldly without giving rise to unpleasant disputes. What can a customer say in refutation of the silent little witness, the white tag?

After wearing apparel, china, silverware and glassware are the articles which are most frequently sent on approval, used and then returned, according to the statements of some of the managers of the large stores. A small label is being used on several of the pieces of china of a dinner set so that it will be impossible to use the whole set without washing the label off. Some firms have even made the experiment of using a small label on each piece of the set, but this is not done very often. Dinner sets are "borrowed" in this informal fashion more often than any other service for the table, as few persons would find it worth while to "borrow" china for more ordinary use in this manner. But when a large dinner party is being given, and the family china is not sufficient, it is naturally a great temptation to try to get hold of what is needed for only one evening without paying for it.

"And the amusing part of it is," said one of the managers of a large store, "that we have every bit of trouble connected with the transaction as well as having our dishes used without being paid for. The customer comes down and selects the ware, it is true, but there her trouble ceases. When she gets ready to return the dishes she telephones for us to send a packer. If she is a little timid in the business of department store borrowing she may explain that the color of the design doesn't go with the hangings of the dining room or that when the dishes were unpacked she realized for the first time that the shapes were exceedingly clumsy. But if she is very experienced in this method of making a show on nothing a year she simply doesn't explain at all. The maidr eceives the packer and the dishes are packed and returned with no questions asked if they have been carefully washed so that they are not greasy or unless some of them have been damaged.

"When the dishes are brought back to the store they are examined to see if they are in good condition, and if so they are restored to their old place in the store. If in the course of the examination we find, however, that they have not been carefully washed, we will, of course, refuse to credit them. This method is what we have always used in the past, but now we are also using labels on some of the pieces and a number of stores are going even further and labeling all of their pieces."

"What is the favorite excuse which a woman gives, when she gives any, for sending back articles that she has bought?" asked the reporter.

"Always the same," declared the department store expert. "Her husband doesn't like it."

POMPEII.

The Ancient Center of Business and Pleasure Compared With Brighton.

Roman Herald: In an address on Pompeii at the Victoria Institute E. J. Sewel said as one stood in the streets of the town and saw the ruts worn in the stone pavement by passing vehicles, the last of which traveled there more than eighteen hundred years ago, or spelled out the inscriptions painted on the walls, such as one calling on the citizens to vote for a particular candidate as aedile at the coming election, one realized with great vividness the busy and varied life that once throbbed in those streets, now empty and deserted. When one found in a wine shop a notice that goods could be had only on cash payment, or, on examining some ivory dice found in a house discovered that they were loaded so as always to throw double sixes, it was brought home to one that human nature in many of its manifestations was exactly the same in A. D. 70 as it is today.

As a place combining business interests with being a center of pleasure and recreation one might compare Pompeii with Brighton. As regards the amusements of Pompeii the theater was 'n the open air, but its southern aspect and the hot brilliant sunshine rendered an awning necessary over the seats of the spectators. There was also just outside the theater a deep reservoir for water which was used for sprinkling over the theater to cool the heated building.

Among the photographs illustrating the address were several articles belonging to a woman's toilet, including a glass box containing rouge, and among a number of surgical instruments found in the residence of a surgeon, one which had been completely forgotten till it was reinvented in comparatively recent times by a French surgeon.

STATE CONTROL OF INSURANCE BEATEN

Wisconsin Legislators Have Bitter Debate Over Measure.

Madison, Wis., May 21.—State control of fire insurance ratings is proposed in the L. L. Johnson bill, which was defeated in the assembly today after a bitter fight into which personalities between the Ekern and McGovern factions continually entered. The vote was 57 to 35. The fight for the bill was led by Johnson, and that against by Schnitzler.

Assemblyman Anderson offered a joint resolution providing for a constitutional amendment for the recall of judges. Its introduction met vigorous objection from Mahon and others, on the ground that the legislature has too many measures on hand now. By a vote of 45 to 42 the assembly refused to permit its introduction.

The senate engrossed the Teasdale bill, making it a misdemeanor for a pool or billiard room owner to permit minors to play billiards or pool. Senator Husting claimed the bill was too drastic.

The Durecki bill, prohibiting the sale or giving away of liquor on school grounds, was killed by the senate.

SAME BASIS FOR RAW STUFF AND PRODUCTS

Tariff Principle Announced By Williams at Washington.

Washington, May 21.—Senator Williams, chairman of the finance subcommittee considering the agricultural schedule, announced today that it had been decided to treat beef, cattle, sheep and hogs and their products and wheat and flour and oats and oatmeal on an equal basis. If a duty is to be put on the raw material it will likewise be put on the products, or vice versa.

That the sub-committee had decided to put cattle, wheat, etc., on the free list with beef and flour, Senator Williams denied, declaring that it had not been determined upon what basis all such articles would be treated, whether dutiable or undutiable.

NORTH DAKOTA A. O. U. W. ELECTS.

Fond du Lac, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grand lodge session of the A. O. U. W. today selected Grand Forks for the next biennial meeting in 1915. New officers elected for the ensuing two-year period are: For him to wait till the coach was half over, then jump wide, landing on his feet. It was exactly in this fashion that the well known airwoman, Madame de Laroche, saved her life at Rheims. Her machine was brought down by the crash of another aeroplane passing too close, and she managed to keep her head and jump clear.

Monsieur Le Blon, by his quickness and cleverness, on one occasion, saved not only his own life, but those of a number of other people.

This was at the Doncaster flying week three years ago. It may be remembered that the weather was very bad. Le Blon was flying in a gale when a heavy gust surging behind the monoplane swung it broadside on, heading off to the right.

He tried to regain his line of flight, but the machine refused to come round. Then he descended quickly. But by this time he was almost on the rails bordering the course. He touched earth at forty miles an hour. Immediately in front were the white posts and rails fronted by a ditch. Le Blon was equal to the emergency. He jerked forward his elevating lever, and, like a horso rising at a fence, the plane jerked forward and over the obstacle. But now a worse peril confronted him. He found himself charging at the speed of an express train straight for the packed ranks of spectators.

Again he threw himself on his steering column, and swung it over, leaning his body forward. With a great swoop the plane again leaped into the air. So close was it to the crowd that the wind of its passage sent hats flying this way and that. But it rose—rose to fifty feet, and then came hurtling down. The wheels crumpled, the propeller flew to fragments. But no one was hurt.

AMAZING FEATS OF AIRMEN

How One Operator Saved Life By Working Planes By Hand.

Pearson's Weekly: If an airman once loses control of his machine his fate is as good as sealed. Yet there are some men so plucky, so wonderfully full of resource, that even in the most awful dilemmas they never lose their heads, but will snatch at any desperate chance and somehow manage to come out unhurt.

Sablating is such a man. In July last he was flying with a passenger and had reached a height of fully a thousand feet when a gust of wind caught his plane. There was a sharp snap. One of the levers controlling the planes had broken.

Sablating acted on the instant. Scrambling swiftly out of his seat, he crept forward and operated the planes directly by hand. The machine volplaned swiftly earthward, but, though it was smashed on landing, neither of the men was hurt.

WHEAT HAS AN ADVANCE

Bulls Win in a Battle of Rumors With Bears.

Flax Closes Slightly Lower in a Narrow Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 21.—So far as the battle of rumors are concerned, the bulls won up to the close of the market today. May wheat closed at an advance of 1¼c nominal, July closed unchanged to ¼c up, and September closed ¼c up to ¼c under.

May durum closed even with the opening an ¼c under yesterday's close, and July durum closed unchanged. Oats advanced ¾c while rye and barley remained unchanged. Cash closed at the July figure.

The grain market was rather peculiar and fitful all morning. Conflicting reports came in from all sources which favored both bulls and bears and there seems to be a desperate effort being made in some quarters to start a heavy break or on the other hand a stiff ascent in prices. Bad news came from the Southwest, claiming that crop conditions are not what they should be and then a telegram came from Kansas City to the effect that the crop in Kansas is looking fine and that they could lose 20,000,000 bu and still have a 100,000,000 bu. crop. Another telegram poohpoohed this idea and asserted that there is no such crop in prospect in that state. Other word came to the effect that there was considerable export business today, and then Boston hinted that there was none for the reason that re-sellers across the water are offering cargoes at 3c and 4c under American markets. Favorable crop reports from the Northwest are not denied. Cables were weak.

May wheat is where it closed yesterday with nothing doing. July opened unchanged to ¼c under and then went up ¾c to ⅞c. September, without an opening figure, gained ⅝c to ½c during the morning. May durum is nominal at ⅛c off. July opened unchanged, went down ⅛c early and at noon was down ¼c.

Flax Falls Off.

There was not a great deal of activity in flax today and the market proved very narrow. May fell off ¼c, closing at $1.32 nominal. July closed ⅛c under and so did September and October.

Stocks of wheat in Minneapolis have decreased in four days, 7,000,000 bu. Flour shipments yesterday were 61,310 bbl.

Winnipeg wires: "With all the bearish features, our market doesn't go down. The bulls say July will sell much higher, as they say all our good wheat is sold to foreigners. Exporters bought quite a little of our July at 93¾c."

• • •

T. W. Lewis of Minneapolis wires: "So much American and Canadian wheat has been sold abroad that the foreigners are no longer the predominating factor in our domestic situation. If they buy again it will only make our market firmer, but we can go up easily on a little domestic bull news. While war news doesn't break the market, forget the export business and keep your eye on the growing crops."

The Grand Forks Evening Times says:

"Rain has been general over most of the state during the past two days and the benefit to crops has been very good. The rain has also covered the additional states. It practically covered the states of Montana, North and South Dakota and Minnesota. Corn areas in Central and Eastern South Dakota are being benefited by heavy precipitation. Although abnormally low temperatures are reported in several sections no harmful result is expected.

"Reports received at the Great Northern and Northern Pacific offices from division agents indicate the wide districts of the moisture. They are as follows:

"Great Northern—General rain all along the Montana and Butte division. Areas along the Kalispel and Spokane division received rains.

"Northern Pacific—Dakota, Yellowstone, Butte and Helena, and Spokane divisions report rains. This includes the branch lines extended from the main roads. The cool weather has caused the grain to stool out and root firmly and the rain coming at this time, added to the rain of last week, starts the crops under conditions that have never been more favorable. What is needed after this rain is a spell of warm weather which the local forecaster says is probable."

Kansas City wires: "There may be some isolated points where wheat has gone back next to Great Bend, Kan., but the weekly telegraphic reports from every station on the Santa Fe road, received Monday, show the greatest wheat crop in Kansas' history and that road covers more of Kansas than any other three roads. They can lose 20,000,000 bu and still have a 1,000,000,000 bu crop."

Diametrical opposite to the above comes a wire from Dodge City, Kan., which says:

"Get away from that 100,000,000 bu crop idea. They haven't got it."

Clearances reported today are: Wheat, 538,000 bu; flour, 19,000 bbl; together they equal 624,000 bu; corn, 6,000 bu.

CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Is Easier on Account of Good Rains.

Chicago, May 21.—Good rains made wheat today easy. It was still cool in the Canadian Northwest, however, and there were unfavorable advices from India. Accordingly, shorts covered and checked the decline. Opening prices were the same as last night to ¼@⅜c lower. July started at 88⅝@88¾c to 88¾c, a loss of ¼c to ⅛@¼c, rallied to 88⅞@89c and then fell back to 88⅝@88¾c.

Afterward there was an additional setback, but export sales and Southern Kansas reports of crops deteriorating brought about a sudden rally. The close was strong with July at 90⅜c, a net rise of 1½c.

Smallness of offerings steadied corn. July, which opened unchanged to a shade off at 56½@56⅝c to 56⅝c, touched 56¾c and reacted to 56½c.

The market dipped with wheat but soon followed that grain upward. The close was steady, ⅜c net higher for July at 57c.

Country selling of oats on account of the fine rains proved less than expected. July started a sixteenth to ⅛@¼c down at 36½@36⅝c, but gradually hardened to 36¼c.

In the provision pit, demand exceeded the supply. Weakness which prevailed at the outset quickly disappeared. First sales were 5@7½c lower to 2½c advance with September as follows: Pork, $19.50; lard, $11.05@11.07½; ribs, $11.15.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Leaders End Day With Small Losses and Close Heavy.

New York City's Latest Bond Issues Sell at a Discount.

New York, May 21.—Several stocks, the most conspicuous being Pennsylvania, sagged to new low marks under the pressure of short selling and liquidation. The cheerful feeling in London and reports of the success of the Chinese loan abroad were reflected in the firm undertone of the early market, but efforts to bid up prices were ineffectual and the trend became downward. The continued lack of investment demand, which it was hoped might be stimulated by the New York and Chinese bond flotations, restrained bull operators.

Bonds irregular.

Stocks were firmly held at the opening of the market today. Steel and Union Pacific started the session at yesterday's closing prices and the other leaders ranged slightly higher. The best gains were made by Canadian Pacific which rose 1¾ and Rock Island common and preferred, which advanced about a point each.

Initial advances were not retained and several leading stocks reacted to below yesterday's closing figures. The New York city 4½ per cent bonds sold at 100.

Extensive liquidation of Petroleum shares was unnoticed by the general list, which was quiet at a trifle over the forenoon lowest. California Petroleum dropped 4½ to 37, a new low figure. Mexican Petroleum lost 2¼.

Dealings in the certificates for the new city bonds were inaugurated by a sale of a $1,000 bond at 100⅛, after which a block of $100,000 changed hands at 100.

Dealings in stocks were virtually suspended and scarcely any of the active shares fluctuated more than ⅛ in the course of the hour. St. Louis & San Francisco general 5's broke 3¼ to 68¾, selling under the refunding 4's which were quoted at 69.

The market closed heavy. New York city new 4½ per cent bonds sold at a discount. Several sales of small amounts occurred at 99⅞. Upwards of $1,000,000 sold at 100 against the average award by the city of 100.159. Weakness was also manifested by various railroad bonds. St. Louis and San Francisco general 5's dropped nearly 5 points to 67¾. Stocks reflected the unfavorable conditions in a mild fashion, the leaders ending the day with small losses.

MARINE NEWS

COAL ORDERS FOR EARLY DELIVERY

Fear That Ore Movement May Monopolize Time of Boats Later.

The American Lumberman for this week has the following comment to make on the coal situation at the present time:

"Shippers of anthracite say the receipts this month by all-rail are light. While business for the season to date is more or less disappointing to them in volume, shipments from mines are not excessive. Some other place for the coal has evidently been found. Besides the relatively better buying of anthracite in the East the lake movement is now under way and the docks are capacious enough to absorb considerable tonnage before complaints are due of slowness of the Northwest to move from dock the tonnage that arrives.

"This vigorous opening of the lake season is aiding in the strength of the Eastern bituminous coals. The docks at upper lake ports are said to have been pretty well cleaned upon and the coal is being hurried forward with more than the usual dispatch. Contracts for dock coal are said to have been closed this spring for larger tonnages and earlier than usual, and at least some of the contracts specify that shipments shall be completed by Sept. 1. The reason given for this haste is that the lake vessels have unusually large obligations this season in iron ore freight to be taken down and there is fear that later in the season the boats may be so busy with the ore that they will neglect coal on the up lake trips.

"Ohio coals are maintaining their strength. Producing companies still refuse to contract ahead for tonnage, evidently preferring to take their chances on the open market."

GRAIN MOVEMENT IS DISAPPOINTING

Lack of Foreign Demand Curtails Shipments Through Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 21.—The grain movement through the port of Buffalo during the last four or five days has been particularly disappointing, according to the local grain men. The foreign market, they say, has been overburdened with grain, and on account of the good crop report recently issued by the government, foreign buyers are of the opinion that the price of grain will drop and are, therefore, holding off.

For more than a week, there have been few, if any, sales to England or the United Kingdom due to the controversy between the American shippers and the foreign buyers in regard to the payment of drafts. This trouble was settled on Saturday, and Europe has accepted the compromise of the American firms, and they are now able to resume business.

The temporary dullness in the grain market at Buffalo is also accounted for by the fact that there is very little available tonnage. Most of the grain carriers are now going into the ore trade, but an improvement is looked for during the week. The grain shipments via the Georgian bay ports and Montreal are not regarded as a factor in the situation at Buffalo. The rail rate from Georgian bay to Montreal is lower than the rate from Buffalo to New York, but the Canadian facilities for handling grain are limited, and consequently have no bearing on the grain movement through Buffalo.

FIRE TUG FOR ALLOUEZ DOCKS

Great Northern May Order Craft Similar to the McGonagle.

D. M. Philbin, general manager of the Great Northern ore properties, is negotiating at present for the purchase of a fire tug to be stationed at the Allouez ore docks in Superior.

Mr. Philbin stated this morning that nothing definite has been arranged regarding the purchase of the tug, but that negotiations are now pending. The construction of a tug similar to the W. A. McGonagle now in use at the Missabe ore docks may be ordered, according to Mr. Philbin.

Last week Mr. Philbin and several officials of the Great Northern Mining company and the D., M. & N. witnessed a demonstration of the fire tug McGonagle at the Missabe docks.

The placing of a fire tug at the Allouez docks will greatly reduce the insurance rates that are now being paid. But one of the four docks is of steel, and as a result the Great Northern must pay heavy rates for insurance.

The McGonagle throws twelve streams when in full play, a total of 12,000 gallons of water per minute.

CONGESTION AT DOCKS RELIEVED

Normal Ore Shipments Expected to Be Resumed Thursday.

Although the rainy weather has not abated for the past thirty-six hours, the congestion at the various ore docks is being relieved and it is expected to end by tomorrow morning.

Last evening the congestion was as bad as ever, with delays by the trains contributing. The heavy rains considerably injured shipping on the roads and as a result the normal ore movement has decreased to a great extent. With the continual arrival of more ore boats, the congestion greatly increased since Monday evening.

But seven boats arrived since yesterday noon, while ten left with ore loads. Conditions are improving right along, according to one of the shippers, and the normal shipments are expected with the next twelve hours.

The coal movement continues improving and larger coal fleets are arriving each day. Ten boats arrived since yesterday noon.

The heavy congestion at the local ore docks has caused boat owners to charter several boats for grain cargos, for the next day or two at least. Five boats arrived for grain loads while one grain cargo left since yesterday noon.

Boats arriving from the Soo report a heavy fog all along Lake Superior.

Vessels on Reef.

Mackinaw City, Mich., May 21.—The Canadian steamer Simla, towing the barge Burmah down from Green Bay to Kingston with a cargo of timber, ran on Simmons reef Monday morning. The steamer released herself at 7 a. m. yesterday. The wrecker Favorite was ordered to the stranded Burmah. The reef where the vessels went on is strewn with boulders, and both boats are probably considerably damaged.

WELL KNOWN CLEVELAND MAN VISITS DULUTH.

George F. Lynn of Cleveland, chief engineer for the Great Lakes Steamship company, is in the city this week in charge of the repairing that is being done to the steamer A. G. Brower at the Superior shipyards.

Mr. Lynn came here on the steamer Charles M. Warner, which towed the disabled steamer Brower to Duluth from Round island. She lost her rudder and was towed by the W. W. Brown and Warner, the former leaving at Outer island on her way to Ashland.

As soon as the repairs are completed to the Brower, Mr. Lynn will go back to Cleveland. While in the city he is meeting the local marine men and shippers. He is one of the most well-known marine men on the Great Lakes.

Capt. J. E. Stover is in command of the Brower.

TRAINMEN TALK OF COMPENSATION LAWS

More and Better Safety Appliances on Railroads Sought.

San Francisco, Cal., May 21.—One of the important questions touched upon at this morning's session of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen was compulsory compensations for injuries sustained in the course of duty. It is stated the whole matter will be placed in the hands of the executive committee with instructions to urge action by congress. A change in the constitution, discussed today, provides that the conventions of the organizations be held triennially instead of every two years. It was announced that W. G. Lee, president of the body, will be a candidate for re-election.

More and better safety appliances are the object of a resolution introduced at the convention. The resolution contemplates an effort to obtain from congress more comprehensive Federal laws on this subject through the interstate commerce commission. One improvement designed is a coupler that will operate from both sides of the car, it being claimed that trainmen are subjected to great risk at times in operating the couplers now in use.

A more rigid Federal law regulating the number of hours a railroad man may be compelled to work is the purpose of another resolution.

GLADYS VANDERBILT'S COUNT SWINDLE VICTIM

COUNT SZECHENYI.

Count Ladislaus Szechenyi, husband of the former Gladys Vanderbilt, is said to have lost over $4,000,000 of late and is reported in sore straits. Rumors say that he has been a victim of a mining swindle in which he lost huge sums on the Budapest and Vienna bourses. The story runs that the count organized among the rich landowners and other members of the aristocracy what became known as the "magnate group" for operations of a speculative nature. The count and his associates failed to see the financial storm which was brewing as a result of the Balkan war and the unsettled international situation which was hovering over Austria-Hungary, with the result that when the storm broke the "magnate group" was among the cripples of the financial battlefield.

M'GONAGLE IS BACK AT HIS DESK

President of Missabe Road Apparently in Good Health Once More.

After ten weeks' absence from his office, W. A. McGonagle, president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, is back at his desk again, visiting his office for the first time this morning.

Many of Mr. McGonagle's friends called on him this morning to pay their respects and congratulate him on his recovery.

Mr. McGonagle was taken ill early in March and he was compelled to give up his work and take a rest. He spent several weeks at Mount Clemens, Mich., and later left for a short visit in the West. His illness was due to too strenuous application to his work. The long rest has apparently restored his strength, and his friends were delighted to see him apparently in excellent health this morning.

Railroad Finally Coming.

Manning, N. D., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is great rejoicing among Dunn county citizens, especially those in the Soring creek neighborhood, over the commencement of actual grading work in this county on the railroad.

Dunn and McKenzie counties are the only ones in the state without railroads. Construction work is now being done in both and by fall trains will be running in each of the fifty counties of North Dakota.

Contractor Dickson of Minneapolis arrived here with a crew of men, grading machinery and horses.

Mellen Case Delayed.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 21.—The state's attorney announces that the cases of President Charles S. Mellen and Vice President E. H. McHenry of the New Haven railroad, charged with manslaughter in connection with the Westport wreck of last October, will go over until the September term of court.

THE UNEASY HEADS OF ROYALTY

Kansas City Times: The tragic death of King George of Greece, who was shot through the heart while walking in the streets of Saloniki, recalls a remark which the king once made to the effect that he believed it was his fate to die at the hands of the assassin. This was after an attempt to kill him on Feb. 26, 1898, when he was shot at while driving with his daughter, Princess Marie.

The determination of assassins of royalty is one of the most remarkable features of these dastardly crimes. No fewer than three attempts were made on the life of King Humbert of Italy. On Nov. 17, 1878, ten months after his accession to the throne, a man attempted to stab him with a dagger, the king escaping with a slight scratch. The second unsuccessful attempt was in 1897, when a workman struck at him with a dagger while he was driving to the races, the murderer's blow being again averted. Three years later, however, the assassin Bresci accomplished him purpose by shooting King Humbert at Monza.

Two Attempts on Francis Joseph.

The Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria has reason to be greatly embittered against assassins, for not only was his wife, the Empress Elizabeth, fatally stabbed while walking from her hotel at Geneva in 1898, but twice attempts have been made on his own life. In 1853 a tailor named Libney tried to stab the monarch in the neck, his knife sliding down the military cravat of the emperor's uniform, only a slight wound being inflicted, while in 1881 he was shot at by a youth named Overdank, the shot, however, missing its intended mark.

Four czars of Russia have been assassinated, the last being Alexander II in 1881. Six attempts were made on this monarch's life before the fatal end. On one occasion he only escaped through the barrel of the assassin's pistol bursting, while in 1866, when the dinner hall of the winter palace was wrecked by an explosion from the cellars, the emperor owed his life to the fact that the company did not sit down to dinner at the usual hour, and so the explosion was ineffective. Ultimately Alexander was blown to pieces while driving through St. Petersburg on March 13, 1881.

A Nearly Fatal Salute.

Three attempts have been made on the life of the present czar, the last being in 1905, when celebrating what is known as the Twelfth Day festival. A pavilion had been erected in front of the winter palace, and after the czar and grand dukes had finished prayers in this pavilion a salute of guns was fired from the fortress of St. Peter opposite the palace on the other side of the River Neva. To the consternation of the attendants the pole of the banner over the pavilion was broken in two, while the windows of the palace were shattered. It was afterwards discovered that one of the guns from the fortress had been loaded by an unknown hand.

Three attempts were made to kill Queen Victoria, while twice an assassin tried to take the life of the late King Edward, but without success. The last occasion was in 1900, when Spido tried to shoot King Edward at Brussels.

Perhaps the narrowest escape which Queen Victoria had was when her life was attempted by Roderick Maclean in 1882 at Windsor station. Had he been a little more cool or a more excellent shot, this assailant would most certainly have succeeded in his purpose.
